And <whatever may be the need> whether young bullocks or rams or lambs for ascending-sacrifices unto the God of the heavens, wheat, salt, wine or oil, according to the command of the priests who are in Jerusalem,—that it be given to them, day by day, without fail; 10 that they may be offering sweet-smelling sacrifices unto the God of the heavens,—and be praying for the life of the king, and his sons.

And <from me> is issued an edict, that <any man who shall alter this message> let timber be torn out of his house, and being lifted up let him be fastened thereunto,—and his house  be made for this; 12 and * the God who hath caused his Name to dwell there] destroy any king or people, who shall put forth their hand to alter to destroy this house of God, which is in Jerusalem.

II. Darius] have issued an edict, <forthwith> let it be done.

12 [Then] Tattenai the pasha Beyond the River, Shethar-bozenai, and their associates,—<according as Darius the king had sent> [so, forthwith] they did.

And <the elders of the Jews> went on building and prospering, through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet, and Zechariah son of Iddo,—they both built and finished, owing to the edict of the God of Israel, and owing to the edict of Cyrus and Darius, and Artaxerxes king of Persia. 15 And this house was finished, by the third day of the month Adar,—the which was the sixth year of the reign of Darius the king.

16 Then did the sons of Israel, the priests and the Levites, and the rest of the Sons of the Exile, keep' the dedication of this house of God, with joy; 17 and offered, for the dedication of this house of God, [bullcups] one hundred, [rams] two hundred, [lambs] four hundred,—and [he-goats, as a sin-offering for all Israel] twelve, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. 18 And they set up the priests in their divisions, and the Levites in their courses, over the service of God, which was in Jerusalem,—as it is written, in the Book of Moses.

19 And the Sons of the Exile kept' the passover,—on the fourteenth of the first month; 20 for the priests and the Levites |had purified themselves| as one man, |all of them| were pure,—so they slaughtered the passover for all the Sons of the Exile, and for their brethren the priests, and for themselves. 21 Therefore the sons of Israel who had returned from the Exile and all who had separated themselves from the impurity of the nations of the land* unto them, |did eat|,—to seek Yahweh, God of Israel; and kept the festival of unleavened cakes seven days, with joy,—for Yahweh had made them joyful, and had turned the heart of the king of Assyria towards them, to strengthen their hands, in the work of the house of God, the God of Israel.

§ 7. Ezra is empowered by a Letter from Artaxerxes to visit Jerusalem.

1 Now <after these things, in the reign of 7 Artaxerxes king of Persia—Ezra>— son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah; 2 son of Shallum, son of Zedok, son of Ahitub; 3 son of Amariah, son of...
Azariah, son of Meremoth; 4 son of Zerahiah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki; 5 son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son of Eliazar, son of Aaron 6 the first priest:

6 this Ezra came up out of Babylon, 7 being a ready scribe in the law of Moses, which Jehovah God of Israel had given, and the king gave him, according to the hand of Jehovah his God, upon all his request.

7 So then there came up some of the sons of Israel, and some of the priests and the Levites, and the singers and the doorkeepers and the Nethinim, unto Jerusalem, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes the king. 8 And he entered Jerusalem, in the fifth month, the same was the seventh year of the king. 9 For on the first of the first month was a beginning made of coming up from Babylon, and on the first of the fifth month he entered into Jerusalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him. 10 For Ezra had settled his heart, to study the law of Jehovah, and to do [it], and to teach in Israel, statute and regulation.

11 Now this is a copy of the letter which King Artaxerxes gave unto Ezra the priest the scribe, the scribe of the words of the commandments of Jehovah, and of his statutes, for Israel:

12 Artaxerxes, king of kings 13 Unto Ezra the priest, scribe of the law of the God of the heavens—Despatch and so forth.

13 From me is issued an edict, that every one in my kingdom, of the people of Israel, and of their priests and the Levites, who is minded of his own freewill to go to Jerusalem—much as I will let him go.

14 Forasmuch as from before the king and his seven counsellors thou art sent, to enquire concerning Judah and as to Jerusalem, by the law of thy God which is in thy hand; and to carry the silver and gold which the king and his counsellors have freely offered unto the God of Israel, who in Jerusalem hath his habitation; and all the silver and the gold, which thou shalt find, in all the province of Babylon, with the freewill offering of the people and of the priests offered willingly for the house of their God which is in Jerusalem;

15 therefore with all diligence shalt thou buy— with this silver— bullocks, rams, lambs, with their meal-offerings, and their drink-offerings,—and shalt offer them upon the altar of the house of your God which is in Jerusalem; and whatsoever unto thee and unto thy brethren shall seem good with the rest of the silver and the gold to do, according to the pleasure of your God, thou shalt do.

16 And the utensils which are freely given to thee for the service of the house of thy God, put thou back, before the God of Jerusalem.

17 And the rest of the need of the house of thy God, which it shall fall to thee to give, thou shalt give, out of the treasure-house of the king.

18 And from me myself, Artaxerxes the king, issueth an edict, to all the treasurers who are Beyond the River, that whatsoever Ezra the priest the scribe of the law of the God of the heavens shall ask of you, with diligence shall it be done: unto a hundred talents of silver, and unto a hundred measures of wheat, and unto a hundred baths of wine, and unto a hundred baths of oil, and salt without limit.

19 Whatsoever is due to an edict of the God of the heavens let it be done diligently, for the house of the God of the heavens, for wheresoever should there be wrath against the realm of the king and his sons.

20 And you do certify, that as touching any of the priests or the Levites, the singers, the doorkeepers, the Nethinim, or the servitors of this house of God, tribute, excise or toll shall it not be competent to impose upon them.

21 And thou, Ezra, according to the wisdom of thy God that is in thy hand, appoint thou judges and magistrates, who shall administer justice to all the people that are Beyond the River, to all who know the law of thy God,— and whosoever knoweth not ye shall teach.

22 But whosoever shall not do the law of thy God and the law of the king speedily let penalty be exacted from him, whether to death, or to banishment, or to confiscation of goods, or to imprisonment.

23 Blessed be Jehovah, God of our fathers, who hath put the like of this into the heart of the king, to beautify the house of Jehovah, which is in Jerusalem; and unto me hath extended lovingkindness, before the king and his counsellors, yea all the valiant captains of the king, therefore have emboldened myself, according to the hand of Jehovah my God upon me, and gathered out of Israel, chief men, to go up with me.

1 Now these are their ancestral heads, and their genealogical register,—even of those who came up with me, are the reign of Artaxerxes the king, out of Babylon:

2 Of the sons of Phinehas Gershom,

3 Of the sons of Ithamar Daniel,—

4 Of the sons of David Hattush;—

5 Of the sons of Shecaniah, of the sons of Simeon.
Parashah > Zechariah,—and with him—by genealogical registry of males—a hundred and fifty;

4 Of the sons of Pahath-moab > Eliehoenai, son of Zerahiah,—and with him two hundred males;

5 Of the sons of Zatta > Shecaniah, the son of Jehaziel,—and with him three hundred males;

6 And of the sons of Adin > Ebed, son of Jonathan,—and with him fifty males;

7 And of the sons of Elam > Jeshuaiah, son of Athaliah,—and with him seventy males;

8 And of the sons of Shephatiah > Zebadiah, son of Michael,—and with him eighty males;

9 Of the sons of Joab > Obadiah, son of Jehiel,—and with him two hundred and eighteen males;

10 And of the sons of Bani > Shelomith, son of Josiphiah,—and with him a hundred and sixty males;

11 And of the sons of Bebai > Zechariah, son of Bebai,—and with him twenty-eight males;

12 And of the sons of Azgad > Johanan, son of Hakkatan,—and with him a hundred and ten males;

13 Of the later sons of Adonikam > these being their names, Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiiah,—and with them sixty males;

14 And of the sons of Bigvai > Uthai and Zabud,—and with him seventy males.

And I gathered them together, unto the river that cometh into Ahava, and we encamped there three days,—and I informed myself among the people and the priests, and of the sons of Levi > I found none there. 15 So I sent for Elizeber, for Ariel, for Shemaiah, and for Elnathan, and for Jarib, and for El Nathan, and for Nathan, and for Zechariah, and for Meshullam, chief men,—also for Joiarib and for El Nathans, teachers. 16 And I sent them forth unto Iddo the chief, at the place Casiphia,—and I put into their mouth words, to speak unto Iddo and his brethren the Nethinim, at the place Casiphia, to bring unto us attendants for the house of our God. 17 So they brought unto us, according to the good hand of our God upon us, a man of discretion, of the sons of Mahli, son of Levi, son of Israel,—and Sherebiah, and his sons and his brethren, eighteen; 18 and Hashabiah, and with him Jeshuaiah, of the sons of Merari,—his brethren and their sons, twenty; 19 and of the Nethinim whom David and the rulers had given for the service of the Levites > Nethinim two hundred and twenty,—all those expressed by name.

20 Then proclaimed I there a fast, by the river Ahava, that we might humble ourselves before our God, to seek of him a smooth way, for us and for our little ones, and for all our substance.

21 For I was ashamed to ask of the king a band of soldiers and horsemen, to help us against the enemy in the way, because we had spoken unto the king, saying,

The hand of our God is upon all them that seek him for good,

But his power and his anger are against all who forsake him.

22 So we fasted and sought of our God concerning this,—and he suffered himself to be entreated by us. 23 Then I separated, from among the rulers of the priests, twelve,—even Sherebiah, Hashabiah, and with them, from among their brethren > ten; 24 and weighed unto them, the silver and the gold, and the utensils,—the heave-offering for the house of our God, which the king and his counsellors and his rulers and all Israel who were present, had offered: 25 I even weighed unto their hand, of silver six hundred and fifty talents, and of utensils of silver a hundred talents,—of gold a hundred talents; 26 and bowls of gold twenty, of a thousand drams,—and utensils of fine bright bronze two, precious as gold. 27 Then said I unto them:

Ye are hallowed unto Yahweh, and the utensils are hallowed,—and the silver and the gold are a freewill offering, unto Yahweh, God of your fathers:

28 Watch and guard, until ye weigh [them] before the rulers of the priests and the Levites and the ancestral rulers of Israel in Jerusalem,—in the chambers of the house of Yahweh.

29 So the priests and the Levites accepted the weight of the silver and the gold, and the utensils,—to bring to Jerusalem unto the house of our God.

30 Then we brake we up from the river of Ahava, on the twelfth of the first month, to journey unto Jerusalem,—and the hand of our God was upon us, and he delivered us from the grasp of the enemy and of the lieb in wait, by the way.

31 So we came to Jerusalem,—and we rested there three days.

32 And on the fourth day, it was weighed—the silver and the gold and the utensils in the house of our God, unto the hand of Meremoth son of Uriah, the priest, and with him was Elieazar son of Phinehas, and with them were Jozabad son of Jeshua and Noadiah son of Binnui, Levites: 33 by the number and by the weight of the whole,—and all the weight, was written down, at that time.

21 They who came in out of the captivity, Sons of the Exile, offered as ascending-sacrifices unto the God of Israel—bullocks twelve for all Israel, rams' ninety-six, young sheep' seventy-seven, he-goats for bearing sin, twelve,—the whole, as an ascending-sacrifice unto Yahweh. Then delivered they the decrees of the king unto the satraps of the king, and the pashas Beyond the River,—and they upheld the people and the house of God.

§ 9. Ezra, informed of Jewish Marriages with Foreign Women, is stunned—and prays.

9 1 Now <when these things were ended> the rulers drew near unto me, saying,

The people of Israel and the priests and the Levites have not kept themselves separate from the peoples of the lands,—in view of their abominations—even of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites; 2 for they have taken of their daughters, for themselves and for their sons, so that the holy seed have intermingled themselves among the peoples of the lands,—and [the hand of the rulers and the deputies] hath, in this unfaithfulness, been [<foremost>].

1 <When I heard this thing> I rent my garment, and my robe, and tore out the hair of my head and my beard, and sat stunned.

4 Then <unto me> were gathered, all who trembled at the words of the God of Israel, concerning the unfaithfulness of them who had been exiled,—but <I> sat stunned, until the evening gift. 5 And <at the evening gift> I arose from mine affliction, which had been accompanied by the rending of my garment and my robe,—and I bowed upon my knees, and spread forth my hands unto Yahweh my God; 6 and said,

O my God, I turn pale and am ashamed, to lift up, O my God, my face unto thee,—for <our iniquities> have multiplied above the head, and our guilt hath magnified itself unto the heavens.

7 <Since the days of our fathers> <we> have been in great guilt, until this day,—and <for our iniquities> have we been given up,—we, our kings, our priests!—unto the hand of the kings of the lands, by sword and by captivity and by spoiling and by a turning pale of face, as at this day.

8 And <now> <for a very little moment> hath come favour from Yahweh our God, in leaving to us a remnant to escape, and in giving to us a nail in his holy place,—that our God may enlighten our eyes, and give us a little reviving in our bondage.

9 For <bondmen> we are', but <in our bondage> hath our God not forsaken us,—but extended unto us loving-kindness before the kings of Persia, to give us a reviving, to set up on high the house of our God, to raise up the desolations thereof, and to give us a wall in Judah and in Jerusalem.

10 But <now> what can we say, O our God, after this? for we have forsaken thy commandments, 11 which thou didst command by the hand of thy servants the prophets, saying,

<As for the land which ye are entering to possess> <an impure land> it is', with the impurity of the peoples of the lands,—with their abominations, which have filled it from one end to the other, with their uncleanness.

12 <Now> therefore, <your daughters> do not ye give to their sons, and <their daughters> do not ye take for your sons, neither shall ye seek their prosperity nor their pleasure, unto times age-abiding,—to the end ye may become strong, and may eat the good of the land, and may suffer your children to possess it, unto times age-abiding.

13 And <after all that hath come upon us, for our wicked doings, and for our great guilt—>

For <thou> O our God, hast spared us, punishing us less than our iniquities deserved, and hast given us a deliverance such as this>

14 <should we again> break thy commandments and join ourselves by affinity of marriage with the peoples of these abominations>—wouldst thou not be angry with us, unto a full end, that there should be neither remainder nor deliverance?

O Yahweh, God of Israel, righteous' thou art', for we have had left us a deliverance as at this day,—here we are] before thee, in our guilty deeds, for there is no standing before thee, because of this thing!

§ 10. The Offenders sorrowfully consenting, Divorce Judges are appointed. A Record of the Guilty Individuals.

1 Now <when Ezra had prayed and when he had made confession, weeping and casting himself down, before the house of God> there gathered unto him out of Israel, an exceeding large convection—men and women and children, for the people wept with a very bitter weeping.

Then responded Shecaniah son of Jehiel of the sons of Elam,* and said unto Ezra,

<We> have been unfaithful with our God, and have married foreign women from among the peoples of the land,—yet <now> there is' hope for Israel concerning this thing.

* "Olam," written; "Elam," read—G.n.
3 [Now] therefore, let us solemnize a covenant unto our God—to put away all the women and such as have been born of them, in the counsel of my lord, and them who tremble at the commandment of our God, and <according to the law> let it be done.

4 Arise, for <upon thee> resteth the thing, but [we] are with thee,—be strong, and act. Then arose Ezra and made the rulers of the priests, the Levites, and all Israel, swear to do according to this word, and they swore. Then arose Ezra from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Jehohanan son of Elishah, and [when he came thither] did he not eat, and did he not drink, for he was mourning over the unfaithfulness of them of the Exile. They made them a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem, unto all the Sons of the Exile, to gather themselves together unto Jerusalem; and <whosoever should not come within three days> according to the counsel of the rulers and the elders> all his goods should be devoted, and [himself] be separated from the convocation of them of the Exile. Then were gathered together all the men of Judah and Benjamin unto Jerusalem, within three days, [the same] was the ninth month, on the twentieth of the month,—and all the people remained in the broadway of the house of God, trembling concerning the thing, and because of the heavy rains.

Then arose Ezra the priest, and said unto them, [Ye] have acted unfaithfully, and have married foreign women,—to add unto the guilt of Israel.

11 [Now] therefore, make confession unto Yahweh God of your fathers, and do his pleasure,—and separate yourselves from the peoples of the land, and from the foreign women. Then responded all the convocation and said, with a loud voice,—<Thus, according to thy word> concerning us must it be done. Nevertheless, the people are many, and [the season] is that of the heavy rains, and we are not able to stand outside,—and [the business] is not one for a single day, nor yet for two, for we have abundantly transgressed, in this thing.

14 Let, we beseech thee, our rulers take up their station for all the convocation, and <all who, throughout our cities, have married foreign women> let them come in at times appointed, and <with them> the elders of every city, and the judges thereof, until the glow of the anger of our God be turned from us, concerning this matter.

15 Only Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiel son of Tikvah made a stand against this,—and Meshullam and Shashbathai the Levite helped them. But the Sons of the Exile [did thus], and Ezra the priest separated to himself certain men—ancestral heads by their ancestral houses, and all of them by name,—and they took their seats on the first day of the tenth month to search into the matter; and they made an end with all the men who had married foreign women,—by the first day of the first month.

18 Now there were found <of the sons of the priests> who had married foreign women,—<of the sons of Jehosus son of Jozadak, and his brethren> Maaseiah, and Eliezer, and Jarib, and Gedaliah; and they gave their hand, that they would put away their wives,—and <being guilty> [they offered] a ram of the flock for their guilt. And <of the sons of Immer> Hanani and Zebadiah. And <of the sons of Harim> Maaseiah and Elijah and Shemaiah, and Jehiel, and Uzziah. And <of the sons of Passhur> Elieoenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethaniah, Jozabad, and Elasar. And <of the Levites> Jozabad and Shimri, and Kelah, [the same] is Kelita, Pethahiah, Judah, and Eliezer. And <of the singers> Eliashib. And <of the doorkeepers> Shallum and Telem and Uri. And <of Israel> <of the sons of Parosh> Ramah and Izziyah and Malchijah, and Mijamin and Eleazar, and Malchijah, and Beniaiah. And <of the sons of Elam> Mattaniah, Zechariah, and Jehiel and Abdi, and Jeremoth, and Elijah. And <of the sons of Zattu> Elieoenai, Elissib, Mattaniah and Jeremoth, and Zabad, and Aziza. And <of the sons of Babei> Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, Athli. And <of the sons of Bani> Meshullam, Maltuch, and Adaiah, Jashub, and Sheal, Jeremoth. And <of the sons of Pahath-moab> Adna and Cheelah, Beniaiah, Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezael, and Binnui, and Manasseh. And <of the sons of Harim> Eliezer, Isijiah, Malchijah, Shemaiah, Shimeon; Benjamin, Malluch, Shemaiah. <Of the sons of Hashum> Mattenai, Shabtai, and Eliphelet.
THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH.

§ 1. Nehemiah's Permit to visit Jerusalem.

1 The story of Nehemiah, son of Hacaliah,—and it came to pass in the month Chislev, in the twentieth year, when [1] was in Shushan the fortress, that Hanani one of my brethren came, [the certain men out of Judah],—so I asked them concerning the Jews who had escaped, who were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem. And they said unto me,

[The remnant who are left of the captivity, there in the province are in great misfortune and reproach, the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and the gates thereof are burned with fire.]

And it came to pass [when I heard these words] that I sat down and wept, and I mourned certain days,—and continued fasting and praying, before the God of the heavens; and said,

I beseech thee, O Yahweh God of the heavens, the great and fearful God,—keeping the covenant and lovingkindness for them who love him and keep his commandments:

Let, I pray thee, thine ears be attentive and thine eyes open—to hearken unto the prayer of thy servant—which [I am praying before thee now, day and night, for the sons of Israel, thy servants],—and making confession concerning the sins of the sons of Israel, which we have committed against thee, [both]

I and the house of my father have sinned.

We have dealt [very corruptly] against thee,—and have not kept the commandments, nor the statutes nor the regulations, which thou didst command Moses thy servant.

Remember, I pray thee, the word, which thou didst command Moses thy servant, saying,—

[If ye be unfaithful] I will scatter you among the peoples:

When ye return unto me and keep my commandments and do them,—though it should be that ye have been driven out unto the uttermost part of the heavens, from thence will I gather them, and bring them into the place that I have chosen to make a habitation for my Name there.

They therefore, are thy servants [and thy people],—whom thou hast redeemed by thy great power, and by thy firm hand.

I beseech thee, O My Lord, let—I pray thee—thine ear be attentive unto the prayer of thy servant, and unto the prayer of thy servants who delight to reverence thy Name, and of prosper. I pray thee, thy servant to-day, and grant him compassion before this man.

Now [I] was cup-bearer unto the king.

And it came to pass [in the month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king] that [wine] was before him,—so I took up the wine, and gave unto the king, and I had never been sad before him. Then said the king unto me,

Wherefore is thy countenance sad, seeing that thou art not sick? this is nothing else, but sadness of heart.

Then feared I exceedingly, and said unto the king—

["If" not expressed in Heb. Gl. it shd have been G.n.]
Let the king live! Wherefore should my countenance be sad, when the city—the place of the sepulchres of my fathers—is liest waste, and the gates thereof are consumed with fire?

4 Then the king said to me, <Concerning what> is it that wouldst make request?

So I prayed unto the God of the heavens, and then said unto the king, <If> unto the king, it seemeth good, and if thy servant might find favour before thee> That thou wouldst send me unto Judah, unto the city of the sepulchres of my fathers, that I might build it.

6 And the king said unto me, the queen also sitting beside him, For how long wouldst thou journey? and when wouldst thou return? So it seemed good before the king to send me, and I set him a time.

7 Then said I unto the king, <If> unto the king, it seemeth good, may letters be given me, unto the pashhas Beyond the River,—that they may convey me over, until I come into Judah; and also a letter unto Asaph, keeper of the park that belongeth unto the king, that he may give me timber to build up the gates of the fortress which pertaineth to the house, and for the wall of the city, and for the house whereunto I shall enter.

And the king gave me, according to the good hand of my God upon me.

§ 2. Nehemiah's Arrival. He surveys Jerusalem's Ruins, and—despite Sanballat—is determined to rebuild.

9 Then came I unto the pashhas Beyond the River, and gave them the letters of the king, now the king had sent with me captains of the army, and horsemen.

10 And when Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the servant the Ammonite, heard of it; they vexed them, with a great vexation,—that there had come a man, to seek welfare, for the sons of Israel.

11 So I entered Jerusalem,—and was there three days. Then rose I by night, I, and a few men with me, I having told no man, what holy God] had been writing in my heart, to do for Jerusalem,—and before was there none with me, save the beast on which I myself was riding.

12 So I went forth through the valley-gate by night, even unto the front of the snake-fountain, and into the dung-gate,—and I viewed the walls of Jerusalem, how they were broken down, and the gates thereof consumed with fire.

14 Then passed I over unto the fountain-gate, and unto the pool of the king,—but there was no place for the beast that was under me to pass.

15 Then went I up in the torrent-bed, by night, and viewed the wall,—and turned back, and entered by the valley-gate, and so returned.

16 Now the deputies knew not whither I had gone, nor what I was doing,—not even to the Jews, nor to the priests, nor to the nobles, nor to the deputies, nor to the rest who were doing the work> had I as yet' told it. So I said unto them, Ye can see the misfortune that we are in, how that Jerusalem lieth waste, and the gates thereof are burned with fire:

18 Then told I them, of the hand of my God, that it had been good upon me, as also of the words of the king, which he had spoken unto me,—so they said,

We will arise and build!

19 But when Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the servant the Ammonite, and Geshem the Arab, heard it, they laughed at us, and poured contempt upon us,—and said,

What is this thing which ye' would do? <against the king> would ye' rebel?

20 Then answered I them, and said to them—The God of the heavens he will prosper us, therefore we his servants will arise and build,—But to you pertained no portion, nor right, nor memorial, in Jerusalem.

§ 3. Jerusalem's Wall repaired, in Sections, by Groups of Workers.

1 Then arose Eliashib the high priest and his brethren the priests, and built the sheep-gate, they hallowed it, and set up the doors thereof,—<even unto the tower of Hammeath> hallowed they it, unto the tower of Hananel; and at his hand> built, the men of Jericho,—and at his other] hand built Zaccur, son of Imri.

2 And the fish-gate> did the sons of Haemolah build,—they laid the beams thereof, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof;

4 and at their hand> repaired, Meremoth son of Uriah son of Hakkoz, and at their hand> repaired, Meshullum son of Berechiah son of Meshezabel,

6 And the old gate> did Joiada son of Paseah, and Meshullam, son of Besodeiah, repair,—they laid the beams thereof, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks thereof, and the bars thereof; 7 and <at their hand> repaired, Melatiah the Gibeonite and Jaddan the Meronothite, men of Gibeaon and of Mizpah,—who pertained to the throne of the pasha Beyond the River; 8 <at a hand> repaired, Uzziah son of Haushaiah, goldsmiths, and <at his hand> repaired, Hananiah son of the perfumers,—and they fortified Jerusalem, as far as the broad wall; 9 and <at their hand> repaired, Rephaiah son of Hur, ruler of a half-circuitb of Jerusalem; 10 and <at their hand> repaired, Jedaiah son of Harumaph, evene over against his own house,— and <at his hand> repaired, Hattush son of Hehabneiah; 11 a second length did Malchijah son of Harim and Hasshub son of Pahath-moab, repair,—also the tower of the ovens; 12 and <at his hand> repaired, Shallum son of Hallohesh, ruler of a half-circuitb of Jerusalem,—[he and his daughters]. 13 The valley-gate did Hanun and the inhabitants of Zanakah, repair,—[they] built it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof,—also a thousand cubits in the wall, as far as the dung-gate. 14 And the dung-gate did Malchijah son of Rechab, ruler of the circuit of Beth-haccherem, repair,—[he] built it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof. 15 And the fountain-gate did Shallum son of Col-horesh, ruler of the circuit of Mizpa, repair,—[he] built it, and covered it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof,—also the wall of the pool of Shelah, by the garden of the king, even as far as the stairs that go down from the city of David; 16 <after him> repaired, Nehemiah son of Azluk, ruler of the half-circuit of Beth-zur,—as far as over against the sepulchre of David, even unto the pool which had been made, and unto the house of heroes; 17 <after him> repaired, the Levites, Rehum son of Bani,— <at his hand> repaired, Hashabiah, ruler of the half-circuit of Keilah, for his circuit; 18 <after him> repaired, their brethren, Bavvai son of Hemed,—ruler of the [other] half-circuit of Keilah; 19 and there repaired at his hand, Ezer son of Jeshua, ruler of Mizpa, a second length,—over against the ascent of the armoury, at the corner; 20 <after him> especiallyb repaired Baruch son of Zabbai, a second length,—from the corner, unto the opening of the house of Eliahab, the high priest; 21 <after him> repaired, Meroth son of Urijah son of Hakkoz, a second length,—from the opening of the house of Eliahab, even unto the end of the house of Eliahab; 22 and <after him> repaired, the priests, the men of the Circuit; 23 <after him> repaired, Benjamin and Hashub, over against their own house,— <after him> repaired, Azariah son of Maseiah son of Ananiah, beside his own house; 24 <after him> repaired, Binnui son of Henadad, a second length,—from the house of Azariah, unto the corner, even unto the pinnacle: 25 [Pala] son of Zai, from over against the corner, and the tower that projecteth from the upper house of the king, which belongeth to the court of custody,— <after him> Pedaiah son of Parosh. 26 Now [the Nethinim] were dwelling in Ophel,—as far as over against the water-gate, on the east, and the tower that projecteth; 27 <after him> repaired, the Tekoites, a second length,—from over against the great tower that projecteth, even unto the wall of Ophel: 28 <from beside the horse-gate> repaired the priests, every one over against his own house; 29 <after him> repaired, Zadok son of Immer, over against his own house,—and <after him> repaired, Shemaiah son of Shecaniah, keeper of the east-gate; 30 <after him> repaired, Hananiah son of Shelemiah, and Hanun sixth son of Zalaph, a second length,— <after him> repaired, Meshullam son of Berechiah, over against his chamber; 31 <after him> repaired, Malchijah son of Zorphi, as far as the house of the Nethinim, and the traders,—over against the muser-gate, even unto the ascent of the pinnacle; 32 and <between the ascent of the pinnacle and the sheep-gate> repaired, the goldsmiths, and the traders.

§ 4. The Sarcasms of Sanballat and Tobiah opposed by Prayer.

1 But it came to pass <when Sanballat heard 4 that we were building the wall> it angered him, and he was greatly displeased,—and mocked the Jews; 2 and spake before his brethren, and the army of Samaria, and said,

What are these feeble Jews doing? will they fortify themselves? will they sacrifice? will they make an end in a day? will they bring to life the stones out of the heaps of dust, when [they] have been burned up?

3 Now [Tobiah the Ammonite] was beside him,—so he said, 4 Even that which they are building >if a fox should go up> he would break down their stone wall!

4 Hear, O our God, for we have become a contempt, and turn thou back their reproach upon their own head,—and give them up as a prey, in the land of captivity; 5 and do not be allowed them! 6 cover their iniquity, and <their sin before thee> let it not be blotted out,—for they have caused vexation before them who are building.

6 So we built the wall, and all the wall was finished* unto the half thereof,—and the people had a mind* to work.

§ 5. Sanballat and his Neighbours conspire to Fight. Their Plot discovered and thwarted. Armed Watchers and Workers.

7 But it came to pass <when Sanballat and Tobiah and the Arabians and the Ammonites and the Ashdodites heard> that the repair of the walls of Jerusalem had gone up, that the breaches began to be stopped:> that it angered them exceedingly;* and they conspired, all of them together, to come, to fight against Jerusalem,—and to cause it harm;* howbeit we prayed unto our God,—and set a watch against them, day and night, because of them. Thus said Judah,*

The strength of the burden-bearer faileth, and the rubbish aboundeth,—and we are not able to build at the wall;* and our adversaries have said,

They shall not know, neither shall they see, until we come into their midst, and slay them,—so shall we cause the work to cease.

12 But it came to pass <when the Jews dwelling near them came in> then said they unto us, ten times,

<From all places whither ye shall turn> [they will be] upon us!

13 So I set—the lower slopes of the place behind the wall in the waste grounds,—yea I set the people, by their families, with their swords, their spears and their bows. Then I looked and rose up, and said—unto the nobles and unto the deputies and unto the rest of the people,

Do not ye fear because of them,— <the great and fearful Lord> remember ye, so shall ye fight for your brethren, your sons and your daughters, your wives, and your houses.

15 And it came to pass <when our enemies heard that it was known to us, and that God had overthrown their counsel> then returned we, all of us, unto the wall, every man unto his work. Then it came to pass <from that day> [the half of my young men] were working in the work, and [the half of them] were grasping the spears, the bucklers, and the bows, and the costs of mail,—but [the rulers] were behind all the house of Judah. They who were building at the wall and they who were carrying burdens, they who were lifting> [each man] <with his one hand> was working at the work, and <with the other> was grasping the weapon. * Even they who were building>

[every man] had his sword girded upon his loins, and so was building,—and [he that sounded the horn] was by my side. So I said unto the nobles and unto the deputies, and unto the rest of the people,

The work is great and large,—and we are separated upon the wall, far away, each man from his brother:

19 <In what place soever ye shall hear the sound of the horn> [thither] gather yourselves unto us,—[our God] will fight for us.

21 So [we] were working at the work,—one half of them grasping the spears, from the uprisings of the dawn, until the coming out of the stars. Moreover <at that time> I said to the people,

Let every one with his young man, lodge for the night in the midst of Jerusalem,—so shall they serve us, in the night, as a watch, and [the day] for work.

23 So neither I, nor my brethren, nor my young men, nor the men of the watch that followed me> [none of us] put off our clothes,—every one [went] with his weapon to the water.*

§ 6. The People’s Complaints that they were oppressed by their Brethren call forth stern Remonstrance, Immediate Reform, and Nehemiah’s Record of his Own Course.

Then came there to be a great outcry of the people and their wives,—against their brethren the Jews. And there were some who were saying,

<Our sons and our daughters> are we pledging,—that we may obtain corn, and eat, and keep ourselves alive.

3 And there were some who were saying,

<Our fields and our vineyards and our houses> are we pledging,—that we may obtain corn in the earth.

4 And there were others who were saying,

We have borrowed silver for the king’s tribute,—[upon] our lands and our vineyards. * Now therefore, <as is the flesh of our brethren> so is our flesh, <as are their children> so are our children. Yet lo! we’re putting in subjection our sons and our daughters, for bondservants, yea there are some of our daughters already trodden down, and we are powerless, and our fields and our vineyards, belong to others.

5 And it angered me greatly,—when I heard their outcry, and these words.

7 So my heart took counsel unto me* and I contended with the nobles and with the deputies, and said to them,

<A loan on interest,—every man to his brother> are ye* making,—

So I appointed over them a great assembly:* and I said unto them,

NEHEMIAH V. 9–19; VI. 1–10.

We have bought our brethren the Jews, who had sold themselves unto the nations, according to our ability, and will [ye] even sell your brethren, or shall they sell themselves unto us?

And they were silent, and found no answer.

Then said I, Not good is the thing which ye are doing,—ought ye not <in the fear of God> to walk, because of the reproach of the nations, our enemies? 11 If I too, then, my brethren and my young men, might be lending unto them on interest silver and corn! I pray you, let us leave off this lending on interest! 12 Restore, I pray you, unto them this very day, their fields, their vineyards, their oliveyards, and their houses,—also the hundredth part of silver and corn, new wine and oil, for which ye have been lending to them.

And they said,

We will restore them, and <from them> we will require nothing; also we will do, as thou art saying.

Then called I the priests, and put them on oath, to do according to this promise. 12 Also <my lap> shook I out, and said—

<Thus and thus> may God shake out every man who shall not confirm this promise, out of his house and out of his labour, yea <thus and thus> let him be shaken out and empty,—

And all the convocation said,

Amen!

and praised Yahweh, and the people did according to this promise.

Moreover <from the day I was commanded to become their pasha in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year, even unto the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes the king, twelve years> [I and my brethren] <pasha's bread> have not eaten; 15 whereas [the former pashas, who were before me] suffered themselves to be a burden upon the people, and took from them in bread and wine, besides forty shekels of silver, even [their young men] bare rule over the people,—but <ll did not so, for the fear of God. 16 Moreover also <in this work of the wall> I repaired, and <no field did we buy>—though [all my young men] were gathered thither unto the work. 17 And <Jews and deputies, a hundred and fifty men, and they who were coming in unto us from among the nations which were round about us> [depended] upon my table. 18 Now [that which was prepared for a single day] was—one ox, six choice sheep, also [fowls] were prepared for me, and <apportioned unto ten days> of every § 7. Sanballat and other Enemies, seeking a Conference, and hiring a False Prophet, to intimidate Nehemiah, are yet further baffled.

1 And it came to pass <when it was reported> to Sanballat and Tobiah and to Geshem the Arabian and to the rest of our enemies, that I had built the wall, and there was left therein no breach,—though <up to that time, the doors> had I not set up in the gates> 2 that Sanballat and Geshem sent unto me, saying,

Come! and let us meet together in the villages,—But they were plotting to do me harm. 3 So I sent unto them messengers, saying,

<A great work> and I am doing, and cannot come down,—wherefore should the work cease whilst I leave it, and come down unto you?

4 Yet they sent unto me, according to this message, four times,—and I replied to them according to this answer.

5 Then Sanballat sent unto me, according to this message, a fifth time, by his young man,—with an open letter, in his hand: wherein was written—

<Among the nations> it is reported, and <Gashmu> saith it, that thou and the Jews are plotting to rebel, <for which cause> thou art building the wall,—and <thou> art to become their king, according to these words.

Moreover also <prophets> have set up to make proclamation concerning thee in Jerusalem, saying,

He hath become king* in Judah! 7

<Now therefore> will it be reported to the king, according to these words.

<Now, therefore, come, and let us take counsel together.>

Then sent I unto him, saying,

Nothing hath been done, according to these words, which thou art saying,—but <out of thine own heart> art thou feigning them.

For they all were seeking to put us in fear, saying,

Their hands will slacken from the work, and it will not be accomplished.

<Now therefore, strengthen thou my hands!>*

son of Delaiah, son of Mehetabel. [he] being shut in, he said,

Let us meet together in the house of God, in the midst of the temple, and let us close the doors of the temple, for they are coming to slay thee, yea, by night are they coming to slay thee.

11 Then said I, Should such a man as I flee? Who then being such as I would enter the temple to save his life? I will not enter.

12 Then perceived I, that lo! It was not God who had sent him, - though a prophecy he had spoken concerning me, but [Tobiah and Sanballat] had hired him: 13 to this end, [hired] he was, to the end that I might be afraid and do so, and might sin, and it might serve them for an evil report, to the end they might bring reproach upon me.

14 Have remembrance, O my God, of Tobiah, and of the nobles: according to these their doings, - moreover also of Noadiah the prophetess, and of the rest of the prophets, who would have put me in fear.

15 So the wall was finished, on the twenty-fifth of Elul, - in fifty-two days.

16 And it came to pass, when all our enemies heard, and all the nations which were round about us saw that they fell greatly in their own eyes, and took knowledge of that which from God had this work been wrought.

17 Moreover, in those days, were the nobles of Judah busy with their letters which were going unto Tobiah, and those of Tobiah were coming unto them; for many in Judah had taken an oath to him, because he was in marriage affinity with Shecaniah son of Arah; and Jehohanan his son had taken the daughter of Meshullam, son of Berechiah. Moreover, his good deeds were they telling before me, and my affairs were they carrying out to him, - letters did Tobiah send to put me in fear.

§8. Nehemiah appoints Governors of the City and Watchers for the Gates.

1 And it came to pass, when the wall was built, and I had set up the doors, - and the doorkeepers and the singers and the Levites had appointed, 2 that I gave Hanani my brother, and Hananiah captain of the castle, charge over Jerusalem, for he was a truly faithful man, and revered God above many.

3 And I said unto them,

Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened until path be the sun, and while they are standing by let them close the doors, and make fast, - setting watch over the inhabitants of Jerusalem, every one in his watch, and every one over against his own house.

§9. Intending to Enrol the People, Nehemiah finds a Register of the First Return.

(Cp. Ezr. ii.)

4 Now [the city] was broad on both hands, and large, but [the people] were few in the midst thereof, - and the houses had not been built.

5 So then my God put it into my heart, and I gathered together the nobles and the deputies and the people, to register their genealogy, - then found I a register roll, of them who came up at the first, and found written therein: -

6 [These are] the sons of the province, who came up from among the Captives of the Exile, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon did exile, - but they came back to Jerusalem and to Judah, every one to his own city; who came in with Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum, Baanah, - the number of the men of the people of Israel.

8 [The sons of Parosh] two thousand, one hundred, and seventy-two;

9 [The sons of Shephatiah] three hundred, and seventy-two;

10 [The sons of Araim] six hundred, and fifty-two;

11 [The sons of Pahath-moab, belonging to the sons of Jeshua and Joab] two thousand, eight hundred, and eighteen;

12 [The sons of Elam] a thousand, two hundred and fifty-four;

13 [The sons of Zattu] eight hundred, and forty-five;

14 [The sons of Zaccai] seven hundred, and sixty;

15 [The sons of Binnui] six hundred, and forty-eight;

16 [The sons of Bebai] six hundred, and twenty-eight;

17 [The sons of Asgad] two thousand, three hundred, and twenty-two;

18 [The sons of Adonikam] six hundred, and sixty-seven;

19 [The sons of Bigvai] two thousand, and sixty-seven;

20 [The sons of Adin] six hundred, and fifty-five;

21 [The sons of Ater, pertaining to Hezekiah] ninety-eight;

22 [The sons of Hashum] three hundred, and twenty-eight;

23 [The sons of Bebai] three hundred, and eighty-eight;

24 [The sons of Hariph] a hundred, and twelve;

25 [The sons of Gibeon] ninety-five;

26 [The men of Bethlehem and Netophah] a hundred, and eighty-eight;

27 The men of Anathoth, a hundred, and twenty-eight;
28 The men of Beth-azmaveth, forty-two;
29 The men of Kirjath-jearim, Chephiriah and Beeroth, seven hundred, and forty-three;
30 The men of Ramah and Geba, six hundred, and twenty-one;
31 The men of Michmas, a hundred, and twenty-two;
32 The men of Bethel and Ai, a hundred and twenty-three;
33 The men of the other Elam, fifty-two;
34 The sons of the other Nebor, one hundred, and fifty-four;
35 The sons of Harim, three hundred, and twenty;
36 The sons of Jericho, three hundred, and forty-five;
37 The sons of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred, and twenty-one;
38 The sons of Sennah, three thousand, nine hundred, and thirty;
39 The priests, the sons of Jedediah, of the house of Jeshua, nine hundred, and seventy-three;
40 The sons of Immer, a thousand, and fifty-two;
41 The sons of Pashur, a thousand, two hundred, and forty-seven;
42 The sons of Harim, a thousand, and seventeen;
43 The Levites, the sons of Joshua, of Kadmiel, of the sons of Hodaviah, seventy-four;
44 The singers, the sons of Assaph, a hundred, and forty-eight;
45 The doorkeepers, the sons of Shallum, the sons of Ater, the sons of Talmon, the sons of Akkub, the sons of Hatita, the sons of Shobai, a hundred, and thirty-eight;
46 The Nethinim, the sons of Zia, the sons of Haushpa, the sons of Tabash, the sons of Korah, the sons of Sia, the sons of Padon; the sons of Lebna, the sons of Hagaba, the sons of Salmah; the sons of Hanan, the sons of Giddel, the sons of Gahab; the sons of Reaiah, the sons of Rezin, the sons of Nekoda; the sons of Gazzam, the sons of Uzza, the sons of Paseah; the sons of Besai, the sons of Meunim, the sons of Nephusheim; the sons of Bakbuk, the sons of Hakupha, the sons of Harhur; the sons of Bazlith, and the sons of Mehida.

47 The sons of Harsha; the sons of Barkos, the sons of Sisha, the sons of Temar; the sons of Neziah, the sons of Hatipha.
48 The Sons of the Servants of Solomon.
49 The sons of Sotai, the sons of Sophera, the sons of Pered; the sons of Jaalat, the sons of Darkon, the sons of Giddel; the sons of Shephatiah, the sons of Hattil, the sons of Pocheresh-Hazzebaim, the sons of Amon.
50 All the Nethinim, and the Sons of the Servants of Solomon were three hundred and ninety-two.
51 And these are they who came up from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addon, and Immer, but they could not tell their ancestral house, nor their seed, whether of Israel; they were: the sons of Delaiah, the sons of Tobiah, the sons of Nekoda, six hundred and forty-two. And of the priests: the sons of Hobah, the sons of Hakkoz, the sons of Barzillai, who had taken daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite to wife, and was called after their name.
52 These sought their writing wherein they were registered, but it was not found, so they were descended out of the priesthead; and the governor told them, they must not eat of the most holy things, until there should stand up a priest, with Lights and Perfections.
53 All the gathered host together was forty-two thousand, three hundred, and sixty; besides their men-servants and maidservants were these, seven thousand, three hundred, and thirty-seven, and to them pertained, singing-men and singing-women, two hundred, and forty-five; their horses were seven hundred, and thirty-six; their mules, two hundred and forty-five; camels, four hundred, and thirty-five; asses six thousand, seven hundred, and twenty.
54 And a portion of the ancestral chiefs gave unto the work, the governor gave unto the treasury, of gold a thousand darics, of silver fifty, of tunicos for priests five hundred, and thirty; and of some of the ancestral chiefs gave unto the treasury of the work, of gold twenty thousand darics, and of silver two thousand and two hundred manehs; and that which the rest of the people gave was of gold twenty thousand darics, and of silver two thousand manehs, and of tunicos for priests sixty-seven.
55 So the priests and the Levites and the doorkeepers and the singers and some of the people, and the Nethinim and all Israel, took up their abode in their cities.

§ 10. In the Seventh Month, at the People's Request, Ezra reads publicly out of the Law; the People weep, but are counselled to rejoice.

And when the seventh month arrived the sons of Israel were in their cities. Then all the people gathered themselves together, as one man, into the broad way that was before the water-gate, and they spake unto Ezra the scribe, to bring the book of the law of Moses, which Yahweh had commanded Israel. So then Ezra the priest brought the law, before the convocation of both men and women, and all that had understanding to hearken, on the first day of the seventh month; and read therein, before the broad place which was before the water-gate, from the time it was light, until the noon of the day, in the presence of the men and the women, and such as had understanding, and [the ears of all the people] were unto the book of the law. And Ezra the scribe stood upon a lofty platform of wood, which they had made for the purpose, and there stood beside him, Mattithiah and Shema and Anaiah and Uriah, and Hilkiah and Maaseiah, on his right hand, and on his left Pedaiah and Michael and Malchijah and Hashum and Hashbaddanah, Zechariah, Meshullam.

And Ezra opened the book before the eyes of all the people, for above all the people was he, and when he opened it all the people stood up. And Ezra blessed Yahweh the great God, and all the people responded:

Amen! Amen!

with the lifting up of their hands, and they bent their heads and bowed themselves down unto Yahweh, with their faces to the ground.

And Joshua and Bani and Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, and the Levites did cause the people to understand the law, the people remaining in their places. So they read in the book of the law of God, distinctly, and giving the sense, caused them to understand the reading.

Then Nehemiah — he was the governor — and Ezra the priest the scribe, and the Levites who were causing the people to understand, said unto all the people:

To-day is holy unto Yahweh your God, do not mourn, nor weep, for weeping were all the people, when they heard the words of the law. So he said unto them:

Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared, for holy is the day, unto our Lord, and be not grieved, for [the joy of Yahweh] is your strength.

And the Levites were quieting all the people, saying —

Hush! for the day is holy, and be not grieved.

And all the people went their way, to eat and to drink, and to send portions, and to make great rejoicing, because they had understood the words which were made known unto them.

§ 11. The Reading of the Second Day leads to a Revival of Dwelling in Booths, neglected since the days of Joshua.

And on the second day were gathered together - the ancestral heads of all the people, the priests and the Levites, unto Ezra the scribe, even to give attention unto the words of the law.

And they found written in the law, that Yahweh gave command through Moses, that the sons of Israel should dwell in booths, during the festival of the seventh month; and that they should publish and send along a proclamation throughout all their cities and throughout Jerusalem, saying, Forth to the mountain, and bring in branches of olive, and branches of oleaster, and branches of myrtle, and branches of palms, and branches of thick trees, to make booths, as it is written.

So the people went forth, and brought in, and made themselves booths, every one upon his roof, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the broad place of the water-gate, and in the broad place of the gate of Ephraim. And all the convocation of them who had returned out of the captivity made booths, and dwelt in booths, for, since the days of Joshua son of Nun, had not the sons of Israel done so, unto that day, and there was very great rejoicing.

So he read in the book of the law of God, day by day, from the first day unto the last day, and they kept the festival seven days, and on the eighth day a closing feast, according to the regulation.

§ 12. A Solemn Fast: a Public Prayer; leading to a Written Promise of Reform.

Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month were the sons of Israel gathered together, with fasting and with sackcloth, having earth upon them. And the seed of Israel separated themselves from all the sons of the foreigner, and stood and made confession over their own sins, and the iniquities of their sons.

On this day they sent to all their neighbors, who were round about them, that they might come and take part with them also in the fast.

In the morning, the rulers of the house of God gathered themselves together to fast: and the house was full of them.

And a very great assembly gathered together in Jerusalem, on the first day of the month, from morning even until evening.

Then I and mine sons and my Levites, and the Levites who were in my service, set apart one hundred and twenty of the Levites for the service of the house of our God.

And I chose out twenty-four leaders, as porters, and I appointed them, according to their courses, the twenty-four courses of the sanctuary, as they were given by the king, to offer burnt offerings, and to burn fragrant incense, and to set forth bread on the table, and to prepare holy incense.

And I also set out mighty leaders in the cities of Judah, each one according to his district, to build the wall, according to the hand of God.

And I carried the gold, and the silver, and the stones, and the tithes, to Jerusalem.

And I said: ‘Let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no more be the reproach of those who reproach us.’

Now therefore, consider the matter and let us proceed with work upon the wall, and not let them reproach us any more.’

And I said: ‘Let us arise and build the wall of Jerusalem, and not let them reproach us any more.’

And I took up the bricklaying with my hand, and I set up the lime-stone, and I said: ‘You may eat and drink, and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no more be reproached.’

And I also took up the bricklaying with my hand, and I set up the lime-stone, and I said: ‘You may eat and drink, and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no more be reproached.’

And I also took up the bricklaying with my hand, and I set up the lime-stone, and I said: ‘You may eat and drink, and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no more be reproached.’

And I also took up the bricklaying with my hand, and I set up the lime-stone, and I said: ‘You may eat and drink, and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no more be reproached.’

And I also took up the bricklaying with my hand, and I set up the lime-stone, and I said: ‘You may eat and drink, and let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no more be reproached.’
and statutes and a law> didst thou command them, through Moses thy servant.

And <bread out of the heavens> didst thou give them, for their hunger, and <waters out of the cliff> didst thou bring them, for their thirst,—and bastest them go in to take possession of the land, which thou hadst lifted thy hand to give them.

But ||thou and our fathers|| dealt proudly,— and hardened their neck, and hearkened not unto thy commandments; 17 but refused to hearken, neither kept in mind thy wonders which thou hadst done with them, but they hardened their neck, and appointed a head that they might return to their servitude, in their perverseness. b

But ||thou art a God of forgivenesses, gracious and full of compassion, slow to anger and abounding in lovingkindness,|| and didst not forsake them.

Yea <although they made them a molten calf, and said, ||This> is thy God, <that brought thee up> out of Egypt,— and wrought great insuls> 19 yet ||thou> in thine abounding compassions> didst not forsake them in the desert, — ||the pillar of cloud|| departed not from over them by day, to lead them in the way, nor the pillar of fire by night, to light up for them the way b wherein they should go.

And <thy Good Spirit> thou gavest, to instruct them,— | and <thy manna> thou withholdest not from their mouth, and <water> thou gavest them, for their thirst.

Yea <forty years> didst thou sustain them in the desert, they lacked nothing,— ||their mantles|| waxed not old and ||their feet|| swelled not.

And thou gavest them kingdoms, and peoples, and allotted to each of them a corner,— and they took possession of the land of Sihon, and the land of the king of Heshbon, and the land of Og king of Bashan.

<Their children also> didst thou multiply, like the stars of the heavens,— and didst bring them into the land which thou hadst promised their fathers they should enter to possess; 24 so the children entered' and possessed the land, and thou subduedst before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and deliveredst them into their hand,—with their kings, and the peoples of the land, to do with them according to their pleasure; and they captured fortified cities, and a fat soil, and took possession of houses full of every good thing, wells digged, vineyards and oliveyards and fruit-trees, in abundance, so they did eat and were filled and became fat, and luxuriated in thy great goodness. 26 But they murmured and rebelled against thee, and cast thy law behind their back, and <thy prophets> they slew, who testified against them; that they might turn them back unto thee, and they wrought great insults. 27 Therefore didst thou deliver them into the hand of their adversaries, who distressed them, and <in the time of their distress> they made outcry unto thee, and thou <out of the heavens> didst hear, and <according to> thine abounding compassions gavest them saviours, that they might save them out of the hand of their adversaries. 28 But as soon as they had rest> they again wrought wickedness before thee, and thou didst leave them in the hand of their enemies, who bare rule over them, yet <when they again made outcry unto thee> thou didst hear and didst deliver them according to thy compassions, many times; and didst testify against them, to bring them back unto thy law, yet thou dealtst rightly, and hearkened not unto thy commandments, and <against thy regulations> they sinned, the which—if any son of earth shall do—then shall he live by them, and yielded a rebellious shoulder, and <their neck> they stiffened, and hearkened not. 29 And thou didst suffer many years to pass over them, and didst testify against them by thy Spirit through thy prophets yet did they not give ear, therefore didst thou deliver them into the hand of the peoples of the lands. 30 Yet <in thine abounding compassions> thou didst not make of them an end, neither didst thou forsake them, for  thou art. 31 But <from the days of the kings of Assyria, until this day. 32 But thou art righteous, so to all that hastfallen upon us,—for <faithfulness> hast thou wrought, whereas <we> have been lawless; 34 and <our kings, our rulers, our priests, and our fathers> have not kept thy law, nor given heed unto thy commandments, or unto thy testimonies, wherewith thou hast testified against them. 35 But <they>, in their kingdom, and in thine abundant goodness which thou gavest them, and in the broad and fat land which thou didst set before them, did not serve thee, neither turned they from their wicked doings. 36 Lo! <we> to-day are bondmen,—even upon the land which thou gavest our fathers to eat the fruit thereof and the good thereof, lo! <we> are bondmen; 37 and <the increase thereof> abounded unto the kings whom thou hast set over us, for our sins, and <over our bodies> are they bearing rule, and over our cattle, at their pleasure, and <in great distress> we are'. 38 <Seeing therefore, all this> <we> are pleading our faith, and putting it in writing, and <upon the sealed scroll> are our rulers, our Levites, our priests.

§ 13. The Names attached to the Promissory Document; and the Purport of the Attested Deed

1 Now <upon the sealed writings> were,—10 Nehemiah the governor, son of Hacaliah, and Zedokiah; 11 Seraiah, Azariah, Jeremiah; 12 Paahhur, Amariah, Malchiah; 13 Hattush, Shebaniah, 14 Malluch; 15 Hananiah, Obadiah; 16 Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch; 17 Meshullam, Abijah, Mijamin; 18 Maaziah, Bilgai, Shemaiah,—these were <the priests>. 19 And <the Levites>—Jeshua, 20 son of Azaniah, Binnui, of the sons of Henadad, Kadmieel; and <their brethren>—Shebaniah, 21 Hodiah, Kelita, Polaia, Hanan; 22 Mica, Rehob, Haashabiah; 23 Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah; Hodiah, Bani, Boonim. 24 <The heads of the people>—Parosh, Pahathmoab, Elam, Zattu, Bani; 25 Banni, Azgad, Bebai; 26 Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin; 27 Ater, Hezekiah, Azur; 28 Hodiah, Hashum, Bezial. 29 Hariph, Anathoth, Nobai; 30 Maspies, Meashshana, Hezir; 31 Meshezabel, Zadok, Jaddus. 32 Pelatiah, Hanan, Aniaiah; 33 Hoshia, Hananiah, Hashub; 34 Hallohesh, Pilha, Shobek. 35 Rehum, Haashhabnah, Masieach; 36 and Ahiah, Hanan, Anan; 37 Malluch, Harim, Baanaah. 38 And <the rest of the people—the priests...>

the Levites, the doorkeepers, the singers, the Nethinim, and all who had separated themselves from the peoples of the lands unto the law of God, their wives, their sons and their daughters,—every one having knowledge and understanding> 29 were holding fast unto their distinguished brethren, and were entering into a curse and into an oath, to walk in the law of God, which was given through Moses the servant of God, and to observe and do all the commandments of Yahweh our Lord, and his regulations, and his statutes; 30 and that we would not give our daughters unto the peoples of the land,—and their daughters> would we not take for our sons; 31 and if the peoples of the land should be bringing in wares,* or any corn on the sabbath day, to sell, we would not buy of them on the sabbath, or on a holy day,—and that we would remit the seventh year, and the loan of every hand; 32 And we laid on ourselves charges, appointing for ourselves the third of a shekel, yearly,—for the service of the house of our God; 33 for the bread to set in array, and for the continual meal-offering, and for the continual ascending-sacrifice, of the sabbaths, of the new moons, for the appointed feasts, and for things hallowed, and for victims bearing sin, to put a propitiatory covering over Israel,—and for all the work of the house of our God. 34 Also <lots> did we cast, concerning the offering of wood among the priests, the Levites, and the people, to bring it unto the house of our God, by our ancestral houses, at times arranged, year by year,—to burn upon the altar of Yahweh our God, as it is written in the law. 35 And that we would bring in the firstfruits of our ground, and the firstfruit of all fruit of all trees, year by year,—unto the house of Yahweh; 36 also that <the firstborn of our sons, and of our cattle, as it is written in the law,—and the firstlings of our herds and of our flocks> we would bring in unto the house of our God, unto the priests who should be in attendance in the house of our God; 37 and <the first part of our meal and our heave-offerings and the fruit of all trees, new wine, and oil> would we bring in unto the priests, into the chambers of the house of our God, and the tithe of our ground unto the Levites,—<the Levites themselves> taking the tithes in all our cities of agriculture. 38 And the priest the son of Aaron should be with the Levites, when the Levites should take the tithes,—and <the Levites> should bring up the tithe of the tithe, unto the house of our God, into the chambers pertaining unto the treasure-house. 39 For <into the chambers> should the sons of Israel and the sons of Levi bring in the heave-offering of the corn, the new wine and the oil, since <there> are the utensils of the sanctuary, and the priests who are in attendance, and the doorkeepers, and the singers,—so would we not neglect the house of our God.

§ 14. A Record of those who dwelt in Jerusalem of the Chiefs of Judah and Benjamin, and of the Priests and Levites; also of the Villages in which men of Judah and Benjamin dwelt.

1 And the rulers of the people dwelt in Jerusalem,—and the rest of the people> cast lots, to bring in one out of ten to dwell in Jerusalem the holy city, and nine parts in [other] cities. 2 And the people bestowed a blessing on all the men, willingly offered themselves to dwell in Jerusalem. 3 Now <these> are the chiefs of the province, who dwelt in Jerusalem, but <in the cities of Judah> dwelt every man in his possession throughout their cities, Israel, the priests, and the Levites and the Nethinim, and the Sons of the Servants of Solomon. 4 And <in Jerusalem> dwelt certain of the sons of Judah and of the sons of Benjamin,—<Of the sons of Judah> Athaiah son of Uzziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalaleel, of the sons of Perez; 5 and Maaseiah son of Baruch, son of Col-hozeh, son of Asahiah, son of Adahiah, son of Joiarib, son of Zechariah, son of Shilomith. 6 All the sons of Perez who were dwelling in Jerusalem> four hundred and sixty-eight, men of ability. 7 And <these> are the sons of Benjamin,—Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Joel, son of Pedaiah, son of Kolai, son of Maaseiah, son of Ithiel, son of Jeshaiah; 8 and <after him> Gabbai, Sallai,—nine hundred and twenty-eight. 9 And <Joel son of Zichri> was in charge over them,—and <Judah son of Hassenuah> was over the city, as second. 10 <Of the priests> Jedaiah son of Jocai, Jachin; 11 Seraiah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, chief ruler of the house of God; 12 and their brethren who were doing the work of the house, eight hundred and twenty-two,—and Adariah son of Jeroham, son of Pelahiah, son of Amzi, son of Zechariah, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah; 13 and his brethren, ancestral chiefs, two hundred and forty-two,—and Amasahai son of Azarel, son of Ahzai, son of Meshillemoth, son of Immer; 14 and their brethren, strong men of ability, a hundred and twenty-eight,—and <the one who was in charge of them> was Zabdiel, son of Haggadoliem. 15 And <of the Levites> Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Bunni; 16 and Shabbethai and Jozabad, over the outside business of the house of God, of the chiefs of the Levites; 17 and Mattaniah son of Mica, son of Zabdi, son of Asaph, leader of the praise; 18 who giveth thanks; in prayer, and Bakukiah the second among his brethren,—and Obadiah son of Shemaiah, son of Galal.
son of Jeduthun. [19] All the Levites in the holy city were two hundred and eighty-four.

19 And the doorkeepers—Akkub, Talmon, and their brethren who were keeping watch in the gates were a hundred and seventy-two.

20 But the residue of Israel, the priests, the Levites were in all the cities of Judah, every one in his inheritance.

21 Howbeit the Nethinim were dwelling in Ophel, and in Zia and Gihon were over the Nethinim.

22 And the overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzziah, son of Bani, son of Hashabiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Mica, of the sons of Asaph the singers, to take lead in the business of the house of God. For the commandment of the king was upon them, as to a fixed provision for the singers, the need of a day upon its day.

23 And Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, of the sons of Zerah, son of Judah, was at the hand of the king, in every matter pertaining to the people.

24 And as for the villages in their fields—some of the sons of Judah dwelt in Kiriath-arba, and the hamlets thereof, and in Dibon, and the hamlets thereof, and in Jekabzeel, and the villages thereof; [24] and in Joshua, and in Moladah, and in Beth-pelet; [27] and in Hazarsual, and in Beer-sheba, and the hamlets thereof; [26] and in Ziklag, and in Meconah, and in the hamlets thereof, and in En-rimmon, and in Zorah, and in Jarmuth; [26] Zanoah, Adullam, and their villages, Lachish, and the fields thereof, Azekah, and the hamlets thereof, so they encamped from Beer-sheba, unto the valley of Hinnom.

25 And the sons of Benjamin dwelt from Geba, to Michmas, and Aia, and Bethel, and the hamlets thereof.

§ 15. An Account of the Priests and Levites who came up in the First Return, glancing forward to the Days of Nehemiah.

And the Levites—Jehusa, Binnui, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Judah, Mattaniah, —over the choirs, the and his brethren; [9] and

16. The Dedication of the Wall, by a Procession thereon of Two Choirs, by Sacrifices and Rejoicings, and by New Appointments for Priests and Levites.

27 And at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought the Levites, out of all their places, to bring them to Jerusalem, to keep the dedication and the rejoicing, both with thanksgiving and with music, cymbals, harps, and with lyres.

So the sons of the singers gathered themselves together, both out of the circuit round about Jerusalem, and out of the villages of the Netophathites; also out of Beth-gilgal, and out of the fields of Geba, and Azmaveth, for the villages had the singers built for themselves, round about Jerusalem.

And the priests and the Levites purified themselves, and purified the people, and the gates, and the wall.

[27] Then brought
NEHEMIAH XII. 32—47; XIII. 1—13.

I up the rulers of Judah upon the wall,—and I appointed two large choirs, even to go in procession to the right, upon the wall, towards the dung-gate; and after them went Hoshaijah, and half the rulers of Judah; then Azariah, Ezra, and Meehullam; Judah, and Benjamin, and Shemaiah, and Jeremiah; and of the sons of the priests, with trumpets> Zechariah—son of Jonathan—son of Semaiah—son of Mattaniah, son of Micaiah, son of Zeccur, son of Asaph; and his brethren—Semaiah and Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathaniel, and Judah, Hanani, with the instruments of music of David, the man of God,—with Ezra the scribe before them; and over the fountain gate and straight before them> they went up by the stairs of the city of David, at the going up of the wall,—above the house of David, even as far as the water-gate, eastward. And the second choir> was going over against them, following it,—with the half of the people upon the wall, above the tower of the ovens, even as far as the broad wall; and above the gate of Ephraim, and upon the old gate, and upon the fish-gate, and the tower of Hananel, and the tower of Hammeh, even as far as the sheep-gate,—and they came to a stand at the gate of the guard. So the two choirs> came to a stand at the house of God,—and I, and half the deputies with me; and the priests—Eliaikim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Eliaoenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah> with trumpets; and Maaseiah and Semaiah and Eleazar and Uzzi and Jehohanan and Malchijah and Elam and Ezer,—and the musicians sounded aloud, with joy, upon the work of Jezeriah who was not over them. And they sacrificed, on that day, great sacrifices, and rejoiced, for the Lord had caused them to rejoice with great joy, moreover also the women and children> rejoiced,—so that the rejoicing of Jerusalem was heard afar off. And there were set in charge, on that day, certain men, over the chambers for the treasures, for the heave-offerings, for the firstfruits, and for the tithes, to gather into them, out of the fields of the cities, the portions appointed by the law, for the priests, and for the Levites, for the joy of Judah> was over the priests and over the Levites, who were remaining. So they kept the charge of their God, and the charge of the purification, and so did> the singers and the doorkeepers,—according to the commandment of David and of Solomon his son. For in the days of David and Asaph, of old> there were chiefs> of the singers, and songs> of praise and thanksgiving> unto God. But I> was not in Jerusalem,—for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon> I came unto the king, and at the end of certain days> obtained I leave of the king; and I> came unto Jerusalem,—and had intelligence of the wickedness which Eliashib had committed for Tobiah, in preparing for him a chamber, in the courts of the house of God; and it grieved me exceedingly,—and I> cast forth all the household utensils of Tobiah outside the chamber. Then I> commanded I, and they purified the chambers,—and I> put back there, the utensils of the house of God, the meal-offering and the frankincense.

§ 17. The Day of Dedication further distinguished by a Reading in the Law which led to the Expulsion of Tobiah the Ammonite out of the Temple Chambers.

<On that day> a portion was read in the book of Moses, in the ears of the people,—and it was found written therein, that the Ammonite and the Moabite should not enter into the convocation of God, unto times age-abiding; because they met not the sons of Israel, with bread and with water,—but hired against them Balaam, to curse them, although our God turned the curse into a blessing. So it came to pass, when they had heard the law,—that they separated all the mixed multitude from Israel. Now a priest> was set over a chamber of the house of God was allied unto Tobiah; so he prepared him a large chamber, where aforetime they used to lay the meal-offering, the frankincense, and the utensils, and the tithes of the corn, the new wine and the oil, in charge of the Levites, and the singers, and the doorkeepers,—and the heave-offerings for the priests. But throughout all this time> was I not in Jerusalem,—for in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon> I came unto the king, and at the end of certain days> obtained I leave of the king; and I> came unto Jerusalem,—and had intelligence of the wickedness which Eliashib had committed for Tobiah, in preparing for him a chamber, in the courts of the house of God; and it grieved me exceedingly,—and I> cast forth all the household utensils of Tobiah outside the chamber. Then I> commanded I, and they purified the chambers,—and I> put back there, the utensils of the house of God, the meal-offering and the frankincense.

§ 18. Neglected Levites, recalled and provided for.

Then I> came to know, that the portions of the Levites was not been given; so that the Levites and the singers, who had been doing the work, had fled every one to his field. Therefore contended I with the deputies, and said: Wherefore> is the house of God forsaken>?

When came together, and set them in their place. Then [all Judah] brought in the tithe of corn, and new wine, and oil, unto the treasures; and I made treasurers over the treasures—Shelemiah the priest, and Zadok the scribe, and Pedaiah from among the Levites, and next unto them> Hanan son of Zaccub.
son of Mattaniah,—for faithful were they accounted, and it was [laid] upon them, to distribute unto their brethren.

14 Remember me, O my God, concerning this,—and do not wipe out my lovingkindnesses, which I have done for the house of my God, and for those keeping charge thereof.

15 <In those days> saw I in Judah—some treading winepresses on the sabbath, and bringing in sheaves and lading asses, moreover also wine, grapes, and figs, and every kind of burden, which they were bringing into Jerusalem on the sabbath day,—so I protested against it, as a day for them to sell provisions. 16 And [men of Tyre] dwelt therein, who were bringing in fish—and every kind of ware for sale,—and were selling, on the sabbath, to the sons of Judah, and in Jerusalem; 17 so I contended with the nobles of Judah,—and said unto them,

What is this wicked thing which [ye] are doing, and profaning the sabbath day?

18 Was it not [thus] your fathers did, and our God brought upon us all this calamity, and upon this city,—and [ye] would add indignation against Israel, by profaning the sabbath? 19 And it came to pass <when the gates of Jerusalem made a shadow before the sabbath> then gave I word, and they shut the doors, and I gave word, that they should not open them, until after the sabbath,—and <some of my young men> set I near the gates, so that no burden should be brought in, on the sabbath day. 20 But the traders and sellers of all kinds of wares lodged outside Jerusalem, once or twice. 21 Therefore I testified against them, and said unto them,

Wherefore are ye lodging against the wall? 22 If ye do it again> I will thrust upon you,—<From that time> they came not on the sabbath.

22 And I gave word to the Levites, that they should be purifying themselves and coming in, as keepers of the gates, to hallow the sabbath day.

§ 20. Mixed Marriages denounced and punished.

23 Moreover <in those days> saw I the Jews who had married women of Ashdod, of Ammon, of Moab; 24 and [their children] were one-half speaking the language of Ashdod, and understood not how to speak the language of the Jews,—but after the tongue of both people.

25 So I contended with them, and laid a curse upon them, and I smote, from among them, certain men, and pulled out their hair,—and I put them on oath by God,

Ye shall not give your daughters unto their sons, nor take of their daughters, for your sons nor for yourselves.

26 Was it not <over these things> that Solomon king of Israel sinned—though <among many nations> there was no king such as he, and he was [beloved by his God] and so God gave him to be king over all Israel,—<even him> did foreign women [cause to sin].

27 <Unto you> then, shall we hearken, to do all this great wickedness, to act unfaithfully with our God,—by marrying foreign wives?

28 And [one of the sons of Joiaud, son of Elia- shib the high priest] was son-in-law to San-ballat the Horonite,—therefore I chased him from me.

29 Remember them, O my God,—on account of the Defilements of the Priesthood, and the Covenant of the Priesthood, and of the Levites.

30 So I purified them from everything foreign,—and appointed charges unto the priests and unto the Levites, every one in his work; 31 also for the offering of wood, at times appointed, and for the firstfruits.

Remember me, O my God, for good!

§ 1. The Disobedience and Fall of Queen Vashti.

1 And it came to pass, in the days of Ahasuerus, —the same Ahasuerus that reigned from India even unto Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces: 2 in those days,—when King Ahasuerus was sitting on the throne of his kingdom, which was in Shuspan the palace; 3 in the third year of his reign— he made a banquet unto all his rulers, and his servants,—the power of Persia and Media, the nobles and the rulers being before him; 4 when he showed the riches of the glory of his kingdom, and the splendour of his excellent majesty,—many days, a hundred and eighty days; 5 that when these days were fulfilled the king made—for all the people that were present in Shuspan the palace, both for great and small—a banquet, seven days,—in the court of the garden of the palace of the king: 6 white stuff, cotton* and blue, being held fast with cords of fine linen and purple, upon rods* of silver, and pillars of white marble,—the couches being of gold and silver, upon a pavement of alabaster and white marble, and pearl and black marble. 7 And they gave them drink in vessels of gold, vessels from vessels being diverse,—even the wine of the kingdom in abundance by the bounty of the king. 8 And the drinking was according to the law: no one compelling,—for [so] had the king appointed unto every chief of his household, that every man should do according to his pleasure. 9 [so] Vashti the queen 10 made a banquet for the women,—in the royal house which belonged to King Ahasuerus. 11 On the seventh day> when merry was the heart of the king with wine> he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zethar and Carcas, the seven eunuchs who were waiting before King Ahasuerus,—11 to bring in Vashti the queen, with the royal crown,—to show the peoples and the rulers her beauty, for <of pleasing appearance> was she. 12 But Queen Vashti refused< to come in at the command of the king, which was given through the eunuchs,—and the king was exceeding wroth, and [his anger] burned within him. 13 Then said the king unto the wise men having knowledge of the times,—<for [so] was the manner of the king before all having knowledge of law and judgment;* 14 and [near unto him] were Carabena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, Memucan,—the seven rulers of Persia and Media, who used to behold the face of the king, who sat first, in the kingdom>—

15 According to law> what ought to be done, with Queen Vashti,—for that she hath not performed the command of King Ahasuerus, through the eunuchs?

15 Then said Memucan b before the king and the rulers, 16 Not against the king alone> hath Vashti the queen acted perversely,—but against all the rulers, and against all the peoples, who are in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus. 17 For the report of the queen [will go forth] unto all women, so putting contempt upon their lords, in their eyes,—when it is reported to them. 18 King Ahasuerus commanded Vashti the queen to be brought in before him, but she came not. 19 And [this day] shall the ladies of Persia and Media, who have heard the report of the queen, tell it, unto all the lords of the king,—with enough of contempt and wrath. 20 If unto the king it seem good> let there go forth a royal declaration from before him, and let it be written among the laws of Persia and Media, so that it shall not pass away,—That Vashti is not to come in before King Ahasuerus, and <her royal estate> let the king give unto her neighbour, who is better than she. 21 When the edict of the king which he shall make, is published throughout all his kingdom, for [great] it is,* then [all wives] will give honour unto their lords, both great and small. 22 And the thing seemed good' in the eyes of the king, and the rulers,—and the king did' according to the word of Memucan. 22 So he sent letters, into all the provinces of the king, into every province according to the writing thereof, and unto every people according to their tongue,—That every man should be ruler in his own house, and issue his commands, according to the tongue of his people.

§ 2. The Selection of Esther, a Jewess, to be Queen instead of Vashti.

1 After these things, when the wrath of King Ahasuerus was appeased he remembered Vashti, and what she had done, and what was decreed against her. Then said the young men of the king, who waited upon him,—Let them seek out for the king young virgins, of pleasing appearance; and let the king appoint officers throughout all the provinces of his kingdom, and let them gather together every young virgin of pleasing appearance unto Shuskan the palace, unto the house of the women, into the custody of Hegai eunuch of the king, keeper of the women, and let there be given the things needed for their purification; and the maiden that is pleasing in the eyes of the king let her be queen instead of Vashti.

And the thing seemed good in the eyes of the king, and he did so.

2 A certain Jew there was in Shuskan the palace,—whose name was Mordecai, son of Jair, son of Shimei, son of Kish, a man of Benjamin; who had been exiled from Jerusalem, with the exiles that were carried away with Jeconiah king of Judah,—whom Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon exiled. And it came to pass, that he was bringing up Hadassah, the same was Esther, his uncle’s daughter, for she had neither father nor mother,—and the maiden was of beautiful form and pleasing appearance, and when her father and mother died, Mordecai took her for his own daughter. So it came to pass when the king’s command and decree was heard, and there had been gathered together many maidens unto Shuskan the palace, unto the custody of Hegai that Esther was taken into the house of the king, unto the custody of Hegai, keeper of the women; and the maiden was pleasing in his eyes, and she received loving-kindness before him, and he hastened to give her the things needed for her purification, and things apportioned her; and to give her seven select maidens out of the house of the king,—and he removed her and her maidens to the best place in the house of the women. Esther had not told of her people, nor of her kin, for Mordecai had laid charge upon her, that she should not tell. And throughout every day Mordecai used to walk to and fro before the court of the house of the women,—to get to know the welfare of Esther, and what would be done with her.

Now when the turn of each maiden came, to go in unto King Ahasuerus, after it had been done to her according to the law of the women for twelve months, for so were fulfilled the days of their purification,—six months with oil of myrrh, and six months with perfumes, and with things for the purification of the women; then indeed, the maiden came in unto the king,—whatsoever she might mention was given her, to go with her, out of the house of the women up to the house of the king: in the evening she went in, and in the morning she returned unto the second house of the women, unto the custody of Shashoghaz the king’s eunuch, who kept the concubines,—she went not in again unto the king, except the king delighted in her, and she were called by name. But when the turn came for Esther daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai—who had taken her as his own daughter—to go in unto the king she requested nothing, save what Hegai the king’s eunuch who kept the women might direct,—but so it was, that Esther obtained favour in the eyes of all who beheld her. So then Esther was taken unto King Ahasuerus, into his royal house, in the tenth month, the same was the month Tebeth,—in the seventh year of his reign. And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained favour and loving-kindness before him, above all the virgins,—so that he set the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen, instead of Vashti. Then the king made a great banquet, for all his rulers and his servants, the banquet of Esther,—and a remission for all the provinces made he, and gave a present, according to the bounty of a king.

§ 3. Mordecai, the Queen’s Foster-father, saves the Life of King Ahasuerus.

Now when virgins were gathered together a second time then Mordecai was sitting in the gate of the king. Esther had not told of her kindred, nor her people, as Mordecai had laid charge upon her,—and the command of Mordecai Esther performed, like as when she was brought up with him. In those days, when Mordecai was sitting in the gate of the king Bithhan and Tarsh, two of the eunuchs of the king who guarded the threshold, were wroth, and sought to thrust a hand upon King Ahasuerus; but the thing became known to Mordecai, who told it unto Esther the queen,—and Esther told it unto the king, in the name of Mordecai. And when the thing was searched into and found true then were they two hanged upon the gallows, and it was written, in the book of the chronicles, before the king.

§ 4. Haman made Chief Minister; but, Mordecai refusing to bow down to him, Haman plots to destroy the whole Jewish People.

1 After these things did King Ahasuerus promote to power Haman son of Hammedatha

the Agagite, and exalted him,—and placed his seat above all the rulers who were with him. 2 And [all the king's servants who were in the king's gate] used to bow and bow themselves down unto Haman, for [so] had the king given command concerning him,—but [Mordecai] bent not nor bowed himself down. 3 Then said the king's servants who were in the king's gate, unto Mordecai,— 4 Wherefore' art [thou] transgressing the command of the king? 5 And it came to pass <when they had spoken unto him day by day, and he had not hearkened unto them> that they told Haman, to see whether the account of Mordecai would stand, for he had told them that [he] was a Jew. 6 And <when Haman saw that Mordecai did not bend nor bow down unto him> then was Haman filled with wrath; 7 but <it was contemptible in his eyes> to thrust forth a hand on Mordecai alone, for they had told him of the people of Mordecai,—and Haman sought to destroy all the Jews who were throughout all the kingdom of Ahasuerus, the people of Mordecai. 8 Then said Haman unto King Ahasuerus, 9 There is a certain people, scattered abroad and dispersed among the peoples, throughout all the provinces of thy kingdom,— whose [laws] are diverse from every people, and <the laws of the king> they observe not, <for the king> therefore, it is not fit, to suffer them. 10 If unto the king it seem good let it be written, to destroy them,—and <ten thousand talents of silver> will I weigh out upon the hands of them who are doing the business, to bring [it] into the treasuries of the king. 11 So then the king took his signet-ring from off his hand, and gave it unto Haman son of Haddon the Agagite, the adversary of the Jews; 12 and the king said unto Haman, The silver is granted thee,—and the people, to do with them, as may seem good in thine eyes. 13 Then were called the scribes of the king, in the first month, on the thirteenth day therein, and it was written according to all that Haman commanded unto the satraps of the king and unto the pashas, who were over every province, and unto the rulers of every province, every province according to the writing thereof, and every people according to the tongue thereof,—<in the name of King Ahasuerus> was it written, and sealed with the signet-ring of the king. 14 Then were sent letters, by the hand of the runners, into all the provinces of the king, To destroy, to slay and to cause to perish all Jews, both young and old, little ones and women, in one day, on the thirteenth of the twelfth month [the same] is the month Adar,—and the spoil of them to be a prey. 15 A copy of the writing, to be delivered as an edict throughout every province, was published to all the peoples,—that they should be ready against this day. 16 The runners went forth, urged on by the word of the king, and the edict was given in Shushan the palace,—and the king and Haman sat down to drink, but the city of Shushan was perplexed.

§ 5. Mordecai and Esther defeat the Schemes of Haman, who is hung on the Gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai, the latter being honoured in his Adversary’s Stead, and the Jews being permitted to stand for their Lives, and so are delivered.

1 <When Mordecai> came to know all that had been done, Mordecai rent his garments, and put on sackcloth, and ashes,—and went forth into the midst of the city, and cried out with an outcry loud and bitter; 2 and went in as far as before the gate of the king,—for none might enter into the gate of the king, clothed with sackcloth. 3 And throughout every province, whithersoever the word of the king and his edict came, was great mourning to the Jews, and fasting and weeping, and lamentation,—sackcloth and ashes were spread out for many.

4 So the maidens of Esther and her eunuchs went in and told her, and the queen withred in great anguish,—and sent garments to clothe Mordecai, and to remove his sackcloth from off him, but he accepted them not. 5 Then called Esther for Hathach, one of the eunuchs of the king whom he had stationed before her, and charged him, concerning Mordecai,—to get to know what this was, and why this was. 6 So Hathach went forth unto Mordecai,—in the broadway of the city, which was before the gate of the king. 7 And Mordecai told him all that had befallen him,—and an exact statement of the silver, that Haman had promised to weigh out unto the treasuries of the king, for the Jews, to destroy them. 8 Also a copy of the writing of the edict which had been given in Shushan to destroy them gave he unto him, to shew unto Esther, and to tell her,—and to lay charge upon her, to go in unto the king—to make supplication unto him, and to make request before him, for her people. 9 And Hathach came in and told Esther, the words of Mordecai.

* So O.G. Cp. chap. x. 2.
Then spake Esther unto Hathach,—and gave him charge, unto Mordecai:

|| All the servants of the king, and the people of the provinces of the king do know, that whatsoever man or woman shall go in unto the king—into the inter courts—who hath not been called || one || is his law, to put him to death, saving any to whom the king may hold out the golden sceptre, who then shall live,—but || I || have not been called to go in unto the king, these thirty days.

And they told Mordecai, the words of Esther. Then Mordecai commanded to answer Esther,—Do not think in thine own soul, to escape in the house of the king from among all the Jews.

But if thou || do indeed hold thy peace || at this time || respite and deliverance will be appointed for the Jews, from another place, but thou, and thy father's house will perish, — and who knoweth whether for a time such as this thou hast attained unto the royal estate?

Then Esther commanded, to answer Mordecai:

Go! gather ye together all the Jews who are to be found in Shushan, and fast ye for me—and neither eat nor drink—three days, night and day, and || I and my maids will fast so,—and in this manner will I go in unto the king, though it is not according to the law, and || when I have perished I have perished!

So Mordecai departed,—and did according to all that Esther had charged upon him.

And it came to pass, on the third day, that Esther put on her royal apparel, and stood in the inner court of the house of the king, over against the house of the king,—and || the king was sitting upon his royal seat, in the royal house, over against the opening of the house. And it came to pass when the king saw Esther the queen standing in the court that she obtained favour in his eyes,—and the king held out to Esther, the golden sceptre which was in his hand, so Esther drew near, and touched the top of the sceptre.

Then said the king unto her, What aileth thee, Queen Esther? and what is thy request? Unto the half of the kingdom shall it be given thee.

Then said Esther, If unto the king it seem good, let the king with Haman come in this day, unto the banquet which I have prepared for him.

And the king said, Hasten ye Haman, to perform the word of Esther.

So the king with Haman came in, unto the banquet which Esther had prepared.

What is thy petition, that it may be granted thee?—and what is thy request—unto the half of the kingdom—that it may be performed?

Then answered Esther, and said,—As touching my petition and my request>

If I have found favour in the eyes of the king, and if unto the king it seem good, to grant my petition, and to perform my request > let the king with Haman come in unto the banquet which I will prepare for them, and || to-morrow || I will do according to the word of the king.

Then went Haman forth on that day, joyful and of a merry heart,—but when Haman saw Mordecai in the gate of the king, that he rose not up nor moved because of him then was Haman filled with wrath against Mordecai.

Nevertheless Haman restrained himself, and came into his own house, —and sent and brought in his friends, and Zeresh his wife; and Haman recounted unto them the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, —and all the things wherein the king had promoted him to power, and how he had advanced him, above the rulers and the servants of the king.

And Haman said,

Moreover Esther the queen did bring in no one with the king into the banquet which she had prepared, saving myself,—ye moreover even for to-morrow || I || am invited unto her, with the king.

Yet || all this || sufficed me not,—so long as || I || see Mordecai the Jew, sitting in the gate of the king.

Then said Zeresh his wife and all his friends unto him,

Let them make ready a gallows, of the height of fifty cubits, and || in the morning || speak thou unto the king, that they hang Mordecai thereon, then go with the king into the banquet joyfully.

And the thing seemed good before Haman, and he made ready the gallows.

During that night the sleep of the king fled,—and he commanded to bring in the book of remembrance, the chronicles, and they were read before the king. And it was found written, how that Mordecai had told concerning Bigthana and Teresh, the two eunuchs of the king guarding the threshold,—who had sought to thrust forth a hand upon King Ahasuerus. Then said the king,

What honour and dignity hath been done unto Mordecai, for this?

Then said the king's young men, who were ministering unto him,

'Nothing' hath been done for him.

Then said the king,

Who is in the court?

Now Haman had come into the outer court of the king's house, to speak unto the king, to hang Mordecai upon the gallows which he had prepared for him. 5 So the king's young men said unto him, Lo! Haman standing in the court. And the king said, Let him come in. 6 So Haman came in, and the king said unto him, What shall be done unto the man in whose honour the king delighteth? Then said Haman, in his own heart, Unto whom will the king delight to do honour, more than unto me? 7 So Haman said unto the king,—<As touching the man in whose honour the king delighteth,—let them bring in royal apparel wherewith the king hath clothed himself,—and the horse whereon the king hath ridden, and the royal crown which hath been set upon his own head; and let the apparel and the horse be delivered unto the hand of one of the king's rulers, one of the nobles, and so let them array the man, in whose honour the king delighteth,—and cause him to ride upon the horse through the breadth of the city, and let them proclaim before him, Thus and thus shall it be done unto the man in whose honour the king delighteth!> 10 Then said the king unto Haman, Haste, take the apparel and the horse, just as thou hast said, and do even so unto Mordecai the Jew, who is sitting in the king's gate,—do not let fail a thing, of all which thou hast spoken! 11 So Haman took the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai,—and caused him to ride through the breadth of the city, and proclaimed before him, Thus and thus shall it be done unto the man in whose honour the king delighteth! 12 Then Mordecai returned unto the gate of the king,—but Haman hurried unto his own house, mourning, and with covered head. 13 And Haman recounted unto Zeresh his wife, and unto all his friends, everything that had befallen him. Then said his wise men, and Zeresh his wife, unto him, If of the seed of the Jews is Mordecai before whom thou hast begun to fall, thou shalt not prevail against him, but shalt utterly fall! before him. 14 While yet they were speaking with him, the eunuchs of the king had come,—and they hastened to bring Haman, unto the banquet which Esther had prepared.

7 1 So the king and Haman came in, to banquet with Esther the queen. 2 Then said the king unto Esther, on the second day also, during the banquet of wine, What is thy petition, Queen Esther, that it may be granted thee? and what is thy request—unto the half of the kingdom—that it may be performed? 3 Then answered Esther the queen, and said, If I have found favour in thine eyes, O king, and if unto the king it seem good, let my life be granted me, as my petition, and my people, as my request; 4 For we are sold, ||I and my people||, to be destroyed, to be slain and to be caused to perish. If indeed for bondmen and for bondwomen we had been sold I had held my peace, although the adversary could not have made good the damage to the king. 5 Then spake King Ahasuerus, and said unto Esther the queen,—Who is he now, and where is he, whose heart is set to act thus? 6 And Esther said, A man who is an adversary and enemy, ||this wicked Haman||. And Haman was terrified, before the king and the queen. 7 <Now the king arising in his wrath from the banquet of wine, and going into the palace garden> Haman stood to make request for his life from Esther the queen, for he saw that ruin was determined against him by the king. 8 <When the king returned out of the palace garden into the place of the banquet of wine> Haman was lying prostrate upon the couch whereon Esther was. Then said the king, Will he even dare to force the queen|| while I am in the house? No sooner had the word gone forth out of the mouth of the king than <the face of Haman> they had covered. 9 Then said Harbonah—one of the eunuchs before the king,—Yes lo! ||the gallows that Haman made ready for Mordecai, who had spoken well for the king|| is standing in Haman's house, of a height of fifty cubits. Then said the king, Hang him thereon. 10 So they hanged Haman on the gallows which he had prepared for Mordecai,—and the wrath of the king was appeased. 11 <On that day> did King Ahasuerus give unto Esther the queen, the house of Haman, the adversary of the Jews,—and Mordecai came in before the king, for Esther had told, what he was to her. 2 And the king took off his signet-ring, which he had taken from Haman, and gave it unto Mordecai,—and Esther set Mordecai over the house of Haman. 3 <Yet again> spake Esther before the king, and fell down at his feet,—and wept and made supplication unto him, to cause the mischief of Haman the Agagite to pass away, even the plot which he had plotted against the Jews. 4 And the king held out unto Esther, the golden sceptre,—so Esther arose, and stood before the king; and said—If unto the king it seem good, and if I have found favour before him, and the thing...
be approved before the king, and | I myself | be pleasing in his eyes> let it be written, to reverse the letters plotted by Haman, son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, which he wrote to destroy the Jews, who are in all the provinces of the king.

6 For how can I endure to see the ruin that shall overtake my people? or how can I endure to see the destruction of my kindred?

7 Then said King Ahasuerus unto Esther the queen, and unto Mordecai the Jew,—Lo! <the house of Haman> have I given unto Esther, and <hu> have they hanged upon the gallows, because he thrust forth his hand against the Jews.

8 |Yet| therefore, write concerning the Jews as may seem good in your eyes, in the name of the king, and seal it with the king's signet-ring,—for a writing which hath been written in the king's name, and sealed with the king's signet-ring> none can reverse.

9 Then were called the king's scribes at that time—in the third month, ||the same|| is the month Siwán, on the twenty-third thereof, and it was written according to all that Mordecai commanded unto the Jews, and unto the satraps and pashas and rulers of the provinces, which are from India even unto Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, every province according to the writing thereof, and every people according to their tongue,—and unto the Jews, according to their writing, and according to their tongue; 10 and he wrote in the name of King Ahasuerus, and sealed it with the king's signet-ring,—and sent letters by the hand of runners on horses, riding the swift steeds used in the king's service, bred of the studs: 11 That the king had granted unto the Jews who were in every city, to gather themselves together, and to stand for their life, 4 to destroy, to slay and to cause to perish—all the force of the people and province who should distress them, their little ones and women,—and [to take] the spoil of them as a prey: 12 <upon one day> throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus,—upon the thirteenth of the twelfth month, ||the same|| is the month Adar; 13 ||A copy of the writing to be given, as an edict, throughout every province, was published to all the peoples,—and that the Jews be ready against that day, to avenge themselves on their enemies. 14 ||The runners that rode on the swift steeds used in the king's service|| went forth, being urged forward and pressed on, by the word of the king,—and ||the edict|| was given in Shusan the palace.

15 And ||Mordecai|| went forth from the presence of the king, in royal apparel, of blue and white, with a large diadem of gold, and a mantle of fine linen and purple,—and ||the city Shusan|| was bright and joyful. 16 <To the Jews> had come light, and joy,—and gladness and honour.

17 And <in every province, and in every city, whithersoever the word of the king and his edict did reach> |joy and gladness| had the Jews,—a banquet and a happy day,—and |many from among the peoples of the land|| were becoming Jews, for the dread of the Jews had fallen upon them.

1 And <in the twelfth month, ||the same|| is the month Adar, on the thirteenth day thereof, when the word of the king and his edict arrived to be put in execution,—on the day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them, though it |was changed| so that the Jews themselves should have power over them who hated them> 2 the Jews assembled themselves together in their cities, throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, to thrust forth a hand against them who were seeking their hurt, and |no man|| stood before them, for the dread of them had fallen upon all the peoples.

3 And |all the rulers of the provinces, and the satraps and the pashas, and the doors of business that pertained to the king|| were extolling the Jews,—for the dread of Mordecai had fallen upon them; 4 since great was Mordecai, in the house of the king, and |his fame|| was going forth throughout all the provinces,—for ||the man Mordecai|| went on waxing great.

5 So then the Jews smote all their enemies, with the smiting of the sword and slaughter, and destruction,—and they dealt with them who hated them according to their pleasure. 6 Yea <in Shusan the palace> did the Jews slay and destroy five hundred men. 7 And ||Parnhandatha and Aridatha; and Dalphon, and Parmahta, and Aspatha; 8 and Araish, and Poratha, and Aridai, and Adalia, and Vaiathas;—

8 the ten sons of Haman son of Hammedatha, the adversary of the Jews|| slew they,—but ||con the spoil|| they did not thrust forth their hand.

9 On that day> came in the number of the slain into Shusan the palace, before the king. 10 Then said the king unto Esther the queen,

<In Shusan the palace> have the Jews slain and caused to perish five hundred men, and the ten sons of Haman,—<in the rest of the provinces of the king> what have they done?

What, then, is thy petition, that it may be granted thee? and what is thy request further, that it may be performed?

12 Then said Esther,

<If unto the king|it seem good> let it be granted, to-morrow also, unto the Jews who are in Shusan, to do according to the edict of to-day,—and that ||the ten sons of Haman|| be hanged upon the gallows.

14 And the king commanded it to be done so, and there was given an edict, in Shusan,—and <the ten sons of Haman> they hanged.
ESTHER IX. 15—32; X. 1—3.

11 So the Jews who were in Shushan assembled themselves together, on the fourteenth day also, of the month Adar, and slew in Shushan three hundred men,—but <on the spoil> thrust they not forth their hand.

14 And the remainder of the Jews who were in the provinces of the king assembled themselves together and stood for their life, and then had rest from their enemies, having slain of them that hated them seventy-five thousand,—but <on the spoil> thrust they not forth their hand: 17 on the thirteenth day of the month Adar,—and then had rest on the fourteenth day thereof, and made it a day of banqueting and rejoicing. 18 But the Jews who were in Shushan assembled themselves together on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth day thereof,—and then had rest on the fifteenth day thereof, and made it a day of banqueting and rejoicing. 19 <For this cause> the country Jews who dwelt in the country towns were making the fourteenth day of the month Adar one of rejoicing and banqueting, and a day of happiness,—and of sending portions every one to his neighbour.

§ 6. The Feast of Purim is established to commemorate the Preservation of the Jewish People.

20 And Mordecai wrote these things,—and sent letters unto all the Jews who were in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, near, and far off; 21 to establish for them, that they should continue to observe the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day thereof,—always year by year; 22 according to the days wherein the Jews found rest from their enemies, and the month which was turned for them, from sorrow to joy, and from mourning to a happy day,—that they should make them days of banqueting and rejoicing, and of sending portions, every one to his neighbour, and gifts unto the needy. 23 And the Jews took upon them which they had begun to do,—and that which Mordecai had written unto them; 24 because Haman, son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the adversary of all the Jews, had plotted against the Jews, to cause them to perish,—and had cast Pur, [the same] is the Lot, to terrify them, and to destroy them; 25 but <by [Esther's] going in before the king> he commanded by letter, that his wicked plot which he had plotted against the Jews, [should return] upon his own head,—and that he and his sons should be hanged upon the gallows. 26 <For this cause> called they these days Purim, after the name Pur, <for this cause>—for all the words of this epistle,—and what they had seen concerning such a matter, and what had reached unto them. 27 The Jews established and took upon themselves—and upon their seed, and upon all who should join themselves unto them, that it might not pass away, that they would continue to keep these two days, according to the writing concerning them and at their set time,—always year by year. 28 And <these days> were to be remembered and to be kept, always from generation to generation, by every family, every province, and every city,—that these days of Purim should not pass away, out of the midst of the Jews, and the memorial of them not cease from their seed.

29 Then wrote Esther the queen daughter of Abihael and Mordecai the Jew, with all authority,—to confirm this second epistle concerning the Purim; 30 and he sent letters unto all the Jews, throughout the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus,—words of peace and stability:

31 to establish these days of the Purim, in their set time, according as Mordecai the Jew and Esther the queen had enjoined upon them, and according as they had enjoined upon their own soul, and upon their seed,—the story of the fastings and of their outcry. 32 And [the command of Esther] confirmed the story of these Purim,—and it was written in a book.

1 And King Ahasuerus laid tribute upon the land, and upon the shores of the sea. 2 But <all the acts of his authority, and his might, and the clear story of the promotion of Mordecai, wherewith the king promoted him> are [they] not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Media and Persia? 3 For [Mordecai the Jew] was next unto King Ahasuerus, and became great among the Jews, and accepted by the multitude of his brethren,—seeking happiness for his people, and speaking peace to all his seed.

THE BOOK OF JOB.

A Narrative Introduction to the Book of Job.

1 ||A man|| there was—in the land of Uz, ||Job||
his name,—and that man was blameless and upright,* and one who revered God, and avoided evil.  2 And there were born unto him seven sons and three daughters.  3 And his substance was—seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she-asses, and a body of servants exceeding large,—thus was that man the greatest of all the sons of the East.

4 Now his sons were wont to go, and make a banquet, at the house of each one upon his day, —and to send and call their three sisters, to eat and to drink with them.  5 And so it was, when the days of the banquet came round, that Job sent and hallowed them, and rising early in the morning offered ascending sacrifices according to the number of them all;  6 for Job said—

Pendezventure my sons have sinned,
And have cursed God in their hearts.
Thus it came to pass that Job went to do all the days.

6 Now there came a certain day, when the sons of God entered in to present themselves unto Yahweh,—so the accuser also entered in their midst.  7 And Yahweh said unto the accuser,
Whence comest thou?
And the accuser answered Yahweh, and said,
From going to and fro in the earth, and wandering about therein.  8 And Yahweh said unto the accuser,
Hast thou applied thyself unto my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a man blameless and upright, one revering God and avoiding evil?

9 And the accuser answered Yahweh, and said,
Is it <for nought> that Job revereth God?

10 Hast not <thou thyself> made a hedge about him, and about his house, and about all that he hath, on every side?  11 The work of his hands> thou hast blessed, and ||his substance|| hath broken forth in the land.

11 But ||in very deed|| put forth, I pray thee, thy hand, and smite all that he hath,—verily <unto thy face> will he curse thee.

12 And Yahweh said unto the accuser,
Lo! ||all that he hath|| is in thy hand, only <against himself> do not put forth thy hand.
So the accuser went forth from the presence of Yahweh.

13 And there came a certain day,—when his sons and his daughters were eating, and drinking wine, in the house of their eldest brother.

14 And ||a messenger|| came unto Job, and said,—

||The oxen|| were plowing, and ||the asses|| feeding beside them;  15 when the Sabeans swooped down, and took them, and <the young men> smote them, and ||the sword of the;—and escaped am ||only I alone|| to tell thee.

16 <Yet> was this one speaking> when ||another|| came in and said,—

||A fire of God|| fell out of the heavens, and burned up the sheep and the young men, and consumed them;  17 and escaped am ||only I alone|| to tell thee.

17 <Yet> was this one speaking> when ||another|| came in and said—

||The Chaldeans|| appointed three chiefs, and spread out against the camels, and took them, and <the young men> smote they with the edge of the sword;  18 and escaped am ||only I alone|| to tell thee.

18 <Yet> was this one speaking> when ||another|| came in and said—

||Thy sons and thy daughters|| were eating, and drinking wine, in the house of their eldest brother;  19 when lo! ||the wind|| came from over the desert, and smote the four corners of the house, and fell upon the young men, and they died,—and escaped am ||only I alone|| to tell thee.

20 Then Job arose, and rent his robe, and shaved his head, and fell to the earth and worshipped;  21 and said—

Naked' ||came I forth from the womb of my mother,  22 and naked' must I return thither,

Yahweh gave, and ||Yahweh|| hath taken away,—

The name of Yahweh be blessed!

* Cp. ver. s, n. The same applies here and ii. 5, 9.
2 And there came a certain day when the sons of God entered in, to present themselves unto Yahweh,—so the accuser also entered in their midst, to present himself unto Yahweh. 2 And Yahweh said unto the accuser,
Whence comest thou?
And the accuser answered Yahweh, and said,
From going to and fro in the earth, and from wandering about therein.
And Yahweh said unto the accuser,
Hast thou applied thy heart unto my servant
Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a man blameless and upright, one who revereth God, and avoideth evil; and still he is holding fast his integrity, although thou movest me against him, to swallow him up without cause.
Then the accuser answered Yahweh, and said,
Skin for skin, and so all that a man hath will he give for his life.
In very deed put forth, I pray thee, thy hand, and smite unto his bone, and unto his flesh,—verily unto thy face will he curse thee.
And Yahweh said unto the accuser,
Behold him! in thy hand,—only his life preserve thou!
So the accuser went forth from the presence of Yahweh, and smote Job with a sore boil from the sole of his foot, unto his crown. 8 And he took him a potsherd, to scrape himself therewith;
he being seated in the midst of ashes.
Then said his wife unto him,
Art thou still holding fast thine integrity?.
Curse God, and die!
And he said unto her,
As one of the base women speaketh, spokest thou? [Blessing] shall we accept from God, and [misfortune] shall we not accept?
In all this > Job sinned not with his lips.

Now when the three friends of Job heard of this misfortune which had befallen him,— they came, every man from his own place,
Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite,—for they had by appointment met together to come to show sympathy with him, and to comfort him. 12 And when they lifted up their eyes afar off, and knew him not> they lifted up their voice, and wept, and rent, every one his robe, and sprinkled dust upon their heads, toward the heavens. 13 And they sat with him upon the ground, seven days and seven nights,— and none was speaking unto him a word, for they saw that exceeding great was the stingling pain.

Job curses the Day on which he was Born.

1 After this > opened Job his mouth, and cursed his day. 2 So then Job began, and said:

2 Perish the day wherein I was born,
And the night it was said,
Lo! a manchild!

4 That day be it darkness,—
Let not God enquire after it from above,
May there shine upon it no clear beam:
Let darkness and death-shade buy it back;
May there settle down upon it a cloud,
Let a day’s dark eclipse cause it terror:
That night darkness take it,—
May it not rejoice among the days of the year, Into the number of months> let it not take.
Lo! that night be it barren,
Let no joyous shouting enter therein:
Let day-cursetors pronounce it,
Those skilled in rousing the dragon of the sky!:
Darkened be the stars of its twilight,—
Let it wait for light, and there be none, Neither let it see the eyelashes of the dawn:
Because it closed not the doors of the womb
wherein I was, and so hid trouble from mine eyes.

Wherefore > did I not die?
From the womb> come forth and cease to breathe?
For what reason> were there prepared for me—knees?
And why—breasts, that I might suck?
Surely <at once> had I lain down, and been quiet,
I had fallen asleep, had I been at rest:
With kings, and counsellors of the earth,
Who had built them pyramids:

Or with rulers possessing |gold|—

Sep. here reads—

How long wilt thou take counsel and say.
Lo! I will wait yet a little while, looking out for my hope of deliverance:
when lo! thy memorial is cut off out of the earth, the sons and the daughters, the offspring of my womb and my pains, for whom I toiled vainly in distress; and thou— in the putridity of worms > dost sit and tarry the night outside; and I am wandering and serving from place to place and from house to house; longing for such time as the sun shall go in, that I may rest from my wearying toil and from my pains which are wont to seire me now. Verily curse, etc.

Who had filled their houses with silver:
Or that <like an untimely birth hidden away> I had not come into being, a
Like infants that never saw light:
There' ||the lawless|| cease from raging,
And there' the toil'worn are at rest:
At once' are prisoners at peace,
They hear not the voice of a driver:
<Small and great> [there] they are,
And the slave' is free from his master. b

Who rejoice unto exultation,
Are glad, when they can find the grave:
To a man, whose way is concealed,
And God hath straitly enclosed him!
For <in the face of my food> ||my sighing
cometh in,
And <poured out like the water> are my graums:
For  I dreaded, and it hath come upon me,
And ||that from which I shrank|| hath overtaken me.
I was not careless, nor was I secure, nor had
I settled down,—
When there came—constraining !

Job's Three Friends, essaying to comfort him, assume his Guilt as the Cause of his Chastisement, and provoke bitter Replies from the Sufferer.

1 Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and said—
2 <If one attempt a word unto thee> wilt thou be impatient?
But <to restrain speech> who' can endure?
3 Lo! thou hast admonished many,
And <slack hands> hast thou been wont
to uphold:
4 <Him that was stumbling> have thy words raised up,
And <sinking knees> hast thou strengthened.
5 But ||now|| it cometh upon thee,
And thou despairest,
It smittest even thee,
And thou art dismayed.
6 Is not ||thy reverence|| thy confidence?
And is not ||thy hope|| ||the very integrity of thy ways|? d
7 Remember, I pray thee, ||who|| ||being innocent> had perished,

Or when' ||tho upright> have been cut off.
<So far as I have seen> ||They who plow for iniquity
And sow misery||,
Reap the same:
9 By the blast of God ||they perish,
And <by the breath of his nostrils> are they consumed:
<[Notwithstanding] the roaring of the lion, and the noise of the howling lion>
Yet ||the teeth of the fierce lions> are broken:
11 <The strong lion perishing for lack of prey>
||Even the whelps of the lioness|| are scattered.
12 But <unto me> something was brought by stealth,*—
And mine ear caught a whispering of the same:
13 <When there were thoughts, from visions of the night,—
When deep sleep falleth upon men>
||Dread> came upon me, and trembling,
<The multitude of my house> it put in dread:
15 Then ||a spirit< over my face> floated along,
The hair of my flesh bristled-up:
16 It stood still, but I could not distinguish its appearance,
I looked, but there was no' form before mine
eyes,*—
||A whispering voice> I heard:—
17 Shall ||mortal man> be more just than
God?
Or a man' be more pure than his Maker?
Lo! <in his own servants> he trusteth not,
And <in his own messengers> lie chargeth with error:
19 How much more' the dwellers in houses of clay,*
Which <in the dust> have their foundation,
Which are crushed sooner than a moth:
20 <Betwixt morning and evening> are they broken in pieces,
<With none to save> they utterly' perish:
21 Is not their tent-rope within them ||torn
away||?
They die, disrob'd of wisdom!

1 Call, I pray thee—is' there one to answer thee? 5
Or <to which of the holy ones> wilt thou turn?
2 For <to the foolish man> death is caused by vexation,
And ||the simple one|| is slain by jealousy.

I have seen the foolish taking root,
And then hath his home decayed\(^*\) [in a moment];
His children are far removed from safety,
And they are crushed in the gate, and there is none\(^*\) to deliver:
\(<\text{Whose harvest}?> \text{[the hungry]} \text{easeth up},
And \(<\text{even out of thorn hedges}>\) he taketh it,
And the snare gapeth for their substance.
For sorrow [cometh not forth out of the dust],—
Nor \(<\text{out of the ground}>\) sprougeth trouble.
\(<\text{Though my trouble}>\) were born,
As \([\text{sparks}]^*\) [on high] do soar>
Yet indeed \(<\text{I}>\) would seek unto El,
And \(<\text{unto Elohim}>\) would I set forth my cause:
Who doeth great things, beyond all search,—
Wondrous things\(^a\) till they cannot be recounted;
Who giveth rain [upon the face of the earth],
And sendeth forth waters, over the face of the open fields;
Setting the lowly on high,
And \(<\text{mourners}>\) are uplifted to safety;
Who doth frustrate the schemes of the crafty,
That their hands cannot achieve abiding success;
Who captureth the wise in their own craftiness,
Yea the headlong counsel of the crooked:
\(<\text{By day} >\) they encounter darkness,
And \(<\text{as though it were night}>\) they grope at high noon.
But he saveth from the sword, out of\(^*\) their mouth,
And \(<\text{out of the hand of the strong} >\) the needy.
Thus to the poor hath come hope,
And \(<\text{perversity}>\) hath shut her mouth.
Lo! how happy is the man whom \(\text{God} \) correcteth!
Therefore \(<\text{the chastening of the Almighty}>\) do not thou refuse:
For \(<\text{he}>\) wondeth that he may bind up,
He smiteth through, that \(<\text{his own hands}>\) may heal.
\(<\text{In six troubles} >\) he will rescue thee,
And \(<\text{in seven} >\) there shall smite thee no misfortune:
\(<\text{In famine} >\) he will ransom thee from death,
And in battle, from the power of the sword;
\(<\text{During the scourge of the tongue} >\) shalt thou be hid,
Neither shalt thou be afraid of destruction when it cometh;
\(<\text{At destruction and at hunger} >\) shalt thou laugh,
And \(<\text{of the wild beast of the earth} >\) be not thou afraid;
For \(<\text{with the stoves of the field} >\) shall be thy covenant.
And \(<\text{the wild beast of the field} >\) hath been made thy friend;
And thou shalt know that \(<\text{at peace} >\) is thy tent,
And thou shalt visit thy fold and miss nothing;
And thou shalt know, that numerous is thy seed,
And \(<\text{thine offspring} >\) like the young shoots of the field.\(^*\)
Thou shalt come, yet robust, to the grave,
As a stack of sheaves mounteth up in its season.
Lo! as for this, we have searched it out—

Hear it, and know \(<\text{thou} >\) for thyself.

Then responded Job, and said:

Oh that \(<\text{be weighed} >\) were my vexation,
And \(<\text{my engulphing ruin} >\) into the balances they would lift up all at once!
For \(<\text{now} >\) \(<\text{beyond the sand of the sea}>\) would it be heavy, \(<\text{On this account} >\) \(<\text{my words} >\) have wandered.
For \(<\text{the arrows of the Almighty} >\) are in me,
\(<\text{The heat whereof} >\) my spirit is drinking up,
The \(<\text{terrors of \(\text{God} \) array themselves against me.} >\)
\(<\text{Dost} >\) the wild ass' bray over grass?
Or \(<\text{loweth the ox} >\) over his fodder?\(^a\)
Can that which hath no savour be eaten without salt?
Or is there any taste in the white of an egg?\(^a\)
My soul hath refused to touch,
\(<\text{Those things} >\) are like disease in my food.
Oh that my request would come!
And \(<\text{my hope} >\) oh that \(\text{God} \) would grant!
That it would please \(\text{God} \) to crush me,
That he would set free his hand, and cut me off!
So might it still be my comfort,
And I might exult in the anguish he would not spare,—

Mine own brethren [have proved treacherous like a torrent,

Like a channel of torrents which disappear,

<As soon as it is warm> they have vanished out of their place.

The travelling companies of Sheba] hoped for them:

They are ashamed that they had trusted,

They have come up to one of them, and are confounded.

For [now] ye have come to him,

Ye see something fearful, and fear.

Is it that I said,

Make me a gift,

Or [out of your abundance] offer a bribe on my behalf;

And deliver me from the hand of the adversary?

And [out of the hand of tyrants] ransom me?

Shew me, and [I] will hold my peace,

And [wherein I have erred] cause me to understand.

How pleasant are the sayings that are right!

But what can a decision from you [decide]?

To decide words] do ye intend,

When [to the wind] are spoken the sayings of one in despair?

Surely [the fatherless] ye would assail,

And make merchandise of your friend?

But [now] be pleased to turn to me,

That it may be [to your faces] if I speak falsehood,

Reply, I pray you, let there be no perversity,

Yea reply even yet, my vindication is in it!

Is there, in my tongue, perversity?

Or can [my sense] not discern [engulfing ruin]?

Is there not a warfare to a mortal, upon earth?

And <as the days of a hireling> are not his days?

So! have I been made to inherit months of calamity,

And [nights of weariness] have been appointed me.

<As soon as I lie down> I say, When shall I arise? yet he lengtheneth out the evening,

And I am wearied with toilings until the breeze of twilight.

My flesh is clothed with worms and a coating of dust;

[My skin] hath hardened, and then run afresh:

[My days] are swifter than a weaver's shuttle,

And they are spent, without hope.

Remember thou > that [a wind] is my life,

Not again shall mine eye see blessing;

Nor shall see me—the eye that used to behold me,

[Thine eyes] are upon me, and I am not.

A cloud faileth, and is gone,

[So] he that descendeth to hades, shall not come up:

He shall not return again to his house,

And his own place shall be acquainted with him no more.

[If also] cannot restrain my mouth,—

I must speak, in the anguish of my spirit,

I must find utterance, in the bitterness of my soul.

Am I a sea, or a sea-monster,—

That thou shouldest set over me a watch?

<When I say,

My bed shall comfort me,

My couch shall help to carry my complaint>

Then thou scorist me with dreams,

And <by visions> dost thou terrify me:

So that my soul chooseth strangling,

[Death] rather than [these] my bones!

I am wasted away,

Not <to times age-abiding> can I live,

Let me alone.

JOB XII. 8—25; XIII. 1—21.

8 Or address the earth, and it will teach thee, And the fishes of the sea will recount it to thee:
9 Who knoweth not among all these, That the hand of Yahweh hath done this?
10 In whose hand is the soul of every living thing, And the spirit of all flesh of men.
11 Dost thou try words to him, And fetter him with a cord?
12 In whose hand is the light of the sun, And in whose hand is length of days understanding?
13 With him are wisdom and strength, And his counsel and understanding.
14 Lo! He pulleth down, and it cannot be built, He closeth up over a man, and it cannot be opened:
15 Lo! He holdeth back the waters, and they dry up, Or sendeth them out, and they transform the earth:
16 With him is strength and effective wisdom, Belong he that erreth, and he that causeth to err.
17 Who leadeth away counsellors as a spoil, And judges He coileth up:
18 The feters of kings He loometh, Or hath bound a slave's waistcloth about their loins:
19 Who leadeth away priests as a spoil, And men firmly seated He overturneth:
20 Setting aside the speech of the trusty, And the discernment of elders He taketh away:
21 Pouring contempt upon nobles, And the girdle of the mighty hath he loosed.
22 Laying open deep things out of darkness, And bringing out to light, the death-shade:
23 Who giveth greatness to nations, or destroyeth them, Who spreadeth out nations, or leadeth them into exile:
24 Who taketh away the sense of the chiefs of the people of the earth, And hath caused them to wander in a pathless waste:
25 They grope about in the dark, having no light, And He hath made them to reel, like a drunken man.
26
27 Lo! <...[this]> hath mine own eyes seen,— Mine ear hath heard and understood it:
28 Just as ye know || I too know, I fall not short of you].

5 But indeed || I || <unto the Almighty> would speak, And <to direct my argument unto God> would I be well pleased.
6 For || ye || do besmear with falsehood, Worthless physicians, all of you!
7 Oh that ye would || altogether hold your peace, And it should serve you for wisdom!
8 Hear, I pray you, the argument of my mouth, And <to the pleadings of my lips> give heed:
9 Is it || for God> ye would speak perversely? And <for him> would ye speak deceit:
10 Even <for him> would ye be partial? Or <for God> would ye [so] plead?
11 Would it be well, when he searched you out? Or <as one might jest with a mortal> would ye jest with him?
12 He will || severely rebuke you, If ye are secretly partial.
13 Shall not this majesty || overwhelm you? And || the dread of him || fall upon you?
14 Are not your memorable sayings, proverbs of ashes?
15 Breastworks of clay || your breastworks! Quietly let me alone, that || I || may speak out, Then let come on me || what may:
16 In any case I will take up my flesh in my teeth, And <my life> will I put in my hand:
17 Lo! he may slay me, || yet <for him> will I wait,— Nevertheless <my ways—unto his face> will I show to be right:
18 Even || be will be on my side—unto salvation, For <not before his face> shall any impious person come.
19 Hear ye patiently || my speech, And be my declaration in your ears.
20 Lo! I pray you, I have set forth in order a plea, I know that || I || shall be found right.
21 Who is it that shall contend with me? For <now> || if I should hold my peace> why! I should breathe my last!
22 Only <two things> do thou not with me, || Then || <from thy face> will I not hide me:—
23 Thy hand—from off me > take thou far away, And <thy terror > let it not startle me!"
Then call thou, and I:  will answer,
Or I will speak, and reply thou unto me.

How many' are mine iniquities and sins?
<My transgression and my sin> let me know!

Wherefore' <thy face> shouldst thou hide?
Or count me, as an enemy to thee?

<A driven leaf> wilt thou cause to tremble?
Or <dubbly dead> wilt thou pursue?

For thou wishest against me, bitter things,
And dost make me inherit the iniquities of my youth;

And thou dost put—in the stocks—my feet,
And observest all my paths.
<Against the roots of my feet> thou dost cut out a bound;

And [a man himself]; <as a rotten thing>
weareth out,
As a garment which the moth hath eaten.

Man that is born of a woman;
Is of few days, and full of trouble:

As a flower> he cometh forth—and fadeth,
He fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not.

And yet upon such a one as this> hast thou opened thine eyes?
And [him]; wouldst thou bring into judgment with thee?

Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?
Not one!

If determined' are his days> [the number of his months] is with thee, Fixed times' for him> thou hast appointed and he cannot go beyond.

Look away from him; that he may rest,
Till he shall pay off, as a hireling, his day.

Though there is—for a tree—hope,—
If it should be cut down> that [again] it will grow,
And the tender branch thereof will not cease;

If its root should become old in the earth,
And in the dust its stock should die:
Through the scents of water it may break forth,
And produce branches like a sapling>

Yet [man] dieth, and is prostrate,*
Yea the son of earth doth cease to breathe, and where is he?

[Waters] have failed from [the sea],
And [a river] may waste and dry up;

So [a man] hath lain down, and shall not arise,—
Until there are no heavens> they shall not awake,
Nor be raised up out of their sleep.

Oh that <in hades> thou wouldst hide me!
That thou wouldst keep me secret, until the turn of thine anger,

That thou wouldst set for me a fixed time,
And remember me:

<If a man die> can he live again?*

All the days of my warfare would I wait,
Until my relief should come:—

Thou shouldst call, and [I] would answer thee,—
For the work of thine own hand> thou shouldst long.

For [now] <my steps> thou countest,
Thou wilt not pass over* my sin:

Sealed up in a bag> is my transgression,
And thou hast glued over mine iniquity.

But [in very deed] a mountain falling will lie prostrate,
Or a rock moved out of its place;

Stones have been hollowed out by waters,
The floods thereof wash away the dust of the earth,
And [the hope of mortal man] thou hast destroyed:

Thou dost overpower him utterly, and he departeth,
Disfiguring his face; [so] hast thou sent him away.

His sons [come to honour],
And he knoweth it not,
Or they are brought low,
And he perceiveth it not of them.

But [his flesh] <for himself> is in pain,
And [his soul] <for himself> doth mourn.

Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and said:—

Should [a wise man] answer unreal knowledge?
Or fill, with the east wind, his inner man?

Disputing with discourse that doth no good,
Or with speech, wherein is no profit?

But [thou] wouldst take away reverence,
And wouldst attain unto meditation before God.

For thine own mouth would teach thine iniquity,
And thou wouldst choose the tongue of the crafty.

Thine own mouth shall condemn thee, and [not I],
And thine own lips shall testify against thee.

The first of mankind> wast thou born?
Or before the hills> wast thou brought forth?

In the secret council of God hast thou been wont to hearken?

JOB XV. 9—35; XVI. 1—8.

Or canst thou attain* for thyself unto wisdom?
9 What knowest thou, that we know not?
[What] understandest thou, and the same [is] not with us?
10 Both hoary and venerable! are among us,
One mightier than thy father in days!
11 <Too small for thee> are the consolations of Gon?
Or a word spoken gently with thee?
12 How doth thine own heart carry thee away,
And how thine eyes do roll!
13 For thy spirit reprieth against God,
And thou bringest forth—out of thy mouth—
words!
14 What is a mortal, that he should be pure;
Or that righteous' should be one born of a woman?
15 Lo! <in his holy ones> c he puttest not confidence,
And [the heavens] are not pure in his eyes:
16 How much less when one is detected and corrupt,
A man who drinketh in—like water—
perversity,
17 I will tell thee—hear me,
<Since this I have seen> c I must needs declare it.
18 Which wise men tell,
And deny not [that which is] from their fathers.
19 <To them deny> was the earth given,
And no alien passed through their midst:
20 <All the days of the lawless man> c he,
doth writhe with pain,
And [the number of years] is hidden from the tyrant;
21 "A noise of dreadful things" is in his ears,
<In prosperity> the destroyer cometh
upon him;
22 He hath no confidence to come back out of darkness,
[c] being destined to the power of the sword;
23 A wanderer c he, for bread, [saying]
Where [is it]?
He knoweth that <prepared by his own hand> is the day of darkness;
24 Distress and anguish shall startle him,
It shall overpower him, like a king ready for the onset:
25 Because he had stretched out—against God
—his hand,
And <against the Almighty> had been wont to behave himself proudly;
26 He used to run against him with uplifted
sword,
With the stout bosses of his bucklers;
27 For he had covered his face with his fatness,

And had gathered a superabundance on his loins;
And had inhabited demolished cities,
Houses wherein men would not dwell,
That were destined to become heaps.
29 He shall not rich, nor shall his substance
continue,
Neither shall their shadow's stretch along
on the earth;
30 He shall not depart out of darkness,
<His young branch> shall the flame' dry
up,
And he shall depart, by the breath of his own mouth!
31 Let no one trust in him that—by vanity—
is deceived,
For [vanity] shall be his recompense;
32 <Before his day> shall it be accomplished,
With [his palm-top] not covered with leaves;
33 He shall wrong—like a vine—his sour
grapes,
And shall cast off—as an olive-tree—his blossom.
34 For [the family] of the impious] is unfruitful,
And [a fire] hath devoured the tents of bribery;
35 Conceiving mischief, and bringing forth
iniquity,
Yea [their inmost soul] prepareth deceit.

Then responded Job, and said:—
1 I have heard many such things,
<Wearisome comforters> are ye all!
2 Is there to be an end to windy words?
Or what so strongly exciteth thee, that thou must respond?
3 I also <like you> could speak,—
If your soul were in the place of my soul
I could string together words against you,
And could therewith shake over you my head.
4 I could make you determined, by my mouth,
And then my lip-salve should restrain you.*
5 Though I do speak] unassuaged is my stinging pain,—
And <If I forbear> of what am I relieved?
6 But [now] hath he wearied me,
Thou hast destroyed all my family;
7 And <having captured me> it hath served
—as a witness;
And so my wasting away hath risen up against me.
8 <In my face> it answereth.

JOB XVI. 9—22; XVII. 1—16; XVIII. 1—8.

9. "His anger" hath torn and persecuted me; He hath gnashed upon me with his teeth;
Mine adversary; hath sharpened his eyes for* me.
10. They have gaped upon me with their mouth, <With reproach> have they smitten my cheek.
Together, against me, have they closed their ranks.b
11. God doth abandon me to him that is perverse,
And <into the hands of the lawless> he throweth me headlong.
12. <At ease> was I when he shattereth me,
Yea he seized me by my neck, and dashed me in pieces.
Then set me up for himself as a mark:
His archers came round against me,
He clave asunder my reins c and spared not,
He poured out, on the earth, my gall:
13. <Sackcloth> sewed I on my skin,
And rolled—<in the dust—>my horn:
14. <My face> is reddened from weeping,
And <upon mine eyelashes> is the death-shade:—
15. Though no violence was in my hands,
And <my prayer> was pure.
O earth! do not cover my blood,
And let there be no place for mine outcry.
16. <Even now> lo! <in the heavens> is my witness,
And <the that voucheth for me is on high.d >My friends are <they who scorn me>,
<Unto God> hath mine eye shed tears:—
That one might plead, for a man, with God,— Even a son of man, for his friend!
17. <When*> [a few years] come Then <by a path by which I shall not return> shall I depart.
1. My spirit is broken,
2. <My days> are extinguished,
<Graves are left me.>
3. Verily there are mockers* with me!
And <on their insults> my eye doth rest.
4. I <pray thee,—be thou surety for me with thyself, Who is there that, on my side, can pledge himself?
For <their heart> hast thou kept back from understanding,
5. <On this account> thou wilt not exalt them.

<He that for a share* denounoeth friends, Even the eyes of his children shall be dim.
But he hath set me, as the byword of peoples,
And <one to be spit on in the face> do I become.
Therefore hath mine eye become dim from vexation,
And <my members> are like a shadow, all* of them.
Upright men shall be astounded over this,
And <the innocent> <against the impious> shall rouse themselves.
That the righteous may hold on his way,
And <the clean of hands> increase in strength.
But indeed, <as for them> all will ye bethink yourselves and enter into it, I pray you?
Or shall I not find, among you, one who is wise?
My days are past, my purposes are broken off,
The possessions of my heart!
<Night for day> they appoint,
<Light> is near, by reason of darkness!
<If I wait for hades as my house, >In darkness> have spread out my couch;
<To corruption> have exclaimed, <My father> thou!
My mother! and My sister! to the worm>
Where then would be my hope?
And <as for my blessedness> who should see it!
<With me to hades> would they go down,
If wholly—<into the dust> is the descent!

Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:— 18

1. How long will ye* make a perversion* of words?
Ye should understand, and <afterwards> we could speak.
2. Wherefore are we accounted like beasts? Or appear stupid, in thing* eyes?
3. <One tearing in pieces his own soul in his anger>—
4. For thy sake shall the earth be forsaken?
Or the rock be moved out of its place?
5. <Even the light of the lawless> shall go out, —
Neither shall shine the flame of his fire;
6. <The light> hath darkened in his tent,
Yea, <his lamp above him> goeth out;
7. The steppings of his strength are hemmed in,
And his own counsel casteth him down;
8. For he is thrust into a net by his own feet,
And <upon a trap> he marcheth;
There catcheth him—by the heel—a gin,
They holdeth him fast—a noose;
Concealed in the ground is a cord for him,—
And a snare for him, on the path.
Round about them terrors have startled him,
And have driven him to his feet.
Let his strength be famished,
And calamity ready at his side;
Let it devour the members of his body,
Let the firstborn of death devour his members;
Uprooted, out of his tent, be his confidence,
And let it drive him down to the king of terrors;
There shall dwell in his tent, what is naught-of-his,*
Let brimstone be strewn over his dwelling;
Beneath> let his roots be dried up,
And be cut off his branch;
His memorial have perished out of the land,
And let him have no name over the face of the open field;
Let them thrust him out of light into darkness,
Yea out of the world> let them chase him;
Let him have neither scion nor seed among his people, Neither any survivor in his place of sojourn;
Over his day have they been astounded who come behind,
And them who are in advance a shudder hath seized.
Surely these are the dwellings of him that is perverse,
And this is the place of him that knoweth not God.

Then responded Job, and said:—

1 Then long will ye grieve my soul?
Or crush me with words?
These ten times> have ye reviled me, Shameless, ye wrong me.*
And even if indeed I have erred>
With myself I lodgeth mine error.
If indeed against me ye must needs magnify yourselves,
And plead against me, my reproach>
Know, then, that hath overthrown me,
And within his net> enclosed me.

Lo! I cry—out Violence! but receive no answer,
I cry aloud, but there is no vindication;
My way hath he walled up, that I cannot pass,
And upon my paths hath he made darkness rest;
My glory—from off me> hath he stripped,
And hath removed the crown of my head;

He hath ruined me on every side, and I am gone,
And he hath taken away—like a tree—my hope;
Yes he hath kindled against me his anger,
And accounted me towards him like unto his adversaries;
Together> enter his troops,
And have cast up, against me, their mound,
And have encamped all around my tent;
My brethren—from beside me> hath he moved far away,
And mine acquaintance> are wholly estranged from me;
Failed me> have my near of kin,
And mine intimate acquaintance> have forgotten me;
Ye guests of my house and my maidsens;
A stranger> have ye accounted me,
An alien> have I become in their eyes;
To mine own servant> I called, and he would not answer,
With mine own mouth> I kept entreating him;
My breath> is strange to my wife,
And I am lost to some to the sons of my own mother;
Even young children> despise me,
I rise up, and they speak against me;
All the men of mine intimate circle abhor me,
Whom I loved> have turned against me;
Unto my skin and unto my flesh> have my bones' cleaved,
And I have escaped with the skin of my teeth.
Pity me! pity me! ye, my friends:
For the hand of hath stricken me!
Wherefore should ye persecute me as God?
And with my flesh> should not be satisfied?

Oh, then, that my words could be written,
Oh that in a record could they be inscribed:
That with a stylus of iron and [with] lead:>
For all time—in the rock—they could be graven!
But I know that my redeemer> liveth,
And as the dust over [my] dust> will he arise;
And though after my skin is struck off>
Yet apart from my flesh> shall I see God:

20 Then responded Zophar the Naamathite, and
said:—
2 Not so! do my thoughts answer me,

Neither [any more] shall his place' behold
him:
10 [His children] shall seek the favour of the

And [his own hand] shall give back his

11 [His bones] are full of youthful vigour,
Yet [with him—in the dust] shall it lie
down,
12 <Though [a sweet taste in his mouth] be given by vice,
Though he hide it under his tongue;
13 Though he spare it, and will not let it go,
[But retain it in the midst of his mouth]>
14 [His food] [in his stomach] is changed,

10 Out of his belly> shall [God] drive it forth:
11 <The poison of adders> shall he suck,
The tongue of the viper shall slay him;
12 Let him not see in the channels
The flowings of torrents of honey and milk.
13 <In vain> * he toiled, he shall not swallow, <Like wealth to be restored> in which he cannot exult!
14 For he hath oppressed—hath forsaken the poor,
<A house> hath he seized, which he cannot rebuild.
15 Surely he hath known no peace in his inmost mind,—
<With his dearest thing> shall he not get away:
16 Nothing escaped his devouring greed,—
<For this cause> shall his prosperity’ not continue:
17 <When his abundance is gone> he shall be in straits,
[All the power of distress] [shall] come upon
him.
18 It shall be that <to fill his belly> he will thrust at him the glow of his anger,
And rain [it] upon him for his punishment.

24 He shall flee from the armour of iron,—
There shall pierce him, a bow of bronze!
25 He hath drawn it out, and it hath come forth out of his back,—
Yea the flashing arrow-head, out of his gall,
There shall march on him—[terrors]:—
26 [Every misfortune] is laid up for his treasures,—
There shall consume a fire [not blown up],—
It shall destroy what remaineth in his tent:
27 The heavens shall reveal’ his iniquity,
And [the earth] be rising up against him:
28 The increase of his house shall vanish,
Melting away * in the day of his anger.
29 [This] is the portion of the lawless man,
[from God],—
And the inheritance decreed him from the Mighty One.

1 Then responded Job, and said:—
2 Hear ye patiently my words,
And let this be your consolation:
3 Suffer me, that [I] may speak,
And <after I have spoken> thou * canst
mock!
4 Did [I] <unto man> make my complaint?
Wherefore’, then, should my spirit not be impatient?
5 Turn round to me, and be astonished,
And lay hand on mouth!

2 Hear ye patiently my words,
And let this be your consolation:
3 Suffer me, that [I] may speak,
And <after I have spoken> thou * canst
mock!
4 Did [I] <unto man> make my complaint?
Wherefore’, then, should my spirit not be
impatient?
5 Turn round to me, and be astonished,
And lay hand on mouth!
<When I call to mind> then am I dismayed,
And there seizeth my flesh a shuddering—
Wherefore do |lawless men| live,
Advance in years |even wax mighty in power|?
Their seed is established in their sight
along with them,
Yea their offspring, before their eyes;
Their houses are at peace, without dread,
Neither is |the rod of God| upon them;
|His bull| covereth, and causeth not averse
His cow safely calveth, and casteth not her young;
They send forth—like a flock—their young ones,
And |their children| skip about for joy;
They rejoice aloud as with timbrel and lyre,
And make merry to the sound of the pipe;
They complete, in prosperity, their days,
And |in a moment to hades| they sink down.
Yet they said unto God,
Depart from us, and
|In the knowledge of thy ways| find we no pleasure.
What is the Almighty, that we should serve
him?
Or what shall we profit, that we should urge him?
Lo! |not in their own hand| is their welfare,
|The counsel of lawless| is far from me!
|How oft| the lamp of the lawless goeth out,
And their calamity cometh upon them;
|Sorrow| appertaineth he in his anger;
They become as straw before the wind,
And as chaff, which the storm stealeth away.
Shall |God| reserve |for his children| his sorrow?
Let him recompense him so that he may know it;
|His own eyes| shall see his misfortune,
And |the wrath of the Almighty| shall he drink.
For what shall be his pleasure in his house
after him,
When |the number of his months| is cut in twain?
Is it |to God| one can teach knowledge,
Seeing that |he| shall judge |them| who are on high?
This man dieth, in the very perfection
of his prosperity;
Wholly tranquil and secure;

24 |His veins| are filled with nourishment,*
And |the marrow of his bones| is fresh;
Whereas |this other man| dieth, in bitterness of soul,
And hath never tasted good fortune:
Together |in the dust| they lie down,
And |the worm| spreadeth a covering over
them.
Lo! I know your plans,
And the devices, wherewith ye would do me violence!
For ye say,
Where is the house of the noble-minded?
And where the dwelling—tent of the lawless?
Have ye not asked the passers-by in the way?
And |their signs| can ye not recognise?
That |to the day of calamity| is the wicked
reserved,
|To the day of indignant visitation| are they led.
Who can declare—to his face—his way?
And |what he hath done| who shall recompense him?
Yet |to the graves| is borne,
And |over the tomb| one keepeth watch;
Pleasant to him are the mounds of the torrent-bed,
And |after him| doth every man march,
As |before him| there were, without number.
How then should ye comfort me with vanity,
Since |as for your replies| there lurketh
|in them| treachery?

1 Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and said:—

2 <Unto God> can a man act as friend?
Surely a discreet man befriendeth himself!
Is it a pleasure to the Almighty, that thou shouldst be righteous?
Or any profit, that thou shouldst be blameless
in thy ways?
Is it |for thy reverence| that he will accuse thee
will enter with thee into judgment?
Is not |thy wickedness| great?
And |without end| are not thine iniquities?
Surely thou hast been wont to put thy brother in pledge |for nothing|,
And |the garments of the ill-clad| hast
thou stripped off:
|No water—to the weary| hast thou given to drink,
And |from the hungry| thou hast withheld
bread:
|A man of might| |to him| pertaineth the land,

8 Or: "His sides are full of fat"—T.G. "His MI.: "beaps," 9 vessels (pails, pans) are full of milk"—Davies, 417 in. r.

And [the favourite] dwelleth therein:
And the arms of the fatherless thou dost crush.
For this cause | round about thee | are snares,
And a dread startleth thee suddenly;
Or darkness—thou canst not see,
And its flood of waters covereth thee.
Is not its food [in] the height of the heavens?
Behold, then, the head of the stars, that they are high.
Wilt thou say then,
What doth God know?
<Out through a thick cloud> can he judge?
[Dark clouds] are a veil to him, and he cannot see,
Or <the vault of the heavens> doth he walk?
The path of the ancient time wilt thou mark,
Which the men of iniquity trod?
Who were snatched away before the time,
And its stream washed away their foundation?
Who had been saying unto God,
Depart from us! and—
What can the Almighty do for himself?
Yet [the] had filled their houses with good!
The counsel of the lawless then, is far from me:
The righteous shall see and rejoice,
And <the innocent> shall laugh them to scorn:
If our assailants do not vanish>
Then <their abundance> a fire consumeth!
Shew thyself to be one of me—I pray thee—and prosper,
<Thereby> shall there come on thee blessing.
Accept, I beseech thee, from his mouth—
Then lay up his sayings in thy heart.
If thou return unto the Almighty and submit thyself,
If thou far remove perversity from thy tent:
Then lay up, in the dust, precious ore,
And <among the stones of the torrent-beds> fine gold:
So shall the Almighty become thy precious ores:
Yea, glittering silver unto thee!
For <then> <in the Almighty> shalt thou take exquisite delight,
And shalt lift up—unto God—thy face;
Thou shalt make entreaty unto him, and he will hear thee,
And thy vows shalt thou pay;

And thou shalt decree a purpose, and it shall be fulfilled unto thee,
And <upon thy ways> shall have shone a light;
<When men cast themselves down> then thou shalt say Up!
And <him that is of downcast eyes> shall he save;
He shall deliver the innocent,
And thou shalt escape by the pureness of thy hands.

Then responded Job, and said:—
<Even to-day> is my complaint' rebellion?
His hand is heavier than my groaning.
Oh that I knew where I might find him!
I would come even unto his dwelling-place;
I would set out, before him, a plea,
And <my mouth> would I fill with arguments;
I would note the words wherewith he would respond to me,
And would mark what he would say to me.
Would he <with fulness of might> contend with me?
Nay, surely the would give heed to me!
<There' an upright man> might reason with him,
So should I deliver myself completely from my judge.
Behold! <eastward> I go, but he is not there,
And <westward> but I perceive him not;
On the north, where he worketh, but I get no vision,
He hideth himself on the south' that I cannot see him.
But <he> knoweth the way that I choose,
Having tried me > as gold I shall come forth.
Of his steps my foot taketh hold,
His way have I kept, and not swerved;
The command of his lips and would not go back,
And <in my bosom> have I treasured the words of his lips.
But <he> is one, and who can turn him?
What is his soul desired he hath done.
Surely he will accomplish what is decreed for me,
And <many such things> hath he in store.
For this cause' <from his presence am I driven in fear,
I diligently consider and am kept back from him in dread:

Yea, God hath made me timid of heart,
And the Almighty hath put me in terror.
Because I was not cut off before the darkness,
Nor before my face did the gloom form a shroud.

Wherefore since from the Almighty times'
are not hid:
Have his knowing ones' no vision of his days?
Men move back, men move back;
They seize and consume;
The sea of the fatherless they drive off,
They take in pledge the ox of the widow;
They turn aside the needy out of the way,
At once are the hallowed of the land made to hide themselves.

Lo! in the wilderness they go forth with their work,
Eager seekers for prey,
The waste plains yield them food for their young;
In the field—a man's fodder they cut down,
And the vineyard of the lawless they strip of its late berries;
Ill-clad they are left to lodge without clothing,
And have no covering in the cold;
With the sweeping rains of the mountains they are wet,
And through having no shelter they embrace a rock.

Men tear, from the breast, the fatherless,
And over the poor they take a pledge;
Naked they go about without clothing,
And famished they carry the sheavess;
Between their walls are they exposed to the sun,
Tread, and yet are thirsty;
Out of the city—out of the houses they make outcry,
And the soul of the wounded calleth for help,
And God doth not regard it as foolish.
They have become rebels against the light,
They are not acquainted with the ways thereof,
Neither abide they in the paths thereof.

With the light riseth the murderer,
He slayeth the poor and needy,
And in the night he becometh like a thief.
And the eye of the adulteress watcheth for the evening twilight,
Saying: Not an eye will see me!
A covering for the face he putteth on;
He breaketh, in the dark, into houses,
They lock themselves in,

They know not the light;
For in the case of all such morning to them is the death-shade,
For to be recognised is a death-shade terror.

Swift it be on the face of the waters,
Speedily vanished its share in the land,
He turneth not to the way of the vineyards.
Drought and heat steal away snow water,
Hades them who have sinned.

Maternal love shall forget him, the worm shall find him sweet,
No more shall he be remembered,
But perversity shall be shivered like a tree.
He oppresseth the barren who beareth not,
And to the widow he doeth not good.

Yea, he draggeth along the mighty by his strength,
He riseth, and none hath assurance of life;
It is given him to be secure, and confident,
Yet his eyes are upon their ways.

They are exalted a little, and are not,
Yes having been laid low,
In the sight of all men are they gathered,
Even as the top of an ear of corn do they hang down.

But if not who then can convict me of falsehood?
Or make of no account my words?

Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—

Dominion and dread are with him,
Who causeth prosperity among his lofty ones;

Is there any number to his troops?
And upon whom ariseth not his light?

How then shall a mortal be just with God!
Or how shall he be pure who is born of a woman?

Look as far as the moon, and it is not clear,
And the stars are not bright in his eyes!

How much less a mortal who is a creeping thing?
Or a son of the earth-born who is a worm?

Then responded Job, and said:—

How hast thou given help to one of no-strength?
Given victory to an arm of no-power?

How hast thou given counsel to one of no-wisdom?
Or effectual wisdom abundantly made known?

Whom hast thou taught speech?
Whose inspiration hath come from thee?

The shades tremble,
Beneath the waters and their inhabitants;

Naked! is hades before him,
JOB XXVI. 7—14; XXVII. 1—23; XXVIII. 1—7. 517

And there is no covering to destruction; 7 Who stretcheth out the north over emptiness, a
Hangeth the earth upon nothingness; 8 Who bindeth up the waters in his thick clouds, And the cloud is not rent beneath them; b
9 Who shutteth-in the face of the throne, He spreadeth over it his cloud; 10 A boundary hath he encircled on the face of the waters, As far as where light ends in darkness; a
11 The pillars of heaven; are shaken, And are terrified at his rebuke. 12 By his strength hath he exalted the sea, And by his skill hath he shattered the Crocodile; d
13 By his spirit hath he arched the heavens, His hand hath pierced the fleeing serpent. f

Lo! these are the fringes of his way, And what a whisper of a word hath been heard of him! But that the thunder of his might who could understand? b

27 And Job again took up his measure, and said:—

As God liveth, who hath taken away my right, Even the Almighty, who hath embittered my soul;
All the while my inspiration is in me, And the spirit of God is in my nostrils;
Verily my lips shall not speak perversity, Nor shall my tongue utter deceit.
Far be it from me that I should justify you, Even until I breathe my last: will I not let go mine integrity from me:
On my righteousness have I taken fast hold, and will not give it up,
My heart shall not reproach any of my days.
Let mine enemy be a veritably lawless one! And the that lifteth himself up against me one veritably perverse!
For what shall be the hope of the impious, though he graspheth with greed, When God shall draw forth his soul?
His outcry will God hear, When there cometh upon him distress?
Verily in the Almighty he will not find delight, Nor call on God continually. m

1 I would teach you, by the hand of God,
That which is with the Almighty will I not conceal.
Lo! ye have all of you seen, Wherefore, then, is it that ye are utterly without purpose?
This is the portion of a lawless man with God,
That the heritage of tyrants—from the Almighty he shall receive.
If his children be multiplied for them [there is] the sword, And his offspring shall not be filled with bread;
His survivors by pestilence shall come to the grave,
And his widows shall not weep;
Though he heap up silver like dust, And like a pile he prepare clothing;
He may prepare, but the righteous shall put on, And the silver shall the innocent apportion.
He hath built, like a moth, his house,— Like a hut, which a watcher hath made.
The rich man shall lie down, and not do it again, b
His eyes hath he opened, and then is not.
There shall reach him—like waters—terror, By night a storm-wind hath stolen him away;
An east wind shall lift him up, and he shall depart.
And it shall sweep him away out of his place; And he will cast upon him and not spare.
Out of his hand shall he eat swiftly fly;
He shall clasp over him his hands, And shall hiss him forth out of his place.

28 <For silver is a vein, And a place for the gold they refine; ||Iron> out of the ore is taken, And stone poureth out copper; And an end hath one set to the darkness, And into every extremity is beholding search, For the stone of darkness and death-shade; He hath sunken a shaft, away from the inhabitants.
Places forsaken by the foot, They hang down, away from men) sway to and fro; As for the earth out of it cometh forth bread, And under it is upturned, as it were fire;

Ravenous beasts have not made a track thereof,
Neither hath the lion' marched thereon:
Upon the flint hath he thrust forth his hand,
He hath turned up mountains by the roots;
And every precious thing hath his eye seen:
From trickling> he restraineth |rivers|.
And some hidden thing is he bringing out to light>
Yet where can wisdom be found?
Where is the place of understanding?
Mortal knoweth not the way thereof,
Neither can it be found in the land of the living;
The resounding deep saith: ‘It is |not in me|!
And the sea saith, ‘It is not with me!
Pure gold cannot be given in its stead,
Neither can silver be weighed as the value thereof;
It cannot be put into the scales against the gold of Ophir,
With costly onyx, or sapphire;
Neither gold nor crystal can compare with it,
Nor can (the exchange thereof) be a vessel| of pure gold,
Coral or crystal cannot be mentioned,
Yea <as possession> is wisdom, above red coral;
The topaz of Ethiopia cannot compare with it,
Against purest gold can it not be weighed.
Whence then cometh wisdom?
And where is the place of understanding?
Seeing it hath been hid from the eyes of every living thing,
And from the bird of the heavens hath it been concealed.

Destruction and death have said,
With our ears we have heard the report thereof!
God understandeth the way thereof,
And he discerneth the place thereof;
For the ends of the earth are directed his look,
Under all the heavens he seeth;
Making —for the wind— a weight,
And the waters he proved by measure,
—When he made— for the rain—a decree,
And a way for the lightning of thunders—
Then saw he it, and declared it, He settled it: yea also he searched it out.

And said to the son of earth,
Lo! <the reverence of the Lord> that is wisdom,
And <to avoid evil> is understanding.

And Job again took up his measure, and said:—
Oh that it were with me as in the month of old,
As in the days when God used to watch over me;
When his lamp shone over my head,
By whose light I could go through darkness;
As I was, in the days of my prime,
When the intimacy of God was over my tent;
While yet the Almighty was with me,
Round about me were my young men;
When my steps were bathed in milk,
And the rock poured out beside me, rivulets of oil;
When I went out to the gate unto the city,
In the open place: made ready my seat;
Young men saw me, and hid themselves,
And the aged arose—they stood:
Rulers restrained speech,
Laid they on their mouth:
The voice of nobles was hushed,
Their tongue <to their palate> did cleave;
When the ear heard, then it pronounced me happy,
When the eye saw then it bare me witness;
Because I used to deliver the oppressed who was crying out for aid,
The fatherless also, and him that had no helper;
The blessing of him that was ready to perish upon me was wont to descend,
The heart of the widow caused I to sing for joy;
Righteousness I put on, and it clothed me;
Like a robe and turban was my |justice:
Eyes became I to the |blind|,
And feet to the lame was; I was:
A father was to the needy,
And for the cause which I knew not I used to search it out;
And I shivered the fangs of the perverse,—
Out of his teeth I bare the prey.

Then said I:
Like a stem shall I grow old,
Yea <as sand> shall I multiply days:
My root| is laid open to the waters,
And [the dew] shall lodge for the night in my boughs;

And [my honour] shall be young again with me,

And [my bow] in my hand be renewed.

To me> men hearkened, and waited,

And kept silence for my counsel;

After I had spoken> they spake not again,

And upon me> used my speech to drop;

And they waited <as for rain> [for me],

And <their mouths> they opened wide for the spring-rain;

I laughed at them—they lost confidence,

And <the light of my countenance> they suffered not to fail;

I chose out their way, and sat chief,—

And abide, as king, in an army,

As one who, to mourners, giveth comfort.

But <now> they who are of fewer days than I, have poured their derision upon me;

Whose fathers I refused—

To set with the dogs of my flock.

Even the strength of their hands> wherefore> was it mine?

Upon them> vigour was lost;*

In want and hunger> they were lean,—

Who used to gnaw the dry ground,*

A dark night of desolation!

Who used to pluck off the mallow* by the bushes,

With the root of the broom for their food;

Out of the midst> were they driven,

Men shouted after them, as after a thief;

In the fissures> of the ravines* had they to dwell,

In holes of dust and crags;

Among the bushes> used they to shrift;*

<Under the bramble> were they huddled together;*

Sons of the base, ye sons of the nameless,

They were scourged out of the land.

But <now> their song* have I become,

Yea I serve them for a byword;

They abhor me—have put themselves far from me,

And <from my face> have not withheld—spittle!

Because <my girdle> he had loosened and had humbled me>

Therefore <the bridle—my presence> cast they off;

On my right hand> the young brood rose up,—

My feet> they thrust aside,

And cast up against me their earthworks of destruction;

They brake up my path,—

<My engulfing ruin> they helped forward unaided;*

As through a wide breach> came they on,

With a crashing noise> they rolled themselves along.

There are turned upon me terrors,—

Chased away as with a wind> is mine abundance,

And <as a cloud> hath passed away my prosperity.

Now> therefore <over myself> my soul poureth itself out,

There seize me days of affliction:

Night> boreth [my bones] all over me,—

And [my sinews] find no rest;*

Most effectually> is my skin disfigured,*—

Like the collar* of my tunic> it girdeth me about: Calculator;

He hath cast me into the mire,

And I have become like dust and ashes.

I cry out for help unto thee, and thou dost not answer,*

I stand still, and thou dost gaze at me;

Thou art turned to become a cruel one unto me,

With the might of thy hand> thou assailest me;

Thou liftest up me to the wind, thou carriest me away,

And the storm maketh me faint;*

For I know that <unto death> thou wilt bring me back,*

Even unto the house* of meeting for every one living.

Only <against a heap of ruins> will one not thrust a hand!*

Surely <when one is in calamity—for that very reason> is there an outcry for help.

Verily I wept, for him whose lot was hard,

Grieved was my soul, for the needy.

Surely <for good> I looked, but there came in evil,

And I waited for light, but there came in darkness;

I boiled within me, and rested not,

There confronted me—days of affliction;

In gloom> I walked along, without sun,

I arose—<in the convocation> I cried out for help;

A brother> became I to the brutes that howl,

And a companion to the birds that screech:

My skin> turned black, and peeled off me,

And [my bones] burned with heat;

Thus is attuned to mourning—my lyre,

And my flute, to the noise of them who weep.
31 <A covenant> I solemnised for* mine eyes,— How then could I gaze upon a virgin?
Or what would have been my portion of God from above?
Or what inheritance of the Almighty from on high?
Is there not calamity, for the perverse?
And misfortune, for the workers of iniquity?
Would [he] not see my ways?
And <of all my steps> take account?
Verily I walked not in falsity,
Nor did my foot haste unto deceit:—
Let him weigh me in balances of righteousness,—
And let God take note of mine integrity!"
If my goings have swerved from the way,—
And <after mine eyes> hath gone my heart,
And <to my hands> hath adhered any stain>
Let me sow but [another] eat'.
And let [what I have springing up] be uprooted!
If my heart hath been enticed unto a woman,
Or <by the door of my neighbour> I have lien in wait>
Let my wife [grind to another],
And <over her> let others bend!"
Surely that' had been a shameful thing!
And that an iniquity for the judges!"
Surely  had that' been, which <unto destruction> would have consumed,
And <of all mine increase> had it torn up the root.
If I refused the right of my servant, or my handmaid,
When they contended with me >
What then could I have done when God rose up?
And <when he visited> what could I have answered him?
Did not he who, in the womb, made me' make him'?
And is not he who formed us in the body one'?
If I withheld—from pleasure—the poor,
Or <the eyes of the widow> I dimmed;
Or <used to eat my morsel alone, so that the fatherless did not eat thereof;
Surely <from my youth> he grew up to me, as to a father,
And <from my birth> I acted as guide to her;
If I saw one perishing for lack of clothing,
Or that the needy had no covering;
If his loins did not bless me,"
Or if <with the fleece of my lamb> he did not warm himself;
If I shook <against the fatherless>—my hand,
When I saw, in the gate, his need of my help>
Let [my shoulder] <from the shoulder-blade> fall,
And [my arm] <from the upper bone> be broken;
For  was calamity from God,
And <from his majesty> I could not escape."
If I made gold my stay,
And <to precious metal> said, My confidence!
If I rejoiced because great was my substance,
And <an abundance> my hand had discovered;
If I looked at the sun, when it flashed forth light,
Or at the moon, majestically marching along;
And befooled secretly was my heart,
So that my hand kissed my mouth>
That too had been a judicial iniquity,"
For I should have been false to God above.
If I rejoiced in the misfortune of him that hated me,
Or exulted when calamity found him;—
Neither did I suffer my palate' to sin.

By hiding in my bosom mine iniquity>
Then let me be made to tremble at a great throng,
Yea let ||the contempt of families|| terrify me,
So that, keeping silence, I shall not go out of the door!
Oh that I had one to hear me,
Lo! my crossmark,
May ||the Almighty|| answer me!
And would that  mine opponent had written!

Oh! would I not upon my shoulder lift it,
Or bind it as a crown upon me;
The number of my footsteps I would declare to him,
Like a noble would I draw near to him.

If against me my ground used to cry out,
And together my ridges did weep;
The strength thereof I used to eat without payment,
And the soul of the holders thereof I made green.

Instead of wheat let there come forth bramble,
Instead of barley a bad-smelling weed!

Ended are the words of Job.

Elihu, a Young Man, perceiving the Failure of Job's Three Friends to answer the Afflicted One, thinks to succeed where they have failed, and makes a Series of Eloquent Speeches.

So these three men ceased to respond to Job, because he was righteous in their eyes. Then was kindled the anger of Elihu, son of Barachel the Buzite of the family of Ram, against Job was kindled his anger, because he justified his own soul rather than God; and against his three friends was kindled his anger, because they found not a reply and condemned God. But Elihu had waited for Job with words, because the others were older than he. Howbeit when Elihu saw that there was no reply in the mouth of the three men then was kindled his anger. So then Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, responded and said:

Young am I, whereas ye are aged,
For this cause I faltered, and feared—
To shew my knowledge unto you:
I said:
Days should speak,—
And the multitude of years should make known wisdom.
Yet surely there is a spirit in men,
And the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding;
Great men may not be wise,
Nor elders understand justice.

Therefore I said,
Hearken unto me,
I will shew my knowledge— even I.

Lo! I waited for your words,
I kept giving ear for your reasons,
Until ye should search out what to say;
Yea unto you gave I diligent heed,—
But lo! there was, for Job, nothing to convince,
Nor could one of you answer his speeches.
Lost ye should say, We have found out wisdom.
"[God] must put him to fight, not man.
Since he directed not to me discourse Therefore with your speeches will I not reply to him.
They were dismayed, they responded no more,
They suffered speech to forsake them;
"Though I waited" yet could they not speak.
Surely they came to a stand, they responded no more.

I will respond even I—on my part;
I will shew my knowledge, even I!
For I am full of discourse,
The spirit in my bosom presseth me on.
Lo! my bosom is like wine not opened,
Like new wine-skins it will burst.
I will speak, that I may freely breathe,
I will open my lips and respond.
Let me be partial to no man,
And unto no son of earth give flattering titles,
Surely I know not how to give flattering titles, How soon' might my Maker take me away!
But in very deed hear, I pray thee, Job,
In my discourse,
And to all my words give thou ear.
Lo! I pray thee, I have opened my mouth,
My tongue, with my palate, hath spoken,
Mine utterances come straight from mine own heart,
And what I know— my lips have truly spoken.
"The spirit of God hath made me,
And the inspiration of the Almighty giveth me life.
If thou art able to answer me set in order before me—take thy stand!
Lo! I am like thyself toward God,
From clay have I been nipped off— even I!
Lo! my terror will not startle thee,
Nor my hand upon thee be heavy.
But thou hast spoken in mine ears,
And the sound of words I heard—
Pure am I, without transgression,
Clean am I, and have no iniquity.
Lo! occasions of hostility would he find against me.
He counteth me an enemy to him;

11 He putteth—in the stocks—my feet,
    He watcheth all my paths.
12 Lo! <in this> thou hast not been right—let me answer thee,
For [God] is greater than [man].
13 Wherefore <against him> hast thou contended?
For <with none of his reasons> will he respond.
14 For <in one way> God may speak,—
And <in a second way> one may not heed
it;—
15 <In a dream, a vision of the night,
When a deep sleep falleth upon men,
In slumberings upon the bed>
|Then|| uncovereth he the ear of men,
And <on their correction> afflieth a seal;
To turn a son of earth from his [a] deed,
While yet <pride> from man he concealeth:
16 He keepeth back his soul from the pit,
And his life from passing away by a weapon.
17 Or he is chastised with pain, upon his bed,
And the strife of his bones is unceasing;
So that his life maketh loathsome [his] food,
And his soul’s, dainty meat;
18 His flesh wasteth away out of sight,
And barest are the bones once unseen;
So doth his soul draw near to the pit,
And his life to the1 infernities of death.
19 <If there hath been near him a messenger who could interpret,—
    One of a thousand,
To declare to the son of earth His uprightness—>
20 Then hath he shewed him favour, and said,
Set him free a from going down to the pit,
I have found a price of redemption!
21 His flesh hath been made fresher than a child’s,
He hath returned to the days of his youth;
22 He made supplication unto [God], who hath accepted him,
And he hath beheld his face with a shout of triumph,
Thus hath he given back to man his righteousness,
23 He sang before men, and said,
I sinned, and <uprightness> I perverted.
Yet he required me not;
24 He hath ransomed my [b] soul from passing away into the pit,—
And [my] life <<in the light>> shall have vision.

20 Lo! <all these things> doth God work,
Two ways, three, with a man;
21 To bring back his soul from the pit,
To enlighten with the light of the living.*
22 Mark well, O Job, and hearken to me,
Be silent, and I will speak:
23 <If there is anything to say> reply to me,
Speak, for I desire to justify thee;
24 <If not do> thus hearken unto me,
Be silent, that I may teach thy wisdom.
25 Furthermore Elihu responded, and said:—
26 Hear, ye wise men, my words,
And ye who know give ear unto me;
30 For [the ear] trieth words,
As [the palate] testeth in eating.
41 What is right> let us choose for ourselves,
Let us know, among ourselves, what is good;
5 For Job hath said—
I am righteous,
But [God] hath turned away my right;
6 <Concerning mine own right> shalt I tell a falsehood?
Incurable is my disease—not for any transgression.
7 What man is like Job?
He drinketh in scoffing like water;
8 And is on the way to keep company, with the workers of iniquity,
And to walk with lawless men.
9 For he hath said,
It profiteth not a man,
When [his] good pleasure is with God.
10 Wherefore, ye men of mind, <hearken unto me,—
    Far be it, that [God] should be lawless,
Or [the Almighty] be perverse!
11 For <what any son of earth doeth> be repayeth him,
And <according to every man’s course> be causeth him to find.
12 Nay, verily [God] will not condemn unjustly,—
Nor [the Almighty] pervert justice.
13 Who’ set him in charge of the earth?
Or who’ appointed [him] the whole world?
14 <If he should set against him his heart,
His spirit and his inspiration> unto himself
    he should withdraw>
15 All flesh together would cease to breathe,
And [the earth-born] unto dust would return.
16 <If then [thou hast] understanding> hear this,
Give thou ear to the teaching of my words:—
17 Shall [the very hater of right] control?
Or <the just—the mighty one> wilt thou condemn?
Moreover Elihu responded, and said:

1. <This> dost thou think to be right?
2. Thou hast said—
   My righteousness is more than God's.
3. For thou dost say,
   How can one profit by thee?
   How can I benefit, more than by my sin?
4. I will answer thee plainly,
   And thy friends with thee.
5. Look at the heavens and see,—
   And survey the skies— they are higher than thou.
6. If thou sinnest what canst thou work against him?
   Or <if thy transgressions be multiplied> what canst thou do unto him?
7. If thou art righteous what canst thou give unto him?
   Or what <at thy hand> can he accept?
8. Unto a man like thyself > might thy lawlessness [reach],
   And <unto a son of the earth-born thy righteousness.>
9. By reason of the multitude of oppressions [men] make outcry, They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty;
   But none saith—
   Where is my maker,
   Who giveth songs in the night;
   Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth,
   And <beyond the bird of the heavens> giveth us wisdom;
10. [men] make outcry, and he answereth not,
   Because of the arrogance of evil-doers.

11. Howbeit <vanity> will God not hear,
   Yea the Almighty will not regard it.
12. How much less when thou sayest thou wilt not regard him!
   The cause is before him, and thou must wait for him.
13. But <because it is not so> thou sayest—
   His anger hath punished,
   And yet hath he not at all known of transgression;
14. Thus vainly openeth his mouth, Without knowledge he multiplieth words.

And Elihu added and said:

1. Restrain thyself for me a little, and I will shew thee,
   That <yet—for my Maker> there is justification.
2. I will bring my knowledge from afar,
   And <to my Maker> will I attribute righteousness.
3. For <of a truth—not false> are my words,
   One of competent knowledge is with thee.\footnote{Lit.: "with words."}

JOB XXXVI. 5-33; XXXVII. 1-11.

5 Lo! [God:] is mighty; yet will he not despise,
Mighty in vigour of mind;⁣—
6 He will not keep alive one who is lawless,
But <the right of oppressed ones> will he grant;
7 He will not withdraw—from a righteous one—
his eyes, —
But <with kings on the throne>
He hath seated men³ triumphantly, and they have been exalted.
8 But <if, bound in fetters,
They have been captured with cords of affliction>
Then hath he declared to them their deed,
And their transgressions—that they were wont to behave themselves proudly;
9 Thus hath he uncovered their ear to a warning,
And said—that they should turn from iniquity.
10 <If they would hearken, and serve>
They should complete their days, in prosperity,
And their years, in pleasantness;
11 But <if they would not hearken>
By a weapon should they pass away.
And breathe their last, no one knowing.
12 Yea <if the inpious in heart> should store up anger,
They should not cry for help, when he bound them.
13 Their soul should die in youth,
And their life, among the unclean.⁣—
14 He would deliver the humbled in his humiliation,
And would uncover—in oppression—their ear.
15 Yea he might even have allured thee—
Out of the mouth of smaragdine,
[Into] a wide space—no narrowness there,—
And [the food set down on thy table] should have been full of fatness.
16 But <with the plea⁣* of a lawless one> thou art full,
[Plaes* and sentence] will take fast hold.
17 <Because there is wrath> —
[Beware] lest he take thee away with a stroke,
Then let not [a great ransom] mislead thee.
18 Will he value thy riches?
Nay not precious ore,
Nor all the forces of strength.
19 Do not pant for the night,
When peoples disappear from their place.
20 Beware, do not turn unto iniquity,
For <this> thou hast chosen rather than affliction.
21 Lo [God:] exalteth himself by his strength,
Who'l like him' doth teach?
22 Who'enjoined on him' his way?
And who' over said,
Thou hast wrought perversity?

24 Remember, that thou extol his work,
Of which men have sung;
25 Every son of earth hath viewed it,
Mortal man: looketh it from afar.
26 Lo [God:] is greater than we can know,
The number of his years—even past finding out!
27 For he draweth up drops of water;
They trickle as rain through his mist;
28 With which the clouds flow down,
They drop on man in abundance.
29 But surely none can understand the burstings of the cloud,
The crashing of his pavilion!
30 Lo! he hath spread out over it, his lightning,
The bed of the sea; hath he covered.
31 For <by these things> he executeth judgment on peoples,
He giveth food in abundance:
32 Upon both hands he putteth a covering of lightning,
And layeth command upon it against an assailant:
33 His rolling thunder telleth concerning him,—
The cattle, even, concerning him that is coming up.
34 Yea <at this> my heart quaketh,
And starteth up out of its place.
35 Hear! oh hear! the raging of his voice,
A growling sound also, out of his mouth; goeth forth:
36 Under the whole heavens he letteth it loose;
His lightning also unto the wings of the earth;
37 After it roar eth a voice;
He thundereth with his voice of majesty,
Nor will he hold them back, when his voice is heard.
38 God thundereth with his voice, wonderfully,
Doing great things, which we cannot know:
39 For <to the snow> he saith, Fall earthwards,—
Also to the downpour of rain, yea the downpour of his mighty rains.
40 On the hand of every man he setteth a seal,
That all men may take note of his doing.
41 So then the wild-beast hath gone into covert,
And <in its lairs> doth it remain.
42 Out of a chamber cometh a storm-wind,
And <out of the north> cold.
43 By the breath of God is given—frost,
And [the breadth of waters] is congealed;
44 Also <with moisture> burdeneth he the thick cloud,
He disperseth his lightning-cloud;

JOB XXXVII. 12—24; XXXVIII. 1—26.

12 Yea [the earth] in circles] turneth itself to and fro, by his steering them to their work, Whithersoever he commandeth them, over the face of the world, towards the earth.

13 Whether [as a rod, or for his earth, Or in lovingkindness] be causeth it to come.

14 Give thou ear unto this, O Job, Stay, and consider well the wonders of God:

15 Canst thou get to know of God's giving charge over them, Or of the causing of the lightning of his cloud to shine forth?

16 Canst thou get to know concerning the poisings of the thick cloud, The wonders of one who is perfect in knowledge?

17 That thy garments should be hot when he quieteth the earth from the south?

18 Didst thou spread out, with him, the skies, Strong as a molten mirror?

19 Let us know what we shall say to him, We cannot set in order, by reason of darkness.

20 Shall it be declared to him—that I would speak?

21 Were any man to say aught he might be destroyed?

22 Yet [now] men see not the light, Bright though it is in the skies, When a wind hath passed over, and cleansed them.

23 Out of the north] a golden light cometh, Upon God is fearful splendour:

24 The Almighty, whom we have not fully found out, is great in vigour,— Neither justice nor abounding righteousness will he weaken.

25 Therefore do men revere him, He will not regard any who are wise in heart.

A Divine Voice Interposes.

38 Then Yahweh responded to Job, out of a storm, and said:

1 Who is it that darkenth counsel, By words, without knowledge?

2 Gird, I pray thee—like a strong man—thy loins, That I may ask thee, and inform thou me:

3 Where wast thou, when I founded the earth? Tell, if thou knowest understanding!

5 Who set the measurements thereof, if thou knowest?

Or who's stretched out over it a line? Whereon were the pedestals thereof sunk?

6 Or who laid the corner stone thereof—

7 When the morning stars sang together, And all the sons of God shouted for joy?

8 Or who shut in, with double doors, the sea, When bursting out of the womb, it came forth;

9 When I put a cloud as the garment thereof, And a thick cloud as the swaddling-band thereof;

10 And brake off for it my boundary,

And fixed a bar and double doors;

11 And said—

Hitherto shalt thou come, and no further,— And here shalt thou set a limit to the majesty of thy ways?

12 Since thy days [began] hast thou commanded the morning? Or caused the dawn to know its place;

13 That it might lay hold of the wings of the earth, And the lawless be shaken out of it?

14 It transformeth itself like the clay of a seal, So that things stand forth like one arrayed;

15 That their light may be withdrawn from the lawless, And the lofty arm be shivered.

16 Hast thou entered as far as the springs of the sea?

Or through the secret recesses of the resounding deep hast thou wandered?

17 Have the gates of death been disclosed to thee? And the gates of the death-shade couldst thou discern?

18 Hast thou well considered, even the breadth of the earth?

Tell—if thou knowest it all! Where then is the way, the light shall abide? And the darkness where then is its place?

19 That thou mayest conduct it unto the bound thereof, And that thou mayest perceive the paths to its house.

20 Thou knowest, for hast thou been born! And in number thy days are many!

21 Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow? And the treasures of the hail couldst thou see?

22 Which I have reserved for a time of distress, For the day of conflict and of war?

23 Where then is the way the lightning is parted? The east wind spreadeth itself abroad over the earth.

24 Who hath cloven—for the torrent—a channel? Or a way for the lightning of thunders?

The thunder of commanders and the war-cry.
26 Is it <by thine understanding> that the Bird of Passage betaketh him to his pinions? Spreadeth out his wings to the south?
27 <Or at thy bidding> that the Eagle mounteth,
And that he setteth on high his nest?
28 <The crag> he inhabiteth, and so lodgeth himself,
On the tooth of the crag, and high fort;
29 <From thence> he searcheth out food,
<Far away> his eyes do pierce;
30 <And his young brood> suck up blood,
And <where the slain are> there is he!

The Divine Voice again speaks.

40 1 And Yahweh responded to Job, and said:—
2 Shalt a reprover contend with the Almighty? <He that disputeth with God> let him answer it!

Job humbles himself.

3 Then Job responded to Yahweh, and said:—
4 Lo! I am of no account, what shall I reply to thee?
5 <My hand> have I laid on my mouth:
6 <Once> have I spoken, but I will not proceed;
7 Yea twice, but I will not add.

The Divine Voice resumes.

8 So then Yahweh responded to Job, out of a storm, and said:—
9 Gird, I pray thee—as a strong man—thy loins,
I will ask thee, and inform thou me.
10 wilt thou even frustrate my justice?
Wilt thou condemn me, that thou mayest appear right?
11 <But if an arm like God> thou hast,
And <with a voice like his> thou canst thunder>
12 Desk thyself, I pray thee, with majesty and grandeur,

Yes <with dignity and splendour> thou shalt clothe thyself;
11 Pour out thy transports of anger,
And look on every one who is high, and lay him low;
12 Look on every one who is high, and humble him,
Yea tread down the lawless, on the spot:—
13 Hide them in the dust all together,
<Their faces> bind thou in darkness;
14 And (even I myself) will praise thee,
In that thine own right hand can bring thee salvation.

Behold, I pray thee, the Hippopotamus,
which I made with thee,
<Grass>—like the ox> he eateth;
16 Behold, I pray thee, his strength in his loins,
And his force, in the muscles of his belly;
17 He bendeth down his tail like a cedar,
<The sinews of his thighs> are twisted together;
18 <His bones> are bars of bronze,
His frame> is like hambered bars of iron:—
19 He is the beginning of the ways of God,
<Let his maker> present him his sword:—
20 Surely the mountains bring produce to him,
Where <all the wild beasts of the field> do play;
21 <Under the lotus-trees> he lieth down,
In a covert of reed and swamp;
22 The lotus-trees cover him with their shade.
The willows of the torrent-bed compass him about;
23 Lo! the river> becometh insolent—he is not alarmed!
He is confident, though a Jordan burst forth to his mouth:
24 <Before his eyes> shall he be caught?
<With a hook> can one pierce his nose?
1 Canst thou draw out the Crocodile? with a fish-hook?
Or <with a cord> canst thou fasten down his tongue?
2 Wilt thou put a rush-cord on his nose?
Or <with a thorn> wilt thou pierce his jaw?
3 Will he multiply unto thee supplications,
Or will he speak unto thee softly?
4 Will he solemnise a covenant with thee?
Wilt thou take him for a life-long servant?
5 Wilt thou sport with him, as with a little bird?
Or wilt thou bind him, for thy maidens?
6 Shall the companions bargain over him?
Or will they part him among the traders?
7 Wilt thou fill, with darts, his skin?
Or, with fish-spears, his head?

Lay thou upon him thy hand,
Remember the battle—no more!
Lo! [any hope of him] hath been found deceptive,
<Even at the sight of him> shall not one be overwhelmed?

Like a blown pot and rushes;

<Hardened upon him> they cannot be moved;

31 He causeth to boil, as a cauldron, the raging deep,
<The sea> he maketh like a brewing vessel:*
<After him> he lighteth up a path,
One might think the resounding deep to be hoary!
There is not—upon the dust—his like,
That hath been made to be without fear;
<Every thing lofty> he beholdeth,
[He] is king over all ravenous beasts.*

Job again humbles himself.

Then Job responded to Yahweh, and said:—

I know that <all things> thou canst do,
And that no purpose can be withheld from thee.
Who' is it that hideth* counsel without knowledge?
<Therefore> have I declared, but not understood,
Things too wonderful for me, which I could not know.
Hear thou, I pray thee, and [I] will speak,
I will ask thee, and inform thou me.
By the hearing of the ear> had I heard thee,
But <now> mine own eye> hath seen thee.
For this cause> I tremble' and repent,
On dust and ashes.

A Divine Adjustment between Job and his Three Friends.

And it came to pass <after Yahweh> had spoken these words unto Job> that Yahweh said unto Eliphaz the Temanite,
Kindled is mine anger against thee and against thy two friends, for ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job.
Now therefore, take unto you seven bullocks and seven rams, and go unto my servant Job, and ye shall offer up an ascending-sacrifice in your own behalf, and ||Job my servant|| shall pray over you,—for <him> will I accept, that I may not deal out to you disgrace, because ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job.
So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite [and]b Zophar the Naamathite went, and did' according to that which Yahweh

THE PSALMS.

BOOK THE FIRST.

PSALM 1.

How happy the man
Who hath not walked in the counsel of the lawless,—
And <in the way of sinners> hath not stood,
And <in the seat of scoffers> hath not sat ;
But <in the law> of Yahweh is his delight,
And <in his law> doth he talk with himself
day and night.
So doth he become like a tree planted by streams of waters,—
That yieldeth its fruit in its season.
Whose leaf also doth not wither.
And <whatever he doeth> prospereth.

Not so the lawless,—
But as chaff which is driven about by the wind ;
For this cause shall the lawless not stand in the judgment,—
Nor sinners’ in the assembly of the righteous.

For Yahweh doth acknowledge the way of the righteous;
But [the way of the lawless] shall vanish.

PSALM 2.

Wherefore have nations assembled in tumult?
Or should [peoples] mutter an empty thing?

The kings of earth take their station,
And <grave men> have met by appointment together,—
Against Yahweh
And against his Anointed One [saying] :—
Let us break saunter their bonds,—
And cast from us their cords !

He that sitteth in the heavens will laugh,—
[My Lord] will mock at them ;
Then will he speak unto them in his anger,
And <in his wrath> confound them :
Yet [I] have installed my king,—
On Zion my holy’ mountain.

Let me tell of a decree,—
Yahweh hath said unto me,
<My son> thou art ;
>to-day> have begotten thee :
Ask of me, and let me give
Nations as thine inheritance,
And <as thy possession> the ends of the earth :
Thou shalt shepherd them with a sceptre of iron,—
<As a potter’s vessel> shalt thou dash them in pieces.
PSALMS II. 10—12; III.; IV.; V. 1—11.

10 || Now therefore, ye kings, shew your prudence, Be admonished, ye judges of earth: Serve Yahweh with reverence, And exult with trembling: Kiss the son, lest he be angry, and ye perish by the way, For soon' might be kindled his anger,— How happy are all who seek refuge in him!

PSALM 3.
A Melody of David, when he fled from before Absolom his son. 1 Yahweh! how have mine adversaries multiplied, Multitudes are rising against me; Multitudes are saying of my soul,— No' salvation for him in God. [Selah.]
2 But [thou, Yahweh] art a shield about me, My glory, and the lifter up of my head.
3 <With my voice—unto Yahweh> do I cry, And he hath answered me out of his holy mountain. [Selah.
4 || I laid me down and slept,— I awoke, Surely [Yahweh] sustaineth me! I will not be afraid of myriads of people, Who round about have set themselves against me.
5 Rise! Yahweh! Save' me, my God. Surely thou hast smitten all my foes on the cheekbone, The teeth of the lawless hast thou broken.
6 To Yahweh> belongeth Salvation! <Upon thy people> be thy blessing. [Selah.

PSALM 4.
To the Chief Musician: * with stringed instruments. A Melody of David.
1 <When I cry> answer me, O mine own righteous God, In a strait place thou hast made room for me, Shew me favour, and hear my prayer.
2 Ye sons of the great! how long, turning my glory to contempt, Will ye love emptiness, will ye seek falsehood?
3 Know ye then, that Yahweh hath set apart the man of lovingkindness for himself: Yahweh will hear, when I cry to him.

4 Be deeply moved, but do not sin,— Ponder in your own heart upon your bed, and be silent. [Selah.
5 Sacrifice the sacrifices of righteousness; And put your trust in Yahweh.
6 Multitudes are saying, Who will shew us prosperity? Lift thou upon us the light of thy countenance, O Yahweh.
7 Thou hast put gladness in my heart,— Beyond the season when [[their corn and their new wine]] have increased.
8 <In peace> will I lay me down and at once sleep;
For [[thou, Yahweh alone]] wilt cause me <in security> to dwell.

PSALM 5.
To the Chief Musician. For the Flutes.* A Melody of David.
1 <To my words> give ear, O Yahweh, Understand thou my softly murmured prayer:
2 Attend to the voice of my cry, my King and my God,
For <unto thee> do I pray. O Yahweh! in the morning shalt thou hear my voice, In the morning will I set in order unto thee, and keep watch;
4 For <not a God finding pleasure in awlessness> art thou', And wrong' can be no guest of thine:
5 Boasters shall not station' themselves [before thine eyes],— Thou hatest all workers of iniquity:
6 Thou wilt destroy' them who speak falsehood,— The man of bloodshed and of deceit> Yahweh abhorreth.
7 But || in the abounding of thy lovingkindness> will enter thy house, I will bow down towards thy holy temple, in reverence of thee.
8 O Yahweh! lead me in thy righteousness, because of mine adversaries,
Make even, before me, thy way:
9 For in his mouth is nothing worthy of trust,|| Their inward purpose'' is engulphing ruin,— <An opened sepulchre> is their throat, <With their tongue> speak they smooth things.
10 Declare them guilty, O God, Let them fall by their own counsels,— Into the throes of their own transgressions> thrust them down,
For they have rebelled against thee:— That all may rejoice' who seek refuge in thee, To times age-abiding> may shout in triumph, that thou wilt protect them, And they' may leap for joy in thee' who are lovers of thy Name.

12 For thou wilt bless the righteous man, O Yahweh,
   As with an all-covering shield— with good pleasure— wilt thou encompass him.

PSALM 6.

To the Chief Musician, with stringed Instruments upon the eighth. A Melody of David.

1 O Yahweh! do not <in thine anger> correct me,
   Nor <in thy wrath> chastise me.
 2 Shew me favour, O Yahweh, for languishing am I:
     Heal me, O Yahweh,—for dismayed are my bones:
 3 Yea [my soul] is dismayed greatly,
     Thou, then, O Yahweh,—how long?
 4 Return, O Yahweh, deliver my soul,
     Save me, for the sake of my lovingkindness;
 5 For <in death> is no remembrance of thee,—
     <In hades> who shall give thanks unto thee?
 6 I am weary with my sighing,
     I flood, through the whole night, my couch,—
     With my tears I cause [my bed] to dissolve:
     My face is all sunken with sorrow.
     It hath aged, because of all mine adversaries.
 8 Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity,
     For Yahweh hath heard the voice of my weeping:
 9 Yahweh hath heard my supplication,
     Yahweh will receive [my prayer].
 10 Let all my foes' turn pale and be greatly dismayed;
     Again 'let them turn pale in a moment.

PSALM 7.

An Ode of David: which he sang unto Yahweh, on account of the words of Cush the Benjamite.

1 O Yahweh my God, <in thee> have I sought refuge,—
     Save me from all my pursuers, and deliver me:
 2 Lost one tear, as a lion, my soul,—
     And there be no deliverer to rescue.
 3 O Yahweh my God
     If I have done this,
     If there hath been perversity in my hands:
 4 If I have requited my friend with wrong,—
     Or have oppressed mine adversary without need>
 5 Let an enemy pursue my soul, and overtake it,

That he may tread down, to the earth, my life,—
And <mine honour—in the dust> he may cause to dwell.

[Selah.]

6 Rise! Yahweh! in thine anger,
    Lift thyself up, because of the haughty outbursts of mine adversaries,
    Stir up for me the justice thou hast commanded:
    Then <above it>—on high> do thou return!
 9 Yahweh will judge the peoples,—
     Do me justice, O Yahweh,
     According to my righteousness,
     And according to mine integrity upon me,
 9 Let the wrong of the lawless, I pray thee, come to an end,
     And establish thou him that is righteous,—
     For [a trier of hearts and reins] is God the righteous one.
 11 My shield is held by God,*
     Who is ready to save the upright in heart:
 11 A God to vindicate the righteous,—
     And yet a God to be indignant throughout every day.

12 [If he turn not] <his sword> will he whet,—
     <His bow> hath he bent, and made ready:
 13 But <for himself> hath he made ready the weapons so deadly,
     <His arrows> he [so fiery] would make:
 14 Lo! he gendereth trouble, .
     And conceiveth mischief,
     But giveth birth to a disappointment:
 15 <A pit> he cut out, and digged it,
     And then fell into the ditch he had made:
 16 His mischief [turneth back] on his own head,—
     And <on his own crown> [his violence] descendeth.
 17 I will praise Yahweh according to his righteousness,—
     And will praise in song the Name of Yahweh Most High.

PSALM 8.

To the Chief Musician. On "the Gittith." A Melody of David.

1 O Yahweh, our Lord! How majestic is thy Name, in all the earth,
     Who hast set* thy splendour upon the heavens.
 2 <Out of the mouth of children and sucklings> hast thou laid a foundation of strength,—
     Because of thine adversaries,
     To make foe and avenger be still.

PSALMS VIII. 3—9; IX.; X. 1—3.

2 When I view thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, Moon and stars, which thou hast established;

What was weak man, that thou shouldest mention of him? Or the son of the earthborn, that thou shouldest set him in charge?

That thou shouldest make him little less than messengers of God; With glory and honour shouldst crown him?

Shouldst give him dominion over the works of thy hands,— All things shouldst have put under his feet:

Sheep and oxen, all of them,— Yea even the beasts of the field;

The bird of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea, — The passer-by on the paths of the seas?

O Yahweh, our Lord! How majestic is thy Name, in all the earth.

PSALM 9.

To the Chief Musician. On “Muth-labben.” A Melody of David.

I will praise Yahweh with all my heart, I will recount all thy wonderful doings;

I will rejoice and exult in thee, I will praise in song, thy Name, O most High.

When mine enemies turned back They stumbled and perished from before thee;

For thou hast executed my right and my cause, Thou hast sat on the throne, judging righteously:

Thou hast rebuked the nations, Thou hast destroyed the lawless one, Their name hast thou wiped out, to times age-abiding and beyond.

O enemy! complete are the desolations, evermore,— Even cities hast thou uprooted, The memory of them hath perished.

So the Eastern Massoretes; but the Western (w. Aram., Sep., Vul.) have: “works” (pl.) — G.n.

Lack little of — O.G.

This rendering has seemed the best way out of a difficulty. The Heb. word is rohkim, which is used with more latitude than is the English word “God;” as may be seen by comparing Exo. xxvi. 6, 8, 9, 28 with Ps. lxxiii. 1, 2, 3, 7 and Isa. x. 1—5, to which may be added Heb. ii. 3. “Judges” (whether human, as in Exo. xxii., or 15) human, as in Ps. lxxiii. represent God. It is in this sense the phrase, “messengers of God,” is here used. C. N. T. Appendix on “Messenger”; observing, however, that rohkim, not melchikim, is the word here used.

Some cod. (w. 2 pr. edns., including 1st, 1477) and Syr.: “work” — G.n.

Or: “sineth” (one word); and so in 6 cxpr. edns. (including the first of 1477) but in some Masoretic copies there is a correction calling for two words. If one word, then it may be taken as: “Prob. on original voices for the boys, i.e., to be sung by boys in the style of girls—” Davies, H. L. If two words, possibly is a tune or a choir entitled, “On the death of Ben-” or a son.” Cp. Fuerteb, 215.

Some cod. (w. 2 cxpr. edns., Sep., Syr., Vul.): “words are abandoned” — G.n.

Some cod. (w. 1 cxpr. edn.): “forsook” — G.n.

But Yahweh <unto times age-abiding> will sit,* Ready for judgment is his throne;

And he will judge the world in righteousness, He will minister judgment to peoples, in uprightness.

Thus be Yahweh a refuge for the crushed one. A refuge for times of destitution: * To be known is Yahweh, by the sentence he hath executed,

That thou hast not forsaken the searchers for thee, O Yahweh.

Sing ye praise to Yahweh, who is seated in Zion, Tell among the peoples his doings.

When he was making inquisition for blood— Of them had he remembrance, He forgot not the outcry of the oppressed.*

Shew me favour, O Yahweh! Behold my humiliation due to them who hate me, Lift me on high out of the gates of death;

That I may recount all thy praises, In the gates of the daughter of Zion> may exult in thy salvation.

The nations have sunk in the pit they had made, In the net which they had hidden is caught their own foot.

To be known is Yahweh, by the sentence he hath executed,

By the doing of his own hands is he about to strike down the lawless one.

[Resounding music. Selah.]

The lawless shall return to hades, All nations forgetful of God.

For shall the needy be forgotten,— [Nor] the hope of the oppressed perish for ever.

Rise, Yahweh! let man not prevail, Let the nations be judged before thee.

Appoint, O Yahweh, a terror for them,— Let the nations know,* That they are men. [Selah.

PSALM 10.

1 Wherefore, O Yahweh, shouldst thou stand afar off? Wherefore hide thyself, in times of destitution? * In the pride of the lawless one> he hotly pursueth the poor, Let them be caught in the plots which they have devised!

For the lawless one hath boasted over the longing of his soul, And the robber hath blasphemed Yahweh. f f Or: “endure.”

* Or: “suffer.”

g Or: “deadly.”

h Or: “patient.”

i Or “satisfied.”

j Some cod. (w. 5 cxpr. edns., 1 Robb.): “praise” (sing. — G.n.

k Or: “some awe-inspirming exhibition of power; pass., set them a teacher, master; neither altogether satisfactory” — O.G. 482.

PSALMS X. 4—18; XI; XII. 1—5.

4 The lawless one, in the loftiness of his countenance, will not enquire, God is not in any of his plots; his ways are firm at all times, on high are thy righteous regulations, out of his sight, as for all his adversaries he puffeth at them: He hath said in his heart, I shall not be shaken,—From generation to generation shall I be in misfortune.

7 With cursing his mouth is full, and with deceptions and oppression, are trouble and mischief: He abideth in the lurking-place of villages, in the hiding-places he murderneth the innocent,—

His eyes <for the unfortunate> are on the watch:

He lieth in wait in a hiding-place, like a lion in his covert, lieth in wait to catch the humbled, He catcheth the humbled, by drawing him into his net; He croucheth, he lieth down, then falleth he with his strong claws upon the unfortunate.

He hath said in his heart, God hath forgotten,—He hath veiled his face, Oh he hath never seen!

13 Arise! Yahweh! O God! raise thy hand,—Do not forget the patient!

13 Wherefore hast thou the lawless one blasphemed God? He hath said in his heart, Thou wilt not require [it]!

14 Thou hast seen! For mischief and misery dost discern, To requite with thine own hand, unto thee dost give himself up, to the fatherless hast thou thyself hast become a helper.

Shatter thou the arm of the lawless one, And as for the wrongful wilt thou not enquire for his lawlessness—wilt thou not find [it]?

16 Yahweh is king, to times age-abiding and beyond, The nations have perished out of his land, The longing of the patient thou hast heard, O Yahweh, Thou wilt establish their heart, Thou wilt make attentive thine ear:

To vindicate the fatherless and the crushed, A man of the earth shall [no further] cause terror!

PSALM 11.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 In Yahweh have I sought refuge, How can ye say to my soul, fleeing to a mountain, like a little bird; For I, the lawless, bend the bow, They have fixed their arrow upon the string, To shoot, in the darkness, at the upright in heart:

3 When the pillars are overthrown What could a righteous man do?

4 Yahweh is in his holy temple, As for Yahweh is he in the heavens is his throne, His eyes behold—His eyelashes test the sons of men.

5 Yahweh putteth the righteous to the test,—But the lawless one and the lover of violence—his soul doth hate.

6 He will rain, upon the lawless, live-coals,—Fire and brimstone, and a burning wind are the portion of their cup.

7 For righteous is Yahweh, Righteousness be loveliness, The upright shall behold his face.

PSALM 12.

1 Save Yahweh, For the man of lovingkindness is no more, For the faithful have vanished from among the sons of men.

2 Deception speak they, every one with his neighbour,—With lips uttering smooth things—with a heart and a heart do they speak.

3 May Yahweh cut off All the lips that utter smooth things,—The tongue that speaketh swelling words;

4 Them who say—With our tongue will we prevail Our lips are our own, Who is our master?

5 Because of violence done to the poor, Because of the crying of the needy>

Now will I arise! O may Yahweh say,—I will place [him] in safety—let him puff at him!
PSALMS XII. 6—8; XIII.

The words of Yahweh are words, that are pure,
Silver refined in a crucible of earth,
Purified seven times!

Thou, O Yahweh, wilt keep them,— Thou wilt guard him, from this generation unto times age-abiding.

On every side, the lawless march about,—
When worthlessness is exalted by the sons of men.

PSALM 13.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

How long, O Yahweh, wilt thou wholly forget me?
How long wilt thou hide thy face from me?
How long shall I lay up cares within my soul,
Sorrow in my heart, day by day?
How long shall mine enemy lift himself up over me?

Have regard! answer me, O Yahweh my God,—
Light up mine eyes, lest I sleep on into death;

Lest mine enemy say
I have prevailed over him!
And mine adversaries exult, that I totter.

But I, in thy lovingkindness have put my trust,
My heart shall exult in thy salvation;
I will sing to Yahweh,
For he hath dealt bountifully with me.

PSALM 14.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

The impious hath said’ in his heart—
There is no God!
They have acted corruptly,
They have done an abominable deed,
There is none that doeth good.

Yahweh, <out of the heavens> looked down over the sons of men,—
To see whether there was one that shewed wisdom,
Enquiring after God:—

The whole have turned aside,
Together have they become tainted,—
There is none that doeth good,
Not so much as one!

Are all the workers of iniquity without knowledge?*

Devouring my people, as they devour food!
<Upon Yahweh> have they not called.
There they have been in great dread,*

B. Because is in the circle of the righteous man.

The purpose of the poor ye would put to shame,
Because is his refuge.

Oh that were granted the salvation of Israel!
When Yahweh bringeth back the captives of his people
Jacob shall exult,
Israel shall be glad.

PSALM 15.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

O Yahweh!
Who shall be a guest in thy tent?*
Who shall abide in thy holy mountain?

He that walketh without blame,
And doeth what is right,
And speaketh truth with his heart;

Hath not carried slander on his tongue,
Hath not done his friend a wrong,
Nor  taken up against his neighbour;

Despised in his sight is the reprobate.
But <them who revere Yahweh> he doth honour,
He hath sworn to his neighbour, and will not change;

His silver hath he not put out on interest,
Nor  hath he taken.
He that doeth these shall not be shaken
unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 16.
To the Chief Musician. A Precious Psalm of David.

Preserve me, O God.
For I have sought refuge in thee.

Thou hast said unto Yahweh,
My Lord art thou!
My goodness, mounteth not unto thee.

It belongeth unto the holy ones,
Whom <in his own land> Yahweh ennobleth,
In whom is all his delight.

They multiply their idols,—<another> have they purchased!
I will not pour out their drink-offerings of blood,
Nor will I take up their names on my lips.
PSALMS XVI. 5—11; XVII.; XVIII. 1—7.

5. "Yahweh is mine allotted portion and my cup;
   His art maintaining my lot.

6. The lines have fallen unto me in pleasant places;
   Verily an inheritance that delighteth me.

7. I will bless Yahweh, who hath counselled me—
    Surely <by night> shall mine impulse admonish me.

8. I have set Yahweh before me continually,
    <Because he is on my right hand> I shall not be shaken!

9. Therefore hath my heart rejoiced,
    And mine honour exulted,
    Yes my flesh shall settle down securely;

10. For thou wilt not abandon me to hades,
    Neither wilt thou suffer thy man of loving-kindness,
    To see corruption;

11. Thou wilt cause me to know, the path of life—
    Fulness of joys before thee,
    Pleasures at thy right hand evermore!.

PSALM 17.

A Prayer of David.

1. Hear, O Yahweh, the right,
   Attend to my loud cry,
   Give ear unto my prayer,
   On lips that would not deceive:

2. <From before thee> let my sentence come forth,
   Thine eyes behold with equity.

3. Thou hast tested my heart,
    Hast made inspection by night,
    Hast refined me until thou couldst find nothing,
    Had I devised evil > my mouth should not have transgressed:

4. <As for the workings of men> have I taken heed of the paths of the violent one.

5. Thou hast held fast my goings on thy ways,
    My footsteps have not been shaken:

6. I have called upon thee, for thou wilt answer me, O GoA,— Incline thine ear unto me,
    Hear thou my speech:

7. Let thy lovingkindness be distinguished thou Saviour as of such seek refuge
    From them who lift themselves up against thy right hand.

8. Guard me as the pupil of the eye,<—
    Under the shadow of thy wings wilt thou hide me:

9. From the face of lawless ones who have treated me with violence,
    The foes of my soul, who come round against me:

10. <Their own fat [heart]> have they shut up,—
    With their mouth have they spoken proudly.

11. <As for our own goings> have they surrounded us,—
    Their eyes they fix, bending to the earth:

12. His likeness is as a lion, that longeth to rend,
    And as a young lion, lurking in secret places.

13. Rise, Yahweh! Confront his face,
    Bring him down,
    Deliver my soul from the lawless one [who is] thy sword:

14. From men [who are] thy hand, O Yahweh,
    From the men of this age,
    Whose portion is among the living,
    And <with thy treasure> thou fillest their bosom,—
    They must be satisfied with sons,
    And must leave their abundance to their children:—

15. I <in righteousness> shall behold thy face,<—
    Shall be satisfied when awakened by a vision of thee."

PSALM 18.

To the chief Musician. Of the servant of Yahweh, of David,—who spake unto Yahweh the words of this song,—in the day when Yahweh had rescued him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul; and he said:—

1. I will love thee, O Yahweh my strength!

2. "Yahweh was my mountain crag and my stronghold, and my deliverer:—
    My God was my rock,
    I sought refuge in him,
    My shield, and my horn of salvation, my high tower.

3. <As one worthy to be praised> called I on Yahweh,—
    And from my foes was I saved.

4. The meshes of death encompassed me,
    [The torrents of perdition] made me afraid;

5. The meshes of hades had surrounded me,
    The snares of death had confronted me,

6. <In my distress> called I on Yahweh,
    And unto my God made outcry for help,
    He heard, out of his temple, my voice,
    My outcry for help came before him—entered into his ears!

Then did the earth shake and quake,<—

   Some cod. w. 1 ear. pr. edna.; Sep. Syr. Vul.; "made wonderful"—G.n.

11. I lift: "the manakin of the daughter of the eye."
Even [the foundations of the mountains] were deeply moved,
Yea they did shake, because he was angry.
8 There went up a smoke in his nostrils,
And [a fire out of his mouth] devoured,
[Live coals] were kindled from it:
9 Then he stretched out the heavens, and came down,—
And [thick gloom] was under his feet;
10 Then he rode on a cherub, and flew,
And darted on the wings of the wind;
11 Made darkness his hiding-place,
Round about him—his pavilion,
Darkness of waters, clouds of vapours.
12 <Out of the brightness before him> his clouds rolled along,
Hail [and live coals of fire].
13 Then did Yahweh thunder in [the heavens],
And the Highest uttered his voice,—
Hail [and live coals of fire].
14 And he sent forth his arrows and scattered them,
Yea <lightnings> he shot out, and confounded them.
15 Then appeared' the channels of waters,[c]
Were uncovered' the foundations of the world,—
At thy rebuke, O Yahweh,
At the blast of the breath of thy nostrils.
16 He sent from on high, he took me,—
He drew me out of many waters.
17 He rescued me from my foe, in his might,
And from them who hated me, because they were too strong for me:
18 They confronted me, in the day of my necessity,
Then became Yahweh my stay :
19 And brought me out, into a large place,
He delivered me, because he delighted in me.
20 Yahweh rewarded me according to my righteousness,
<According to the clearness of my hands> he repaid me;
21 For I had kept the ways of Yahweh,
And not broken away from my God;
22 For [all his regulations] were before me,
And <his statutes> did I not put from me:
23 So became I blameless with him,
And kept myself from mine iniquity.
24 Yahweh therefore repaid me according to my righteousness,
According to the pureness of my hands, before
his eyes.
25 <With the loving> thou didst shew thyself loving,—
<With[d] the blameless man> thou didst shew thyself blameless;
26 <With the pure> thou didst shew thyself pure,
But <with the perverse> thou didst shew thyself ready to contend.

27 <As for thee> [an oppressed people] thou didst save;
But [looks that were lofty] layedst thou low;
28 For [thou] didst light up my lamp,
Yahweh my God enlightened my darkness;
29 For <by thee> I ran through a troop,*
And <by my God> I leapt over a wall.
30 <As for God> blameless' is his way,
The speech[b] of Yahweh hath been proved,
A shield' he is' to all who seek refuge in him.
31 For who is a God, save Yahweh!
And who is a Rock, save our God?
32 The Gon'[s] who girded me with strength,
And set forth, as blameless, my way:
33 Planting my feet like hinds'[feet],
Yea <on my[e] high places> he caused me to stand:
34 Teaching my hands to war,—
So that a bow of bronze was bent by mine arms,
35 Thus didst thou grant me, as a shield, thy salvation, —
And [thy right hand] sustained me,
And [thy condescension] made me great.
36 Thou didst widen my stepping-places under me.
So that [my ankles] faltered not.
37 I pursued my foes, and overtook them,
And returned not, till they were consumed:
38 I crushed them, and they were unable to rise,
They fell under my feet.
39 Thus didst thou gird me with strength, for the battle,
40 <As for my foes> thou didst give me their neck,
And <as for them who hated me> I destroyed them.
41 They cried out,
But there was none to save,
Unto Yahweh,
But he answered them not.
42 Then did I beat them in pieces, like dust on the face of the wind.*
<Like the mire in the lanes> did I scatter
them.
43 Thus didst thou rescue me from the contentions of a people,—
Didst appoint me to be the head of nations,
A people I had not known] served me:
44 <At the hearing of the ear> they submitted to me,
The sons of the foreigner] came cringing unto
me:
45 The sons of the foreigner] last heart,
And came quaking out of their fortresses.
46 Yahweh liveth' and [blessed] be my Rock.
Yea [exalted] be the God of my salvation:

PSALMS XVIII. 47—50; XIX.; XX.; XXI. 1. 537

6 The God, who hath avenged me,*—
And subjugated peoples under me:
Who hath delivered me from my foes,—
Yea <from mine assaiants> hast thou set me on high,
<From the man of violence> hast thou rescued me.

8 ||For this cause|| will I praise thee among the nations, O Yahweh,
And <to thy Name> will I sweep the strings:—
Who hath made great the victories of his King,—
And shewn lovingkindness to his Anointed
One,
To David and to his Seed,
Unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 19.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.
1 ||The heavens|| are telling the glory of God,
And <the work of his hands> the expanse*b is declaring;
2 ||Day|| unto day doth pour forth speech,
And ||night|| unto night doth breathe out knowledge.
There is no' speech, and there are no' words,—
Unheard' is their voice !
4 [Yet] <through all the earth> hath gone forth their voice'—
And <to the end of the world> their sayings,—
<For the sun> hath he set up a tent therein;
And <there> is like a bridegroom coming out of his chamber,
He rejoiceth as a hero to run a race:
<From one end of the heavens> is his going forth,
And <his circuits> to the other end thereof,—
And <nothing> is hid from his glowing heat.
The law of Yahweh is complete,
Bringing back the soul,
The testimony of Yahweh is confirmed,
Making wise the simple;
The precepts of Yahweh are right,*
Rejoicing the heart,
The commandment of Yahweh is pure,
Enlightening the eyes;
The reverence of Yahweh is clear,
Enduring evermore,—
The decisions of Yahweh are faithful,
They are righteous altogether;
More desirable than gold
Yea than much fine gold,
Sweeter also than honey,
Or than droppings from the comb.*

11 ||Even thine own servant|| taketh warning by
them,
<In the keeping of them> great is the reward.
12 <Mistakes> who perceiveth?
<From things that are hidden> acquit me:
<Even from the presumptuous> keep back thy servant.
May they not have dominion over me,
Then shall I be blameless,
And shall be acquitted from great’ transgression:
The words of my mouth,
And the soft utterance of my heart.
Shall come with acceptance |before thee|,
O Yahweh, my Rock and my Redeemer !

PSALM 20.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.
1 Yahweh answer’ thee, in the day of distress,
The Name of the God of Jacob’ give thee safety’;
2 Send thy help out of the sanctuary,
And <out of Zion> sustain thee;
3 Remember every present of thine,*
And <ascending-sacrifice> esteem."
[Selah.
4 Give thee according to thy heart,
And <all thy purposes> fulfil.
We will shout aloud in thy salvation,
And <in the Name of our God> shall we become great,*
Yahweh fulfil’ all thy petitions.
6 ||Now|| do I know’ that Yahweh <hath saved>
his Anointed One,—
He answereth him out of his holy heavens,
By the mighty saving deeds of his own right hand.
7 ||These|| by chariots,
And <those> by horses,
But ||we|| <by the Name of Yahweh our God>
Will prevail.*
8 ||They|| have bowed down and fallen,
But ||we|| have arisen, and stand upright.
9 ||Yahweh|| hath saved the king."
Answer us, then, on the day when we call.

PSALM 21.
To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.
1 O Yahweh, <in thy strength> will the king’
rejoice,
And <in thy salvation> how greatly’ will he exult !

2 <The longing of his heart> hast thou given him,
And <the request of his lips> hast thou not withheld.

3 For thou wilt come to meet him, with the blessings of goodness,
Thou wilt set on his head, a crown of pure gold.

4 <Life> he asked of thee,
Thou hast given it him, Length of days, to times age-abiding and beyond.

5 Great is his glory, in thy salvation,
<Honour and majesty> wilt thou lay upon him;

6 For thou wilt appoint him blessings evermore,
Wilt cheer him with joy by thy countenance;

7 For [the king] is trusting in Yahweh,
And <in the lovingkindness of the Highest> shall he not be shaken.

8 Thy hand [will find out] all thy foes,
[Thine own right hand] will find out them who hate thee.

9 Thou wilt make them like a furnace of fire, at the time of thy presence,—
||Yahweh|| <in his anger> will swallow them up,
And there shall consume them a fire:
10 <Their fruit—out of the earth> wilt thou destroy,
And their seed, from among the sons of men;

11 For they have held out, against thee, a wicked thing,
They have devised a scheme< they cannot accomplish.

12 For thou wilt cause them to turn their back,
<Upon thy bow-string> wilt thou make ready against their face.

13 Be exalted, O Yahweh, in thy strength!
With song and with string will we sound forth thy power.

PSALM 22.

1 My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?
Far from saving me,
The words of my loud lamentation?

2 My God! I keep crying—
By day and thou dost not answer,
And night and there is no rest for me.

3 But thou art holy,
Who inhabitest the praises< of Israel.

4 <In thee> trusted our fathers,
They trusted, and thou didst deliver them;
5 <Unto thee> made they outcry, and escaped,<In thee> they trusted, and had not turned pale.

6 But I am a worm and no one,

A reproach of men, and despised of a people;
7 All that see me laugh at me,—
They open wide the mouth,*
They shake the head:—

8 He should trust in Yahweh—let him deliver him,—
Let him rescue him, seeing he delighteth in him.

9 For [though] art he that severed me< from the womb,
He that caused me to trust, upon the breasts of my mother;

10 <Upon thee> was I cast from the time I was born,
<From the womb of my mother> <my God> hast thou been.

11 Be not far from me, for [distress] is near,
For there is none to help.

12 Many bulls have surrounded me,
Strong oxen of Bashan< have enclosed me;

13 They have opened wide against me their mouth,
[A lion] rending and roaring .

14 <Like water> am I poured out,
And <put out of joint> are all my bones,—
|My heart| hath become |like wax|,
It is melted< in the midst of my body ;

15 <Dried as a potsherd> is my strength,<d>
And |my tongue| is made to cleave to my gums,
And <in the dust of death> wilt thou lay me.

16 For dogs have surrounded me,—
An assembly of evil doers< have encircled me,
They have pierced< my hands and my feet,

17 I may tell all my bones.
|They| will look—for—they beheld< me !

18 They part my garments among them,
And <for my vestment> they cast lots.

19 But [though] Yahweh< be not far off,
O my help! <to aid me> make haste ;

20 Rescue <from the sword> my life,<h>
<From the power of the dog> my solitary self ;

21 Save me from the mouth of the lion,—
Yea <from the horns of wild beasts> hast thou delivered me.<k>

22 I will declare thy Name unto my brethren,—
<In the midst of the convocation> will I praise thee.

23 Ye that revere Yahweh, praise him,
|All ye the seed of Jacob| glorify him,

PSALMS XXII. 24—31; XXIII.; XXIV.: XXV. 1—8.

And stand in awe of him, all ye seed of Israel.
Neither hath he hid his face from him,
But when he cried for help unto him he heard.
Of thee is my praise in the great congregation,
My vows will I pay, before them who revere him.
The patient wronged-ones shall eat and be satisfied,
They shall praise Yahweh who are seekers of him,
Let your heart live for n ye.
All the ends of the earth [will remember and turn to Yahweh],
Yea all the families of the nations [will bow themselves down before thee],
Forbelongeth the kingdom,
And One to rule over the nations.
All the great ones of the earth shall eat and bow down,
Before him shall kneel all that go down to the dust,
Even he who had not kept alive his own soul!
My seed shall serve him,
It shall be reckoned, of the Lord, to a generation that shall come,
That his righteousness may be declared to a people to be born,
That he wrought with effect.

PSALM 23.
A Melody of David.

1 Yahweh is my shepherd—I shall not want:
2 In pastures of tender grass he maketh me lie down,
3 My life he restoreth,
He guideth me in right paths for the sake of his Name.
4 Yea, though I walk through a valley death-shadowed,
I will fear no harm, for thou art with me,
Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
5 Thou spreadest before me a table, in face of mine adversaries,
Thou hast anointed, with oil, my head,
My cup hath run over.
6 Surely is goodness and lovingkindness will pursue me, all the days of my life.
And I shall dwell in the house of Yahweh evermore.

PSALM 24.
David's. A Melody.

1 To Yahweh belongeth
The earth and the fulness thereof,
The world, and they who dwell therein;
For the sea hath founded it,
And the currents doth make it firm.
2 Who shall ascend of Yahweh?
And who shall stand in his holy place?
3 The clean of hands,
And pure of heart—
Who hath not uplifted to falsehood, his soul.
Nor sworn deceitfully.
Shall bear away a blessing from Yahweh,
And righteousness from his delivering God.
4 This is the generation of them who inquire of him,
Who seek thy face, O God of Jacob.
[Selah.]
5 Lift up, O ye gates, your heads,
And lift yourselves up, ye age-abiding doors,
That the king of glory may come in.
6 Who is the king of glory?
Yahweh, strong and mighty,
Yahweh, mighty in war.
7 Lift up, O ye gates, your heads,
Yea lift [them] up, ye age-abiding doors,
That the king of glory may come in.
8 Who then is the king of glory?
Yahweh of hosts,
He is the king of glory.
[Selah.]

PSALM 25.
David's. [An Alphabetical Psalm.]

1 Unto thee O Yahweh, my soul would I lift:
2 O my God, have I put my trust,
Let me not be put to shame,
Let not my foes exult over me:
3 Yea let none who wait for thee be put to shame,
Let them be put to shame who act covertly without cause!
4 Thy ways O Yahweh, let me know,
Thy paths teach thou me:
5 Guide me into thy truth and teach me,
For thy art my delivering God,

PSALMS XXV. 6—22; XXVI.; XXVII. 1—6.

1 <For thee> have I waited all the day:*
2 Remember thy compassions, O Yahweh, and thy lovingkindnesses,
For <from age-past times> have they been.
3 <The sins of my youth, and my transgressions> do not thou call to mind,—
<According to thine own lovingkindness> remember <thou> me,
For the sake of thine own goodness, O Yahweh.
4 <Good and upright> is Yahweh,
<For this cause> will he direct sinners into the way.
5 May he guide patient wronged-ones to be righted, 6
And teach such oppressed-ones his way.
6 All the paths of Yahweh are lovingkindness and faithfulness,
To such as keep his covenant, and his testimonies.
7 <For the sake of thy Name> O Yahweh,
Therefore <will thou> pardon mine iniquity,
For great it is.
8 Who' then is the man that revereth Yahweh?
Let him direct him into the way he should choose.
9 His soul <with prosperity> shall tarry,*
And <his seed> shall possess the land.
10 <Intimacy with Yahweh> have they who revere him,
<His covenant also> he letheth them know.
11 Mine eyes <are continually unto Yahweh,—
For <he> bringeth out of the net, my feet.
12 Turn thou unto me, and shew me favour;
For <alone and oppressed> I am.*
13 <The distresses of my heart> hath he relieved,—
And <out of my straits> brought me forth.*
14 Behold my humiliation and my pain,
And take away all my sins.
15 Behold my foes, for they abound,—
And <with the hatred of violence> do they hate me.
16 Oh keep my soul, and rescue me,
Let me not be put to shame, for I have sought refuge in thee.
17 Let <blamelessness and uprightness> watch over me,
Because I have waited for thee.
18 Redeem Israel', O God,—
Out of all his distresses.

PSALM 26.

David's.

1 Do me justice, O Yahweh.
For <[I] in my blamelessness> have walked,

And <in Yahweh> have I trusted,
I will not waver.
2 Try me, O Yahweh, and prove me,
Test my reins and my heart:*
3 For <thy lovingkindness> hath been before mine eyes,
And I have walked to and fro in thy faithfulness;
4 I have not sat with men of deceit,
Nor <with dissemblers> would I enter;
5 I have hated the convocation of evil-doers,
And <with lawless men> would I not sit;
6 I will bathe in pureness, my hands,—
So will I go in procession around thine altar,
O Yahweh;
7 To sound aloud a song,
And to recount all thy wonderful doings.
8 O Yahweh, I have loved the asylum of thy house,
Even the place of the habitation of thy glory!
9 Do not remove, with sinners, my soul,
Nor, with men of bloodshed, my life;
10 In whose hands is a plot,
And <their right hand> is filled with a bribe.
11 But [I] <in my blamelessness> will walk,
Redeem me and shew me favour.
12 My foot standeth in a level place,
<In the convocations> will I bless Yahweh.

PSALM 27.

David's.

1 Yahweh is my light and my salvation,
Of whom shall I be afraid?
2 Yahweh is the refuge of my life,
Of whom shall I be in dread?
3 When there drew near against me evil-doers to devour my flesh>
Mine adversaries, and mine enemies—mine!
—they stumbled and fell!
3 Though there pitch against me—a camp>
My heart shall not fear,—
Though there come up against me—a battle>
Still<e> am I confident.
4 One thing> have I asked of Yahweh,
That> will I seek to secure;—
That I may dwell in the house of Yahweh, all the days of my life,
To view the delightfulness of Yahweh,
And to contemplate in his temple.
5 For he will hide me in his pavilion,* in the day of calamity,—
He will conceal me, in the secrecy of his tent,
Within a rock will he set me on high.
6 Now therefore, shall my head be raised high'
above my foes round about me,

10 <When my own father and mother> had forsaken me>
Then ||Yahweh took me up! b

11 Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way,—
And guide me in a level path,
Because of mine adversaries.

12 Do not give me up unto the desire c of mine adversaries,
For there have risen up against me Witnesses that are false,
And he that fanneth up violence.

13 I believe that I shall see—d
The goodness of Yahweh in the land of the living,*

14 Wait thou for Yahweh,—
Be strong, and let thy heart be bold,
Wait, then, for Yahweh!

PSALM 28.

David’s.

1 <Unto thee, O Yahweh> do I cry,
O my Rock! do not turn in silence from me, f—
Lest <if thou turn from me in silence>
I be like them who go down into the pit.

2 Hear the voice of my supplication,
When I cry to thee for help,
When I lift up my hands toward thy holy shrine.

3 Do not drag me away—
With the lawless,
Or with the workers of iniquity,—
Who speak peaceably with their neighbours,
But wrong is in their heart.

4 Give them According to their deed, and
According to the wrong of their practices,—

<According to the work* of their own hands>
give thou unto them,
Bring back their own dealing to themselves.

5 <Because they heed not>
The Deeds of Yahweh,
Or the Work* of his hands>
He will pull them down, and not build them.

6 Blessed’ be Yahweh,
Because he hath heard the voice of my supplication.

7 Yahweh is my strength and my shield,
<In him> hath trusted my heart, and I have found help,—
Therefore hath my heart danced for joy,
And <with my song> do I praise him.

8 ||Yahweh is strength to his people, b—
And <the all-saving’ refuge of his Anointed One> is he !

9 Oh save thy people,
And bless thine inheritance,
Tend them also, and carry them,
Unto times age-abiding.

PSALM 29.

A Melody of David.

1 Give to Yahweh, ye sons of the mighty,—
Give to Yahweh, [both] glory and strength:

2 Give to Yahweh, the glory of his Name,
Bow down to Yahweh, in the adoration of holiness.

3 The voice of Yahweh is upon the waters,—
The God of glory hath thundered,
Yahweh is upon mighty waters;
4 The voice of Yahweh is with power,
||The voice of Yahweh is with majesty ;
5 The voice of Yahweh is breaking cedars,
Now hath Yahweh [broken down] the cedars of Lebanon !

6 And hath made them leap like a calf,
Lelannon and Sirion, like the bull-calf of wild-oxen ;
7 ||The voice of Yahweh is cleaving out f flames of fire ;
8 The voice of Yahweh bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness;
Yahweh bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness of Kadesh !
9 The voice of Yahweh causeth the gazelles* to bring forth,
And hath stript forests;
And <in his own temple> ||every one there b is saying Glory !

PSALM 30.

1 I will extol thee, O Yahweh,
For thou hast drawn me up,—
And not suffered my foes to rejoice over me.

2 O Yahweh, my God,
I cried for help unto thee,
And thou hast healed me.

3 O Yahweh! thou hast lifted out of hades, my soul,
Thou hast brought me back to life, from among those who were going down to the pit.

4 Sweep the strings to Yahweh,
Ye his men of loving-kindness,
And give ye praise at the mention of his holiness.

5 For there is a Moment in his anger,
Life-time in his good-pleasure,
In the evening cometh Weeping to lodge.
But by the morning tis a Shout of Triumph!

6 But I said in my tranquillity,
I shall not be shaken to times age-abiding.

7 O Yahweh! in thy good-pleasure hast thou caused my mountain to stand strong;—Thou didst hide thy face—I was dismayed!

8 Unto thee, O Yahweh do I cry,—
And unto My Lord do I make supplication:

9 What profit in my blood?
In my going down into the pit?
Can dust praise thee?
Can it declare thy faithfulness?

10 Hear, O Yahweh, and shew me favour,
O Yahweh! become thou a helper unto me.

11 Thou hast turned my lamentation into a dance for me,—
Thou hast torn off my sackcloth,
And girded me with gladness:

12 To the end that mine honour should make melody unto thee, and not be silent.
O Yahweh, my God!
Unto times age-abiding will I praise thee.

PSALM 31.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 <In thee> O Yahweh, have I sought refuge,
Let me not be ashamed, to times age-abiding,
 <In thy righteousness> deliver me:

2 Incline unto me, thine ear, Speedily rescue me,— Become to me a Rock of refuge,
a Place of security,
For saving me.

3 <Because my mountain crag and my stronghold thou art> Therefore <for the sake of thine own Name> wilt thou lead me and guide me?

4 Wilt thou bring me forth, out of the net which they have hidden for me?
For thou art my refuge.

5 Into thy hand do I commit my spirit,—
Thou hast ransomed me, O Yahweh, God most faithful.

6 I hate such as give heed to false vanities,
I then, in Yahweh have set my hope.

7 I will indeed exult and rejoice, in thy loving-kindness,—
In that thou hast looked upon my humiliation,
Thou hast taken note that in distresses was my life;

8 And hast not shut me up in the hand of the foe;
Thou hast given standing, in a roomy place,
Unto my feet.

9 Shew me favour, O Yahweh, for in distress am I,— Wasted with vexation is mine eye—my soul and my body;

10 For consumed with sorrow is my life,
And my years with sighing,—My strength hath staggered with my humiliation,
And my bones are without marrow.

11 By reason of all mine adversaries have I become a reproach,
Even to my neighbours altogether.
And a dread to mine acquaintances,—
They who have seen me abroad have fled from me;

12 I have been forgotten, like one dead—out of mind,
I have been as a missing vessel.

13 For I have heard the whispering of many—
A terror round about:
When they have sat in concave together against me>
To take away my life have they intrigued.

14 <in thee> have put my trust, O Yahweh, I have said “My God thou art’!
15 <In thy hand> are my times, Rescue me from the hand of my foes and from my pursuers!
16 Cause thy face to shine upon thy servant, Save me in thy loving-kindness.
17 O Yahweh! let me not be ashamed, For I have called upon thee, Let the lawless be ashamed, Go down in silence to hades!
18 Let false lips be made dumb,— Which are speaking—against a righteous one arrogantly.
   ||With pride and contempt.||
19 How great is thy goodness, which thou hast hidden away for them who revere thee,— Thou hast wrought for them who seek refuge in thee, In sight of the sons of men.
20 Thou wilt conceal them, in the secrecy of thine own presence, from the conspiracies of men,— Thou wilt hide them in a pavilion, from the strife of tongues.
21 Blessed be Yahweh, For he hath made wonderful his loving-kindness for me, in a fortified city.
22 But ||I|| had said in mine alarm. I am cut off from before thine eyes,— [But, indeed] thou didst hear the voice of my supplication, When I cried for help unto thee.
23 Love Yahweh, all ye his men of loving-kindness,— <Faithfulness> doth Yahweh observe, But repayeth abundantly him that worketh proudly.
24 Be strong, and let your heart be bold, All ye who are waiting for Yahweh.

PSALMS XXXIII. 10—22; XXXIV.; XXXV. 1—5.

10 Yahweh hath frustrated the counsel of nations, hath brought to nothing the devices of peoples.
11 The counsel of Yahweh shall stand,
    The devices of his heart from generation to generation.
12 How happy the nation whose God is Yahweh,
    The people he hath chosen as his own inheritance!
13 Out of the heavens hath Yahweh looked,
    He hath seen all the sons of men:
14 Out of his settled place of abode hath he fixed his gaze
    On all the inhabitants of the earth:
15 Who fashioneth their heart all together,
    Who understandeth all their doings.
16 Not a king can be saved by greatness of force,
    Nor a hero deliver himself by greatness of strength:
17 A deception is the horse for victory,
    And by his great strength shall he not deliver.
18 Lo! [the eyes] of Yahweh is toward them who reverence him,
    Unto such as are waiting for his lovingkindness:
19 To rescue from death, their soul,
    And to keep them alive in famine.
20 Our soul hath waited for Yahweh,
    Our help and our shield is he!
21 For in him shall our heart rejoice,
    For in his holy Name have we trusted.
22 Be thy lovingkindness, O Yahweh, upon us,
    According as we have waited for thee.

PSALM 34.

David's. When he disguised his sanity before Abimelech,—who dismissed him, and he departed. [An Alphabetical Psalm.]

1 Let me bless Yahweh at all times,
   Continually be his praise in my mouth.
2 In Yahweh do I boast my soul,
    The patient oppressed-ones shall hear and be glad.
3 Ascribe ye greatness unto Yahweh with me,
    And let us exult his Name together.
4 Enquired of Yahweh, and he hath answered me,
    And out of all my terrors hath he rescued me.
5 They looked upon him and were radiant;
    And as for their faces let them not be abashed.
6 This oppressed one cried, and Yahweh heard,—
    And out of all his distresses saved him.

PSALM 35.

David's.

1 Contend, O Yahweh, with them who contend with me,
    Make war upon them who make war upon me.
2 Grapple buckle and shield,
    And arise in my help;
3 Then draw the spear, and close up against my pursuers,
    Say to my soul: Thy salvation I am!'
4 Let them be ashamed and confounded,
    Who are seeking my life,—
    Let them turn back and be put to the blush,
    Who are devising my hurt:
5 Let them be as chaff before the wind,
    With the messenger of Yahweh pressing them on:

Let their way become dark and slippery, With: the messenger of YHWH] pursuing them.

For without cause have they hid for me in a ditch, their net,—
Without cause have they dug [a pit] for my life.*

There shall reach him a ruin he could not know,—
Yea || his own net which he hath hidden shall capture him,
Into that ruin shall he fall!
But || my soul shall exult in YHWH,—
Shall be glad in his salvation:
|| All my bones shall say—
O YHWH, who is like unto thee?
Rescuing the oppressed from one stronger than he,
Yea the oppressed and the needy, from their spoiler.

There rise up witnesses helping forward violence and wrong;—
What I know not they demand of me:
They repay me evil for good,
Bereaving my soul.
But as for me when they were sick my clothing was sackcloth,
I humbled, with fasting, my soul,
Though [my prayer] unto mine own bosom might return:
Like as for a friend, like as for a brother of mine own,
I walked to and fro,
As though mourning for a mother I gloomily bowed myself down.

But in mine overthrow have they rejoiced,
And gathered themselves together against me foolish men, and
And I knew it not,
They have torn in pieces, and not been silent;
Amidst profane praters of perversion—
Have they gnashed upon me with their teeth.
My Lord! how long wilt thou look on?
Bring back my soul out of their raging,
From among lions my solitary self.
I will thank thee, in the midst of a great convocation,—
In the midst of a mighty people will I praise thee.
Let not them who are falsely my foes rejoice over me,
As for them who hate me without cause let them not wink the eye!
For <without salutation> will they utter,—
But against the quiet of the land deceitful things do they devise;
Yea they have opened wide against me their mouth,
They have said,
Aha! Aha! our own eye hath seen!!
Thou hast seen, O YHWH, do not keep silence! O My Lord! be not far from me:
Bestir thyself and wake up, to my vindication,
O my God and My Lord!—to my pleas:
Vindicate me according to thy righteousness, O YHWH, my God!
And let them not rejoice over me:
Let them not say in their heart,
Aha! to our mind!
Let them not say,
We have swallowed him up!
Let them turn pale, and then at once’ blush.
Who are rejoicing at my misfortune,—
Let them be clothed with shame and confusion,
Who are magnifying themselves against me.
Let them shout in triumph and rejoice.
Who are desiring my justification;
And let them say continually.
YHWH be magnified, Who hath taken pleasure in the prosperity of his servant.
Mine own tongue also shall softly utter thy righteousness,—
All the day-long thy praise!

PSALM 38.

To the Chief Musician. Of the Servant of YHWH—of David.

Declare’ the transgression of the lawless one, within my heart;* There is no’ dread of God’s before his eyes;
For he flattereth himself [too much] in his own eyes,
To find his iniquity—to hate it.
The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit,
He hath left off to shew discretion by doing well:
Iniquity deviseth he upon his bed,—
He taketh his stand in a way not good
Wrong doth he not abhor!

O YHWH! in the heavens is thy loving-kindness,
Thy faithfulness as far as the fleecy clouds:
Thy righteousness is like mighty mountains.

And thy righteousness, to the upright in heart.
Let not the foot of pride reach' me,
Nor the land of the lawless scare me away.
There' did the workers of iniquity fall,—
Thrust down, and not to arise to strength.

PSALM 37.
David's. [An Alphabetical Psalm.]

1 Burn not with vexation* because of evil-doers,
Be not envyous of the workers of perversity;
For <like grass> soon' shall they wither,
And <like green herbage> shall they fade.

2 Trust in Yahweh, and do good,
Dwell in the land, and feed on fidelity;
Yea, rest thy delight on Yahweh,
That he may give thee the requests of thy heart.

3 Roll on Yahweh thy way,
Trust also in him, and he will effectually work:
So will he bring forth, as the light, thy righteousness,
And thy vindication as the noonday.

4 Be resigned to Yahweh, yea wait with longing for him;
Burn not with vexation
At him who prospereth in his way,—
At the man who doeth wickedness.

5 Cease from anger, and forsake wrath,
Burn not with vexation—[it would be] only to do evil;
For <evil doers> shall be cut off,
But <as for them who wait for Yahweh> they shall inherit the earth.

6 Yet a little therefore,
And the lawless* one shall not be,
Yea thou shalt look about, over his place—
And he shall have vanished!

11 But the patient oppressed-ones shall inherit the earth,*
And shall delight' themselves over the abundance of prosperity.
Plotting' is the lawless one, against the just,
And gnashing upon him with his teeth.
My Lord* shall laugh at him,
For he seeth, that his day' [will come].
<A sword> have, the lawless | drawn out|
And have trodden their bow,—
To bring down the oppressed and the needy,
Their sword shall enter into their own heart,
And their bow shall be broken.
Better' the little of the righteous man
Than the abundance of the lawless who are mighty;
For the arms of the lawless shall be broken,
But Yahweh is upholding the righteous.
Yahweh knoweth' the days of the blameless,
That their inheritance <unto times age-abiding> shall continue.
They shall not be ashamed in the time of calamity,
And in the days of famine shall they be filled.
For the lawless shall perish,
And the foes of Yahweh be like the glory of the meadows,
They have vanished!
In smoke have they vanished!
A lawless man borroweth', and will not repay,
But a righteous man sheweth favour and giveth;
For as such are blessed of him shall inherit the earth,*
But the accursed of him shall be cut off.

23 <From Yahweh> are the steps of a man made firm.
When <with his way> he is well pleased:
Though he fall' he shall not be hurried head-long,
For Yahweh is holding his hand.
Young' have I been, moreover' am old,—
Yet have I not seen
A righteous man forsaken,
Nor his seed begging bread:
All day long is he shewing favour and lending,
His seed' therefore, shall have a blessing.
Turn from evil, and do good,
And so settle down, unto times age-abiding.
For Yahweh loveth justice,
And will not forsake his men of lovingkindness,
Unto times age-abiding have the perversive been destroyed,—
And the seed of the lawless been cut off.

29 The righteous shall inherit the earth, *
That they may settle down, to futurity, thereupon.

30 The mouth of a righteous man softly uttereth wisdom,
And his tongue speaketh justice;
31 The law of his God is in his heart,
His steps shall not swerve.

32 The lawless man lieth in wait for the just,
And seeketh to put him to death:
33 Yahweh will not leave him in his hand,
Nor condemn him, when he is judged.

34 Wait for Yahweh, and observe thou his path,
That he may exalt thee, to inherit the earth;*
On the cutting off of the lawless shalt thou look.

35 I have seen a lawless man, a tyrant,*
And spreading himself out, like a cedar in Lebanon;*
36 Then I passed by, and lo! he had vanished!
Yes I sought him, but he could not be found.

37 Mark the blameless man,
And behold the upright,
For there is a hereafter for the man of peace;*
But transgressors are to be destroyed together,*
The hereafter of lawless men is to be cut off.

38 But the deliverance of the righteous is from Yahweh,
Their refuge in a time of distress.
Thus hath Yahweh helped them,
Thus hath he delivered them; —
He will deliver them from the lawless,
And save them,
Because they have sought refuge in him.

PSALM 38.
A Melody of David. To bring to Remembrance.

1 O Yahweh, do not in thine anger correct me,
Nor in thine wrath chastise me;
2 For thine arrows have sunk down into me,
And thy hand presseth heavily upon me.
3 There is no soundness in my flesh,
By reason of thine indignation,
There is no peace in my bones,
By reason of my sin;
4 For mine iniquities have passed over my head,
Like a heavy burden: they are too heavy for me:
5 My wounds are of bad odour — they have festered,

By reason of my folly:
6 I am bent, I am bowed down very low,
<All the day> have I grieved, walked;
7 For my loins are filled with inflammation,
And there is no soundness in my flesh:
8 I am numbed and crushed exceedingly,—
I have cried aloud because of the groaning of my heart.*
9 O My Lord! (before thee) is all my longing,
And (my sighing) from thee hath not been hid:
10 My heart fluttereth, my strength hath forsaken me,
And (for the light of mine eyes) even they are not with me:
11 My lovers, and my friends <from before my stroke> stand afaroff,
And (my near ones) far away do stand;
12 Yea they who are seeking my life have threatened engulfing ruin,
And deceitful things — all day long — do they mutter.
13 But if I shall die, will not hear,—
And as one dumb, who will not open his mouth:
14 Thus have I become as a man who cannot hear,
In whose mouth are no arguments:
15 Because (for thee) O Yahweh, have I waited,
Thou wilt answer, O Adonay,* my God!
16 For I said Lest they rejoice over me!
<When my feet were tottering> against me they have magnified themselves:
17 For I <to halt> am ready,
And my pain is before me continually;
18 For mine iniquity will I declare,
I shall be anxious because of my sin;
19 And my foes are alive — have become strong —
And multiplied are they who hate me for false cause:
20 Even they who are repaying evil for good — accuse me because I pursue the good.
21 Do not forsake me, O Yahweh!
My God! be not far from me:
22 Make haste to help me,
My Lord, my deliverance!

<While I was musing > there was kindled a fire,
I spake with my tongue!

4 Let me know, O Yahweh, mine end,
And the measure of my days—what it is,
I would know how short-lived I am.

5 Lo! <as hand-breadth> hast thou granted my days,
And ||my life-time|| is as nothing before thee,— Surely  are all men, {even} such as stand firm.a
[Selah.

6 <Surely as a shadow > doth every man wander,
<Surely in vain> do they bustle about,
He heareth things up, and knoweth not who shall gather them in.

7 ||Now|| therefore, for what have I waited, O My Lord?°
||My hope|| is ||in thee||.

8 <<From all my transgressions> rescue thou me,—
||The reproach of the base> oh do not make me!
9 I am dumb. I cannot open my mouth,
For ||thou|| hast done it.
10 Remove from off me thy stroke,
<Because of the hostility of thy hand> am ||I;|| consumed.
11 ||When ||by rebukes for iniquity ||thou hast corrected a man>
Then hast thou consumed° as a moth, all that was delightful within him,
Surely  are all men. {Selah.

12 Hear my prayer, O Yahweh,
And <unto my cry for help> give ear,
<At my tears> do not be silent,—
For  am ||I|| with thee,
A stranger, like all my fathers°.
13 Look away from me, that I may brighten up,
Ere yet I depart and am no more.

PSALM 40.
To the Chief Musician. David’s. A Melody.b

1 I ||waited patiently|| for Yahweh,—
And he inclined° unto me, and heard my cry for help;
2 So he brought me up
Out of the destroying° pit,
Out of the swampy° mire,—

And set, upon a cliff, my feet,
Making firm my steps:
3 Then put he, into my mouth, a new song,
Praise to our God,—
Many shall see and revere,
And shall trust in Yahweh.

4 How happy the man
Who hath made Yahweh his confidence,
Who hath not turned unto the haughty,
Nor gone aside unto falsehood.

There is no° setting them in order unto thes—
I would tell, and would speak !—
They are too great to rehearse.a

delight,
And ||thy law|| is in the midst of mine
inward parts :
I have told the good-tidings of righteousness in
a great conversation,
Lo! <my lips> do I not restrain,
O Yahweh, ||thou|| knowest:

midst of my heart,
||Thy faithfulness and thy salvation>° have I spoken,
I have not concealed thy loving-kindness and thy truthfulness from the° great convo-

11 ||Thou, O Yahweh|| wilt not restrain thy com-passions from me,
||Thy loving-kindness and thy truthfulness|| shall continually’ watch over me.
12 For there have closed in upon me, misfortunes beyond number,
Mine iniquities have overtaken° me, and I cannot see,
They have become more than the hairs of my
head,
And ||my courage|| hath forsaken me !

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 How happy is he that is attentive to the poor,
In the day of calamity will Yahweh deliver him:
Yahweh will preserve him and keep him alive.
And he shall be pronounced happy in the land,
Do not then give him up at the desire of his enemies!
Yahweh will sustain him upon the bed of sickness,
All his couch hast thou transformed in his disease.

PSALM 42.

To the Chief Musician. An Instructive Psalm for the Sons of Korah.

<As if> the heart cometh panting up to the channels of water>
So my soul panteth for thee, O God.
My soul thirsteth for God, for a God who liveth;—
When shall I enter in, and see the face of God?
My tears have been my food all day and night,
While it hath been said unto me all the day,
Where is thy God?

4 These things I keep calling to mind, and pouring out, over me, my own soul,
For I used to cross over with a crowd.
Lead them in procession up to the house of God,
With the voice of shouting and praise.—a throng keeping festival]]

Why shouldst thou be cast down, O my soul?
And why shouldst thou low mood over me?
Wait thou for God, for yet shall I praise him,
As the triumph of my presence.

PSALM 44.

To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. An Instructive Psalm.

1 O God! <with our own ears> have we heard,
   Our fathers have recounted to us,—
The work thou didst work
   In their days,
   In the days of aforetime:
2 Thou thyself, with thine own hand—
   Didst dispossess [nations],
   And didst plant them;
   Didst break peoples in pieces,
   And didst spread them' out:
3 For <not by their own sword> got they possession of the land,
   Nor did [their own arm] win victory for them,—
   But thine own right hand, and thine own arm,
   And the light of thy face,
   Because thou hadst accepted them.
4 Thou thyself [art my king, O God,
   Command thou the victories of Jacob.
5 <By thee> will we thrust at [our adversaries];
   In thy Name> will we tread down our assailants;
6 For <not in my bow> will I trust,
   Nor shall [my sword] give me victory;
   For thou hast saved us from our adversaries,
   And [them who hated us] hast thou put to shame.
7 In God> have we boasted all the day,
   And [thy Name—unto times age-abiding] will we praise. [Selah.
8 But nay [thou hast rejected] and confounded us,
   And wilt not go forth with our hosts;
9 Thou sufferest us to turn back from the adversary,
   And [they who hate us] have plundered at will:
10 Thou dost give us up like sheep to be devoured,
   And amongst the nations> hast thou scattered us.
11 Thou dost sell thy people for [no-value],
   And hast not made increase by their price.
12 Thou dost make us
   A reproach to our neighbours,
   A mockery and a derision' to them who are round about us:
13 Thou dost make us
   A by-word among the nations,—
   A shaking of the head' among the peoples.
14 <All the day> is my confusion before me,
   And the shame of my face hath covered me:

PSALM 48 a

1 Vindicate me, O God, and plead my cause.
   Against a nation [without lovingkindness],
   From the man of deceit and perversity> wilt thou deliver me?
2 For art my defending' God—
   Wherefore' hast thou rejected me?
   Wherefore' in gloom' should I wander, because of the oppression of an enemy?
3 Send forth thy light and thy faithfulness,
   Let [them] lead me;
   Let them bring me into thy holy' mountain,
   And into thy habitations:
4 That I may go in unto the altar of God,
   Unto God, mine exultant joy,—
   That I may praise thee with the lyre.
   O God—mine own God!

At the face of the foe and avenger.

17 ["If all this"] hath come upon us,
Yet had we not forgotten thee,
Neither had we dealt falsely' with thy covenant;
Our heart had not drawn back,
Nor had our going* swerved from thy path;
That thou shouldest have crushed us down' in

We have been accounted as sheep for slaughter.b

23 Awake thou! wherefore' shouldest thou sleep,
O Lord!? Bestir thee! do not reject us altogether!
24 Wherefore' shouldest thou hide [thy face]? Shouldst skilled.

2 Most beautiful thou art, beyond the sons of men,
Graciously hast been poured forth by thy lips,
[For this cause] hath God blessed thee, to times age-abiding.

3 Girl thy sword upon thy thigh, O mighty one,
[Tish] thine honour and thy majesty;
And [in] thy majesty > be successful! ride
forth!
On behalf of faithfulness, and humility—
righteousness,
And let thine own right hand show thee wonderful things.

5 ["Thine arrows"] are sharp—
["Peoples"] <under thee> fall!
In the heart of the foes of the king.

6 ["Thy throne, O God"] is to times age-abiding and beyond,
[<A sceptre of equity>]b is the sceptre of thy kingdom.
7 Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated lawlessness,—
[For this cause] hath God, thine own God,

10 Hearken, O daughter, and observe,
Incline also thine ear,
Forget, then, thine own people,
And the house of thy father;
11 When the king shall desire thine beauty,
Surely
, is thy lord, then bow down to him.
12 Also ["the daughter of Tyre"] [cometh in] with a present!
["Thy face"] shall the rich of the people

14 [In embroidered raiment] shall she be brought unto the king,—
[The virgins that follow her, her companions] are to be conducted unto thee:
15 They shall be brought, with rejoicings and exultation,—
They shall enter into the palace of the king!

PSALM 46.
To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah, on Alamoth. A Song.

1 [God—for us] is a refuge and strength,
A help in distresses, soon found. b
2 [For this cause] will we not fear,
Though the earth's withers change,
Or the mountains' slip into the heart of the seas:
3 The waters thereof roar and foam,
The mountains tremble with the swelling thereof. c

[Selah.]

4 A river! whose channels shall gladden the city of God,
The Most High hath hallowed his habitation.
5 [God] is in the midst of her, she shall not be shaken,
God will help her, by the turnings of the morning.
6 Nations have roared,
Kingsdoms have tottered,
He hath uttered his voice. Earth melteth.
7 [Yahweh of hosts] is with us,
<A high tower for us is the God of Jacob.>

[Selah.]

8 Come! view the doings of Yahweh,—
Who hath set desolations in the earth;
Caus ing wars to cease unto the end of the earth,—
The bow he shivered,
And breaketh in pieces the spear,
War-chariot burneth he up with fire.
9 Let be! and know that [I am God],
I will be exalted among the nations,
I will be exalted in the earth.
10 Yahweh of hosts] is with us,
A high tower for us is the God of Jacob.

[Selah.]

PSALM 47.
To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

1 All ye peoples, clap your hands,
Shout unto God, with the voice of triumph;
2 For Yahweh—as Most High— is to be revered,
A great king, over all the earth;
3 He will subjugate
Peoples under us, and
Tribes of men beneath our feet.

4 He chooseth for us our inheritance,
The excellence of Jacob, which he hath loved.

[Selah.]

5 God hath ascended with a shout,
Yahweh, with the sound of a horn.
6 Sing praises unto God, sing praises,
Sing praises to our King, sing praises;
7 For God is the king of all the earth,
Sing praises with understanding.
8 God hath become king over the nations,
[God] hath taken his seat upon his holy throne.
9 The willing-hearted of the peoples have gathered themselves together,
The people of the God of Abraham;
For <to God> belong the shields of the earth,
Greatly is he exalted.

PSALM 48.
A Melodious Song. For the Sons of Korah.

1 Great is Yahweh, and worthy to be mightily praised,
In the city of our God, His holy mountain.
2 [Beautiful in elevation, the joy of all the land]—
Is Mount Zion, in the recesses of the north,—
The city of a great king.
3 God in her palaces >is to be known as a high tower.
For lo! [Kings]—
Met as appointed,
Passed by together;
4 They themselves saw,
So were they amazed,
Dismayed—they hurried away!
5 Trembling seized them [there],
[Pangs] like hers who is in travail.
6 With an east wind> wilt thou shatter the ships of Tarshish.
7 <Just as we had heard> [So] have we seen,
In the city of Yahweh of hosts,
In the city of our God,
God himself will establish her, unto times age-abiding. [Selah.

9 We have thought, O God, upon thy loving-kindness,
In the midst of thy temple:
10 According to thy Name, O God>
[So] be thy praise, unto the ends of the earth,
<With righteousness> is thy right hand filled.

[Or: “whom.”]
[Or: “earth.”]
[Or: “earth.”]
[Prob. the refrain of verses 7 and 11 has fallen out from here.]
PSALMS XLVIII. 11—14; XLIX.; L. 1—3. 553

11 Let Mount Zion rejoice,
Let the daughters of Judah exult,
Because of thy judgments.

12 Go round Zion, and compass her about,
Reckon up her towers;
13 Apply your mind to her rampart;
Pass between her palaces,
That ye may recount them to an after generation;
14 For [this] God is our God, to times age-abiding and beyond,
[He himself] will conduct us till death.

PSALM 49.
To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody.

Hear ye this, all ye peoples,
Give ear, all ye inhabitants of this passing world;—
Both sons of the low And sons of the high,—
Together' both rich and needly,—
My mouth shall speak forth Wisdom,
And the soft utterance of my heart be Understanding:
I will bend, to a by-word, mine ear,
I will open, on the lyre, mine enigma.
Wherefore should I fear in the days of calamity,
Though the iniquity of them who lie in wait for me should enclose me?
As for them who are trusting in their wealth,—
And in the abundance of their riches do boast themselves—
<A brother> can none of them redeem;
He cannot give unto God a ransom for himself;
So costly is it in the redemption of their soul.
That it faileth unto times age-abiding;
That he should [yet] live on continually,
Should not see corruption.
For it is seen that [the wise] die,
Together with the dullest and the brutish:
do they perish,
And leave, to others, their wealth:
Their [inward thought] is that their houses are for times age-abiding,

12 But a son of earth, though wealthy, cannot tarry,
He hath made himself a by-word—
<Beasts> they resemble!
13 [This] their way: it is folly to them,
And yet [their followers] with their mouth approve.
[Selah.]
14 Like sheep—into hades—are they driven,
[Death] shall shepherd them,—
And the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning.
[Even] their form: it is to decay,
Hades is all that remaineth of a habitation for him.
But [God] will redeem my soul, out of the hand of hades,
For he will take me.
[Selah.
16 Do not fear
When a man becometh rich,
When the glory of his house increaseth;
For <when he dieth> he shall take nothing,
His glory' shall not descend after him;
And <though <his own self>—while he lived> he used to bless,
And they will praise thee, when thou doest well to thyself>—
He shall enter as far as the circle of his fathers,
Nevermore shall they see the light.
19 A son of earth though wealthy, who discerneth not:
Hath made himself a by-word,
<Beasts> they resemble!

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. When Nathan the Prophet had come to him, after he had gone in unto Bath-sheba.

1 Be favourable unto me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness, And in the multitude of thy compassions blot out my transgressions;

2 Thoroughly wash me from mine iniquity, And from my sin make me pure;

7 Wilt thou cleanse me from sin with hyssop, That I may be pure? Wilt thou wash me, That I may be whiter than snow? Wilt thou cause me to hear joy and gladness? The bones thou hast crushed would exult.

8 Hide thy face from me, — And all mine iniquities — blot out; And <in a pure heart> create me, O God, And <in a steadfast spirit> renew within me.

The sacrifices of God are a spirit that is broken,
<A heart—broken and crushed> O God, thou wilt not despise.

Do good, in thy good-pleasure, unto Zion,
Wilt thou build the walls of Jerusalem!

Then shalt thou desire the sacrifices of righteousness,
Ascending-sacrifice and whole burnt-offering.

Then shall ascend upon thine altar, young bulls.

PSALM 52.

To the Chief Musician. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When Doeg the Edomite went, and told Saul; and said to him, David hath entered the house of Ahimelech.

Why dost thou boast thyself of wickedness, O mighty man?
The loving-kindness of God lasteth all the day.

Engulfing ruin doth thy tongue devise,
Like a whetted razor, working deceit;
Thou lovest Evil more than good,
Falsehood, more than speaking righteousness.

Thou lovest all devouring words, O deceitful tongue!

God also will break thee down utterly,
He will snatch thee up and tear thee away tenfold,
And uproot thee, out of the land of the living.

The righteous shall both see and fear,
And <over him> shall laugh:
Lo! the man who made not God his refuge,
But trusted in the abundance of his riches,
Emboldened himself in his wealth!

But I am like a flourishing olive-tree, in the house of God,
I have put confidence in the loving-kindness of God, for times age-abiding and beyond.

I will praise thee to times age-abiding.
Because thou didst effectually work,

And I will wait on thy Name,
Because it is good,
In the presence of thy lovingkindness.

PSALM 53.

To the Chief Musician. On "Mahalath," A Psalm of Instruction, of David.

The impious hath said in his heart,
There is no God!
They have acted corruptly,
They have wrought abominable perversity,
There is none that doeth good;

God looked down upon the sons of men,
To see whether there was one that shewed wisdom,
Enquiring after God.
They all have turned back,
Together have they become tainted,
There is none that doeth good,
Not so much as one!

Are the workers of iniquity without knowledge?
Devouring my people, [as] they devour food?
Upon God have they not called.

There have they been in great dread where no dread was,
Because God hath scattered the bones of thy besieger,
Thou hast put [him] to shame,
Because God had rejected them.

Oh that were granted the salvation of Israel!
When God bringeth back the captives of his people:
Jacob shall exult, Israel shall be glad.

PSALM 54.

To the Chief Musician: with Stringed Instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When the Ziphites came and said unto Saul, Is not [David] hiding himself with us?

O God! <by thine own Name> save me,
And <by thine own strength> wilt thou vindicate me?

Gl. "utter," or "proclaim"—G.n.
Some cod.: "man" (sing.)—G.n.
"Appar. a catchword in a song, giving name to tune"—O.G. 319.
In some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns. [1 Robb.]. Aram. Sep., Syr., Vul.): "Are all the workers." Cp. Ps. xiv. 4—G.n.
Some cod. (w. 1 ear. pr. edn.): "Yahweh." Cp. Ps. xiv. 4—G.n.
Ml.: "dreaded a dread.
In some MSS, is found the verse:—
"The purpose of the poor ye would put to shame, Because Yahweh is his refuge."
Cp. Ps. xiv. 6—G.n.
Ml.: "captivity."
O God! Hear my prayer,
Give ear to the sayings of my mouth;
For the aliens have risen up against me,
And the men of violence have sought my life.
They have not set God before them. [Selah.

Lo! [God] is bringing me help,
My Lord! is with the upholders of my life;
Let him turn back the mischief upon mine adversaries,
In thy faithfulness destroy them!

With a freewill-offering will I sacrifice unto thee,
I will praise thy Name, O Yahweh, for it is good;
For out of all distress hath he rescued me,
And upon my face hath mine own eye looked.

PSALM 55.
To the Chief Musician: with stringed instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David.

Give ear, O God, to my prayer,
And do not hide thyself from my supplication:
Attend unto me, and answer me,
I may ramble in my complaining,
And be driven to and fro—
Because of the noise of the enemy,
By reason of the oppression of the lawless one,
For they would let trouble drop upon me,
And in anger would they entrap me.
My heart would writhe within me,
And the terrors of Death have fallen upon me:
Fear and trembling would enter me,
And there would have overwhelmed me—a horror!

Then I said—
Oh that there were given me a pinion, like a dove,
I would fly away and be at rest:*
Lo! I would take a distant flight,
I would tarry in the wilderness. [Selah.

I would hasten mine escape,
From rushing wind, from storm.
Confuse, O My Lord, divide their speech,
For I have seen violence and contention in the city;
Day and night they go round her, upon her walls,
And trouble and misery are in her midst;

Engulfing ruin is in her midst,
And there depart not from her broadway, oppression and deceit.
For it is not an enemy that reproacheth me,
Or I could bear it,—
Not one that hath hated me, who against me hath magnified himself,
Or I might hide myself from him;
But it is [thou], a man esteemed as mine equal,
Mine associate, and mine acquaintance;
So that together have we been wont to find sweetness in counsel,
In the house of God used we to walk in the throng.

Desolations on them!*
Let them go down into hades alive,
For wicked doings are at home within them.
[I] unto God will cry,—
And Yahweh will save me.
At evening and morning and high noon have I been wont to lament and complain,
And he hath heard my voice!
He hath completely redeemed my soul, out of the attack upon me,
In multitudes were they [in conflict] with me.
God will hear,
Yea He will humble them who aforesaid sat enthroned. [Selah.

With whom are no changing,
Neither have they revered God.
He hath thrust forth his hands, against them he was wont to salute,
He hath violated his covenant;
Smother than curses were [the words of] his mouth,
But was [in] his heart,—
Softer his words than oil;
Yet they were drawn swords!
Cast upon Yahweh thy lot, and he will sustain thee:
He will not suffer to times ago-abiding, the righteous one to be shaken.
But [thou], O God, wilt bring them down to the pit of destruction,
Men of bloodshed and deceit shall not live out half their days;
But I will trust in thee.

So written, which Davies (II. L. 429) thinks better: but read: "Let death pounce or exact upon them." The latter is both written and read in some cod. (w. 9 ear. edn. Aram. Sep. Syr. Vul. G.n.

PSALM 56.

To the Chief Musician. Upon "The Dove of God from the distant Sea."—David’s. A precious Psalm. When the Philistines seized him in Gath.

1 Shew me favour, O God, For weak man hath panted for me, All the day a fighter oppresseth me: Mine adversaries have panted all the day, For many are fighting with me [loftily].

2 <What day I am afraid> I unto thee will direct my confidence. In God I will praise his cause;—In God I have trusted, I will not fear, What can flesh do unto me?

3 All the day they wrest [my words], Against me they all their devices are for mischief; They stir up strife—they lie hid, They mark my steps,—Seeing they have waited for my life.

4 <Because of iniquity> recompense thou them,—In anger bring thou down [the peoples], O God. My wandering hast thou recorded,—Put thou my tears in thy bottle, Are they not in thy record?

5 Then shall my foes turn back, in the day I cry, This I know, for God is mine!

6 In God will I praise with good cause: In Yahweh will I praise with good cause:

7 In God have I trusted, I will not fear, What can a son of earth do unto me?

8 Upon me O God, are thy vows, I will pay back praises unto thee.

9 For thou hast rescued my soul from death, With not [rescue] my feet from stumbling, That I may walk to and fro, before God, In the light of life.

PSALM 57.

To the Chief Musician. "Do not destroy." A precious Psalm [of David]. When he fled from the face of Saul into the Cave.

1 Shew me favour, O God, Show me favour, For in thee hath my soul sought refuge,—

2 So Fuerst. "Prob. name of an old song or music Silent dove among those far away"—Davies’ H.L. "Prob. name of melody: To the dove of distant terribith [based on a various reading]"—O.G. 401.

3 Or: "praise because of him." 4 U.: "soul." 5 Meaning doubtful; but with a different reading of "there is no deliverance for them"—G.n.

6 Or: "that." 7 "strangely: contr. exvi. s,":—O.G. 530.

8 So according to some authorities. "Meaning unknown."—O.G.

12 Lawless men have been estranged’ from birth, They have gone astray’ from their nativity, speaking falsehood;

13 Or: "I will sing, and touch the strings. Awake, mine honour, Awake, harp and lyre, I will awaken the dawn; I will thank thee, among the peoples, O My Lord, I will praise thee in song, among the races of men.

14 For unto the heavens is thy loving-kindness, And unto the skies thy faithfulness.

15 Be exalted above the heavens, O God, Above all the earth, thy glory!

PSALM 58.

To the Chief Musician. "Do not Destroy." A precious Psalm [of David].

1 Are ye indeed silent [when] righteousness ye should speak? When with equity ye should judge, O ye sons of men?

2 Aye! ye all do work [perversity],—Throughout the land [your hands] weigh out violence.

3 Lawless men have been estranged from birth, They have gone astray from their nativity, speaking falsehood;

4 Or: "lute"—O.G.

5 Heb.: adonay.

6 Or: "I will sing, and touch the strings. Awake, mine honour, Awake, harp and lyre, I will awaken the dawn; I will thank thee, among the peoples, O My Lord, I will praise thee in song, among the races of men.

7 For unto the heavens is thy loving-kindness, And unto the skies thy faithfulness.

8 Be exalted above the heavens, O God, Above all the earth, thy glory!
Awake, to visit all the nations,
Do not shew favour to any iniquitous traitors.

They return at evening,
They grovel like a dog,
And go round the city.

Lo! they belch forth with their mouth,
Sword is in their lips.
For [say they]: Who doth hear?
Thou therefore, O Yahweh, wilt laugh at them,
Thou wilt mock at all nations.
O my Strength [b] unto thee will I make melody,
For [God] is my high tower.
My God of lovingkindness [d] will come to meet me,
[God] will let me look on mine adversaries.
Do not slay them, lest my people forget;
Cause them to wander by thy strength, and prostrate them,
[Thou] our shield, O Lord is [s].
The sin of their mouth,
The word of their lips>
Let them then be captured in their pride,
Both for the oath and for the deception they record.
Bring to a full end in wrath,
Bring to a full end, that they be no more,—
That men may know that [God] is ruling in Jacob,
Unto the ends of the earth.

Let them return, then, at evening,
Let them grovel like a dog,
And go round the city.

They may prowl about [b] for food,—
And [if they are not satisfied] then let them whine!
But [I] will sing thy power,
And will shout aloud, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,—
For thou hast become a refuge for me,
And a place to flee to in the day of my distress.
O my Strength, unto thee will I make melody,
For [God] is my high tower, my God of lovingkindness.

From them who lift themselves up against me—
Wilt thou set me on high?
Rescue me, from the workers of iniquity,
And from the men of bloodshed—
For lo! they have lain in wait for my life,
Mighty ones stir up strife against me,
Without transgression of mine, and without sin of mine, O Yahweh;

PSALM 60.

To the Chief Musician. Upon “The Lily of Testimony.” A precious Psalm of David, to instruct. When he waged war with Aram-naharaim, and with Aram-zobah, and then Joab returned and smote of Edom in the Valley of Salt, twelve thousand.

1 O God, thou hast rejected us—hast scattered us, Thou hast been angry, Wilt thou restore us?

2 Thou hast shaken the land—hast rent it, Heal thou the fractures thereof—for it hath tottered:

3 Thou hast suffered thy people to see hardship, Thou hast let them drink the wine of confusion.

4 Thou hast given—to them that revere thee—a banner, to float aloft,* Because of [thy] faithfulness. [Selah.]

5 [Selah.]

6 [God] hath spoken in his holiness— I will exult! I will asperse Shechem, And <the Vale of Succoth> will I measure out;

7 <Mine> is Gilead—and <mine> Manasseh, But [Ephraim] is the defence of my head; [Judah] is my commander's staff;

8 [Moab] is my wash-bowl, <Upon Edom> will I throw my shoe. h Over! Philistia! raise a shout of triumph.

9 Who will conduct me to a fortified city?

10 Who will lead me as far as Edom?

If it is not [thou], O God!—thou hast rejected us! And wilt thou not go forth, O God, with our hosts?

11 Grant us help out of distress, For <vain> is the deliverance of man:

12 [In God] we shall do valiantly, [He himself!] therefore, will tread down our adversaries.

PSALM 61.

To the Chief Musician. Upon a Stringed Instrument. David's.

1 Hear, O God, my loud cry, Attend' unto my prayer:

2 <From the end of the earth> unto thee do I cry, When my heart fainteth away,

3 For thou hast been A Refuge to me, A Tower of Strength, from the face of the foe.

4 I would be a guest in thy tent to the ages, I would seek refuge in the concealment of thy wings. [Selah.

5 For thou hast hearkened to my vows, Thou hast granted a possession, unto them who revere thy Name.

6 <Days>—unto the days of the king wilt thou add. <His years> as of generation after generation:

7 Let him retain his seat age-abidingly before God, Appoint that lovingkindness and faithfulness may watch over him!

8 So will I sing thy Name unto futurity, Paying my vows, day by day.

PSALM 62.

To the Chief Musician. On Jeduthun—A Melody of David.

1 Surely向着我的心灵[beconeth] my soul, <From him> is my salvation:

2 Surely[he] is my rock and my salvation, My high tower—I shall not be greatly shaken!

3 How long will ye shout at a man? Ye shall be crushed all of you,— Like a wall that bulgeth,—a fence pushed in!

4 Surely <from his elevation> they have taken counsel to thrust him down, They accept falsehood,—

5 <With his mouth> they each of them bless, But <inwardly> they revile. [Selah.

6 Surely向着我的心灵[be thou silent, my soul, From from him] is mine expectation:

7 Surely[he] is my rock, and my salvation, My high tower—I shall not be shaken!

* Some cod. <w. Aram., Sep., Vul.> “on stringed instruments” [pl.—G.n.]

Or: “into the city of Mazor.” “Mazor seems to be a district in Northern Arabia” — P.L.L. Paul Haupt in P.B. Lit.: “hath led,” but in Ps. cviii. 14: “will lead.”

* Prob.: “be enthroned.”

So Ben-Asher, many MSS., and 7 ear. pr. edns.; but Ben-Naphthali, w. 2 ear. pr. edns., has: “Ye would all crush.” [The Masoretic cautions vary]—G.n.

* Prob.: “to be exalted.”

* Prob.: “to be on earth.”

* Some cod. <w. Pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Vul.> both write and read: “me”—G.n.

* Some cod. <w. Pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Vul.> both write and read: “me”—G.n.
7 <Upon God> [depend] my salvation and mine honour,
My rock of strength, my refuge: are in God.
8 Trust ye in him all ye assembly of the people,*
Pour out, before him, your heart.
God is a refuge for us. [Selah.
9 Surely <vain> are men of low degree,
<Deception> men of high degree;—
In the balances they go up,
They are [made] of vanity [altogether].
10 Do not trust in extortion,
Nor <with robbery> become vain,—
[As for wealth] <when it beareth fruit>.
Do not set [thereon] your heart.
11 <One thing> hath God spoken,
<Two things> [there are] which I have heard,
That <power> belongeth unto God;—
12 And <thine>, O My Lord, is lovingkindness,—
For <thou> wilt pay back unto every man—
according to his deed.

PSALM 63.

A Melody of David. When he was in the Wilderness of Judah.

1 O God, <my God> thou art*,
Earnestly do I desire thee,—
My soul thirsteth for thee,
My flesh fainteth for thee,
In* a land—dry, and weary for want of water,—
2 <In like manner> as | in the sanctuary | I have had vision of thee>
To behold thy power and thy glory.
3 <Because better is thy lovingkindness than life>
My lips* aloud shall praise thee !
4 Thus* will I bless thee while I live,
<In thy Name> will I lift up mine outspread hands:
5 <As with fatness and richness> shall my soul
be satisfied,
And <with joyfully shouting lips*> shall my mouth utter praise.
6 <Should I call thee to mind upon my couch>
<In the watches of the night> would I breathe soft speech of thee.
7 For thou hast become a help unto me,—
And | in the shadow of thy wings> will I shout for joy.4
8 My soul hath run clinging to thee,
<On me> hath thy right hand laid hold.
9 <When || they || to crush it | would seek my life>—
They shall go into the lower parts of the earth:
10 Every one shall be given up into the power of the sword,
The portion of jackals> shall they become.

*Some cod. (w. 6 ear. pr. edns.): "all men seen"—G.n.
Some critics read: "To thee is praise becoming"—O.g. 199.

11 But <the king> shall rejoice in God,—
Every one shall glory who sweareth by him,
For the mouth of them who speak falsehood shall be stopped!.

PSALM 64.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

1 Hear, O God, my voice when I complain,
<From dread peril by the foe> wilt thou guard my life.
2 Wilt thou hide me.
From the concave of evil-doers,
From the crowd of workers of iniquity.
3 Who have sharpened, like a sword, their tongue,
Have made ready their arrow—a bitter word;
4 To shoot, in secret places, at the blameless one,
Suddenly thee shoot at him, and fear not.
5 They strengthen for them a wicked word.
They talk of hiding snares.
They have said, Who can see them?
6 They devise perverse things,
They have completed the device well devised,
Both the intent of each one, and the mind are unsearchable.
7 <Once let God have shot at them an arrow>
Suddenly have appeared their own wounds!
8 <When they were to have ruined another> their tongue smote themselves,
All who observe them take flight.
9 Therefore have all men feared,—
And have told the doing of God,
And <his work> have considered.
10 The righteous man shall rejoice in Yahweh,
And seek refuge in him,
Then shall glory— all who are upright in heart.

PSALM 65.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David—a Song.

1 Thine* are silence [and] praise,* O God, in Zion,—
And <to thee> shall be paid the vow.
2 Thou hearer of prayer !
<Unto thee> shall all flesh come.

3 Iniquitous things* have been too strong for me,
<As for our transgressions> wilt || thou | by propitiation remove them.
4 How happy the man thou shalt choose and bring near!
He shall abide in thy courts,—
PSALMS LXV. 5—13; LXVI.; LXVII. 1—3.

We shall be satisfied with
The blessing of thy house,
The holiness of thy temple.

5 By things reverend in righteousness wilt thou answer us,
O God of our salvation,
The confidence of all the ends of the earth,
And of the sea far away;

6 Who setteth fast the mountains by his strength,
Being girded with might;

7 Who stilleth
The noise of the seas,
The noise of their rolling waves, and
The tumult of races of men?

8 Yea the dwellers in the uttermost parts have feared at thy tokens,
The goings forth of morning and evening thou causest to shout for joy.

9 Thou hast visited the earth, and made it abound,
<Abundantly> dost thou enrich it—
The channel of God, is full of waters,
Thou preparest their corn,
Yea thou hast prepared it:

10 <The ridgeth thereof> drenching,
Setting the furrows thereof,
<With myriad drops> dost thou soften it,
<The sprouting thereof> dost thou bless.

11 Thou hast set a crown upon thy year of bounty,
And thy tracks! drop fatness;*

12 Fruitful are the pastures of the wilderness,*
And <with exultation> the hills do gird themselves.

13 Clothed are the pastures with flocks,
The valleys also cover themselves with corn,
They shout for joy, yea they sing.

PSALM 66.
To the Chief Musician. A Melodious Song.*

1 Make a joyful noise unto God, all the earth;
2 Praise ye in song the glory of his Name,
Celebrate the glory of his praise:

3 Say unto God—
How fearful in thy doings,
<Through the abounding of thy power> shall thy foes come cringing unto thee;

4 All the earth shall bow themselves down to thee,
And sing praises unto thee.
Shall praise in song thy Name. [Selah.

5 Come and see the doings of God,—
Fearful in deed toward the sons of men;

6 He turned the sea into dry land,
<Through the stream> crossed they over on foot,
There! did we rejoice in him:

7 Who ruleth, in his might, unto times age-abiding,
||His eyes | over the nations| keep watch,
<The rebellions> let them not exalt themselves.

8 Bless our God * O ye peoples,
And cause to be heard, the sound of his praise:—

9 Who hath set our soul among the living,
And hath not suffered ||our foot| to slip.

10 For thou didst prove us, O God,
Thou didst refine us, according to the refining of silver:

11 Thou didst bring us into the hunter's net,
Thou didst lay a load upon our loins;

12 Thou didst let men ride at our head; *
We went into fire and into water,
But thou didst bring us forth into freedom.*

13 I will enter thy house with ascending-sacrifices,
I will pay unto thee my vows,
14 Which my lips uttered,
And my mouth spake, in my distress.

15 <Ascending-sacrifices of fatlings> will I cause to ascend unto thee,
With the perfume of rams,
I will offer bulls, with he-goats. [Selah.

16 Come! hearken — that I may recount, all ye reverers of God,
What he hath done for my soul:—

17 <Unto him>—with my mouth > I did cry,
And high praise was under my tongue.

18 <If iniquity> I had cared for in my heart>
My Lord [had not heard me] !

19 ||But in truth|| God hath heard,
He hath attended to the voice of my prayer.

20 Blessed be God,
Who hath not turned away my prayer'
Nor his own lovingkindness' from me.

PSALM 67.
To the Chief Musician. With stringed Instruments. A Melody,* a Song.

1 ||God|| be favourable to us and bless us,
Cause his face to shine upon us. [Selah.

2 That thy way* may be known throughout the earth,
<Throughout all nations> thy saving help!*

To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody, a Song.

1. Let God arise, let* his enemies be scattered!,
   Yea let them that hate him flee before him; b
   As smoke is driven about |
   Let them be driven about,—
   As wax is melted before a fire |
   Let the lawless perish before God.

2. But let | the righteous | be glad, let them exult

   But ep. Fuerst, 1149, after Kimchi.
   "a mountain of God,"

   Or: "look ye askance,"
   Or: "The Lord hath come from Sinai into the Sanctuary."—G.n. "The sense is perfectly plain when we resort to the primitive orthography
   "—O. Intro. 52.

   "The God we have,"
   And due to Yahweh, My Lord; are escapes from death."

   Yea | God himself! will smite through the head of his foes,—
   The hairy crown of him that is marching on in his guilty deeds.

   22. Said My Lord,
   From Bashan! will I bring back,—
   I will bring back from the depths of the sea:
PSALMS LXVIII. 23—33; LXIX. 1—17.

23 That thou mayest bathe thy foot in blood,—
||The tongue of thy dogs|| <from the foes> hath its portion.

24 They have seen thy progress b O God,
The progress of my God, my king into the sanctuary:

25 In front are the singers;—
Behind ^ are the harpers,
In the midst of damsels playing on timbrels:

26 <In the congregations> bless ye God,
My Lord, from among the called^ of Israel:

27 There is Benjamin, the Diminutive—ruling them,
The princes of Judah—their throng,
The princes of Zebulun,
The princes of Naphtali.

28 Thy God hath commanded thy strength,—
The strength. O God, which^ thou hast wrought for us.

29 <Because of thy temple above Jerusalem>—
<Unto thee> shall kings bear along a gift—
Rebuke thou
The wild beasts of the reeds,
The herd^ of mighty oxen among the calves of the peoples—
Each one bowing down^ with bars of silver,—
Scatter thou the peoples, who in wars take delight.

31 Ambassadors come out of Egypt,
The Ethiopian eagerly stretcheth out his hands unto God.

32 Ye kingdoms of the earth: sing unto God,
Praise in song Adonay; — [Selah.

33 Unto him that rideth upon the most ancient heavens; —
Lo! he uttereth his voice, a voice of strength.

34 Ascribe ye strength unto God,—
<Over Israel> is his majesty,
And his strength, in the skies.
To be revered is God, for his sanctuary.—

35 <As for the God of Israel> is his covenant giving strength and abundant might to the people.
Blessed be God!

PSALM 69.
To the Chief Musician. On "The Lilies." David's.

Save me, O God,
For waters have entered as far as the life; —

2 I have sunk in a deep swamp,
Where there is no place to stand,
I have come into abysses of waters,
Where a flood hath overflowed me;

3 I am weary with mine outcry,
Parched is my throat,—
Mine eyes have become dim, through waiting for my God.

4 <More than the hairs of my head>—
Are they who hate me without cause,—
<Fixer than my bones>—
Are they who are my foes for false' cause,—
<What I had not plundered> ||then||^ had I to restore.

5 O God, ||thou|| hast known my folly,
And ||my wrong-doings|| <from thee> have not been hid.

6 Let them not be ashamed, through me,
Who have waited for thee, O My Lord,
Yahweh of hosts,—
Let them not be confounded, through me,
Who are seeking thee, O God of Israel!

7 Because <for thy sake> have I borne reproach,
Confusion hath covered my face;

8 <One estranged> have I become, to my own brethren,
Yea, <an alien> to the sons of mine own mother;

9 Because ||zeal for thy house|| hath eaten me up,
And ||the reproaches of them who have reproached thee||^ have fallen upon me.

10 <When I have humbled my soul with fasting>,—
Then hath it turned to my reproach;

11 <When I have made my clothing of sackcloth>:
Then have I served them by a word;

12 They who sit in the gate talk against me,—
And [against me are] the songs of them who imbibe strong drink.

13 But <as for me> my prayer shall be unto thee, O Yahweh, in a time of acceptance,
O God <in the abounding of thy lovingkindness> answer me with thy saving' faithfulness.

14 Rescue me out of the mire, lest I sink,
Let me be rescued from my haters, and
From abysses of waters:

15 Let not a flood of waters overflow me,
And let not the depth swallow me up, —
Neither let the well close, over me, her mouth.

16 Answer me, O Yahweh, for good' is thy lovingkindness,
<According to the abounding of thy compassion> turn thou towards me:

17 Then do not hide thy face from thy servant,
<Because I am in distress> haste thee—answer me!

PSALMS LXIX. 18—36; LXX.: LXXI. 1—8.

18 Oh draw near unto my soul—redeem it,
   Because of mine enemies> ransom me.
19 Thou knowest my reproach, and my shame,
   and my confusion,
   are all mine adversaries.
20 Reproach hath broken my heart, and I am weak.
   Though I waited for one to pity me* yet there was none,
   and I found not any.
21 But they put in my food—poison!
   For my thirst> they gave for my drink—venger!
22 Let their table, before them, become a snare,
   And unto their friends, a lure;
23 Let their eyes become too dim to see,
   And their loins continually cause thee to shake;
24 Four out over them thine indignation,
   And let the glow of thine anger overtake them
25 Let their encampment become desolate,
   Be there none to dwell in:
26 For whom thou thyself hast smitten—pursued,
   And unto the pain of thy wounded ones—must needs add.
27 Lay punishment on their iniquity,
   And let them not enter into thy righteousness;
28 Let them be blotted out of the book of life,
   With the righteous let them be enrolled.
29 I am humbled and in pain,
   Thy salvation, O God> may it set me on high.
30 I will praise the Name of God with a song,
   And will magnify him with thanksgiving;
31 So shall it be more pleasing to Yahweh than a bullock of the herd.
32 The humble have seen—they rejoice!
   Ye seekers of God, let your heart, then, revive;
33 For a hearken to the needy> is Yahweh,
   And his prisoners> hath he not despised.
34 Let the heavens and the earth praise him,
   The seas, and everything that creepeth therein.
35 For God> will save Zion,
   And build the cities of Judah,
   Shall men dwell there, and possess it:
36 Ye the seed of his servants> shall inherit it.
   And the lovers of his Name shall settle down therein.

PSALM 70.

To the Chief Musician. David's. To call to Remembrance.*

1 If pleased> O God, to rescue me,
   O Yahweh, to help me—make haste.
2 Let them turn pale and then at once blush,
   Who are seeking my life,—
   Let them draw back, and be confounded,
   Who are taking pleasure in my misfortune;
3 Let them turn back, on account of their own shame,
   Who are saying> Aha! Aha!
4 Let all them be glad and rejoice in thee,
   Ye let them who are seekers of thee—say continually> God> be magnified!
   Who are lovers of thy salvation.
5 But I> being humbled and needy>
   O God, haste to me,—
   My help and my deliverer> art thou,
   O Yahweh do not tarry.

PSALM 71.*

1 In thee, O Yahweh> have I sought refuge,
   May I not be ashamed unto times age-abiding;
2 In thy righteousness> wilt thou rescue me
   and deliver me,
   Incline unto me thine ear, and save me:
3 Be thou unto me a Rock to dwell in,
   A Place of Security. To save me,
   For my mountain crag and my stronghold
   thou art.
4 Oh my God, deliver me
   From the hand of the lawless one,
   From the clutch of the perverse and ruthless one;
5 For art my hope,
   My Lord, Yahweh,
   My confidence from my youthful days:
6 Upon thee> have I stayed myself from birth,
   Thou art he that seid me> from the body
   Of thee> shall be my praise—continually.
7 A very wonder> have I been unto many,
   Seeing that thou hast been my strong refuge.
8 My mouth shall be filled with thy praise,
   With thy splendour.

BOOK THE THIRD.

PSALM 78.
A Melody of Asaph.

1 [Nothing but good] is God
Unto Israel,
Unto the pure in heart.

2 But <as for me>—
My feet had [almost stumbled],
My steps had [well-nigh slipped];

3 For I was envious of the boasters,
<At the prosperity of the lawless> used I to look.

4 For they have no pangs in their death,
And vigorous is their body;*

5 <Of the toil of weak mortals> have they none,
Nor <with the sons of earth> are they hard smitten.

6 <For this cause> doth arrogance deck them
as a neck-chain,
And a garment of wrong is their attire;

7 Their iniquity * [hath proceeded from fatness]
They have surpassed the imaginations of the heart;

8 They mock, and wickedly command oppression,
<From on high> they command;
They have set, in the heavens, their mouth,
And [their tongue] marcheth through the earth.

9 Therefore must his people return * thither,
And [the waters of abundance] are drained * by them;

11 And they say—
How doth God know?—
And is there knowledge in the Most High?

12 Lo! [these] are the lawless,
Who are secure for an age,*
They have attained unto wealth.

13 <Altogether in vain>—
Have I cleansed my heart,
And bathed in pureness, my hands;
And yet been smitten all the day,
And been rebuked morning by morning!

15 <If I had thought> I will relate it thus>—
Lo! <the circle of thy sons> had I betrayed.

16 <When I reasoned, that I might understand this>
[A vexation] it was in mine eyes:

17 Until I could enter the holy places of God,—
Could give heed to their hereafter:—

19 Surely * <in slippery places> dost thou set them,—
Thou hast suffered them to fall into places of danger.

22 How have they become desolate, as in a moment!
They have ceased—come to an end, by reason of calamities.

29 <As the dream of him that waketh>—
O My Lord! <when rousing thyself up>—
<Their shadowy being> wilt thou despise.

* Or: "such." — O.G. 666.

"The text is untranslated... prob. blest,... for... the like of these things..." — O.G. 666.

"Their semblance" — O.G.
PSALMS LXXIII. 21—28: LXXIV. 1—23.

21 But my heart had grown embittered, a
And in my reins b had I received wounds;
22 But if I was brutish, and could not perceive,
Like the beasts c had I become before thee.
23 Nevertheless if I am continually before thee,
Thou hast taken hold of my right hand;
24 By thy counsel wilt thou guide me,
And afterwards wilt thou take me.

25 Whom have I in the heavens?
And compared with thee there is nothing I desire upon earth.
26 Faded have my flesh and my heart,
The rock of my heart—and my portion—is
God unto times age-abiding.
27 For lo! they who are far from thee shall perish,
Thou hast put an end to every one who wandered unchastely from thee.
28 But as for me c the drawing near of God is my blessedness—
I have made of My Lord Yahweh my refuge,—
That I may recount all thy works.

PSALM 74.
An Instructive Psalm. Asaph’s.

1 Wherefore, O Lord, hast thou cast off utterly?
Shall thine anger smoke against the flock of thine own pasturing?
2 Remember thine own assembly thou didst acquire aforesight,
Thou didst redeem the tribe of thine own inheritance,
Mount Zion, wherein thou didst take up thy habitation.
3 Lift up thy steps unto the places utterly unsafe;
All the mischief!—the foe in the sanctuary!
4 Thine adversaries have warred in the midst of thine appointed meeting,
They have set their ensigns as tokens!
5 One used to be known according as he carried up high—
Into the thicket of trees—the axes;
6 But aforesight [the doors thereof all together]
With axes and hammers they batter down.
7 They have cast into the fire thy sanctuary,
The ground have they profaned the habitation of thy Name.

8 They have said in their heart,
Let us suppress them altogether,
They have burned up all the meeting-places of God in the land.
9 Our own signs have we not seen,—
There is no longer a prophet,—
Neither is there with us, one who knoweth—
How long!
10 How long, O Lord, shall the adversary reproach? a
Shall the enemy revile thy Name perpetually?
11 Wherefore shouldst thou withdraw thy hand—
Thy right hand? [Bring it] out of the midst of thy bosom!

12 But [God] hath been my king from aforetime,
Working Deliverances in the midst of the earth.

13 Thou didst cleave asunder, in thy might, the sea,
Thou didst break in pieces the heads of the Crocodiles, [till they floated] on the waters;
14 Thou didst crush the heads of the Sea-Monster.
Thou didst give him to food for the people of the deserts;
15 Thou didst cleave open fountain and torrent,
Thou didst dry up rivers of steady flow:
16 Thine is the day, Yea thine the night,
Thou didst establish moon and sun;
17 Thou didst set up all the bounds of the earth,
As for summer and winter thou didst form them!
18 Remember this,
[An enemy] hath reproached Yahweh,
Yea an impious people have reviled thy Name.
19 Do not deliver up to a wild beast, the life of thy turtle-dove,
The living host of thine oppressed ones do not forget perpetually.
20 Have respect to thy covenant,
For the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of violence.
21 May the crushed one not again be confounded,
As for the oppressed and the needy let them praise thy Name.
22 Arise! O Lord, plead thine own cause,
Remember the reproach of thee, from the impious one, all the day:
Do not forget the voice of thine adversaries,
The noise of thine assailants; ascending continually.

PSALM 75.

To the Chief Musician. "Do not Destroy." A Melody of Asaph, a Song.

1 We have given thanks unto thee, O God, we have given thanks, And <in calling upon thy Name>* men have recounted thy wonders.

2 Surely I will take a set time,—
   [II] <with equity> will judge;
   <Earth> was melting away with all its inhabitants;
   [II] I have fixed the pillars thereof. [Selah.]

4 I have said to the boasters, Do not boast,
   And to the lawless, Do not lift up a horn;
   Do not lift up on high your horn, Nor speak of the Rock * with arrogance;
   For neither from east nor west, Nor from the wilderness of the mountains [cometh exaltation];
   For [God himself] is about to judge, <One> he will cast down, <Another> he will lift up;
   For [a cup] is in the hand of Yahweh, Whose wine is foaming, It is full of spiced wine, Which he hath caused to flow from one to another;—
   Surely <the dregs thereof> they shall drain out—they shall drink, Even all the lawless ones of the earth.

5 But [II] will exult * unto times age-abiding, I will sing praises unto the God of Jacob;

6 But <all the horns of the lawless> will I hew off,— Exalted' shall be the horns of the Righteous One.

PSALM 76.

To the Chief Musician. With Stringed Instruments. A Melody of Asaph, a Song.

1 God is *known in Judah,
   In Israel > great' is his Name;

2 | Now hath come into Salem | his pavilion,
   And his dwelling-place into Zion.

3 | There hath he broken in pieces the arrows of the bow,
   Shield and sword, and battle. [Selah.]

4 <Enveloped in light> || thou art more majestic than the mountains of prey.
   The valiant of heart have become a spoil.
   They have slumbered their sleep, And none of the men of might have found their hands.

5 <At thy rebuke> O God of Jacob, Stunned' are the horsemen.*

6 <As for thee> to be feared thou art!
   Who then shall stand before thee, because of the power of thine anger?
   Out of the heavens didst thou cause judgment to be heard,
   Earth feared and was still:

7 When God' rose up to judgment,
   To save all the oppressed * of the earth. [Selah.]

8 For the multitude of mankind shall give thanks unto thee,
   The remainder of the multitude shall keep holy festival unto thee.

9 | | Vow and pay, unto Yahweh your God,—
   Let || all who are round about him||
   Bear a gift unto him who is to be revered.

10 He cutteth off the spirit of nobles.
   He is of reverend majesty to the kings of the earth.

PSALM 77.

To the Chief Musician. On "Jeduthun": Asaph's, a Melody.

1 <With my voice—unto God> will I make outcry,*
   With my voice unto God, and he will give ear unto me;

2 <In the day of my distress—unto My Lord> will I seek,
   My hand <by night> hath been outstretched, and never once became slack,
   My soul hath refused to be consoled;

3 I remember God and I murmur,
   I muse, and my spirit swooneth'. [Selah.

4 Thou hast held, watching mine eyes,
   I was driven to and fro, and could not speak;

5 I reasoned Of the days of aforetime,
   Of the years of by-gone ages;

6 I remember my song * in the night,—
   <With my own heart> I commune,
   And my spirit || maketh search;—

7 <For ages> will My Lord' reject?

9 Hath God forgotten to shew favour? Or hath he shut up, in anger, his compassion? [Selah.

10 Then said I—
<An affliction to me> it is; The changing of the right hand of the Most High.

11 I will remember the doings of Yah, Surely I will remember, out of aforesaid, thy wonderful way; And will talk to myself of all thy work, And of thy doings will I muse:—

12 O God, <in the sanctuary> is thy way, Who is a great God like Elohim! Thou art God, doing wonderfully,—Thou hast made known, among the peoples, thy might; Thou didst redeem, with thine arm—Thy people, Thy sons of Jacob and Joseph. [Selah.

16 The waters saw thee, O God, The waters saw thee, They were in birth-throes, Yea the resounding deeps were stirred; The clouds [poured down waters], The skies uttered [a voice], Yea [thine arrows] flew hither and thither; The [voice of thy thunder] was in the whirlwind, Thy lightnings illumined the world, The earth trembled and quaked; <In the sea> was thy way, And [thy path] in the mighty waters, And [thy footprints] could not be known; Thou didst lead, like a flock, thy people, By the hand of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM 78.

An Instructive Psalm. Asaph's.

1 Give ear, O my people, to mine instruction, Bend your ear to the sayings of my mouth; I will open, in a parable, my mouth, I will pour forth enigmas out of antiquity;—Which we have heard, and come to know, And our fathers have recounted to us; We will not withhold [them] from their children, <To a later generation> recounting the praises of Yahweh, Even his might and his wonders which he wrought;

5 When he set up a testimony in Jacob, And  appointed in Israel,—Which he commanded our fathers, That they might make them known to their children;
6 To the end A later' generation [might come to know], Children who should be born, Who should arise, and recount [them] to their children; That they might set in, in Elohim, their confidence,—And not forget the doings of El, But <his commandments> might observe;—And not become, like their fathers, a generation stubborn and rebellious, A generation that fixed not his heart, Neither was their spirit' [faithful with' God], [The sons of Ephraim—armed bowmen] Turned in the day of battle; They kept not the covenant of God, And <in his law> refused to walk; And forgot [his doings], And his wonders which he had shewed them:
12 <In presence of their fathers> wrought he wondrously,"—In the land of Egypt—the field of Zoa:
13 He clave the sea, and caused them to pass through, And roared up the waters like a mound; And led them, by a cloud, in the daytime, And all the night, by a light of fire; He used to cleave rocks in the desert, And let them drink as out of a mighty deeps; And he brought forth streams out of the cliff, And caused waters to flow down, like rivers.
17 But again', once more' sinned they against him, Resisting the Most High in a land of drought: They put God to the proof in their heart, By asking food to their mind; And they spake against Elohim,—They said, Can God prepare a table in the desert? Lo! he hath smitten a rock, And waters [have gushed out], Yea [torrents] have rushed along,—<Food also> can he give? Or provide flesh' for his people?
21 [Therefore] Yahweh hearkened, and became wroth,—And [as fire] was kindled against Jacob, Moreover also [anger] mounted against Israel; Because They believed not in God, Nor trusted in his salvation;
22 Though he had commanded the skies above, And <the doors of the heavens> had opened;
And had rained on them manna to eat,
And the corn of the heavens had given to them:

The food of the mighty each one did eat,
Nourishment sent them to the full;

He let loose an east wind in the heavens,
Then guided he, in his might, a south wind;

And rained upon them flesh as the dust,
And like the sand of the sea birds of wing;

And let them fall in the midst of their camp, —
Round about their habitations.

So they did eat and were abundantly filled,
When what they longed for he had brought them:

They had not turned away from what they had longed for,
Yet was their food in their mouth.

When the anger of God mounted against them,
And he slew of their vigorous youths,

And the choice young men of Israel caused he to bow down in death.

For all this sinned they still,
And believed not in his wonders;

So he ended, in a breath, their days,
And their years, in a sudden terror!

If he slew of them then they sought him,
Yea they turned, and did earnestly seek God;

And remembered that Elohim was their rock,
Yea El Most High their Redeemer:

So they spake him fair with their mouth,
And with their tongue did promise him falsely:

But their heart was not fixed with him,
Nor were they trusty in his covenant:

Yet full of compassion would put a propitiatory-covering over iniquity, and not destroy,—

Yea many a time turned he back his anger,
And would not stir up all his wrath.

So then he remembered
That Flesh they were.

A Wind departing, that returneth not.

How often they resisted him in the desert,
Vexed him, in the waste:

Yea they again put God to the test,
And the Holy One of Israel caused they sorrow:

They remembered not his hand — The day
When he ransomed them from the adversary:

When he set, in Egypt, his signs,
And his wonders, in the plain of Zoan;

When he turned, into blood, their Nile-streams,
And their own rivers could they not drink:

He sent among them
The gad-fly, and it devoured them,
And the frog, and it despoiled them;

When he gave to the corn locust their produce,
And their toil, to the swarming locust:

He killed, with hail, their vine,
And their sycomores, with frost:

When he gave up, to hail-storms, their beasts,
And their cattle, to pestilent fevers:

He sent among them the heat of his anger,
Wrath and indignation and distress,—

A mission of messengers of misfortune:

He levelled a path for his anger,—
Withheld not, from death, their soul,
But their life—to the pestilence he delivered:

So he smote
Every first-born in Egypt,

The beginning of their strength,
In the tents of Ham;

And he set forth, like sheep, his people,
And guided them, like a flock in the desert:

Yea he led them securely, and they dreaded not,
And the seas did cover.

Then brought he them within his own holy bounds,
The mountain-range, which his right hand made his own:

So he drew out, before them, [ whole] nations,
And allotted them, by line, an inheritance,
And caused to dwell, in their own homes,
the tribes of Israel.

But they tested and resisted God Most High,
And his testimonies did not observe;

But drew back and dealt treacherously, like their fathers,
They turned aside, like deceitful bowmen:

And provoked him to anger with their high places,
And with their images used to move him to jealousy.

God hearkened and was wroth,
And greatly abhorred Israel:

So he gave up the habitation of Shiloh,
The tent he had set up among men:

Yea he gave up, into captivity, his strength,
And his beauty into the hand of an adversary:

And delivered up, to the sword, his people,
And with his own inheritance he was wroth;

His young men were devoured by fire,
And his virgins were not praised in song;

His priests by the sword did fall,
And his widows were not able to bewail.

Then awoke, as one that had slept, Adonay,
As a warrior exulting with wine:

So he smote his adversaries in the rear,

Reproach age-abiding laid he upon them.

Rescue us then, and put a propitiatory-covering over our sins, For the sake of thy Name.

Wherefore should the nations say— Where is their God? Let him be known among the nations before our eyes!

[Yes! by] the avenging of the blood of thy servants which hath been shed!

Let the groaning of the prisoner come in before thee,— According to the greatness of thine arm> Set free them who are appointed to death. —

Return, therefore, unto our neighbours— Sevenfold, into their own bosom, The reproach wherewith they have reproached thee, O Adonáy! —

So [we, thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture] will give thanks unto thee, to times age-abiding,— To generation after generation> will we recount thy praise.

PSALM 79.
A Melody of Asaph.

1 O God, nations Have entered thine inheritance, Have profaned thy holy temple, — Have laid Jerusalem in heaps:
2 They have given The dead bodies of thy servants, As food for the birds of the heavens, The flesh of thy men of lovingkindness, Unto the wild beast of the earth:
3 They have poured out their blood like water Round about Jerusalem, With none' to bury.
4 We have become A reproach to our neighbours,— A mockery and a derision, to them who are round about us.
5 How long, O Yahweh, wilt thou be angry utterly? Shall thy jealousy burn like fire? —
6 Pour out thy wrath Upon the nations that have not known thee, — And Upon the kingdoms that <on thy Name> have not called.
7 For he hath devourèd Jacob,— And <his dwelling-place> have they laid waste.
8 Do not remember against us former iniquities,— Hasten thee, let thy compassions come to meet us! — For we have been brought very low! —
9 Help us, O God of our salvation. On account of the glory of thy Name, —

1 Shout ye for joy unto God our strength,
Sound the note of triumph to the God of Jacob;

PSALM 83.

A Song, a Melody of Asaph.

1 O God, Do not keep quiet,
Do not hold thy peace,
Neither be thou still, O God!
2 For lo! ||thine enemies|| are tumultuous,
And ||they who hate thee|| have lifted up the head;
3 Against thy people> they craftily devise a secret plot,
And conspire against thy treasured ones.
4 They have said—
Come, and let us wipe them out from being a nation,
That the name of Israel may be remembered no more.
5 For they have taken counsel with one heart,
<Against thee — a covenant> would they solemnise—
6 The tents of Edom, and the Ishmaelites,
Of Moab and the Hagarenes;
7 Gebal and Ammon, and Amalek,
The Philistines, with the dwellers in Tyre;
8 [Even Assyria] hath joined herself with them,
They have become an arm to the sons of Lot.

[Selah.

9 Make them like Midian,
Like Sisera, like Jabin, by the torrent of Kishon;* 10 They perished at En-dor,
They became manure for the soil !
11 Make them—<their nobles—like Oreb and like Zeeb,
And <like Zebah and like Zalmunna> all their princes; e
12 Who said—
Let us take a possession for ourselves
The pastures of God !

13 O my God, make them
As whirling [dust],
As chaff before a wind ;
14 Like a fire burneth a forest,—

My heart and my flesh|| shout aloud for a Living God.
3 Even the sparrow has found a house,

Still are they praising thee.  [Selah.
5 How happy the men whose strength is in thee,

Give hear, thou God of Jacob.  [Selah.
9 [Our Shield:] behold thou, O God,
And look upon the face of thine Anointed One. 4 10 For better' is a day in thy courts, than a thousand,

in the house of my God,
Than to dwell in the tents of lawlessness.
11 For ||a sun and shield|| is Yahweh God,—
<Grace and glory> will Yahweh give,
He will not withhold what is good, from them who walk without blame.
12 O Yahweh of hosts !
How happy the man who trusteth in thee !

5 To times age-abiding wilt thou be angry with us? Wilt thou prolong thine anger, from generation to generation?
6 Wilt not thy self again give us life, That thy people may rejoice in thee.
7 Show us, O Yahweh, thy lovingkindness, And salvation wilt thou grant us.
8 I will hear what God—Yahweh—will speak,— For he will bespeak prosperity to his people, And to his men of lovingkindness, And to them who return with their heart unto him.
9 Surely near unto them who revere him is his salvation, That the glory may settle down in our land.
10 Lovingkindness and faithfulness have met together, Righteousness and prosperity have kissed each other;
11 Faithfulness out of the earth doth spring forth, Righteousness out of the heavens hath looked down.

PSALM 86.

A Prayer. David's.

1 Bow down, O Yahweh, thine ear—answer me, For oppressed and needy am I;
2 O guard my life For a man of lovingkindness am I,— Save thy servant, O Yahweh, My God, [Thy servant] who trusteth in thee;
3 Show me favour, O My Lord, For unto thee do I cry, all the day;
4 Rejoice the soul of thy servant, For unto thee O My Lord thy soul do I lift.
5 For thou, O My Lord, art good and forgiving, And abundant in lovingkindness! to all who call upon thee.
6 Give ear, O Yahweh, unto my prayer, And attend unto the voice of my supplications.
7 In the day of my distress will I call upon thee, For thou wilt answer me.
8 There is none like unto thee, among the gods, O My Lord, And nothing like works.

9 All nations whom thou hast made— Shall come in and bow down before thee, O My Lord, That they may glorify thy Name.
10 For great' thou art, and dost wondrous things, Thou, O God, of thyself alone.
11 Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way, I will walk steadfastly in thy truth, My heart will rejoice to revere thy Name.
12 I will give thee thanks, Adonai, my God, with all my heart, And will glorify thy Name unto times age-abiding.
13 For thy lovingkindness is great towards me, And thou hast rescued my soul from Hades beneath.

14 O God, the insolent have arisen against me, And the assembly of tyrants have sought my life,
15 And have not set thee before them.
16 But thou, O My Lord, art A God of compassion and favour, Slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness and faithfulness!
17 Turn thou unto me, and shew me favour,— Give thy strength to thy servant, And save the son of thy handmaid.
18 Perform with me a token for good,— That they who hate me may see and be ashamed, In that thou, Yahweh, hast helped me and comforted me.

PSALM 88.

A Song, a Melody. For the Sons of Korah. To the Chief Musician. On the "Malahath."* For alternate Song. An Instructive Psalm. By Heman the Ezrahite.†

1 O Yahweh, God of my salvation,*
By day have I made outcry,
In the night [also] before thee.
2 Let my prayer [come into thy presence],
Bow down thine ear to my loud cry.
3 For my soul is sated with misfortunes,
And my life unto Hades hath drawn near;
4 I am counted with them who descend into the pit,
I have become as a man that is without help;
5 Among the dead is my couch,—
Like the slain that lie in the grave,
Where thou rememberest them no more,
Yea [they] from thy hand are cut off;
6 Thou hast laid me in the lowest pit,
In dark places, in the deeps;
7 Upon me hath rested thine indignation,
And with all thy breakers hast thou caused affliction. [Selah.
8 Thou hast far removed mine acquaintances from me,—
Thou hast made me an abomination unto them,<Shut up> and I cannot go forth!
9 Mine eye hath dimmed through affliction;†
I have called upon thee, O Yahweh, all day long,
I have spread out unto thee, my hands.‡
10 <For the dead> wilt thou perform a wonder?
Or shall the shades arising, give thee thanks? [Selah.
11 Shall Thy lovingkindness be recounted in the grave?
Thy faithfulness, in destruction?
12 Shall any wonder of thine be known in the dark?* Or thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?
13 But I: unto thee, O Yahweh, have cried for help,
And in the morning my prayer will confront thee!
14 Wherefore, O Yahweh, shouldst thou reject my soul?
Shouldst thou hide thine face from me?
15 Afflicted have I been, and dying, from youth,
I have borne the terror of thee—I shall be distracted!§
16 Over me have passed thy bursts of burning anger,
The alarms of thee have put an end to me;

PSALM 89.

An Instructive Psalm, by Ethan the Ezrahite.*

1 <The lovingkindnesses of Yahweh> age-abidingly will I sing,<To generation after generation> I will make known thy faithfulness with my mouth.
2 For I said,*
To times age-abiding shall lovingkindness be built up,
As for the heavens thou wilt establish thy faithfulness therein.
3 I have solemnised a covenant, for my chosen one,
I have sworn' unto David my servant:
4 <Unto times age-abiding> will I establish thy seed,
And will build up, unto generation after generation, thy throne. [Selah.
5 So shall the heavens praise thy wondrousness,
O Yahweh,—
Yea <thy faithfulness> in the convocation of holy ones.
6 For whom, in the skies, can one compare unto Yahweh? [Or] can one liken unto Yahweh, among the sons of the mighty?*
7 A God inspiring awe in the circle of the holy ones, exceedingly, And to be reverenced above all who are round about him.
8 O Yahweh, God of hosts!
Who, like thee, is mighty, O Yah!
With thy faithfulness round about thee:
9 Thou rulest over the swelling of the sea,
When the rolling waves thereof lift themselves;
Thou dost bid them be still:
10 Thou hast crushed— as one slain—Rahab,
With thy strong arm hast thou scattered thy foes.
11 Thine are the heavens Yea [thine] the earth,
The world and the fulness thereof>
12 Thou didst found them;—
13 The north and the south;
Thou didst create them,—

13 Thine is an arm with might,
   Strong is thy hand, High is thy right hand;
   Righteousness and justice are the establishing of thy throne,
   Lovingkindness and faithfulness go before thy face.

15 How happy are the people who know the joyful sound!
   O Yahweh!  <in the light of thy countenance> shall they firmly march along;
   <In thy Name> shall they exult all the day,
   And <in thy righteousness> shall they be exalted.

17 For <the beauty of their strength> thou art,
   And <in thine acceptance> shall our horns be exalted.

18 For <to Yahweh> belongeth our Shield,
   And <to the Holy One of Israel> belongeth our King.

19 Then spaketh thou in vision of thy men of lovingkindness,

   I have exalted one chosen from among the people;

20 I have found David my servant,

   Yea [mine arm] shall strengthen him;

22 No foe shall make excasions on him,
   Nor shall [a son of perversity] humble him;
   And I will shatter from before him, his adversaries,

24 And <them who hate him> will I smite;
   And [my faithfulness and my lovingkindness] shall be with him,
   And <in my Name> exalted' shall be his horn;
   And I will set, in the sea, his hand,
   And in the rivers, his right hand;
   And <He> shall cry out unto me,
   <My Father> thou art,
   My God, and my Rock of Salvation!

27 Yea [I] will appoint him [firstborn],
   Most High to the kings of the earth!

29 <Age-abidingly> will I keep for him my lovingkindness,
   And [my covenant] hath been made steadfast for him;

30 Therefore will I appoint, to futurity, his seed,
   And his throne' as the days of the heavens.

31 If <my statutes> they profane,
   And <my commandments> do not keep;
   Then will I punish <with a rod> their transgression;
   And <with stripes> their iniquity;

33 But <my lovingkindness> will I not frustrate from them,
   Neither will I falsify my faithfulness;

34 I will not violate my covenant,
   <And that which hath proceeded out of my lips> will I not alter;

35 <One thing> have I sworn by my holiness,
   Verily <to David> will I not lie;

36 Of His seed <age-abidingly> shall remain,
   And [his throne] be like the sun before me;

37 <Like the moon> shall it be established unto times age-abiding,
   And [a witness] <in the skies> hath been made sure.

38 Yet <thou thyself> hast cast off, and rejected,
   Thou hast been wroth with thine Anointed One;

39 Thou hast cast down the covenant of thy Servant,
   Thou hast profaned, to the earth, his crown;

40 Thou hast broken down all his defences,
   Thou hast laid his fortresses in ruins;

41 All the passers by the way [have plundered him],
   He hath become a reproach to his neighbours;

42 Thou hast raised the right hand of his adversaries,
   Thou hast gladdened all his enemies;

43 Yea thou hast turned the edge of his sword,
   Neither hast thou caused him to stand in the battle;

44 Thou hast brought to an end his splendour,
   And [his throne—to the ground] hast thou hurled;

45 Thou hast shortened the days of his youths,
   Thou hast covered him with shame.

BOOK THE FOURTH.

PSALM 90.
A Prayer by* Moses, the Man of God.

1 Lord!  hast thou become to us,
From generation to generation:
2 Before the mountains were born,
Or thou hast hast brought forth the earth and the world,
Even from age unto age thou [wast] God.

3 Thou causest man to return unto dust,
And hast said—
Return, ye sons of Adam!
4 For [as thousand years, in thine eyes] [are]
As yesterday, in that it passed away,
Or [as] a watch in the night.
5 Thou hast snatched them away,
A sleep do they become,
In the morning [they are] like grass that shooteth up,
6 In the morning it sprouteth and shooteth up,
6 By the evening it is cut down and withered.

7 For we are consumed in thine anger,
And in thy wrath are we disannayed;
8 Thou hast set
Our iniquities before thee,
Our secret things near the luminary of thy face.
9 For all our days [decline in thy wrath],—
We end our years like a sigh.
10 The days of our years are three score years and ten;
And if [by reason of strength] they have fourscore years:
Yet [their breath] is labour and sorrow,
For it hath passed quickly, and we have flown away.

11 Who knoweth the strength of thine anger?
Even according to the fear of thee is thy wrath!

12 How to number our days> so' grant us to know,
That we may win us a heart that hath wisdom.

13 Return, Yahweh, oh how long?
And have compassion upon thy servants;
14 Satisfy us, in the morning, with thy loving-kindness,
That we may shout aloud and be glad.
Throughout all our days.
15 Make us glad, according to the days thou hast humbled us,
The years [we have seen] misfortune:
16 Let thy work appear unto thy servants,
And thy majesty upon their children;
17 And let the delightfulness of Adonay our God be upon us,—
And the work of our hands establish thou upon us,
Yea the work of our hands establish thou it.

PSALM 91.
1 He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High
Under the shadow of the Almighty> will tarry,
2 Saying of Yahweh—
My refuge and my fortress,
My God, in whom I will trust.
3 For he will rescue thee
From the snare of the fowler,
From the destructive pestilence.
4 With his pinion> will he cover thee,
And [under his wings] shalt thou seek refuge,
A shield and buckler> is his faithfulness.

5 Thou shalt not be afraid
Of the dread of the night,
Of the arrow> that flieth by day;
6 Of the pestilence that, in darkness, doth walk,
Of the plague that layeth waste at noonday.

* Or: "belonging to" "and unto"—G.n.
Or: "ye sons of the earth-born"—G.n.
ML: "in throughout" generation and generation.
Or: "given birth to.
So in many MSS., and 3 ear. pr. edna.; but some ed. (w. 3 ear. pr. edna.):
"E.O.T."
7 There shall fall, at thy side, a thousand,
Yea [myriads]* at thy right hand,
Unto thee shall it not come nigh;
Save only' with thine own eyes shalt thou discern,
And the recompense of the lawless shalt thou see.
8 Because thou hast made Yahweh, my refuge,
The Most High thou hast made thy dwelling-place.
There shall not be sent unto thee misfortune,
Nor shall (plague) come near into thy tent;
For his messengers will he charge concerning thee,
To keep thee, in all thy ways;
On hands will they bear thee up,
Lest thou strike, against a stone, thy foot;
On the lion* and adder* shalt thou tread,
Shalt trample on young lion and crocodile.*
9 Because on me he hath set firm his love;
Therefore will I deliver him,
I will set him on high,
Because he hath known my Name;
He shall call me, and I will answer him,
With thee will I be in distress,
I will rescue him, and will honour him;
With length of days will I satisfy him,
And will show him my salvation.

PSALM 93.
A Melody, a Song. For the Sabbath-day.
1 It is good' to give thanks to Yahweh,
And to sing praises unto thy Name,
O Most High;
2 To declare, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,
And thy faithfulness at night;
Upon an instrument of ten strings, and upon a harp,
With resounding music on the lyre.
For thou hast made me glad, O Yahweh, in thy doing,
In the works of thy hands will I shout for joy.
How great have grown thy works, Yahweh,
[How very deep are laid thy plans!
9 A man that is brutish cannot know,
And is dullest cannot discern this:
When the lawless do thrive like grass,
And all the workers of iniquity have blossomed;
It is they that may be destroyed for ever.*

8 But thou shalt be on high age-abidingly, O Yahweh.
9 For lo! thy enemies, Yahweh,
For lo! thy enemies shall perish,*
They shall be scattered—all the workers of iniquity;
10 But thou wilt exalt, as [those of] the buffalo,*
my horn,
I have been anointed, with fresh oil.
11 So hath mine eye descried' them who were lying in wait for me,—
Of my wicked assailants mine ears shall hear.
12. The righteous * like the palm-tree shall thrive,
Like the cedar in Lebanon shall he grow;
They who are planted in the house of Yahweh
In the courts of our God shall flourish;
Still* shall they bear fruit in old age,
Vigorous and fresh shall they be;
To declare that upright is Yahweh,
My Rock, and no perversity* in him.

PSALM 94.
1 O God of avenging—Yahweh,
God of avenging, shine forth:*
Lift up thyself, O judge of the earth,
Render a recompense unto the proud.
How long shall the lawless, O Yahweh,
How long shall the lawless’ exult?

PSALMS XCIV. 4—23; XCV.; XCVI. 1—8.

4 They pour forth [words], they speak arrogantly,
All the workers of iniquity [do boast]:
5 <Thy people> O Yahweh, they will crush,
And <thine inheritance> tread down;
6 <The widow and sojourner> they will slay,
And <the fatherless> murder.
7 Yet have they said—
Yah [doth not see],
The God of Jacob [doth not understand].
8 Understand ye brutish among the people,
And <ye dullards> when will ye show discretion?
9 He that planteth the ear shall he not hear?
Or [that fashioneth the eye] shall he not have power to see?
10 [He that correcteth nations] shall he not reproive?
[He that teacheth man knowledge]!
11 Yahweh; knoweth the plans of men,
That [they] are a breath!
12 How happy the man whom thou correctest, O Yah!*
And whom <out of thy law> thou instructest!
13 That thou mayest give him rest from the days of misfortune,
Until there be digged—for the lawless one—a pit.
14 For Yahweh will not abandon his people,
And <his inheritance> will he not forsake;
15 For <unto righteousness> shall the judicial sentence return,
Then shall follow it—all the upright in heart.
16 Who will rise up for me, against the evildoers?
Who will make a stand for me, against the workers of iniquity?
17 <If> [Yahweh] had not been a help to me>
Soon had sunk into silence—my soul!
18 <If I say> My foot [hath slipped]>
[Thy lovingkindness] O Yahweh, supporteth me.
19 <In the multitude of my cares within me>
[Thy consolations] delight my soul.
20 Shall the throne that instructeth ruin* [have] fellowship with thee?*
That frameth oppression [by statute]?
21 They make an attack on the life of the righteous one,—
And <innocent blood> they condemn.
22 But Yahweh hath become for me a high tower,
And my God, my rock of refuge.
23 Thus hath he brought back on them their iniquity,
And <by their own wickedness> will he destroy them,
[Destroy them] will Yahweh our God.

PSALM 95.

1 Come, let us make a joyful noise to Yahweh,
Let us shout in triumph, to the rock of our salvation!
2 O let us come before his face with thanksgiving,
<With the sounds of strings> let us shout aloud to him.
3 For  is Yahweh,
And a great king, above all gods.
4 <In whose hand> are the hidden recesses* of the earth,
And <the peaks of the mountains> are his;
5 Whose [is the sea, for [he] made it,
And <the dry land> [his hands] did form.
6 Enter! let us bow down, and bend low,
Let us kneel, before Yahweh our maker;
7 For [he is] our God,
And [we] are the people of his pasture, and the flock of his hand.
8 To-day [if to his voice] ye will hearken—
Do not harden your heart as at Meribah,*
As on the day of Massah,* in the desert;
9 When your fathers [tested me],
They proved me, yea they also saw what I could do.
10 Forty years> loathed I that* generation,
So I said—
<A people going astray in heart> they are',
Even they [have] not known my ways!
11 And I swore in mine anger,—
Verily they shall not enter into my rest.

PSALM 96.

1 Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new,
Sing to Yahweh, all the earth;
2 Sing to Yahweh, bless ye his Name,—
Tell the tidings, from day to day, of his salvation:
3 Recount Among the nations, his glory,
Among all the peoples, his wonders.
4 For great is Yahweh, and worthy to be mightily praised,
To be revered is he above all gods;
5 For [all the gods of the peoples] are things of nought,*—
But [Yahweh] made [the heavens],
6 [Praise and majesty] are before him,
[Strength and beauty] are in his sanctuary.*
7 Give to Yahweh, ye families of the peoples,
Give to Yahweh, glory and strength;
8 Give to Yahweh, the glory of his Name,
Bring a present, and enter his courts;*
PSALMS XCVI. 9—13; XCVII; XCVIII; XCIX. 1—6.

9. Bow down to Yahweh, in the adornment of holiness,
   Be in anguish at his presence, all the earth!
10. Say among the nations, Yahweh hath become King.
    Surely he hath fixed the world, It shall not be shaken,
    He will judge the peoples with equity.
11. Let the heavens rejoice, and the earth exult.
    Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof;
12. Let the field leap for joy, and all that is therein,
    Then shall all the trees of the forest shout in triumph.
13. Before Yahweh, for he is coming,
    For he is coming to judge the earth,—
    He will judge the world, in righteousness,
    And the peoples, in his faithfulness.

PSALM 97.

1. Yahweh hath become king.
   Let the earth exult!
   Let the multitude of nations rejoice.
2. Clouds and thick darkness are round about him,
   Righteousness and justice are the establishing of his throne.
3. Fire before him proceedeth,
   That it may consume, round about, his adversaries.
4. His lightning hath illumined the world;
   The earth hath seen, and hath trembled;
5. The mountains like wax have melted,
   At the presence of Yahweh,
   At the presence of the Lord of all the earth.
6. The heavens have declared his righteousness,—
   And all the peoples have seen his glory.
7. Let all who serve an image be ashamed!
   They who boast themselves in things of nought,
   Bow down unto him, all ye gods.
8. Zion hath heard and rejoiced,
   And the daughters of Judah have exulted,
   Because of thy righteous decisions, O Yahweh:
9. For thou, Yahweh, art Most High over all the earth,
   Greatly hast thou exalted thyself above all gods.
10. Ye lovers of Yahweh be haters of wrong,—
    He preserveth the lives of his men of loving-kindness,
    From the hand of the lawless will he rescue them.
11. Light is sown for the righteous one,
    And for the upright in heart rejoicing:

12. Rejoice, ye righteous, in Yahweh,
    And give ye thanks, at the mention of his holiness.

PSALM 98.

A Melody.

1. Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new,
   For wonderful things hath he done,
   His own right hand and his holy arm have brought him salvation.
2. Yahweh hath made known his salvation,
   Before the eyes of the nations hath he revealed his righteousness:
3. He hath remembered his lovingkindness and his faithfulness towards the house of Israel,—
   All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.
4. Shout aloud to Yahweh, all the earth,
   Break forth and make a joyful noise and sweep the strings;
5. Sweep the strings to Yahweh
   With the lyre,
   With the lyre, and the voice of melody:
6. With trumpets and the sound of a horn, Shout aloud, before the king—Yahweh.
7. Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof,
   The world, and they who dwell therein:
8. Let the floods clap their hands,
   Together let the mountains make a joyful noise.

Before Yahweh, for he is coming—
   To judge the earth,—
   He will judge the world, in righteousness,
   And the peoples, with equity.

PSALM 99.

1. Yahweh hath become king.
   Let the peoples tremble,
   He is enthroned on the cherubim,
   Let the earth shake.
2. Yahweh in Zion is great,
   And high is he over all the peoples.
3. Let them thank his Name—great and reverend,
   [Holy is he!]
4. Yea with the strength of a king—justice he loveth,—
   Thou hast established equity,
   Justice and righteousness in Jacob thou hast wrought.
5. Exult Yahweh our God,
   And bow down at his footstool,
   [Holy is he!]
6. Moses and Aaron were among his priests,
   And Samuel among them who were calling upon his Name,
   Who were calling upon Yahweh, and he used to answer them:

8 O Yahweh our God! thou answerestst them,—<A pardoning God> thou becamest to them, Yet one bringing vengeance on their deeds. 9 Exalt Yahweh our God, And bow down towards his holy mountain, For holy! is Yahweh our God.

PSALM 100.
A Melody for Thanksgiving.
1 Make a joyful noise to Yahweh, all the earth: Serve Yahweh with rejoicing, Enter before him, with shouts of triumph.
2 Know that Yahweh is God,—\textit{He made us, and not we ourselves,\textit{b}} His people, and the flock of his pasture.
3 Enter ye his gates with thanksgiving, his courts, with praise, Give ye thanks to him, bless ye his Name; For good! is Yahweh, Age-abiding is his lovingkindness, And <unto generation after generation> his faithfulness.

PSALM 101.
David's. A Melody.
1 <Of lovingkindness and of justice> will I sing! <Unto thee, O Yahweh> will I touch the strings!
2 I will behave myself wisely in a blameless way, When wilt thou come in unto me?
3 I will walk to and fro in the blamelessness of my heart,—in the midst of my house:
4 I will not set before mine eyes, a vile thing,—<The doing of them who fall away> I hate, It shall not cleave unto me:
5 A perverse heart shall depart from me, <A maker of mischief> will I not acknowledge;
6 <He that uttereth slander in secret against his friend> \textit{Him} will I root out;
7 One of lofty eyes, and of an ambitious heart >\textit{Him} shall I not be able to endure.
8 Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, That they may dwell with me,—<He that walketh in a blameless way> \textit{He} shall attend me.

PSALM 102.
A Prayer for the Humbled One* when he is about to faint, and <before Yahweh> poureth out his grief.
1 O Yahweh, hear thou my prayer, And let my cry for help, <unto thee> enter in.
2 Do not hide thy face from me, In the day when I am in distress,— Bend down unto me thine ear, <In the day when I call> speedily answer me.
3 For <consumed in smoke>b are my days, And <my bones> like a burning mass are scorched through;
4 <Smitten like herbage> so is my heart dried up, For I have forgotten to eat my food.
5 <At the noise of my groaning> my bone' hath cleaved to my flesh!:
6 I am like the pelican of the desert, I have become as an owl among ruins,
7 I have watched and am become Like a bird sitting alone upon a house-top.
8 <All the day> have mine enemies reproached me, And they who are mad against me, by me have sworn. 9 For <ashes—like bread> have I eaten, And <my drink—with my tears> have I mingled;
10 Because of thine indignation and thy wrath, For thou hast lifted me up, and cast me down.
11 <My days> are like a shadow extended, And <I> as green herbage> do wither.
12 But <thou, O Yahweh> age-abidingly wilt remain,* And the memorial of thee, to generation after generation.
13 Thou wilt arise, wilt have compassion upon Zion, Surely it is time to favour her, Surely the time appointed,' hath come;:
14 Seeing that thy servants |take pleasure| in her stones, And <her dust> they favour:

\textit{a} Cp. Exo. xxxiv. 6, 7.

12 That the nations may revere thy Name, O Yahweh,
And all the kings of the earth, thy glory.
16 <When Yahweh [hath built up] Zion,
Hath appeared in his glory;
Hath turned towards the prayer of the destituie,>*
And not despised their prayer>
18 This shall be written for a later generation,
And a people to be created will give praise unto Yah:-
19 That he looked down, out of his holy height, [from the heavens unto the earth]
directed his gaze;—
20 To hear the groaning of the prisoner,
To set free, them who were appointed to death;>
To the end the Name of Yahweh [might be] celebrated in Zion|
And his praise in Jerusalem:
21 When the peoples [gather themselves together],
And the kingdoms, to serve Yahweh.
22 He hath prostrated, in the way, my strength,—
He hath shortened my days.
24 I said,
O my God, do not remove me< in the midst of my days,
Throughout the generation of generations>
are thy years;
25 Of old—the earth thou didst found,
And the work of thy hands; are the heavens;
[They shall perish] But thou wilt abide;
And they all <like a garment> shall fall in pieces,
As a vesture wilt thou change them and they shall vanish;
27 But thou art the same,—
And thy years shall have no end:
28 The children of thy servants shall continue,—
And their seed <before thee> be established.

PSALM 103.
1 Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,—
And all that is within me, his holy' Name;
2 Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,
And forget not all his dealings:—
3 Who forgiveth all thine iniquity,*
Who healeth all thy diseases;—

4 Who redeemeth from destruction, thy life,
Who crowneth thee, with lovingkindness and compassion;
5 Who satisfieth, with good, thine age,
Thy youth [reneweth itself like an eagle].
6 Yahweh is one [who executeth righteousness],
Yes vindication for all the oppressed.
7 Who made known his ways unto Mosseś,
Unto the sons of Israel> his doings.
8 <Compassionate and gracious> is Yahweh,—
Slow to anger and abundant in lovingkindness.*
9 Not perpetually> will he contend,
Nor age-abidingly > retain anger;
10 <Not according to our sins> hath he dealt with us,
Nor according to our iniquities> hath he treated us.
11 For <as the heavens are exalted over the earth>
His lovingkindness hath prevailed< over them>
who revere him;
12 <As far> as East from West>
Hath he put far< from us, our transgressions;>
13 <Like the compassion of a father for his children>
Is [the compassion of Yahweh] for them who revere him;
14 For [he] knoweth how we are formed,*
He is mindful< that [dust] we are>.
15 <As for man> <like grass> are his days,
Like the blossom of the field> [so] doth he blossom;
16 For  hath passed over it, and it is gone,<
And its own place is acquainted with it no more.
17 But the lovingkindness of Yahweh is from one age even to another
Upon them who revere him,
And his righteousness, to children's children:—
18 To such as keep his covenant,
And remember his precepts, to do them.
19 <Yahweh> [in the heavens] hath established his throne,
And [his kingdom] [over all] hath dominion.
20 Bless Yahweh, ye' messengers of his,—
Heroes of vigour, doing his word,
To hearken [again] to the voice of his word;
21 Bless Yahweh, all ye his hosts,
Attendants of his, doing his pleasure;
22 Bless Yahweh, all ye his works,
In all places of his dominion,
Bless, O my soul, Yahweh.

PSALM 104.

1 Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,—
   Yahweh, my God, thou art exceedingly great,
   With honour and majesty hast thou clothed thyself,

2 Putting on light, as a robe,
   Stretching out the heavens, as a curtain;
3 Building* in the waters, his upper chambers,—
   Who maketh clouds his chariot,
   Who passeth along on the wings of the wind;
4 Making His messengers winds,
   His attendants, a flaming fire;

5 He hath fixed the earth on its foundations,
   It is not to be shaken, to times age-abiding and beyond.

6 With the resounding deep—as a garment hast thou covered it,
   Above the mountains stand the waters;
7 At thy rebuke they flee,
   At the voice of thy thunder they hurry away;
8 Mountains rise', Valleys sink'
   Unto the place which thou hast fixed for them;
9 Bounds hast thou set, which they are not to pass over,
   They are not to return to cover the earth.

10 Who hast sent forth springs, through the torrent-beds,
   Between the mountains they flow along;
11 They give drink, to every wild beast of the field,
   The wild asses do break' their thirst.
12 Over them the bird of the heavens setteth down,
   From amidst the foliage they utter a voice.

13 Who watereth the mountains out of his upper chambers,
   Out of the fruit of thy works thou satisfiest the earth.
14 Who causeth the grass to shoot forth for the cattle,
   And the herb, for the service of man,
   That he may bring forth food out of the earth;
15 Wine may rejoice the heart of man,
   Making radiant his well-nourished face,—
   And food may <the heart of man> sustain.

16 Satisfied are
   The trees of Yahweh,
   The cedars of Lebanon, which he hath planted;
17 Where the birds build their nests,
   The stork* in the fir-trees hath her house;
18 The high mountains are for the chamois,
   The crags are a refuge for the conies.

19 He hath made the moon' for seasons,
   And the sun knoweth his place for entering in.

Psalm 104.

20 Thou causest darkness, and it becometh night,
   Creepeth forth Ever wild beasts of the forest;
21 The young lions roaring for prey,
   And seeking, from God their food.
22 The sun ariseth, they withdraw themselves,
   And lay them down.
23 Man goeth forth to his work,
   And to his labour, until evening.

24 How thy works abound', O Yahweh!
   All of them—in wisdom hast thou made,
   The earth is full' of thy possession;
25 This sea heretofore is great and broad on both hands,—
   Wherein are creeping things, even without number,
   Living things small with great;
26 There ships sail along,
   This sea-monster, thou hast formed to sport therein;
27 Of all them thou do wait,
   That thou mayest give them their food in its season;
28 Thou givest unto them, they gather,
   Thou openest thine hand, they are satisfied with good.

29 Thou hidest thy face, they are dismayed,
   Thou withdrawest their spirit,
   They cease to breathe,
   And unto their own dust do they return:
30 Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created,
   And thou renewest the face of the ground.

31 Be thy glory, O Yahweh, to times age-abiding,
   Let Yahweh rejoice in his own works:
32 Who looketh at the earth, and it trembleth,
   He toucheth the mountains, and they smoke.

33 I will sing to Yahweh, as long as I live!
   Yea I will touch the strings to my God, while I continue;
34 Pleading unto him be my meditation,
   I will rejoice in Yahweh.

35 Sinners shall be consumed' out of the earth,
   And the lawless no more, shall exist.—
   Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,
   Praise ye Yah !

 Or, as one word: "Halleluylah"; and so the Massoretic text. But Ginsburg concludes: "There can hardly be any doubt that this" [resolution of the phrase into two words, translated as three] "exhibits the primitive reading." He further expresses the confident conclusion that the phrase was originally the public reader's invitation to the worshippers to join in the public responses—G. Intro. pp. 875-81.
PSALM 106.

1 Give thanks to Yahweh, Call upon his Name, Make known among the peoples, his doings; Sing ye to him, Make ye music to him, Speak ye of all his wonders. Make your boast in his holy Name, Joyful be the heart of them who are seeking Yahweh. Search out Yahweh and his strength, Seek diligently his face at all times. Remember his wonders which he hath done, His portents, and the just decisions of his mouth.

6 O ye Seed of Abraham—his servants, Sons of Jacob—his chosen ones: Yahweh himself is our God, Through all the land are his just decisions.

8 He hath remembered, unto times age-abiding, his covenant, The word he commanded, to a thousand generations; Which he solemnised with Abraham, And his oath, to Isaac; And confirmed it unto Jacob for a statute, To Israel, as a covenant age-abiding; Saying, To thee will I give the land of Canaan, As your inherited portion; While as yet they were men easily counted,—A very few, and sojourners therein; And they wandered from nation to nation, From a kingdom, to another people. He suffered no son of earth to oppress them, And reproved—for their sakes—[even] kings! Ye may not touch mine Anointed ones, And to my Prophets may ye do no wrong.

15 Then called he a famine over the land, All the staff of bread he brake; He sent before them a man, For a slave was he sold—[even] Joseph; They forced, into a fetter, his foot, Into the iron he entered his soul; Until the time when his word came to pass, [Speech of Yahweh] proved him; The king sent, and set him free, One having dominion over peoples yet loosed his bonds, He appointed him lord to his household, And one having dominion over all he possessed;

22 That he might bind his rulers as he pleased, And his elders he might enshrine with wisdom.

23 So Israel came into Egypt, And [Jacob] sojourned in the land of Ham; And he made his people exceeding fruitful,—And caused them to become stronger than their adversaries.

24 He let them turn their heart— To hate his people, To deal treacherously with his servants; He sent Moses his servant, Aaron, whom he had chosen.

27 He set among them his threatening signs, And his wonders, in the land of Ham; He sent darkness, and made it dark, But they rebelled against his words; He turned their waters into blood, And so caused their fish to die; Their land swarmed with frogs, In the chambers of their kings!

28 He spake, and there came in the gad-fly, Gnats in all their bounds; He made their showers—bail, A fire flaming throughout their land; And he smote their vines, and their fig-trees, And brake in pieces the trees of their bounds; He spake—then came the swelling locust,— The devouring locust, and that without number; And devoured all the herbage in their land, And devoured the fruit of their ground. Then smote he every firstborn in their land, The beginning of all their strength; Thus brought he them forth, with silver and gold, Nor was there, throughout his tribes, one that faltered; Egypt rejoiced when they went out, For the dread of them had fallen upon them.

29 He spread out a cloud as a covering, And fire, to give light by night, They asked, and he brought in the quail,— And with the bread of the heavens he satisfied them.

PSALMS CV. 41—45; CVI. 1—36.

4 He opened the rock, and there gushed forth waters,
   They flowed along, through parched places, as a river;
4 For he remembered his holy word,
   With Abraham his servant.
3 Thus brought he forth his people with gladness,—
   <With shouts of triumph> his chosen ones;
4 And gave them, the lands of the nations,
   <Of the of the peoples> took they possession:
4 In order that they might observe his statutes,
   And <over his laws> might keep watch,
   Praise ye Yah.*

PSALM 106.

1 Praise ye Yah,
   Give ye thanks to Yahweh—
   For he is good,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.b
2 Who can relate the mighty deeds of Yahweh?
   Can cause to be heard, all his praise?
   How happy! They who observe justice,
   He that executeth righteousness at all times.
3 Remember me, O Yahweh, when thou acceptest thy people,*
   Visit me, with thy salvation;
3 That I may look upon the welfare of thy chosen ones,
   That I may rejoice in the joy of thy nation,
   That I may glory, with thine inheritance.
6 We have sinned—with our fathers,
   We have acted perversely, we have committed lawlessness;
7 Our fathers, in Egypt|| understood not thy wonders,
   They remembered not the abounding of thy lovingkindnesses,
   But rebelled by the sea—at the Red Sea.*
8 Yet he saved them, for the sake of his Name,
   To make known his mighty power;
9 So he rebuked the Red Sea, and it dried up,
   And he led them through deeps, as pasture-land;
10 And saved them from the hand of one full of hatred,
   And redeemed them out of the hand of the foe;
11 So the waters covered their adversaries,
   [Not one from among them] was left.
12 They believed therefore in his words,
   They sang his praise.
13 Soon* forgot they his works,—
   They waited not for his counsel;
14 But lusted a lust in the desert,
   And tested God in the waste.
15 So he gave them their request,
   But sent leanness into their soul.
16 And they became jealous
   Of Moses, in the camp,—
17 The earth opened and engulfed Dahath,
   And covered up the assembly of Abiram;
18 Then was kindled a fire in their assembly,—
   A flame consumed* the lawless ones.
19 They made a calf in Horeb,—
   And bowed down to a molten image;
20 Thus changed they my glory.b
   For the similitude of an ox that eateth grass.
21 They forgot God their saviour,
   Who had done great things in Egypt:
22 Wonders in the land of Ham,
   Terrible things by the Red Sea.
23 Then would he have bidden to destroy them,—
   Had not Moses his chosen stood in the breach before him,
   To turn back his wrath from destroying.
24 And they refused the delightful land,
   They believed not his word;
25 But murmured in their tents,—
   They hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh.
26 So he lifted up his hand unto them,
   That he would let them fall in the desert;
27 And would disperse their seed among the nations,
   And would scatter them throughout the lands.
28 Yet they let themselves be bound to Baal-peor,—*
   And did eat sacrifices to the dead:
29 So they provoked* to anger by their doings,
   And a plague made a breach among them.
30 Then stood up Phinehas, and interposed,
   And stayed* was the plague:
31 So it was counted unto him, for righteousness,
   To generation after generation, unto times age-abiding.
32 And they provoked by the waters of Meribah,—
   And it fared ill with Moses, for their sakes;
33 For they embittered his spirit,*
   And he spake rashly with his lips.
34 They destroyed not the peoples of which Yahweh had spoken to them;
35 But had fellowship with the nations,
   And learned their doings;
36 Yea they served their idols,
   And they* became to them a snare:

37 Yes they sacrificed their sons and their daughters to mischievous demons; *
38 And poured out innocent blood,
The blood of their sons and their daughters,
Whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan,
And the land was polluted with blood-shed;
39 And they became unclean by their works,
And became unclean in their doings.
40 Then was kindled the anger of Jahweh with his people,
And he abhorred his own inheritance.
41 So he delivered them up into the hand of the nations,
And they who hated them had dominion over them;
42 And their enemies oppressed them,
And they were bowed down under their hand.

43 Many times did he rescue them,—
But they rebelled by their counsel,
And sank low in their iniquity.

BOOK THE FIFTH.

PSALM 107.

1 O give thanks to Jahweh.—
For he is good,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

2 Let the redeemed of Jahweh say,
Whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the adversary;
3 And out of the lands hath gathered them,—
From the east and from the west,
From the north and from the south. b
4 They wandered about in the desert—in a waste,Way to a city to dwell in> found they none;
5 Hungry—yea thirsty—
Their soul, within them, fainted:
6 Then made they outcry to Jahweh, in their peril,<Out of their distresses> he rescued them;
7 And led them by a straight road,
That they might journey to a city to dwell in.
8 Let them give thanks to Jahweh for his lovingkindness,
And for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men; *

* This line is proceeded in Sep. and Vul. by the[publid reader's] invitation: "Praise ye Yah._
Lit.: "from the sea."
Ot.: "from the right."
= "south, because when facing east the right hand is towards the south."—O.G.
* So shd the verse be divided (w. Sep., Syr., Vul._—G.n.) Hence not: "waste of a way," as O.G. 44b.
* Or: "Adam."

9 For he hath satisfied the longing soul,
And <the famished soul> hath he filled with good.

10 The dwellers in darkness and death-shade,
Bound with oppression and iron;
Because they had rebelled against the sayings of God,—
And <the counsel of the Most High> they had spurned;
12 And he bowed down, with labour, their heart,
They staggered, with no one to help;
13 Then made they outcry to Jahweh in their peril,<Out of their distresses> he saved them;
14 He brought them forth out of darkness and death-shade,
And <their fetters> he took off.
15 Let them give thanks to Jahweh for his lovingkindness,
And for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men!
16 For he brake in pieces the doors of bronze,
And <the bars of iron> he hewed asunder.

17 [The perverse] <by reason of their transgression,
And on account of their iniquities> are afflicted;
* Or: "humiliation."
And they draw near unto the gates of death.

Then make they outcry to Jehovah in their peril,
And <out of their distresses> he saveth them.

He sendeth his word, and healeth them,
And delivereth them from their graves.

Let them give thanks to Jehovah
for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons
of men!

Yea let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving,
And recount his works with a shout.

Men who go down to the sea, in ships,
Doing business through mighty waters;
'They': see the works of Jehovah,
And his wondrous in the deep;
And he speaketh, and there ariseth a tempestuous wind,
Which lifeth on high its rolling waves;

They mount the heavens. They descend the roaring deeps,
||Their soul< by trouble> dissolveth;
They reel and stagger like a drunken man,
And ||all their wisdom> is engulphed;

Then make they outcry to Jehovah, in their peril,
And <out of their distresses> he bringeth them forth.

He calmeth the storm to a whisper,
And silent are their rolling waves;
Then are they glad, because they are hushed,
And he guideth them unto their desired haven.

Let them give thanks to Jehovah
for his lovingkindness, and
for his wonderful dealings with the sons
of men!

Yea let them extol him in the convocation of the people,
And <in the seated company of elders> let them praise him.

He turneth
Rivers into a desert, and
Springs of Water, into thirsty ground,
A Land of Fruit, into a waste of salt,
For the wickedness of them who dwell therein.

He turneth
A Desert, into a pool of water, and
A Parched Land into springs of water;
And hath caused the famished to dwell there,
And they have built them a city to dwell in;

And have sown fields, and planted vineyards,
And made them fruits of increase:
Thus hath he blessed them, and they have multiplied greatly,
And <their cattle> he maketh not few.

He poureth contempt upon nobles,
And casteth them to wander in a pathless waste;
So have they become few and been brought low,
By oppression, misfortune and sorrow;
But he hath set the needy on high from affliction,
And made families <like a flock>:

The upright seeth are glad,
And ||all perverseness> hath closed her mouth.

Who is wise? then let him observe these things!
And diligently consider the lovingkindness of Jehovah.

A Song, a Melody: David's.

[Fixed] is my heart, O God,
I will sing and touch the strings, even mine honour.

Awake, O harp and lyre,
I will awaken the dawn!

I will thank thee among the peoples, O Jehovah,
And will sing praise unto thee, among the tribes of men.

For <above the heavens> is thy lovingkindness,
And <as far as the skies> thy faithfulness.
Be thou exalted above the heavens, O God,
And <above all the earth> be thy glory.

To the end thy beloved ones may be delivered:
Oh save thou with thy right hand and answer me!

||God|| hath spoken in his holiness,
I will exult!
I will apportion Shechem!
And <the Vale of Succoth> will I measure out;

<Mine> is Gilead—<mine> Manasseh,
But ||Ephraim|| is the defence of my head,
||Judah> is my commander's staff;

||Moab> is my wash-bowl,
<Upon Edom> will I throw my shoe;
<Over Philistia> raise a shout of triumph.

The sign of dislocation is here also found in the Massoretic text. Effect has been given to (ginzburg's suggestion that ver. 40 ab have stood before ver. 39—CP note on verses 29-30).

PSALMS CVIII. 10—13; CIX.; CX. 1.

10 Who will conduct me to a fortified city?
Who will lead me as far as Edom?
11 Hast not thou O God, rejected us?
And wilt not go forth, O God, with our hosts?
12 Grant us help out of distress,
For <vain> is the deliverance of man:
13 In God shall we do valiantly,
<He himself> therefore, shall tread down our adversaries.

PSALM 109.
To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody.

1 O God of my praise, do not be silent;
2 For <the mouth of the lawless one and the mouth of the deceiver> <against me> are open,
They have spoken to me with a false tongue;
3 And <with words of hatred> have they surrounded me,
And have made war upon me without cause:
4 For <my love> they have been accusing me,
While <I> was at prayer:
5 Yea they have returned unto me—
Evil for good; and
Hatred for my love.
6 Set in charge over him, one who is lawless,
And let <an accuser> stand at his right hand:
7 When he is judged let him go out condemned,
And let <his own petition> become a sin;
8 Let his days become few,
<His Overseership> let another take;
9 Let his children become fatherless,
And his wife a widow;
10 Let his children <wander about> and beg,
Let them be driven out of their ruins;
11 Let the creditor take him at all that he hath,
And let strangers prey on the fruit of his toil;
12 Let him have no one to continue lovingkindness,
And there be none to favour his fatherless children;
13 Let his posterity be for cutting off,
<In another generation> let their name be wiped out;
14 Remembered be the iniquity of his fathers against Yahweh,
And <the sin of his mother> let it not be wiped out;
15 Let them be before Yahweh continually,
And let the memory of them be cut off out of the earth;
16 Because that he remembered not to shew lovingkindness,
But pursued the man that was oppressed and needy,
That <the downhearted> he might slay.

17 <Because he loved cursing>
May it have come upon him,
18 <Because he delighted not in blessing>
May it have kept far from him;
19 <Because he clothed himself in cursing as his outer garment>
Therefore may it have entered like water into his inward part,
And like oil into his bones;
20 Be it his, as a garment he shall wrap round him,
And for a girdle he shall, at all times, gird on;
21 <This be the reward of mine accusers, from Yahweh,
Even of them who are speaking wrongfully against my life.>
22 But <thou> Yahweh, Adonay, deal effectually with me, for the sake of thy Name,
<Since good> is thy lovingkindness: O rescue me;
23 For <oppressed and needy> I am,
And <my heart> is wounded within me.
24 <As a shadow when it stretcheth out> I am gone,
I am shaken off like the locust;
25 <My knees tremble from fasting,
And> <my flesh> faileth of fatness:
26 So <I> am become a reproach for them,
They see me, they shake their head.
27 Help me! O Yahweh my God,
Save me, according to thy lovingkindness:
28 That they may know that <Thine own hand> this is,
<Thou, Yahweh> hast done it.
29 <They may curse> if <thou> wilt bless,—
<Mine assailants> shall be ashamed.
But <thy servant> shall rejoice.
30 Mine accusers shall be clothed with confusion,
And shall wrap about them, like a cloak, their own shame.
31 I will thank Yahweh loudly with my mouth,
Yea <in the midst of multitudes> will I praise him;
32 Because he standeth at the right hand of the needy,
To save, from them who would pass sentence on his life.

Of the torrent in the way will he drink, — For this cause will he lift up [his] head.

PSALM 111.

Praise ye Yah!

I will give thanks unto Yahweh, with a whole heart, In the circle of the upright and the assembly. Great are the works of Yahweh, Sought out, by all who find pleasure therein.

 Honourable and majestic is his doing, And his righteousness standeth for aye.

A memorial hath he made by his wonders, <Gracious and compassionate> is Yahweh.

Food hath he given to them who revere him, He will remember, age-abidingly, his covenant.

The mighty of his works hath he declared to his people, That he may give them the inheritance of the nations.

The works of his hands are faithful and just, Firm are all his precepts;

Upheld to futurity, to times age-abiding, Done in faithfulness and equity.

Ransom hath he sent to his people, He hath commanded, to times age-abiding, his covenant, <Holy and reverend> is his Name.

PSALM 112.

Praise ye Yah!

How happy is the man who revereth Yahweh, In his commandments delighteth he greatly;

Mighty in the earth shall his seed, The generation of the upright shall be blessed;

Wealth and riches shall be in his house, And his righteousness standeth for aye, Risen in darkness is light to the upright, The gracious and compassionate and righteous.

Well for a man shewing favour and lending! He shall sustain his affairs with justice.

Surely, unto times age-abiding shall he not be shaken, In remembrance age-abiding shall the righteous one remain.

Of evil tidings shall he not be afraid, Established is his heart, led to trust in Yahweh;

Upheld is his heart, shall he not be afraid, Until that he gazeth on his foes.

He hath scattered abroad, he hath given to the needy. His righteousness standeth for aye, His horn shall be exalted in honour.

The lawless one shall see, and be indignant, <His teeth will> gnash and melt away, The craving of the lawless shall vanish.

PSALM 118.

Praise ye Yah!

Praise, O ye servants of Yahweh, Praise the Name of Yahweh;

Be the Name of Yahweh blessed, Henceforth, even to times age-abiding.

From the rising of the sun unto the going out thereof, Worthy to be praised is the Name of Yahweh:

High above all nations is Yahweh, Above the heavens is his glory.

Who is like Yahweh our God? That goeth on high to dwell, That cometh down low to look, Through the heavens and through the earth;

That raiseth out of the dust, the poor, From the dunghill uplifteth the needy; To give a seat with nobles, With the nobles of his people!

PSALM 114.

1 When Israel came forth out of Egypt,
The house of Jacob from among a people of strange tongue;
2 Judah became his sanctuary,
Israel his realm;
3 The sea beheld, and fled,
The Jordan turned back;
4 The mountains started like rams,
The hills like the young of the flock;
5 What aileth thee, O sea, that thou fleest?
O Jordan, that thou turnest back?
6 Ye mountains, that ye start like rams?
Ye hills, like the young of the flock?
7 Before the Lord be in anguish, O earth,
Before the God of Jacob;
Who turneth The Rock into a pool of water,
The Flint into springs of water.

PSALM 115.

1 Not unto us, O Yahweh, not unto us, —
But unto thine own Name, give glory, concerning thy lovingkindness,
concerning* thy faithfulness.
2 Wherefore should the nations' say,
Pray where is their God?
3 When [our God] is in the heavens,
Whatever he pleased, hath he done.
4 Their idols are silver and gold, a

Have they, but they see not;
6 Have they, but they hear not,
Have they, but they smell not:
7 Their hands! but they feel not,
Their feet! they walk not,
No sound make they in their throat.
8 Shall they be they who make them,
Every one* who trusteth in them.
9 O Israel!* trust thou in Yahweh,

5 Gracious is Yahweh and righteous,
And [our God] is full of compassion.
6 Yahweh preserves the simple,
I was brought low, when <to me> he granted salvation.
7 Return, O my soul, to thy rest,
For Yahweh hath dealt bountifully with thee.
8 For thou hast rescued my soul from death,—
Mine eyes from tears, my feet from stumbling.
9 I will walk to and fro before Yahweh, in the lands of life.
10 I believed' that I should speak,
I was greatly depressed.
11 [I] said in mine alarm,*
All men* are false!
12 How shall I give back to Yahweh,
All his benefits unto me?
13 The cup of salvation will I lift,
And <on the Name of Yahweh> will I call:
14 My vows—to Yahweh will I pay,
...
PSALMS CXVI. 15—19; CXVII.; CXVIII.

15. "Costly" in the eyes of Yahweh>

Is [death] for his men of lovingkindness.

16. I beseech thee, O Yahweh—

For [I] am thy servant,

[I] am thy servant, the son of thy handmaid,

Thou hast loosed my bonds.

17. To thee> will I sacrifice a sacrifice of thanksgiving,

And <on the Name of Yahweh> will I call:

18. My voice— to Yahweh > will I pay,

Might it be in the presence of all his people;—

19. In the courts of the house of Yahweh,

In the midst of thee, O Jerusalem.

Praise ye Yah !

PSALM 117.

1. Praise Yahweh, all ye nations,

Laud him, all ye tribes of men;*

2. For his lovingkindness [had prevailed over us],

And [the faithfulness of Yahweh] is to times.

Praise ye Yah !

PSALM 118.

1. Give ye thanks to Yahweh—

For he is good,

For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness. *

2. I pray you! let Israel [say],

For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness. *

3. I pray you! let the house of Aaron [say],

For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness. *

4. I pray you! let them who revere Yahweh [say],

For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness. *

5. "Out of a strait> called I on Yah,

He answered me with enlargement. *

6. [Yahweh] is on my side,* I will not fear,

What can man [do unto me]? *

7. [Yahweh] is on my side,* with them who help me,

Therefore shall gaze upon them who hate me.

8. It is <better to seek refuge in Yahweh>

Than to put confidence in man:

9. It is <better to seek refuge in Yahweh>

Than to put confidence in nobles.

10. All nations> have compassed me about,

<In the Name of Yahweh> surely I will make them be circumcised; 1

11. They have compassed me about—yea compassed me about,

<In the Name of Yahweh> surely I will make them be circumcised; 1

12. They have compassed me about like wax been.*

They have blazed up* like the fire of thorns,

<In the Name of Yahweh> surely I will make them be circumcised. 6

13. Thou didst [thrust sore> at me that I might fall,

But ; Yahweh> hath helped me.

14. <My might and melody> is Yah,

And he hath become mine by salvation. 4

15. [The voice of shouting and salvation] is, in the tents of the righteous,

The right hand of Yahweh is doing valiantly:

16. The right hand of Yahweh is exalted,

The right hand of Yahweh is doing valiantly.

17. I shall not die, but* live,

That I may recount the doings of Yah.

18. Yah > [chastened me sore].

But <unto death> did not deliver me.

19. Open to me the gates of righteousness,

I will enter therein, I will give thanks unto Yah.

20. This> is the gate for Yahweh,

Such as are righteous shall enter therein.

21. I will thank thee, because thou hast answered me,

And hast become mine by salvation. 6

22. A stone the builders refused [Hath become the head of the corner:

From Yahweh> hath this' come to pass,

The same> is marvellous in our eyes.

23. This is the day, which Yahweh' hath made,

We will exult, and be glad therein.

24. Ah now, Yahweh, do save, we beseech thee,

Ah now, Yahweh, do send success, we beseech thee!

25. Blessed> be he that entereth,

In the Name of Yahweh,

We have blessed you,

Out of the house of Yahweh.

26. Yahweh is God',

And hath shed on us light,—

Bind ye the festal sacrifice with cords,

Up to the horns of the altar.

27. "My God> thou art", and I will thank thee,—

My Elohim, I will exalt thee.

28. Give ye thanks to Yahweh—

For he is good,

For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

PSALM CXIX. 1—42.

ALPH.

1 How happy the men of blameless life,
Who walk in the law of Yahweh.

2 How happy they who observe his testimonies,
With a whole heart: they seek him.

3 Yes, they have not wrought perversity,
In his ways: they have walked.

4 Thou hast commanded thy precepts,
That they should be diligently kept.

5 Oh would that my ways might be settled!
That I might keep thy statutes.

6 Then shall I not be ashamed,
When I have respect unto all thy commandments.

7 I will thank thee with uprightness of heart,
When I have learned thy righteous regulations.

8 Thy statutes will I keep, Do not thou forsake me utterly.

BETH.

9 Wherewithal can a young man keep pure his way?
By taking heed, according to thy word.

10 With all my heart: I have sought thee,
Suffer me not to be led astray from thy commandments.

11 In my heart: I have treasured what thou hast said.
To the end I may not sin against thee.

12 Blessed art thou, O Yahweh— Teach me thy statutes.

13 With my lips: I have recounted All the regulations of thy mouth.

14 In the way of thy testimonies: I have rejoiced.
Like as over all riches.

15 In thy precepts: I will meditate, That I may discern thy paths.

16 In thy statutes: I will find my dear delight, I will not forget thy word.

GIMEL.

17 Bestow thy bounties upon thy servant—let me live,
That I may observe thy word.

18 Unveil thou mine eyes, that I may discern Wondrous things out of thy law.

19 A sojourner: am I in the earth, Do not hide from me, thy commandments.

20 My soul is crushed: with longing For thy just decisions at all times.

21 Thou hast rebuked the proud as accursed, Who stray from thy commandments.

22 Roll from off me, reproach and contempt. For thy testimonies have I observed.

DALETH.

23 Even rulers have taken their seat, against me have talked,
[Thy servant] will still meditate in thy statutes.

24 Yes thy testimonies: are my dear delight, My counsellors.

25 My soul cleaveth to the dust,
Give me life, according to thy word.

26 <My ways> I recounted, and thou didst answer me, Teach me thy statutes.

27 <The way of thy precepts> cause thou me to understand, And I will indeed meditate in thy wonders.

28 My soul weepeth itself away, for grief, Confirm thou me, according to thy word.

29 <The way of falsehood> take thou from me, And with thy law: O favour me.

30 <The way of faithfulness> have I chosen, <Thy regulations> have I deemed right.

31 I have kept close to thy testimonies, O Yahweh! do not put me to shame.

32 <The way of thy commandments> will I run, For thou wilt enlarge my heart.

HE.

33 Point out to me, O Yahweh, the way of thy statutes, That I may observe it unto the end.

34 Give me understanding, that I may observe thy law, That I may keep it with a whole heart.

35 Guide me in the path of thy commandments, For <therein> do I find pleasure.

36 Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, And not unto unjust gain.

37 Turn away mine eyes, from beholding vanity, <In thy way>: give me life.

38 Establish unto thy servant, thy word, Which pertaineth to the reverence of thee. Cause to pass away my reproach, that I have feared, For 'thy regulations': are good.

39 Lo! I have longed for thy precepts, <In thy righteousness> give me life.

WAW.

41 And let thy lovingkindness reach me, O Yahweh, Thy salvation, according to thy word.

42 So shall I have something to answer him that reproacheth me, That I have trusted in thy word.

PSALM CXIX. 86—128.

107 I have been afflicted exceedingly,—

O Yahweh, give me life according to thy word.

108 The freewill offerings of my mouth > accept.

I pray thee, O Yahweh,

And <thy regulations> teach thou me.

109 [My life] is in my hand continually,

Yet <thy law> have I not forgotten.

110 The lawless have set a snare for me,

Yet <from thy precepts> have I not strayed.

111 As an inheritance have I taken thy testimonies unto ages-abiding.

For <the joy of my heart> they are.

112 I have inclined my heart to perform thy statutes,

Age-abidingly, to the end.

SAMECH.

113 <Half-hearted ones> do I hate,

But <thy law> do I love.

114 <My hiding-place and my buckler> thou art,

<For thy word> have I waited.

115 Depart from me, ye evil-doers,—

That I may observe the commandments of my God.

116 Uphold me according to thy word," that I may live,

And do not shame me out of my hope!

117 Sustain me, that I may be saved,

And may find dear delight in > thy statutes continually.

118 Thou hast made light of all who stray from thy statutes,

For their fraud is <falsehood>.

119 <Dress> have I accounted * all the lawless

of the earth,

Therefore do I love thy testimonies.

120 My flesh <bristled up from dread of thee>,

And <of thy regulations> stand I in fear.

AYIN.

121 I have done justice and righteousness,—

Do not leave me to mine oppressors.

122 Be thou surety for thy servant for good,

Let not insolent men oppress me.

123 Mine eyes: have become dim for thy salvation;

And for thy righteous word,

124 Deal with thy servant according to thy loving-kindness,

And <thy statutes> teach thou me.

125 <Thy servant> I am'—give me understanding,

So shall I get to know thy testimonies.

126 It is time that Yahweh should work,

They have frustrated thy law!

127 <For this cause> do I love thy commandments,

More than gold, yea than fine gold!

128 <For this cause> <all thy precepts concerning all things> I deem right;

<Every way of falsehood> I hate.

NUN.

156 <A lamp to my feet> is thy word,

And a light to my path.

157 I have sworn, and have fulfilled, e

To keep thy righteous regulations.

PSALM CXIX. 129—170. 595

129. They have drawn near, who pursue villainy; from thy law, they have gone far away. The opening of thy word is light, giving understanding to the simple. My mouth have I opened wide, and pantèd, because for thy commandments have I longed.

132. Turn thyself unto me, and shew me favour, as is befitting to the lovers of thy Name. My steps direct thou by thy word; and let not iniquity have dominion over me.

134. Set me free from the oppression of man, so will I keep thy precepts. Thy face lighten thou up on thy servant, and teach me thy statutes.

135. Streams of water have run down mine eyes, because men have not kept thy law.

136. Righteous art thou, O Yahweh, and thy statutes are righteous. Thou hast righteousness commanded thy testimonies in great faithfulness.

137. My zeal hath put an end to me, for mine adversaries have forgotten thy words.

138. Refined is thy word to the uttermost, and thy servant loveth it.

139. Thy precepts have I not forgotten. Thy righteousness is righteous to times age-abiding, and thy law is truth.

139. Straitsness and distress have befallen me, thy commandments are my dear delights.

140. Righteous are thy testimonies, unto times age-abiding, give me understanding, that I may live.

141. I have cried out with all my heart, answere, O Yahweh; thy statutes will I observe.

142. I have cried out unto thee, oh save me, that I may keep thy testimonies.

143. I forestalled the twilight, and cried for help, for thy word I waited.

144. Mine eyes forestalled the night-watches, to meditate in thy word.

145. <My voice> O hear, according to thy loving-kindness, O Yahweh! according to thy word give me life.

150. Behold mine affliction, and rescue me, from thy law have I not forgotten. Plead my cause, and redeem me, by thy word give me life.

152. Far from the lawless is salvation, for thy statutes have they not sought.

152. Thy compassions are great, O Yahweh, according to thy regulations give me life.

157. Are my persecutors and mine adversaries, from thy testimonies have I not swerved. I have seen traitors, and felt loathing, because thy word they kept not.

158. See thou that thy precepts I have loved, O Yahweh, according to thy loving-kindness give me life. The sum of thy word is truth, and according to thy servant's regulations.

159. Rulers have persecuted me, without cause, but of thy word hath my heart stood in awe.

160. Joyful am I over thy word, like the finder of spoil in abundance.

161. Falsehood I hate and abhor, thy law do I love.

162. Seven times in the day have I praised thee, for thy righteous regulations.

163. Blessing in abundance have the lovers of thy law, and nothing to make them stumble.

164. I have looked for thy salvation, O Yahweh, and thy commandments have I done.

165. My soul hath kept thy testimonies, yea I have loved them greatly.

166. I have kept thy precepts, and thy testimonies, for all my ways are before thee.

167. Let my shouting come near before thee, O Yahweh, according to thy word give me understanding.

168. Let my supplication come in before thee, according to thy word deliver me.

PSALM 120.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Unto Yahweh, in the distress that befell me I cried, and he answered me.
2 O Yahweh, rescue thou my soul From the false' lip, From the deceitful tongue.
3 What shall be given to thee, And what shall be added to thee Thou deceitful tongue?
4 The arrows of the hero sharpened, With burning coals of b Emma.
5 Woe is me, That I sojourn in Meshek, That I abide near the tents of Kedar?
6 Long hath my soul had her dwelling With him that hateth peace:
7 If I am for peace, and verily I speak If they are for war!

PSALM 121.
A Song of Ascents.
1 I will lift up mine eyes unto the mountains, From whence cometh my help!
2 My help is from Yahweh, Who made heavens and earth.
3 May he not suffer thy foot to slip May thy keeper not slumber
4 Lo! neither will slumber nor sleep The keeper of Israel.

PSALM 123.
A Song of Ascents.
1 I was glad when they were saying unto me, Unto the house of Yahweh let us go!
2 Standing are our feet, Within thy gates, O Jerusalem!
3 Jerusalem! that hath been builded, A true city, all joined together as one:
4 Whither have come up the tribes, The tribes of Yah, A testimony to Israel, To give thanks unto the Name of Yahweh:
5 For there are set— Thrones for justice, Thrones for the house of David.
6 Ask ye for the peace of Jerusalem, They shall prosper who love thee!
7 Peace be with thy walls, Prosperity within thy palaces:
8 For the sake of my brethren and friends, Oh, might I speak [saying], Peace be within thee!
9 For the sake of the house of Yahweh our God Will I seek blessing for thee.

PSALM 124.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Unto thee have I lifted up mine eyes, O thou who art enthroned in the heavens.
2 Lo! as the eyes of men-servants are unto the hand of their masters As the eyes of a maid-servant, unto the hand of her mistress So are our eyes unto Yahweh our God, Until that he shew us favour.
3 Shew us favour, O Yahweh, shew us favour, For exceedingly are we sated with contempt:
4 Exceeding sated therewith is our soul, The scorn of the careless, The contempt of the proud.

PSALM 131.
A Song of Ascents. David's.
1 O Yahweh, my heart is not haughty; Nor are mine eyes lofty, Neither have I moved among great matters, Or among affairs too wonderful for me;—
2 Surely I have soothed and silenced my soul,— Like a weaned child, concerning my mother, Like a weaned child, concerning myself—mine own soul.

PSALM 132.
A Song of Ascents.
1 Remember, O Yahweh, unto David, All his humiliations!
2 What he Swore to Yahweh,— Vowed to the Mighty One of Jacob:
3 Surely I will not enter the home of my own house, Nor ascend my curtained couch; I will not give sleep to mine eyes, Nor to mine eye-lashes shall slumber;—
5 Until I find A place for Yahweh, Habitations' for the Mighty One of Jacob.
6 Lo! we heard of it at Ephrathah, We found it in the fields of the wood.
7 We would enter his habitations, We would bow down at his footstool.
8 Arise! O Yahweh, unto thy place of rest, Thou, and the ark of thy strength, Thy priests let them be clothed with righteousness, Thy men of lovingkindness let them shout for joy!
9 For the sake of David thy servant> Do not turn away the face of thine Anointed One.
10 Yahweh hath sworn unto David, In faithfulness will he not turn from it,— Of the fruit of thy body> Will I seat on thy throne. || If thy sons keep my covenant, And my testimony which I will teach them> Even their sons> Unto futurity> Shall sit on thy throne.
12 For Yahweh hath chosen Zion,— He hath desired it as a dwelling for himself: This is my place of rest unto futurity, Here will I dwell, for I have desired it;—
13 Her provision> will I abundantly bless, Her needy ones> will I satisfy with bread; And <her priests> will I clothe with salvation, And <her men of lovingkindness> shall shout aloud for joy;—
14 There will I cause to bud a horn to David, I have prepared a lamp for mine Anointed One.

18 <His enemies> will I clothe with shame,
   But <upon himself> shall his crown be resplendent.

PSALM 133.
   A Song of Ascents. David’s.
   1 Lo! <how good and how delightful> For brethren [to dwell together even as one],
   2 Like the precious oil upon the head,
   Descending upon the beard;
   The bearded of Aaron,—
   Which descended unto the opening of his robe:*
   3 Like the dew of Hermon, which descended upon the mountains of Zion,—
   For [there] did Yahweh command the blessing,
   Life unto times age-abiding.b

PSALM 134.
   A Song of Ascents.
   1 Lo! bless Yahweh, all ye servants of Yahweh,
   Who stand in the house of Yahweh | by night;*
   2 Lift up your hand in holiness,
   And bless Yahweh.
   3 May Yahweh | bless thee | out of Zion,
   Even he that made heaven and earth.

PSALM 135.
   1 Praise ye Yah,*
   Praise ye the Name of Yahweh,
   Praise, O ye servants of Yahweh:
   Who stand In the house of Yahweh,
   In the courts of the house of our God.
   3 Praise ye Yah,*
   For good is Yahweh,
   Sing praises to his Name,
   For it is full of delight;
   4 For <Jacob> hath Yah chosen’ for himself,
   Israel, for his own treasure.
   5 For [I] know that great’ is Yahweh,
   Yeas our Lord:* is beyond all gods.
   6 <Whatsoever Yahweh hath pleased> he hath done,—
   In the heavens and on the earth,
   In the sea, and all resounding deeps:
   Causing vapours to ascend from the end of the earth,— <Lightnings for the rain> hath he made,
   Bringing forth wind out of his treasuries.
   8 Who smote the firstborn of Egypt,
   Both of man, and of beast;
   Sent signs and wonders into thy midst, O Egypt,
   Upon Pharaoh, and upon all his servants.
   10 Who smote great nations,
   And slew mighty kings:

11 Sihon, king of the Amorites,
   And Og, king of Bashan,
   And all the kingdoms of Canaan;
   And gave their land as an inheritance,
   An inheritance to Israel his people.
   13 O Yahweh! [thy Name] is age-abiding,—
   O Yahweh! [thy memorial] is to generation after* generation.
   14 For Yahweh will vindicate' his people,—
   And <on his servants> have compassion. b
   15 [The idols of the nations] are silver and gold,*
   The work[d] of the hands of men:
   <A mouth> have they, but they speak not,
   <Eyes> have they, but they see not;
   <Ears> have they, but they hear not,
   <Noses>—there is no’ breath in their mouth.
   <Like unto them> shall be they who make them,
   Every one who trusteth in them.
   19 O house of Israel! bless Yahweh,
   O house of Aaron! bless Yahweh;
   20 O house of Levi! bless Yahweh,
   Ye that revere Yahweh! bless Yahweh.
   21 Blessed be Yahweh out of Zion,
   Who inhabiteth Jerusalem,
   Praise ye Yah,*

PSALM 136.
   1 Give ye thanks to Yahweh
   For he is good,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.¹
   2 Give ye thanks to the God of gods,⁴
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   3 Give ye thanks to the Lord of lords,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   4 To him that doeth great wonders | by himself alone,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   5 To him that made the heavens with understanding,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   6 To him that stretched out the earth above the waters,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   7 To him that made great lights,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   8 The sun to rule the day,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   9 The moon and stars to rule the night,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   10 To him that smote Egypt in their firstborn,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   11 And brought forth Israel out of their midst,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
   12 With a firm hand, and a stretched-out arm,
   For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

³ Heb.: 'ad hón nahunu
⁴ Sometimes = “rulers,” “representatives of God.”
⁵ Or. Ps. viii. 5. n.; lxxxi. 1, 6. n.
To him that divided the Red Sea into divisions,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
And caused Israel to pass through the midst thereof,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
And shook off Pharaoh and his army in the Red Sea,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
To him that led his people through the desert,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
To him that smote great kings,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
And slew majestic kings,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
Even Sihon, king of the Amorites,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
Also Og, king of Bashan,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
And gave their land for an inheritance,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
An inheritance to Israel his servant,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
Who in our low estate remembered us,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
And freed us with force from our adversaries,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
Who giveth food to all flesh,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.
Give ye thanks unto the God of the heavens,
For <age-abiding> is his lovingkindness.

PSALM 187.
1 <By the rivers of Babylon> we sat down, yea we wept:—
When we remembered Zion:
2 Upon the willows—in the midst thereof
Hanged we our lyres:
3 For <there> our captors asked of us words of song,
And our plunderers—gladness,—
Sing us the songs of Zion!
4 How shall we sing the song of Yahweh,
On a foreign' soil?
5 If I forget thee, O Jerusalem>
Let my right-hand forget:—
Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth,
If I do not remember thee!—
If I do not lift up Jerusalem above the head of mine own gladness.
7 Remember, O Yahweh, against the sons of Edom,
the day of Jerusalem,—
How they continued to say—
Overthrow! Overthrow!
Unto the foundation within it.

PSALM 188.
David's.
1 I will give thee thanks with all my heart,
<Before the messengers of God> will I praise thee in song:
2 I will bow down towards thy holy temple,
And thank thy Name, for thy lovingkindness
and for thy faithfulness.
For thou hast magnified, above all thy Name,
thy word!—
3 In the day I cried unto thee>
Then didst thou answer me,
And didst excite me, in my soul, mightily.
4 All the kings of the earth will thank thee, O Yahweh,
When they have heard the sayings of thy mouth;
And they will sing of the ways of Yahweh,
That great is the glory of Yahweh:
5 Though lofty is Yahweh yet <the lowly> he regardeth,
But <the haughty> afar off: doth he acknowledge.
6 Though I walk in the midst of distress thou wilt give me life,—
Because of the anger of my foes thou wilt thrust forth thy hand,—
And thy right' hand will save me:
7 <Yahweh> will carry through my cause,—
O Yahweh! thy lovingkindness is age-abiding,
The works of thine own hands do not thou desert.

PSALM 189.
To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody.
1 O Yahweh! thou hast searched me, and observed:
3 Thou hast observed my downsitting and mine uprising,
Thou hast given heed to my desire, from afar:
5 My path and my couch hast thou examined,
And <all my ways> thou well knowest.

6 Gr.: "O destroying d. of B."—G.n.
7 Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.): "Ye will controlled and inspected"—G.n.
6 Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.): "Yea, because of my foes"—G.n.
8 Gr.: "hand" (pl.)—G.n.
9 Some cod. (w. A.): "work" (sing.)—G.n.
7 Or: "in."
Surely there hath not been a word on my tongue,
[But] behold! O Yahweh, thou hast observed it on every side.

And hast laid upon me thy hand:
Knowledge too wonderful for me!
High, I cannot attain to it!

Whither can I go from thy spirit?
Or whither <from thy face> can I flee?
If I ascend the heavens, there thou art.
If I spread out my hands toward the east,
Even there || thy hand shall lead me,
And thy right hand shall hold me.
If I say, Surely darkness shall cover me!
Then night is light about me.
Even darkness || will not conceal from thee,—
But night, <like day> will shine,
So is the darkness as the light!

For thou didst possess thyself of my reins,
Thou didst weave me together in the womb
of my mother.
I thank thee, in that fearfully was my being distinguished,*
Wonderful are thy works,
And mine own soul is observing [them]
intently!

My substance was not hid' from thee. —
When I was made in secret,
When I was skilfully figured in the lower parts of the earth.

Mine unfinished substance || thine eyes beheld,
And in thy book || all the parts thereof were written,—
The days they should be fashioned!
While yet there was not one among them.

To me > then, how precious have they desired become, O God!
How numerous, the heads of them!
I would recount them!
"Beyond the sands" they multiply,
And am still with thee.

Wilt thou not, O God, slay the lawless one?
Therefore, ye men of bloodshed, depart from me!
For they speak of thee wickedly,
Thy foes' lift up [their hand] unto falsehood.*
Do not hate || them who hate thee, O
Yahweh?
And loathe || them who rise up against thee? ||

With completeness of hatred > I hate them, <As enemies> have they become to me.
Search me, O God, and observe my heart,
Try me, and observe my cares.
And see if there be any idol-way* in me,
And lead me in a way age-abiding.

PSALM 140.

To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David.

Rescue me, O Yahweh, from the men of mischief,
From the men of violence <wilt thou preserve
me>:
Who have devised mischief in [their] heart,
Every day > do they stir up wars:
They have sharpened their tongue like a serpent,—
The poison of the serpent is under their lips.

Keep me, O Yahweh, from the hands of the lawless one,
From the man of violence > wilt thou preserve me, —
Who have devised, to thrust at my steps:
The proud have hidden a snare for me,
And hoards have they set for me.

I have said unto Yahweh, My God thou art!*
Give ear, O Yahweh, unto the voice of my supplications.
O Yahweh, My Lord, my saving' strength,*
Thou hast screened my head in the day of battle.
Do not grant, O Yahweh, the desires of the lawless one,
His device > do not promote,
They would exalt themselves.

As for the head of them who surround me>
Let the mischief of their lips cover them:
May there be dropped* on them live coals,—
Into the fire > may they be let fall,
Into watery pits [from which] they shall not rise].

As for the slanderer,4 let him not be established in the earth,—
As for the man of wrongful violence> let misfortune hunt him with thrust upon thrust.

I know that Yahweh will execute
The right of the oppressed one,
The vindication of the needy.
Surely || the righteous || shall give thanks to thy
Name,
The upright shall dwell > in thy presence.

* Or: "grievous," "injury," (or: "may there rain"), one way.
* Or: "I awake." (lit.: "the man of my salvation.")
* Or: "He will rain" /* Or: "land."
PSALM 141.
A Melody of David.

1 O Yahweh, I have cried unto thee,
   Make haste to me, Give ear unto my voice, when I cry to thee.
2 Let my prayer be set in order like incense before thee,—
   The lifting up of my hands, as the evening gift.
3 Set thou, O Yahweh, a watch at my mouth,
   Keep thou guard over the door of my lips.
4 Let not my heart incline to a matter of wrong,
   That I should busy myself with practices in lawlessness, with men working iniquity,
   And let me not eat of their dainties.
5 Let a righteous man smite me—
   <A lovingkindness> that he should correct me,
   An oil for the head [which] let not my head refuse!
   For [yet]: even my prayer shall be in their calamities.
6 Their judges have been hurlsed down by a crag;[b]
   Now have men heard my sayings, for they have become sweet.
7 <As when one plougheth and furroweth the earth>
   [Scattered about] are our bones at the mouth of hades!
8 Surely <unto thee, O Yahweh, My Lord> are mine eyes,
   <In thee> have I sought refuge,
   Do not pour out my life.
9 Keep me out of
   The clutches of the trap they have set for me,
   And
   The snares of the workers of iniquity.
10 They who are lawless shall fall into the nooses thereof,
   While I, at the same time, pass on.

PSALM 143.
A Melody of David. When he was in the Cave. A Prayer.

1 <With my voice—to Yahweh> make me outcry,
   <With my voice—to Yahweh> make I supplication:
2 I pour out before him my complaint,
   <My distress—before him> I tell,
3 <When my spirit fainted concerning myself>
   Then thou didst take note of my path,—
   <In the course which> I was about to take
   They had hidden a snare for me.

4 Look to the right hand and see,
   That there is none that <for me> hath regard,—
   Escape is lost to me,
   There is no one to care for my life.
5 I have made outcry unto thee, O Yahweh,—
   I have said,
   [Thou] art my refuge,
   My portion, in the land of the living.
6 Attend thou unto my loud cry,
   For I am brought very low,—
   Rescue me from my pursuers,
   For they are stronger than I.
7 O bring forth, out of prison, my soul,
   That I may give thanks unto thy Name,—
   <About me> let the righteous gather round,
   For thou wilt deal bountifully with me.

PSALM 148.
A Melody of David.

1 O Yahweh, hear my prayer,
   Give ear to my supplications,
   <In thy faithfulness> answer me, [in thy righteousness].
2 Do not then enter into judgment with thy servant,
   For no one living can appear just before thee.
3 For an enemy
   Hath pursued my soul,
   Hath crushed, to the earth, my life,
   Hath made me dwell in dark places, like the ancient dead.
4 Therefore hath my spirit fainted concerning myself,
   <Within me> hath my heart been confounded.
5 I have remembered the days of aforesight,
   I have talked with myself of every deed of thine,
   [Selah]
   <Of the work> of thy hands> I would speak:
6 I have spread out my hands unto thee,
   My soul is as a thirsty land, for thee.
7 Speedily answer me, O Yahweh,
   My spirit faileth,—
   Do not hide thy face from me,
   Or I shall be made like unto them who go down into the pit.
8 Let me hear, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,
   For <in thee> have I trusted,—
   Let me know the way in which I should walk,
   For <unto thee> have I uplifted my soul.
9 Rescue me from my foes, O Yahweh,
   Unto thee have I come seeking refuge.

PSALM 144.
David's.

1 Blessed be Yahweh, my Rock,
   Who teacheth my hands to war,
   my fingers to fight:
2 My lovingkindness and my stronghold,
   My high tower and my deliverer—mine!!
   My buckler, and he in whom I have sought refuge,—
   He that subduedth my people under me.¢
3 O Yahweh! what is the earthborn,
   And yet thou hast acknowledged him,—
   The son of a mortal,
   And yet thou hast taken account of him:¢
4 The earthborn resembleth a vapour,
   His days like a passing shadow.
5 O Yahweh! bow thy heavens and come down,
   Touch the mountains, that they smoke,
   Flash forth lightning, that thou mayest scatter
   them,
   Send out thine arrows, that thou mayest confound
   them:
7 Put forth thy hands* from on high:
   Snatch me away and rescue me
   Out of the hand of the sons of the alien,—
   Whose mouth hath spoken deceit,
   And whose right hand is a right hand of falsehood:—
12 That our sons may be like plants well grown whilst yet young,—
   Our daughters like corner pillars, — carved, in the construction of a palace:
13 Our garners full, pouring out from one kind to another;
   Our flocks multiplying by thousands—by myriads, in our open fields:
14 Our oxen well-laden;
   No breaking in and no departing,—
   And no loud lament in our places of concourse:—
15 How happy the people that is in such a case!
   How happy the people that hath Yahweh for its God!

4 <Generation unto generation> shall celebrate thy works,
   And <thy mighty deeds> shall they tell:
5 <The splendour of the glory of thy majesty> shall they speak,
   And <thy wondrous> will I utter.¢
6 And <the might of thy terrible acts> shall men speak,
   And [as for thy greatness] I will recount
   it.
7 <The memory of thy great goodness> shall men
   pour forth,
   And <thy righteousness> shall they shout aloud.
8 [Gracious and compassionate] is Yahweh,—
   Slow to anger, and of great lovingkindness.¢
9 Good! is Yahweh to all,
   And [his tender compassions] are over all

PSALMS CXLV. 10—21; CXLVI.; CXLVII. 1—15.

10 All thy works, O Yahweh, will give thanks unto thee:—
And thy men of lovingkindness will bless thee:

11 The glory of thy kingdom will they tell,—
And thy power will they speak.

12 To make known to the sons of men, his mighty deeds,
And the splendid glory of his kingdom.

13 Thy kingdom is a kingdom of all ages,—
And thy dominion is over generation after generation.

14 Yahweh is ready to uphold all who are falling,
And to raise all who are laid prostrate.

15 The eyes of all shall see the do wait,
And thou givest them their food in its season.

16 Thou openest thy hand, e
And fillest every living thing with gladness.

17 Righteousness is Yahweh in all his ways,
And kind in all his works.

18 Near is Yahweh to all who call upon him,—
To all them who call upon him in faithfulness.

19 The desire of them who revere him will he fulfill,
And their cry will he hear, and will save them.

20 Yahweh preserveth all who love him,
But all the lawless will he destroy.

21 The praise of Yahweh my month shall speak,
That all flesh may bless his holy Name,
Unto times age-abiding and beyond. d

PSALM 146.

1 Praise ye Yah.
Praise, O my soul, Yahweh.

2 I will praise Yahweh while I live!
I will make melody to my God while I continue!

3 Do not ye trust in nobles,
In a son of man who hath no deliverance:
His spirit goeth forth, he returneth to his ground,
In that very day his thoughts perish.

4 How happy is he that hath the God of Jacob as his help,
Whose hope is on Yahweh his God:—

6 Who made The heavens and the earth,
The sea and all that is therein,
Who keepeth faithfulness to times age-abiding:

7 Who executeth justice for the oppressed,
Who giveth food to the famishing,
[wh: who liberareth prisoners;]
[wh: who opened the eye of the blind,]
[wh: who raiseth the prostrate,]
[wh: who loveth the righteous;]
[wh: who preserveth sojourners,]
The fatherless and widowers he relieveth,—
But the way of the lawless he overturneth.

9 Yahweh will reign, to times age-abiding,
Thy God, O Zion. To generation after generation.

Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 147.

1 Praise ye Yah.
For it is good, to make melody to our God, —
For it is delightful, seemly is praise!

2 Yahweh is building Jerusalem,
The outcasts of Israel will he gather together.

3 He is healing the broken in heart,—
And binding up their hurts.

4 Counting the number of the stars,
To all them—names he giveth.

3 Great is our Lord, b and of abounding strength,
And his knowledge cannot be expressed.

6 Yahweh relieveth the humbled! c
Casting the lawless down to the earth.

7 Respond to Yahweh with thanksgiving,
Make melody to our God with the lyre.

8 Who covereth the heavens with clouds,
Preparing rain for the earth,
Who causeth the mountains to sprout grass:

9 (Giving to the beast, its food,
To the young ravens, when they cry.

10 Not in the strength of the horse: doth he delight,
Not in the legs of a man: hath he pleasure:

11 Yahweh hath pleasure in them who revere him,
In them who wait for his lovingkindness.

12 Laud thou, O Jerusalem, Yahweh,
Praise thy God, O Zion:

13 For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates,
He hath blessed thy children in thy midst:

14 Who maketh thy boundaries to be peace,
With the narrow of wheat: doth he satisfy thee:

15 Who sendeth his utterance to the earth,
How swiftly runneth his word!

11 Some cod. (w. Sep, byr, Vul.): "Nor" ( = "And not")—G.n.

* As in Ps. cxix. 36.
PSALMS CXLVII. 16—20; CXLVIII.; CXLI.; CL. 605

18 Who giveth snow like wool,
    <Hearfrost—like ashes> he scattereth:
17 Casting forth his ice like crumbs,
    <Before his cold> who can stand?
18 He sendeth forth his word and melteth them,
    He causeth his wind to blow, the waters' stream along:
19 Declaring his word * unto Jacob,
    His statutes and his regulations, unto Israel.
20 He hath not dealt so with any nation,
And <his regulations> he maketh not known to them.
    Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 148.

1 Praise ye Yah,
Praise Yahweh, out of the heavens,
Praise him, in the heights;
3 Praise him, all his messengers,
Praise him, all his host;
4 Praise him, sun and moon,
Praise him, all ye stars of light;
4 Praise him, O ye heavens of heavens,
And ye waters' that are above' the heavens;
5 Let them praise the Name of Yahweh,
For <thee> commanded, and they were created;
6 So caused he them to stand perpetually—age-abidingly,
<A decree> hath he given, and it passeth not beyond.
7 Praise Yahweh, out of the earth,
Sea monsters, and all resounding deeps;
8 Fire and hail, snow and vapour,
Stormy wind, fulfilling his word;
9 Ye mountains, and all hills,
Fruit trees, and all cedars;
10 Thou wild-beast, and all ye cattle,
Crawling creature, and bird of wing:
11 Kings of earth, and all peoples,
Rulers, and all judges of earth;
12 Young men, yea even virgins,
Elders, and children of earth.
13 Let them praise the Name of Yahweh,
For lofty' is his Name alone,
His splendour' is over earth and heavens.

14 Therefore hath he exalted a horn for his people,
A praise' for all his men of lovingkindness,
For the sons of Israel—a people near him,
Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 149.

1 Praise ye Yah,
Sing to Yahweh a song that is new,
His praise in the convocation of the men of lovingkindness.
2 Let Israel rejoice' in him that made him,
Let the sons of Zion exult in their king;
3 Let them praise his Name in the dance,
<With timbrel and lyre> let them make music to him.
4 For Yahweh is taking pleasure in his people,
He will beautify humbled ones* with victory.
5 Let the men of lovingkindness exult as they glory,
Let them shout aloud upon their beds:
6 The high songs* of God be in their throat,
And a two-edged sword in their hand:
7 To execute An avenging among the nations,
Rebuke among the peoples:
8 To bind Their kings with fetters, and
Their honoured ones with iron bands;
9 To execute upon them the sentence written,
An honour shall it be' to all his men of lovingkindness.
Praise ye Yah!

PSALM 150.

1 Praise ye Yah,
Praise ye God in his sanctuary,
Praise him, in his strong* expansion;
2 Praise him, for his mighty deeds,
Praise him, according to* his exceeding greatness:
3 Praise him, with the blast of a horn,
Praise him, with the harp and lyre:
4 Praise him, with timbrel and dance,  —
Praise him, with stringed instrument and flute,*
5 Praise him, with cymbals of clear tone,—
Praise him, with cymbals of loud clang:
6 Let every breathing thing praise Yah,
Praise ye Yah!
SPECIAL NOTE
ON
THE PSALMS.

The exigencies of space in relation to the varying forms in which this Bible is issued afford a welcome opportunity for inserting here a Special Note on the Psalms, rather than reserve such note for the Old Testament Appendix. It will be necessary to restrict this further outgrowth from the original design of The Emphasised Bible to subjects which are in some measure peculiar to the work, leaving the student to seek elsewhere for fuller information on related topics. It will be convenient to treat, first, of some external features which are observable in the foregoing presentation of the Psalms; and, secondly, to touch upon some more essential characteristics of those precious compositions, especially in regard to certain grave questions of interpretation.

I. External Features.

1. The division of the Psalms into Books, having now been familiarised by means of the Revised Version, claims no further notice here than merely to say that the ancient issue of the Psalms is successive and enlarging collections, relieves us from all embarrassment and impulse to prejudgment, when we first find it stated at the end of the Second Book (Psalm lxxii.) that the prayers of David the son of Jesse are “ended,” and yet discover others, later on, attributed to the same author. Just as, in the Book of Proverbs, the first collection (x. to xxiv.) is supplemented by another which, at a later date, “Hezekiah and his men copied out” (xxv. 1), so later editions of the Psalms may very well contain compositions from David’s own pen which at an earlier time had not been brought to light, or had not been suitably edited for insertion among the hymns employed in the Temple service.

2. The titles of the Psalms need cause us no anxiety. That they are very ancient is evident from their appearance as translated in the Septuagint Version, but further than this we need not go: and if any Psalms, by the application of sound principles of exegesis, remonstrate against the occasion ascribed to them, we need do no more than pay respectful regard to a venerable tradition, and pass on in quest of more conclusive evidence. In particular it should be understood that the preposition generally rendered “of” in the phrase “Psalms of David,” may easily and naturally be rendered “to,” “for” “of,” or “by”—and so may be taken as the “to” of dedication, the “for” of desired use, the “of” of subject-matter, or finally the “by” of authorship—which last can itself scarcely preclude editorial preparation for liturgical use, to say nothing of perils of transcription and transmission, to guard us from which the labours of the textual critic are of such priceless worth. A Psalm “of” Asaph may have been “for” Asaph’s use, or one composed “by” him. We should scarcely think of a Psalm composed “by” the Sons of Korah; much rather “for” their use. And yet one and the same preposition serves in these several applications. An effort has been made in the foregoing version to keep the reader in the enjoyment of his legitimate freedom.

3. The word Selah has long been proof against all endeavours to resolve it. That it literally means “to lift up” has been generally admitted. But “lift up” what?—instruments or voices? And why and how lift up? And so despair has relinquished the inquiry; it was some musical note or sign—precise nature unknown. Others settled down in the conclusion that it simply or chiefly meant “Pause.” And “pause” was nearly successful; save that, to say “pause” at the end of a Psalm, seemed needless. To the Oxford Genesis belongs the merit of suggesting a more adequate explanation, the substance of which is cited in note [*] to Ps. iii. p. 530, ante. As a call upon the people to lift up their voices in praise of Yahweh, a pleasing pause for a practical purpose would be thereby constituted, and one which would suit equally the close of a strophe or the end of a Psalm; and at the same time not be wholly out of place even when it was used to mark a movement of musical rhetoric—interrupting a sentence—a movement akin to the pause for effect familiar in oratory. If the latter part of this explanation be borne in mine, the otherwise unwelcome letting in of a little extra space in connection with some of the occurrences of “Selah” in the foregoing pages, will be explained.

4. We are thus prepared for the more graphic setting of the word Hallelujah (= Hallelu Yah = “Praise ye Yah”) than was previously familiar to us; and for which we are indebted to Dr. Ginsburg. Hallelu Yah becomes the more general invitation to the people to join: Selah the more precise intimation of the points at which the loud acclaim should come in. That the two words are seldom or never found in company, may merely show that, after all, we have only glimpses of the ancient temple worship. At first it may seem a little amusing that by the simple process of resolving the word “hallelujah” into its elements and then translating it in harmony with its force and intent we actually get rid of the word (as one compound word) altogether! That is so; but consider the gain. We not only catch a fresh sight of the ancient worship as a living thing, but we gain an access to the instances in which the thrice holy Divine Name (in its abbreviated form of “Yah” or “Yah”) occurs in the Old Testament, and, to someone already familiar with the minor matter of pronunciation, it seems peculiarly becoming that the same translation that ventures upon the spelling “Yahweh” should set free from its almost meaningless combination (often flippantly ejaculated, and sometimes lightly used as a badge) the august syllable Yah. The relation of “Yah” to “Yahweh” is so generally admitted, that to accept the obvious pronunciation of the former and refuse the proposed pronunciation of the latter, would appear to be rather inconsistent.

5.—The Alphabetic Psalms claim notice, if only because—the fact that there are such Psalms has in this Bible been forced into prominence by the exhibit in the margin of the Hebrew letters which form this characteristic. It will readily be understood that in some cases these letters have been placed in the right-hand margin merely for convenience, and that they still refer to the first Hebrew word in the line. There are seven such Alphabetic Psalms—namely, xxv., xxiv., xvii., exii., exi., cix., and cxvi. To these, some scholars add Psalms ix. and x., which were perhaps originally one Psalm, and in which fragments of the alphabetic arrangement are still discernible. The 119th is the most conspicuous of these singular compositions, both owing to the number of verses headed by each Hebrew letter in succession (eight to each), and to the circumstance that the names of the Hebrew letters are preserved as paragraph headings by the Biblias in common use. The device under consideration may be described as an aedicular acrostic. Eight verses in succession begin (in the original) with aleph; then eight verses start with words beginning with beth; and so on to the end of the alphabet of 22 letters. No other Psalms follow this arrangement in all. In the other alphabetical Psalms the arrangement is less formidable; a stanza only, or a distich, or even a single line being headed by each Hebrew letter as the initial of the original word employed. This initialling device makes a singularly striking and beautiful re-appearance in the Book of Lamentations, in which book of five chapters four are alphabetical: Chapters i. and ii. having each a single alphabet, hence twenty-two verses each; Chapter iii., a triple alphabet—three alephs, three beths, etc.—hence sixty-six verses in all; Chapter iv., a single alphabet and twenty-two verses; Chapter v., still twenty-two verses, but, strange to say, no alphabet. In settling the rendering of Chapter iii., it was found easily possible to conform with four or five triplets to the same style, so far as to begin three verses in succession with the same English letter. Ordinarily, as might be anticipated, the imitation has to be given up; but this small measure of success impressed the present translator's mind with the conviction that here we have to do with something more than a literary curiosity. There must have been patient devising on the part of the author; and there must have resulted an aid to memory so effective as scarcely to have been outside the original composer's intention. Truly, a fruitful consideration, bearing on the advantages even now of memorising Holy Scripture, and on the debt of gratitude we owe to paraphrasts and hymn-writers who, by alliteration, rhythm, and rhyme, render aid to the memory of the illiterate, the sick, the blind, and the bookless—aid which tends to keep Divine truth alive in the hearts of men when they most need its influence. Incidentally, the Alphabetic Psalms may yield a valuable lesson in textual criticism. Whoever the author of any one of these Psalms may have been, the intuition comes to us with unanswerable force that if the initial alphabet is nearly unbroken, it must have been originally intended to make it perfect.

Hence, when an expert like Dr. Ginsburg says, on Psalm xxv. 2, that he thinks that instead of "O my God, in thee," it should rather be "In thee, O my God," it needs only that we notice where the former in Hebrew is Elohay, beth, the latter is Berekh, Elohay, thus perfecting the sequence of the initials by bringing the letter beth next after aleph, to feel almost certain that he is right. In like manner, when we observe that, while the nineteenth letter (kaph) is absent, the twelfth letter (beth) starts two verses in succession, we cannot avoid the conclusion that this disturbance has at some time or other crept in, even though we cannot now set the matter right; and perhaps just here it may be of no practical consequence, as some nearly synonymous word to that rendered "Behold" in verse 18, but beginning with a k, may have originally commenced that sentence. Where, however, the alphabet is complete, we rest content in the assurance that copyists have had a double safeguard against error.

6.—Something has been done in this translation to resolve the individual Psalms into groups of lines, commonly called strophes, thereby marking subdivisions likely to be of practical service, both as indicating changes of tone, topic, speaker, and drift, and as letting in what might appear to be a sudden and gradually carried away into realms of thought and feeling wholly beyond their actual circumstances. It is probable that more might have been done in this direction, even by one individual, had unlimited time and space been at command; but it may in the end be better that studious readers should help themselves by grafting personal labour upon that which here and elsewhere has been prepared to their hand. Where the interjection of "Selah" has occasioned a division which cannot be justified even by a musical imagination, let some small "closing-up" sign be inserted by the student's own hand in the margin. Where, on the other hand, smaller strophes are seen to group themselves into larger divisions, let extra space, at the larger divisions, be in like manner suggested by some appropriate token.

II.—ESSENTIAL CHARACTERISTICS.

It is impossible here to treat of many of the most obvious of these:—the adaptation of the Psalms, by reason of their direct address to Deity, to lift up man's spirit to his Maker; their powerful hold on men's deepest sympathies, in that they are sensitively in touch with a wide range of human sin and sorrow; their prevailing tendency to carry the reader onward out of darkness into light, so that although many of them commence in deepest depths of despair, their ending is mostly on the mountain top of exuberant joy; and, not to go further, the happy blending of personal interests with national and world-wide affairs, so that the piety that begins at home in the privacy of the closet and, it may be, the agonies of a broken heart, is speedily borne on eagle wings to survey the glorious majesty of the Divine Kingdom. On these and other grounds, here left untouched, the lasting popularity of the Psalms securely rests.

A few points, however, not overmuch observed, claim brief remark.

1.—The dramatic structure of a good many Psalms makes special demand on interpretative inquiry. Take the Second Psalm as an example. In reading this we listen to no fewer than four distinct voices. There is first (and last) the voice of the Psalmist himself, speaking in his own person, however truly he was led of the Spirit in what he uttered; secondly, the language attributed to the lawless conspirators against Yahweh and his Anointed One; thirdly, the counter declaration of the Most High; fourthly, the record of the Son of God, who in turn cites the terms in which he had been addressed by the Divine Father, counselling him (the Son) to ask for and obtain world-wide dominion; the whole being then concluded, as named above, by the resuming voice of the Psalmist, as timely adviser, counselling the kings and rulers of the earth to act with prudence. It is little to say that the Psalm cannot be expounded in the absence of dramatic feeling and insight; it cannot even be read with fitting expression. Perhaps the most difficult of all the dramatic Psalms is the sixty-eighth, which severely taxes, not the expositor alone, but the translator, who has to determine how to render his descriptive tenses, whether as applying to past, present, or future; and, to decide this, he seems bound to apprehend, as best he may, what is the ideal key-note of the whole of this magnificent composition. The ground-thought being almost certainly the bringing up of the ark to Jerusalem, yet how manifestly this concept shrinks into a mere point of departure for a flight into Messiah's coming kingdom, for which the Ascension of the Anointed One into heavenly glory is a stepping-stone—unless indeed our own beloved Apostle Paul is wholly at fault in Ephesians Four.

2.—This feature of dramatic structure naturally leads forward to a deeper question—that of inspirational prophetic flight into the future. Were Psalms and Prophets divinely gifted seers into futurity, or were they not? Were they—as the Apostle Peter affirms they were—taken hold of and borne along or carried away out of the present into the future? It may be conceded that to be sent back to the historical starting-points of the prophetic word is well; but to get set fast there is ill indeed. The eagle of prophecy had its nest on the rock of accomplished fact; but to that rock it was not chained. It had a pinion strong enough to bear it up towards the sun, to an elevation from which it could desory things then distant, yes, and things yet to come.

3.—This step emboldens us to take another, landing us in the midst of the problem of dispensation. What spirit are we of?—what dispensation are we in? For instance, can we, may we, dare we curse as the old Hebrews cursed—as (we might almost say) they were trained to curse? Take Psalm cix. as an example, if you wish to see how whole-hearted and with what poetry and passion they could exsor their foes. Can we curse like that? or are we in duty bound and in spirit empowered to abstain? We know well we must not curse at all.1 But how is that? It is because we have heard a Voice saying, "Bless and curse not"; because we have seen an Example which would put us to shame if we, even on the strongest provocation, dared to "breathe out threatenings and slaughter"; and, finally, because we can never think the command to abstain from cursing arbitrary so long as we realise that we are at present only followers of the Messiah in his humiliation. In this the whole question of dispensation is involved. The sword of truth is two-edged: The Church—the called-out assembly—of the Messiah cannot curse; but there is another thing she cannot do—at least if rightly guided. She cannot confound herself with the manifested, world-dominating Kingdom of God. The life of the kingdom is in her by faith—that is all: she sees the kingdom at present only from afar. By faith she brings it nigh, it is true; and that is precisely the angle of vision from which she can say and sing the songs of the kingdom which she finds in the Book of Psalms. She leaps over the intervening "strange work" of overthrowing and breaking in pieces. That belongs not to her—least of all at present. That commission is safe in immortal and unerring hands. If we are ever to join in its execution, it can only be when we have "overcome": and we cannot overcome if we fail meantime to let patience have her perfect work.2 If it might be said without presumption: When Biblical Criticism knows how to make the reasonable distinction—that what is impossible now may be possible hereafter—it may cease torturing humble souls by seeming to say that there are no Predictions of a Personal Messiah in the Old Testament. In any case, it may safely be said: That in proportion as Christians can see their way to judge simply and clearly as to what in the Psalms they may legitimately decline as inapplicable to them; and what in the Psalms they may simply defer, as unfulfilled at present; and so cease to stretch and strain the Word in order to make it suit our intermediate dispensation, to which in the main it does not belong;—so in proportion will they enjoy these admirable lyrics with a refined delight which, probably, they have not hitherto known.

The Proverbs.

1 The proverbs of Solomon, son of David, King of Israel:

2 For the knowledge of wisdom and correction,
   For discerning the sayings of intelligence;
3 For receiving the correction of prudence,
   Righteousness and justice, and equity;
4 For giving to the simple shrewdness,
   To the young man, knowledge and discretion.

5 A wise man will hear, and will increase learning,
   And a discreet man wise counsels will acquire,
6 By gaining discernment of proverb, and satire.
   The words of the wise, and their dark sayings.
7 The reverence of Yahweh is the beginning of knowledge,
   Wisdom and correction the foolish have despised.
8 Hear my son, the correction of thy father,
   And do not reject the instruction of thy mother;
9 For a wreath of beauty shall they be to thy head,
   And chains of ornament, to thy neck.
10 My son, if sinners entice thee do not consent.
11 If they say—
   Come with us,—
   Let us lie in wait for blood,
   Let us watch in secret for him who is needlessly innocent;

12 Let us engulf them, like hades, alive,
   While in health like them who are going down to the pit;
13 All costly substance shall we find,
   We shall fill our houses with spoil;
14 Thy lot shall cast into our midst,
   One pure shall there be for us all!;
15 My son, do not walk in the way with them,
   Withhold thy foot from their path.
16 For their feet do run, and haste to the shedding of blood.
17 Surely, in vain is spread the net,
   In the sight of aught that hath wings!*

18 Yet they lie in wait for their own blood,
   They watch in secret for their own life.
19 Such are the ways of every one that grasps with greed,
   The life of the owners thereof it taketh away!
20 Wisdom in the open place soundeth forth,
   In the broadways she raiseth her voice;
21 At the head of bustling streets she crieth aloud,
   At the openings of the gates in the city—her sayings she doth utter:—
22 How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity?
   And ye saucers in scoffing delight them?
   And dullaards hate knowledge?
23 Will ye turn, at my reproof?
   Lo! I will pour out to you my spirit,
   I will make known my words to you.

24 Because I called, and ye refused,
   I stretched out my hand, and no one regarded;
   But ye dismissed all my counsel, and to my rebuke would not yield;
25 I also will at your calamity laugh,
   I will mock, when cometh your dread;
26 When cometh as a crashing your dread,
   And your calamity as a storm-wind overtaketh,
   When there come upon you, distress and anguish.
27 Then will they call me, but I will not answer,
   They will seek me diligently, but shall not find me.

28 Because they hated knowledge,
   And the reverence of Yahweh did not choose;
   Consented not to my counsel,
   Disdaied all my rebuke
29 Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way,
   And with their own counsels be filled.
30 For the turning away of the simple will slay them,—
   And the carelessness of dullaards will destroy them.
31 Whereas he that hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely,
   And be at rest, without dread of misfortune.

32 My son, if thou wilt receive my sayings,
   And my commandments wilt treasure up by thee;
2 So that thou
   Direct unto wisdom, thine ear,
   Bend thy heart, unto understanding;

3 Yea if thou cry aloud,
   For knowledge utter thy voice;

4 If thou seek her as silver,
   And if she hidden treasure thou search for her.

5 Then shalt thou understand the reverence of Yahweh,
   And the knowledge of God shalt thou find.

6 For Yahweh giveth wisdom,
   <Out of his mouth> knowledge and understanding;

7 Yea he treasureth, for the upright, safety,
   A shield [is he] to them who walk in integrity.

8 To him that observeth the paths of justice,
   Yea <the way of his men> of lovingkindness he doth guard.

9 Then shalt thou understand righteousness and justice,
   And equity—every noble course.

10 When wisdom entereth thy heart,
   And knowledge into thy soul is sweet;

11 Discretion shall watch over thee,
   Understanding shall preserve thee:

12 To rescue thee from the way of the wrongful,
   From the man that speaketh perverse things;

13 From them who forsake the paths of rectitude,
   To walk in the ways of darkness;

14 Who rejoice to do wrong,
   Exult in the perversities of the wrongful;

15 Whose paths are twisted,
   And they are tortuous in their tracks:

16 To rescue thee, from the woman that is a stranger,
   From the female unknown, who with her
   <speeches seduce>;

17 Who forsaketh the friend of her youth,
   And <the covenant of her God> hath forgotten;

18 For she hath appointed, unto death, her house,
   And unto the shades, her courses;

19 None who go in unto her come back,
   Neither attain they unto the paths of life;

20 To the end that thou walk in the way of good men,
   And <the paths of the righteous> that thou observe.

21 For <the upright> shall abide on the earth,
   And <the men of integrity> shall remain therein;

22 But <the lawless> out of the earth shall be cut off,
   And <traitors> shall they tear away therefrom.

1 My son, <mine instruction> do not thou forget,
   And <my commandment> let thy heart observe;

2 For <length of days> and years of life,
   And <blessedness> shall they add to thee.

3 <Lovingkindness> and <faithfulness> let them not forsake thee,
   Bind them upon thy neck,
   Write them upon the tablet of thy heart:

4 So find thou favour and good repute,
   In the eyes of God and man.

5 Trust thou in Yahweh, with all thy heart,
   And <unto thine own understanding> do not lean;

6 In all thy ways acknowledge him,
   And <he> will make straight thy paths.

7 Do not become wise in thine own eyes,
   Revere Yahweh, and avoid evil;

8 <Healing> shall it be to thy body,
   And refreshing, to thy bones.

9 Honour thou Yahweh, with thy substance,
   And with the firstfruit of all thine increase;

10 So shall thy storehouses be filled, with plenty,
   And <with new wine> shall thy vats overflow.

11 The <chastening of Yahweh> my son, do not reject,
   Nor loathe his rebuke;

12 For <whom Yahweh loveth> he correcteth,
   He causeth pain, to the son in whom he delighteth.

13 How happy the man who hath found wisdom,
   And the man who draweth forth understanding,

14 For better is her merchandise, than the merchandise of silver,
   Yea <than gold> her increase;

15 <More precious> is she, than corals,
   Yea <none of thy delightful things> doth equal her;

16 Length of days is in her right hand,
   <In her left> are riches and honour;

17 <Her ways> are ways of pleasantness,
   And <all her paths> are peace;

18 <A tree of life> is she, to them who secure her,
   And <they> who hold her fast are every one to be pronounced happy.

19 Yahweh <in wisdom> founded the earth,
   Establishing the heavens with understanding;

20 By his knowledge the resounding deeps were burst open,
   And <the skies> drop down dew.

My son, let them not depart from thine eyes,
Guard thou counsel, and purpose:
So shall they become life to thy soul,
And an adorning to thy neck:
Then shalt thou walk securely in thy way,
And thy foot shall not stumble;
When thou sittest down thou shalt have no dread,
Yea thou shalt lie down, and sweet' shall be thy sleep.
Be not thou afraid of sudden dread,
Nor of the desolation of the lawless, when it cometh.
For Yahweh will be in all thy ways,
And will keep thy foot from the snare.
Withhold not good from them who ask it,
When it is in power of thy hand to do it:
Do not say to thy neighbour, Go and come again.
And to-morrow I will give,
When thou hast it by thee.
Devise not against thy neighbour an injury,
Seeing that the dwelleth securely by thee.
Contend not with a man without cause,
If he hath dealt thee no wrong.
Do not thou envy the man of violence,
Neither choose thou any of his ways;
For an abomination to Yahweh is the tortuous man,

But with the upright he is intimate.
The curse of Yahweh is in the house of the lawless one,
But the home of the righteous he blesseth.
Though he smite him, it shall not be hemmed in,
And if thou runnest thou shalt not stumble.
Take fast hold of correction, let her not go,
Keep her, for she is thy life.
Upon the path of the lawless do not thou enter,
And do not advance in the way of the wicked:
Avoid it, do not pass thereon—
Turn from it, and depart.
For they sleep not, unless they can do mischief,—
They rob themselves of their sleep, if they cannot cause someone to stumble.
For they consume bread gotten by lawlessness,
And wine obtained by violence they drink.
But the path of the righteous is as the light of dawn,—
Going on and brightening, unto meridian day.
The way of the lawless is like' darkness,
They know not, at what they stumble.
My son, to my words attend,
To my sayings incline thou thine ear;
Let them not depart from thine eyes,
Keep them in the midst of thy heart;
For they are', to them who find them,—
And to every part of one's flesh they bring healing.
Above all that must be guarded keep thou thy heart,
For out of it are the issues of life.

Acquire wisdom, acquire understanding,
Do not forget, neither decline thou from the sayings of my mouth.
Do not forsake her, and she will guard thee,—
Love her and she will keep thee.
The principal thing is wisdom, acquire thou wisdom,
With all thine acquisition acquire thou understanding.
Exalt her, and she will set thee on high,
She will bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her:
She will give for thy head a wreath of beauty,
A crown of adorning will she bestow upon thee.

Hear, my son, and receive my sayings,
And they will multiply to thee the years of life.
In the way of wisdom have I taught thee,
I have guided thee in tracks of uprightness.
When thou walkest thy step shall not be hemmed in,
And if thou runnest thou shalt not stumble.
Take fast hold of correction, let her not go,—
Keep her, for she is thy life.
Upon the path of the lawless do not thou enter,
And do not advance in the way of the wicked:
Avoid it, do not pass thereon—
Turn from it, and depart.
For they sleep not, unless they can do mischief,—
They rob themselves of their sleep, if they cannot cause someone to stumble.
For they consume bread gotten by lawlessness,
And wine obtained by violence they drink.
But the path of the righteous is as the light of dawn,—
Going on and brightening, unto meridian day.
The way of the lawless is like' darkness,
They know not, at what they stumble.
My son, to my words attend,
To my sayings incline thou thine ear;
Let them not depart from thine eyes,
Keep them in the midst of thy heart;
For they are', to them who find them,—
And to every part of one's flesh they bring healing.
Above all that must be guarded keep thou thy heart,
For out of it are the issues of life.

ML: "the stable part of day"—when the sun seems motionless in mid-heaven "—O.G. 463.
ML: "a light of brightness."
Remove from thee, perverseness of mouth,
And counterfeit of lips put far from thee.

Let thine eyes look, and thine eyelashes point straight before thee.

Make level the track of thy foot, that all thy ways may be directed aright:
Decline not, to the right hand or to the left,
Turn away thy foot from wickedness.

My son, attend to mine understanding; incline thine ear.
That thou mayest preserve discretion, and be wise in knowledge.

For with sweet droppings drip the lips of her that is a stranger;
And smoother than oil is her mouth.
But the latter end of her is bitter as wormwood,
Sharp as a two-edged sword.
Her feet are going down to death;
With her steps she taketh firm hold.
Her tracks have wandered she knoweth not (whither).

Now therefore, ye sons, hearken unto me,
And do not turn away from the sayings of my mouth.
Keep far from her thy way,
And do not go near the opening of her house.
Lest thou give to other men thy vigour,
And thy years, to him that is cruel.

Lest strange men be well fed by thy strength,
And thy toils be in the house of the alien.
So shalt thou give in thy latter end,
In the failing of thy flesh and of thy healthy condition.

And thou shalt say—
How! I hated correction!
And reproved my heart disdained;
Neither hearkened I to the voice of my teachers,
Nor inclined mine ear:

Soon was I in all evil,
In the midst of convocation and assembly.

Drink thou water out of thine own cistern,
And flow streams out of the midst of thine own well.
Let not thy fountains (flow over) abroad
In the streets, divisions of waters:

Let them be for thyself (alone),
And not for strangers with thee.
Let thy well-spring be blessed,
And get thy joy from the wife of thy youth:
A loving kind! a graceful doe!
Let her bosom content thee at all times,
And in her love mayst thou stay evermore.

Wherefore, then, shouldst thou stray, my son, with a strange woman?
Or embrace the bosom of a woman unknown?
For the eyes of Jehovah are the ways of a man,
And all his tracks doth he consider;
His own iniquities shall entrap him with the lawless,
And the cords of his own sin shall he be seized.
He shall die, for lack of discipline,
And by the abolishing of his perversity shall he be lost.

My son, have become surety for thy neighbour,
And have struck for a stranger thy hands.
Thou hast been snared by the sayings of thy mouth,
Thou hast been caught by the sayings of thy mouth.
Do this then, my son, and deliver thyself,
When thou hast come into the hand of thy neighbour,
Go, haste thee, and urge thy neighbour.
Do not give sleep to thine eyes, or slumber to thine eyelids.
Deliver thyself, as a gazelle out of the hand,
And as a bird out of the hand of the fowler.
Go to the ant, thou sluggard,
Observe her ways, and be wise;
Which, having no harvest, scribe, or ruler,
Prepareth in the summer her food,
Hath collected in the harvest her sustenance.
How long, O sluggard, wilt thou lie?
How long ere thou rise from thy sleep?
A little sleep, a little slumber,
A little folding of the hands to rest:
So shall come in, as a highwayman, thy poverty,
And thy want as one armed with a shield.
PROVERBS VI. 12—35; VII. 1—18.

12 <An abandoned man, a man of iniquity> [is he] who—
   Goeth on in perversity of mouth;
13 Winketh with his eyes;
   Speaketh with his foot;
   Pointeth with his fingers;
14 [Hath] perverse things in his heart,
   Deviseth mischief on every occasion,
   <Strifes> he sendeth forth.
15 <For this cause> suddenly cometh his doom,
   <In a moment> shall he be torn in pieces and there be no' mending.
16 <These six things> doth Yahweh hate—
   Yea seven are the abomination of his soul:—
17 Eyes' that are lofty,
   A tongue' that is false,
   And hands' shedding innocent blood;
18 A heart' contriving iniquitous devices,
   Feet' hast' ing to run into mischief;
19 One that uttereth lies—a false witness,
   And one sending forth strifes between brethren.
20 Observe thou, my son, the commandment of thy father,
   And do not decline from the instruction of thy mother:
21 Bind them upon thy heart continually,
   Fasten them upon thy neck;
22 <When thou walkest abroad> it shall guide thee,
   <When thou sleepest> it shall watch over thee,
   <When thou wak'st> it shall speak to thee:
23 For a lamp is the commandment,
   And the instruction a light,
   And the way of life are the reproofs of
   correction:
24 To keep thee from the wicked woman,
   From the flattery of the tongue of her that is a stranger.
25 Do not covet her beauty, in thy heart,
   Neither let her take thee, by her eyelashes;
26 Because for the sake of an impure woman
   [a man may be brought] even to a cake of bread,—
   And a man's wife
   <For a precious soul> may hunt!
27 Can a man snatch up fire in his bosom,
   And ||his clothes|| not be burned?
28 Or can a man walk upon hot coals,
   And ||his feet|| not be burned?
29 ||Sloth|| he that goeth in unto his neighbour's wife,
   No man shall be guiltless who toucheth her!
30 Men despise not a thief, when he stealth, To satisfy his appetite, because he is famished;
31 Yet <if found> he must pay back sevenfold,
   <All the substance of his house> must he give:

22 ||He that committeth adultery with a woman||
   lacketh sense,*
   ||A destroyer of his own life|| is he' that doeth it;
23 <Smiting and shame> shall lie find,
   And ||his reproach|| shall not be wiped out;
24 For ||jealousy|| is the rage of a man,
   Nor will he spare, in the day of avenging;
25 He will not look, at any ransom,
   Neither will he consent, though thou increase the brie.

1 My son, keep my sayings, And <my commandments> treasure by thee;
2 Keep my commandments and live,
   And mine instruction, as the pupil d of thine eye;
3 Bind them upon thy fingers,
   Write them on the tablet of thy heart;
4 Say unto wisdom, <My sister> thou!
   And <an acquaintance> call thou ||understanding||:
5 That thou mayest be kept, from the woman that is a stranger,
   From the female unknown, who ||with her
   speeches|| doth flatter.
6 For <in the window of my house>,
   Through my lattice I looked out;
7 And saw among the simple ones.
   Discerned among the youths,
   A young man lacking sense;
8 Passing through the street, near her corner,
   And <on the way to her house> he sauntered along;
9 In the twilight, in the evening of the day,
   In the midst of the night, and the gloom;
10 And lo! ||a woman|| came to meet him,
   Attired as one unchaste, of a wily heart.
11 <Boisterous> is she, and rebellious,
   <In her house> abide not her feet;
12 Now' outside, now' in the broadways,
   And <near every corner> she lieth in wait;
13 So she caught him, and kissed him,
   And <emboldening her face> she said to him:
14 ||Peace-offerings|| are by me,
   <To-day> have I paid my vows;
15 <For this cause> came I forth to meet thee,
   To seek diligently thy face, and I have found thee:
16 Coverlets> have I spread on my couch of pleasure,
   Dark-hued stuffs, of the yarn of Egypt;
17 I have sprinkled my bed,
   With myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon:
18 Come! let us take our fill of endearments,
   until morning,
   Let us delight ourselves with caresses;

 b U: "soul."
* Sep. adds:—
   "My son, honour thou Yahweh, and be bold,
   And <apart from him> be afraid of no other."
For the husband is not in his house, He hath gone on a journey afar;

<A bag of silver> hath he taken in his hand,

On the day of the full moon will he enter his house.

She turneth him aside, with her great persuasiveness,

With the flattery of her lips she compasseth him:

Going after her instantly,

As an ox, to the slaughter, he entereth,
And, as in fetters, unto the correction of a fool.

Until an arrow cleaveth his liver, As a bird hasteth into a snare, And knoweth not, that <for his life> it is!

Now, therefore, ye sons, hearken unto me, And attend, to the sayings of my mouth.

Let not thy heart turn aside to her ways, Do not go astray in her paths.

For many, wounded hath she caused to fall,— Yea strong men, slain wholly by her:

Ways to hades are in her house, Descending into the chambers of death.

Doth not wisdom cry aloud? And understanding send forth her voice?

At the top of the high places above the way, At the place where paths meet she taketh her stand;

Beside the gates, at the entrance of the city,— At the going in of the openings she shouteth:—

Unto you, O men, I call, And my voice is unto the sons of men; Understand, ye simple ones, shrewdness, And ye dullards understand sense; Hear for princely things will I speak, And the opening of my lips shall be of equity;

For faithfulness shall my mouth softly utter, But the abomination of my lips shall be lawlessness;

In righteousness shall be all the sayings of my mouth, Nothing therein shall be crafty or perverse;

All of them shall be plain, to them who would understand, And just, to such as would gain knowledge.

Receive my correction, and not silver, And knowledge, rather than choicest gold.

For better is wisdom, than ornaments of coral, And no delightful things can equal her.

Wisdom inhabiteth shrewdness, And the knowledge of sagacious things I gain.

The reverence of Jehovah is to hate wickedness: Pride, arrogance, and the way of wickedness; And a mouth of perverse things do I hate.

Mine are counsel, and effective working, I am understanding, mine is valour:

By me kings reign, And dignitaries decree righteousness:

By me rulers govern, And nobles—all the righteous' judges:

I love them who love me, And they who diligently seek me find me:

Riches and honour are with me, Lordly wealth, and righteousness;

Better is my fruit, than gold—yea fine gold, And mine increase, than choice silver:

In the way of righteousness I march along, In the middle of the paths of justice:

That I may cause them who love me to inherit substance, And their treasuries I may fill.

Yahweh had constituted me the beginning of his way, Before his works, At the commencement of that time;

At the outset of the ages had I been established,

In advance of the antiquities of the earth;

When there was no resounding deep I had been brought forth, When there were no fountains, bounding with water;

Ere yet the mountains had been settled, Before the hills had I been brought forth;

Or ever he had made the land and the wastes, Or the top of the dry parts of the world;

When he prepared the heavens there was I:

When he decreed a vault upon the face of the resounding deep;

When he made firm the skies above, When the fountains of the resounding deep waxed strong;

When he fixed for the sea its bound, That the waters should not go beyond his bidding, When he decreed the foundations of the earth:

Then became I beside him, a firm and sure worker, Then became I filled with delight, day by day,

Exulting before him on every occasion;

Exulting in the fruitful land of his earth, Yea, my fulness of delight was with the sons of men.

Or (mf.): "make righteous decrees."
c Written: "her"—read: "me." Some cod. (w. 1 ear. edns., Aram., Syr., Sep. and Vul.) both wrote and read: "me"—G.n.
d Sep. here adds:—"If I tell you the things which daily come to pass I must mention those which from the outset of the ages may be recounted."—G.n.

"first of the earth-particles"—O.G.

"Adam."
Now therefore ye sons, hearken to me, For how happy are they who pay regard!

Hear ye correction, and be wise, And do not neglect.

How happy the man that doth hearken to me,— Keeping guard at my doors, day by day, Watching at the posts of my gates;

For he that findeth me findeth life, And hath obtained favour from Yahweh;

But he that misseth me wrongeth his own soul.

All who hate me love death.

1 Wisdom hath builded her house, hath hewn out her seven pillars; hath slaughtered her beasts, hath mingled her wine, hath even set in order her table; sent forth her maidens, She crieth aloud: Upon the tops of the heights of the city:

Whoso is simple, let him turn in thine heart, <As for him that lacketh sense> she saith to him—

Come, feed on my food, And drink of the wine I have mingled;

Forsake the simple ones, and live, And advance in the way of understanding.

He that rebuketh a scoffer getteth to himself contempt,

And he that reproveth a lawless man getteth to himself his shame.

Do not reprove a scoffer lest he hate thee, Reprove a wise man, and he will love thee.

Give to a wise man, and he will be wiser still,

Inform a righteous man, and he will increase learning.

The beginning of wisdom is the reverence of Yahweh, And the knowledge of the Holy is understanding;

For shall be multiplied—thys days, And there be added to thee—the years of life.

If thou art wise thou art wise for thyself, But if thou scoff | alone shalt thou bear it.

The woman Stupidity is boisterous, So simple that she knoweth not what she would do;

So she sitteth at the entrance of her house, Upon a seat, in the heights of the city;

To invite them who pass by the way, Who are going straight on in their paths:

Whoso is simple let him turn aside hither, And as for him that lacketh sense she saith to him:

Stolen waters will be sweet,— And a secret meal will be pleasant;

But he knoweth not, that the shades are there; In the depths of hades are her guests.

The Proverbs proper—the First and Principal Collection (Chapters X. to XXIV.).

The Proverbs of Solomon:

A wise son maketh a glad father, But a foolish son is the grief of his mother.

The treasures of lawlessness do not profit, But righteousness delivereth from death.

Yahweh suffereth not to famish the soul of the righteous, But the desire of the lawless he thrusteth away.

He becometh poor, who dealeth with a slack hand, But the hand of the diligent maketh rich.

He that gathereth in summer is a prudent son, He that sleepeth long in harvest is a son causing shame.

Blessings are for the head of the righteous man, But the mouth of the lawless covereth up wrong.

The memory of the righteous yieldeth blessing, But the name of the lawless dieth out.

The wise in heart will accept commandments, But he that is foolish with his lips shall be thrust away.

He that walketh uprightly may walk securely, But he that maketh crooked his ways shall be found out.
10. "He that winketh with the eye causeth sorrow, and he that is foolish with his lips shall be thrust aside."

11. "A well-spring of life" is the mouth of the righteous, but the mouth of the lawless covereth wrong.

12. "Hatred stirreth up strife, but over all transgressions love throweth a covering.

13. "In the lips of the intelligent is found wisdom, but a rod is for the back of him that lacketh sense."

14. "Wise men treasure up knowledge, but the mouth of the foolish is a terror near at hand."

15. "The substance of the rich is in his strong city, but the terror of the poor is their poverty.

16. "The labour of the righteous leadeth to life, but the increase of the lawless to sin.

17. "On the way to life is he that heeddeth correction, but he that hateth reproof goeth astray.

18. "He that concealeth hatred hath false lips, and he that sendeth forth slander is a d一张lard.

19. "In the multitude of words there wanteth not transgression, but he that restraineth his lips sheweth prudence.

20. "Choice silver" is the tongue of the righteous, but the sense of the lawless is very small.

21. "The lips of the righteous feed multitudes, but the foolish shall die.

22. "The blessing of Yahweh maketh rich, and he addeth no grievance therewith.

23. It is a mere sport to a stupid man to commit lewdness, but wisdom pertaineth to a man of understanding.

24. "The dread of the lawless one shall overcome him, but the desire of the righteous shall be granted.

25. "Like the passing away of a tempest so the lawless one is not, but the righteous hath an age-abiding foundation.

26. "As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes so is the sluggard to them who send him.

27. "The reverence of Yahweh addeth days, but the years of the lawless shall be shortened.

28. "The hope of the righteous shall be gladness, but the expectation of the lawless shall vanish.

29. "A refuge for the blameless is the path of Yahweh, but destruction awaiteth the workers of iniquity.

30. "The righteous shall times age-abiding remain unshaken, but the lawless shall not inhabit the earth.

31. "The mouth of the righteous shall beareth the fruit of wisdom, but a perverse tongue shall be cut off.

32. "The lips of the righteous know what is pleasing, but the mouth of the lawless speaketh perversities.

1. "A deceptive balance" is an abomination to Yahweh, but a full weight is his delight.

2. "When pride cometh then cometh contempt, but with the modest is wisdom.

3. "The integrity of the upright shall guide them, but the crookedness of the treacherous shall be their ruin.

4. "Wealth shall not profit in the day of wrath, but righteousness shall deliver from death.

5. "The righteousness of the blameless shall smooth his way, but by his own lawlessness shall the lawless fall.

6. "The righteousness of the upright shall deliver them, but by their own craving shall the treacherous be captured.

7. "When the lawless man dieth his expectation perisheth, and the hope of strong men was vanished.

8. "The righteous man out of distress is delivered, then cometh a lawless man into his place.

9. "With the mouth a profane man destroyeth his neighbour, but through knowledge shall righteous men be delivered.

10. "When it is well with the righteous the city exulteth, when the lawless perish there is a shout of triumph.

The light of the righteous rejoiceth,
But the lamp of the lawless goeth out.

Only by pride doth one cause contention,
But with the well-advised is wisdom.

Wealth gotten by greed diminisheth,
But he that gathereth by little increaseth.

Hope deferred sickeneth the heart,
But a tree of life is desire fulfilled.

He that despiseth a matter shall get pledged thereto,
But he that revereth a commandment the same shall be recompensed.

Schackness doth not start its game.
So O.O. 30, 677. But Gt. that instead of “the path thereof” shd be read: “an abominable way,” in which case we must needs adopt his next v.r. (“of for ‘of’) and complete the line thus: “But an abominable way leadeth to death” — G.n.
Or: “life.”
Or: “appetite.”
Or: “be made fat.”
Or: “be made fat.”
ML: “soul.”
Gt.: “an iniquity.”
Gt.: “with the modest.”
Chap. xi. 9—G.n.
Chap. xx. 21—G.n.
ML: “on the hand.”
Sep. and Syr. add: —
“arighteous man careth not his welfare and lendeth; Better is he that sustaineth the heart at the beginning Than he that inspireth confidence and deferreth hope.”
Sep. and Syr. add: —
“A crafty son hath nothing good, But as for a wise servant his doings prosper, and his way is directed aright” — G.n.
PROVERBS XIII. 14—25; XIV. 1—23.

14 ||The instruction of the wise|| is a well-spring of life, By departing from the snares of death.
15 ||Sound discretion yieldeth favour,|| But the way of the treacherous is rugged.
16 Every prudent man maketh use of knowledge, But a dullard spreadeth folly.
17 A lawless messenger falleth into mischief, But a faithful herald bringeth healing.
18 Poverty and contempt are for him that neglecteth correction, And he that regardeth reproof shall be honoured.
19 A desire fulfilled is sweet to the soul, But it is an abomination to the lawless to depart from evil.
20 ||He that walketh with the wise|| becometh wise, But the friend of dullards becometh foolish.
21 Evil pursueth sinners, But unto the righteous shall good be recompensed.
22 A good man leaveth an inheritance to children’s children, But laid up for the righteous is the wealth of the sinner.
23 ||Much food|| is in the fallow ground of the poor, But there is that is swept away, for want of justice.
24 ||He that withholdeth his rod hateth his son,|| But he that loveth him carefully correcteth him.
25 ||The righteous|| eateth to satisfy his appetite, But the belly of the lawless shall want.

14 | 1 Every wise woman buildeth up her house, But a foolish one <with her own hands> would break it down.
2 ||He that walketh in his uprightness|| is one who revereth Yahweh, But he that is crooked in his way is one who despiseth him.
3 ||In the mouth of the foolish|| is a haughty rod, But as for the lips of the wise thou shalt give heed to them!
4 ||Without cattle|| the crib is clean, But much increase is in the strength of the ox.

a Sep. adds:
"And ||the knowledge of the law|| is ||good understanding,|| But ||etc.|| as in text.||—G.n.

"Or: ||‘is pleasing before a man.’

6 ||A faithful witness will not deceive,|| But a false witness ||uttereth deceitful things.||
7 ||A scoffer seeketh wisdom, and there is none,|| But knowledge ||to the discerning is easy.
8 ||The wisdom of the prudent is to understand his way,|| But the folly of dullards is a fraud.
9 ||The foolish scoff at guilt,|| But <between the upright> is good pleasure.
10 ||The heart knoweth its own bitterness,|| And <in its joy> no stranger shareth.
11 ||The house of the lawless shall be destroyed,|| But the tent of the upright shall flourish.
12 There is  ||are the ways of death!
13 ||Even in laughter> the heart may be in pain, And the latter end of gladness shall be grief.
14 ||With his own ways shall be filled the backslider in heart,|| And <from himself> shall a good man be satisfied.
15 ||The simple believeth every word,|| But the prudent looketh well to his going.
16 ||A wise man feareth, and avoideth evil,|| But a dullard is haughty and confident.
17 ||The impatient worketh folly,|| And a man of wicked devices is hated.
18 The simple inherit folly, But the shrewd crowneth himself with knowledge.
19 Abased are the wicked, before the good, And the lawless, at the gates of the righteous.
20 ||Even by his neighbour|| is a poor man hated, But the lovers of the rich men are many.
21 ||He that sheweth contempt for his neighbour sinneth,|| But he that sheweth favour to the afflicted> how happy is he!
22 Shall they not ||become vagrants, who devise evil?|| But ||lovingkindness and faithfulness|| be to them who devise good.
23 ||By all labour|| there will be abundance, But the talk of the lips tendeth only to want.
24. "The crown of the wise is their wealth, But the folly of dullards is folly.
25. A deliverer of souls is a faithful witness, But he that uttereth falsehoods is a fraud.
26. In the reverence of Yahweh is strong security, And his children shall have a place of refuge.
27. The reverence of Yahweh is a well-spring of life, That a man may avoid the snares of death.
28. In the multitude of a people is the majesty of the king, But in the ceasing of population is the ruin of the prince.
29. One slow to anger hath great understanding, But the hasty in spirit exalteth folly.
30. The life of the whole body is a tranquil mind, But decay of the bones is jealousy.
31. The oppressor of the poor hath reproached his Maker, But he that sheweth favour to the needy, is one who holdeth Him in honour.
32. By his own wickedness shall the lawless man be thrust down, But the righteous seeketh refuge in his integrity.
33. In the heart of the intelligent reposes wisdom, But in the midst of dullards it maketh itself known.
34. Righteousness exalteth a nation, But a reproach to any people is sin.
35. The good-pleasure of a king is due to a servant who is discreet, But his indignation shall be against him that bringeth shame.

15. A soft answer turneth away wrath, But a cutting word raiseth anger.
2. The tongue of the wise adorneth knowledge, But the mouth of dullards belcheth out folly.
3. In every place are the eyes of Yahweh, Observing the evil and the good.
4. Gentleness of the tongue is a tree of life, But crookedness therein a grievous wound in the spirit.
5. A foolish son spurneth the correction of his father, But he that heeddeth a reproach sheweth prudence.

6. The household of the righteous man is a great treasure, But in the increase of the lawless is disturbance.
7. The lips of the wise scatter abroad knowledge, But the heart of dullards is not right.
8. The sacrifice of lawless men is an abomination to Yahweh, But the prayer of the upright is his delight.
9. An abomination to Yahweh is the way of the lawless, But the pursuer of righteousness loveth.
10. There is grievous correction for him that forsaketh the right path, But he that hateth rebuke shall die.
11. Hades and destruction are before Yahweh, How much more then, the hearts of the sons of men.
12. A scoffer loveth not one who reproveth him, Unto the wise doth he not go.
13. A joyful heart maketh a pleasing countenance, But in sorrow of heart is a stricken spirit.
14. The heart of the intelligent seeketh knowledge, But the mouth of dullards feedeth on folly.
15. All the days of the afflicted are sorrowful, But a cheerful heart is a continual banquet.
16. Better is a little, with the reverence of Yahweh, Than great treasure, and disquietude therewith.
17. Better is an allowance of herbs and love there, Than a fatted ox, and hatred therewith.
18. A wrathful man stirreth up strife, But he that is slow to anger calleth contentation.
19. The way of the sluggard is like a thorn hedge, But the path of the upright is a raised road.
20. A wise son maketh a glad father, But a dullard despieth his own mother.
21. Folly is joy to him that lacketh sense, But a man of understanding taketh a straight course.
22. Plans are frustrated, for lack of consultation, But the multitude of counsellors shall counsel.

23 A man hath joy, in the answer of his own mouth,
And a word in its season—how good!

24 The way of life is upwards to the prudent,
That he may depart from hades beneath.

25 <The house of proud men> will Yahweh tear down,
But he will maintain the boundary of the widow.

26 <An abomination to Yahweh> are the plottings of the wicked,
But <with the pure> are sayings of sweetness.

27 He that troubleth his own house who grasareth with greed,
But he that hateth gifts* shall live.

28 The heart of the righteous studieth to answer,
But the mouth of the lawless belcheth out mischief.

29 Far off is Yahweh, from the lawless,
But <the prayer of the righteous> will he hear.

30 The sparkling of bright eyes rejoiceth the heart,
[Good news] giveth marrow to the bones.*

31 The ear that heareth the reproof which giveth life
<In the midst of the wise> shall remain.

32 He that declineth correction [despieth his own soul],
But he that heareth reproof shall gain sense.

33 The reverence of Yahweh is the correction of wisdom,
And <before honour> is humility.

16 <To man> belong the preparations of the heart,
But <from Yahweh> cometh the answer of the tongue.

2 All the ways of a man may be pure in his own eyes,
But the that testeth spirits is Yahweh.

3 Roll upon Yahweh, thy doings,
That thy plans may be established.

4 Everything hath Yahweh made for its own purpose,
Yes, even the lawless one for the day of calamity.

5 An abomination to Yahweh is every one who is haughty in heart,
Hand to hand he shall not be held innocent.*

6 By lovingkindness and fidelity shall iniquity be covered,*
And <in the revering of Yahweh> is a turning away from wrong.

7 When acceptable to Yahweh are the ways of a man>
<Even his enemies> doth he cause to make peace with him.

8 Better a little with righteousness,
Than large revenues, without justice.

9 A man's heart deviseth his way,
But Yahweh directeth his steps.

10 An oracle is on the lips of a king,
<In giving sentence> his mouth must not be unfaithful.

11 The balance and scales of justice belong to Yahweh,
And <his handiwork> are all the weights of the bag.

12 The abomination of kings is to work lawlessness,
For <by righteousness> is established a throne.

13 The delight of kings are lips of righteousness,
And <the words of uprightness> he loveth.

14 The wrath of a king [meaneth] messengers of death,
But a man who is wise will appease it.

15 In the light of a king’s countenance is life,
And <his good-pleasure> is like the cloud of harvest-rain.*

16 To acquire wisdom how much better than gold!
And <to get hold of understanding> more choice than silver!

17 The highway of the upright is to avoid evil,
[He preserveth his soul] who guardeth his way.*

18 Before grievous injury is pride!
And <before a fall> haughtiness of spirit!

19 Better is lowliness of spirit with the patient,
Than a portion of spoil, with the proud.

20 He that showeth discretion concerning a matter shall find good,
And <he that trusteth in Yahweh> how happy is he!
21. The wise in heart shall be called intelligent, And the sweetness of lips increaseth persuasiveness.
22. A well-spring of life is discretion to its owner, But its correction is folly.
23. The heart of the wise giveth discretion to his mouth, And upon his lips increaseth persuasiveness.
24. A comb of honey are pleasant words, Sweet to the taste and healing to the bone.
25. There is a way that leadeth to death, But at the latter end thereof are the ways of life.
26. The appetite of the toiler hath toiled for him, For his mouth hath urged him on.
27. An abandoned man diggeth up mischief, And upon his lips as it were a fire is scorching.
28. A perverse man sendeth forth strife, And a tattler separateth intimate friends.
29. A ruthless man enticeth his neighbour, And leadeth him in a way not good.
30. Closing his eyes to devise perverse things, Biting his lips he hath plotted mischief.
31. A crown of adornment is a hoary head, In the way of righteousness it should be found.
32. Better he that is slow to anger, than a hero, And he that ruleth his spirit, than he that captures a city.
33. Into the lap is cast the lot, But from Yahweh is its every decision.
34. A prudent servant shall rule over a son who causeth shame, And in the midst of brothers shall he share the inheritance.
35. Fining-pot for silver, crucible for gold, But he that trieth hearts is Yahweh.
36. Discord giveth heed to the aggrieving lip, Falsehood giveth ear to the destroying tongue.
37. He that mocketh the poor hath reproached his Maker, He that maketh merry at distress shall not be held innocent.
38. The crown of old men consists of children's children, And the adornment of children is their fathers.
39. Unseemly in an unworthy man is the lip of excellence, Much more in one of noble mind is the lip of falsehood.
40. A gift, in the eyes of its owner, is a stone of beauty, Whithersoever it turneth it bringeth prosperity.
41. He that hideth a transgression seeketh love, But he that repeateth a matter separateth intimate friends.
42. A reproof sinketh more deeply into an intelligent man Than a hundred stripes, into a dullard!
43. Nothing less than rebellion doth a wicked man seek, And a relentless messenger shall be sent out against him.
44. Let a bereaved bear encounter a man, Rather than a dullard, with his folly.
45. He that returneth evil for good Evil shall not depart from his house.
46. A letting forth of water is the beginning of strife, Therefore before it breaketh out abandon contention.
47. He that justifieth the lawless, and he that condemneth the righteous, An abomination to Yahweh are they both.
48. Wherefore is there a price in the hand of a dullard? That he who is without sense may acquire wisdom.
49. At all times doth a friend love, And a brother for distress must be born.
50. A man lacking sense is one who striketh hands, Giving security, before his neighbour.
51. A lover of transgression is one who loveth strife, He that heighteneth his door seeketh grievous harm.
52. The crooked in heart shall not find good, And he that is perverse with his tongue shall fall into wickedness.
53. He that begetteth a dullard it is to his own grief, Neither can the father of the base rejoice.

PROVERBS XVII. 22—28; XVIII. 1—24; XIX. 1—3.

14 The spirit of a man sustaineth his sickness, But a dejected spirit can bear it.
15 The heart of the intelligent acquieth knowledge, Yea the ear of the wise seeketh knowledge.
16 The gift of a man maketh room for him. And before great men setteth him down.
17 Righteousness is he that is first in his own cause, Then cometh his neighbour, and thoroughly searcheth him.
18 The lot causeth contentions to cease, And the mighty it parteth.
19 A brother estranged is worse than a strong city, And contentions are as the bar of a citadel.
20 Of the fruit of a man's mouth shall his inmost mind be satisfied, With the product of his lips shall he be satisfied.
21 Death and life are in the power of the tongue, And its friends shall eat its fruits.
22 Who hath found a wife hath found a blessing, And hath obtained favour from Jehovah.
23 Supplications doth the poor man utter, But the rich answereth fiercely.
24 A man having many friends shall come to ruin, But there is a loving one, who sticketh closer than a brother.

1 Better is a poor man walking in his integrity, Than one of perverse lips and a dullard.
2 Surely for the soul to be without knowledge is not good, And he that hasteth with his feet is strayed.
3 The folly of a man subverteth his way, And against Jehovah his heart is angry.
4 Wealth addeth many friends, But the poor man from his own friend is parted.
5 A false witness shall not be held innocent, And he that uttereth lies shall not escape.

18 A man seeketh for satisfaction, going his own way, Through all safe counsel he breaketh.
19 A dullard delighteth not in understanding, In nothing save the exposing of his own heart.
20 When the lawless man cometh in then cometh also contempt, And with shame reproach.
21 Deep waters are the words of a man's mouth, A bubbling brook the well-spring of wisdom.
22 To prefer a lawless man is not good, Thrusting away the righteous, in judgment.
23 The lips of a dullard enter into contention, And his mouth is for blows crieth out.
24 The mouth of a dullard is his ruin, And his lips are a snare to his heart.
25 The words of a tattler are dainties, They, therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man.
26 Surely he that is slothful in his work, Brother is he to a master at laying waste.
27 A tower of strength is the name of Jehovah, Thereinto runneth the righteous, and is safe.
28 The substance of a rich man is his strong city, And like a high wall, in his imagination.
29 Before grievous injury a man's heart is haughtiness, And before honour is humility.
30 He that answereth before he heareth is a fool, It is to him, and is reproach.

Writ.: "cometh"; read: "then cometh." Some cod. W. E. S. (ed.:) "then cometh"—O. G.
Or: "deceitful brethren"—T. G. "Very dubious"
O. G.
ML. "belly."
Sep. and Vul. here add:—"He that putteth away a good wife putteth away a blessing, And taketh a woman who is unchaste, stupid, or lawless."—G. N.
Sp. v.r. (sawr), which in some cod. (w. Aram. and Syr.) is both noisities and read—G. N. Following this v.r. and preferring read as the root at the end of the line, we might render thus:—"There are friends, who can shout for joy, But there is a loving one, who sticketh closer than a brother."
That is—Many will shout with us in prosperity, for one who will stick close to us in adversity.
Some cod. (w. Aram. and Syr.) "ways"—G. N.
6. Many will entreat the favour of a noble, and every one is a friend to a man abounding in gifts.

7. All the brethren of a poor man hate him. How much more have his friends gone far from him. He may hunt up promises—there are none.

8. He that acquireth sense loveth his own soul; he that guardeth understanding shall find blessing.

9. A false witness shall not be held innocent. And the uttereth lies shall perish.

10. Unseemly for a dulleard is delicate living. How much more for a servant to bear rule over princes.

11. The discretion of a man deferreth his anger, and his adornning passeth over transgression.

12. The growl as of a young lion is the rage of a king. But like dew upon the grass is his good pleasure.

13. Engulfing ruin to his father is a son that is a dulleard. And continuous dripping are the contentions of a wife.

14. House and substance are an inheritance from one's fathers. But from Jehovah cometh a wife who is prudent.

15. Sloth falleth into a deep sleep. And a soul that is indolent shall famish.

16. One who guardeth the commandment guardeth his life. He that is reckless in his ways shall die.

17. A lender to Jehovah is one who sheweth favour to the poor. And his good deed he will pay him back.

18. Correct thy son, because there is hope. Yet not so as to slay him let thy passion be excited.

19. A man in a rage taketh away the penalty. Nevertheless if thou let him go free the more stripes must thou add.

20. Hear counsel. Receive correction. that thou mayest be wise in time after life.

21. Many are the devices in a man's heart, but the counsel of Jehovah shall stand.

22. The charm of a man is his lovingkindness. And better a poor man than one who deceiveth.

23. The reverence of Jehovah leadeth to life. Satisfied then, let a man remain—let him not be visited by calamity.

24. A sluggard burieth his hand in the dish, even unto his own mouth will he not bring it back.

25. The scoffer thou shalt smite, and the simple shall beware. But correct a man of intelligence—he will understand teaching.

26. He that ruinieth his father, and chaseth away his mother, is a son causing shame and reproach.

27. Cease, my son, to hear instruction that would cause thee to wander from the sayings of knowledge.

28. An abandoned witness scorneth justice. And the mouth of lawless men swalloweth iniquity.

29. Prepared for scoffers are punishments. And stripes for the back of dulleards.

Wine is a scoffer, and strong drink a brawler.

1. Every one therefore who erreth therein is unwise.

2. The growl as of a young lion is the dread inspired by a king. He that provoketh him endangereth his own life.

3. Honour hath the man who sitteth away from strife. But any fool may break through.

4. By reason of the autumn a sluggard will not plough. Therefore shall he be beg in harvest, and there be' nothing.

5. Deep water is counsel in a man's heart. But a man of understanding shall draw it out.

6. A kind' man one may call a great' man. But a faithful man who can find?

7. As for a righteous man walking in his integrity How happy are his children after him.

8. A king sitting on the throne of judgment Scattereth, with his eyes, all wrong.

9. Who can say I have cleansed my heart I am pure from my sin?
PROVERBS XX. 10—30; XXI. 1—15.

10 "Divers weights, and divers measures;"
   "An abomination to Yahweh are they;" both.
11 Even by his doings doth a youth make himself known,
   Whether pure and upright be his work.
12 "The hearing ear, and the seeing eye;"
   "Yahweh hath made them;" both.
13 Do not love sleep, lest thou come to poverty,
   Open thine eyes, be satisfied with bread.
14 "Bad! bad!" saith the buyer,
   But "going his way," then he boasteth.
15 There are gold, and an abundance of corals,
   But precious jewels are the lips of knowledge.
16 Take his garment who is pledge for a stranger;—
   Then for a woman unknown accept him as surety.
17 "Sweet to a man;" may be the bread of falsehood.
   But "afterward," shall his mouth be filled with gravel.
18 "Planns—by counsel;" shalt thou establish,
   And "with concerted measures;" make thou war.
19 "A revealer of secrets;" is one who goeth about talebearing,
   Therefore with him who openeth his lips shall thou not have fellowship.
20 "Who so revileth his father or his mother;"
   His lamp shall be put out in deep darkness.
21 "An inheritance hastily gotten at the beginning;"
   "The latter end thereof shall not bring blessing;"
22 Do not say, I will requite wrong;—
   Wait thou for Yahweh that he may save thee.
23 "An abomination to Yahweh;" are divers weights,
   And deceptive balances are not good.
24 "From Yahweh;" are a man's steps,
   "A son of earth;" then—how can he discern his way?
25 "It is a snare to a man;" that he should rashly cry Holy!—
   And "after making vows;" to reflect!
26 A wise king (winnoweth out the lawless),
   When he hath turned over them the wheel.
27 "The lamp of Yahweh;" is the spirit of a son of earth,
   Searching all the chambers of the inner man.

28 "Lovingkindness and faithfulness;" will guard a king,—
   Therefore should he support, with lovingkindness, his throne.
29 "The beauty of young men;" is their strength,
   And "the ornament of old men;" a hoary head.
30 "Blows that cut in;" cleanse away wickedness,
   And "smitings;" [enter] the chambers of the inner man.
31 "Like;" channels of water; is the heart of a king in the hand of Yahweh,— Whithersoever he will he turneth it.
32 "Every way of a man;" may be right in his own eyes.
   But "he that testeth hearts;" is Yahweh.
33 "To do righteousness and justice;" is more choice to Yahweh than sacrifice.
34 "Loftiness of eyes, and ambition of heart;"
   "The lamp of the lawless;" are sin.
35 "The plans of the diligent;" tend only to abundance,
   But "of every one that is urgent;" only to want.
36 "The gaining of treasures with a tongue of falsehood;"
   "Is a vapour driven away;" [they who seek them] seek death.
37 "The violence of the lawless;" shall drag them away,—
   Because they have refused to do justice.
38 "Crooked;" is the way of a guilty man;
   But "as for the pure;" straight is his dealing.
39 "Better;" to dwell on the corner of the roof;
   Than a quarrlesome wife, and a house in common.
40 "The soul of the lawless man;" crieth mischief,
   His own friend [findeth no favour in his eyes].
41 "When the scoffer is punished;" the simple;
   "becometh wise;"
42 "When the wise is instructed;" he receiveth knowledge.
43 The Righteous One observeth the house of the lawless,—
   He is ready to cast down lawless men into misfortune.
44 "He that shutteth his ear from the cry of the poor;"
   Even he shall call, and not be answered.
45 "A gift in secret;" quencheth anger,
   And a present in the bosom; mighty wrath.
46 "It is a joy;" to a righteous man; to do justice,
   But "dismay;" to the workers of iniquity.
21. The man who wandereth from the way of discretion, <In the gathered host of the shades> shall settle down.
22. A needy man shall he be that loveth mournim, "The lover of wine and oil shall not become rich.
23. A ransom for the righteous is the lawless, And <instead of upright men> the traitor.
24. Better to dwell in a desert land Than with a woman, quarrelsome and provoking.
25. Desirable treasure and oil are in the home of the wise, But <as a man who is a dullard> will destroy it.
26. He that pursueth righteousness and loving-kindness Shall find life, righteousness and honour.
27. A city of heroes doth a wise man scale, And bringeth down the strength of its confidence.
28. [He that keepeth his mouth and his tongue] Keepeth, out of distresses, his soul.
29. [A haughty insolent one—Scoffer is his name] Is he that acteth in a transport of pride.
30. [The craving of the sluggard] killeth him, For his hands have refused to work.
31. [All the day] he greatly craveth, Whereas [the righteous] giveth, and doth not spare.
32. [The sacrifice of the lawless] is an abomination, How much more, when [with wickedness] he bringeth it in!
33. [A false witness] shall perish, But [the man who hearkeneth] with abiding effect shall speak.
34. A lawless man emboldeneth his face, But [as for the upright] he directeth his ways.
35. There is no wisdom, nor understanding, Nor counsel, to confound Yahweh.
36. The horse is prepared for the day of battle, But <to Yahweh> pertaineth the victory.
37. More choice is a name than great riches, <Beyond silver and gold> is pleasant grace.
38. The rich and the poor meet together, <The master of them all> is Yahweh.

39. [A prudent man] seeth calamity, and hideth himself, But <the simple> pass on, and suffer.
40. [The reward of humility] is the reverence of Yahweh, Riches, and honour, and life.
41. [Thorns and snares] are in the way of the perverse,— He that guardeth his soul shall be far from them.
42. Train up a youth in the direction of his duty, Even when he becometh old he will not depart from it.
43. [The rich] over the poor beareth rule, And <slave> is the borrower to the lender.
44. [He that soweth perversity] shall reap trouble, And [the rod of his wrath] shall be ready.
45. [A benevolent eye] <the same> shall be blessed, Because he hath given of his bread to the poor.
46. Drive away the scoffer, that strife may depart, And quarrel, and contempt may cease.
47. Yahweh loveth the pure in heart, Gracious are his lips, his friend is the king!
48. [The eyes of Yahweh] watch over knowledge, Therefore hath he overturned the words of the treacherous.
49. [He that oppresseth the poor, to make increase for himself, Giving to the rich] shall surely come to want.

Incline thine ear and hear the words of wise men,
Then thy heart wilt thou apply to my teaching;
For sweet shall they be, when thou shalt keep them in thine inmost mind,
They shall fit well together, upon thy lips.
That in Yahweh may be thy trust:
I have made them known to thee to-day even to thee:
Have I not written for thee noble things, with counsels and knowledge:
To cause thee to know the meaning of faithful sayings,
That thou mayest give back faithful sayings to them who ask thee.

Do not rob the poor, because he is poor,
Neither crush thou the oppressed in the gate;
For Yahweh will plead their cause,
And will despoil their despisers of life.

Do not have friendship with one given to anger,
And with a wrathful man shalt thou not enter in:
Lest thou learn his ways,
And take a snare to thy soul.

Be not of them who strike hands,
Of them who are sureties for debts:
If thou hast nothing to pay:
Why should one take away thy bed from under thee?

Do not move back the ancient boundary,
Which thy fathers made.

Seest thou a man prompt in his business?
<Before kings> shall he stand,
He shall not stand before men who are obscure.

When thou sittest to eat with a ruler,
Thou shalt consider well what is before thee;
And shalt put a knife to thy throat,
If thou art with a great appetite thou art:
Do not crave his dainties,
For the same are deceitful food.

Do not toil to get wealth,
Of thine own understanding forbear:
Wilt thou let thine eye fly uprepon, when it is nothing?
For it will sure make itself wings,
Like an eagle will it wing its way across the heavens.

Do not eat the food of him that hath a begrudging eye,
Neither crave thou his dainties;
For just as he hath thought in his own mind,
Eat and drink! he may say to thee,
But his heart is not with thee.
As for thy morel thou hast eaten thou shalt vomit it,
So shalt thou waste thy things so sweet.

In the ears of a dullard do not speak,
For he will despise the good sense of thy words.

Do not move back the ancient boundary,
And into the fields of the fatherless do not enter;
For their near of kin is strong,
He will plead their cause with thee.

Bring to correction, thy heart,
And thine ears, to the sayings of knowledge.

Do not withhold, from a child, correction,
<When thou smitest him with the rod> he shall not die:
Thou shalt smite him,
And his soul from hades shalt thou deliver.

My son! if thy heart be wise
My heart shall rejoice even mine.

So shall my reins exult,
When thy lips speak the things that are right.

Let not thy heart be envious of sinners,
Only of the reverence of Yahweh, all day long;
For surely there is a future,
And thine expectation shall not be cut off.

Hear thou my son, and be wise,
And lead forward, in duty, thy heart.

Do not be among them who tipple with wine,—
Among them who are gluttons;
For the tippler and the glutton shall come to poverty,
And shall Slumber put on!

Hearken to thy father here, who begat thee,
And despise not when she is old [thy mother].

Truth buy thou, but do not sell,
Wisdom, and correction, and understanding.
24 [Greatly shall exult] the father of a righteous man,
And [the that begetteth a wise son] shall rejoice in him:
Rejoice shall thy father and thy mother,
Yea she [shall arouse] who bare thee.
Oh give, my son, thy mind unto me,
And let thine eyes observe my ways;
For a deep sleep is the unchaste woman,
And a narrow path the female unknown;
Yea [as for prey] lieth in wait,
And the treacherous among mankind she causeth to abound.
Who hath woe?
Who hath outcry of pain?
Who hath contentions?
Who hath complaining?
Who hath needless wounds?
Who hath dulness of eyes?
They who tarry over wine,
They who go in to search for mixed wine.

Do not look on wine when it becometh red,
When it giveth in the cup its sparkle; it gildeth down smoothly.
It is an evil of thee to give it to one.
And like a viper doth it sting.
Thine eyes will see strange women,
And thy heart will speak perverse things:
So shalt thou become as one lying down in the heart of the sea,—
Or as one lying down on the top of the mast gear:—
They smote me—I felt no pain,
They struck me down—I noticed it not,—
When shall I wake up?
I will go on, I will seek it again!!

24 1 Be not thou ensior of wicked men,
Neither crave to be with them;
For violence their heart muttereth,
And mischief their lips do speak.

1 In wisdom is a house builded,
And in understanding is it established;
And in knowledge chambers are filled,
With all acquisitions, costly and fair.

A wise man is mighty,
And a man of knowledge becometh alert in vigour.

So read (with "and"), though not written. Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.) both write and read: "And [as]—G.n.
Or: "attention." U.: "heart.
Written: "delight in;"
read: "observe;" Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns. Arm, Sep, Syr, Vul.) both write and read: "observe—G.n.

 That is, in the lock-out basket at the masthead."—O.G.
[Better a wise man than a mighty]—G.n.
Aram. and Syr.: "And a man of knowledge than one who is alert in vigour.

Surely [with concerted measures] shalt thou make for thyself war,
And [success] lieth in the greatness of the counsellor.
[Unattainable] to a foolish man are the dictates of wisdom.
In the gate he openeth not his mouth.
He that deviseth to do mischief shall men call a master of plots.
The purpose of folly; is sin,
And an abomination to mankind is a buffoon.
Thou hast been slothful in the day of straitness.
Strait is thy strength.
Deliver thou such as are being led forth to death,
And them who are tottering to slaughter; oh that thou wouldst hold back!
Though thou say, Lo! we knew not this;
Shall not he that proveth hearts, himself discern
And he that formeth thy soul, himself know?
And bring back to a son of earth according to his deed?
My son, eat thou honey, because it is good,—
And droppings from the comb [because they are] sweet to thy palate;
Thus] take knowledge of wisdom, for thine own soul;
If thou find it: then there is a future,
And thine expectation shall not be cut off.

1 Do not lie in wait, thou lawless man, against the home of the righteous,— Neither destroy thou his place of rest;—
For [seven times] may the righteous fall and yet arise,
But lawless men shall stumble into calamity.
When thine enemy falleth do not thou rejoice,
And when he stumbleth let not thy heart exult:
Lest Yahweh see it, and it be wicked in his eyes,
And he turn away from him his anger.
Burn not with vexation against evildoers;
Not envious of lawless men;
For there shall be no future for the wicked;

The lamp of the lawless shall go out.
Revere thou Yahweh, my son, and the king,
And with the fickle have thou no fellowship;
PROVERBS XXIV. 22—34; XXV. 1—17.

22 For <suddenly> shall arise their calamity;
And <the misfortune of their years> who knoweth??
23 These things also concern the wise,
<To take note of faces in judgment> is not good.
24 <He that saith to the lawless man>
||Righteous thou art||
Peoples shall denounce' him,
Populations shall curse him;
25 But <to reprovers> one should be pleasant,
And <upon them> should come an excellent blessing:
26 <Lips> should one kiss
With one who answereth in rightb words.
27 Prepare <in the open> thy work,
And make ready <in the field> for thyself,
<Afterwards> shalt thou build thy house.
28 Do not become a needless' witness against thy neighbour,
So mightest thou open too wide thy lips:
29 Do not say—
||According to what he hath done to me||
||So will I do to him,||
I will repay every one according to his work.
30 <By the field of the sluggard> I passed,
And by the vineyard of a man lacking sense;
31 And lo! There had come up all over it—thorns,
Therm had covered the face thereof—thistles,
And <the stone fence thereof> had been thrown down.
32 So I observed it: <for myself> I applied my heart,
I looked—I accepted correction:
33 A little sleep,
A little slumber,
A little folding of the hands to rest:
34 So shall come in, as a highwayman, thy poverty,
And ||thy want|| as one armed with a shield.

A Supplementary Collection of Proverbs.
(Chapters XXIV. to XXIX.)

1 These also are proverbs of Solomon,—which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah transcribed.
2 ||The glory of God|| is to conceal a thing,
But ||the glory of kings|| is to search out a thing.

3 <The heavens for height, and the earth for depth.>
But ||the heart of kings|| cannot' be searched.
4 <Remove the dross from the silver>
And there cometh forth, to the refiner, a vessel:
5 <Remove a lawless man from before the king>
That his throne ['may be established in righteousness.]
6 Do not honour thyself before a king,
Nor <in the place of great men> do thou stand;
7 For better it be said to thee. Come up hither,—
Than that thou be put lower down before a noble,
Whom thine own eyes ['have beheld.]
8 Do not go forth to strive in haste,—
Lest [thou know not] what to do in the latter end thereof,
When thy neighbour ['hath put thee to shame.]
9 <Thy contention> urge thou with thy neighbour,
And <the secret of another> do not reveal:
10 Lest he that heareth expose thee,
And ||the report concerning thee> turn not away.
11 <Golden fruit in figured silver baskets>
Is a word spoken on fitting occasion.
12 <A ring of gold, and a vessel of precious metal>
Is a wise reprover, on a hearing ear.
13 <As the cold of snow in the day of harvest>
Is a faithful messenger to them who send him,—
When <the life> of his masters> he restoreth.
14 <Clouds and wind, when rain there is none>
Is the man who boa-theth himself of a pretended gift.
15 <By long patience> is a judge persuaded,
And ||a soft tongue|| breaketh the bone.
16 <Honey having found> eat to suffice thee,
Lest thou loathe it, and vomit it forth.
17 Withhold thy foot from the house of thy neighbour,—
Lest he be weary of thee, and hate thee.

8 Sep. here adds:—
||A son who watcheth a matter outside shall belong to the place of destruction.||
It will surely receive him,
Nothing false <from the mouth of a king> should be uttered,
And <nothing false> <from his tongue> should go forth;
A ||word> is the tongue of a king, and not one of flesh,
And: he that is delivered up shall be slain;
For <if his anger be kindled> with vigour will he destroy men,
And <bones of men> will he break,
And consume like an unquenchable flame, So that he shall not become food for young eagles."
"Correct or honest"—O.G.
Mi. ||"heart."|| Cp. vi. 32, n.

9 Sep. here adds:—
"But thou shalt be, on thy part, like death:
<For favour and love> will he freely give."
"The same> shalt thou keep to thyself,
Lest thou become a reproach,
But guard thy ways with uprightness."—G.n.

10 Y. ||"soul."||
Mi. ||"a gift of falsehood."

18 <A hammer and a sword, and a sharpened arrow> Is a man becoming a false witness against his neighbour.
19 <A broken tooth and a faltering foot> Is confidence in the treacherous, in the day of danger.
20 <As splendour of dress on a cold day—vinaigre upon niter> So is a singer with songs, unto a sad heart.
21 <If he that hateth thee hunger> give him bread to eat, And <if he be thirsty> give him water to drink; For <burning coals> shall thou be heaping <upon his head,— And <Yahweh> will repay thee.
23 <[A north wind] bringeth forth rain> And <[a face stirred with indignation] a secretive tongue.> <Better to dwell on the corner of the roof> Than a quarrelsome wife, and a house in common. b
25 <As cold water to a thirsty soul> So is a good report from a far country.
26 <A fountain fouled, a spring spoiled> Is a righteous man tottering before one who is lawless.
27 <To eat honey in abundance> is not good, Nor is <[searching out their own honour] an honourable thing.> <As snow in summer, and as rain in harvest> ||So|| unbecoming to a dullard is honour.
28 <As a sparrow in wandering, as a swallow in flying> ||So|| [a causeless curse] shall not <alight.> <A whip for the horse, a bridle <for the ass> And a rod for the back of dullards.
29 Do not answer a dullard, according to his folly, Lest [even thou thyself] become like’ him; Answer a dullard, according to his folly, Lest he become wise in his own eyes.
30 One who cutteth off feet, one who drinketh down wrong; Is he who sendeth a message by the hand of a dullard. 7
31 [Useless] are the legs of the lame> And a proverb, in the mouth of a dullard.

8 <Like tying a stone to a sling> ||So|| is he that giveth honour to a dullard.
9 A brier cometh into the hand of a drunken-man, A proverb into the mouth of dullards.
10 [As] an archer who woundeth every thing, [So] one who hireth a dullard, and a drunken crossing the sea. a
11 <As a dog> returneth unto his own vomit> ||A dullard|| repeateth his folly. b
12 Thou hast seen a man wise in his own eyes,— More hope of a dullard, than of him!
13 Saithe the sluggard, A roaring lion in the road! A tearing lion in the midst of the broadways.
14 <[The door] turneth on its hinges> And <the sluggard> upon his bed.
15 The sluggard burieth his hand in the dish, He is too lazy to bring it back to his mouth.
16 Wiser is the sluggard in his own eyes, Than <[seven persons] who can answer with judgment.> <As he who layeth hold of the ears of a dog> Is a passer-by, who giveth vent to his wrath over a quarrel [not his].
18 <As a madman throwing firebrands, arrows and death> ||So|| is a man who deceiveth his neighbour. And saith, Was not <[one] in sport? ><Without wood a fire is quenched> And <where there is no’ tattler> strife is hushed.
20 <Black coal to burning blocks, and wood to fire> So is a contentious man, for kindling strife.
22 <The words of a tattler> are dainties. d <They therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man.>
23 <Dress silver overlaid upon earthenware> So are burning lyes, with a mischievous heart.
24 <With his lyes> the hater dissembleth, But <with himself> he layeth up deceit:
25 Though he make gracious his voice do not <trust him, For <seven abominations> are in his heart.>

a This rendering of a difficult verse (see A.V. and R.V.) is in part based on a correction by Dr. Gieseb. He says that the letters shd be re-grouped, the letter also being changed to skin, so as to read <writhe—col.> and so Aram. and Syr.—O.n.
 b Sep. here adds:—"There is a shame which bringeth sin, And there is a shame which is honourable and pleasing."—O.n.
 c Lit.: the division of the verse shd be shifted thus:—"<As one who layeth hold on the ears of a passing dog> Is he who giveth vent to his wrath over a quarrel not his."—O.n.
 d "Rites greedily swallowed."—O.G. 5299. Or: "are spoken with mysterious confidence."—Fuerst. (Cp. chap. iii. 8.
 e So read; but written: "lip" (sing). Some cod. w. 6 ear. pr. edns. both <writ> and <read> "lips" (pl.—O.G.
 f Some render: "Take away"—Fuerst. Cp. T.G. and O.G.
PROVERBS XXVI. 26—28; XXVII. 1—27; XXVIII. 1—4.

26. Hatred may clothe itself with guile; His wickedness shall be disclosed in the conversation.
27. He that diggeth a pit shall fall, And he that rolleth a stone upon himself shall it return.
28. A false tongue hateth them who are crushed by it, And a flattering mouth worketh occasion of stumbling.

27. Do not boast thyself of to-morrow, For thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.

28. Let another praise thee, and not thine own mouth,
A stranger, and not thine own lips.
Heavy is a stone, and weighty is sand,—
But the vexation of a fool is heavier than both.

29. The cruelty of rage, and the overflow of anger! But who can stand before jealously?
Better is a rebuke that is open, Than love carefully concealed.
5. Faithful are the wounds of a friend, But lavished are the kisses of an enemy.
6. The surfeited soul trampleth upon droppings from the comb,
But to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet.
7. As a bird wandering from her nest,
So is a man wandering from his place.

8. Oil and perfume rejoice the heart,
The sweetness of one's friend more than fragrant wood.

9. Thine own friend and thy father's friend do not thou forsake;
But the house of thy brother do not enter, in thy day of calamity,
Better a neighbour near, than a brother far off.

10. Be wise, my son, and rejoice my heart,
That I may answer him that reproacheth me in a matter.

11. A prudent man seeth calamity—he hideth himself,
The simple pass on—they suffer.

12. Take a man's garment when he hath become pledge for a stranger,
Then accept him as surety.

13. He that blesseth his friend, with a loud voice,
In the morning early
A reproach shall it be reckoned to him.

14. A continuous dripping on a day of downpour,
And a contentious wife are alike:
15. He that hideth her hideth the wind,
And perfume his right hand may proclaim.
17. Let iron by iron become sharp,
And let a man sharpen the face of his friend.
18. He that guardeth the fig-tree shall eat the fruit thereof,
And he that watcheth over his master shall be honoured.
19. As in water face answereth to face,
So the heart of man to man.
20. Hades and destruction are not satisfied,
And the eyes of a man are not satisfied.
21. Failing pot for silver, and crucible for gold
And a man [is to be tried] by what he praiseth.
22. Though thou pound a fool in a mortar, amidst grain, with a pestle,
His folly will not depart from him.
23. Note well the appearance of thy flock,
Apply thy mind to thy herds;
24. For not age-abiding are riches,
Nor is the diadem, from generation to generation;—
25. The grass [is taken away], and the young shoot showeth itself,
And the herbage of the mountains is gathered;
26. There are lambs for thy clothing,
And for the price of thy field there are he-goats;
27. With enough goats-milk for thy food—for the food of thy household,
And a maintenance for thy maidsens.

1. The lawless fleeth when no man pursueth,
But the righteous are confident.

2. For the transgressions of a land many are the rulers thereof,
But under an intelligent and discerning man stability is prolonged.

3. A poor man, who oppresseth the helpless,
Is like a rain beating down, leaving no food.

4. They who forsake instruction praise one who is lawless,
While they who keep instruction are at strife with them.

---

So T.G., Fu., Davies. "Hearty counsel"—O.G.
"And suffer." Cp. chap. xxii. 3-G.n.
Cp. chap. xx. 16.

---
5 Wicked men consider not justice, but they who seek Yahweh consider everything.

6 Better a poor man in his integrity than one who is crooked—turning two ways, though he be rich.

7 He that keepeth instruction is a son with discretion, but a companion of squanderers bringeth shame to his father.

8 He that increaseth his substance by interest and profit is for one ready to favour the poor, doth gather it.

9 Even his prayer is an abomination.

10 He that misguideth the upright into a hurtful way shall fall, but men of integrity shall inherit good.

11 Wise in his own eyes is the man that is rich, but a poor man of discernment searcheth him out.

12 In the exulting of the righteous there is great glorying, but when the lawless arise a man must be sought for.

13 He that coveth his transgressions shall not prosper, but he that confesseth and forsaketh shall find compassion.

14 How happy the man who is ever circumspect, whereas he that hardeneth his heart shall fall into calamity.

15 A growling lion, and a ranging bear, is a lawless ruler over a poor people.

16 A leader may lack intelligence, yet abound in oppressions, of greed shall lengthen out days.

17 A man oppressed with a person’s blood shall flee, let them not hold him back.

18 He that walketh with integrity shall be saved, but he that is crooked, turning two ways, shall fall in one.

19 He that tilleth his ground shall have plenty of bread, but he that pursueth empty heads shall have plenty of poverty.

20 A man of fidelity aboundeth in blessings, but one hasting to be rich shall not be held innocent.

21 To take note of faces in judgment is not good, and for a bit of bread a man will trespass.

22 A man hasting to be rich hath an evil eye, and knoweth not when want may overtake him.

23 He that reproveth a man shall afterwards find more favour, than he that useth a flattering tongue.

24 He that robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, It is no transgression, his companion is he to one who wasteth.

25 The ambitious in soul stirreth up strife, but he that trusteth in Yahweh shall be enriched.

26 He that trusteth his own heart is a dullard, but he that walketh wisely is the same shall be delivered.

27 One who giveth to the poor shall have no want, but he that hideth his eyes shall receive many a curse.

28 When lawless men rise a common man will hide himself, but when they perish righteous men multiply.

1 He that being often reproved stiffeneth his neck, suddenly shall he be hurt, and there be no healing.

2 When the righteous become great the people rejoice, but when a lawless man beareth rule a people sigh.

3 A man who loveth wisdom gladdenth his father, but a companion of harlots destroyeth his wealth.

4 A king by justice shall establish a land, but is open to bribes bringeth it to ruin.

5 A man who flattereth his neighbour spreadeth a net over his steps.

Or: "blamelessness."
Or: "who hath holy dread continually."
Or: "of a lion (while it is devouring its prey: opposite of roar, with which it springs upon it)"—O.G. 626.
So read; but written: "hates."
ML: "the blood of a soul."
See, here adds: "Correct thy son, and he will love thee. And will give delight (or delicacies) to thy soul, Then shall not hearken to a lawless nation (or Gentile)."
GL: "shall fall into a pit."—G.n.

Cp. chap. xxiv. 29.
Some cod. (w. Arum, pr. edns., Sep.): "loving-kindness"—kedem for kered—t.m. In which case render: "And shall not know when loving-kindness overtaketh him."
ML: "a man of reproves" "who deserves them." O.G.: "a man who opposes in speaking," "like to speak against, positive in assertion"—T.G.
Or: "many."
Some cod. (w. Arum, Sep., Syr., Vul.): "when lawless men (pl.) bear rule."—G.n.
ML: "a man of presents."
PROVERBS XXIX. 6—27; XXX. 1—9. 633

6 | In the transgression of a wicked man> is a
But | the righteous| doth shout in triumph and rejoice.

7 | The righteous doth acknowledge the plea of the poor,
But | the lawless| regardeth not knowledge.

8 | Men given to mockery| inflame a city,—
But | wise men| turn away anger.

9 | A wise man pleading with a foolish man:
Whether he rage or laugh| there is no settlement.

10 | Blood-thirsty men| hate the blameless man,
And | as for the upright| they seek his life.

11 | All his anger| doth a dullard let go,
But | a wise man| <by keeping it back> stilleth it.

12 | When a ruler giveth heed to the word of falsehood>
All his attendants| become lawless.

13 | The poor man and the man of usury meet together,
He that enlighteneth the eyes of them both| is
Yahweh.

14 | When a king judgeth faithfully the poor>
His throne| to futurity shall be established.

15 | A rod with rebuke giveth wisdom,
But | a youth unrestrained| bringeth shame to his mother.

16 | When the lawless become great> transgression increaseth,
But | the righteous| shall behold their ruin.

17 | Correct thy son, that he may give thee rest,
That he may give delight to thy soul.

18 | Where there is no vision| a people is set loose,
But | he that keepeth instruction| how happy is he!

19 | By words a servant will not be corrected,
Though he perceiveth| yet is there no answer.

20 | Thou hast seen a man hasty in his words,—
There is more hope of a dullard than of him.

21 | He that dealeth tenderly with his servant from childhood,
In his after life| shall have him for a son,

22 | A man given to anger| stirreth up strife,
And | the that exceedeth in wrath| aboundeth in transgression.

23 | The loftiness of a man| layeth him low,—
But | one of a lowly spirit| shall attain unto honour.

24 | He that shareth with a thief| hateth himself,
<An oath> he heareth, yet may not tell.

25 | The fear of man| setteth a snare,
But | the that trusteth in Yahweh| shall be placed on high.

26 | Many| seek the face of a ruler,
But | from Yahweh| is the sentence of each one.

27 | An abomination to the righteous| is the man of perversity.
And | an abomination to the lawless| is a

Sententious Sayings from the Store of Agur and Lemuel (Chapters XXX. and XXXI. 1-9).

1 | The words of Agur, son of Jakeh, [even] the 30 oracle,—
The utterance of the man, for Ithiel, for Ithiel and Ucal,*
Surely <more brutish> am I than any man,
Nor doth the understanding of a son of earth pertain to me;
Neither have I learned wisdom,
Nor <the knowledge of the Holy Ones> can I acquire.

Who hath ascended the heavens and then descended?
Who hath gathered the wind into his two hands?
Who hath wrapped up the waters in a mantle?
Who hath set up all the ends of the earth?
What is his name and what the name of his son, when thou knowest?

Every saying of God is refined,
<A shield> is to them that seek refuge in him.
Do not add unto his words,
Lest he convict thee, and thou be found false.

Two things have I asked of thee,
Withhold them not from me, ere yet I die:
Vanity and falsehood remove far from me,
Neither poverty nor riches give me,
Feed me with the food appointed me:
Lest I be full, and deny.
And say—Who is Yahweh?
Or lest I be impoverished and steal,
And do violence to the Name of my God.

10 Do not slander a servant to his master;*
Lest he revile thee, and thou be found guilty.

11 A generation! <Its father> it revileth,
And <its mother> it doth not bless.

12 A generation! Pure in its own eyes,
Yet <from its filth> hath it not been bathed,

13 A generation! How lofty are its eyes,
And its eyelashes uplifted

14 A generation! <Swords> are its teeth,
And <knives> its incisors,—
To devour the humbled b out of the earth,
And the needy, from among men.

15 [The vampire] hath two daughters, Give!
Give!
[Three] there are, will not be satisfied.

16 Hades,
And barrenness,—
A land not satisfied with water,
And fire, that saith not, Enough!

17 <The eye> That mocketh a father,
And despiseth to obey a mother>
The ravens of the valley shall pick it out,
And the young of the eagle shall eat it.

18 [Three] things there are, too difficult for me,
Yea [four] which I do not understand:

19 The way of an eagle in the heavens,
The way of a serpent on the rock,—
The way of a ship in the heart of the sea,
And the way of a man with a maid.

20 [So] is the way of a woman committing adultery,—
She eateth, and wipeth her mouth,
And saith, I have done no iniquity!

21 <Under three things> a land is stirred,
Yea <under four> she cannot bear up:

22 Under a servant, when he reigneth,
And a base man, when he is surfeited with food;

23 Under a hateful woman, when she is married,
And a handmaid when she driveth out her mistress.

24 [Four] things there are, the small of the earth,—
Yet they are wiser than the wise:

25 The ants, a people [not strong],
Yet prepare they, in summer, their food;

26 The crickets, a people of [no power],
Yet set they among the crags, their house;

27 <King> is there none to [the locusts],—
Yet go forth in swarms, do they all;

28 [The lizard] with hands! reneweth its hold,—
Yet the same is in the palaces of the king.

29 Three things there are, which step along well,
Yea [four] which excel in going:

30 The lion, hero among beasts,
Which turneth aside from the face of no one;

31 The greyhound,* or the he-goat,—
And a king, having a band of soldiers* with him.

32 <If thou hast acted basely by lifting thyself up,—
If thou hast plotted evil [put thy] hand to [thy] mouth!

33 Surely [the pressing of milk] bringeth forth curd,
And [the pressing of the nose] bringeth forth blood;
And [the pressing of wrath] bringeth forth strife.

1 The words of Lemuel the king,—
The strain* which was taught him by his mother:—

2 What, my son?
And what, the son of my womb?
Aye what, the son of my vows?

3 Do not give, to women, thy strength,
Nor thy ways, to them who ruin® kings.

4 It is not for kings, O Lemuel,
It is not for kings to drink wine,
Nor [for dignitaries] to desire strong drink,*

5 Lost he drink, and forget that which is decreed,
And alter the plea of any who are sorely oppressed.

6 Give strong drink, to him that is perishing,
And wine, to such as are embittered in soul:

7 Let him drink, and forget his poverty,
And <his wearying toil> let him remember no more.

8 Open thy mouth for the dumb,
For the cause of all the children of the departed.®

9 Open thy mouth—judge righteously,—
And administer justice for the poor and the needy.

ECCLESIASTES;

OR, THE PROCLAIMER.

1 The words of the Proclaimer, son of David, king in Jerusalem.
2 Vanity of vanities! saith the Proclaimer, a vanity of vanities! all is vanity.
3 What profit hath Man,—in all his toil wherewith he toileth under the sun? 4 Generation: goeth and generation cometh, but the earth: unto times age-abiding remaineth.
5 And the sun [breaketh forth], and the sun [goeth in],—yes, unto his own place he panteth, from whence he brake forth.
6 Going unto the south, and circling unto the north, circling, circling continually is the wind, and over its own circuits returneth the sun.
7 All the streams flow into the sea, yet the sea is not full,—unto the place whither the streams flow> [thither] do they again flow.
8 All words are weak, unable is any man to tell,—not satisfied is the eye by seeing, nor filled is the ear with hearing. 9 That which hath been is the same that shall be, and that which hath been done is the same that shall be done,—and there is nothing new under the sun. 10 Is there a thing, of which it can be said, See here, it is new! Already hath it been for ages, [it is something] which was before us.
11 There is no remembrance of the things before,—nor even of the things after, which shall be will there be any remembrance, with them who shall come after.
12 I, the Proclaimer, was king over Israel, in Jerusalem. And I gave my heart to seek and to search out, wisely, concerning all things which are done under the heavens,—[the same is the vexatious employment God hath given` to the sons of men, to work toilsomely therein. 14 I saw all the works which were done under the sun,—and lo! all was vanity, and a feeding on wind. 15 [That which is crooked] cannot be straight,—and [that which is wanting] cannot be reckoned. 16 Speak (I), in my heart, saying, As for me, lo! I have become great, and have gathered wisdom, beyond any one who had been before me over Jerusalem,—and my heart hath seen much wisdom and knowledge: yea I have given my heart, to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly,—I know that [even this] is a feeding on wind. 10 For <in much wisdom> is much vexation,—and [he that increaseth knowledge] increaseth pain.

Or: "the son of earth."

2 1 Said I, in my heart, Come now! I will prove thee with gladness, and look thou on blessedness,—but lo! [even that] was vanity. 2 <Of laughter> I said, Madness! and <of mirth> What can it do? 3 I sought out with my heart, to cherish with wine, my flesh,—but my heart was to guide with wisdom, even in laying hold of folly, until I should see which was blessedness for the sons of men, as to that which they could do, under the heavens, during the number of the days of their life. 4 I enlarged my works,—I built me houses, I planted me vineyards; 5 I made me gardens, and parks,—I planted in their trees of every kind of fruit; 6 I made me pools of water,—to irrigate therefrom the thick-set saplings growing up into trees: 7 I acquired, men-servants and women-servants, and the children of the household were mine,—also possessions, herds and flocks in abundance were mine, beyond all who had been before me in Jerusalem; 8 I heaped me up, both silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings, and provinces,—I provided me singing-men and singing-women, and the delights of the sons of men, a wife and wives.

So I became great, and increased, more than any one who had been before me in Jerusalem,—moreover, my wisdom remained with me, and <nothing that mine eyes asked> withheld I from them,—I did not keep back my heart from any gladness, for my heart obtained gladness out of all my toil, and so this was my portion, out of all my toil. 11 <When I> looked upon all my works, which my hands had made, and on my toil, wherein I had toilsomely wrought> then lo! [all] was vanity, and feeding on wind, and there was no profit under the sun. 12 Thus turned I, to look at wisdom, and madness, and folly,—for what can the man [do more] who cometh after the king? [save] that which is already men have done.

Then saw I>, that wisdom doth excel folly,—as far as light excelleth darkness.

<As for the wise man> [his eyes] are in his head, whereas the dullard [in darkness] doth walk,—but [I myself] knew that [one destiny:] what happeneth to them [all]. 13 Then said I, in my heart, <As it happeneth to the dullard> [even to me] will it happen, but wherefore [then] became I wise to excess? Therefore speake I, in my heart. 15 Even this is vanity. 16 For there is no remembrance of a wise man, more than of a dullard, unto times age-abiding,—seeing that <already, in the days to come> all hath been forgotten, how then cometh it that the wise man dieth equally with the dullard?

Therefore I hated life, for  was the work which was done under the sun,—for [all] was vanity, and a feeding on wind. 10 Therefore hated I, all my toil, wherein I was toiling, under the sun,—in that I should leave it for the man who should come after me; 19 and who' could know whether a <wise man> he would be or a foolish, and yet he would lord it over all my toil, wherein I had toiled and wherein I had acted wisely, under the sun,—[even this] was vanity.

Then resolved I, to give my heart over to despair,—concerning all the toil, wherein I had toiled, under the sun. 21 For here [is a man] whose toil hath been with wisdom and with knowledge and with skill,—yet <to a man who hath not toiled therein> shall he leave it as his portion, <even this> was vanity and a great vexation. 22 For what hath the man for all his toil, and for the striving of his heart,—wherein [he himself] toiled under the sun? 23 For [all his days] are pains, and <vexations> is his employment, <even in the night> his heart lieth not down,—[even this] was [vanity].

There was nothing more blessed for Man [than] that he should eat and drink, and see his desire for blessedness in his toil,—<even this> saw I myself, that [from the hand of God] it was. 22 For who could eat and who could enjoy, so well as I? 24 For <to a man who is good before him> hath he given wisdom and knowledge and gladness,—whereas <to the sinner> he hath given employment, to gather and heap up, to give to one who is good before God, <even this> was vanity, and a feeding on wind.
For every thing there is a season,—
And a time for every purpose, under the heavens:
1 A time to be born, and a time to die,—
A time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;
2 A time to kill, and a time to heal,—
A time to break down, and a time to build up;
3 A time to weep, and a time to laugh,—
A time to mourn, and a time to dance for joy;
4 A time to cast away stones, and a time to heap stones up,—
A time to embrace, and a time to refrain from loving embrace;
5 A time to seek, and a time to lose,—
A time to keep, and a time to cast away;
6 A time to rend, and a time to sew,—
A time to be silent, and a time to speak;
7 A time to love, and a time to hate,—
A time of war, and a time of peace.
What profit hath he that worketh in that wherein he himself doth toil? 11 I looked at the employment which God hath given to the sons of men to work therein: 12 Everything hath he made beautiful in its own time, also the work of the hand of man, and the thought of the heart of man: and what he hath conceived to do when he is a child hath no one after him. 13 Thou hast no power in thee, neither is there life in thee. 14 And I thought that that which was already had been, and that which shall be already shall have been; but that God seeketh that which hath been chased away.
15 Then I saw under the sun, that there was a place of justice, and there was a place of right, but there was no place of knowledge. 16 Said I in my heart, 17 Both the righteous and the wicked will God judge, for every one shall be rewarded according to his works.
18 And I thought that the sons of men should be wise in their own eyes:
19 That God might prove them, and see that they were beasts, of themselves. 20 For as the dust of the earth and the beasts thereof die,day by day, and the spirit thereof goeth on to its own place, so goeth the spirit of the sons of men, and the dust returneth to the dust. 21 Who knoweth which of the sons of men hath his birth, or which the spirit of the beasts hath its beginning, whether it ascend above, or descend below to the earth?
22 So I saw that there was nothing better than that a man should be glad in his works, for that is his portion: for who can bring him to see what shall be after him?

Then again I saw all the oppressors, 24 who were done under the sun, and lo! the tears of the oppressed, and they have no comforter, and on the side of their oppressors is power, and they have no comforter. 25 So I pronounced happy the dead, who were already dead, more than they who lived: 26 for both he who had not yet come into being, who had not seen the vexations, work, which was done under the sun. 27 Then I saw all the toil and all the skill of the work, that for this was a man envied of his neighbour, even this was vanity, and a feeding on wind. 28 The dullest one claspeth his hands, and consumeth his own flesh. 29 Better a handful with quietness, than both hands full with toil and feeding on wind.

Then again I looked at a vain thing under the sun: 30 Here is one, without a second, without son or brother, 31 he hath none, and yet there is no end to all his toil, 32 but his eye is not satisfied with riches, neither [is] that which is sown in the field 33 for whom am I toiling, and letting my soul want good? 34 Even this is vanity, yea a vexatious employment; it was. 35 Better are two than one, in that they have a good reward for their toil. 36 For if one should fall [the other] would raise up his companion, but alas! for him who is alone when he falleth, with no second to raise him up! 37 Moreover if two lie together, they have warmth, but how can one have warmth? 38 And though an enemy should prevail against one, two might make a stand before him, and is a threefold cord cannot be broken.

Better a boy, poor and wise, than a king old and stupid, who knoweth not how to take warning any longer. 38 For out of prison came he forth to reign, even in his own kingdom was he born poor.

I saw all the living, who were going hither and thither under the sun, that they were with the boy who was to be the second, who was to stand in the other's place: 39 There was no end to all the people, to all before whom he came, yet' [they who should come later] would not rejoice in him,—surely [even this] was vanity, and a feeding on wind.

5 Keep thy foot," when thou goest unto the house of God, and be more ready to hear, than dullards to offer sacrifice,—for they make no acknowledgement of doing wrong. 2 Be not rash with thy mouth, and <with thy heart> be not in haste to bring forth a word, before God,—for [God] is in the heavens, and [thou] upon the earth, <for this cause> let thy words be few. 2 For a dream cometh through the multitude of business,—and the voice of a dullard is with a multitude of words.

4 <When thou vowest a vow unto God> do not defer to pay it, for there is no pleasure in dullards,— <what thou vowest> pay! 5 Better' that thou shouldest not vow,— than vow, and not pay. 6 Do not let thy mouth cause thy flesh to sin,—neither say thou, before the messenger, 6 that it was [a mistake],—wherefore should God be indignant at thy voice, and destroy the work of thy hands? 7 For [it was done] amidst a multitude of dreams, and vanities, and many words,—but <towards God> be thou reverent.

8 <If [the oppression of the poor, and the wresting of justice and righteousness] thou seest in the province> do not be astonished over the highest, <for one high above the highest> is watching, yea the Most Hig

9 And <the profit of the earth> is [for all], — [a king] <by the field> is served.

10 He that loveth silver] shall not be satisfied with silver nor [he that loveth abundance] with revenue,— [even this] was vanity.

11 <When blessings are increased> increased are the eaters thereof,— <what profit, then, to the owner> of them saving the sight of his eyes? 12 Sweet' the sleep of the labourer, whether <little or much> he eat,—but [the surfeit of the rich man] will not suffer him to sleep.

13 Here' was an uncircumcised evil, I had seen under the sun,— riches kept by the owner thereof, to his hurt; 14 and those riches perish, by being ill employed,—and though he begeth a son, yet is there in his hand nothing at all. 15 <As he came from his mother's womb> [naked] he again departeth, as he came,—and <nothing> can he take of his toil, which he can carry in his hand. 16 <Even this> moreover, is an uncircumcised evil, <altogether as he came> [so] shall he depart,— <what profit then shall he have who toilith for the wind?> 17 <Even all his days> [are spent] in darkness and mourning,

18 Lo! what [I myself] have seen—Better' that it should be excellent to eat and to drink and to see blessedness, in all one's toil wherein one toileth under the sun, for the number of the days of his life, in that God hath given it him, for [that is] his portion: 19 yet' <as regardeth every man, to whom God hath given wealth and goods, and granted him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to find gladness in his toil> [this] is the gift of God. 19 <Though it be not much> let him remember the days of his life,—for God' beareth witness, by the gladness of his heart.

1 Here' was an evil,—I had seen under the sun, 6 —and it is [common] among men; 2 <A man to whom God giveth riches and gains and honour, so that nothing 'doth he lack for his soul>—of all that he craveth> and yet God doth not give him power to eat thereof, but 'a man unknown' eateth it,—[this] was vanity, and <an incurable evil> it was. 3 <Though a man should beget a hundred children, and live [many years] so that many' should be the days of his years, but his own soul> [it] should not be satisfied with the good, and he should not even have [as burial] I said,— <Better than he is> an untimely birth! 4 For [in vain] it came in, and [in darkness] it departeth,— and [with darkness] [its name] is covered: 5 [even the sun] it never saw, nor ought did it know,— <more quietness> hath this' than the other'. 6 <Even though one hath lived a thousand years twice told' yet [good] hath he not seen,— is it not [unto one place] that [all] are going? 7 <All the toil of man> is for his mouth,— though [even the desire] is not satisfied! 8 For what profit hath the wise man, over the dullard? What can [the poor man] know—so as to walk before the living? 9 <Better' what the eyes behold, than the wandering of desire,— [even this] was vanity, and a feeding on wind. 10 <Whatsoever one may be> [long ago] was he called by his name, and it is known that it is— Son of Earth,—[he cannot, therefore, contend with one stronger than he]. 11 <Seeing there are things in abundance which make vanity abound> what profit hath man? 12 For who knoweth what is good for a man throughout his life, for the number of the days of his life of vanity, seeing he will make them, 6 like a shadow,—for who can tell a man, what shall be after him, under the sun?

1 Better' a name, than precious ointment,— 7 And the day of death, than the day of one's birth.

Moreover, <not to all the words which men speak> do thou apply thy heart,—lest thou hear thine own servant' reviling thee! 21 For truly <many times> thy heart knoweth,—that <even thou thyself> hast reviled others.

22 <All this> have I proved by wisdom,—I said, I will be wise, but <that> was far from me. 22 <Far away> is that which hath been,—and deep, deep, <who> can find it out?

23 Resolved, I in my heart, to know and search out, and to seek wisdom, and a conclusion,—and to know lawlessness [to be] stupidity, and folly to be madness.

24 <I could> indeed find, to be <more bitter than death> the woman, whose heart is <snares and nets>, and her hands, <bands>,,—<who> is pleasing before God? shall escape from her, but <he that sineth> shall be captured by her. 26 See! <this> have I found, saith the Proclaimer [counting] one by one, to find a conclusion:—<what> my soul still sought yet I found not,—<one man out of a thousand> have I found, but  have I not found.

26 [Only] see, <this> have I found, That God made 4 man upright,—But <thou> have sought out many devices.

7 Who is really a wise man, And who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? 8 The wisdom of a man lighteneth up his countenance, But <by defiance of countenance> one is disfigured. 7 I [said], * The bidding of the king observe thou, even out of regard to the oath of God. 3 Not rashly from his presence shouldst thou go: do not 8 take thy stand in a vexatious thing,—for <whosoever he pleaseth> he will do. 4 <Where the word of a king is> there is power,—who then may say to him, What wouldst thou do? 5 He that observeth the commandment will not notice a vexatious thing,—and <of time and manner> will the heart of the wise take note. 6 For <to every pursuit> there is a time and a manner,—when <[the vexation of man]] is great concerning it. 7 For there is no one who knoweth what shall be,—for <when it shall be> who will tell him? 8 [No man] hath power over the spirit.

to retain the spirit, and [none] hath power over the day of death, and there is no furlough in war,—neither shall lawlessness deliver them who are given thereto. 9. <All this> had I seen, and tried to apply my heart to every work which was done under the sun,—at such time as one man had power over another man, to his hurt.

9. And thereupon I considered the lawless when buried, when they had entered [their graves], that <from the place of the Holy One> they used to go and boast in the city that they had so done,—even this was vanity.

9. <Because sentence against a wicked work is not executed speedily—on this account> the heart of the sons of men is fully set within them, to commit wickedness. 11. 11. Here was a vain thing which was done upon the earth,—that there were righteous men unto whom it happened according to the work of the lawless, and there were lawless men unto whom it happened according to the work of the righteous,—I said, that even this was vanity.

11. Then extolled I, gladness, in that there was nothing better for a man, under the sun, than to eat and to drink, and to be glad,—since [that] should tarry with him in his toil, for the days of his life which God had given him under the sun. 13. <When I gave my heart, to know wisdom, and to consider the business that was done upon the earth> then surely <by day and by night> there was one who suffered not his eyes [to sleep]. 14 Then I considered all the work of God, that man could not find out the work that was done under the sun, insomuch as man toil in seeking and yet cannot find,—yes! even though the wise man should say he knoweth yet he can not find it out.

9. For <unto all this> I applied my heart, and [my heart] considered all this, that the righteous and the wise and their servants were in the hand of God,—<no love nor hatred> could any man know, 'every one' was before Him. 2. 'Every one' was like every one else, <the one destiny> had the righteous and the lawless, the good and the pure and the impure, and he that sacrificed, and he that did not sacrifice,—as the good man.

9. So the sinner, <he that took an oath> as he who <of an oath> stood in fear. 9. [This was a misfortune in all that was done under the sun, that <one destiny> had they all,—yea also the heart of the sons of men] was full of wickedness, and [madness] was in their heart, while they lived, and [after they had] unto the dead. 4. For <whosoever was united to all the living> [for him] there was hope,—insomuch as a living dog feared better than a dead lion. 5. For 'the living' knew that they should die,—but 'the dead' knew not [anything], neither had they any longer unto times age-abiding, in aught that was done under the sun. 7. Go thy way,—eat, with gladness, thy food, and drink, with a happy heart, thy wine,—when already God is well pleased with thy works.

8. [Continually] let thy garments be white,—and <ointment upon thy head> let it not be lacking. 9. Enjoy life, with thy wife whom thou lovest, all the days of thy life of vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, all thy days of vanity,—for all that is thy portion in life, and in thy toil wherewith thou art toiling under the sun. 9. <Whatever thy hand findeth to do> <with thy might> do,—for there is no work nor calculation nor knowledge nor wisdom, in hordes, whither thou art going.

11. I again saw under the sun, that not <the swift> was the race, nor <the strong> the battle, <the wise> nor <the rich> the food, nor yet <the intelligent> riches, nor <the well-informed> comeliness,—for <time and accident> happened to them all. 13. For, indeed, man could not know his own time, like fishes which were caught in a cruel net, and like little birds which were caught in a trap,—<like them> were ensnared the sons of men, by a time of misfortune, when it fell upon them suddenly.

13. <Even this> had I seen of wisdom, under the sun,—and <of great import> was the same unto me.—14 A little city, and men therein few,—and there came against it a great king, and surrounded it, and built against it large siege-works; 15 but there was found therein a man, poor [but] wise, and he delivered the city by his wisdom,—yet no one remembered that poor man. 16 Then said I: ‘Better is wisdom than strength,—although [the wisdom of the poor man] be despised, and this word not heard. 17 ‘The words of the wise [in quietness] are heard,—beyond the outcry of one who ruleth over dullards. 18 Better is wisdom, than weapons of war,—but [one sinner] may destroy much good.

10 1) Dead flies cause stink [and] ferment, the oil of the perfumer,—<More costly than wisdom or honour> is a little folly.
2. The sense of the wise is on his right hand,—But the sense of the dullard is on his left:
3. Yea [even by the way, as the foolish man walketh] along> his sense faileth him—and <he teleteth everyone that foolish> is he!
4. If the spirit of a ruler riseth up against thee> [thy place] do not leave,—for gentle[ness] pacifeth such as have greatly erred.
5. Here was a misfortune I had seen under the sun,—a veritable mistake that was going forth from the presence of one who had power:
6. Folly placed in great dignity,—While the rich <in a low place> took their seat:
7. I had seen [servants] upon horses,—And [rulers] walking like servants, on the ground.
8. He that diggeth a pit may fall,—And he that breaketh through a hedge there may bite him a serpent.
9. He that removeth stones may be hurt therewith,—And he that cleaveth wood may be endangered thereby.
10. If a blunt be the iron, and [himself] hath not sharpened [the edge] then <much force> must he apply,—but <an advantage for giving success> is wisdom.
11. If a serpent will bite, unless he is charmed> Then there is nothing better for him that owneth a tongue.
12. The words of a wise man’s mouth are pleasant,—But the lips of a dullard will swallow him up:
13. The beginning of the words of his mouth is folly,—But the latter end of his speech is mischief[ous] madness.
14. Yet [a foolish man] multiplieth words,—[Though] no man knoweth which hath been, And <that which shall be after him> who can tell him?
15. The toil of dullards shall weary a man. That he knoweth not how to go into the city.

16. Alas! for thee, O land, when thy king is a boy,—And <thy rulers> <in the morning> do eat:
17. How happy art thou, O land, when thy king is a son of nobles,—And <thy rulers> <in season> do eat, For strength, and not for debauchery.
18. By two lazy arms> the framework sinketh in,—And <by the hanging down of the hands> the house may leak.
20. Even in thy thought> do not revile [the king], Nor <within thy bed-chambers> revile thou the rich,—For [a bird of the heavens] might carry the voice, Yea [an owner of wings] might tell the matter.

1. Cast thy bread-corn, upon the face of the waters,—For <after many days> shalt thou find it:
2. Give a portion to seven, yea even to eight,—For thou canst not know, what there shall be of misfortune, upon the earth.
3. If the clouds be filled with a downpour> Upon the earth> will they empty themselves, And <if a tree fall in the south or in the north> In the place where the tree falleth> there will it be found.
4. He that observeth the wind will not sow,—And [he that watcheth the clouds] will not reap.
5. Just as thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, when the body is in the womb of her that is with child>
Even so canst thou not know the work of God, who maketh all.
6. In the morning> sow thy seed, And <until evening> do not withhold thy hand,—For thou knowest not—Whether shall thrive, either this or that, Or whether [both alike] shall be fruitful.
7. Truly sweet is the light,—And <pleasant to the eyes> to see the sun:
6. But <though [many years]> a man live> [Through them all] let him rejoice; Yet let him remember the days of darkness, For many they may be, [all that cometh] may be vanity.
8. So (nearly) Fuerst. the floor sinketh in."
Others: "By much sloth "make a feast"—O.G.
Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth,
And let thy heart gladden thee in the days of thine early manhood,
And walk thou—
In the ways of thine own heart,
And in that which is seen by thine own
eyes,—
Yet know, that <for all these things>
Will God bring thee into judgment.

Therefore remove thou vexation from thy heart,
And put away discomfort from thy flesh,—
For ||youth and dawn|| are vanity!

Yet remember thy Creator,* in the days of thy vigour,—
Or ever come in, the days of discomfort,
And the years arrive, in which thou shalt
say—
I have, in them, no pleasure;

Or ever be darkened—
The sun, and the light, and the moon, and the stars,—
And the clouds return* after a downpour of rain;

In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble,
And the men of might bow themselves,—
And the grinders cease because they are few,
And they who look through the windows* are darkened;

And the doors in the street be closed,
When the sound of the mill become low,—
And one rise at the chirp of a small bird,
And low-voiced be all the daughters of song;

Yes, <at what is high>, they be in fear,
And there be ||terrors||, in the way,
And the almondb be rejected, 4
And the grasshopper drag itself along,*
And desire perish,—

For man is going to his age-abiding home,
When the wailers shall go round in the streets;

Or ever the silver cord be loosed,*
Or the golden bowl be broken,—
Or the bucket by the fountain be shivered,
Or the wheel at the well be broken;

And the dust return* to the earth, as it was,—
And ||the spirit|| return unto God, who gave
it.

Vanity of vanities, saith the Proclaimer, all is vanity.

<Besides that> the Proclaimer being wise,— still further taught knowledge unto the people, and weighed and searched, arranged proverbs in abundance.

The Proclaimer sought to find out words giving
delight,
And to note down rightly, the words of truth.

||The words* of the wise|| are as goads,
Yea, <as driven nails>, their well-ordered sayings,—

Given from one shepherd.

<And besides> my son, be admonished,—
<Of making many books> there is no end,
And ||much study|| is a weariness of the flesh.

The conclusion of the matter—the whole> let us hear,—
Towards God be reverent,
And <his commandments> observe,
For ||this> ||[concerneth] all mankind.

For <every work> will God bring into judgment,
With every hidden thing,—
Whether good, or evil.

THE SONG OF SONGS.

1 The Song of Songs, which pertaineth to Solomon.

2 Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth!

3 For better are thy caresses than wine:
   <Oil poured out> is thy name,
   <virgins love thee.

4 Draw me!

5 After thee > will we run!

6 The king > hath brought me > into his chambers.

7 We will exult and rejoice in thee,
   We will mention thy caresses, beyond wine.

8 Swarthy > am but comely.
   Ye daughters of Jerusalem.

9 To a mare of mine, in the chariots of Pharaoh >
   Have I likened thee, my fair one!
10 Comely are Thy cheeks, with bea-row,
   Thy neck, with strings of gems.

11 Rows of golden ornaments > will we make
   With studs of silver.

12 By the time the king is in his circle >
   My nard > will have given out its fragrance:
13 A bag of myrrh > is my beloved to me,
   Between my breasts > shall it tarry the night!
14 A cluster of henna > is my beloved to me,
   In the vineyards of En-gedi."

15 Lo! thou art beautiful, my fair one,
   Lo! thou art beautiful,
   Thine eyes > are doves!

16 Lo! thou art beautiful, my beloved,
   Ye> is delightful!

17 Our couch is covered with leaves:
   Our beams > are cedars,
   Our fretted ceiling is cypress-trees.

1 I am the meadow-saffron > of Sharon,
   The lily of the valleys.

2 As a lily among thorns >
   So is my fairest, among the women!

3 As an apple-tree > among the trees of the forest >
   So is my beloved, among the sons:
   In his shade > I greatly delighted and sat down,
   And his fruit > was sweet to my taste.

4 He hath brought me into the house of wine,
And his banner over me is love.

8 Sustain me with raisin-cakes,
Refresh me with apples,—
For sick with love > I am'.

6 His left hand under my head.
Then his right hand embrace me!

8 The voice of my beloved!
Lo! here he cometh,—
Leaping over the mountains,
Skipping over the hills.

9 Resembleth, my beloved, a gazelle,
Or a young stag,—
Lo! here he is, standing behind our wall,
Looking in at the windows,
Peeping in at the lattice.

10 Responded my beloved and said to me,—
Rise up! my fair—my beautiful—one,
And come away,

11 For lo! the winter is past,—
The rain is over, [and] gone;

12 The flowers have appeared in the earth,
The time of the spring-song hath come,—
And the voice of the turtle is heard in our land;

13 The fig-tree hath spiced her green figs,
And the vines—all blossom—yield fragrance,—
Rise up! my fair—my beautiful—one,
And come away!

[He.

O my dove!

THE SONG OF SONGS IV. 1—16; V. 1—8.

14 Nard and saffron, sweet cane and cinnamon,
With all woods of frankincense,—
Myrrh and aloes, with all the chiefs of spices:
15 A garden fountain, a well of living waters,—
And flowings from Lebanon.

[She.

16 Awake, O north wind, and come in, thou south,
Fan my garden—it's balsams will flow out,—
Let my beloved enter' his garden,
And eat his precious fruits.

[He.

1 I have entered my garden, my sister, bride,
2 I have plucked my myrrh, with my balsam,
3 I have eaten the honey of my thicket,—
4 I have drunk my wine, with my milk:—
5 Eat ye, O friends,
6 Drink, ye shall drink abundantly, ye beloved!

[She.

7 I was sleeping, but my heart was awake,—
The voice of my beloved—knocking!

Open to me, my sister, my fair one, my dove,
my perfect one,

For my head is filled with dew,
My locks with the moisture of the night.

8 I have put off my robe, oh how'shall I put it on?
I have bathed my feet, oh how'shall I soil them?

9 My beloved thrust in his hand, at the window,
And my feelings were deeply moved for him:—

5 I myself arose, to open to my beloved,—
And [my hands] dripped with myrrh,
And [my fingers] with myrrh distilling,

Upon the handles of the bolt.

6 I myself opened to my beloved,
But [my beloved] had turned away, had passed on,—

My soul had gone out when he spake,
I sought him, but found him not,
I called him, but he answered not.

7 The watchmen who were going round in the city [found me],
They smote me, wounded me,—

The watchmen of the walls [took away my chock from me].

I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem,—
If ye find my beloved what will ye tell him?
That [sick with love] I am'.
[Daughters of Jerusalem.]

What is thy beloved more than any other beloved,
Thou most beautiful among women?
What is thy beloved more than any other beloved,
That <thus> thou hast adjured us?

[Sark.]

My beloved is white and ruddy,
Conspicuous beyond ten thousand:
His head is pure gold,
His locks are bursy, black as a raven;
His eyes are like doves, by the channels of water,
Bathing in milk, set as gems in a ring:
His cheeks like a raised bed of balsam,
Growing plants of perfume,
His lips like lilies, dripping with myrrh distilling;
His hands cylinders of gold, set with topaz,
His body wrought work of ivory, covered with sapphires;
His legs like pillars of white marble, founded on sockets of gold,
His form like Lebanon, choice as cedars:
His mouth most sweet,
Yea altogether he is delightful,
That this is my beloved,
Yea this is my dear one, ye daughters of Jerusalem.

[Daughters of Jerusalem.]

Whither hath thy beloved gone,
Thou most beautiful among women?
Whither hath thy beloved turned him aside?
That we may seek him with thee.

[Sark.]

My beloved is gone down to his garden,
To the beds of balsam,
To pasture in the gardens,
And to gather lilies,
And my beloved is mine,
He that pasteth among lilies.

[He.]

Beautiful art thou, my fair one, as Tirzah,
Comely, as Jerusalem,
Majestic as banded hosts!

Turn away thine eyes from me,
For they have excited me,
Thy hair is like a flock of goats, that are reclining on the sides of Mount Gilgal:

[He.]

Thy teeth are like a flock of sheep which have come up from the washing-place,
Whereof all of them are twin-bearers, and bereaved is there none among them:
Like a slice of pomegranate are thy temples, from behind thy veil:
Threescore are the queens, and fourscore are the concubines,
And virgins there are, without number.
One alone is my dove, my perfect one,
One alone was she to her mother,
Queen was she to her that bare her,
The daughters have seen her, and pronounced her happy,
Queens and concubines and they have praised her.

[They.]

Who is this that looketh forth like the dawn,
Beautiful as the moon,
Pure as the sun,
Majestic as banded hosts?

[He.]

To the garden of nuts I went down,
To look at the fresh shoots of the ravine,—
To see whether had burst forth the vine,
Had blossomed the pomegranate:
I know not [how it was] [my soul] not for me the chariots of my willing people!

[They.]

As it were the dance of a double camp . . .

How beautiful are thy feet in sandals, O daughter of a noble,—
The curvings of thy hips are like ornaments wrought by the hands of a skilled workman:
Thy navel is a round bowl, may it not lack spiced wine:
Thy body a heap of wheat fenced about with lilies:
Thy two breasts are like two young roes, the twins of a gazelle:
Thy neck is like a tower of ivory,
Thine eyes are pools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim,
THE SONG OF SONGS VII. 5–13; VIII. 1–14.

[Heb.]
5 Thy nose, is like the tower of Lebanon, which looketh towards Damascus;
6 Thy head upon thee, is like Carmel,
And the hair of thy head, is like purple,—
The king, is held captive by the ringlets!

[She.]
6 How beautiful, and how delightful, O dear love, for delights:
7 This thy stature, is like to a palm-tree,
And thy breasts, are like clusters:
I said,
I will ascend the palm-tree,
I will lay hold of its fruit stalks—
Oh then, let thy breasts, I pray thee, be like vine-clusters,
And the fragrance of thy nose, like apples;
And thy mouth, like good wine—

[She.]
7 Flowing to my beloved smoothly,
Gliding over the lips of the sleeping.
10 I am my beloved's,
And <unto me>, is his longing.

[She.]
6 Set me as a seal upon thine heart,
As a seal upon thine arm,
For <mighty as death>, is love,
<Exacting as hades>, is jealousy,—
The flames thereof, are flames of fire,
The flash of Yah!
7 Many waters cannot quench love,
Nor shall floods overwhelm it,—
<If a man would give all the substance of his house, for love>
They would utterly despise him.

[They.]
8 A sister, have we, a little one,
And breasts, hath she none,—
What shall we do for our sister,
In the day when she may be spoken for?
9 If a wall, she is, we will build upon it a battlement of silver,—
But if a door, she is, we will close it up with a plank of cedar.

[She.]
10 A wall, and my breasts, like towers,—
Then I became I, in his eyes, one who did indeed find good content.

[Heb.]
11 A vineyard, had Solomon, as the owner of abundance,
He put out the vineyard to keepers,—
Every man, was to bring in, for the fruit thereof, a thousand silverings:

[They.]
12 Mine own vineyard, is before me,—
The thousand belong to thee, O Solomon,
And two hundred to the keepers of the fruit thereof.

[Heb.]
13 O thou fair dweller in the gardens,
The companions, are giving heed to thy voice,
Let me hear it.

[She.]
14 Come quickly, my beloved, and resemble thou
A gazelle, or a young stag,
Upon the mountains of balsam-trees.

* "The true reading"—G. Intro. p. 386. "That is, loving flames kindled in the human heart emanate from Jehovah. The anxiety, however, on the part of the Sopherim not to describe Jehova as the source of human love, and especially not to exhibit him in parallelism with Hades, has caused the Western redactors of the text to obliterate the name of God in the only place where the Divine Name occurs in this book."—Ibid. Accordingly the received Heb. text (one word = "intense flame") is found in Western copies and in Ben-asher, but "the true reading" [two words] has been preserved in Eastern copies and in Ben-naphtau (w. the Hilie copy and 5 ear. pr. edas.)—Cp. §1. After a General Introduction, follows—a Solemn Indictment against Israel: sustained by Exhortation, Promise, and Threatening.

1. The vision of Isaiah, son of Amoz, which he saw, concerning Judah and Jerusalem,—in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah,—kings of Judah.

2. Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth, for | Yahweh hath spoken: |

| Some> have I brought up, and advanced, and they have rebelled against me.

3. An ox knoweth his owner, and an ass his master's crib;

| Israel doth not know, |
| My people doth not consider.

4. Alas! a nation—committing sin, a people—burdened with iniquity, a seed—practising wickedness, sons—acting corruptly.

They have forsaken Yahweh, despised the Holy One of Israel,—Are estranged and gone back.

5. Why should ye be smitten any more? Ye would again turn aside.

The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint:

| From the sole of the foot, even unto the head there is no soundness, |
| Bruise and stripe and newly-made wound,—They have not been pressed out, nor bound up, nor soothed with oil.

6. Your country—is a desolation, your cities—are consumed with fire,

Your soil—right before your eyes are devouring it, and it is a desolation, a very overthrow by foreigners:

| And left is the Daughter of Zion, |
| Like a hut in a vineyard,— |
| Like a lodge in a gourd-plot,— |
| Like a city besieged.

7. If Yahweh of hosts had not left as a very small remnant | Like Sodom had we become, |

| Goromorrah had we resembled.

8. Hear the word of Yahweh, ye rulers of Sodom,—Give ear to the instruction of our God, ye people of Gomorrah:—

| Of what use to me is your multitude of sacrifices? | Saith Yahweh: I am satiated with ascending-offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts,— |

| When ye enter to see my face,* |

Who hath required this at your hand, trampling my courts?

| Ye shall not again bring an empty present, |

| An abomination is that unto me! |

New moon, and sabbath, calling an assembly—

| I cannot endure iniquity and sacred festivals! |

| Your new moons, and your appointed feasts my soul hateh! |

They have become unto me a burden I am too weary to bear:

| Even when ye spread forth your open palms |

| I hide mine eyes from you; |

| Yeah though ye multiply prayers |

| I am not hearkening, |

| Your hands, with deeds of blood are filled. |

Wash you, make you clean,

Put away the wickedness of your doings from before mine eyes,—

| Cease to do evil.

17. Learn to do well—Seek justice, correct the oppressor, vindicate the fatherless, plead the cause of the widow.

18. Come, I pray you, and let us settle the dispute,*—Saith Yahweh,—

| Though your sins be found like scarlet |

| As snow shall they be made white, |

| Though they appear red like crimson |

| As wool shall they become.

§ 2. A complete Vision concerning Judah and Jerusalem, in which Sin and Punishment and ultimate Cleansing and Glory are vividly portrayed: the whole prefaced by an extract from the prophet Micah (iv. 1–3).

1 That, which Isaiah, son of Amoz, saw in 2 vision,—concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

2 But it shall come to pass, [in the afterpart of the days],
That the mountain of the house of Yahweh shall be set up as the head of the mountains,
And be exalted above the hills,—
And all the nations shall stream thereunto;

3 And many peoples shall go, and say—
Come ye, and let us ascend
Unto the mountain of Yahweh,
Unto the house of the God of Jacob,
That he may teach us of his ways,
And we may walk in his paths,—
For <out of Zion> shall go forth a law,
And the word of Yahweh out of Jerusalem;

4 And he will judge between the nations,
And be umpire to many peoples,—
And they will beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks.

5 O house of Jacob! come ye, and let us walk in the light of Yahweh.

6 Therefore hast thou abandoned thy people, the house of Jacob,
Because they have become full of the East,
And use hidden arts, like the Philistines,—
And <with the children of foreigners> strike hands;
7 So that filled is their land with silver and gold,
And there is no end to their treasures,—
And filled is their land with horses,
And there is no end to their chariots;
8 And filled is their land with idols,—
<To the work of their own hands> do they bow themselves down,
To that which they made with their own fingers.

9 So the mean man boweth down,
And the great man stoopeth low,—
Therefore do not thou forgive them!

Enter into the rock,
Or hide thee in the dust.—
Because of the treachery of Jehovah,
And for his majestic splendour.*

The lofty looks of mean men shall be humbled,
And the haughtiness of great men shall be bowed down,—
And Jehovah alone shall be exalted in that day».

For a day of Jehovah of hosts shall be Upon every one who is high and lofty,—
And upon every one who is lifted up,
And he shall be brought low;

And upon all cedars of Lebanon, that are
And upon all the oaks of Bashan;

And upon all the lofty mountains,—
And upon all the uplifted hills;—
And upon every high tower,—
And upon every fortress wall;—
And upon all the ships of Tarshish,—
And upon all desirous bannets.

And the haughtiness of mean men shall be humbled,—
And the loftiness of great men shall be laid low;—
And Jehovah alone shall be exalted in that day;/

And the idols shall wholly pass away;

And they shall enter
Into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves of clay;—
Because of the treachery of Jehovah,
And for his majestic splendour,*
When he arieth to shake terribly the earth.

In that day shall the son of earth cast his
And his idols of silver, and his idols of gold,—which
That he may enter
Into the crevices of the rocks, and into the fissures of the clefts,—
Because of the treachery of Jehovah,
And for his majestic splendour,
When he arieth to shake terribly the earth.

Cease ye from the son of earth,
In whose nostrils is but a breath,—
For <wherein' to be reckoned' upon> is [he]?

For lo! the Lord Jehovah of hosts removing from Jerusalem and from Judah,
The stay and staff,—
The whole stay of bread,
And the whole stay of water;
Man of might, and man of war,—
Judge and prophet,
And diviner and elder:

Captain of fifty, and favourite;*
And counsellor, and skilled artisan,
And master of magical formulars;

And I will appoint [boys] to be their princes,—
And petulant children:» shall rule over them.

And the people will despise
Every man over his fellow-man,
And every man over his friend,—
And they will rage
[The boy] against [the elder],
And [the despised] against [the honourable].

When a man shall lay hold on his brother, of the house of his father, [saying]—
Clothing hast thou;
Become thou our ruler, —
This downfall be under thy hand»

He will swear,» in that day, saying—
I will take no control,
When in mine own house is neither food nor clothing,—
Ye must not set me for a ruler of people!

For stumbled hath Jerusalem, and [Judah] hath fallen,— Because their tongue and their doings are against Jehovah,
Provoking his glorious presence,»

The show of their face,» hath answered against them,
And <their sin-like Sodom> have they told, they have not concealed it.

Alas for their souls!
For they have required to themselves calamity;

Say ye to the righteous, It is well!
For <the fruit of their doings> shall they eat:

Alas! <for the lawless> it is ill,
For what his own hand hath matured shall be done to him.

My people! [children] are their tyrants,»
And [women] rule over them,—
My people! they who should lead thee forward are causing thee to stray, <Thy pathways> have they destroyed.»

Jehovah hath taken his station to plead, —
And is standing to judge peoples:

[Yahweh] into judgment will enter,
With the elders of his people,
And their princes,—
But ye have consumed the vineyard,
That which hath been robbed from the oppressed; is in your houses.

* Or: "a look at their face"; "Skilled in magic arts, or drugs"—O. G.
* [Caprice]—O. G.
* Lit. "lift up"; supply his hand.
* ML: "the eyes of his glory = "his glorious eyes = "his gloriously manifested presence."
What right have ye to crush my people,
And <the faces of the oppressed> to grind?
Demandeth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts—

And Yahweh saith—
<Because haughty> are the daughters of Zion,
And they walk with neck thrown back, and wanton eyes,—
Tripping along as they go,
And <with their feet> making a tinkling sound>

Therefore will My Lord <smite> with leprosy
<the crown of the hair> of the daughters of Zion,—
And <as for Yahweh> <their shame> will he lay bare!

In that day> will My Lord <remove> the finery—of the anklets, and the little suns, and the little moons; 19 the pendants, and the bracelets, and the veils; 20 the chaplets, and the armlets, and the girdles, and the sceptre-cases, and the amulets; 21 the rings, and the nose-jewels; 22 the robes, and the over-tunics, and the cloaks, and the purses;
and the mirrors, and the linen wraps, and the tiaras, and the cloaks.

And it shall come to pass—
That <instead of fragrance> [a putrid odour] shall be,
And <instead of a girdle> an encircling rope,
And <instead of braided hair> baldness,
And <instead of a festal robe> a girding of sackcloth,
Branding instead of beauty:

Thy males | by the sword shall fall,—
And thy mighty men | by the war;
And her gates shall mourn and lament,—
And forsaken <on the ground> shall she sit.

And seven women will hold take <of one man,
in that day, saying,
Our own bread> will we eat,
<Or our own apparel> will we wear,— <Only> let us be called by thy name, to take away our reproach.

In that day>
Shall [the Bud of Yahweh] become beautiful and and glorious,—
And [the Fruit of the Land] splendid and majestic;
To the escaped of Israel.

And it shall come to pass—
He that is left in Zion
And he that remaineth in Jerusalem
Shall be called holy,—
Everyone written unto life, in Jerusalem!

When My Lord shall have bathed away
The filth of the daughters of Zion,
And <the blood-guiltiness> of Jerusalem he shall wash away out of her midst,—
By the spirit of judgment, and
By the spirit of thorough cleansing>

Then will Yahweh <create>—
<Over all the house> of Mount Zion and Over her assembly>
A cloud by day, and a smoke,
And the shining of a fire-flame, by night,—
For <over all the glory> shall be a canopy;
And  shall there be
For a shade by day, from the heat,—and
For a refuge, and for a shelter, from storm and from rain.

§ 3. The Paralitotic Song of the Vineyard, Explained and Applied, with a six-fold Lament (<Alas!>) and a Refrain; followed by a Prediction of Invasion.

Let me sing, I pray you, for a well-beloved of mine,
The song of my beloved, concerning his vineyard:—

<A vineyard> had my well-beloved, on a very fruitful hill;
And he thoroughly digged it,
And gathered out the stones thereof,
And planted it with a precious vine,
And built a tower in the midst thereof,
Moreover also | a wine-press> hewed he therein,—
Then waited he, that it should bring forth
grapes,
And it brought forth wild' grapes; e

Therefore, 0 inhabitant of Jerusalem,
And men of Judah,—
Judge, I pray you, betwixt me, and my vineyard:—

What could have been done further' to my
vineyard,
That I had not done in' it?
Why' then—
When I had waited that it should bring forth grapes'>
Brought it forth wild' grapes?

Now therefore, I pray you, let me tell you what I am about to do to my vineyard,—
To take away the fence thereof,
And it shall be eaten up,
To destroy the wall thereof,
And it shall be trodden down;
And I will make it a waste;—

It shall be neither pruned nor hoed,
But there shall come up briers and thorns,—
And <upon the clouds> will I lay a charge,
That they rain thereon no rain.

Surely the vineyard of Yahweh of hosts is
the house of Israel,
And the men of Judah are the plantation in which he dearly delighted,—
And he waited
For equity; but lo! murderous iniquity;
For the rule of right, but lo! the cry of the wronged.

Alas! for them who join house to house,
Field to field bring they near,—
Until there is no room,
But ye are left to dwell alone in the midst of the land.

<In mine ears> [said] Yahweh of hosts,— Verily houses in abundance shall become
a desolation;
Large and fair, without inhabitant;
For ten yokes of vineyard shall yield one bath.

And the seed of a homer shall yield an ephah.

Alas! for them who rise early in the morning that strong drink they may pursue,—
Who follow on in the evening cool, [until] with wine they are heated;
And it cometh to pass—that lyre and harp,* timbel and flute, and wine, are in their banquets,—
But the doing of Yahweh they do not discern,
And the work of his hands have they not seen.

Therefore are my people taken away captive,
before they know it,—
And their honourable men are famished
with hunger,
And their multitude do grope for thirst.

Therefore hath Hades enlarged her desire,/*
And opened her mouth to its widest,
And their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that is uproarious, shall descend thereinto.

And the mean man hath been bowed down,
And the mighty man hath been humbled,—
Yea the looks of the haughty shall be humbled.

But Yahweh of hosts hath been exalted in justice,—
And the God that is holy hath been hal-lowered in righteousness;
Then shall the young rams feed where they please,—
And the wastes of the wealthy shall strangers consume.

Alas! for them
Who draw on themselves punishment, with strings of falsehood,—
And <as with waggon-bands> [penalty];
Who say—
Let his work quicken —let it hasten,
That we may see,—
And let the purpose of Israel's Holy One draw near and come,
That we may know!

Alas! for them
Who call evil good, and good evil,—
Who put darkness for light, and light for
darkness,
Who put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter.

Alas! for them
Who are wise in their own eyes,—
And <in their own sight> are prudent.

Alas! for them
Who are heroes, to drink wine,—
And men of valour, to mingle strong drink,
Who justify the lawless, for a bribe,—
Whereas <the righteousness of the righteous> they take from him.

<As a tongue of fire eateth up straw.>
And a flame reduceth dry grass to powder./*
Their root, like rottenness, shall become,
And their blossom, like dust, shall ascend,— Because they refused the law of Yahweh of hosts,
And the utterance of the Holy One of Israel they despised.

<For this cause> did the anger of Yahweh kindle upon his own people,
And he stretched out his hand against them
and smote them—
So that the mountains trembled,
And their dead bodies served for fuel,*
in the midst of the streets.

<For all this> hath his anger not turned back; But is his hand outstretched.

Therefore will he lift up an ensign to the nations afar off,
And signal* for him from the end of the earth,
And lo! <with hot haste> will he come:

§ 4. By a Vision in the Temple, Isaiah is called and qualified for his Prophetic Mission; and prepared to wait long for good Success.

1 <In the year that King Uzziah died> I saw My Lord, sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and |his skirts| did fill the temple.
2 |Seraphim|| were standing above him; |six wings severally| had each one,—

<With twain> he covered his face,
And <with twain> he covered his feet',
And <with twain> he did fly.
3 And they continued crying one to another, and said,
Holy—holy—holy, is Yahweh of hosts,—
The fulness of the whole earth is his glory.
And the foundations of the porch |were moved| at the voice of him that cried,—and bthe house| was filled with smoke.
4 Then said I—Woe to me! for I am undone.
Because  am I, |And in the midst of a people of unclean lips| do I dwell—.

For <the King, Yahweh of hosts> have mine eyes seen
5 Then flew unto me, one of the seraphim,
And <in his hand|| a live coal,—
<With tongues> had he taken it from off the altar.
Then touched he my mouth, and said—
Lo! this hath touched thy lips,—
Thus shall be taken away, thine iniquity,
And |thy sin|| by propitiation be covered.
7 Then heard I the voice of My Lord, saying,
Whom shall I send?
And who' shall I go for?

And I said—
Here am I—'send me'.
9 Then said he—
Go and say unto this people,—
Hear on, but do not discern,
See on, but do not perceive:

10 Stupefy thou the heart of this people,
And <their ears> make thou heavy,
And <their eyes> overspread,—
Lest they see with their eyes,
And <with their ears> should hear,
And |their heart|| should discern and come back,
And they be healed.
11 Then said I—
How long, My Lord?
And he said—
Until the time that
Cities be wasted through having no inhabitant,
And houses—through having no men, And |the ground|| be laid waste unto desolation;
12 And Yahweh have far removed men,—
And great' be the abondonment in the midst of the land.
13 Yet still' shall there be in it a tenth,
Though it again' be consumed,—
Like an oak and like a terebinth,
Which <when felled> have a stock in them,
\[A holy seed|| shall be the stock thereof.\]

§ 5. Isaiah's first Message to King Ahaz:

"Courage!"

1 And it came to pass <in the days of Ahaz son of Jotham of Uzziah, king of Judah> that Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah king of Remaliah king of Israel, |came up|| to Jerusalem, to war against it,—but could not prevail against it.
2 Then said Yahweh, unto Isaiah,
Go forth, I pray thee, to meet Ahaz, ||thou, and Shear-jashub thy son||—unto the end of the channel of the upper pool, unto the highway of the fuller's field; and say unto him—
Take heed and keep thyself calm—do not fear, neither let thy heart be faint, because of these two fag-ends of smoking firebrands,—in spite of the glow of the anger of Rezin and Syria, and the son of Remaliah.

Isaiah VII. 5—23; VIII. 1—4.

5. (Because Syria hath taken counsel against thee, for mischief, [with] Ephraim and the son of Remaliah, saying,
6. Let us go up against Judah, and besiege it, and break it open, for ourselves, and set up a king in the midst thereof, even the son of Tabeal.)
7. "Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,"—
   It shall not stand.
   Neither shall it come to pass!
8. For (though the head of Syria is Damascus,
   And the head of Damascus is Rezin;)
   Yet (within threescore and five years more;) shall Ephraim be broken, that it shall not be a people;—
9. Even though (the head of Ephraim is Samaria, And the head of Samaria is the son of Remaliah;)—
   If ye trust not—
   Surely ye cannot be trusted!

§ 6. Isaiah's second Message to King Ahaz: "Ask a Sign!"

10. And again spake Yahweh unto Ahaz, saying—
11. Ask thee a sign, of Yahweh thy God,—
   Go down deep for a request,
   Or ascend on high;—
12. But Ahaz said,—
   I will not ask,
   Nor will I put Yahweh to the proof.
13. Then said he—
   Hear, I pray you, O house of David!
   Is it (too little) for you to weary [men], that ye must weary [even my God]?
14. Wherefore let My Lord Himself give you a sign,—
   Lo! [as a Virgin] (being with child and giving birth to a son) thou shalt call his name Immanuel.
15. (Curds and honey) shall he eat, by the time that he knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good;—
   for (before the boy knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good,) forty years shall be the land, at which [thou] art alarmed, in the presence of both her kings.

17. Yahweh will bring upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days which have not come, from the day when Ephraim departed from Judah,—
   (even the king of Assyria;)
18. And it shall come to pass (in that day) that Yahweh will give a sign—
   To the fly that is in the uttermost part of the Nile-canals of Egypt,
   And to the bee that is in the land of Assyria.
19. And they shall all of them (come and settle down)—
   In the desolate torrent-valleys,
   And in the rents of the crags,—
   On all the thorn-bushes,
   And on all the pastures;—
20. (In that day,) will My Lord shave (with a hired razor, even with them of the land of the River ["Enophates", with the king of Assyria:], the head, and the hair of the feet,— yea (even the beard:) will it sweep off.
21. And it shall come to pass (in that day) that a man shall keep alive a young cow, and two sheep. 22. Yea (it shall come to pass)
   (for the abundance of the yield of milk) that he shall eat curds,—for (curds and honey) shall every one eat, that is left in the midst of the land.
23. And it shall come to pass (in that day) that (every place wherein there used to be a thousand vines at a thousand piece of silver) yea (even for briars and thorns) shall it be. 24. (With arrows and with a bow,) shall one come in thither,— for (briars and thorns) shall be all the land.
25. But (call) the hills which [with the hoe can be weeded:]—there shall not come thither, the fear of briars and thorns,—but it shall be for the sending forth of oxen, and for the tread of less cattle.

§ 7. Isaiah himself instructed to take action: If the Name of Promise is declined, a Name of Threatening shall be given and attended.

1. And Yahweh said unto me:—
Take thee a large tablet, and write thereon, in plain characters,
   To Maher-shalal-hash-baz.

* Some cod. : "Yahweh" (instead of "Adonay")—G.n.
* It is true that the Heb. word here is slawah, and not slahalak; but an examination of all the occurrences of the former shows that it is synonymous with the latter, and properly means "virgin."
* Some cod. : "2 esr. pr. edns. and Sep." read : "thou wilt call" —G.n. The translator deems the internal evidence strong enough to warrant the adoption of this reading in the text. Mark the result : "Thou — Ahaz — wilt call." And so he would, if he had accepted and received the sign. But did he truly respond to the gracious challenge, and thereby secure the immediate fulfillment of the promise? The answer, in the n-flat, is writ large in what follows ver. 17. He would not "trust," and therefore could not "be trusted"—ver. 16.
* In many MSS. (w. 5 and pr. edns. given as two words; but in some [w. 2 ear. pr. edns.], as one word—G.n.

* Or perh. : "watering-place." — G.n. A.S.
* Instead of "Adonay"
ISAIAH VIII. 5—22; IX. 1—3.

16 Bind thou up the testimony,—
Seal the instruction amongst my disciples.*

17 I will therefore long for Yahweh,
Who is hiding his face from the house of Jacob,—
And will wait [for him].

18 Lo! I’ and the children whom Yahweh hath given’ me are for signs and for wonders, in Israel,—from Yahweh of hosts, who is making’ his habitation in Mount Zion.

19 But when they say unto you—
Seek ye unto the necromancers’ and unto the wizards, who chirp, and who mutter>
Should not a people seek [unto its God]? [In behalf of the living] [should it seek] unto the dead?

20 To the law,* and to the testimony!
[If they speak not according to this word] [It is] because they have no* dawning day.

§ 9. A renewed Description of Deepening Gloom
(ep. v. 26—30), which serves as a Background for an Outburst of Messianic Light.

21 Therefore shall they pass through it, hard pressed and hungry,—
And it shall be [when they hunger] then will they rage and revile their king and their god, and turn their faces upward;

22 And <unto the land> shall they look hard, And lo! <distress and darkness, the gloom of anguish> driven away!

1 For there is no gloom to her who had been in anguish,

<In the former time> he brought into dishonour
The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali,

<In the latter time> hath he brought into honour
The Lake-way over the Jordan,
Galilee of the nations.

2 [The people who were walking in darkness] Have seen a great light,—
<The dwellers in a land death-shadowed>
[A light] hath shined upon them.

3 Thou hast increased the exultation,
Thou hast made great the joy,—
They joy before thee, according to the joy of harvest,
As men exult when they distribute spoil.

* Or: “my instructed ones.”
Cp. chap. i. 4; liv. 13.

† Or: “is about to make.”

‡ Or: “familiar spirits.”
Cp. Lev. xx. 27.

§ Or: “instruction.”

* So the letters shall be regrouped and the words accordingly emended; an opinion so strongly sustained in his Intro., p. 161, that the resultant reading is, in this translation, taken up into the text. It has the unlooked-for argument in its favour, that it calls for what Dr. R. Moulton terms the “envelope” arrangement of the lines, which fact does not seem to have occurred to Dr. Ginsburg himself—Tr. N.B.: “not,” is retained in M.C.T.; but at the foot to,” “to him,” is given as the official reading; which in some cod. (w. Aram. and Syr.) is both written and read—G.n.
4 For the yoke of their burden,
The cross-bar of their shoulder,*
The goad of their driver>
Hast thou broken, as in the day of Midian.
5 Surely every boot of one tramping in tumult, and the war-cloak rolled in blood]
Then shall serve for burning, food for fire;
6 For [A Child|| hath been born to us,
[A Son]|| hath been given to us,*
And the dominion is upon his shoulder,—
And his Name hath been called Wonderful Counsellor,*
Mighty God,*
Father of Futurity,*
Prince of Prosperity.†
7 <Of the increase of dominion, and of prosperity>
There shall be no end—
Upon the throne of David, and
Upon his kingdom,
By establishing it, and
By sustaining it,
With justice, and
With righteousness,—
From henceforth,
Even unto times age-abiding:
[[The jealousy of Yahweh of hosts] will perform this!

§ 10. The Subject of Israel's Sin and Yahweh's consequent Displeasure resumed from Chapter v. 25. The same general Strain, and the same Refrains.

8 <A word> hath My Lord* sent unto Jacob,—
And it shall alight on* Israel;
And the people shall all* of them know [it]—
Ephraim and the dweller in Samaria—
Who <in pride and insolence of heart> are saying:
9 [[Bricks]] have fallen down,
But <with hewn stone> will we build,— [[Syzomoros]] have been felled,
But <with cedar> will we replace them.
10 Therefore will Yahweh strengthen the adversaries* of Rezin against him,—
And his enemies will he arouse:
11 Syrians before, and Philistines behind,
Thus have they devoured Israel with open mouth,—

13 Yet <the people> have not turned unto him that smote them,—
And <Yahweh of hosts> have they not sought.
14 Therefore hath Yahweh cut off from Israel—
Head and tail,
Palm-top and rush,
In one day.
15 <The elder and favourite> || the head,—
And <the prophet teaching falsehood> || he, is the tail;
16 And <they who should have led this people forward> have been causing them to stray,—
And <they who are led of them> are destroyed.b
17 [For this cause] <over their choice young men> will My Lord* not rejoice,
And <on their fatherless and their widows> will he not have compassion,
For <every one of them> is profane and an evildoer,
And <every mouth> is speaking baseness,—
18 <For all this> hath his anger > not turned back,
But <still> is his hand outstretched.
19 For lawlessness || hath consumed like fire,
19 <Briars and thorns> doth it devour,—
Yea it hath kindled upon the thickets of the forest,
And they have rolled up, as a column of smoke.
20 <Through the wrath of Yahweh of hosts> is the land consumed,—
And || the people> have come to be || as fuel for fire;||
21 A man || unto his own brother> sheweth not pity;
And he hath slain on the right, and yet is hungry,
And he hath eaten on the left, yet are they not satisfied,—
22 Every one || <the flesh of his own arm> will they eat:||
Manasseh — Ephraim, and Ephraim—Manasseh,
||They together||—against Judah,—
23 <For all this> hath his anger > not turned back,
But <still> is his hand outstretched.

* ML.: "swallowed up."
* Or: "Adonay."

* Cp. v. 8, 11, 16, 20, 21, 22; and Intro. Chap. I. 3, a.
2 Turning aside [from judgment] || the poor, ||
And robbing [of justice] || the oppressed of my people, —
So that [widows] become [their spoil],
And [of the fatherless] they make prey.
3 What, then, will ye do for the day of visitation,
And for the devastation which [from afar] shall come?
<Unto whom> will ye flee for help?
And where' will ye leave your glory?∗
4 <Without me> one hath bowed under a prisoner.
Yes <under the slain> do they fall!
<For all this> hath his anger [not turned back],
But <still> is his hand outstretched.

5 Alas! ||for Assyria|| the rod of mine anger,—
Yea <the very staff in their hand> is [my displeasure]:
6 <Against an irreligious∗ nation> will I send him,
Yea <against the people with whom I am wroth> will I command him,—
To capture spoil, — And lay hold on prey, And cause them to be trodden down as the mire of the lanes.
7 But <as for him> [not so] doth he deem,
And <in his heart> [not so] doth he think,—
For <to destroy> is in his heart,
And to cut off nations, [not a few];
8 For he saith:—
Are not [my generals] all alike? && kings?∗
Is not [Calno] ||like Carchemish?∗
Is not [Hamath] ||like Arpad?∗
Is not [Samaria] ||like Damascus?∗
9 <As my hand hath reached unto the kingdom of idols,—whose images did excel them of Jerusalem and Samaria>—
Shall I not, <as I have done to Samaria and her idols>, [so] do to Jerusalem and her images?
10 Wherefore it shall come to pass—<When My Lord shall finish his whole work upon Mount Zion, and upon Jerusalem>—
I will bring punishment—
Upon the fruit of the greatness of heart of the king of Assyria,
And upon the vainglory of his uplifted eyes.
12 For he hath said—
<By the strength of mine own hand> have I effectually wrought,
<And by my wisdom—for I have discernment>, —
That I might remove the bounds of peoples, ||
<Yea their treasures> have I plundered,
That I might lay prostrate, as a mighty one, the inhabitants;
14 And my hand [hath found as a nest] the wealth of the peoples,
And <as the gathering of eggs that are forsaken> || the all the earth || have || I gathered,—
And there was none to flap a wing, or open a mouth, or chirp.
15 Shall the axe [boast itself] against him that heweth therewith?
Or the saw [magnify itself] against him that wieldeth it?
As if a rod [could wield] them who lift it up!
As if a staff [could raise] what is [not wood]!∗
16 ||Therefore shall the Lord, || Yahweh∗ of hosts, Send [among his fat ones] ||leanness],
And <under his glory> shall he kindle [a kindling], ||like the kindling of fire;||
So shall [the Light of Israel] become ||a fire,||
And [his Holy One] ||a flame,||
Which shall burn and consume his thorns
and his briars, in one day;
18 And <the glory of his forest and of his garden land, both soul and body> shall it bring to an end,
— And it shall be like the wasting away of a consumptive.
19 And ||[the remnant of his forest-trees] [few in number] shall become,—yes ||a child might describe* them!—
20 And it shall come to pass <in that day>—
That the remnant of Israel,
And the escaped of the house of Jacob,
Shall [no more again] lean upon him that smote them,—
But shall lean upon Yahweh, the Holy One of Israel, ||in truth||,
21 ||A remnant|| shall return, —
The remnant of Jacob,—unto the mighty God;∗
22 For <though thy people, O Israel, shall be as the sand of the sea>—
||A [mere] remnant|| shall return of them,—
||A full end decreed|| bringeth in [justice] like a flood;
23 For ||a full end and that a decreed one|| is my Lord, Yahweh, hosts executing in the midst of all the earth.∗
And the spirit of Yahweh shall rest upon him, -

The spirit of wisdom and understanding,
The spirit of counsel and might,
The spirit of knowledge, and reverence of Yahweh; -

So will he find fragrance, in the reverence
of Yahweh,
And not by the sight of his eyes will he judge,
Nor by the hearing of his ears will he decide;
But he will judge with righteouscensuses them
who are poor,
And decide with equity for the oppressedc
of the land, -
And he will smite the land with the sceptre
of his mouth,
And with the breath of his lips will he slay the lawless one;
And righteousness shall be the girdle of his
loins,
And faithfulness the girdle of his reins;
And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb,
And the leopard shall lie down,
And the calf and the young lion, and the fainting-together,
With a little child leading them;
And the cow shall find pasture,
Together shall their young ones lie down,
And the lion shall eat straw;
And the sucking child shall caress over the hole of the ass,
Yea, over the viper's den hath the weaned child stretched out his hand:
They shall not hurt nor destroy, in all my holy mountain,
For filled is the land with the knowledge of Yahweh,
As the waters unto the sea shall form a covering.

And there shall come to be in that day
A root of Jesse, which shall be standing as an ensign of peoples,
Unto him shall nations seek, -
And his resting-place shall be glorious.

And it shall come to pass in that day
That My Lord will again set his hand to possess himself of the remnant of his people, who shall be left from Assyria and from Egypt, and from Pathros and from Ethiopia, and from Elam and from Shinar, and from Hamath and from the coastlands of the sea;
And he will lift up a standard to the nations,
And will gather the outcasts of Israel, -
And the dispersed of Judah he will collect,
From the four corners of the earth.
And the envy of Ephraim shall be removed,
And the vexatious doings of Judah shall be cut off:
Ephraim shall not envy Judah,
And Judah shall not vex Ephraim;

But they shall fly on the wing of the Philistines, in the west,
Together shall they make prey of the sons of the east,
On Edom and Moab putting forth their hand,
With the sons of Ammon hearkening unto them.

And Yahweh will devote to destruction the gulf of the Egyptian sea,
And will brandish his hand against the River (= Euphrates), in the full force of his spirit,
And will smite it in the seven streams,
And cause a marching through in sandals;

So shall there be a highway for the remnant of his people who shall be left, out of Assyria,—
Like as it was to Israel, in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt!

Thou shalt say, therefore, in that day,

I will praise thee, O Yahweh!
Though thou hast been angry with me
Thine anger turneth back,
And thou dost comfort me.

Lo! My God, is my salvation!
I will trust, and not dread,—
For my might and melody is Yah,
Yahweh,
And he hath become mine, by salvation.

Therefore shall ye draw water, with rejoicing,—out of the fountains of salvation.

And ye shall say, in that day,
Praise Yahweh,
Call upon his Name,
Make known among the peoples, his doings,—
Bring to remembrance, that |exalted| is his Name!

Praise in song Yahweh,
For a splendid thing hath he done,—
Well known! is this, in all the earth.

Make shrill thy voice and sing out, thou inhabitress of Zion,—
That great in the midst of thee is ||the Holy One of Israel||.

The oracle on Babylon,—of which Isaiah, son of Amoz, [had vision]:—
Upon a bare mountain lift ye up a standard,
Raise high the voice to them,—
Wave the hand,
That they may enter the doors of nobles.

I myself have given charge to my hallowed ones,—
Yes I have called
My heroes in showing mine anger,
My proudly exulting ones.

The noise of a multitude in the mountains,
A resemblance of many people,—
The noise of a tumult of kingdoms,
Nations gathered together,
Yahweh of hosts, mustering a host for battle!
They are coming in
From a land far away,
From the utmost bound of the heavens,—
Yahweh—with his weapons of indignation,
To destroy the land.

Howl ye! for at hand is the day of Yahweh,—
As a veritable destruction from the Almighty shall it come.

For this cause,—
All hands shall hang down,—and
Every mortal heart shall melt.

And they shall be in distress—
Writhings and pangs shall lay hold,
As a woman in childbirth shall they be in pangs,—
Every one ||at his neighbour|| shall look in amazement,
Faces of flames ||their faces!||

Lo! ||the day of Yahweh|| coming in,
Fierce and overflowing, and burning with anger,—
To devote the earth to desolation,
And her sinners will he destroy out of it.

For the stars of the heavens, and their constellations|| shall not flash forth their light,—
Obscured shall be the sun in his ||going forth||,
And the moon shall not shed her light.

And I will visit upon the inhabited earth ||calamity||,
And upon the lawless ||their punishment||,
And will quiet the arrogance of the proud,
And <the loftiness of tyrants> will I lay low.

I will cause |a man| to be more precious than |fine gold|,—
Even |a son of earth| than |the finest gold of Ophir|.

13 [For this cause] <the heavens> will I disturb,
     And [the earth] shall tremble] [out of her place,]
     In the wrath of Yahweh of hosts,
     And in the day of the glow of his anger.

14 And it shall be—
     Like a gazelle that is chased,
     And like a sheep with none to lift it up,
     [Each to his own people] will they turn,
     And [each to his own land] will they flee:
     [Every one found] shall be thrust through,—
     And [every one taken] shall fall by the sword;
     [Their infants] shall be dashed to the ground before their eyes,
     Plundered shall be [their houses], and [their wives ravished];

15 Behold me! stirring up against them, [the Moes],
     Who <of silver> shall take no account,
     And <as for gold> they shall not delight in it;
     And [bows] shall dash the young to pieces,—
     And [on the fruit of the womb] will they have no pity,
     <Over children> will [their eye] throw no shield.

16 Thus shall Babylon—
     The most lovely of kingdoms,
     The majestic beauty of the Chaldees—
     [Become] as in the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah.

17 It shall not be dwelt' in for ever,
    Neither shall it be inhabited, from generation to generation,— Neither shall encamp there [an Arab],
    Nor [shepherds] fold their flocks there.

18 Then shall lie down there, [wild beasts],
    And filled' shall be their houses, with [owls],—
    Then shall inhabit there, the ostrich,
    And [shaggy creatures] shall dance there.

19 And jackals shall answer in their citadels,
    And [wild dogs] in their voluptuous palaces,—
    And near to come' is [her time],
    And [her days] shall not be delayed.

14 1 For Yahweh will have compassion on Jacob,
    And will yet' choose Israel,
    And will give them rest upon their own soil,—
    And the sojourner [shall join himself] unto them,
    And they shall attach themselves unto the house of Jacob;
    And peoples [shall take them], and bring them into their own place,
    And the house of Israel shall possess themselves of them [upon the soil of Yahweh]

 || for servants and for handmaidens. —
    Thus shall they be taking captive their captors,
    And shall tread down their oppressors.a

3 And it shall come to pass <in the day when Yahweh shall give thee rest from thy toil, and from thy disquiet,—and from the hard service which had been laid upon thee > <that thou shalt take up this taunt over the king of Babylon, and shalt
     say:—

     How' hath ceased' the oppressor !
     Ceased' the exactress !b
     Broke' hast Yahweh the staff of the lawless,—
     The sceptre of despots ;
     Smiting peoples in passion,
     With stroke unremitting,—
     Trampling in anger on nations,
     Persecution unhindered.

7 <Quiet' at rest> the whole earth,—
    Men have hurst into shouting!
     [Yeas' the pine-trees] make mirth at thee,
     [Cedars' of Lebanon] !
     <Since thou wast laid low>
    No feller hath come up against us !

9 ||Hades' beneath] is excited about thee
    To meet thine arrival,—
    Rousing up, for thee, Shades,'
    All the he-goats of earth !
    Maketh rise from their thrones,
    All the kings of the nations.

10 ||All of them] answer, and say to thee,—
    Thou too' made strengthless [as we] !
    <Unto us> art thou like !
    <Brought down to Hades> thy pride,
    The hum of thy harps,'
    <Beneath thee> is spread out corruption,'
    And [thy coverlet]—[worms] !

12 How' hast thou fallen from heaven,
    O Shining One—Son of the Dawn !
    Hewn down to the earth,
    O crusher of nations !

13 Yet [thou] didst say in thy heart—
    <The heavens> will I ascend,
    <Above the stars of God> will I lift up my throne,—
    That I may sit in the Mount of Assembly,'

14 In the Recesses of the North:

    I will match the Most High !

[Text from page 661 of the book]
ISAIAH XV. 5—9; XVI. 1—14.

16 1 Send ye the lamb due to the ruler of the land.
From Sela towards the desert,—
Unto the mount of the daughter of Zion;
Yet shall it be that—
Like wandering birds from a nest cast forth.
Shall be the daughters of Moab, at the fords of Arnon.

2 Bring thou in counsel, Execute thou judgment,
Make as the night thy shadow, in the midst of high noon,—
Hide thou the outcasts,
The wanderer do not thou reveal.

3 Let mine own outcasts [sojourn with thee],
O Moab, become thou a covert to them, from the face of the spoiler,—
For vanished is the oppressor,
An end is extortion,
They who tread down have ceased out of the land.

4 So* shall be established [in lovingkindness] a throne,
And one shall sit thereon [in truth] in the home of David,— Judging—and seeking justice, and speeding righteousness.

5 We have heard of the arrogance of Moab.
Proud exceedingly!
His haughtiness and his arrogance and his passion,
<Not true> are his boastings.
Therefore shall Moab howl for Moab,
All that belong to her shall wail,—
For the ruins of Kir-hareseth* shall they moan out.
Utterly stricken!

6 For the fields of Heshbon are withered—
The vine of Sibmah.
The owners of nations have broken off
<Unto Jazer> had they reached,
They had spread abroad to the desert,—
Her boughs had stretched forth, had gone over to the sea.

7 For this cause will I bewail, in the wailing of Jazer,
The vine of Sibmah,
I will drench thee with my tears, O Heshbon, and Elealeh,—
For upon thy fruit-harvest, and upon thy grain-harvest— the battle-shout hath fallen.

8 Now shall be withdrawn rejoicing and exultation, out of the garden-land,
And in the vineyards shall be neither singing nor shouting,— Wine in the winepress the treaster [shall not tread],
The vintage-shout have I made to cease.

9 For this cause mine inward parts—for Moab [like a lyre] shall make a plaintive sound,—
Yea [what is within me] for Kir-heres.
And it shall be—
When it is seen that Moab hath laboured in vain on the high place
He shall enter into his holy place to pray, and shall not prevail.

10 ||This|| is the word which Yahweh spake concerning Moab in time past;
But now hath Yahweh spoken, saying,
<In three years—> as the years of a hireling shall the glory of Moab be diminished, with all the great multitude,—even a very small remnant, [of no account].

§ 16. A Prophecy against Damascus.

17 The oracle on Damascus,—

Lo! [Damascus] is to be removed from being a city, And shall become a heap of ruins:

For flocks! are the desolate cities,—

Which shall lie down, and have none’ to make them afraid.

Then shall the fortress cease from Ephraim, And the kingdom from Damascus, and the remnant of Syria,—

Like the glory of the sons of Israel shall they be,—

Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

And it shall come to pass [in that day]—

That the glory of Jacob shall be diminished, And the fatness of his flesh shall be wasted;

And it shall come to pass—

That as the harvestman gathereth standing corn, And with his arm—the ears he reapeth—

Yea it shall come to pass—

That [so] shall he be who gleanseth ears, in the vale of Rephaim;

Yet shall there be left therein, a gleaning,

As in the beating of an olive-tree,—

Two—three berries, in the head of the tree—

Four—five, among her fruitful boughs,

Declareth Yahweh, God of Israel.

In that day shall the son of earth look to him that made him,—

And his eyes unto the Holy One of Israel be turned;

And he shall not look unto the altars, the work of his own hands,—

Nor to what his own fingers have made;

shall his eye be turned,

Whether Sacred Stems or Sun-pillars.

In that day shall his fortified cities become Like a neglected bough and a topmost branch,

Which they neglected because of the sons of Israel,—

So shall there be desolation.

Because thou didst forget the God of thy salvation,

And thy Rock of refuge thou didst not remember;

For this cause shall thou plant very pleasant plants,

And the slip of a stranger shall thou set:

In the day when thou plantest fence thou in,

And in the morning cause thou [thy slip] to blossom.—

A harvest will have.waved in the day of destiny, and mortal pain.

§ 17. A Prophecy against a Land Far South.

18 Ho! thou land of the buzzing of wings,—

Which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia:

That sendeth, by the sea, ambassadors,

Even in vessels of paper-reed, upon the face of the waters,—

Go, ye swift messengers,

Unto a nation drawn out* and polished,

Unto a people terrible from their beginning and onwards,—

A nation most mighty and subduing,

Whose land rivers [have cut through].

All ye inhabitants of the world,

And ye, that dwell in the earth,—

When there is lifted up an ensign on the mountains—

Ye shall look,

And when there is blown a horn—

Ye shall hearken.

For thus said Yahweh unto me,—

I must be quiet,

I must look on in my fixed place of abode,—

Like a bright heat, on the light,

Like a cloud of dew, in the heat* of harvest.

For before harvest, when the bud is perfect,

And [the blossom] becometh [a ripening grape]—

Then will one cut down the twigs with pruning-hooks,

And [the tendrils] will he remove [and] cast down:

They shall be left together.

To the [ravenous birds] of the mountains,

And to the beast of the earth,—

Then shall the ravenous bird | summer upon
them,
And every beast of the earth || upon them
shall winter. 7

<In that time> shall there be borne along,
As a present unto Yahweh of hosts,
A people drawn out and polished,
Even from a people terrible from their beginning and onwards,—
A nation most mighty and subduing
Whose land rivers [have cut through],
Unto the place of the Name of Yahweh of hosts.
Mount Zion.

§ 18. A Prophecy against Egypt: “Yahweh will plague and heal?”

19 Then shall turn pale
The workers in combed flax,— and
The weavers of white linen;
Then shall her pillars be crushed,—
All who make wages || be bowed down in soul.
Surely foolish are the princes of Zoon,
The wisest counsellors of Pharaoh [in counsel] are brutish,—
How can ye say unto Pharaoh,
<Son of the wise> and F.
Son of the kings of olden time:—
Where then are thy wise men?
Pray let them tell thee!
And let them know what Yahweh of hosts
|hath purposed| on Egypt:
Doting’ are the princes of Zoon,
Deceived’ are the princes of Noph:
Who they are the corner-stone of her tribes’
|have led * Egypt astray |.
Yahweh || hath infused in her midst, a spirit
of perverseness,—
And they have led Egypt astray into all his own doings,
As a drunken man staggereth’ into his own
vomit;
And Egypt shall have nothing which can be done,
Which head or tail, palm-top or rush, |can
do | !

<In that day> shall Egypt be like unto women,—
And shall start and tremble because of the brandishing of the hand of Yahweh of hosts, which he’ is about to brandish over it.
Then shall the soil of Judah become, to
Egypt || a terror |;
Every one to whom it is mentioned: will tremble,—
Because of the purpose of Yahweh of hosts, which he’ is purposing against it.

<In that day> shall there be five cities in the land of Egypt,
Speaking the language of Canaan,
And swearing unto Yahweh of hosts,—
The city of destruction || shall be the name
of one |!

<In that day> shall there be An altar unto Yahweh, in the midst of the land of Egypt,—
And a pillar near the boundary thereof,
unto Yahweh;—
And it shall become a sign and a witness, unto Yahweh of hosts, in the land of Egypt,—

For they will make outcry unto Yahweh, because of oppressors, that he would send them a saviour—and a great one. Then will be deliver them.

Then will [Yahweh] make himself known’ to the Egyptians, So shall [the Egyptians] know’ [Yahweh], in that day,— And they will offer a sacrifice and a present,* And will vow a vow unto Yahweh, and will perform.

And Yahweh will plague Egypt, plague and heal;— And they will turn unto Yahweh, And he will be entreated of them, and will heal them.

<In that day> shall there be a highway, from Egypt to Assyria, And [the Assyro-Egyptians] shall come into Egypt, And [the Assyro-Egyptians] into Assyria; And [the Assyro-Egyptians] shall serve b with the Assyro-Egyptians.

<In that day> shall [Israel] be a third with Egypt and with Assyria,— A blessing in the midst of the earth: Whom Yahweh of hosts hath blessed, saying,— (Blessed) be My people—the Egyptians, And the work of my hands — the Assyrians, And mine own inheritance—Israel.

§ 19. A Warning not to trust in Egypt—symbolically enforced by Isaiah.

20 1 <In the year that Tartan entered Ashdod, when Sargon king of Assyria sent him,—and he fought against Ashdod and captured it>,—

2 <at that time> spake Yahweh, through b Isaiah son of Amoz, saying,

Go, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, And <thy sandal> draw thou off from thy foot,— And he did so, walking disrobed and barefoot.

Then said Yahweh,—<As my servant Isaiah [hath walked] disrobed and barefoot, three years, as a sign and a wonder, against Egypt and against Ethiopia>

4 [So] shall the king of Assyria lead away the captives of Egypt, and the exiles of Ethiopia, young and old, disrobed and barefoot,—with their persons behind uncovered] [the shame of Egypt].

Thus shall they be confounded, and turn pale,— For Ethiopia, their expectation, and For Egypt, their boast; *

6 And the inhabitant of this shore [shall exclaim], in that day, Lo! such is our expectation, whereunto

§ 20. A Prophecy against the Desert of the Sea.

1 The oracle on the desert of the sea:*—

21 <As storm-winds in the South which [with a rush from the desert] do come from a terrible land>

2 [So] hath [a grievous vision] been told me:— [The deceiver] is deceiving, And [the spoiler] is spoiling, Go up, O Elam, Besiege, O Media, <All the sighing she hath caused> have I made to cease.

3 [For this cause] are my loins filled with anguish, [Pangs] have seized me, as the pangs of her that is giving birth,— I write, so that I cannot hear, I tremble, so that I cannot see:

4 My heart fluttereth', [A horror] terrifieth me,—<My twilight of pleasure> b hath he turned for me into a time of trembling.

5 [Ye thought] to prepare the table—spread the mat—eat—drink! . . .

Ariseth, ye chieftains, anoint the shield!'

6 For [thus] hath My Lord said unto me,— Go, set the watchman, <What he seeth> let him tell!

7 <When he seeth>

A train of horsemen in double rank,
A train of asses,
A train of camels>
Then shall he hearken attentively, with diligent heed.

8 Then cried he, A lion!

<On the watch> O My Lord, had I been standing continually, by day, And <at my post> had I been stationed whole nights:—

8 When lo! here was a train of men coming, With horsemen in double rank,—

And one began and said, Fallen! fallen! is Babylon, And [all the images of her gods] are smashed to the ground!

10 O thou My threshing!*
And the grain of my corn-floor!'

<That which I have heard from Yahweh of hosts, the God of Israel>
Have I declared [unto you].

b "The twilight of my pleasure." —O. G. 888.
c "To make it slippery." —O. G.
d Carved, graven, or even molten—Deut. vii. 5.

b Mi.: "And son of my threshing — floor;" i.e., my poor people crushed as corn in the threshing." —Davies H.L.
§ 21. A Prophecy against Dumah (Edom).

11 The oracle on Dumah:—

"Unto me> is one crying—out of Seir,
Watchman! how far gone is the night?
Watchman! how far gone is the night?"

12 Said the watchman,
There cometh a morning,
But also a night,—
"If ye will enquire> enquire ye—Come again!"

§ 22. A Prophecy against Arabia.

13 The oracle on Arabia,—

"Among the shrubs in Arabia> must ye lodge,
Ye caravans of Dedanites.

14 To meet the thirsty> bring ye water,—
Ye dwellers in the land of Tema;
With bread for him that is in flight!

15 For before swords> have they fled:
Before a sword that is drawn,
Before a bow that is bent,
And before the stress of war.

16 For hath My Lord said unto me,—
Within a year, according to the years of a hireling> shall fail all the glory of Kedar;
And the remnant of the record of bowmen,
The heroes of the sons of Kedar shall become few;
For Yahweh, God of Israel> hath spoken.

§ 23. A Prophecy against the Valley of Vision.

22 The oracle on the valley of vision,—

What aileth thee, then,
That thou art wholly gone up to the housetops?

2 <With tumult> art thou filled, thou citadel in commotion! city exultant!
Thy slain> are Not the slain of the sword,
Nor the dead in battle.

3 All thy rulers> having fled together,
(by the bow> are taken captive;
All found in thee have been taken captive together,
Far away> have they fled.

4 For this cause> I said—
Look away from me,
Bitterly> will I weep,—
Do not press to comfort me,
For the ruin of the daughter of my people.

a "The oracle of silence, i.e., of concealed, hidden meaning." Or else: "name of Edom with mystic meaning; Dema =silence of death, desolation." For both, see G. B. 189.
b So A. B. Davidson, "Temple Bible." "How much of the night is passed? Literally, 'What from the night!'"—G. B. "How late is the hour of night!"—Cheyne (V. B.).
"Or: 'If ye will keep on asking, keep on asking.'"
"Instead of 'in Arabia,' Cheyne reads and renders: 'at even tide'—F. B.

5 For a day of confusion and downtreading and perplexity> pertaineth to My Lord Yahweh of hosts, in the valley of vision,— an undermining of walls, and a crying for help to the mountain.
6 Yea Elam> beareth the quiver,
With trains> of men, [and] horsemen,—
And Kir> hath uncovered the shield.
7 And it hath come to pass that [the choice of thy vales] are full of chariots;
Yea, the horsemen> have set themselves [in array] at the gate.

8 Then removed he the veil of Judah,—
Yea thou didst peer, on that day, into the armory of the forest-house;
And the breaches in the city of David> ye beheld, for they were many,—
So ye gathered together the waters of the lower pool;
And the houses of Jerusalem> ye counted,—
And brake down the houses, to fortify the wall;
And a reservoir> ye made, between the two walls, for the waters of the ancient pool,—
And had no regard unto him that made it,
Nor unto him that formed it long ago had ye respect.

9 And when My Lord Yahweh of hosts called, in that day,—for weeping, and for lamentation, and for shaving bare, and for girding with sackcloth>—

10 Then lo! joy and rejoicing, killing oxen, and slaughtering sheep, eating flesh, and drinking wine,—
Let us eat and drink,
For to-morrow> we may die!

11 Therefore did Yahweh reveal himself in mine ears.
Surely there shall be no propitiatory-covering put over this iniquity for you, until ye die,
Saitth My Lord, Yahweh> of hosts.

§ 24. Shebna removed from his office as Steward, and Eliakim installed in his stead.

12 ||Thus> said My Lord Yahweh> of hosts, Come, go in unto this steward,
Unto Shebna, who is over the house:—

What doest thou here?
And whom hast thou here?
That thou hast hewn for thyself here a sepulchre,—
As one hewing on high' his sepulchre,
Cutting out in the cliff' a habititation for himself?

13 Lo! ||Yahweh> is about to hurl thee, with a hurl, O mighty man,—
And roll thee with a roll;

4 Some cod. (w. Aram., Sept., Syr., Vul.) add: "and thou shalt say "and"—G. B.
"Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edn., Vul.) have this and unto him"—G. B.
"Or: 'Adonay, Yahweh.'"
He will [[toes]] thee, with a toes, like a ball, into a country wide on both hands,—
[[There]] shall thou die,
And [[there]] shall thy glorious' chariots be the contempt of the house of thy lord.
Thus will I thrust thee out from thine office,—
And <from thy station> shall one tear thee down.
And it shall come to pass, <in that day>
That I will call for my servant, for Eliakim, son of Hilkiah,
And will clothe him with thy tunic,
And <with thy girdle> will I gird him,
And <thine authority> will I deliver into his hand,—
So shall he become a father
To the inhabitant* of Jerusalem and
To the house of Judah.
22 And I will lay the key of the house of David, upon his shoulder,—
And he shall open, and none shall shut,
And shut, and none shall open;
23 And I will fasten him as a peg in a sure place,—
And he shall become a throne of glory, to the house of his father;
And they shall hang upon him, all the weight of his father's house—
The offshoots, and the side-twigs—
All the small vessels,
Both the cups and all the jugs
25 <in that day> —
Declareth Yahweh of hosts
Shall the peg [giveth way], that was fastened in a sure place,—
Yes it shall be cut off and fall,
And the burden that was upon it shall perish,
For [Yahweh] hath spoken!

§ 25. A Prophecy against Tyre: when restored to her Traffic, she will render Tribute to the Temple
of Yahweh.
23 1 The oracle on Tyre,—
Howl! ye ships of Tarshish,
For it is laid too waste to be a haven to enter,
<From the land of Cyprus> hath it been unveiled to them.
2 Be dumb, ye inhabitants of the Coast,—
Whom [[the merchants of Zidon]] <passing over the sea> once replenished;
3 Yes <on mighty waters> was the grain of Shiloh,
[[The harvest of the Nile]] was her increase,—
And so she became a mart of nations.
4 Turn thou pale, O Zidon,
For spoken' hath the sea, the fortress of the sea, saying,—
I have neither been in pangs nor given birth,
I have neither brought up young men, nor promoted virgins.
5 <Like the report of Egypt>
They shall be in pangs at the like report of Tyre.*
6 Pass ye over to Tarshish,—
Howl, ye inhabitants of the Coast:
7 Is this, to you, an exultation? —
<Though from ancient days is her antiquity>,
Yet shall her own foot' carry her away, far off to dwell. b
8 Who' hath purposed this, against Tyre.
The bestower of crowns,—
Whose merchants are princes,
Her traders, the honoured of the earth!
9 [[Yahweh of hosts]] hath purposed it,—
To humble the pride of all beauty,
To make of little esteem all the honourable
of the earth.
10 Pass through thy land, as the Nile,— O daughter of Tarshish, there is no restraint c any longer!
11 <His hand> hath he stretched out over the sea,
He hath shaken kingdoms,— [[Yahweh]] hath given command against the Phoenician coast,*
To destroy her fortresses.
12 Therefore hath he said,—
[[No more, again]] do thou exult,
Thou violated virgin daughter of Zidon,—
<To Cyprus> arise and pass over,
<Even there> shall one find thee no rest.
13 Lo! <the land of the Chaldeans>:
[T]his is the people, that was not,
[[Assyria]] founded it for the inhabitants of the desert,—
They set up its siege-towers,
They demolished its palaces,
Made it a ruin!
14 Howl, ye ships of Tarshish,—
For laid waste' is your fortress.
15 So shall it be <in that day> —
That Tyre shall be forgotten seventy years,
According to the days of a certain king:
<At the end of seventy years> shall it befall Tyre according to the song of the harlot:
16 Take thou a lyre. Go round the city,
O harlot forgotten,— Sweetly touch the strings. Lengthen out the song,
That thou mayest be called to mind.
17 So shall it be <at the end of seventy years>
That Yahweh will visit Tyre,
And she will return to her hire,—
Yes she will play the harlot—with all the kingdoms of the earth, upon* the face of the ground.

a In some cod. (w. Aram., Sep., Syr., Vul.): "in- habitants"—G.n. b "Jars, pitchers"—O.G.

* Cp. O.G. p. 458, b. b Or: "sojourn." c Some cod.: "which are upon"—G.n.

* See O.G. 4889.

* But see O.G. 661.
18 But [her merchandise and her hire] shall be hallowed unto Yahweh, it shall not be stored up, nor hoarded,—
For <to them who dwell before Yahweh> shall her merchandise belong,
That they may eat to satisfaction,
And have stately apparel.

§ 26. A world-wide Devastation gives place to a Manifestation of Yahweh as King in Jerusalem;
in connection with which, supra-mundane
and mundane hostile Powers are Imprisoned, Death is Defeated, the Veil over the Nations is Removed, Israel fills the World with Fruit, and Songs are sung both in the Uttermost Parts of the Earth and in the Land of Judah.

24 Lo! Yahweh emptying the earth, and laying it waste,—
And he will overturn the face thereof,
And scatter them who dwell therein.
And it shall be—
As the people shall [so] the priest,
As the servant shall [so] his lord,
As the maid shall [so] her mistress,—
As the buyer shall [so] the seller,
As the lender shall [so] the borrower,
As the debtor shall [so] his creditor.
Emptied—emptied—shall be the earth, yea pillaged—pillaged,—
For [Yahweh] hath spoken this word.
Mourneth, fadeth, the earth
Languisheth, fadeth, the world,—
Languished have the loyty of the people of the earth.
Yea, the earth itself is profaned under them who dwell therein,—
For they have Set aside laws,
Gone beyond statute,
Broken an age-abiding covenant.

But I had said—
Ruine me! Ruine me! Woe to me!
Traitors have betrayed,
Yea, traitorously, have traitors betrayed!
Terror and pit, and snare,—are upon thee,
O inhabitant of the earth:
So shall it be—
He that fleeth from the sound of the terror
shall fall into the pit,
And he that geteth up out of the midst of the pit shall be captured in the snare,—
For the windows on high have opened,
And shaken are the foundations of earth.
The earth breaketh, breaketh,—
The earth crasheoth, crasheoth,
The earth tottereth, tottereth;
The earth staggereth—staggereth, like a drunken man,
And rocketh to and fro like a night-hut,—
So shall be heavy upon her, her transgression,
And she shall fall, and not again rise."

And it shall be <in that day>
That Yahweh will bring punishment
Upon the host of the height, in the height,—
And upon the kings of the ground, on the ground.
And they shall be swept together in a crowd, fettered for a pit,
And shall be lowered into a dungeon,—
And after many days shall they be punished.

Then shall blush, the silvery moon,
Then turn pale, the glowing sun,—
Because Yahweh of hosts hath become king
In Mount Zion,
And in Jerusalem,
And before his Elders, in glory.

* Some cod. (w. 4 eac. pr. edns. Syr.): "Because of a curse the earth mourneth." —O.N.
† "Moad"—Cheyne (P.B.).
‖ So "I had said." ver. 16.
N.B.: the striking assen-
ance: pāḇēḵ uṣpāḇēḵ uṣpāḇēḵ.
25 O Yahweh! <my God> thou art,
I will exalt thee,
I will praise thy Name,
For thou hast done a wonderful thing,—
Purposes of long ago,
Faithfulness in truth.
For thou hast made,
Of a citadel, a mound,
Of a defended city, a ruin,—
Palaces for foreigners, to be no city,
To times age-abiding> shall it not be built.

[For this cause] shall glory thee—a strong people,
The city of tyrannous nations shall revere thee;
For thou didst become
A refuge to the weak,
A refuge to the needy, when distress was upon him,—
A shelter from the storm,
A shade from the heat,
When the blast of tyrants was like a storm against a wall.

<As heat in a desert> [the pomp of foreigners] will thou subdue,—
Heat—with the shade of a cloud,
The song of tyrants become low.

Then will Yahweh of hosts prepare for all the peoples in this mountain
A banquet of fat things, a banquet of old wines,—
Of fat things full of marrow, of old wines well refined;
And he will swallow up in this mountain
The mask of the veil, the veil that is upon all the peoples,—
And the web that is woven over all the nations.

Having swallowed up death itself victoriously—
My Lord, Yahweh, will wipe away tears from off all faces,—
And the reproach of his own people will he remove from off all the earth,
For Yahweh hath spoken.

So shall it be said in that day:
Lo! our God is this!
We waited for him that he might save us,
This is Yahweh!
We waited for him,
Let us exult and rejoice, in his salvation.

For the hand of Yahweh will settle down in this mountain,—
Then shall Moab be trodden down in its place,
Like the treading down of a strawheap in the water of a dunghill;

11 Should he spread forth his hands in the midst thereof,
As a swimmer spreadeth forth to swim>
Then would be laid low his pride, together with the devices of his hands.

Yes the lofty stronghold of thy walls
Hath he brought down—
Laid low—
Levelled to the ground, even unto the dust.

In that day shall be sung this song, in the land of Judah,—
A strong city> have we!
Salvation will he set for walls and rampart.
Open ye the gates,—
That there may enter in—a righteous nation preserving fidelity.

A purpose sustained> thou wilt guard,
saying
Prosper! Prosper!
Because in thee> hath he been led to trust.
Trust ye in Yahweh, unto futurity,—
For in Yah, Yahweh> is a rock of ages.

For he hath brought down the inhabitants of the height,
the city exalted,—
He layeth it low.
Layeth it low, even to the ground,
Levelleth it, even to the dust:
The foot trampleth' it,—
The feet of the lowly,
The steps of the weak.

The path of a righteous man> is even,
O Upright One! <the track of a righteous man> thou makest level.
Surely in the path of thy regulations> O Yahweh, we waited for thee,— Unto thy Name and unto thy Memorial> was there a longing of soul:
With my soul> longed I for thee in the night,
Yea with my spirit within me> I kept on searching for thee,—
For when thy regulations [extend] to the earth
The inhabitants of the world will have learned righteousness.

Let favour be shewed to the lawless> he hath not learned righteousness,
In a land of honest dealings> he acteth perversely,—
And seeth not the splendour of Yahweh.

O Yahweh though thy hand be lifted up yet do they not see,
Would they might see—and turn pale at a people's zeal,—
Surely the fire of thine enemies must consume them!
13 O Yahweh, thou wilt ensure prosperity for us,—
For <even all our works> hast thou wrought for us.
13 O Yahweh, our God!
Lords other than thee, have owned us,—
<By thyself alone> will we call upon <thy Name.
14 'The dead' come not to life again,
'The shades' do not arise,—
Therefore thou hast visited and destroyed them,
And caused to perish every memorial of them.
15 Thou hast increased the nation, O Yahweh, Thou hast increased the nation, thou hast gotten thyself glory,—
Thou hast extended far, all the ends of the land.
16 O Yahweh! <in distress> they sought thee,— They poured out a whispered prayer, when thy chastening was upon them.
17 <Like as a woman with child—
Draweth near to giving birth,
Is in pain,
Crieth out in her pangs;>
So were we before thee, O Yahweh;—
We were with child—
We were in pain,
As it were we brought forth wind,—
<Salvation> we could not accomplish for the earth,
Neither were born <the inhabitants of the world.
19 Thy dead [shall come to life again],
<My dead body> they shall arise,—
Awake and shout for joy, ye that dwell in the dust,
For  is thy dew,
And <earth> to the shades shall give birth.<
20 Come, my people, enter into thy chambers,<
And shut thy doors, behind thee,—
Hideth thee, as it were, a little moment,<
Till the indignation pass over.

---

21 For lo! [Yahweh] is coming forth out of his place,
To visit the iniquity of earth's inhabitant
upon him,—
Therefore shall the earth unveil her shed-blood,
And throw a covering, no longer, over her slain.

---

1 <In that day> will Yahweh
<With his sword—the hard and the great and the strong>
[Bring punishment]—
Upon Leviathan, the spoiling serpent,
And upon Leviathan, the crooked serpent,—
And will slay the monster which is in the sea.

---

2 <In that day> A Wine-Vineyard! <sing ye unto her;>

---

3 [I—Yahweh] am watching over her,
<Every moment> will I water her,— <Lest anyone injure her>
<Night and day> will I watch over her.

---

4 <Fury> have I none,—
Oh that there were delivered to me, briers and thorns, in battle!
I would march in among them, I would set fire to them [one and all].
Else, let one lay hold of my protection;<
Let him make peace with me,—
<Peace> let him make with me.

---

6 <In coming times> shall Jacob [strike root],
Israel [shall blossom and bud],—
Then shall they fill the face of the world with fruit.

---

7 Was it <with the smiting of his smiter> that he smote him?
Or <as with the slaying of his slayer> was he slain?

---

8 <By driving her away—by dismissing her> wouldst thou contend with her?
He removed her by his rough wind, in a day of east wind.

---

9 [Therefore] <hereby> shall a propitiatory-cov ering be put over the iniquity of Jacob,
And all this is the fruit of taking away his sin,—
<When he maketh all the stones of an altar like chalk-stones that soon crumble>
Sacred Steams and Sun Images [shall not arise].

---

10 For <the fortified city> is solitary,
The dwelling forsaken, and left as a wilderness,— a Cp. O.G. 2795. Mi.: "made mention of."

This is the natural and obvious rendering; and so, in effect, G.A.S. translates. Even so, however, the next couplet would appear to limit the statement to the "other lords" just alluded to in ver. 13. As much as to say: When our enemies die, we have done with them for ever; even though, for a time, they had been our "lords."

5 <In that day> will Yahweh of hosts become
A crown of beauty, and
A diadem of majesty,—
Unto the remnant of his people:
6 Even a spirit of justice—to him that presideth over justice,
And strength to them who would turn back
the battle at the gate.
7 But <as for these>—
<With wine> do they reel, and
<With strong drink> do they stagger,—
Priest and prophet reel with strong drink
They are swallowed up through wine.
They stagger through strong drink,
They reel in prophetic vision,
They totter in pronouncing judgment.
8 For <all tables> are full of filthy vomit,—
There is no place!
9 ||Whom|| would he teach knowledge?
And ||whom|| would he cause to understand the message?
Them who are weaned from the milk?
taken from the breasts?
10 For it is—
Precept upon precept, precept upon precept,
Line upon line, line upon line,—
A little here, a little there.*
11 For <with a jabbering lip, and with an alien tongue> must he speak unto this people!
12 To whom he said—
[This] is the rest—give ye rest to the weary, and
[This] is the quietness,—
But they were unwilling to hear.
13 So the word of Yahweh must be to them—
Precept upon precept, precept upon precept,
Line upon line, line upon line,
A little here, a little there,•
That they may go, and fall backward, and be torn, and snared, and captured.
14 Wherefore, hear ye the word of Yahweh,
Ye men who scoff,—
Ye rulers of this people that is in Jerusalem.
15 Because ye have said—
We have solemnised a covenant with death,
And <with hades> have we effected a vision,•—

28 1 Alas! for the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim,
And for his fading wreath of majestic beauty,—
Which is on the head of the fertile valley, of them who are overcome* with wine.
2 Lo! My Lord hath one who is ||strong and bold||,
Like a storm of hail, a destroying tempest,*
Like a storm of mighty waters o'erflowing—
Hath he thrust it down to the earth with force:
3 <With the feet' shall be trodden down> the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim! So shall his fading wreath of majestic beauty,
Which is on the head of the fertile valley, become—
Like the first-ripe fig before fruit-harvest,
Which <when he that looketh upon it seeth, while it is yet in his hand> he swalloweth it up.

ISAIAH XXIX. 6—24.

Therefore, behold me! again dealing wonderfully with this people, doing wonderfully a wonderful thing,—

So shall perish the wisdom of their wise men,
And the intelligence of their intelligent men shall vanish!

Alas! for them who would faint have been too deep for Yahweh, by giving secret counsel, and therefore have been their doings, and they have said, Who can see us? and—

Who can understand us?

Your perverseness!

As if <like clay> the potter could be reckoned;

For shall the thing made say of him that made it?

He made me not!

Or hath the thing fashioned ever said of him that fashioned it?

He hath no understanding?

Is it not yet a very little while,

And Lebanon shall be turned into garden land,—

And garden land for a forest be reckoned?

Therefore, in that day shall the deaf hear the words of a book, and—

And out of gloom and darkness the eyes of the blind shall see;

And again shall the humbled, in Yahweh have joy,—

And the needy of mankind in the Holy One of Israel shall exult;

For the tyrant hath vanished,

And the scoffer is no more.

Yea cut off are all who watch for iniquity:

Who bring a man into condemnation with a rumour,

And for him that decideth in the gate lay a snare,—

And have driven away, for a thing of nought, one who was righteous.

Therefore

Thus say Yahweh, concerning the house of Jacob, [even he saith it] who redeemed Abraham,—

[Not now shall Jacob turn pale],
And [not now] shall their faces whiten;

For when he seeth his children, the work of my hands, in his midst:

They will hallow my Name,—

Yea they will hallow the Holy One of Jacob, And <the God of Israel> will they regard with awe.

Then will they who erred in spirit, comprehend;

And the murmurers accept instruction.

Stand ye stock still, and stare,

Beshear your eyes, and be blind,—

They are drunken, but not with wine,

They reel, but not with strong drink:

For Yahweh hath poured out upon you a spirit of deep sleep,

Ye have hath tightly shut your eyes—the prophets,—

And <your heads—the seers> hath he covered,*

And so all' vision hath become unto you, as the words of a writing that is sealed,

Pray thee, read this, And he saith,

I cannot, for it is sealed; And then the writing is delivered to one unacquainted with writing, saying,

Pray thee, read this, And he saith,

I am not acquainted with writing.

Wherefore My Lord hath said,—

§ 31. Relicess on Egypt denounced. Yahweh Israel’s true Protection against both Egypt and Assyria.

30 1 Alas! for sons who are rebellious,
Declareth Yahweh.
Executing a purpose, but not from me,
And pouring out a libation,* but not from my spirit,—
That they may add sin to sin:
2 Who are setting out to go down to Egypt,
But <at my mouth> have not asked,—
Betaking them to the protection of Pharaoh,
And seeking refuge under the shadow of Egypt.
3 Therefore shall [the protection of Pharaoh]
become to you | a shame,
And |the refuge in the shadow of Egypt| an insult;
4 For [their princes] have been [in Zoaı̂],—
And [their messengers] unto Hanes| would draw near.
|| Every one || hath felt ashamed of a people that could not serve them,—
Neither with help, nor with service,
But they are a shame, yea even a reproach.
6 The Oracle on the Beasts of the South,—
<Through a land of distress and oppression—
Lioness and lion coming therefrom,
Viper and fiery flying serpent>
They would carry, on the shoulders of young asses their wealth,
And, on the humps of camels, their treasures,
Unto a people that cannot serve them.
7 But [the Egyptians]| with vanity and emptiness| would help,—
Therefore’ have I proclaimed concerning this,
|| Insolent! || they sit still! b
8 Now|| enter—
Write it upon a tablet before them,
And <upon a scroll> inscribe it,—
That it may serve for a later day,
For futurity, unto times age-abiding:—
9 That it is |a rebellious people||
Sons, apt at deceiving, —
Sons, unwilling to hear the law| of
Yahweh;
10 Who have said | to the seers!,
Ye must not || see!
To the prophets,
Ye must not prophesy to us reproofs!
Speak to us smooth things,
Prophecy delusions:
11 Depart ye from the way,
Turn aside from the path,—
Desist, from setting before us ||the, Holy
One of Israel|.
ISAIAH XXX. 21—33; XXXI. 1—5.

21 So shall thine own ears hear a word from behind thee saying,—
This is the way, walk ye therein, When ye would turn to the right hand, Or when ye would turn to the left.

22 Then will ye defile—
The overlaying of thy graven images of silver,
And the coating of thy molten image of gold,—
Thou wilt cast them away, as a woman the token of her sickness,
Rage on! shalt thou say thereto.

23 Then will he give—
Rain for thy seed—wherewith thou shalt sow thy ground,
And bread as the increase of thy ground, which shall be fertile and fat,—
Thy cattle, in that day, shall feed in broad pasture:
And the oxen and the young ass that till the ground shall eat, which hath been winnowed with shovel or fan.

24 Then shall there be,
On every lofty mountain, and on every lifted hill,
Conduits of water,—In the great day of slaughter,
When the towers fall.

25 Then shall [the light of the moon] be [as the light of the sun],
And [the light of the sun] shall be [sevenfold] [as the light of seven days],—
In the day—When Yahweh bindeth up the laceration of his people, and
When [the severe wound caused by smiting them] he healeth.

26 Lo! the Name of Yahweh coming in from afar, His anger kindling, A heavy storm,—
His lips are full of indignation, And his tongue is like a fire that devoureth;
And his breath like an overflowing torrent, Even unto the neck—doth reach,
To sift nations with a sieve of calamity,—
A bridle leading to ruin being upon the jaws of the peoples.

27 A song shall ye have, As in the night of hallowing a festival,—
And gladness of heart, As when one goeth with the flute to enter Into the mountain of Yahweh, Unto the Rock of Israel.

28 Then will Yahweh cause to be heard—the resounding of his voice,
And the bringing down of his arm shall be seen, In a rage of anger,
And with the flame of a devouring fire,—
A burst and a downpour, and a hailstone!

29 For at the voice of Yahweh shall Assyria be crushed,—
<With his rod> will he smite.

30 And it shall come to pass,—that every stroke of the staff of doom, which Yahweh shall lay upon him shall be with timbrels, and with lyres,—when with battles of brandished weapons he hath fought against them.

31 For there hath been set in order, beforehand, a Topheh,
Yes [the same] for the king hath been prepared,
He hath made it deep—made it large,—
The circumference thereof is for fire and wood in abundance,
The breath of Yahweh like a torrent of brimstone is ready to kindle it.

32 Also! for them who are going down to Egypt for help,
<On horses> would rely,—
And have trusted—
In chariots—because they are many, and
In horsemen, because they are very bold,
But have not looked unto the Holy One of Israel,
And unto Yahweh have not sought.

33 But she also is wise, and hath brought in calamity,
And [his own words] hath he not set aside,—
Therefore will he rise up Against the house of evil-doers, and Against the help of the workers of iniquity.

3 Now the Egyptians are men, and not [God],
And their horses flesh and not spirit;
When Yahweh shall stretch out his hand>
Then he that is giving help shall stumble,
And he that is receiving help shall fall,
And together shall all of them vanish!

4 For Thus hath Yahweh said unto me—
Like as a lion or a young lion growleth over his prey,
Who—though there be called out against him a multitude of shepherds—
Will not [at their voice] be dismayed, Nor [at their noise] be daunted>
<So> will Yahweh of hosts come down, to make war over Mount Zion, and over the hill thereof.

5 <As little mother-birds hovering> will Yahweh of hosts throw a covering over Jerusalem,
Covering; so will he rescue,
Passing over; so will he deliver!

Also, the great Anti-city will be sunk. Happy! all diligent Sowers of the Prophetic Word.

32 1. Lo! shall reign a king; with equity shall bear rule.
2. So shall each one become’

As the shadow of a massive cliff in a weary land.
3. And the eyes of them who are ready to see,

And the tongue of stammerers shall haste to speak plainly.
4. A base man shall no longer be called noble, —
Nor a knave be named liberal;
6. For a base man shall speak, And his heart shall be practised in iniquity, —
Practising profanity, And speaking, against Yahweh which that which misleadeth,

Emptying the soul of the hungry,
And the drink of the thirsty he causeth to fail;
Yea, [a knave] [his weapons] are wicked, —
To ruin the oppressed with speeches of falsehood.

But noble things hath devised, —
And upon noble things will stand. —

Ye women in comfort arise, hear my voice,
Ye daughters so confidant, give ear to my speech: —
Some days beyond a year ye shall be troubled, ye confidant ones, —
For failed hath the vintage, No gathering cometh in.

Tremble, ye women in comfort,
Be troubled, ye daughters so confidant, —
Strip! and bare yourselves, and grid somewhat on your loins:
Upon your breasts continue smiting: For desirable fields, For fruitful vine.

Over the soil of my people thorns and briars shall grow, —
Yea, over all houses of joy, thou city exultant!

For the palace is abandoned, The tumult of the city hath ceased, —
Hill and watch-tower serve as caves, unto times age-abiding, The joy of wild-asses, The pasture of flocks: —

Until there be poured out upon us the spirit, from on high, —
Then shall the wilderness become garden-land, And the garden-land shall be reckoned;
Then shall justice inhabit the wilderness, And righteousness be in the garden-land — shall abide;
And the yield of righteousness shall be peace, —
And the tillage of righteousness quietness and confidence to times age-abiding;
And my people shall dwell in a home of peace, —and
In habitations of security, and
In resting-places of comfort.
But it shall hail during the felling of the forest,
And shall the city sink.

How happy are ye who sow beside all waters,—
Who send forth the foot of the ox and the ass.

§ 33. A Series of Encouragements (probably given to King Hezekiah in view of the Impending Assyrian Invasion), with Glimpses of a King in Beauty, a City in Security, and Inhabitants freed from Sickness.

Alas! thou plunderer, when thou hadst not been plundered,
And thou traitor, when they had not betrayed thee:—

O Yahweh! shew us favour,—

Be thou their arm every morning,
Yea our salvation in the time of distress.

At the noise of a tumult the peoples retreated,—

When thou didst lift thyself up nations were scattered.

Then shall your spoil be gathered as the gathering of the caterpillar,—
As the swift running of locusts is he about to run upon them.

Exalted is Yahweh, for he inhabiteth a height,—
He hath filled Zion with justice and righteousness.

So shall a wealth of deliverances, wisdom and knowledge, become the stability of thy times,—
The reverence of Yahweh the same is his treasure.

Lo! their heroes have cried out openly,—
The messengers of peace, in bitterness continue weeping [they say]:

The highways are deserted,
The passer-by on the path hath ceased,—

He hath broken covenant,
He hath despised cities,
He hath made no account of men.

The land mourneth, languisheth,
Lebanon [displayeth shame], is withered,—

Sharon hath become as the waste plain,
And Bashan and Carmel are shaking off their leaves.

Now will I arise, Saith Yahweh,
Now will I lift myself up,
Now will I be exalted!

Ye shall conceive chaff,
Ye shall bring forth stubble,—
Your own breath, like fire, shall devour you.

So shall peoples become as the burnings of lime,—
As thorns lopped off, with fire shall they be burned.

Hear—ye that are far off, what I have done,
And know—ye that are near, my might:

Terror-stricken in Zion are sinners,
Shuddering hath seized the impious,—
Who among us can sojourn with a fire that devoureth?
Who among us can sojourn with burnings age-abiding?

He that walketh righteously,
And speaketh uprightly,
He that refuseth the gain of exactions,
That shaketh his hands free from holding a bribe,
That stoppeth his ear from hearkening to deeds of blood,
And shutteth his eyes from giving countenance to wrong
He shall inherit, a stronghold of crags shall be his refuge,—
His bread hath been delivered,
His waters have been made sure.

Of a king in his beauty shall thine eyes have vision:
They shall see a land that stretcheth afar.

Thy heart may murmur in terror,—
Where is the scribe?
Where— the receiver?
Where— he that maketh a list of the towers?

The fierce people shall thou not see,—
The people of too deep a lip to be understood, of too barbarous a tongue for thee to comprehend.

Look thou on Zion, the city of our appointed feast,—
Thine own eyes shall see Jerusalem—
A home of comfort,
A tent which shall not be packed up—
Whose pins shall not be pulled out for ever,
And none of whose cords shall be broken.

§ 34. The Divine Anger against All Nations falls on Edom: The Ransomed of Yahweh return to Zion.

34 1 Come near, ye nations, to hear,
And, ye races, attend,—
Let the earth hear, and the fulness thereof,
The world, and all things produced therefrom:
2 That Yahweh
hath wrath against all the nations, and indignation against all their host,—
He hath devoted them to destruction,
He hath delivered them to slaughter;
3 And ||their slain] shall be cast out,
And ||their carcasses] the stench of them shall ascend,—
And ||the mountains] shall melt away ||with their blood;||
4 Then shall be dissolved ||all the host of the heavens,
And the heavens ||shall roll up as a scroll,—

Like what fadeth and falleth from a fig-tree.
5 For my sword] hath been sated in the heavens;—
Lo! ||upon Edom] a shall it descend,
Even on the people whom I have devoted to justice.
6 ||A sword] hath Yahweh—
Glutted with blood,
Sated with fat,—
With the blood of well-fed lambs,6 and he-goats,
With the fat of the kidneys of rams,—

For  hath Yahweh, in Bozrah,
Yea a great slaughter, in the land of Edom;
Then shall buffaloes come down with them,
And bullocks with bulls,—
So shall their land be soaked with blood,
And | their dust <with fat > shall be enriched.

For  hath Yahweh,—
A year of requitals, for the quarrel of Zion.

9 Then shall |the torrent thereof| be turned
|into pitch|,
And |the dust thereof| into brimstone,—
So shall her land become burning pitch:

Neither <night nor day> shall it be quenched,
<To times age-abiding> shall ascend the smoke thereof,—
From generation to generation shall it lie waste,
<Never, never> shall any pass through it:
That the vomiting pelican and the bittern

And ||the great owl and the raven| dwell therein;|
Then will he stretch out over it.
The line of desolation,* and

12 ||Her nobles| (but none are |there| !) <unto royalty> will call,—
All ||all her princess] shall become nought.
Then shall come up, in her palaces, |thorns|.
Nettles and thistles, in her fortresses,—

§ 35. The Invasion of Sennacherib, King of Assyria.

36 1 Now it came to pass, in the fourteenth year of Rezin the king of Syria, that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah, and took them. 2 Then did the king of Assyria send Rabshakeh from Lachish to Jerusalem, unto King Hezekiah, with a heavy force,—and he took his stand by the upper channel of the pool, in the highway of the Fuller's field. 3 And there went out to him—Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was over the household,—and Shebna, the scribe, and Joash son of Asaph, the recorder. 4 And Rabshakeh said unto them,

Pray ye unto Hezekiah,—
Thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What is this trust, wherewith thou dost trust?
I have said—they are only words of the lips—Counsel and might [have I] for the war,—
Now upon whom dost thou trust, that thou hast rebelled against me?
Lo! thou dost trust on the support of this bruised cane, on Egypt, whereon if a man lean, it will enter his hand, and lay it open,—So is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all who trust upon him.

But if thou shouldst say unto me, In Yahweh our God do we trust> Then is that not he whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah hath removed, and said unto Judah and unto Jerusalem, Before this altar shall ye bow yourselves down?

Now, therefore, pledge thyself, I pray thee, with my lord, the king of Assyria,—That I supply thee with two thousand horses, If thou, on thy part, be able to set riders upon them;
How then wilt thou turn away the face of one pasha of the least of my lord's servants? Or hast thou, on thy part, trusted upon Egypt, for chariots and for horsemen?
But now, is it without Yahweh that I have come up against this land, to destroy it? Yahweh himself said unto me, Go thou up against this land, and destroy it!

11 Then said Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joash, unto Rabshakeh—Speak, we pray thee, unto thy servants in the Syrian language, for we can understand it,—and do not speak unto us in the Jews' language, in the ears of the people who are upon the wall.

12 But Rabshakeh said—Is it unto thy lord and unto thee that my lord hath sent me, to speak these things? Is it not concerning the men who are tarrying upon the wall, that they may eat?
and drink what cometh from them, | with you!?

13 So then Rabshakeh took his stand, and cried out with a loud voice, [in the Jews' language], and said,

Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyria:

14 Thus saith the king,

Let not Hezekiah deceive you,—for he shall not be able to deliver you.

Neither let Hezekiah cause you to trust in Yahweh, saying,

Yahweh will certainly deliver us,—this city shall not be given over into the hand of the king of Assyria.

16 Do not hearken unto Hezekiah,—for thus saith the king of Assyria,

Deal with me thankfully, and come out unto me.

Then shall ye eat,

Every one of his own vine, and
Every one of his own fig-tree,
And drink, every one the waters of his own cistern:

17 Until I come and take you, into
A land like your own land,—
A land of corn, and new wine,
A land of bread, and vineyards:—

18 Lest Hezekiah persuade you, saying,

Yahweh will deliver us!

Have the gods of the nations delivered any one of them—his country, out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

19 Where are the gods of Hamath, and Arpad?

Where are the gods of Sepharvaim?

If indeed they had only delivered Samaria, out of my hand!

20 Who are they, among all the gods of these countries, that have delivered their country out of my hand?

That Yahweh should deliver Jerusalem, out of my hand!

21 But they held their peace, and answered him not a word,—for the command of the king it was, saying,—

Ye must not answer him.

22 Then came in—Eliahim son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder, unto Hezekiah, with rent clothes,—and they told him the words of Rabshakeh.

37 And it came to pass, when King Hezekiah heard it,—that he rent his clothes, and covered himself with sackcloth, and entered the house of Yahweh;

2 and sent Eliakim who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, unto Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz; and they said unto him,

Thus saith Hezekiah,

<...a day of distress and rebuke and reviling> is this day,—

For children are come to the birth,* and strength is there none to bring forth.

4 [It may be] that Yahweh thy God will hear the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria, his lord, hath sent to reproach a Living God, and will rebuke the words which Yahweh thy God hath heard,— Wherefore lift thou up a prayer, for the remnant that remaineth.

5 So the servants of King Hezekiah came unto Isaiah. * And Isaiah said unto them,

Thus shall ye surely say unto your lord,—

Thus saith Yahweh—

Be not thou afraid because of the words which thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled me.

7 Behold me! about to let go against him, a blast of alarm,* and <...when he heareth the report> then will he return to his own country,—and I will cause him to fall by the sword, in his own land.

8 So Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria, warring against Lihnah,—for he had heard, that he had broken up from Lachish.

And he heard it reported concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, saying,

He hath come forth to fight with thee,— so <...when he heard it> he sent messengers unto Hezekiah, saying:

9 Thus shall ye surely speak unto Hezekiah king of Judah, saying,

Let not thy God, in whom thou trustest, beguile thee, saying,— Jerusalem shall not be given over into the hand of the king of Assyria.

10 Lo! thou thyself hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the lands, in devoting them to destruction,—and shalt thou be delivered?

12 Did the gods of the nations deliver them whom my fathers destroyed,—Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the sons of Eden, who were in Telassar?

13 Where are the king of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim,—of Hena, and Ivah?

14 And <...when Hezekiah had received the letter at the hand of the messengers, and had read it> then went he up to the house of Yahweh, and Hezekiah spread it out before Yahweh.

16 And Hezekiah prayed unto Yahweh, saying:

O Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel—inhabit- ing the cherubim,*

Thou thyself art God, even thou alone, for all the kingdoms of the earth:—Thou didst make the heavens and the earth.

Bow down, O Yahweh, thine ear—and hear, Open, O Yahweh, thine eyes*—and see,— Yea hear thou all the words of Sennacherib, who hath sent—to reproach a Living God.

(Of a truth) O Yahweh,—the kings of Assyria have devoted to destruction all the countries, and their land; and have put their gods in the fire,—for [no-gods] were they, but the work of the hands of men—wood and stone, and so they destroyed them.

Now therefore, O Yahweh our God, save us out of his hand,— That all the kingdoms of the earth [may know], That thou art Yahweh, [thou alone].

Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent unto Hezekiah, saying,— [Thus] saith Yahweh, God of Israel, In that thou hast prayed unto me concerning Sennacherib king of Assyria, [this] is the word which Yahweh hath spoken concerning him,— The virgin daughter of Zion [laugheth thee to scorn—mocketh thee], The daughter of Jerusalem [after thee] doth wag her head! Whom hast thou reproached [and insulted]? And against whom hast thou lifted high thy voice? Yea thou hast loudly raised thine eyes [against the Holy One of Israel].

Through thy servants thou hast reproached My Lord, and hast said,— With my multitude of chariots have I ascended The height of the mountains, The recesses of Lebanon, That I may cut down Its tallest cedars, Its choicest firs, That I may enter Its highest summit, Its thick garden forest; I have digged, and drunk waters,— That I may dry up, with the soles of my feet, all the Nile-streams of Egypt.

Hast thou not heard— That [long ago] [that] is what I appointed, And [from days of old] devised? [Now] I have brought it to pass, That thou mightest serve to lay waste [in desolate ruins] fortified cities; And [their inhabitants, being powerless] were overthrown, and put to shame,— They became—Grass of the field, and Young herbage, Grass on housetops, and Seed parched before it came up.

Howbeit <thine abode, and thy coming out and thy going in> I know,—and thy raging [against me].

<Because thy raging against me, and thy contempt] have come up into mine ears>

Therefore will I put My ring in thy nose, and My bit in thy lips, And will turn thee back, by the way by which thou camest.

And [this'] unto thee] is the sign, Eating [this year] the growth of scattered seeds, And <in the second year> that which shooteth up of itself,— Then <in the third year> Sow ye'—and reap, and Plant ye vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.

Then shall the escaped of the house of Judah that remain, [again] Take root downward,— And bear fruit upward.

For <out of Jerusalem> shall come forth a remnant, And that which hath escaped, [out of Mount Zion],— The jealousy of Yahweh of hosts will perform [this].

Therefore, [thus] saith Yahweh, concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not enter this city, Nor shoot there, an arrow,— Nor attack it with shield, Nor cast up against it a mound:

By the way that he came in— By the same shall he return,— And <into this city> shall he not enter.

Declareth Yahweh.

Thus will I throw a covering over this city, to save it,— For mine own sake, And for the sake of David my servant.

Then went forth the messenger of Yahweh, and smote—in the camp of the Assyrians—a hundred and eighty-five thousand,— and <when men arose early in the morning> lo! they were all dead bodies! So Sennacherib the king of Assyria, brake up, and went his way, and returned,—and remained in Nineveh. And it came to pass, <as he was bowing down in the house of Nissroc his god> that [Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons] smote him with the sword, howbeit [they] escaped into the land of Ararat, and [Esarhaddon his son] reigned [in his stead].

§ 36. Hezekiah's Sickness—Recovery—and Writing.

38 1 <In those days> was Hezekiah sick unto death,—and Isaiah the prophet, son of Amoz, [came in unto him], and said unto him—

"Thus [saith Yahweh],
Set in order thy house,* for 'about to die thou art, and shalt not recover.

Then Hezekiah turned his face unto the wall,— and prayed unto Yahweh :— and said,—
I beseech thee, O Yahweh, remember, I pray thee, how I have walked before thee, in faithfulness and with an undivided heart, and <that which is good in thine eyes> have I done.

And Hezekiah wept aloud. 4 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Isaiah, saying:

5 Go, and say unto Hezekiah—
"Thus [saith Yahweh, the God of David thy father]:
I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears,—
Behold me! about to add unto thy days, fifteen years; ;
And <out of the hand of the king of Assyria> will I deliver thee, and this city;
And I will throw a covering over this city.

And <this> shall be the sign, from Yahweh,—that Yahweh will do this thing which he hath spoken:—
Behold me! causing the shadow on the steps, which hath come down on the steps of Ahaz with the sun, to return <backwards> ten steps. ;

So the sun returned ten steps, by the steps which it had come down.

The writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick, and then recovered from his sickness :—

10 I said,—
"<In the noon tide of my days> I must enter the gates of hades,—
I am deprived of the residue of my years! ;

I said—
I shall not see Yah, Yah, in the land of the living,
I shall discern the son of earth no longer, with the dwellers in the quiet land.

My dwelling hath been broken up, And is stripped from me, like a shepherd's tent,—
I have rolled up—as a weaver—my life, <From the loom> doth he cut me off, <From day until night> [I said]—
Thou wilt finish me.

13 I cried out,* until morning, like a lion,
'Thus [will he break all my bones! From day until night,
Thou wilt finish me! ;

14 <As a twittering swallow> do I chatter, ;
I too as a dove,—
Mine eyes languish' through looking on high, O My Lord! * distress is upon me—my Sire! ;

What can I say ?
"Since he hath promised for me>—
Himself, will perform.
I will go softly <all my years>,
Because of the bitterness of my soul.

16 O My Lord! <on those things do men live,—
And altogether in them> is the life of my spirit,
When thou hast strengthened me, and made me live, *

17 Lo! <for well-being> I had bitterness—bitterness,*
But <thou> cleaving unto my soul> hast raised me from the pit of corruption,*
For thou hast cast, behind thy back, all my sins.

18 For <hades> cannot praise thee,
Nor <death> celebrate thee,—
They who go down to the pit cannot wait for thy faithfulness.

19 <The living, the living> can praise thee,
As I do this day,—
A father: <to his children> can make known thy faithfulness.

20 <Yahweh> was willing to save me,—
Therefore <on my stringed instruments> will we play—
All the days of our life,
By the house of Yahweh.

21 And Isaiah had said,
Let them take a cake of figs, and let them press it over the boil, that he may recover.

22 And Hezekiah had said—
What is the sign—that I shall go up unto the house of Yahweh? ;

§ 37. Messengers from Babylon—how treated by the King—Denunciation by the Prophet.

1 <At that time> Merodach-baladan son of 39 Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present unto Hezekiah,—for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick, and had recovered.

2 And Hezekiah rejoiced over them, and showed them his house of precious things—the silver and the gold and the spices and the precious ointment, and all his armoury—and all that was found among his treasures,—there was nothing which Hezekiah did not show them—in his house, or in all his dominion. Then came Isaiah the prophet, unto King Hezekiah,—and said unto him—

What said these men? and whence came they unto thee?
And Hezekiah said,
<From a land far away> came they unto me, from Babylon!
4 And he said,
What have they seen in thy house?
Then said Hezekiah,—
<All that is in my house have they seen, there is nothing which I shewed them not, among my treasures.>
5 Then said Isaiah unto Hezekiah,—
Hear thou the word of Yahweh of hosts:
6 Lo! days are coming, when all that is in thy house, and that which thy fathers have treasured up until this day, shall be carried away unto Babylon,—nothing shall be left.
Saith Yahweh.
7 And <of thy sons who shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget> shall they take away,—and they shall become eunuchs, in the palace of the king of Babylon.
8 And Hezekiah said unto Isaiah,
Good' is the word of Yahweh, which thou hast spoken.
And he said,
Surely there shall be peace and stability in my days.

§ 38. A Charge to console Jerusalem by the Announcement of a Fact; for the Realisation of which, however, effectual Preparation must be made. In spite of Human Weakness, the Divine Word will be fulfilled, and the Rule of the Shepherd King be triumphantly inaugurated.

40 1 Comfort ye—comfort ye, my people.—Saith your God.
2 Speak ye unto the heart of Jerusalem, And cry unto her,—
That accomplished' is her warfare,' That accepted' is her punishment,—
That she hath received, at the hand of Yahweh, According to the full measure of all her sins.
3 A voice of one crying!—
<In the desert> prepare ye the way of Yahweh,—
Make smooth [in the waste plain] a highway for our God:

4 Let (every valley) be exalted, And (every mountain and hill) be made low,—
And (the steep ground) become (level),
And (the chain of hills)—a plain;—
Then shall be revealed the glory of Yahweh,—
And all flesh shall see it together,*
For (the mouth of Yahweh) hath spoken!

6 A voice saying—Cry! And one said—
What should I cry?
All flesh is grass, And all the grace thereof like the flower of the field:
The grass hath withered, The flower hath faded, Because the breath of Yahweh hath blown upon it!
Surely the people [is grass]!

7 The grass hath withered, The flower hath faded,—
But the word of our God shall stand unto times age-abiding!

9 <To a high mountain> get ye up, O herald-band of Zion, Lift high' with strength' your voice, O herald-band of Jerusalem,— Lift it high, do not fear, Say to the cities of Judah—
Lo! your God!
10 Lo! [My Lord, Yahweh, as a mighty one doth come, And his own arm is about to rule for him,— Lo! his reward is with him, And his recompense before him;]
Like a shepherd <his flock> will he tend, <In his own arm> will he take up the lambs, And <in his own bosom> will he carry [them],—
Them which are with young will he lead to a place of rest.

12 Who' hath measured, [with the hollow of his hand] [the waters],
Or <the heavens with a span> hath meted out,
Or hath comprehended [in a measure] [the dust of the earth],
Or weighed [in scales] the mountains, Or [the hills] in a balance?

Who hath proved the spirit of Yahweh?
Or, being his counsellor, hath been giving him knowledge?
With whom hath he taken counsel—
And he hath given him intelligence,
And instructed him in the path of justice,—
And taught him knowledge,
And in the way of intelligence hath been giving him understanding?
Lo! the nations
Are as a drop on a bucket,
And as fine dust on a balance are accounted,—
Lo! [islands] like an atom can he hoist;
And [Lebanon] is not sufficient to burn,—
Nor [the beasts thereof] sufficient for an ascending-sacrifice!
All nations are as nothing before him,—
A thing of nought or a waste are they accounted unto him?
Unto whom, then, can ye liken God?
Or what likeness can ye compare unto him?
The image hath been cast by an artist, And a goldsmith with gold overlayeth it,—
And chains of silver he worketh.
The needy offerer [of a tree that will not rot] maketh choice,—
A skilled artist seeketh he out for himself, to construct an image that shall not totter!
Have ye never taken note?
Have ye never heard?
Hath it not, from the beginning, been told you?
Have ye not been led to discern, from the foundations of the earth?
It is he who sitteth upon the circle of the earth,
While [the inhabitants thereof] are [as grasshoppers],—
Who stretcheth forth [as a curtain] the heavens;
And spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in;
Who delivereth dignitaries to nothingness,—
Judges of earth [like a desolation] hath he made:
Scarce have they been planted,
Scarce have they been sown,
Scarce hath their stock begun to take root in the earth;
When he hath just blown upon them, and they have withered,
And [as whirlwinds] as though they had been chaff—carrieth them away.
Unto whom then, can ye liken me, or can I be equal?
Saithe the Holy One.

Lift on high, your eyes—and see, who hath created these,
That bringeth forth [by number] their host,—
<To all of them, by name> doth call,
Because of the abundance of vigour and alretness of strength— not one, is missing!
Wherefore shouldst thou say, O Jacob, or speak, O Israel,— Hidden is my path from Yahweh,
And [my vindication] will pass?
Hast thou not known,
Hast thou not heard, That the God of age-past time—
Yahweh,
The Creator of the ends of the earth,
Fainteth not, neither groweth weary,—
There is no searching of his understanding:
Giving [to him that fainteth] strength,
And [to him that hath no vigour] he causeth power to abound.
Youths [both faint and grow weary],
And [young warriors]—they fall, they fall;
But they who wait for Yahweh, shall renew their strength,
They shall mount on strong pinion, like eagles,—
They shall run and not grow weary,
They shall walk 'and not faint.

§ 40. The Coastlands in particular and the Races of Men in general are summoned by Yahweh to defend their Idolatries. An Avenger is called from the North and East, as Yahweh's Servant, who, though in himself a mere Worm, yet by the help of his God becomes a Threshing Instrument, and scatters Opposers as Chaff. True Worshippers are mightily Consolated, and Idoltry is put to Shame.

1 Be silent [and hearken] unto me, O ye Coastlands,
And let the Races of Men renew their strength,—
Let them approach, [then] let them speak,
Together [for controversy] let us draw near:
Who roused up one from the East,
In righteousness, called him to his feet,—
Set before him, nations,
And [over kings] caused him to rule,
His sword [made] them like dust,
His bow [like driven chaff]:
He pursued them, passed along safely,
<Upon the path of his own feet> entered he not?

ISAIAH XLII. 4—25.

Thou shalt fan them, and as a wind shall carry them away.
And as a whirlwind shall scatter them.
But thou shalt exult in Yahweh.
And in the Holy One of Israel shalt thou boast thyself.

<As for the oppressed and the needy, seeking water, when there is none, Their tongue is with thirst being parched>,

I—Yahweh will answer them,
The God of Israel I will not forsake them:

I will open
On bare hills and rivers, and
In the midst of plains fountains.
I will make
The desert a lake of water, and Parched land springs of water;

I will set
In the desert
Cedar, accacia, and myrtle, and oil-trees,
I will place in the waste plain
Cypress, holm-oak and sherbin-cedar together;

That men may see and observe, and consider and understand at once,
That the hand of Yahweh hath done this,
That the Holy One of Israel hath created it.

Bring near your contention, saith Yahweh,—
Advance your defences, saith the King of Jacob:

Let them advance them, and tell us, What shall happen,—
Things known in advance what they were tell ye,
That we may lay them to our heart, and mark the after-story of them,
Or things yet to come let us hear:
Tell ye the events which shall be hereafter,
That we may perceive that gods are surely ye must do something good or bad,
That we may be amazed, and behold it at once.

Lo! ye are of nought,
And your work is a puff of breath,—
An abomination he that chooseth you!

I have roused up one from the North, and he hath come,
From the rising of the sun calleth he on my Name,—
And he hath come on deputees as though they were mortars,
And as a potter treadeth clay.

Who' hath wrought and performed,
Calling the generations, in advance?

I, Yahweh, [who am] First,
And with them who are last I am the Same!

Coastlands have seen, so they fear,
The ends of the earth are in dread,—
They have drawn near, and have come:

Every man to his neighbour giveth help,—
And to his brother saith, Take courage!

So the carver hath encouraged [the goldsmith],
[He that maketh smooth with the hammer, him that smiteth the anvil],
Saying of the welding, It is good!
Then hath he fastened it with nails—it must not totter!

But thou, Israel, my Servant,
Jacob, whom I have chosen,—
The seed of Abraham, my loving one;

Thou whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth,
And from the extremities thereof have called thee,—
And said to thee, My Servant thou hast chosen thee, and not cast thee off:

Do not fear, for with thee I am!
Look not around, for I am thy God,—
I have emboldened thee,
Yea I have helped thee,
Yea I have upheld thee, with my righteous right-hand.

Lo! they shall turn pale and be ashamed—
All they who have been incensed against thee,—
They shall become as nothing and perish—
The men who have been thine accusers:

Thou shalt seek them, but shalt not find them—
The men who have contended with thee,
They shall become as nothing, and as a thing of nought—
The men who have warred against thee;

For I, Yahweh, thy God am firmly grasping thy right-hand,—
Who am saying unto thee Do not fear!
I have become thy helper!

Do not fear! Thou worm Jacob,
Ye men of Israel,—
I have become thy helper.

Declare Yahweh,
And thy redeemer, The Holy One of Israel.

Lo! I have made of thee a new pointed threshing sledge, owning teeth,—
Thou shalt thresh mountains, and crush them,
And hills—like chaff shalt thou make:

Nay, there is none who can tell,
Nay, there is none who can let us hear,
Nay, there is none who can understand what ye utter.

27 He who is First [can say]
To Zion,
Lo! there they are!
And to Jerusalem,
<A herald of good-tidings> do I give.

28 So I look, And there is not, a Man!
[Even among these]
That [when I ask them] can answer a word.
Lo! <as to all of them>
<Vanity—nothingness> are their works,
<Wind and emptiness> their molten images!

§ 41. The Mission of Jacob as Collective Servant of Yahweh having been declared, from behind him steps forth an Individual Servant—known to be such by His becoming a Covenant for His own People—who enters into His people’s Calling and carries it forward to fulfilment.

42 Lo! <my Servant> I will uphold him,
<My chosen> well-pleased is my soul,—
I have put< his spirit upon him.
Justice—to the nations> will he bring forth:
He will not cry out, nor will he speak loud,—
Nor cause to be heard [in the street] his voice:
Cane that is crushed> will he not break,
And wick that is fading> will he not quench,—
Faithfully> will he bring forth justice:
He will not fade, nor will he be crushed,
Until he establish [in the earth] “justice”,
And <for his instruction> [Coastlands] wait.

Thus saith God himself—
Yahweh,—
Creator of the heavens, that stretched them forth,
Out-spreader of earth, and the products thereof,—
Giver of breath to the people thereon,
And of spirit to who walk therein>
I—Yahweh have called thee in righteousness.
And will firmly grasp thy hand,—
And will keep thee;
And give thee—
As the covenant of a people,
As the light of nations:

7 To open eyes that are blind,—
To bring forth
Out of the dungeon, the captive,*
Out of the prison, the dwellers in darkness.

§ 42. The Mission of Jacob, broadly viewed as Yahweh’s Witnesses, resumed: with numerous diverging and converging Details—Divine Predictions calling for Song; Divine Inactivity boldly reversed, Divine Irony on Idolaters, Divine Foreknowledge pointedly claimed, Divine Favour richly bestowed: Jacob’s Experiences recorded, his Blindness, Sins, Sorrows, Shame, Captivities, Deliverances. The name “ Cyrus” suddenly announced.

8 I am Yahweh, <that> is my Name,—
And <my glory> <to another> will I not give,
Nor <my praise> <to images>.

9 <Things told in advance> lo! they have come to pass,—
And <new things> am I telling.
<Ere yet they spring forth> I let you hear them.

Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new,
His praise from the end of the earth,—
Ye that go down to the sea, and the fulness thereof,
The Coastlands, and ye who dwell therein.
Let the wilderness <shout>, and the cities thereof,
The villages, wherein dwelleth Kedar,—
Let the inhabitants of the <crag> raise shouts of triumph,
<From the top of the mountains> let them cry aloud:
Let them render unto Yahweh glory. —
And <his praise> in the Coastlands let them tell.

Yahweh< as a hero> goeth forth,
<As a man of war> he stirreth up jealousy,—
He giveth a cry, yea he raiseth a war-cry,
<Over his foes> he showeth his strength.

14 I have held my peace from age-past times,
I kept still,
I restrained myself,—
<A Travelling woman> I pant,
I breathe hard and gasp, all at once!!

I will lay waste mountains, and hills,
And <all their vegetation> will I wither,—
And I will make rivers to be >shores, And <lakes> will I dry up:
Thus will I lead the blind, by a way they know not,
<In paths> they know not> will I guide them,—

* Or: "in advance,"

14 Thus saith Yahweh,
Your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel,—
For your sakes have I sent into Babylon,
And will bring down as fugitives all of them;—
Even the Chaldeans, in the ships which cause them loud outcry.

15 I—Yahweh am Your Holy One,—
The Creator of Israel, Your King.

16 Thus saith Yahweh,—
Who setteth [in the sea] a way,—
And [in the mighty waters] a path;—
Who bringeth forth Chariot and horse,
Force and strength >
Together shall they lie down,
They shall not arise,
They are extinguished,
Like a wick, are they quenched!

18 Do not keep in mind, former things,—
And [things of old] do not consider:—
Behold me! doing [a new thing],—
Now shall it spring forth,
Will ye not take note thereof?—
Surely I will set [in the desert] a way;—
In a desolate land [rivers];

20 The wild beast of the field shall honour me,
Jackals, and ostriches,
Because I have given—
In the desert [waters],—[Rivers] [in a desolate land],
To give drink unto my people, my chosen:
A people which I have fashioned for myself,—
My praise shall they record.

22 Yet [not upon me] hast thou called, O Jacob,—
For thou hast been wearied of me, O Israel:—
Thou hast not brought in to me small cattle as thine ascending-offerings,
Nor [with thy sacrifices] hast thou honoured me,—
I have not oppressed thee with meal-offerings,
Nor have I wearied thee with frankincense;—
Thou hast not bought for me, [with silver,] [fragrant calamus],—
Nor [with the fat of thy sacrifices] hast thou sated me,—
Thou hast done nothing but oppress me [with thy sins,]
Thou hast wearied me [with thine iniquities].

25 I—I am he that is ready
To wipe out thy transgressions, for mine own sake,—
And [thy sins] not remember.

26 Put me in mind,
Let us enter into judgment, [at once],—
Recount thou that thou mayest be justified:

27 Thy chief father hath sinned,—
And [thine interpreters] have transgressed against me;—
So then I must needs profane the rules of the holy place,—
And deliver [Jacob] to be devoted to destruction, and [Israel] unto reviling.

1 Now then—hear,
O Jacob my Servant,—and
Israel, whom I have chosen:

2 Thus saith Yahweh—
Who made thee and formed thee from birth;—
Who helpest thee:
Do not fear, O my Servant Jacob, and Jeshurun, whom I have chosen;

3 For I will pour
Water upon the thirsty soil, and Floods upon the dry ground,—

4 I will pour
My spirit upon thy seed, and
My blessing upon thine offspring;

5 This one will say <Yahweh's> am I, and
That one will call himself by the name of Jacob, and
Yonder one will write on his hand—

6 <And after the name of Israel> will one entitle himself.

7 Thus saith Yahweh—King of Israel,
Even his Redeemer Yahweh of hosts,—
I am [First], and [Last],
And [besides me] there is no God.

8 Who, then, [like me] can call, and declare it, and order it, for me,
Seeing that I appointed an age-abiding people,—
Or [things yet to be, and that shall come to pass]
Let them declare, on their part.

9 Do not ye dread, nor yet be alarmed,
Have I not [from olden time] told thee and declared?
So that [lye] are my witnesses,—
Whether there is a God besides me!—
Or is no Rock—
I know of none!

9b The fashioners of an image—all of them are emptiness,—
And [the thing they delight in] cannot profit,—
And [their witnesses] shall neither see nor know,
That they may be ashamed.

10 Who [hath fashioned a god,] or [an image] hath molten it?
It cannot profit!

Lo! [all his partners] turn pale,
Even [the artificers themselves] are of the sons of earth,—
Let them gather themselves together—[all of them],—
Let them take their stand,
Let them dread, and turn pale [together]!a

<As for the smith, [with his] cutting-tool—>
<When he hath wrought in the live coals,
And [with hammers] hath fashioned it,—
And hath wrought it with his strong' arm—
Anon' he is hungry, and hath no' strength,
He hath drunk no water, and so hath become faint!>

<As for the carpenter—>
He hath stretched out a line, hath drawn it with a pencil,
Hath made it with carving tools,
<With compasses> hath rounded it,—
And so hath made it after the figure of a great man,
After the beauty of a son of earth, [that it] may remain in a house!>

<When one was cutting him down cedars>
Then took he a holm-tree, and an oak,
And secured them for himself, among the trees of the forest,—
He planted a fir-tree, and the pouring rain made it grow;
So it serveth for a man to burn,
And he hath taken of [the branches] and warmed himself,
Also' he kindleth a fire, and baketh bread,—
Also' he maketh a god, and hath bowed himself down,
Hath made of it a carved image, and adored it:
The half thereof, hath he burned in the fire,
<Over' half thereof> he eateth [flesh',
He Roasteth roast, that he may be satisfied,—
Also' he warmeth himself, and saith, Aha! I am warm, I have seen a blaze;
And the residue thereof>
Into a GOD! he maketh,
Into his carved image,—
Adoreth it, and boweth down, and prayeth unto it,
And saith,
Deliver me, for [my god] thou art'!

They have not taken note, neither can they perceive,—
He hath besmeared—past seeing—their eyes,
Past understanding, their hearts;
And no one reflecteth—
There is neither knowledge nor discernment—to say,
<Half thereof> have I burned up in the fire.
Moreover also' I have baked [on the coals thereof] [bread',
I roasted flesh, and have been eating,—
And <of the remainder thereof> [an abomination] shall I make?
And <to a log of wood> shall I pay adoration?

He is feeding on ashes,[[A deluded heart] hath turned him aside,—
And he cannot deliver his own soul, nor say,
Is there not a falsehood in my right hand?

Remember these things, O Jacob,
And [Israel],—for [my Servant] thou art',—
I have fashioned thee, [a Servant of mine] thou art'.

O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me.
I have wiped out,
As with a thick cloud, [thy transgressions],
As with a broad cloud [thy sins'],—
Return unto me, for I have redeemed thee.

Shout in triumph, ye heavens, for Yahweh [hath effectually wrought].
Shout, O ye uperparts of the earth,
Ring out,
Ye mountains, into cries of triumph,
Thou forest, and every tree therein,—
For [Yahweh] hath redeemed [Jacob],
And <in Israel> will he get himself glory.

<Thus> saith Yahweh,
Who hath redeemed thee,
Who hath fashioned thee from birth,—
[I—Yahweh] am the maker of all things,
Stretching out the heavens, [alone'],
Spreading forth the earth, [of myself];
Frustrating the signs of praters,
And <diviners> he confoundeth,—
Turning wise men backwards,
And <their knowledge> be maketh folly ;
Establishing the word of his Servant,
And <the counsel of his Messengers> he maketh good,
Who saith of Jerusalem—
She shall be inhabited!
And of the cities of Judah—
They shall be built !
And <the ruins thereof> will I set up !
Who saith to the deep—
Be dry! and
<Thy rivers> will I drain !
Who saith of Cyrus—
My Shepherd! and
<All my pleasure> shall he make good!

§ 43. The Divine Commission of Cyrus more fully declared.

45 Thus saith Yahweh, to his Anointed, to Cyrus—Whose right hand I have firmly grasped,
To subdue, before him, [nations],
And <the loins of kings> will I ungird,—
To open, before him, [the two-leaved doors],
And [the gates] shall not be shut:
I <before thee> will go,
And <the hills> will I level, a
And <the doors of bronze> will I break in pieces, b
And <the bars of iron> will I cut asunder; e
Then will I give thee
The treasures of darkness,
Even the hoards of hidden places,—
That thou mayest get to know
That I—Yahweh, who am calling thee by thy name—am the God of Israel.
<For the sake of my servant Jacob,
Even Israel my chosen>
Therefore have I called unto thee by thy name,
I give thee a title though thou hast not known me,—
<beside me> there is no God,—
I gird thee, though thou hast not known me:
That men may get to know,
From the rising of the sun,
And from the west,
That there is none besides me,—
I am Yahweh, and there is none else:
Forming light, and creating darkness,
Making prosperity, and creating misfortune,—
I—Yahweh—who doeth all these.

§ 44. The Unfolding of the Divine Plans quickens the Desire for the Victory of Righteousness and Salvation. Men may not dictate to the Most High. He who created the World, called Cyrus, and decreed the Destiny of Israel—not in vain. He may seem to hide himself; yet shall Idolatry be silenced, Israel be saved, Salvation be tendered to Earth's Ends, and every Knee bow to him.

Let the drops fall, ye heavens, from above,
Yea, let [the skies] pour down righteousness,—
Let the earth open, and let them bear as their fruit—deliverance,
And let [justice] spring forth therewith,
I—Yahweh—have created it.

9 Alas for him who contendeth with his Fashioner,—
A potter shall [should contend] with the potsherds of the ground!
Shall it be said by [the clay] unto him that is fashioning it,
What wouldst thou make?
Or thy work [say of thee],
He hath no hands?

10 Alas for one who saith to a father,
What begettest thou?
Or to a woman,
What dost thou bring forth?

11 Thus saith Yahweh—
The Holy One of Israel And his Fashioner,
<As to things to come> they have asked me,
<Concerning my sons and concerning the work of my hands> they would command me:
[I] made the earth,
And <man upon it> I created,—
—I mine own hands—stretched out the heavens,
And <all their host> I commanded:
[I] have roused him up in righteousness,
And <all his roads> will I level,—
He shall build my city,
And <my captives> shall he let go,
Not for price, nor for bribe:
Saih Yahweh of hosts.

12 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
The produce of Egypt and the gain of Ethiopia, and the Sabeans, men of great stature;
Unto thee shall come over,b
And thee shall they become,
After thee shall they journey,
In chains shall they come over,—
And unto thee shall they bow down,
Shall they pray [saying],—
Surely <in thee> is a God,
And there is none else—no! God!

13 |Surely| thou art a God utterly hiding thyself,—
O God of Israel, able to save!

14 They have turned pale and [even been put to shame] all of them,—
Together have they gone into disgrace, have the makers of images:
Israel hath been delivered by Yahweh, with an age-aliding deliverance,—
Ye shall neither turn pale nor be put to shame, unto the ages of futurity.[

15 For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
Who created the heavens,
Who fashioned the earth—
And made it,
Himself established it. . .

Sit on the ground—thronel ess,
Daughter of the Chaldeans;
For thou shalt no more be called Tender and Dainty.

2 Take millstones, and grind meal,—

And will accept no son of earth.

Thus saith Yahweh—
Thy Redeemer, The Holy One of Israel,—
|I—Yahweh| am thy God,
Teaching thee to profit,
Guiding thee in the way thou shouldest go.

Oh! that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments,—
Then had been [like a river] thy prosperity,*
And [thy righteousness], like the waves of the sea:
Then had been [like the sand] thy seed,
And [the offspring of thy body] like the grains thereof,— [Neither cut off nor destroyed] had been his name from before me.

Come ye forth out of Babylon,
Flee from among the Chaldeans,
<With triumphant voice> tell ye—let this be heard,
Let it go forth as far as the end of the earth,—
Say ye—
Yahweh hath redeemed' his servant
Jacob!

And they thirsted not, when <through dry places> he led them,
<Waters out of the rock> caused he to flow out to them,—
Yea he clef a rock, and [there gushed out] waters.

No well-being, saith Yahweh, to the lawless!1

Who swear by the name of Yahweh,
And <by the God of Israel> call to remembrance—
\[Not in truth, nor in righteousness\]

For <of the holy city> do they call themselves,
And <on the God of Israel> do they stay themselves,—
\[Yahweh of hosts\] is his name.

Suddenly I wrought, and they came to pass.

Because I knew that—
\[Obstinate\] thou wast,—
\[A sin of iron\] was thy neck, And thy brow, brazen>

Therefore told I thee—in time past,
<Even yet it came> I let thee hear,—
Lest thou shouldst say—
\[Mine idol\] wrought them,
Yea [my carved image* and my molten image] commanded them!

Thou hast heard—see it [whole]
And will [ye] not tell?
I have let thee hear new things—from the present time,
Even secrets, which ye knew not.

\[Now\] are they created, and [not in time past],
And <before to-day> thou hast not heard of them,—
Lest thou shouldst say, Lo! I knew them?
Nay! thou hast not heard,
Nay! thou hast not known,
Nay! <in time past> [thine ear] was not opened,—
For I knew that thou [wouldst be treacherous],
Yea  hast thou been called.

For the sake of mine own Name will I defer mine anger,
And <for my praise> will I restrain myself towards thee,—
So as not to cut thee off.

Lo! I have refined thee, but not as silver,
I have tested thee, in a smelting-pot of affliction.*

   To be Servant to him, To restore Jacob unto him, And that ||Israel|| [unto him] might be gathered,
   And I shall be honourable in the eyes of Yahweh, And [my God] be proved to have been my strength>

6 Yea he said— It is too small a thing, for being my Servant, That thou shouldest raise up the tribes of Jacob, And <the preserved of Israel> shouldst restore,— So I will give thee to become a light of nations,b That [my salvation] may reach as far as [the end of the earth].

7 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh—the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, <To him that is despised of the soul, To the abhorred of the nation, To the servant of rulers> ||Kings|| shall see and arise, ||Princes|| lo! they have bowed themselves down,— Because of Yahweh, who is faithful, The Holy One of Israel, lo! he hath chosen thee.

8 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh— <In a time of acceptance> have I answered thee, <In a day of salvation> have I helped thee,— That I may preserve thee, And give thee as the covenant of a people,*<To establish the land, To bring into possession the desolate heritages; Saying To them who are bound, Go forth,b To them who are in darkness, Show yourselves,— <By the roads> shall they graze, And <on all bare places> shall be their pasture: They shall neither hunger, nor thirst, Nor shall smite' them the glowing sand, or the glaring sun,— For he that hath compassion upon them shall lead them, And <unto springs of water> will he conduct them.4

11 Then will I make of all my mountains, a road, And ||my highways|| shall be upraised.

12 Lo! these||<from afar> shall come in,— And lo! ||these|| from the North and from the West, And ||these|| from the land of Sinim.*

13 Shout in triumph—O heavens! And exult—O earth! And break forth, ye mountains, into shouts of triumph,— For Yahweh hath comforted his people,* And <on his hallowed ones>b taketh he compassion.

14 But Zion ||had said||, Yahweh hath forsaken' me,— Even ||My Lord|| hath forgotten me!
Surely (thus) saith Yahweh—

(Even the captive of the mighty one) shall be taken away,
And (the prey of the tyrant) is delivered;
And (thine oppressors) I will oppose,
And (thine children) I will save;

Then will I feed thy tormentors with their own flesh,
And (as with new wine—with their own blood) shall they be drunk,—
So shall all flesh know that I—Yahweh
am thy Saviour,
And (thy Redeemer) is the Mighty One of Jacob.

§ 49. Were Israel's Restoration a Merely Question of Power, it might easily be accomplished; but No.—and Yahweh's Servant is heard narrating his Sufferings, and proclaiming his Confidence of Vindication. From his Story let all Godly Sufferers learn to trust, and all Self-Glorifiers take warning.

1 (Thus) saith Yahweh—

Where then is the scroll of your mother's divorce, whom I have put away?
Or (which of my creditors) is it, to whom I have sold you?
Lo! (for your iniquities) have ye been sold,
And (for your transgressions) hath your mother been put away.

2 Wherefore?
(When I came in) was there no' one?
(When I called) was there none to answer?
Is mine own hand really shortened that it cannot redeem?
Or is there not (in me) strength, to deliver?
Lo! (by my rebuke) I dry up the sea,
I make rivers a desert,
Their fish Stinketh, for want of water,
Yea dieth, for thirst:

3 I clothe the heavens with gloom,
And (of sackcloth) make I their covering.

4 (My Lord, Yahweh) hath given unto me the tongue of the instructed,
That I should know how to succour the fainting, with discourse,—
He kept wakening—morning by morning,
He kept wakening mine ear, to hearken' as do the instructed—

5 (My Lord, Yahweh) opened mine ear,
And (I) was not rebellious,—

(Away!) turned I not:

Some cod. (w. Sep., Vul.): "And these," or, "Adonay, Yahweh." These, therefore, "princesses." G.n.

Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. edns.): "For thus"—
6. Attend unto me, O my people,
And [O my nation] unto me give ear,—
For [instruction] from me shall go forth,
And [my justice]—for a light of peoples—will I establish:—

4. At hand is my righteousness,
Gone forth hath my salvation,
And [mine own arms] unto the peoples shall give justice,—
<Upon me> | Coastlands shall wait,*
And [for mine arm] shall they hope.

6. Lift up—to the heavens—your eyes,
And look around to the earth beneath,
<Though the heavens like smoke should have vanished>—
And the earth like a garment should fall to pieces,
And her inhabitants like in like manner should die—
Yet my salvation unto times age-abiding shall continue,
And my righteousness shall not be broken down.

7. Hearken unto me, ye who discern righteousness,
The people in whose heart is my law,—
Do not fear the reproach of frail men,
Nor [at their revilings] be dismayed;
For [like a garment] shall they be eaten of the moth,
And [like wool] shall they be eaten of the larva;—
But [my righteousness] unto times age-abiding shall continue,
And [my salvation] unto the remotest generation.*

9. Awake, awake, put on strength, O arm of Yahweh,
Awake. As in days of old,
The generations of bygone ages:
Art not thou that which—
Hewed down Rahab,
Piercing the Crocodile*—

10. Art not thou that which died up—
The Sea,
The waters of the mighty Deep,—
That which made of the abysses of the sea a road for the passing over of the redeemed?

* Or: "Who hath a case against me?" ML: "Who owneth my judgment or sentence?"
† Or (with stronger emphasis on the "Who"): "Who will prove me lawless?" Cp. O.G. 216, 4, b.
* "Law" is "revelation"—A. B. Davidson (Temple Bible).
Or: "take note of;" Or: "mine instruction.
ML: "unto the generation of generations."
"As symbol of Egypt"—David's H.I.
Therefore [the ransomed of Yahweh] shall again come unto Zion, with shouts of triumph, *
With gladness age-abiding on their head,—
[Joy and gladness] shall overtake [them],
Sorrow and sighing [have fled away].”

If I am he that comforteth you,—
Who’art [thou] that thou hast feared Frail man that dieth, and
A son of the earthborn who [as grass]
shall be delivered up?

Thou hast forgotten Yahweh thy maker,
Who stretched out the heavens,
And founded the earth?
That thou hast dreaded continually, all the day, by reason of the fury of the oppressor, in that he was ready to destroy?
Where’s then, is the fury of the oppressor?
The captive hath hastened to be loosed,—
That he might not die in the pit.
Neither should [his bread] be cut off.
But [I—Yahweh] am thy God,
Who threw into commotion the sea,
And the waves thereof roared,—
Yahweh of hosts: is his name.

Therefore have I put my words in thy mouth,
And with the shadow of my hand> have I covered thee,
To plant the heavens, and to lay the foundations of the earth, and
To say unto Zion,
<My people> thou art!

Rouse thee—rouse thee, stand up, O Jerusalem,
Who hast drunk, at the hand of Yahweh,
his cup of indignation:
The goblet-cup of confusion hath hast thou drunk—hast thou drained.

There is none’ to guide her,
Among all the sons she hath borne,—
There is none’ to grasp her hand,
Among all the sons she hath brought up.

Twain are the things befalling thee,
Who will lament for thee?
Wanting and destruction, and famine and sword,
By whom shall I comfort thee?

Thy sons have fainted,
They lie at the head of all the streets, like a gazelle in a net,—
Who, indeed, are full of
The indignation of Yahweh,
The rebuke of thy God.

Therefore hear, I pray thee, [this], thou humbled one,—
And drunken, but not with wine:—

7 How beautiful upon the mountains, are the feet—
   Of him
   That bringeth good tidings,
   That publisheth peace,
   That bringeth good tidings of blessing,
   That publisheth salvation,—
   That saith unto Zion,
   Thy God [hath become king].
8 The voice of thy watchmen!
   They have uplifted a voice,
[Together] do they renew the shout of triumph,—
   For <eye to eye> shall they see,
   When Yahweh returneth to Zion.*
9 Break forth, shout* in triumph, [together], ye waste places of Jerusalem,—
   For Yahweh Hath comforted* his people,*
   Hath redeemed Jerusalem:
   Yahweh hath bared his holy' arm,d in the eyes of all the nations,*
   So shall all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our God.
10 Aways! away! come forth from thence!—
   <Nought unclear> may ye touch,—
   Come forth out of her midst,
   Purify yourselves, ye who are to carry the 11 For <not in haste> shall ye come forth,

   Nor <by flight> shall ye journey,—
   For <your vanguard> is Yahweh,
   And <your rear-guard> the God of Israel.*

§ 53. Yahweh's Servant disclosed, first and last, as an Exalted Conqueror, but immediately as a Sufferer; even at first, however, with an allusion to his Marred Appearance, and at last with his Death regarded as the cause of his Victory. At the beginning and end of this Prophecy, the Voice is plainly that of Yahweh himself; but at lii. 1 the Voice changes, and sounds like that of Israel in changeable moods propounding her conflicting Thoughts about the Sufferer: as if a final Generation had taken up—in order to resolve and correct—the Doubts and Mistsakes of their Ancestors. (Cp. Intro. Chap. II. 11.)
12 Lo! my Servantb |prospereth,—
   He riseth, and is lifted up, and becometh very high:
13 The more that Many |were amazed at
   thee
   So marred, beyond any man's, was his appearance,
   And his form, beyond the sons of men>

And <appointed with lawless men> was his grave, And <with the wicked> his tomb,— Though <no violence> had he done, Nor was guile in his mouth.

Yet ||Yahweh|| purposed to bruise him, He laid on him sickness— If his soul become an offering for guilt He shall see a seed, He shall prolong his days,— And the purpose of ||Yahweh|| in his hand shall prosper: Of the travail of his soul shall he see, He shall be satisfied with his knowledge, A setting right, when set right himself shall my Servant win for the Many, Since of their iniquities ||he|| taketh the burden.

§ 54. In Strains of exquisite Tenderness Yahweh of Hosts addresses the Nation he purposes to Renew and Restore. The Wife put away shall come back—for ever.

1 Shout in triumph, O barren one, Who had not borne,— Break forth into shouts of triumph—and still thy voice, Who had not travailed in birth, For these are the children of the Desolate, Than the children of Her who had the husband! Saith Yahweh.

2 Enlarge the space of thy tent, And <curtains of thy habitations> let them spread forth, do not spare,— Lengthen thy cords, And <tent-pins> make thou fast;

For <on the right hand and on the left> shalt thou break forth,— And <thy seed> shall <of the nations> take possession, And <forsaken cities> shall they cause to be inhabited.

Do not fear, for thou shalt not turn pale, Neither feel disgraced, for thou shalt not be put to the blush,— For <the shame of thy youth> shalt thou forget, And <the reproach of thy widowhood> shalt thou remember no more.

For <thy husband> is ||thy Maker||, ||Yahweh of hosts|| is ||his Name||, And <thy redeemer> ||the Holy One of Israel||, <The God of all the earth> shall he be called.

For <like a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit> hath Yahweh ||called thee||,— Even the wife of youthful days in that thou wast rejected, Saith thy God.

For  I forsake thee,— But <with abounding compassions> do I embrace thee;

In an overflow of vexation+ I hid my face<sup>b</sup> for a moment, from thee, But <with lovingkindness age-abiding> have I had compassion on thee,— Saith thy Redeemer, Yahweh.

For <the waters of Noah> is this unto me,— As to which I swear that the waters of Noah should not again pass over the earth>

||So|| have I sworn Not to be vexed with thee, Nor to rebuke thee.

For ||the mountains|| may move away, And ||the hills|| may be shaken,— But ||my lovingkindness|| <from thee> shall not move away, And ||my covenant of peace|| shall not be shaken, Saith he who hath compassion upon thee—Yahweh.

O thou humbled one, storm-tossed, ||uncomforted||,— Lor ||I am about to set, in antiquity, thy stones, And will found thee in sapphires; And make rubies, thy battlements, And thy gates, sparkling stones,— And all thy boundaries stones of delight; And ||all thy children|| shall be the instructed of Yahweh,— And ||great|| shall be the prosperity of thy children.

4 The translator has here very cautiously commenced an indentation, to suggest the question, whether what follows is not an indirect Divine Soliloquy as to the reasons by which the strange procedure is justified: That Yahweh should have purposed to lay on his own approved "Servant" the iniquity of others—"of us all." The Divine Reasoner is first referred to in the third person (ver. 10), then (ver. 11) says "My Servant," and (ver. 12) assumes the mighty, self-revealing "I."

With this victorious climax of suffering, the suffering Servant disappears; or appears again only as gracious Proclaimer (lxii.), or terrible Avenger (lxiii.). Henceforth the formation of a New Israel becomes the leading theme.

5 Mi.: "the husbanded one."

<sup>e</sup> Some, reading one word instead of two w. Aram., Syr., and Vul. have: Like the days of Noah... when—G.N.
14 <In righteousness> shalt thou be established,—
Be thou far from oppression—
But indeed thou shalt not fear,
And from crushing calamity—
But indeed it shall not come nigh unto thee.
15 Lo! they would [quarrel] with thee—not at all from me,— [Whoso hath quarrelled with thee] [over thee] shall fall.
16 Lo! I have created the smith, who bloweth up a fire of coals,
And who bringeth forth an instrument for his work,—
And I have created the waster to destroy:
No instrument formed against thee, shall prosper,
And in judgment shalt thou prove to be lawless,—
This is the inheritance of the servants of Yahweh,
And their righteousness is [from me];
Declare Yahweh.
6 Seek Yahweh, while he may be found,—
Call ye upon him, while he is near:
7 Let the lawless forsake his way,
And the man of iniquity, his thoughts,—
And let him return unto Yahweh,
That he may have compassion upon him,
And unto our God,
For he will abundantly pardon.
8 For [my thoughts] are not [your thoughts],
Nor [your ways] [my ways],—
Declare Yahweh.
9 For [higher] are the heavens than the earth,—
[So] [higher] are
[My ways] than [your ways], and
[My thoughts] than [your thoughts].
10 For <as the rain and the snow descend> from the heavens,
And <thither> do not return,
Except they have watered the earth,
And caused it to bring forth and bud,—
And given seed to the sower, and bread to the eater>
11 [So] shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth,
It shall not return unto me void,—
But shall accomplish that which I please,
And shall prosper in that whereunto I have sent it.
12 For <with gladness shall ye come forth,
And <in peace> shall ye be led,—
The mountains and the hills shall break out, before you, into shouts of triumph,
And [all the wild trees] shall clap their hands:
<Instead of the thorn-bush> shall come up the fir-tree,
And <instead of the nettle> shall come up the myrtle-tree,—
So shall it become, unto Yahweh, a Name,
[A Sign age-abiding, which shall not be cut off].—
§ 55. Gospel Preaching here begins, as well it may:
but the Prophetic Needle holds true to the Pole of the National Hope.
55 1 Ho! every one that thirsteth!
Come ye to the waters,
Ye that hath no money,—
Come ye—buy corn, and eat,
Yea come—buy corn [without money],
And [without price] [wine and milk].
2 Wherefore should ye spend
Money, for that which is [not bread]?
Or your labour, for that which satisfeth not?
Keep on hearkening unto me,
And so eat that which is good,
And let your soul [take exquisite delight in fatness]:—
3 Incline your ear, and come unto me,
Hearken, That your soul [may live],—
That I may solemnise for you a covenant age-abiding,
The Lovingkindness to David, well-assured.
4 Lo! <As a witness to the peoples> have I given him,—
[As a leader and commander] to the peoples:
5 Lo! <A nation thou shalt not know> shalt thou call,
And a nation which hath not known thee’ <unto thee> shall run,—
For the sake of Yahweh thy God,
And for the Holy One of Israel, because he hath adorned thee.

ISAIAH LVI. 2—12; LVII. 1—7.

2 How happy the frail man, who doeth this! Yea the son of the earth-born who firmly graspeth it! Keeping the sabbath, lest he profane it, and keeping his own hand, from doing any wrong.

3 And let not the son of the foreigner, who hath joined himself unto Yahweh, speak,"* saying, Yahweh will separate me from his people! Neither let the eunuch [say],"*
        Lo! [I] am a tree dried up!

4 For thus saith Yahweh—
        Of the eunuchs,
        Who shall keep my sabbaths,
        And choose what I delight in,—
        And lay firm hold on my covenant—

5 That I will give unto them—
        In my house,
        And within my walls,
        A sign and a name, better than sons and daughters,—
        A name age-abiding will I give him, which shall not be cut off.

6 And <as for the sons of the foreigner—
        Who have joined themselves unto Yahweh,
        To wait upon him, and
        To love the name of Yahweh,
        To become his, for servants,—
        Every one who keepeth the sabbath, lest he profane it,
        And who layeth firm hold on my covenant—

7 Surely I will bring them into my holy mountain,
        And make them joyful in my house of prayer,
        Their ascending-offerings and their sacrifices being accepted upon mine altar,—
        For  shall be called, for all the peoples!

8 Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Who is gathering the outcasts of Israel:—
        Yet others> will I gather unto him,
        Besides his own gathered ones.

§ 57. Corrupt Rulers and Teachers sternly denounced.

9 All ye beasts of the field! come ye, to devour,
        All ye beasts in the forest.

10 His watchmen are blind,
        None of them know,
        All of them are dumb dogs, they cannot bark,—
        Dreaming, sleeping, loving to slumber.

11 And [the dogs] are greedy,* they know not to be satisfied,
        Yea [they] are shepherds, who know not to discern,—
        All of them <unto their own way> have turned,
        Every man to his unjust gain, [on every hand]:

12 Come ye! I will fetch wine,
        Let us fill ourselves with strong drink,—
        And <like this day> shall [to-morrow] be—
        Great beyond measure!

§ 58. Calamity impending, as a Punishment of gross (pre-exilic) Idolatry: but the high and holy Inhabitant of Futurity, who longs to heal, encourages the Repentant.

1 The righteous one hath perished,
        And <not a man> hath taken it to heart, b—
        Yea <the men of lovingkindness> have been withdrawn,
        No one considering,
        That <from the presence of calamity> hath the righteous been withdrawn.

2 He entereth into peace,
        Let them rest upon their couches,—
        Each one who went on a straight path.

3 But <ye> . . . draw near hither,
        Ye sons of divination,—
        Ye seed of an adulterer, when [your mother] committed unchastity!

4 Against whom would ye disport yourselves?
        Against whom would ye widen the mouth,
        and lengthen the tongue,—
        Are not <ye> Children of transgression, d
        A Seed of falsehood.*

5 Who inflame yourselves
        With the terebinths,—
        Slaying the children
        In the torrent-valleys,
        Under the clefts of the crags:

6 <Among the smooth stones of the torrent-valley> a is thy portion,
        They <they> are thy lot;
        Even to them; hast thou
        Poured out a drink-offering,
        Caused to ascend a gift.

7 <Over these things> can I cease to grieve?
        On a mountain high and uplifted hast thou set thy couch,—
        Even thither hast thou gone up, to offer sacrifice;

*Or: "In the bare (open) places of the valley is thy lot"; i.e., thou carryest on undisguised idolatry"—Davies' H.L.
And <behind the door and the post> hast thou set thy symbol. For <with another than me> hast thou uncovered thyself and gone up— Hast widowed thy couch, And hast solemnised for thyself a covenant from them, Thou hast loved their couch,  hast thou seen; And hast gone to the king with oil, And hast multiplied thy perfumes,— And hast sent thy messengers afar, And . . . lowered thyself as far as hades!

<With the length of thy journey> thou wast wearied, Thou didst not say, Hopeless! <The reviving of thy power> thou didst find, <For this cause> hast thou not become sick. Whom then hast thou been anxious about, and feared, that thou shouldst speak falsely, When <me> thou rememberest not, carest not for me? Did not [I] keep silence, even from age-past times, Although <me> thou wouldst not fear? [I] will expose thy righteousness,— And thy works—but* they will not profit thee!

<When thou makest outcry> let thy gathered thongs' deliver thee! But <all of them> shall A wind [catch up]—A breath [take away]! Whereas the he that seeketh refuge in me Shall inherit the land, And possess my holy' mountain. And one said— Cast ye up—cast ye up, prepare ye a way,— Lift the stumbling-block out of the way of my people.

For [thus] saith he that is high and lifted up— Inhabiting futurity, And [holy] is his name: <A high and holy place> will I inhabit, Also with the crushed and lowly in spirit, To revive the spirit of the lowly, and To revive the heart of them who are crushed!—

For <not age-abidingly> will I contend, <Nor perpetually> will I be wrath,— For [spirit] <before me> would faint, Even [the breathing souls] which [I] had made.

Because of his iniquitous gain was I wroth—and emote him, Hiding myself that I might be wroth,— But he went on, turning aside in the way of his own heart.

<His ways> have I beheld, That I might heal him,— And guide him, And restore consolations to him, and to his mourners:

Creating the fruit of the lips— Prosperity! Prosperity! For him that is far off, and for him that is near, SAITH YAHWEH,*

So should I heal him. But [the lawless] are like the sea when tossed,— For <rest> it cannot! But its waters toss out mire and dirt. Not well-being, saith my God * to the lawless!*

Cry aloud! do not spare, <Like a horn> lift high thy voice,— And declare,

To my people, their transgression, and To the house of Jacob, their sins.

Yet <me>—day by day do they seek, And <in the knowledge of my ways> they delight,— <Like a nation that had done righteousness>, And <the justice of their God> had not forsaken> They ask of me the just regulations,* In approaching God they delight.

Wherefore' have we Fasted, and thou hast not seen! Humbled our soul,* and thou wouldst take no note?

Lo! <in the day of your fast> ye take pleasure, But <all your toilers> ye drive on!
ISAIAH LVIII. 4—14; LIX. 1—5.

4 Lo! <for strife and contention> ye fast, And to smite with the fist of lawlessness,— Ye shall not fast as to-day, To cause to be heard, on high, your voice!
5 <Like this> shall the fast be, that I choose, A day for the sor of earth to humble his soul! Is it to bow down, as a rush, his head, And the sackcloth and ashes > to spread out? Is it thou wilt call a fast, Or a day of acceptance with Yahweh?
6 Is not this the fast that I must ever choose— To unbind the tight cords of lawlessness, To unloose the bands of the yoke,— To let the crushed go free, and That ye tear off?
7 Is it not to break, unto the hungry, thy bread, And > the thrust-out oppressed > that thou bring into a home,— When thou seest one naked > that thou cover him, And from thine own flesh shalt not hide thyself?
8 Then shall break forth, as the dawn, thy light, And thy new flesh shall speedily come.
Then shall go, before thee, thy righteousness, The glory of Yahweh shall bring up thy rear:
9 Then shalt thou Call, and Yahweh will answer, Cry out, and he will say, Behold me!
If thou remove, out of thy midst, The yoke,
The pointing of the finger, and The speaking of iniquity;
And shalt let thine own soul go out to the hungry, And the soul of the oppressed thou shalt satisfy.
Then shall break forth, in darkness, thy light, And thy thick darkness [become] as the splendour of noon;
Then will Yahweh guide thee continually, And will satisfy, [even] in scorched regions, thine own soul.
Yes, thy very bones > will be invigorated,— So shalt thou become, like a garden well-watered, And like a spring of water, whose waters do not decrease;
And they who come of thee shall build the wastes of age-past times,
And as for the foundations of generation after generation thou shalt rear them up,—
So shalt thou be called— A Repairer of broken walls, A Restorer of paths leading home.
10 <If thou turn back, From the sabbath, thy foot, From doing thine own pleasure, on my holy day,— And shalt call—
The sabbath, An exquisite delight, The holy [day] of Yahweh, A day to be honoured,
And so shalt honour it, rather— Than do thine own ways, Than take thine own pleasure, or Than speak [thine own] word >
Then shalt thou rest thine own exquisite delight upon Yahweh, . . . And I will cause thee to ride over the high places of the land,— And will feed thee with the inheritance of Jacob thy father, For the mouth of Yahweh hath spoken.

§ 60. The Darkness deepens; and the Catalogue of Sins unfolds its alarming Length—the Sins being first charged upon the People, then confessed by the People, together with their deplorable Results. At length, Yahweh himself interposes to avenge: repaying his Enemies in the West and in the East. He cometh in like a pent-up River, driven on by the Breath of Yahweh. A Redeemer comes for such as repent in Jacob; who are brought into a Perpetual Covenant, by which the Redeemer’s Spirit and Words abide with them for ever.

1 Lo! the hand of Yahweh is not too short to save,— Neither is his ear too heavy to hear.
2 But your iniquities have become separators betwixt you and your God,
And your sins have caused a hiding of face from you, that he should not hear.
3 For your hands are defiled with blood,
And your fingers with iniquity,—
Your lips have spoken falsehood, and Your tongue muttereth [perversity].
4 None saith in righteousness, and None pleadeth in faithfulness,—
Men are trusting in confusion, And speaking vanity,
Conceiving wickedness, And bringing forth iniquity:
5 <Viper’s eggs> do they hatch, <Spider’s threads> do they weave,—
He that eateth of their eggs dieth, And [that which is crushed] bringeth forth an adder;

Heb.: tola; Gen. i. 2.
6 Their threads shall not become a garment,
Neither shall they cover themselves with their fabrics,—
Their fabrics are fabrics of iniquity,
Yea the product of violence is in their hands:
7 Their feet, mischief do run,
And they speed to shed innocent blood,—
Their devices are devices of iniquity,
Wasting and destruction are in their high roads;
8 The way of well-being have they not known,
And there is no justice in their tracks,—
Their paths have they made crooked for themselves,
None who treadeth therein knoweth well-being.
9 For this cause hath justice removed far from us,
And righteousness overtaketh us not,—
We wait for light, But lo! darkness,
For brightness, in thick darkness we walk:
10 We grope, as blind men, for a wall,
Yea as men without eyes do we grope,—
We have stumbled, at broad noon, as though it were twilight,
In desolate places, like the dead!
11 We growl like bears, all of us,
And do we mournfully cool,—
We wait
For justice, and there is none,
For salvation, it is far from us!
12 For our transgressions have multiplied before thee,
And our sins have witnessed against us,—
For our transgressions are with us,
And as for our iniquities we acknowledge them:
13 Transgressing, and denying Yahweh,
And turning away from following our God,—
Speaking oppression and revolt,
Conceiving, and muttering from the heart, words of falsehood.
14 So then there hath been a driving back of justice,
And righteousness afar off standeth,—
For truth hath stumbled in the broad way,
And right cannot enter;
15 And the truth hath been found missing,
And he that hath turned away from wrong is liable to be despoiled.

And when Yahweh looked >
Then was it grievous in his eyes, that there was no justice:

16 When he saw that there was no mighty man>
Then was he astonished, that there was none to interpose,—
So his own arm brought him salvation,
And his own righteousness the same upheld him;
17 And he put on
Righteousness a coat of mail,
And a helmet of victory upon his head,—
And he put on the garnments of avenging, for clothing,#
And wrapped about him, as a cloak,— Jealousy!
18 According to their deeds> accordingly will he repay,
Indignation to his adversaries,
Recompense to his enemies,—
To the Coastlands recompense will he repay:
19 That they may revere,—
From the West, the name of Yahweh,
And from the Rising of the Sun, his glory.
For he will come in like a rushing stream,
The breath of Yahweh driving it on;
20 So shall come in, for Zion a Redeemer,
Even for such as are turning from transgression in Jacob,—
Declareth Yahweh.
21 And as for me shall be my covenant with them,
Yahweh shall say: My spirit that is upon thee,
And my words which I have put in thy mouth,
Shall not be taken out of thy mouth—
Nor out of the mouth of thy seed,
Nor out of the mouth of thy seed’s seed,
Yahweh shall say,
From henceforth even unto times age-abiding.

§ 61. "Arise, shine!"—a Call to Zion to dispel the deep gloom of the Nations.

1 Arise—shine,
For thy light hath come,—
And the glory of Yahweh on thee hath beamed;
2 For lo! darkness covereth the earth,
And deep gloom the peoples,—
But on thee beameth Yahweh,
And his glory on thee is seen.
3 So shall nations come to thy light,
And kings, to the brightness of thy dawning.
4 Lift up—round about thine eyes, and see,
They all have gathered themselves together—have come to thee,—
Thy sons from afar shall come,
And thy daughters on the side shall be carried.

Then shalt thou see, and be radiant,
And thy heart shall throb and be enlarged;—
For there shall be turned upon thee the fulness of the sea;
The riches of the nations shall come unto thee;
The multitude of camels shall cover thee,
The young camels of Midian and Ephah,
All they of Sheba shall come,—
<Gold and frankincense shall they bring, And the praises of Jehovah shall they tell:
All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered unto thee,
The rams of Nebaioth shall wait upon thee;
They shall come up, with acceptance, on mine altar;—
And <my beautiful house> will I adorn.

Who are these that, as a cloud, do fly? and as doves to their cotes?
Surely <for me> shall |Coastlands| wait,4
And the ships of Tarshish, first, To bring in thy sons, from far,
Their silver and their gold with them,— Unto the name of Jehovah thy God,
And unto the Holy One of Israel.

Because he hath adorned thee.

So shall |the sons of the foreigner| build |thy walls|,
And |their kings| shall wait upon thee,—
For <in my vexation> I smote thee,
But <in my favour> have I had compassion upon thee.

So shall thy gates be open—continually,
Neither day nor night shall they be shut,— That they may bring unto thee the riches of the nations,
And their kings be led.

For |the nation and the kingdom that will not serve thee| shall perish,—
Yea |the nations| shall be utterly wasted.

The glory of Lebanon, <unto thee> shall come,
The fir-tree, the cedars of Lebanon, together.
To adorn the place of my sanctuary, And <the place of my feet> will I make glorious.

Then shall come unto thee, bending low,
The sons of them who had humbled thee,

Then shall bow down, unto the soles of thy feet,
All they who had despised thee; And they shall call thee—
The city of Jehovah,
The Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

<Instead of thy being forsaken and hated, so that none' used to pass through thee> I will make of thee—
An excellency age-abiding,
The joy of generation aftergeneration.

And thou shalt derive sweet nourishment from the nations,
Yea <on the bounty of kings> shalt thou be sustained;—
So shalt thou know—
That I, Jehovah, am thy Saviour, and That [thy Redeemer] is the Mighty One of Jacob.

<Instead of bronze> I will bring in |gold|, and
<Instead of iron> I will bring in |silver|, and
<Instead of wood> |bronze|, and
<Instead of stones> |iron|,—
And I will appoint the oversight of thee to |Prosperity|,
And the setting of thy tasks to |Righteousness|.

Violence shall no more be heard |in thy land, Wasting nor destruction, within thy boundaries,—
But thou shalt call Thy walls |Victory|, and
Thy gates |Praise|.

Thou shalt not more have |the sun| [for light by day],
Neither <for brightness> shall the moon give light unto thee,—
But |Jehovah| shall become |thine age-abiding light|,
And |thy God| |thine adorning|:
No more shall go in |thine sun,
Nor |thy moon| withdraw itself,—
For |Jehovah| will become to thee, an age-abiding light,
So shall be ended |the days of thy mourning.

And |thy people shall |all of them| be righteous,
<To times age-abiding> shall they possess the land,—
The sprout of mine own planting,4
The work of mine own hands,—
That I may get myself glory.

|The little one| shall become a thousand, and
|The small one| a mighty nation:

<—Jehovah| <in its own season> will hasten it.

§ 62. The Voice of an Anointed Proclaimer is heard, narrating his Commission, and foretelling the Glad Results of its Fulfilment: moving Israel to Song.

61 1 The spirit of My Lord Yahweh is upon me,—
Because Yahweh
| Hath anointed me | to tell good tidings to the oppressed,
Hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted,
To proclaim
| To captives | liberty,
| To them who are bound | the opening of the prison;#
2 To proclaim—
The year of acceptance of Yahweh, and
The day of avenging of our God:
To comfort all who are mourning;
To appoint unto the mourners of Zion—
To give unto them,
A chaplet instead of ashes,
The oil of joy instead of mourning,
The mantle of praise instead of the spirit of dejection,—
So shall they be called,
The oaks of righteousness,
The plantation of Yahweh:
That he may get himself glory.†

4 Then shall they build the wastes of a bygone age,
| The desolations of former times | shall they raise up,—
And they shall build anew—
The cities laid waste,
The desolations of generation after generation.

5 Then shall strangers stay' and feed your flocks,—
And the sons of the foreigner shall be your plowmen and your vine-dressers.

6 But [ye]
| The priests of Yahweh shall be called,
| The attendants of our God shall ye be named,—
| The riches of the nations shall ye eat,
And in their glory shall ye boast yourselves.‡

7 [Instead of your shame]—[double!] and [Instead of] disgrace they shall shout in triumph over their portion,— Therefore [in their own land] shall they possess [double],
Joy age-abiding shall be theirs.

§ 63. Intercession offered and invited on Jerusalem's behalf.

8 For I—Yahweh‖ am a lover of justice,
Hating plunder, for an ascending sacrifice,*—
Therefore will I give their reward with faithfulness,
And ‖an age-abiding covenant‖ will I solemnise for them.
9 Then shall be ‖known‖ among the nations
| their seed,
| their offspring | in the midst of the peoples,—
| All who see them | shall acknowledge them,
That ‖they‖ are the seed that Yahweh hath blessed.

10 I will [greatly rejoice] in Yahweh,
My soul shall exult' in my God,
For he hath clothed me, with the garments of salvation,
<With a robe of righteousness> hath he enw rapped me,—
As a bridegroom adorneth himself with [a chaplet],
And as a bride bedecketh herself with [her jewels].

11 For ‖the earth‖ bringeth forth her bud,
And ‖a garden‖ causeth [her seeds] to shoot forth,†
So [My Lord, Yahweh] will cause to shoot forth
Righteousness and praise before all the nations.‡

Some cod. (w. 2 ear. edn., Sep. and Vul.) omit:
"My Lord"—G.n.

Or: "humbled."

"Yahweh's year for accepting," Our God's day for avenging;†
Note that the avenging is assigned to a day.
"Dismiss"—G.A.S. Same word as for "fading," chap. xliii. 8.
"May break into glory"—G.A.S.

Or: "And [their glory] shall ye make your own."

Note of commentators:

1 Or: "maketh himself like a priest." "That priest [will] live with his turban, decks himself with a splendid turban, such as the priests wore"—O.G. 464.

2 Or transfer both names:
"So Adonay, Yahweh." Cp. chap. xl. 5; lit. 10; Ps. xcvii. 2.

3 Or: "specify."
4 Thou shalt be termed no longer—
Forsaken,
Nor shall thy land] be termed any longer,
A desolation,
But thou shalt be called
Hephzibah ["My delight is in her"],
And thy land will
Beulah ["married"]—
For Yahweh hath found delight' in thee,
And thy land shall be married.
5 For [a young man] marrieth [a virgin],
Thy sons [marry thee]!
And the bridegroom rejoiceth over [the bride]—
Thy God [rejoiceth over thee].

6 <Upon thy walls, O Jerusalem> have I appointed watchmen,
<All the day and all the night through> let them not hold their peace,—
O ye that put Yahweh in mind,
Do not take rest //to yourselves.
Neither give rest /*unto him.
Until he establish, and until he set forth Jerusalem, as a praise in the earth!

7 Sworn hath Yahweh—
By his own right hand, and
By his own strong arm,—
Surely I will give thy corn no more, as food to thine enemies,
Nor shall the sons of the foreigner drink thy new wine, for which thou hast toiled;
But they who have garnered it shall eat it, and praise Yahweh,—
And they who have gathered in its clusters shall drink it, in my holy courts.

8 Pass ye through, pass ye through the gates,
Prepare ye the way of the people,—
Cast ye up, cast ye up the highway,
Clear it of stones,
Lift ye high a standard unto the peoples.

9 Lo! [Yahweh] hath sent a message unto the end of the earth:
Say ye to the daughter of Zion,
Lo! thy Salvation is coming,—
Lo! [his reward] is with him,
And his recompense before him.

10 So shall men call them—
The holy people,
The redeemed of Yahweh,—
And thou shalt be called—
Sought out,
A city not forsaken.

§64. An //Avenging Redeemer suddenly appears, coming in from Edom, where he has trodden down Israel's Enemies in the Winepress of Divine Wrath. (Cp. Ps. cxxxvii. 7; chaps. xiii., xiv., xxxiv.; Jer. xxix. 19 with l. 44; Obad.; Mi. iv. 9—v. 5.)

1 Who is this' coming in from Edom.
With bright-red garments, from Bozrah?
This' made splendid in his raiment,
Marching on the greatness of his strength?

If speaking in righteousness, Mighty to save.

2 Wherefore is there red, on thy raiment,—
And thy garments, as of one treading in a wine-trench?

3 <A winepress> have I trodden alone,
And <of the peoples> there was no man with me,
So I trod them down, in mine anger,
And trampled upon them, in mine indignation,—
And their life-blood besprinkled my garments,
And <all mine apparel> I defiled;
For a day of avenging was in my heart,
And the year of my redeemed had come.

Therefore looked I around, and there was none to help,—
And I was astonished, that there was none to uphold,—
So mine own arm [b] brought me salvation,
And <mine indignation> the same; upheld me;

Then trod I down peoples, in mine anger,
And make them drunk, with mine indignation,
And brought down to the earth their life-blood.

§65. Israel recalls her past Mercies, and bases on them a Prayer for Deliverance from her present forsaken and ruined Condition.

7 <The lovingkindness of Yahweh> will I recall,
The praises of Yahweh,
According to all that Yahweh hath bestowed upon us,

1. "Sweeping on"—G.A.S.
2. "Bending (forward or backward); but read prob. "match," marching"—O.G.
3. Is it possible to protest too strongly against the mistake which finds here the Death of Him who was crucified through weakness (2 Co. xiii. 4)?
6. Ml.: "their grape-juice.
7. Will this not cause kings "to shut their mouths at him," being "astonished in silence" (cp. chap. lii. 15)?

45-2
Even the abundance of goodness to the house of Israel, which he bestowed upon them—
According to his compassions, and
According to the abundance of his loving-kindness.

Therefore he said—
Surely they are, they will not act falsely!
So he became their saviour.

In all their affliction || was afflicted, and the messenger of his presence saved them,
In his love and in his pity || [he] redeemed them,—
And then lifted them up and carried them, all the days of the age past time.

But || they rebelled, and grieved his Holy Spirit,—
And so he turned against them as an enemy, || himself fought against them.

Then were recalled the days of the age past time, || Moses—his people—
Where is he that led them up out of the sea, with the shepherd's of his flock?
Where is he that put, within him, his Holy Spirit?

That caused to go | at the right hand of Moses | his own majestic arm,— Cleaving the waters from before them.
To make himself an age-abiding name:

Causing them to go through the roaring deeps,—
Like a horse through the wilderness,
That they should not stumble!

As a beast | into the valley | goeth down,
The Spirit of Yahweh causeth him to rest >
|| didst thou lead || thy people,
To make thyself a majestic' name!

Look thou down, out of the heavens, and see,
Out of the high abode of thy holiness and of thy majesty,—
Where are thy jealousies, and thy mighty deeds?*

The resounding of thy yearning affection, and thy compassions towards me are they restrained?

For || art our father,
Though || knew us not,
And || could not acknowledge us,—
Thou, O Yahweh || art our father,
Our Redeemer from the Age-past time is thy name.

Wherefore shouldst thou suffer us to wander, O Yahweh, from thy ways?
Wherefore shouldst thou let us harden our heart past revoring thee?
Return thou, for the sake of Thy servants,
The tribes thou thyself hast inherited.

For a short time only || did thy holy people hold possession,—
Our adversaries || trod down thy sanctuary!
We have become like those
Over whom <from age-past times: thou hast not ruled,
Who have never been called by thy name!>

Would that thou hadst rent the heavens, hadst come down.
At thy presence || had || mountains: quaked:
As fire kindleth | brushwood,
[As] fire causeth | water! to boil
|| if thou wouldst make known thy Name to thine adversaries>
At thy presence || | nations | would tremble.
When thou didst fearful things, we could not expect>
Thou camest down, at thy presence
|| | mountains | quaked.*

Although from age-past times
It was never heard,
It was not perceived by || the ear,—
Neither did || the eye || ever see—
That || a god besides thee could work for the man who waited for him >

Yet didst thou meet
Who was rejoicing and working righteousness,
Even them who || in thy ways | remembered thee,—
Lo! || hast been vexed,*
And truly we had sinned.
Among them was [the prospect of] an age [to come],
That we might be saved.

But we have become as one unclean [all of us],
And || were all our righteous doings,—
And so we faded like a leaf [all of us],
And || | our iniquity || was carried away;

And there was none To call upon thy Name,
To raise himself to lay firm hold on thee—
For thou hadst hidden thy face from us,
And hadst made us despond by means of our iniquity.*

So shall ye leave your name for an oath, to my chosen ones,—

So then My Lord Yahweh will slay thee,—
And <his servants> will he call by another name:

So that [he who blesseth himself in the earth]
Will bless himself in the God of faithfulness, e
And [he who swareth in the earth]
Will swear by the God of faithfulness, f—
Because the former troubles have been forgotten, and
Because they are hid from mine eyes.

For, behold me!
Creating new heavens, and a new earth,—
And the former shall not be mentioned, neither shall they come up on the heart. g

But joy ye and exult, perpetually, e in what I am about to create,—
For, behold me:
Creating Jerusalem an exultation, and Her People a joy;
Therefore will I Exult in Jerusalem, and Joy in my People,—
And there shall be heard in her |no more|
The sound of weeping, or the sound of a cry:

There's shall be thenceforward |no more|
A suckling of a few days, or an elder
Who filleth not up his days,—
But [a youth, a hundred years old] may die,
Yea [a sinner, a hundred years old] shall be accused.

Then shall they build houses, and dwell' in them,—
And plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them;

They shall not build, and [another] dwell, They shall not plant, and [another] eat,—
For <as the days of a tree> shall be the days
Of my people,
And <the work of their own hands> shall my chosen ones <use to the full>:\h

They shall not labour in vain, Nor have children for terror,—
For <the seed of the blessed ones of Yahweh> shall they be', And their offspring, with them.

And it shall come to pass— That <before they call> [I] will answer, And <while yet they're speaking> [I] will hear.

The wolf and the lamb shall feed is unity,
And [the lion <as an ox> shall eat straw;
But <as for the serpent> [dust] shall be to food:
They shall not harm— Nor shall they destroy,
In all my holy mountain. x

§ 67. The Humble in Heart, and the Proud who hate them, must be Divinely discriminated. The Birth of a Man-child and of a Nation. Rejoice with Jerusalem. Be warned by the Fate of Idolaters and Transgressors.

Thus saith Yahweh, The heavens are my throne, and The earth is my footstool:
Where' then is the house which ye can build me?
Or where' is my place of rest?
For <all these things> hath mine own hand made,
And all these things came into being,— Declareth Yahweh.
But <for this one> will I look around,
For him who is humbled and smitten is spirit, —
And so careth anxiously for my word.

He that slaughtereth an ox [is as one] who smiteth a man,
He that sacrificeth a lamb [is as one] who beheadeth a dog,
He that causeth a meal-offering to ascend [offereth it with] the blood of swine,
He that maketh a memorial of frankincense [is as one] who blesseth iniquity:
They indeed have chosen their own ways,
And <in their own abominations> their soul hath found delight;
I, also, will choose the things that vex them,
And <the things they dread> will I bring upon them, Because—
I called, and there was none' to answer, I spake, and they hearkened not,—
But did that which was wicked in mine eyes,
And <of that wherein I delighted not> made choice.

Hear the word of Yahweh, ye who are anxiously for his word:
Said your brethren Who hated you,
Who thrust you out for my Name's sake.
Yahweh be glorified!
Therefore shall he appear to your rejoicing,
But [they'] shall turn pale.

ISAIAH LXVI. 6—24. 711

6 The sound of a tumult—out of the city, A sound, out of the temple,— The sound of Yahweh, rendering recompense to his foes.

7 * <Before she travailleth> she hath brought forth,—

8 Who' hath heard the like of this? Who' hath seen the like of these things? Can a land! be made to bring forth [in one day]? Or a nation [be born] at one time?* <As soon as she travaileth> Zion hath also given birth to her children.

9 Could [[I]] bring to the birth, and not cause to bring forth? Saith Yahweh. Or [[I]] be causing to bring forth, and then prevent? Saith thy God.

10 Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and exult over her. All ye who love her,— Joy with her, right joyfully.
   All ye who used to mourn over her:
   That ye may draw to satisfaction, out of the fountain of her consolations,—
   That ye may drain out and get exquisite delight from the abundance of her glory.

12 For [[thus]] saith Yahweh,—
   Behold me! extending unto her, [like a river] [[prosperity]],
   And [[a torrent overflowing]] [[the glory of the nations]].
   That ye may draw it forth,—
   <Upon the side> shall ye be carried, and <Upon the knees> shall ye be caressed:
   <As soon as ye have seen it> [[your heart]] shall be joyful,
   And [[your bones]] [like green herbage] shall thrive,—
   So shall be known
   The hand of Yahweh with his servants,
   But indignation with his foes!

14 For lo! || Yahweh || [with fire] doth come,
   And [[a storm-wind]] [are] his chariots,—
   To render, with fury, his anger,
   And his rebuke, with flames of fire.
   For <by fire> will Yahweh enter into judgment,
   And by his sword, with all flesh,—
   And many' shall be the slain of Yahweh.

17 || They who hallow themselves and purify themselves for the gardens,*
   Behind a certain thing* in the midst,
   Who eat the flesh of swine, and* the abomination, and the mouse,*
   <Together> shall be cut off,—
   Declareth Yahweh.

15 Because [[I]] . . . <for their works and their devices> doth it come! . . .
   Am about to gather together all nations and tongues,—
   So shall they come, and see my glory.

19 Then will I set, among them, a sign,
   And will send of them, such as have escaped, unto the nations—
   Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, Tubal and Javan,—
   The Coastlands that* are afar off,
   Who have not heard my fame,
   Nor seen my glory,
   And they shall tell my glory throughout the nations.

20 Then shall they bring in all your brethren out of all the nations.
   As a present unto Yahweh,
   Upon horses and in chariots and in palanquins and on mules and on dromedaries,
   Unto my holy mountain—Jerusalem.

21 And <of them also> will I take for priests—
   for* Levites. Saith Yahweh,

22 For <as the new heavens and the new earth which I am about to make, are to remain before me> Declareth Yahweh.
   [So] shall remain' your seed and your name.

23 And it shall come to pass, that
   <From one new moon to another, and From one sabbath to another> Shall all flesh [come in] to bow down before me. Saith Yahweh.

24 Then shall they go forth and look upon the dead bodies of the men' who had been trespassing against me,—
   For [their worm] shall not die,
   And [their fire] shall not be quenched;—
   So shall they become an abhorrence, to all flesh.

THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET

JEREMIAH.

§1. After a brief historical Record, Jeremiah tells of his Pre-natal Destination and early Call to the Prophetic Office. He is charged to be fearless, sent to Nations and Kingdoms, and assured of Divine Aid. Almond Branch and Boiling Caldron show him as Emblems of his Mission.

1 And I said,

A twig of an almond-tree can I see.

Then said Yahweh unto me—

Thou hast rightly seen, for am I, over my word, to perform it.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me a second time, saying,

What canst thou see?

And I said,

A boiling caldron can I see, with the front thereof on the North.

Then said Yahweh unto me—

Out of the North shall break forth calamity, against all the inhabitants of the land. For behold me calling for all the families of the kingdoms of the North.

Declareth Yahweh, and they shall come, and set every one his throne at the opening of the gates of Jerusalem, and against all her walls round about, and against all the cities of Judah!

Then will I pronounce my judgments against them, concerning all their wickedness, in that they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, and have bowed down to the works of their own hands.

| Thou therefore, shalt gird thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them, all that I command thee, be not dismayed because of them, lest I dismay thee before their face. | I therefore—lo! I have set thee to-day, as a fortified city, and as a pillar of iron, and as walls of bronze, over all the land, against the kings of Judah, against her princes, against her priests, and against the people of the land. |

11 Moreover the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying,

What canst thou see, Jeremiah?

ML: "in the body," out of the womb.

ML: "beneath thou camest" (Op. 18. vi. 7.)
And they will fight against thee, but shall not prevail against thee, — for <with thee> am I. Declareth Yahweh, to deliver thee.

§ 2. Commencing his First Message to Jerusalem in terms of touching Tenderness, the Prophet remonstrates with his People for their Unfaithfulness, Ingratitude, Daring and Cruelty; he silences Equivocation, and sternly brings home the Charge of Unfaithfulness.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying; 2 Go and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying— Thus saith Yahweh, I remember, in thy behalf, the loving-kindness of thy youthful days, The love of thy bridal estate,— Thy coming out after me, Through the desert, Through a land not sown: Holiness was Israel unto Yahweh, The first-fruit of his increase,— All that devoured it were held guilty, Calamity used to come upon them.— Declareth Yahweh.

Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O house of Jacob, And all the families of the house of Israel. Thus saith Yahweh,— What did your fathers find in me, by way of perversity, that they removed far from me,— and went after vanity, and became vain? Neither said they, Where is Yahweh, Who brought us out of the land of Egypt,— Who led us Through the desert, Through a land of wastes and clefts, Through a land of parched places and of death-shade, Through a land Among which no man had passed, And in which no son of earth dwelt?

Then brought I you into a country of garden'land, to eat the fruit thereof and the goodness thereof,— and yet <when ye entered> then defiled ye my land, and <mine inheritance> ye made an abomination. The priests said not, Where is Yahweh? And they who handled the law did not acknowledge me, And the shepherds transgressed against me,— And the prophets prophesied by Baal, And so <after things that could not profit> did they walk.

Therefore yet further will I plead with you, Declareth Yahweh, Yes <with your children's children> will I plead. For—pass through the coastlands of the West, and see, And <unto Kedar> send ye and [consider diligently],— And see—whether there hath been the like of this! Hath a nation changed gods, although they were No-god's? Yet my people have changed my glory for that which could not profit!

Be amazed, O ye heavens, at this,— And shudder, be dried up utterly. Urgeth Yahweh. For <two wicked things> have my people committed,— <Me> have they forsaken, [a fountain of living water], To hew out for themselves cisterns, broken' cisterns, that cannot hold water. Was Israel [a servant]? <Born in the house> was he? Wherefore hath he become a prey? Against him have been roaring wild' lions, They have uttered their voice,— and have made his land a desolation, His cities have been burned, so as to have no inhabitant. Even the sons of Noph and Tahpanhes have been crushing the crown of the head. Is not this what thou wast certain to do for thyself,— in that thou didst forsake Yahweh thy God, when he was leading thee by the way?

Now therefore, what hast thou to do with the way to Egypt, to drink the waters of Shihor? Or what hast thou to do with the way to Assyria, to drink the waters of the River = Euphrates?

Let thy wickedness correct thee, And thine apostacies rebuke thee, Know therefore and see, That it is a wicked thing and a bitter, that thou shouldst have forsaken Yahweh thy God,— And that the dread of me should not have pertained to thee, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh' of hosts.

Or: "Cyprus." 2 Or: "O.G. 249." 3 "The ancient records emphatically declare that the original reading here was . . . (kôthódi) 'my glory'; and that the Sopherim changed it into (kôthódi) 'his glory.' The original reading was deemed too bold a statement and derogatory to the Lord"—G. Intro. 356. 4 "Devoid of clouds and vapours"—Davies' H.L. 5 Or: "reached." Or: "Adony, Yahweh."
20 For <in age-past time>
I brake thy yoke,
I tare off thy fetters,
And thou saidst, I will not transgress, —
Nevertheless <on every high hill, and under every green tree> wast thou lying down as an unchaste woman.
Yet [if] I planted thee a precious vine, a wholly true seed, —
How then didst thou change thyself towards me,
Into the degenerate plantings of the alien* vine?
22 For <though thou wash thee with nitre,>
And take thee much soap; >
Yet is thine iniquity inscribed* before me.
—Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.*

21 How canst thou say,
I have not defiled myself,
<After the Baalim> have I not gone?
See thy way in the valley,
Ow'n what thou hast done, —
A nimble young she-camel, crossing* her own ways;
A wild ass, taught of the desert,
<in the desire of her soul> she snuffeth the wind,
<in her occasion> who can turn her back?
None who seek her will weary themselves,
<in her month> they shall find her!
23 Withhold thy foot from being unshod,
And thy throat from thirst!

But thou saidst,
Hopeless!
No! for I love foreigners, and <after them> will I go.
26 <As the shame of a thief when he is found>,
||Soi| hath been put to shame,*, the house of Israel, —
||They, their kings, their princes, and* their priests, and their prophets; |
Saying to a tree, <My father> art thou!
And to a stone, ||Thou didst give us* birth,
For they have turned unto me the back, and not the face, —
But <in the time of their calamity> they will say,
Arise, and save us!

29 Where then are thy gods, which thou hast made for thyself?
Let them arise, if they can save thee, in the time of thy calamity, —
For <according to the number of thy cities> have become thy gods, O Judah.*
Wherefore should ye plead against me,
All of you have transgressed against me. — Refereth Yahweh.
In vain have I smitten your children, <Correction> have they not accepted, —
Your sword hath devoured* your prophets, as a lion that destroyeth.

30 O generation, see ||ye|| the word of Yahweh,
<A desert> became I unto Israel!
Or a land of thick darkness! |
Wherefore || have my people said,
We have roved about,
We will not come in, any more, unto thee?
Can a virgin forget ||her ornaments, —
||A bride, || her girdle? |
Yet ||my people have forgotten me, days without number.

33 How thou dost make winsome thy way, to seek love!
Therefore <even unto wicked women> hast thou* taught thy ways.
34 <Even in thy skirts> is there found,
The blood of the lives of the helpless innocents, —
Not <in the act of breaking in> didst thou find them, d yet [the blood is] on all thee.
35 Although thou saidst,
<Because I am innocent> surely hath his anger turned back from me, —
Behold me! entering into judgment with thee, because thou sayest, I have not sinned!
36 <How vigorously> thou goest about, changing thy way!
<Even from Egypt> shalt thou be ashamed, just as thou wast ashamed of Assyria;
37 <Even from this one> shalt thou go forth, with thy hands upon thy head, —
For Yahweh hath rejected those in whom thou confidest, and thou shalt not prosper with them.

1 He hath said,* <If a man send away his wife, and she go from him, and become another man's> will he return unto her [again]? would not that land be utterly desolated?
And [though] hast been unchaste with many neighbours* and yet [thinnest] to return unto me! —Declareth Yahweh
Lift up thine eyes unto the bare heights, and see—where thou hast not been unchastely embraced! beside the ways hast thou sat to them, like the Arab in the desert,—and hast defiled the land with thine unchastities, and with thy wickedness.

Therefore have been withheld the showers,* and the latter rain hath not come,—Yet <the forehead of an unchaste woman> hast thou, Thou hast refused to be ashamed.

Hast thou not <from this time> cried unto me, My father! <the friend of my youth> art thou? Will he maintain [his anger] to times age-abiding? Will he keep it perpetually? Lo! the ha* spoken [thus] but hast done wicked things, and had thy way!

§ 3. Treacherous Judah put to shame as a worse Offender than Apostate Israel: the latter encourag'd to return to Zion along with Judah, Ark to be abolished, Nations gather'd, Spirit of Adoption bestowed.

And Yahweh said unto me, in the days of Josiah the king, Hast thou seen what <apostate Israel> did? She used to go upon every high mountain, and beneath every green tree, and commit unchastity there.

And I said, <after she had been doing all these things> Unto me! shalt thou* return? and she returned not,—and her treacherous sister Judah saw it!

<Though she6 saw that <for all this> <apostate Israel> having committed adultery> I had sent her away, and had given a scroll of divorcement unto her> yet her treacherous' sister Judah feared not, but [she also] went and committed unchastity.

Yea <though it had come to pass that, through the levity of her unchastity, she had defiled the land, and committed adultery with Stone and with Tree> 10 yet, <in spite of all this> her treacherous' sister Judah [returned not unto me], with all her heart,—but falsely,

Declarath Yahweh,

Then said Yahweh unto me,—<Apostate Israel hath justified herself,—more treacherous Judah>.

Go, and proclaim these words towards the North, and say—Return! thou apostate' Israel.

Urgeth Yahweh,

I will not lower my face against you,—<for <full of lovingkindness> I am'.

Declarath Yahweh,

I will not maintain [mine anger] unto times age-abiding. 12 Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that <against Yahweh thy God> hast thou transgressed,—and hast gone hither and thither* unto foreigners under every green tree, and <unto my voice> ye have not hearkened.

Declarath Yahweh.

Return, ye apostate sons,

Urgeth Yahweh, for [I] am become your husband,—therefore will I take you, one of a city, and two of a family, and will bring you to Zion; and will give you shepherds, according to mine own heart,—who will feed you, with knowledge and discretion.

And it shall come to pass, when ye shall be multiplied and become fruitful in the land> <in those days>. Declarath Yahweh, They shall say no more,

The ark of the covenant of Yahweh, Neither shall it come up on the heart,* Neither shall they remember it, Neither shall they miss it, Neither shall it be made any more.*

<At that time> shall they call Jerusalem,

The throne of Yahweh, and there shall be gathered unto her all the nations — to the Name of Yahweh, to Jerusalem; and they shall walk no more after the stubbornness of their own wicked heart.

<In those days> shall the house of Judah go unto the house of Israel,—that they may enter together<out of the land of the North, upon the land which I gave as an inheritance unto your fathers.>

<Though [I myself] had said,—<How can I put thee among the sons, And give thee a land to be coveted, An inheritance of beauty, of the hosts of nations?>

Yet I said, <My father> shalt thou* call me, And <away from me> shalt thou not turn.

But indeed <as> a wife goeth treacherously from her husband. } 21 [A voice, on the bare heights] is heard, The weeping of the supplications of the sons of Israel,—

Because they have perverted their way, Have forgotten' Yahweh their God.

22 Return, ye apostate sons, I will heal your apostasies!
Behold us! we have come unto thee,
For [thou] art Yahweh our God.

23 [Surely] <to falsehood> pertain the hills, The noisy throng on the mountains,— [Surely] <in Yahweh our God> is the salvation of Israel!

24 But [the Shameful thing] hath devoured the labour of our fathers, from our youth: Their flocks, and their herds, their [sons], and their daughters.

25 We must lie down in our shame, And our reproach [be our covering], For <against Yahweh our God> have we sinned, <We, and our fathers, from our youth, even until this day>.
Neither have we hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh our God.

1 [If thou wilt return, O Israel>—

Declareth Yahweh,

2 Unto me> mayst thou return,—
And <if thou wilt remove thine abominations from before me> Then shalt thou not become a wanderer.

3 [If thou wilt swear,]

By the life of Yahweh! in faithfulness, in justice and in righteousness> Then shall the nations bless themselves in him, And <in him> shall they glory.

§ 4. Against Judah and Jerusalem an Invasion is threatened—to the Anguish of the tender-hearted Prophet, who, assured it must be so, pictures the Scene of Devastation in Language of great beauty. Rejoiced by her Paramours, the Forsaken One makes bitter Outcry.

For 'thus' saith Yahweh, Unto the men of Judah and unto Jerusalem,

Till ye the untilled ground, — And do not sow among thorns.

b Or: “propertiy.”
d A most significant promise!

4 Circumcise yourselves unto Yahweh, So shall ye remove the impurity of your heart, ye men of Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem,—
Lost mine indignation [go forth as fire], and burn, and there be none to quench it, Because of the wickedness of your doings.

5 Declare ye in Judah, And <in Jerusalem> let it be heard, — And say, Blow ye a horn in the land, — Cry, with full voice! — And say, Gather yourselves together, And let us enter the defended' cities.

6 Lift up an ensign—Zion-ward, Bring into safety, do not tarry,— For <calamity> am [I] bringing in from the North, Even [a great destruction]:—

7 There hath come up a lion’ out of his thicket, Yea [a destroyer of nations;— hath set forward, hath come forth out of his place,— To make thy land’ a desolation, [Thy cities] shall fall in ruins, [so as to have no’ inhabitant].

8 >On this account; gird you with sackcloth, lament and howl,— Because the glow of the anger of Yahweh hath not turned] from us.

9 And it shall come to pass, in that day, —

Declareth Yahweh, That the courage of the king [shall fail], And the courage of the princes,— And the priests [shall be astonished], And [the prophets] shall be amazed.

10 Then said I,— Ah! My Lord Yahweh! [Surely] thou hast suffered this people and Jerusalem [to be beguiled], saying, [Pence] shall ye have,— whereas the sword shall reach unto the soul.

11 [At that time> shall it be said of this people and of Jerusalem,—

The sharp wind of the bare heights in the desert cometh towards the daughter of my people,— [not to winnow, nor to cleanse].

12 A wind too strong for these; cometh in for me,
[jNow || will || I also] pronounce sentences upon them:—

13 Lo! <like clouds> shall he come up, Even <as a storm-wind> his chariots, <Swifter than eagles> his horses,— Woe to us, for we are laid waste !

Wash, from wickedness, thy heart, O Jerusalem,
That thou mayest be saved,—
How long shall lodge within thee thy wicked' devices?
For [a voice] declareth from [Dan],—
And publisheth trouble' from the hill country of Ephraim.
Put ye in mind the nations,
Lo! publish ye against Jerusalem,
Blockaders are coming in from a land afar off,—
And have uttered against the cities of Judah, their voice:
As the keepers of a field have they come against her, round about,—
For [against me] hath she rebelled,
Declareth Yahweh.
Thine own way And thine own doings
Have done these things unto thee,—
This thy wickedness>
Surely it is bitter,
Surely it hath reached unto thy heart.

My bowels! My bowels!
I am pained in the walls of my heart,
My heart beareth aloud to me,
I cannot be still!
For [the sound of a horn] hast thou heard, O my soul,
The loud shout of war!
Breach upon breach they cry,
For [ruined] is all the land,—
Suddenly are ruined my tents,
In a moment my curtains!
How long shall I keep on seeing a standard,— continue to hear the sound of a horn?
Surely [pervasive] is my people,
Me have they not known,
Foolish sons are they,
Yea without understanding they are:
Wisely they are, to commit wickedness,
But how to do well they know not!

I beheld
The earth, and lo! it was waste and wild,—
The heavens also, and their light was not:
I beheld
The mountains, and lo! they were trembling,—
And [all the hills] had been violently moved:
I beheld
And lo! there was no human being,— Yea [all the birds of the heavens] had fled:

I beheld
And lo! [the garden-land] was a desert,—
And [all its cities] had been broken down,
Because of Yahweh,
Because of the glow of his anger!
For [thus] saith Yahweh,
<A desolation> shall all the land become —
Nevertheless [a full end] will I not make.
For this cause shall the land mourn',
and the heavens above be overcast':
Because I have spoken, have purposed, and have not repented, nor will I turn back therefrom.

At the noise of horseman and archer
The whole city is in flight,
They have entered dark thickets,
Yea unto the crag have they gone up,—
Every city is forsaken,
There remaineth not in them a man!!

And [when thou art laid waste] what wilt thou do?
Though thou clothe thyself with crimson,
Though thou deck thyself with ornaments of gold,
Though thou enlarge with antimony thine eyes>
In vain shalt thou make thyself fair,—
Paramours have rejected thee;
Thy life will they seek!

For [a voice as of a woman in pangs] have I heard,
Anguish as of her that is bearing her first-born.
The voice of the daughter of Zion!
She gaspeth for breath,
She spreadeth forth her palms,—
Surely woe to me!
For my soul fainteth before murderers.

§ 5. One Right-doer might have saved Jerusalem;
but no! Poor and Rich alike are corrupt—
Prophets, Priests and People: the End must come, but not an Utter End!

Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem,
And see, I pray you, and know, and seek out in the broad places thereof,
Whether ye can find [a man],
Whether there is one Doing justice,
Demanding fidelity,—
That I may pardon her.

Even though they say By the life of Yahweh!
Yet in fact falsely do they swear.
O Yahweh! thine own eyes are they not directed to fidelity?"
Thou hast smitten them,
Yet have they not grieved,*
Thou hast consumed them—
They have refused to receive correction,—
They have made their faces bolder than a cliff,
They have refused to return.

4 And I said,—
Only [poor people] are they, —
They act foolishly. For they know not the way of Yahweh,
the justice of their God !

5 I will betake me unto the great men, and will speak [with them]! For [they] know
the way of Yahweh,
the justice of their God !

Yea but [they] [with one accord] have broken the yoke,
torn off the bands.

6 For this cause hath the lion out of the forest
smitten [them],
The wolf of the waste plains preyeth [upon]
them,
The leopard [is keeping watch over their cities, —
Every one that goeth out from thence [is torn in pieces,—
For they have multiplied their transgressions,
Numerous are their apostasies.

7 How [for this] can I pardon thee?
Thine own sons [have forsaken me,
And have sworn by No-gods.—
When I had fed them to the full] Then committed they adultery,
And <the house of the unchaste woman> [they] used to throng:

8 Lusty, well-fed horses had they become,
Every man [unto his neighbour's wife] would neigh !

<For these things> shall I not punish !

Demanded Yahweh :
Yea <on a nation such as this> must not my soul avenge herself !*

9 Scale ye her walls, and destroy,
But  do not make,—
Remove her tendrils,
For <not to Yahweh> do [they] belong !

11 For <very treacherously> have the house of Israel and the house of Judah [dealt with
me],
Declareth Yahweh.

12 They have acted deceitfully against< Yahweh,
And have said,
Not He !
Neither shall there come' upon us [calamity]
<Nor sword nor famine> shall we see ;

But [the prophet] shall prove to be wind,
And there is [no one] speaking in them,—
Thus shall it be done to themselves !
Therefore
Thy saith Yahweh,
God of hosts,
Because ye have spoken this word >,— Behold me! making my words in thy mouth to be fire,
And [this people]—wood,
So shall it devour them.

15 Behold me! bringing upon you a nation from afar, *O house of Israel.
Declareth Yahweh,—
/A nation invincible> it is'.
A nation from age-past times hath it been',
A nation whose tongue thou shalt not
know,
Neither shalt thou understand what it
spaketh :

16 Its quiver [is like an open sepulchre,—
They all are heroes :
Then shall it eat thy harvest, and thy bread, which [thy sons and thy daughters] should eat,—
It shall eat thy flock and thy herd,
It shall eat thy vine and thy fig-tree,—
It shall destroy thy fenced cities, wherein [thou art trusting] [with the sword].

Yet <even in those days>

Declareth Yahweh,
Will I not make of you [a full end].

And it shall come to pass <when ye shall
say,
For what cause hath Yahweh our God done to us all these things ?>
Then shalt thou say unto them,—
As ye forsook me, and served the gods of the foreigner in your own land>
So shall ye serve aliens in a land [not your own].

Tell ye this, throughout the house of Jacob,—
And let it be heard throughout Judah,
saying :

21 Hear this, I pray you, ye people—foolish and without heart,—
<Eyes> have they, and see not,
<Ears> have they, and hear not. b

22 Even for me> will ye have no reverence?
Enquireth Yahweh,
And <because of me> will ye not be pained ?
In that <though I placed the sand as a bound to the sea,
A decree age-abiding, and it should not pass beyond it,—
When they would toss themselves,
Then should they not prevail,
When the waves thereof would roar;
Then should they not pass beyond it >

Lit.: "hear"; Cp. I Cor. xiv. 2.
Cp. Eze. xii. 2.
Yet this people hath an obstinate and rebellious heart;—
They have turned aside, and gone their way;
Neither have they said in their heart,—
"Let us, we pray you, revere Yahweh our God,
Who giveth rain, even the early and the latter, in its season,
<The appointed weeks of harvest> he reserveth for us.
Your iniquities have thrust away these things,
Yea, your sins have withheld that which is good from you.
For there have been found among my people, lawless men, —
One lieth in wait, as with the stooping of fowlers,
They have set a trap, they capture [men]:
<As a cage> is full of birds, —
[So] are [their houses] full of unrighteous gain,—
For this cause have they become great, and waxen rich:
They have waxed fat, they shine.
Yea, they have overpassed the records of wickedness.
<The right> have they not determined, —
The right of the fatherless, that they might prosper, —
Yea <justice to the helpless> have they not decreed.

<Upon these things> shall I not bring punishment? —
Demandeth Yahweh. <Or <on a nation such as this> shall not my soul avenge herself? —
An astounding and horrible thing hath been brought to pass in the land:
The prophets have prophesied [falsely],
And [the priests] tread down by their means,
And [my people] love it [so], —
What then can ye do, as to her latter end?

§ 6. The Invader approaches, making light of his Task, his Men clasping for the Fray. Yahweh, tearing himself from his People because they abound in Wickedness and Violence, and refuse to hearken, and mock the Divine Word—charges the Enemy not to spare. The Prophet himself, filled with Yahweh's Indignation, pours out his Warnings wherever he can get a Hearing, and is further appointed to act as an Assayer of Metal amongst his People.

Take your goods into safety, ye sons of Benjamin, out of the midst of Jerusalem,
And <in Tekoa> blow ye a horn,
And <on Beth-hacceren> raise a fire-sign,—
For calamity hath looked out from the North,
Even a great destruction. —

<To a comely and delicate woman> have I likened* the daughter of Zion:
<Against her> shall come shepherds, with their flocks;
They have pitched against her their tents, round about,
They tend their flocks, every one near at hand.
Hallow ye against her a war,
Arise! and let us go up in broad noon.
Woe to us, for the day hath turned,
for the shadows of evening stretch along.

Arise! and let us go up in the night,
And let us destroy her palaces.

For Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
Cut ye down timber, and cast up, against Jerusalem, a mound,—
[That] is the city to be punished!
There is nothing but oppression in her midst;
Like the casting forth by a well of its waters>, —
[So] hath she cast forth her wickedness,—
Violence and destruction are heard in her,
Before my face, continually are suffering and smiting.

Receive thou correction, O Jerusalem,
Lest my soul be torn from thee,—
Lest I make thee a desolation,
A land not habitable.

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
They shall thoroughly glean, as a vine, the remnant of Israel,—
Turn back thy hand, as a grape gatherer, over the tendrils.

Unto whom can I speak—and bear witness, that they may hear?
Lo! <uncircumcised> is their ear, that they cannot attend,—
Lo! the word of Yahweh hath become to them a reproach, they take no delight therein.

So then <with the indignation of Yahweh> am I full,
I am too weary to hold it in,
[If I am constrained] to pour it out, upon the boy in the street, and upon the circle of young men [together], —
For [even husband with wife] will be captured,
The elder, with him who is full of days;
And their houses shall be turned over to others,
Fields and wives together,—

For I will stretch out my hand against the inhabitants of the land.

Declareth Yahweh.

13 For <from the least of them, even unto the greatest of them> ||Every one|| graspeth with greed,—

We will not walk [therein]!

17 Therefore will I raise up over you, watchmen,

Lo! a people coming in from the land of the North,—
Yea ||a great nation|| shall be stirred up out of the remote parts of the earth:

||Cruel|| is he!
So they will not have compassion,
||Their voice|| ||like the sea|| will roar,<sup>a</sup> And <on horses> will they ride,— Arrayed each one, like a man for battle, Against thee, O daughter of Zion!

24 We have heard the report thereof.
Relaxed<sup>s</sup> are our hands,— ||Anguish|| hath taken hold on us,
||Fangs|| as on her that is giving birth.

25 Do not go out into the field, And <in the road> do not walk,— Because ||a sword|| hath the foe,—
Terror round about!||

26 O daughter of my people,
Gird thee with sackcloth, and<sup>s</sup> roll thyself in ashes,— (The mourning for an only son) make thou for thyself,
||Most bitter lamentation||.
For <suddenly> shall the destroyer come upon us.

27 ||An assayer|| have I set among my people, of gold-ore,<sup>s</sup>
That thou mayest note and try their way:*
(They all) are rebels<sup>s</sup> of rebels,
Slander-walkers,<sup>s</sup> [They are] bronze and iron!
(As for them all) ||corrupters|| they are!

Therefore will I do to the house, Whereon my Name hath been called, Wherein ye are trusting, Even to the place which I gave to you and to your fathers,— Just as I did unto Shiloh; And will cast you out from before me,— Just as I have cast out All your brethren, All the seed of Ephraim.

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Amend your ways, and your doing,— That I may cause you to dwell in this place. Do not, on your part, trust in false words, saying,— The temple of Yahweh, The temple of Yahweh, The temple of Yahweh, they are'!

But if ye shall thoroughly amend your ways, and your doing,— Shall thoroughly execute justice, between a man and his neighbour; The sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow shall not oppress, And innocent blood shall not shed in this place,— And after other gods shall not walk, to your own hurt>

Then will I cause you to dwell In this place, In the land' which I gave to your fathers,— From one age even unto another.

Lo! ye, on your part, are trusting in false words,— To no profit!

Are ye to steal, commit murder, and commit adultery, and swear falsely, and burn incense unto Baal,—and walk after other gods, whom ye have not known;

And will ye then come in, and stand before me, in this house, whereon my Name hath been called, and say,— We have set ourselves free,—for the purpose of committing all these abominations?

A den of robbers hath this house, on which my Name hath been called, become [in your own eyes]? I, also,—lo! I have seen it,

Declareth Yahweh.

For go, I pray you, unto my place which was in Shiloh, Where I made my Name to dwell [at first],— And see what I did to it, because of the wickedness of my people Israel!

Now therefore,— Because ye have done all these deeds, Declareth Yahweh,— And though I spake unto you, betimes' speaking, Yet ye hearkened not, And though I cried unto you, Yet ye answered not>

Yet they hearkened not.

Neither inclined their ear,
But walked in the counsels—
In the stubbornness of their own wicked heart:
And went backward, and not forward.

<Ever since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt, until this day>
Have I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, <Daily, betimes> sending them;
Yet they hearkened not unto me.
Neither inclined their ear,—
But stiffened their neck.
They did more wickedly than their fathers.

Therefore shalt thou speak unto them all these words,
Though they do not hearken unto thee,—
And thou shalt cry aloud unto them,
Though they do not answer thee:—
But thou shalt say unto them,—
"This is the nation that hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh its God,
Neither accepted they correction,—
Perished is fidelity, And is cut off, out of their mouth.

Cut thou off thy crown of hair, [O Jerusalem],
and cast it away,
And lift thou up on the bare heights, a dirge,—
For Yahweh hath rejected and cast out the generation with which he was wrought.

For the sons of Judah [have done] that which was wicked in mine eyes.

Declareth Yahweh,—
They have set their abominations in the house whereon my Name hath been called, to defile it;
And they have built the high places of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom,
To burn up their sons and their daughters in the fire,—
Which I commanded not, Yet neither came it up on my heart.

Therefore | lo! | days are coming.|
Declareth Yahweh,
When it shall not be called any more—
The Topheth, nor The valley of Ben-hinnom, but The valley of Slaughter,—
And they shall bury in Topheth, for want of place;
And the dead bodies of this people shall become food,

And there shall be none to drive them away.

How can ye say,
Wisdom is with us,
And the law of Yahweh is with us?
But indeed lo! falsely hath dealt the false pen of the scribes!
Ashamed are the wise, dismayed, and captured!
Lo! the word of Yahweh have they rejected,
And what wisdom have they?
Therefore will I give—
Their wives to others,
Their fields, to such as shall take possession of them,
For the least, even unto the greatest.
Every one is wholly given to extortion;
From the prophet, even unto the priest.
And so they have healed the grievous wound of the daughter of my people slightly.
Saying, Peace! peace! when there was no peace!

Declareth Yahweh:
There should be no grapes on the vine,
Nor figs on the fig-tree.
Even the leaf hath faded,
Though I have given them these things they shall pass away from them.
Why are we sitting still?
Gather yourselves together, and let us enter the defended cities.
And let us be silent there.
For Yahweh our God hath put us to silence,
And made us drink poisoned water.
Because we have sinned against Yahweh.

The land and the fulness thereof,
The city, and them who were dwelling therein.

17 For behold me! sending among you serpents—vipers which there is no charming,—
And they shall fatally bite you.
Declareth Yahweh.
18 When I would have cheered myself against sorrow—
Against me mine own heart sickened:—
Lo! the voice of the cry for help of the daughter of my people, from a land far away,
Is Yahweh not in Zion?
Is her King not within her?
Why have they provoked me
With their carved images,
With their foreign vanities?
The harvest is passed.
The fruit-gathering is ended;
And we are not saved!

§ 8.
After an Outburst of Emotion the Prophet resumes his unwelcome Theme: further probing the Sins of his People, he is instructed to call for Waiting Women to lament over the Ravages of Death.
The Divine Character a Theme for Glorifying.
Circumcision availed nothing.

21 For the grievous injury of the daughter of my people I am grievously injured,—
I am ensnared in gloom,
Horror hath seized me:—
Balsam is there none?
Is there no physician there?
Why hath not appeared the healing of the daughter of my people?

1 Oh that my head were waters,
And mine eyes a fountain of tears,—
That I might weep day and night,
For the slain of the daughter of my people!
2 Oh that I had in the wilderness, a wayfarers’ lodge,
That I might leave my people, and go from them,—
For they all are adulterers,
An assemblage of traitors;
3 Who have prepared* their tongue as their bow of falsehood,
And not by faithfulness have they become mighty in the land,—
For from wickedness unto wickedness* have they gone forth,
But have they not known?
Declareth Yahweh.

8 A pointed arrow is their tongue, Deceit hath it spoken,— With his mouth, peace unto his neighbour; doth one speak, But within himself he layeth his ambush.

9 For these things shall I not bring punishment on them? Demandeth Yahweh,—

On a nation such as this must not my soul avenge herself?*

10 Over the mountains will I take up a weeping and wailing, And over the oases of the desert a dirge, For they have been burned, so that no man passeth through, Neither have men heard the lowing of cattle,— Both the bird of the heavens and the beast; have fled, have gone their way:

Thus will I give up Jerusalem To heaps,

A habitation for jackals,— And the cities of Judah will I give up to desolation, without inhabitant.

12 Who is the man that is wise, That he may discern this? And unto whom hath the mouth of Yahweh spoken, That he may declare it? For what cause

Hath the land perished, Hath it been burned as a wilderness, that no man passeth through?

13 Then said Yahweh,— Because they have forsaken my law,* which I set before them,— And have not hearkened to my voice, neither walked therein;

14 But have gone their way, After the stubbornness of their own heart,— And after the Baals which their fathers taught’ them>

Therefore [thus] saith Yahweh of hosts, The God of Israel,

Behold me! Feeding them [even this people] with wormwood,— And I will cause them to drink, poisoned water;*

And will scatter them among the nations, which neither they nor their fathers [have known],— And will send after them the sword, until I have consumed them.

Therefore [thus] saith Yahweh of hosts, Consider ye diligently and call for the wailing women, that they may come,— And unto the wise women send ye, that they may come;

Yea let them make haste, and lift up over us a wailing,— That our eyes may run down with tears, And our eyelashes stream down with water;—

Yea a voice of wailing hath been heard out of Zion, How are we ruined! We have turned very pale, For we have left the land, Forb they have cast down our habitations.

For hear, O ye women, the word of Yahweh, And let your ear take in the word of his mouth,— And teach your daughters a wail, Yea [each woman—her neighbour] a dirge:—

That death Hath come up through our windows, Hath entered our palaces,— Cutting off The boy from the street, The young men from the broadways.

Speak thou, Therefore declareth Yahweh, So shall fall the dead bodies of men, Like dung heaps on the face of the field,— And like swaths after the harvestman, With none to gather.

15 Therefore [thus] saith Yahweh, Let not [the wise man] glory [in his wisdom], Neither let [the mighty man] glory [in his might],— Let not [the rich man] glory [in his riches];

Upon Egypt and upon Judah,

The dwellers in the desert,—
For all the nations are circumcised,

§ 9. The Folly of Idol-making described with keen irony; the Majesty of A Living God declared; a Challenge to the World in Aramaic; Israel's Lament.

Hear ye the word which Yahweh hath spoken unto you, O house of Israel:—

Thus saith Yahweh—
Unto the way of the nations become not ye accustomed,
Nor at the signs of the heavens be ye dismayed,—
Because the nations are dismayed at them.

For as for the prescribed customs of the peoples—vainy they are,—
For a tree out of the forest one cutteth down,
Work for the hands of a skilled workman, with the axe:

With silver and with gold he decketh it,—
With nails and with hammers they fasten them, that it may not totter.

Mere palm-trunks turned they are, and cannot speak,
They must needs be carried, for they cannot take a step,—
Be not afraid of them, for they cannot do harm,
And even to do good is not in their power.

None there is like unto thee, O Yahweh,—Great art thou,
And great is thy Name, for might.

Who would not revere thee, O King of nations?
For doth it beseech,
Forasmuch as among all the wise men of the nations,
And throughout all their royal estate—
None there is like unto thee.

But do they become brutish and stupid,—
An example of utmost vanity is a tree!—
Silver spread into plates [from Tarshish] is brought,
And gold, from Uphaz,
Work for the craftsman, and for the hands of the smith,—
Blue and purple are their clothing,
Work for the skilled are they all.

But Yahweh is God in truth, a God that liveth,
And a King of times age-abiding,—
At his anger quaketh the earth,
And nations cannot endure his wrath.

Thus shall ye say unto them,
The gods that made not the heavens' And the earth' shall perish out of the earth,
And from under these heavens!—

He that made the earth by his power,
That established the world by his wisdom,—
And by his understanding stretched out the heavens.

At the voice that he uttered there was a tumult of waters in the heavens,
And he caused vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth,—
The lightnings for rain he made,
And brought forth wind out of his treasuries.

Every son of earth hath become too brutish to discern,
Every goldsmith hath been put to shame by a graven image,—
For falsehood is his molten image.
Seeing there is no breath in them.
Vanity they are, the handiwork of mockeries,—
In the time of their visitation shall they perish.

Not like these is the portion of Jacob,
For the fashioner of all things is he,
And Israel is his inherited sceptre,—
Yahweh of hosts is his name.

Fold up, from the ground, thy travelling carpet,—O inhabitress of the fortress;
For saith Yahweh, Behold me! singing out the inhabitants of the land at this throw,—
And I will distress them, that they may discover it.

Woe to me! for my grievous injury,
Severe is my wound,—
But I said, Verily this is an affliction, and I must bear it:
20 | My tent|| is laid waste,
And ||all my tent-cords|| are broken,—
||My children|| are gone forth from me, and they ||are not||.
There is none
To stretch out, any more, my tent,
Or to set up my curtains.

21 | For the shepherds ||have become brutish||,
And ||<Yahweh> have they not sought,—
||For this cause|| have they not prospered,
And ||all their flock|| is scattered.

22 | The noise of a rumour! lo it hath come!
Even a great commotion, out of the land of the North,—
To make the cities of Judah
A desolation,
A den of jackals.

23 | I know, O Yahweh,
That <not to a son of earth> pertaineth
his own path,—
Not* <to the man who walketh> also to direct his own steps.

24 | Chastise me, O Yahweh,
But yet in measure,—
Not in thine anger, lest thou make me few.
Pour out thy wrath—
Upon the nations, that know thee not, and Upon the families b that <upon thy Name> have not called,—
For they have devoured Jacob,
Yea they have devoured him, and consumed
him.
And <his habitation> have they made desolate.

words of this covenant; ⁴ which I commanded your fathers—in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the smelting-pot of iron—
saying,
Hearken unto my voice, and do them,
According to all that I may command
you,—
So shall ye become [my' people],
And ||I will become [your' God]||;
That the oath may be established which I swore to your fathers,
To give them a land flowing with milk
and honey, as at this day.

Then answered I and said,
Amen, O Yahweh!

6 And Yahweh said unto me,—
Proclaim thou all these words, throughout the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying,— Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do
them,

7 For I ||solemnly took your fathers to witness|| in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt—even until this day, <betime> taking them to witness, saying,—
Hearken ye unto my voice.

8 Howbeit they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear, but walked severally in the stubbornness of their wicked heart,— so then I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did them not.

9 Yahweh therefore said unto me,—
There is found a conspiracy, among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem:

10 They have turned back unto the iniquities of their first fathers, who refused to hear my words, yea ||they themselves|| have walked after other gods, to serve them,— the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken' my covenant, which I solemnised with their fathers.

11 | Therefore|
Thus, saith Yahweh,
Behold me! bringing upon them calamity,
which they shall not be able to escape,— and <though they make outcry unto me> yet will I not hearken unto them. ¹² Then shall the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, go' and make outcry unto the gods, to whom they' have been burning incense,—but they will not at all ||save;
them in the time of their calamity; ¹⁵ for <according to the number of thy cities> have become thy gods O Judah,—and <according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem> have ye set up altars to the Shameful thing, altars for burning incense to Baal.

15 Why hath the beloved in mine own house done an abomination? Shall vows and holy flesh take away from thee thy wickednesses, or shalt thou by these escape?"—

16 A green olive-tree, fair with goodly fruit;— did Yahweh call thy name,— with the noise of a great tumult hath he kindled fire upon it, and the branches thereof shall be broken.

17 But Yahweh of hosts, who planted thee; hath pronounced against thee calamity,— on account of the wickedness of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have wrought for themselves, provoking me to anger by burning incense to Baal.

18 Now when Yahweh let me know, and I did know; then didst thou shew me their doings.

19 But [I] was as a gentle lamb that is to be led to the slaughter,— and I knew not that <against me> they had devised devices <saying>— Let us destroy the tree with its fruit; Yea let us cut him off out of the land of the living, And his name shall be remembered no more;

20 But, O Yahweh of hosts, Who judgest righteously, Who triest affections and intellect,— Let me see thine avenging upon them, For unto thee> have I revealed my cause.

21 Therefore— Thus saith Yahweh, Concerning the men of Anathoth, who are seeking thy life, saying,— Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of Yahweh, So shalt thou not die by our hand:—

22 Therefore— Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, Behold me: bringing punishment upon them, The young men shall die by the sword, Their sons and their daughters shall die by famine; And the remnant shall they have none,— For I will bring calamity against the men of Anathoth, in the year of their visitation.

Behold me! uprooting them from off their own soil,
Whereas the house of Judah will I uproot out of their midst.

And it shall come to pass after I have uprooted them I will again have compassion upon them,—and will bring them back—

$\text{§ 11. By Symbolic Action with a Linen Girdle,}
Jeremiah is taught how Israel now failed of fulfilling Yahweh's Designs, and, by the Metaphor of Wine-jars, how the Nation must suffer Punishment. If the People will not repent, the Prophet will weep in secret. The King and Queen-Mother specially called on to humble themselves.

Thus said Yahweh unto me,—
Go, and buy for thyself, a linen girdle, and put upon thy loins,—but in water shalt thou not place it.

So I bought a girdle, according to the word of Yahweh,—and put upon my loins.

came the word of Yahweh unto me, a second time, saying:

Take the girdle which thou hast bought, which is upon thy loins,—and arise, go to the Euphrates, and hide it there, in a hole of the cliff.

So I went, and hid it, by the Euphrates,—as Yahweh had commanded me. And it came to pass, at the end of many days,—that Yahweh said unto me,—

Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from thence, the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there.

So I went to the Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle out of the place where I had hidden it,—and lo! the girdle | was spoiled|, it* was good for nothing.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh,—

After this manner will I spoil the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jerusalem.

This wicked people, who are refusing to hear my words, who are walking in the stubbornness of their heart, and have gone after other gods, to serve them, and to bow down to them| yea let them be like this girdle, which is good for nothing.

For as a girdle cleaveth unto the loins of a man |so| caused I to cleave unto me—the whole house of Israel, and the whole house of Judah.

Declareth Yahweh.

become mine—
For a people, and
For a name, and
For a praise, and
For an adorning,—
but they hearkened not.

Therefore shalt thou say unto them this word—
Thus saith Yahweh,
God of Israel,

Every jar is to be filled with wine; and they will say unto thee,

Do we not know well that every jar is to be filled with wine?

Then shalt thou say unto them—

Thus saith Yahweh—

Behold me! filling all the inhabitants of this land—

Even the kings that are sitting for David, upon his throne, and the priests and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—

I will not pity,
Neither will I spare,
Neither will I have compassion, that I should not destroy them.

Hear ye and give ear, be not haughty,—
For Yahweh hath spoken.

Before your feet stumble upon the twilight

He turn it into the shadow of death,
And change it for thick darkness.
But if ye will not hear it>
In secret places shall my soul weep—
Because of the pride—
And mine eyes shall flow over and run down with tears,
Because captive hath been taken the flock of Yahweh.
Say thou to the king and
to the queen-mother,
Abuse yourselves— Sit down,—
For descended have your Head-tiros, your Crown of adornment.
The cities of the South are shut,
And there is none to open—
Judah hast been carried away captive,
She hath altogether been carried away captive
[in full number].
Lift up your eyes and see,
Them who are coming in from the North,—
Where is The flock that was given thee,
Thy beautiful flock?
What wilt thou say when he shall bring punishment upon thee,
Since thou thyself hast accostomed them to be over thee as friends [in chief]? Shall not [pangs] seize thee, as of a woman in childbirth?
But if thou say in thy heart,
Wherefore have these things befallen me?>
For the greatness of thine iniquity have
Thy skirts been turned aside,
Thy heels suffered violence!
Can [the Ethiopian] change [his skin],
Or [the leopard] [his spots]? Even [ye] may be able to do right,
Who are accustomed to do wrong.
Therefore have I scattered them,
As broken straw passing away, by the wind
of the desert.

[Thy measured portion from me].
Declareth Yahweh;
For that thou didst forget me,
And confide in falsehood;
Therefore [even I myself] have drawn away
thy skirts, over thy face,
And thy shame [hath been seen].
<Thine adulteries, and thy neighings, thine unchaste' wickedness>
Upon the hills in the field> I have seen thine abominations!

Woe to thee, O Jerusalem,
Wilt thou not become pure?
After how long [yet]?

§12. A Severe Drought vividly described; as to which the Prophets intercedes with God, but, for Reasons given, is forbidden to pray; howbeit, in Consideration of the Misguidance of False Prophets, he is permitted to tell the People his Grief. Venturing once more to plead with God, Jeremiah is told that even Moses and Samuel could not succeed, because of the Sin of King Manasseh. Jerusalem is pitied but cannot be spared. The Prophet in dismay apostrophises his Mother, vindicates himself, and is assured of Divine Protection.

1 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah, concerning the matter of the drought:—
2 Judah mourneth,
And [the gates thereof] pine.
They lie in gloom on the ground,—
And [the outcry of Jerusalem] hath ascended;
3 And [their nobles] have sent their menials to the waters,—
They have been to the pits,
They have [found] no water,
They have returned, [their vessels' empty],
They are pale and ashamed, and have covered their heads.

<Because the ground is cracked,
For there hath been no rain in the land>
The plowmen are pale,
They have covered their heads.

5 For [even the hind of the field] hath calved,
and forsaken,
Because there is no [young herbage];

6 Yes, [wild ass] stand still on the bare heights,
They pant for air like jackals,—
Dimmed are their eyes,
Because there is [no grass].

7 <Though our iniquities have testified against us>
O Yahweh, effectually work thou, for the sake of thy Name,—
For our apostacies have abounded,
<Against thee> have we sinned.

8 Thou Hope of Israel,
His Saviour in the time of distress,— Wherefore shouldst thou be as a sojourner*
in the land?
Or as a wayfarer, who hath turned aside to lodge for the night?

---

* So in Cod. Mugah; in The Negeb.
Cod. Hallel: "eyes"— "or; "taught," "schooled," "trained."

... Wherefore shouldst thou be as a man astonished,
As a mighty man, who cannot save?
Yet thou art in our midst—O Yahweh,
And, thy Name! on us hath been called,
Do not abandon us!

[Thus] saith Yahweh
To this people,
In this way have they loved to wander,
Their feet have they not restrained,—
Yahweh therefore hath not accepted them,
Now will he call to mind their iniquity,—
That he may punish their sins.

And Yahweh said unto me,—
Do not pray for this people, for blessing;
Though they fast I am not going to hearken unto their loud cry,
And though they offer ascending-sacrifice and meal-offering I am not going to accept them,—
For with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence am I about to consume them.

Then said I,
Ah, My Lord, Yahweh!
Lo! the prophets are saying to them—
Ye shall not see the sword,
And famine shall ye not have,—
For prosperity in truth will I give you, in this place.

So then Yahweh said unto me,
Falsehood are the prophets prophesying in my name,
I have not sent them,
Neither have I commanded them,
Neither have I spoken unto them.—
A vision of falsehood, and
A divination of worthlessness, and
A fraud of their own hearts—
They are prophesying unto you.\(^b\)

Therefore
Thus saith Yahweh,
Concerning the prophets who are prophesying in my Name, though I sent them not, and yet they have been saying—
Neither sword nor famine shall there be in this land.—
By sword or by famine shall those prophets be consumed;—
And the people to whom they have been prophesying shall be getting cast out into the streets of Jerusalem, because of the famine and the sword, and of there being none to give burial unto them;—them, their wives, nor their sons nor their daughters,—
So will I pour out upon them their own wickedness.

\(^a\) Cp. chap. vii. 16; xi. 14.
\(^b\) Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr. G.n.)

Therefore shalt thou say unto them this word,
Let mine eyes run down with tears night and day,
And let them not rest,—
For with a grievous injury hath been injured the virgin, the daughter of my people,
With a wound, severe indeed!
If I have gone out into the field;
Then lo! the slain of the sword!
And if I have entered the city;
Then lo! the diseases of famine!
For both prophet and priest have trafficked against the land unnoticed.

Hast thou utterly rejected Judah?
Zion itself hath thy soul loathed?
Why hast thou smitten us, so that there is for us no healing?
A waiting for prosperity, but no welfare, and a time of healing, but lo! terror!\(^b\)

We acknowledge, O Yahweh,
Our own lawlessness.
The iniquity of our fathers,—
For we have sinned against thee.

Do not despise—for the sake of thy Name, do not treat with contempt—the throne of thy glory,— Remember!—do not break thy covenant with us.

Are there among the vanities of the nations, senders of rain?
Or can the heavens themselves give myriad drops?
Art not thou he, O Yahweh our God?
Therefore will we wait for thee,
For hast made all these.

Then said Yahweh unto me,
Though Moses and Samuel should stand' before me—
My soul could not be toward this people,—
Send them away from before me,
And let them go forth.

And it shall come to pass when they say unto thee,
Whither shall we go!?
Then shalt thou say unto them,
Thus saith Yahweh,—
Such as are for death, to death, and
Such as are for the sword, to the sword, and
Such as are for famine: to the famine, and
Such as are for captivity: to captivity.

And I will set in charge over them—four species, Declareth Yahweh,
The sword, to slay, and
The dogs, to trail along,— and
The bird of the heavens and
The beast of the earth, to devour and to destroy.

4 And I will make them a terror, to all the kings of the earth,—
On account of Manasseh, son of Hezekiah,
king of Judah,
(For what he did in Jerusalem).

5 For who shall have pity upon thee, O
Jerusalem?
And who shall lament for thee?
And who shall turn aside, to ask for thy welfare?
I have abandoned me,
Declareth Yahweh,
<Backward> thou wilt go,—
Therefore have |I| stretched forth my hand against thee and laid thee waste,—
I am weary of having compassion.

6 Therefore have I winnowed them with a winnowing shovel, in the gates of the land,—
I have bereaved—I have destroyed my people,
<From their own ways> have they not returned.

7 Their widows have become multiplied to me,
I have brought against them,—upon the mother of young men—the spoiler, in the broad noon,—
I have let fall upon her, suddenly, excitement and terror.

8 Languisheth she who had given birth to seven,
She hath breathed out her life:—
She hath given to me,
She hath gone, it was day,
She hath turned pale, and hath turned red,—
And the remnant of them, <to the sword> will I deliver before their enemies.
Declareth Yahweh.

10 Woe to me! my mother,
That thou didst bear me,
A man of litigation and a man of contention to all the land,—
I have not lent on interest,
Nor have they lent on interest to me,
Every one hath treated me with contempt.

11 Said Yahweh,—
Verily, I will loose thee for good!
Verily, I will intercede for thee,
In the time of calamity, and
In the time of distress, with the enemy.

12 Shall iron crush |the iron from the North| and the bronze?

13 <Thy substance, and thy treasures—for a prey> will I give, |without price|,— <Even for all thy sins, and in all thy bounds>:
Therefore will I make thee pass, with thine enemies, into a land thou knowest
not,—
For a fire hath been kindled in mine anger,
<Upon you> shall it burn.

15 ||Thou knowest—O Yahweh,
Remember me, and visit me, and avenge me
upon my persecutors,
Do not <of thy longsuffering> take me
away,—
Know—I have borne, for thy sake, reproach.

16 Thy words were found, and I did eat
them,
Then became thy words unto me, the joy and gladness of my heart,—
For thy Name hath been called |upon me|,
O Yahweh, God of hosts!

17 I sat not in the circle of mockers,
Nor became I uprisious,—
<Because of thy hand> |by myself| did I sit,
For <with indignation> hadst thou filled
me.

18 Wherefore hath my pain become <perpetual>?
And my wound |incurable|?
Refuseth to be healed?
Wilt thou |indeed be| to me,
[As a brook] that disappointeth,
Waters that cannot be trusted ?

19 Wherefore<Thus saith Yahweh—
<If thou wouldst return> I will cause thee to return,
<Before me> shalt thou stand,
Yea <if thou wilt bring out the precious from among the vile>:
As mine own mouth shalt thou be,—
Let them return unto thee,
But thou shalt not return unto them;

20 So will I make thee, to this people, a wall of bronze |fortified|,
<When they fight against thee> they shall not prevail against thee,—
For <with thee> am |I|, to save thee and to deliver thee,
Declareth Yahweh;

21 Thus will I deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked,—
And redeem thee out of the grasp of the tyrants.

   Thou shalt not take to thee a wife,—

   For ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—
   <Concerning the sons, and concerning the daughters, that are being born in this place,—and concerning their mothers who do bear them, and concerning their fathers who do beget them, in this land>—
   <Of deaths from diseases> shall they die.
   They shall not be lamented,

   So shall great and small die in this land,
   They shall not be buried,—
   Neither shall men lament for them,
   Nor cut themselves, Nor make themselves bald for them;
   Neither shall they break bread to them in mourning:
   To console one over his dead,—
   Nor cause them to drink the cup of consolation,

   Then shalt thou say unto them,—
   <For that your fathers forsook [me;]
   Declareth Yahweh,
   And walked after other gods, and served them, and bowed down to them,— Whereas <me;> they forsook;
   And <my law> kept they not;
   And <ye> have done more wickedly than your fathers,—for, look at you! walking every man after the stubbornness of his wicked heart, so as not to hearken unto me>
   Therefore will I hurl you forth, from off this land, unto a land which ye have not known, ||ye, nor your fathers||—and ye can serve there, other gods, day and night, in that I will grant you no favour.
   Therefore |lo!| days are coming;
   Declareth Yahweh,
   When it shall be said no more,
   By the life of Yahweh, who brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but—
   By the life of Yahweh, who hath brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands, whither he had driven them,—
   So will I bring them back upon their own soil, which I gave to their fathers.
   Behold me! sending for many fishers,
   Declareth Yahweh,
   And they shall catch them,—and ||thereafter|| will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from off every mountain, and from off every hill, and out of the dells of the crags.
   For ||mine own eyes|| are upon all their ways, they have not been hid from my face,—neither hath their iniquity been concealed from being straight before mine eyes.
   Thus will I recompense |first, twofold| their iniquity and their sin, because of their profaning my land,—<with the curse of their disgusting and detestable things> have they filled mine inheritance.
   O Yahweh, my strength, and my refuge, and my place to fly to, in the day of distress—<Unto thee> shall nations come in, out of the ends of the earth, that they may say—Surely!
<Falsehood> did our fathers inherit,
Vanity, among whom is none that can profit:
Shall a son of earth make for himself gods?
Seeing that they are no-gods?
Therefore behold me! causing them to know,
by this stroke,
I will cause them to know my hand, and my might,—
That they may know, that my name is Yahweh:

Upon the tablet of their heart,
And upon the horns of your altars;
So long as their sons remember their altars,
And their Sacred Stems,
By the green tree—
Upon the high hills.

O my mountain in the field!
<Thy substance, all thy treasures> for a prey will I give:
Thy high places for sin, within all thy bounds.
So shalt thou, even of thyself, suffer to rest
the inheritance which I gave thee,
Seeing that I will cause thee to serve thine enemies,
in the land which thou knowest not;
For  have ye kindled in mine anger,
<Unto times age-abiding shall it burn>.

[Thus] saith Yahweh—
Accursed is the man—
Who trusteth in a son of earth,
And hath made flesh his arm,—
And whose heart <from Yahweh> turneth aside:
Therefore shall he become as a shrub in the waste plain,
Neither shall he perceive when good cometh,—
But shall inhabit
Parched places in a wilderness,
A land of salt that cannot be dwelt in.

Blessed is the man
Who trusteth in Yahweh,
To whom Yahweh is his ground of confidence;

8 For he shall become like a tree planted by waters.
And <by a stream> shall he send out his roots,
Neither shall he perceive when heat cometh,
But his leaf shall continue green;
Even <in a year of dearth> shall he not be anxious,
Neither shall he cease from bearing fruit.*

9 Deceseful is the heart above all things.
And [dangerously wayward],—
Who can know it?

10 [I—Yahweh] Searching the heart,
Testing the affections;
And giving to every man
According to his way.
According to the fruit of his doings.

11 [As] a partridge gathereth eggs she did not lay>.
[So] is he that maketh riches, but not with justice,—
<In the midst of his days> shall he leave them.
And <in his latter end> prove to have been base.

12 <A throne of glory, exalted from the beginning> hath been the place of our sanctuary.
Thou hope of Israel Yahweh,
[All who forsake thee] shall turn pale,— Yea [all who depart from me] <in the ground> shall be written,
For they have forsaken a fountain of living water. [even Yahweh].

14 Heal thou me, O Yahweh, that I may be healed,
Save me, that I may be saved,—
For <my praise> thou art!

Lo! [they] are saying unto me,—
[Where] is the word of Yahweh?
Pray thee let it come to pass!

But <as for me>
I have neither forced myself away from tending the flock after thee.
Nor yet <for the woful day> have I longed—[thou] knowest,—
[That which came out of my lips] <before thy face> was uttered.

17 Do not thou become to me a terror,—
<My refuge> art thou, in the day of calamity.

Let my persecutors,[a] turn pale; but let not me turn pale.
Let them be terrified, but let not me be terrified.—
Bring thou upon them a day of calamity,
And with a double fracture destroy them.

Thus[1] said Yahweh unto me—
Go and stand in the gate of the sons of the people, through which the kings of Judah enter in, and through which they come out,— also in all the gates of Jerusalem. 20 Then shalt thou say unto them—
Hear ye the word of Yahweh,
Ye kings of Judah and all Judah,
And all ye inhabitants of Jerusalem,—who enter in through these gates:
21 Thus[1] saith Yahweh,
Take heed unto your souls,—
And do not bear any burden on the sabbath day;[b]
Nor bring it in through the gates of Jerusalem,—
Neither shall ye take forth any burden out of your houses, on the sabbath day;[b]
Nor any manner of work[2] shall ye do,—
But ye shall hallow the sabbath day,[b]
As I commanded your fathers.

Howbeit they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear,—but stiffened their neck, that they might not hearken, neither receive correction.

And it shall come to pass,—
If ye will [indeed hearken] unto me,
Declareth Yahweh,
To bring in no burden, through the gates of this city, on the sabbath day,—
But to hallow the sabbath day, by not doing thereon any manner of work;[4]
Then shall enter in through the gates of this city.
Kings and princes,
Sitting on the throne of David,
Riding in chariots and on horses,
They, and their princes;[5]
The men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem;[b]
And this city shall remain unto times age abiding.

And they shall come in—
Out of the cities of Judah, and
Out of the places round about Jeru salem, and
Out of the land of Benjamin, and
Out of the lowlands, and out of the hill country, and
Out of the South,
Bringing in ascending-offering, and peace offering, and meal-offering, and frank incense,—
Even they who bring in a thankoffering into the house of Yahweh.

But if ye will not hearken unto me—
To hallow the sabbath day,
And to bear no burden and bring in through the gates of Jerusalem [on the sabbath day];[6]
Then will I kindle a fire within her gates.
And it shall devour the palaces of Jeru salem,
And shall not be quenched.

§ 14. The Potter's House and its Lessons: attempting to enforce which, Jeremiah's Hearers conspire against him, and he prays against them—though once he had pleaded for them.

The word that came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, saying:
3 Arise and go down, to the house of the potter, and, and there he was! making a piece of work, on the wheels. 4 Then was married the vessel that he was making, while yet it was clay in the hand of the potter,—so he turned and made of it another vessel, as seemed right in the eyes of the potter to make it. 5 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
6 Like this potter can I not deal with you,
O house of Israel!

Demadeth Yahweh:
Lo! as clay in the hand of the potter are ye in my hand, O house of Israel.

The moment I speak, concerning a nation, or concerning a kingdom,—to pull up and to break down, 7 and to destroy; 8 and that nation return from its wickedness, against whom I have spoken[7] then will I repent concerning the calamity' which I had de vised to bring upon it.

And the moment I speak, concerning a nation, or concerning a kingdom,—to build, and to plant; 10 and it commit wickedness in mine eyes, in not hearkening unto my voice[8] then will I repent concerning the good wherewith I had said I would do it good.

Now therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the men of Judah, and concerning the inhabi tants of Jerusalem, saying,
Thus[1] saith Yahweh,—
Lo! I am fashioning against you, calamity, and devising against you, a device,— Return, I pray you, every man from his wicked way,
And amend your ways, and your doings.

[M. "the two stones."] cins. and Syr.) "and
chap. xxxi. 28.
And {since they will say}, {Hopeless!}
For {after our own devices} will we walk,
And {every one} {the stubbornness of his own wicked heart} will we do!⇒
⇒Thus saith Yahweh.
Ask, I pray you, among the nations,—
Who hath heard {such things} as these?
{A very horrible thing} hath {the virgin},
{Israel} done!
Shall the snow of Lebanon fail from the rock of the field?
Or shall waters from afar, deep, overflowing,
{be dried up}?
Yet my people {have forgotten me},
{Unto vanity} have they been burning incense;
And it hath caused them to stumble
In their ways,
The roads of age-past times,
To walk in by-paths—
A way {not cast up}.
To make their land a desolation,
The hisings of age-abiding times,—
{Every one that passeth by her} shall be astonished and wag his head.
{Like an east wind} will I scatter them before the enemy,—
{The back and not the face} will I let them see, in the day of their distress.

Then said they,—
Come ye, and let us devise against Jeremiah,
Devices,
For {the law} shall not perish {from the priest}.
Nor {counsel} from {the wise},
Nor {the word} from {the prophet}:
Come and let us smite him with the tongue,
And let us not give ear to any of his words!
Give thou ear, O Yahweh, unto me,—
And hearken unto the voice of mine accusers.
Shall {every} be recompensed {for good}? For they have digged a pit for my life,—
Remember how I stood before thee,
To speak {in their behalf}, {what was good}!
To turn back thine indignation from them,
Therefore {give thou up their sons} to the famine,
And deliver them into the hands of the sword,
{And let their wives} become {childless and widows},
{And let their men} be slain by death,
{Their young men} be smitten by the sword in battle.
Let there be heard a cry out of their houses,
When thou shalt bring in upon them a troop, {suddenly},—
Because they digged a pit to capture me,
And {snare} did they hide for my feet.

But {though, O Yahweh} knowest all their counsels against me, to put me to death,
Put thou no propitiatory-covering over their iniquity,
And {their sin, from before thee} do not thou blot out,—
But let them be overthrown before thee,
{In the time of thine anger} deal thou effectively with them.

§ 15. Before the Elders of People and Priests, Jeremiah symbolically breaks a Bottle in Topheth: and there, and in the Temple Court, predicts the Breaking of the People, chiefly for sacrificing their Children to Baal.

Thus said Yahweh,⇒
Go and buy a potter’s earthen bottle,—and [take] of the elders of the people, and of the elders of the priests;
Then shalt thou go forth into the valley of Ben-hinnom, which is at the opening of the gate of potsherds; and proclaim there the words which I shall speak unto thee; and shalt say,—
Hear ye the word of Yahweh,
O kings of Judah,
And inhabitants of Jerusalem,—
Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—
God of Israel.
Behold me! bringing in calamity upon this place, which shall cause the ears of every one that heareth it to tingle:
⇒Because they have forsaken me,
And have treated this as a foreign place,
And have burned incense therein to other gods, which neither they, nor their fathers, nor the kings of Judah, have known;
And have filled this place with the blood of innocents;
And have built the high places of Baal for burning up their sons in the fire, as ascending-sacrifices to Baal,—
Which I commanded not,
Nor spake,
Neither came it up on my heart.
Therefore [lo! days coming] Declare Yahweh,
When this place shall be called no longer, The Topheth, or The Valley of Ben-hinnom,—
The Valley of Slaughter;⇒
And I will pour out the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem, in this place,
And I will cause them to fall by the sword, before their enemies, and by the hand of them who seek their life,—
And I will give their dead bodies, for food, to the bird of the heavens, and to the beast of the earth;
8 And I will make this city a desolation, and a hissing,—every one that passeth by it shall be astonished and hisse, over all her wounds;—
9 And I will suffer them to eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters, yes—every one—the flesh of his friend will they eat,—in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith [their enemies, and they who seek their lives], will straiten them.

Then shalt thou break the bottle, before the eyes of the men who are walking with thee; and shalt say unto them—

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts—
[Thus and thus] will I break this people, and this city,
As one beaketh the vessel of a potter, which cannot be made whole any more,—And [in Topheth] shall they bury, for want of place to bury.

[Thus] will I do to this place.
Declareth Yahweh,
And to the inhabitants thereof,—

Even making this city like Topheth!:

Yea [the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah], shall <like the place of Topheth> be places defiled,—even all the houses, upon whose roofs they burned incense, to all the host of the heavens, and poured out drink-offerings to other gods.

Then entered Jeremiah out of Topheth, whither Yahweh had sent him to prophesy,—and stood in the court of the house of Yahweh, and said unto all the people:

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
Behold me! bringing in against this city, and upon all the cities thereof,
The whole calamity which I have pronounced against her,—Because they stiffened their neck, that they might not hear my words.

§ 16. Jeremiah is smitten and put in the Stocks by Pashhur, priest, and overseer of the Temple. Next day, when set free, he boldly denounces Pashhur—naming him a "Terror round-about," and dooming him to be carried Captive to Babylon. Then his Mind recoils especially when he finds himself laughed at and nicknamed by the People: he resolves to be silent, and cannot: finally, in full Oriental style, he curses the Day he was born.

And <when Pashhur son of Immer, the priest, who also was deputy-overser in the house of Yahweh, heard that Jeremiah had prophesied these things—> then Pashhur smote' Jeremiah the prophet,—and put him in the stocks that were in the upper gate of Benjamin, which was in the house of Yahweh. And it came to pass, on the morrow, when Pashhur brought forth Jeremiah, out of the stocks—that Jeremiah said unto him—

<Not Pashhur> hath Yahweh called thy name,
But Ma'gor-missavim ["Terror-round-about"].

For [Thus] saith Yahweh—
Behold me! making thee a [ma'gor, i.e. a] terror to thyself and to all who love thee, and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, [thine own eyes also] beholding.

And <all Judah> will I deliver into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will carry them captive to Babylon, and smite them with the sword.

And I will deliver up—
All the wealth of this city, and—
All her labour and—
All her precious things,—
And <all the treasures of the kings of Judah> will I deliver up into the hands of their enemies, and they will make of them a prey, and take them, and carry them into Babylon.

And [thou, Pashhur, and all who are dwelling in thy house] shall go into captivity.—
Yea <into Babylon> shalt thou enter, And <there> shalt thou die, And <there> shalt thou be buried.

Thou, and all who love thee, to whom thou hast prophesied [falsely].

Thou didst persuade me, O Yahweh, and I was persuaded,
Thou didst lay firm hold on me, and didst prevail,—I am become a mockery [all the day], Every one [is] laughing at me.

For <as often as I speak> I make outcry,
<Violence and wasting> I proclaim,—
Yea the word of Yahweh hath become to me a reproach and derision, [all the day].

Therefore I say—
I will not mention him.
Neither will I speak any more in his name,
But then it becometh in my heart, as a fire that burneth,
Shut up in my bones,—
And I am weary of restraint, and cannot refrain.
10 Because I have heard the whispering of many—
"A terror round about!"
Tell ye [say they], that we may tell of him,
[All the men I am wont to salute] do watch for my halting,— [Peradventure] he will be persuaded, and we shall prevail over him, and take our vengeance upon him.

11 But [Yahweh] is with me, as a mighty one striking terror,
[For this cause] shall my persecutors stumble, and not prevail,—
They have turned very pale,
For they have not prospered,
<Confusion age-abiding> it shall not be forgotten!

12 But, O Yahweh of hosts—
Testing the righteous,
Beholding the affections and the heart,—
Let me see thine avenging upon them,
For <unto thee> have I laid bare my cause.

13 Sing ye to Yahweh! Praise ye Yahweh! For he hath delivered the soul of the needy, out of the hand of evildoers.

14 || Accursed be the day on which I was born,—
The day when [my mother] bare me <let it not be blessed!>
15 || Accursed be the man who carried tidings to my father, saying,
There is born to thee a man-child!
Making him very glad:
16 Yes let that man be—as the cities which Yahweh overthrew and repented not,—And let him hear
An outcry in the morning, and A war-shout at broad noon!
17 Because I was not slain from the womb,—Nor did [my mother] become [my grave], Nor was her womb great for ever!
18 Wherefore was it—That <from the womb> I came forth, to see labour and pain; and That [in shame] should [my days] be consumed!

§ 17. In reply to Enquiries of Yahweh made by Jeremiah for King Zedekiah, special Answers are sent to the King, and to the People, and to the House of David. Further Messages to the Royal House.

21 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, when King Zedekiah sent unto him

Pashhur, son of Malchiah, and Zephaniah, son of Maaseiah, the priest, saying:
3 Enquire for us, I pray thee, of Yahweh, in that Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon, maketh war against us,—[Peradventure] Yahweh will deal with us, according to all his wonders, so that he go up from us.
3 Then said Jeremiah unto them,—
|| Thus shall ye say unto Zedekiah:
4 || Thus saith Yahweh, God of Israel—
Behold me! turning back the weapons of war that are in your hand, wherewith ye are fighting the king of Babylon and the Chaldeans, who are besieging you, outside the wall,—and I will gather them into the midst of this city.
5 And [I myself] will fight against you, with a hand outstretched, and with an arm of strength,—and with anger and with wrath, and with great indignation; and I will smite the inhabitants of this city, [both man and beast],—<of a great pestilence> shall they die.
6 And <after that> Declareth Yahweh—
Will I deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, and his servants, and the people,—even such as are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine,—into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, even into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—and he will smite them with the edge of the sword, he will not have pity on them, nor will he spare, nor will he have compassion.
7 And <unto this people> shalt thou say,
|| Thus saith Yahweh,—
Behold me! setting before you, the way [of life], and the way [of death];!
9 || He that remaineth in this city shall die—by the sword, or by the famine, or by the pestilence,—Whereas he that goeth forth and falleth unto the Chaldeans, who are besieging you,—then shall he live, and || his life shall become to him [a spoil];
10 For I have set my face against this city, for calamity and not for blessing.
Declareth Yahweh,—
|| Into the hand of the king of Babylon shall it be given up, and he will burn it with fire.
11 Now <as to the house of the king of Judah>—
   --hear ye the word of Yahweh:—
   O house of David!
   "Thus" saith Yahweh,
   Administer justice | betimes|,*
   And deliver the robbed out of the hand of the oppressor,
   Least mine indignation | some forth like fire|,
   And burn, and there be none to quench it,
   Because of the wickedness of your*b doings.
12 Behold me! against thee, O thou dweller in the vale, on the level rock,
   Declareth Yahweh,—
   Ye who are saying,
   Who shall come down upon us?
   Yet will I bring punishment upon you,
   According to the fruit of your doings,
   Declareth Yahweh,—
   and will kindle a fire in her forest, and it shall devour all things round about her.
22 1 "Thus" said Yahweh,
   Go thou down to the house of king of Judah,
   and speak thou there this word, 2 and say—
   Hear thou the word of Yahweh, O king of Judah, who sittest upon the throne of David,—"thou, and thy servants, and thy people, who enter in at these gates"
   "Thus" saith Yahweh,—
   Execute ye justice, and righteousness,
   And deliver the robbed, out of the hand of the oppressor,—
   But <the sojourner, the* fatherless, and the widow> do not oppress, neither*d commit violence,
   And <the blood of the innocent> do not ye shed in this place.
4 For <if ye [indeed do] this thing> then shall there enter into the gates of this house—kings, sitting for David upon his throne, riding in chariots and on horses, 7 the, and his servants, and his people:.
5 But <if ye will not hear these words>:
   "By myself" I have I sworn
   Declareth Yahweh—
   That <is ruin> shall |this house| become.
6 For "Thus" saith Yahweh,
   Concerning the house of the king of Judah,—
   <Though thou wast
   Gilead|to me,
   The summit of Lebanon>
   Yet surely I will make thee,
   A wilderness,
   Cities |not habitable|;
7 And I will hallow against thee Destroyers,
   Every man with his weapons,—
   And they shall cut down of the choicest of thy cedars, and cast upon the fire.
8 Then shall many nations pass by this city,— and shall say, every man to his neighbour,
   <For what cause> hath Yahweh done "thus" unto this great city?
9 And they shall say,
   Because they forsook the covenant of Yahweh, their God,—
   And bowed down to other gods, and served them.
10 Do not ye lament for him that is dead,
   Neither bemoan ye |him|,
   But weep ye—weep on*—for him that is going away,
   For he shall not return any more,
   Nor see the land of his birth.
11 For "Thus" saith Yahweh—
   Touching Shallum,* son of Josiah, king of Judah,
   That reigneth instead of Josiah, his father,
   Who hath gone forth out of this place,
   He shall not return thither any more:
12 For* <in the place whither they have taken him captive>
   "There| shall he die,—
   And <this land> shall he see no more.
13 Alas! for him who buildeth
   His house without righteousness,
   And his roof-chambers without justice,—
   <Of his neighbour> taketh service for nought,
   And <recompense for his work> giveth him not.
14 Who saith—
   I will build me a roomy house, with spacious roof-chambers,—
   So he cuttest him open its windows,
   And it is covered with cedar,
   And he painteth it with vermillion.
15 Shalt thou reign, because thou art eager to excel in cedar?—
   <Thy father> did he not eat and drink, and do justice and righteousness,
   And then* it was well with him!
16 [Did he not] plead the cause of the oppressed and the needy,
   And then* it was well?—
   Was not [that] to know |me|?
   Demandeth Yahweh.

18. Therefore— "Thus saith Yahweh,—

<Touching Jehoiakim son of Josiah, King of Judah>

They shall not cry in lament for him

<Alas, my brother! or Alas, sister!>

They shall not cry in lament for him

<Alas, lord! or Alas! his renown!>

19. <With the burial of an ass> shall he be buried,—

Dragged along and cast forth, beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

20. Ascend the Lebanon, and make outcry,

And <in Bashan> put forth thy voice,—

And make outcry from Abarim,*

For all thy lovers <are torn in pieces>.

Thou saidst, I will not hearken!

<This> hath been thy way from thy youth,

That thou hast not hearkened to my voice.

22. <All thy shepherds> the wind shall feed,

And <thy lovers> <into captivity> shall depart,—

Surely <then> shalt thou turn pale, and be confounded, by reason of all thy wickedness.

Declareth Yahweh.

2. <Therefore>—

<Thus> saith Yahweh, God of Israel,

Concerning the shepherds who are tending my people,—

<Ye> have scattered my flock, and have driven them away, and have not visited them,—

Behold me! visiting upon you the wickedness of your doings.

Declareth Yahweh.

3. <I myself> therefore, will gather the remnant of my flock, out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—

And will bring them back unto their own fold,

And they shall be fruitful and multiply;

And I will raise up over them shepherds, who will tend them,—

So shall they not be afraid any more, nor be dismayed, nor be missing;

Declareth Yahweh.

5. Lo! <days are coming>,

Even I, Declareth Yahweh,

when I will raise up to David

A righteous Bud 24

And he shall reign as' king, and prosper,

And shall execute justice and righteousness in the land.

6. <In his days>—

Shall Judah <be saved>,

And <Israel> abide securely,—

And <this> is his name whereby he shall be called,

<Yahweh> our Righteousness.

7. <Therefore> lo! <days are coming>,

Declareth Yahweh,

When it shall not be said any more,

As Yahweh liveth, who brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but—

As Yahweh liveth, who hath brought up and who hath brought in the seed of the house of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—
And they shall remain upon their own soil.

And <to every one who is going on in the stubbornness of his own heart> have they said,
There shall come on you [no calamity];
For who' hath stood in the council of Yahweh, that he should see, and hear his word?

Who hath given ear to his word, and heard it?*

Lo! the tempest of Yahweh!

Indignation hath come forth,*

Even a tempest whirling along:

On the head of the lawless shall it hurl itself down.

The anger of Yahweh will not return,

Until he hath executed, nor

Until he hath established,

The purposes of his heart,—

In the afterpart of the days shall ye understand it perfectly.¹

I sent not the prophets yet [they] ran.

I spake not unto them yet [they] prophesied.

But <if they had stood in my council>

Then might they have announced my words unto my people,

And have turned them from their wicked way and from the wickedness of their doings.

Am I [not God at hand],

Demandeth Yahweh.

And not a God afar off?

Can any hide himself in secret places, that [I] shall not see him?

Demandeth Yahweh.—

The heavens and the earth> do I not fill?

Demandeth Yahweh.

I have heard what the prophets have said,

who prophesy in my name falsely, saying,—

I have dreamed! I have dreamed!

How long shall it be in the heart of the prophets,[To be] prophets of falsehood,—

And prophets of the deceit of their own heart?

Who lay a plot, to cause my people to forget my name, by their dreams which they relate, every man to his neighbour,—

Just as their fathers forgot my name.

[For] Baal.

The prophet with whom is a dream

Let him relate it as 'a dream,

And <he with whom is my word>

Let him speak my word as 'truth,—

What is the chaff 'to the wheat?

Demandeth Yahweh:

§ 19. Two Baskets of Figs: the Good representing the Captives; and the Bad setting forth such as remain in Juden or dwell in Egypt.

1. Yahweh shewed me, and lo! two baskets of figs, which had been set before the temple of Yahweh,—after that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon had carried away captive, Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, and the carpenters and the smiths, out of Jerusalem, and had brought them into Babylon:—2 the one basket was of very good figs, like the first-ripes' figs; and the other basket was of very bad figs, which could not be eaten [for badness].

Then said Yahweh unto me,—

What canst thou see, Jeremiah?

And I said,
Figs:

. the good figs very good; and
. the bad very bad, which cannot be eaten [for badness].

3. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

(Thus) saith Yahweh God of Israel,

. Like these good figs will I regard them of Judah who are carried into captivity, whom I have sent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans, [for good].
. Therefore will I set mine eye upon them, [for good], and will bring them back upon this land,— and will build them up, and not pull them down, and will plant them, and not root them up;

and will give them a heart, to know [me].

That [I] am Yahweh, so shall they become my people,
And [I] will become their God;

for they will return unto me with all their heart.

4. And (like the bad figs, which cannot be eaten [for badness])—

Surely (thus) saith Yahweh—

(Thus) will I deliver up Zedekiah king of Jerusalem, and his princes, and the remnant of Judah, that remain in this land, and them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt;—yes I will deliver them up, as a terror of calamity, to all the kingdoms of the earth,—as a reproach, and as a byword, as a mockery and as a contempt, in every place whither I will drive them;—and I will send among them, sword, famine and pestilence,—until they are consumed from off the soil, which I gave to them, and to their fathers.

§ 20. Jeremiah sums up the Messages he had delivered against Judah and Jerusalem, from the thirteenth Year of Josiah to the fourth of Jehoiakim; declaring that, as these Messages had been unheeded, the threatened Chaldean Invasion must needs come, but the Captivity in Babylon should be limited to Seventy Years. The Prophet passes the Cup of Indignation round to the Nations, beginning at Jerusalem, and significantly ending with Shekach (or Babylon, chap. li. 41).

25 The word, which came upon Jeremiah, concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah,—[the same] was the first year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon; 2 which [word] Jeremiah the prophet spake concerning all the people of Judah, and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem saying:

3 <From the thirteenth year of Josiah son of Amon king of Judah, even until this day, the which is the twenty-third year hath the word of Yahweh come unto me; and I have spoken unto you, [betimes] speaking, yet have ye not hearkened. 4 And Yahweh sent unto you, all his servants the prophets, [betimes] sending, though ye hearkened not, neither inclined ye your ear to hear:

saying, —

Return, I pray you, every one from his wicked way and from the wickedness of your doings,

So shall ye remain on the soil which Yahweh hath given to you and to your fathers,—even from age to age;

But do not go away after other gods, to serve them, and to bow down to them;

So shall ye not provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, and I will not bring calamity upon you;

7 Howbeit ye hearkened not unto me,

Declareth Yahweh,—

that ye might provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, unto your own hurt.

8 [Therefore]

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—

<Because ye have not heard my words>,

9 Behold me! sending and fetching all the families of the North,

Declareth Yahweh,

and Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, my servant,

And I will bring them in against this land, and against its inhabitants, and against all these nations, [round about], —

And I will devote them to destruction, and make them an astonishment and a hissing, and age-abiding desolations.

10 And I will banish from among them—

The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness,

The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride,—

The sound of the millstones, and the light of the lamp:—

11 So shall all this land become, a desolation, an astonishment,

And these nations shall serve the king of Babylon, seventy years.

12 And it shall come to pass—

<When the seventy years are fulfilled>

I will visit upon the king of Babylon and upon that nation,

Declareth Yahweh,

their iniquity, and upon the land of the Chaldeans,—and I will turn it into age-abiding desolations.

13 So will I bring upon that land,

All my words which I have spoken against it,—

Even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied against all the nations.

For many nations, and great kings, have used [even them] as slaves,

So will I recompense to them—

According to their deed, and

According to the work of their own hands.

14 For [thus] said Yahweh, God of Israel unto me,

Take this cup of indignation wine, out of my hand,—and cause all the nations unto whom I am sending thee [to drink it]:

15 Yea they shall drink, and reel to and fro, and act as madmen, because of the sword which I am sending between them.

17 So I took the cup out of the hand of Yahweh,— and caused all the nations, unto whom Yahweh had sent me, [to drink]: 16 [to wit, said he]—

Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and her kings, her princes,—making them a desolation, an astonishment, a hissing, and a contempt, [as at this day];

19 Pharaoh king of Egypt, and his servants, and his princes, and all his people;

And all the Bedawin, and all the kings of the land of Uz,—and all the kings of the land of the Philistines, even Ashkelon, and Gaza, and Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod;

21 Edom and Moab, and the sons of Ammon;

22 And all the kings of Tyre, and all the kings of Zidon,—and the kings* of the Coastland, that is beyond the sea;

Therefore shalt thou say unto them—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—

Drink ye and be drunken, and vomit, and fall, and rise not,—because of the sword which I am sending between you.

And it shall be <when they shall refuse to take the cup at thy hand, to drink> then shalt thou say unto them—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, Ye shall certainly drink; 8

For lo! <with the city on which my Name hath been called> am I making a beginning of sending calamity, And shall ye 9 be held guiltless? 9

Ye shall not be held guiltless: For  am I 10 proclaiming against all the inhabitants of the earth, Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

Thus therefore, shalt prophesy against them all these words,—and shalt say unto them—

Yahweh 11 <from on high> will roar, Yea <from his holy habitation> will utter his voice, He will roar mightily 12 over his home, 13 <With a shout as of them who tread the winepress>, will he answer unto all the inhabitants of the earth.

There hath come in a tumult, as far as the end of the earth, For  hath Yahweh <with the nations>, Himself 14 hath entered into judgment with all flesh,—

<As for the lawless> he hath delivered them to the sword, Declareth Yahweh.

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,

Lo! calamity, going forth from nation to nation,—

And is a great tempest shall be stirred up, out of the remote parts of the earth.

24 Then shall the slain of Yahweh <in that day> be from one end of the earth, even unto the other end of the earth,—

They shall not be lamented, nor gathered together, nor buried, <As dung, on the face of the ground> shall they serve.

Howl, ye shepherds, and make outcry, And roll in the dust, ye illustrious of the flock, Because your days for being slaughtered are fulfilled,—

Therefore will I break you in pieces, and ye shall fall, like a precious vessel;

Then shall place of refuge vanish from the shepherds, And escape, from the illustrious of the flock.

The voice of the outcry of the shepherds!

Yea the howling of the illustrious of the flock!—

Because Yahweh is laying waste the grounds where they fed.

Then shall be silenced the prosperous pastures, Because of the fierceness of the anger of Yahweh.

He hath left, as a lion, his covert, For their land hath become a horror, Because of the fierceness of oppression, 9 and Because of the fierceness of his anger.

§21. Jeremiah, delivering his Warnings in the Temple Court, Priests, Prophets, and People seize him and threaten him with death; whereupon the Princes hear the Case: the Peril of the Prophet is noted, but Ahikam delivers Jeremiah out of his Enemies' Hands.

1 <In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah> came this word from Yahweh, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh,—

Stand thou in the court of the house of Yahweh, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, who are entering in to bow down in the house of Yahweh, all the words which I have commanded thee to speak unto them, —do not thou keep back a word:

[Penadventure] they will hear, and return every man from his wicked way,—and I shall repent as to the calamity which I am devising to execute upon them, because of the wickedness of their doings:

Therefore shalt thou say unto them,

Thus saith Yahweh,—

<If ye will not hearken unto me, To walk in my law> 4 which I have set before you;

2 So prob. In some cod. (including the celebrated Mughah, w. 3 cap. edn.) “And your dispersions” [perh. = “When ye are dispersed”]—O.T.

4 Or: “mine instruction.”
To hearken unto the words of my servants the prophets, whom I am sending unto you, even [times] sending, though ye have not hearkened.

Then I will make this house like Shiloh, And <this city> will I make a contempt to all the nations of the earth.

So the priests and the prophets, and all the people, heard' Jeremiah, speaking these words in the house of Yahweh. And it came to pass when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that Yahweh had commanded [him] to speak unto all the people > that the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, lait hold of him, saying—Thou shalt [surely die]!

| Why hast thou prophesied in the name of Yahweh, saying, <Like Shiloh> shall this house become, And <this city> shall be desolate, without inhabitant? And all the people were gathered together unto Jeremiah, in the house of Yahweh.

<When the princes of Judah heard these things> then came they up out of the house of the king, [unto] the house of Yahweh, and took their seats in the opening of the new gate of Yahweh. Then spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes, and unto all the people, saying,—Worthy of death is this man, because he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard, with your own ears.

Then spake Jeremiah, unto all the princes' and unto all the people, saying,—Yahweh sent me to prophesy against this house, and against this city, all the words that ye have heard.

Now therefore, amend your ways, and your doings, and hearken unto the voice of Yahweh your God,—that Yahweh may repent him, as to the calamity which he hath spoken concerning you.

But <I> behold me! in your hand,—do with me as may be good and right in your eyes;

Only, ye must [know] that <If ye do put me to death> verily <innocent blood> are ye laying upon yourselves, and against this city, and against her inhabitants,—for <of a truth> did Yahweh send me unto you, to speak in your ears, [all these words].

Then said the princes, and all the people, unto the priests, and unto the prophets,—There is nothing in this man, worthy of death, for <in the name of Yahweh our God> hath he spoken unto us.

Then rose up men, from among the elders of the land, and spake unto all the congregation of the people, saying:

Micah the Moerite was prophesying, in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah,—and he spoke unto all the people of Judah saying, Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—Zion shall be plowed; And Jerusalem into heaps of ruins shall be turned, And the mountain of the house [be] like mounds in a jungle.

Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah put him to death? Did he not revere Yahweh, and appease the face of Yahweh? And did not Yahweh repent him, as to the calamity which he had spoken against them? We therefore, are doing a great wickedness against our own lives.

There was, however, a man prophesying in the name of Yahweh, Urijah, son of Shemaiah, of Kerith-jearim,—who prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah. And <when King Jehoiakim, and all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words> then the king sought to put him to death,—but Urijah heard', and feared, and fled, and entered Egypt. Then did King Jehoiakim send men to Egypt,—even Elathan son of Achbor, and certain men with him, into Egypt, and they brought forth Urijah out of Egypt, and took him in unto King Jehoiakim, who smote him with the sword,—and cast out his dead body among the graves of the sons of the people.

Howbeit [the hand of Ahikam, son of Shaphan] turned out to be with Jeremiah, so as not to give him up into the hand of the people, to put him to death.

§ 22. Jeremiah, making Symbolic Bonds and Bars, prophetically charges the Kings of Edom, Moab, Ammon, Tyre and Zidon to submit to Nebuchadnezzar, in spite of False Prophets counselling resistance. A similar Charge to the Priests and People of Jerusalem to disregard their False Prophets: the Temple Vessels shall not soon be brought back; but those still left shall be taken.

<In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim> came this word unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, saying:

Thus said Yahweh unto me, Make thee bonds and bars, and put them upon thine own neck.
3 Then shalt thou send them unto the king of Edom, and unto the king of Moab, and unto the king of the sons of Ammon, and unto the king of Tyre, and unto the king of Zidon,—by the hand of messengers coming into Jerusalem, unto Zedekiah king of Judah. And thou shalt give them charge unto their lords, saying,—

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,

[Thus] shall ye say unto your lords:

4 I made The earth—
The man and the beast that are on the face of the earth—

By my great power,
And by mine outstretched arm,—
And gave it to whomsoever was right in mine own eyes.

5 Now therefore, I have given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, my servant,—

[Moreover also] the wild beast of the field have I given him, to serve him.

Therefore shall all the nations serve him, and his son, and his son’s son, until the time even of his own land itself arrive, when many nations and great kings shall use him as a slave.

And it shall come to pass, that the nation or kingdom which will not serve him, even Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and that will not put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon,—<with sword, and with famine, and with pestilence> will I bring punishment upon that nation,

Declareth Yahweh, until I have consumed them by his hand.

6 Ye therefore, do not ye hearken unto your prophets, nor unto your diviners, nor unto your dreams, nor unto your users of hidden arts, nor unto your mutterers of incantations,—in that they are speaking unto you, saying,

Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon;

<for falsehood> are they' prophesying unto you,—that ye may be far removed from off your own land, and I drive you out, and ye be destroyed.

But the nation that shall bring its neck into the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him> I will let them remain in quietness upon their own soil,

Declareth Yahweh, and they shall till it, and dwell therein.

7 Also unto Zedekiah king of Judah spake I, according to all these words, saying,—

Bring your necks into the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live!

8 Wherefore should ye die, thou, and thy people, by sword, by famine, and by pestilence,—as Yahweh hath spoken, against the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon?

Do not, then, hearken unto the words of the prophets who are speaking unto you, saying—

Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon,—for <falsehood> are they' prophesying unto you. For I have not sent them, Declareth Yahweh, but they' are prophesying in my name, <falsely>, to the end I may drive you out and ye be destroyed, ye, and the prophets who are prophesying unto you).

9 Also unto the priests, and unto all this people spake I, saying,

[Thus] saith Yahweh,

Do not hearken unto the words of your prophets, who are prophesying unto you, saying,

Lo! [the vessels of the house of Yahweh] are to be brought back out of Babylon, now, quickly; for <falsehood> are they' prophesying unto you. Do not hearken unto them, serve the king of Babylon, and live! Wherefore should this city become a desolation?

10 But if: prophets they are, and if the word of Yahweh is with them let them intercede, I pray you, with Yahweh of hosts, that the vessels which are left remaining in the house of Yahweh, and the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem, come not into Babylon. For

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts—

Concerning the pillars, and concerning the sea, and concerning the stands,—and concerning the residue of the vessels that remain in this city, which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took not, when he carried away captive Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, from Jerusalem to Babylon,—with all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem:

11 Yea—

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel—

Concerning the vessels that are left, [in] the house of Yahweh, and the house of the king of Judah, and Jerusalem>

12 Into Babylon shall they be taken.
And there shall they remain,
Until the day that I visit them.
Declareth Yahweh,

When I will bring them up, and restore them unto this place.
§ 23. The Prophet Hananiah, daring to foretell in the Divine Name, the Breaking of Nebuchadnezzar’s Yoke within two Years, Jeremiah is charged to confront and contradict him, and to foretell Hananiah’s Death that Year—which comes to pass.

And it came to past in that year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year, in the fifth month: that Hananiah, a son of Azar, the prophet who was of Gibeah, spake unto me, in the house of Yahweh, before the eyes of the priests and all the people, saying:

||Thus|| speaketh Yahweh of host;

God of Israel, saying,—

I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon:

<within the space of two years> I am bringing back into this place, all the vessels of the house of Yahweh,—which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon hath taken away from this place, and carried into Babylon: Jeconiah also, son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, with all the captives of Judah who have entered Babylon, am I bringing back into this place.

Declareth Yahweh,—for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

Then said Jeremiah the prophet, unto Hananiah the prophet, in the presence of all the people, who were standing in the house of Yahweh: then said Jeremiah the prophet,—Amen! So may Yahweh do! Yahweh establish’ thy words which thou hast prophesied, by bringing back the vessels of the house of Yahweh and all them of the captivity, from Babylon, unto this place.

|Nevertheless| hear thou, I pray thee, this word, which I am speaking in thine ears,—and in the ears of all the people:

||The prophets who were before me and before thee, from age-past times|| when they prophesied against many lands, and concerning great kingdoms, of war, and of calamity, and of pestilence, || the prophet who prophesied of peace|| when the word of the prophet was fulfilled, then was known’ the prophet, whom Yahweh had sent [in truth].

Then Hananiah the prophet took the yoke’ from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, and brake it. And Hananiah spake before the eyes of all the people, saying,

||Thus|| saith Yahweh,—

<In like manner> will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, within the space of two years, from off the neck of all the nations.

And Jeremiah the prophet [went his way].

Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah:

<after that Hananiah the prophet had broken the yoke from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet> saying:

||Go and speak unto Hananiah, saying—||Thus|| saith Yahweh;

<Yokes of wood> thou hast broken,—But thou shalt make, in their stead, yokes of iron!

For||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts;

God of Israel,—

<A yoke of iron> have I put upon the neck of all these nations, to serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and they shall serve him!

|Moreover also| <the wild beast of the field> have I given to him.

Then said Jeremiah the prophet unto Hananiah the prophet,—

Hear, I pray thee, Hananiah: Yahweh [hath not sent thee], [Thou] therefore, hast caused this people to trust in falsehood!

|Therefore| ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,

Behold me! driving thee away from off the face of the ground,—

|This year| art thou’ to die,

Because [revolt] hast thou spoken against Yahweh.

So Hananiah the prophet [died] the same year, in the seventh’ month.

§ 24. Jeremiah’s Letter to the Captives in Babylon, charging them to settle down and seek the Welfare of the City where they sojourn, assuring them of a Return after Seventy Years, and warning them against False Prophets—namly Ahab, Zedekiah, and Shemaiah.

1 Now ||these|| are the words of the letter in which Jeremiah the prophet sent’ from Jerusalem,—unto the residue of the elders of the captivity, and unto the priests, and unto the prophets, and unto all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon; after that Jeconiah the king and the queen-mother and the eunuchs, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem and the craftsmen and the smiths, [had gone forth] from Jerusalem;—by the hand of Elasah son of Shaphan and Gemariah son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent’ unto Babylon, to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, saying:

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts;

God of Israel,

Unto all the captivity whom I have suffered to be carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon:

* Heb.: y'maryah, here only; 4, y'maryah.
Build ye houses, and dwell in them;—
And plant ye gardens, and eat the fruit thereof;
Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters,
And take wives for your sons; and give ye to husbands,
That they may bear sons and daughters,—
And so become ye many there, and do not become few;
And seek the welfare of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captive, and pray for her unto Yahweh,—
For <in her welfare> shall ye have welfare.

For thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
Let not your prophets that are in your midst,
or your diviners, beguile you,—
Neither hearken ye unto your dreams, which ye are dreaming;—
For <falsely> are they prophesying unto you, in my name,—
I have not sent them, Declareth Yahweh.

For thus saith Yahweh,
That <as soon as> there are fulfilled to Babylon seventy years, I will visit you,— and establish for you, my good word, by causing you to return unto this place.

For <if I> know the plans which I am planning for you, Declareth Yahweh,
Plans of welfare, and not of calamity,
To give you a future and a hope."

So shall ye call upon me,—
And go and pray unto me,—
And I will hearken unto you;
So shall ye seek me, and find,
For <ye> will enquire after me, with all your heart;
And I will be found of you,
Declareth Yahweh,
And will turn back your captivity,—
And will gather you out of all the nations, and out of all the places, whither I have driven you, Declareth Yahweh,
And will bring you back into the place
whence I had caused you to be carried away captive:
Because ye have said,—
Yahweh hath raised us up prophets in Babylon.

For thus saith Yahweh,
Against the king who is sitting on the throne of David,
And Against all the people who are remaining in this city,—your brethren who have not gone forth with you into captivity:
Behold me! sending upon them, sword,
famine, and pestilence,—
So will I make them like the horrid figs, that cannot be eaten for badness;
Therefore will I pursue them, with sword,
with famine, and with pestilence,—
And will make them a terror to all the kingdoms of the earth,
A curse and an astonishment and a hissing and a reproach, among all the nations whither I have driven them:
Because they hearkened not unto my words,
Declareth Yahweh,—
which I sent unto them, by my servants
the prophets, at times sending them, yet hearkened they not.

Declareth Yahweh.

Ye therefore, hear ye the word of Yahweh, all ye of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon:

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel.
Concerning Ahab son of Kolaiah, and concerning Zedekiah son of Maaseiah, who are prophesying to you in my name [a falsehood],
Behold me! delivering them into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon, and he will smite them before your eyes:
So shall there be taken up from them—a curse, by all of the captivity of Judah who are in Babylon, saying,— Yahweh make thee like Zedekiah and like Ahab,
Whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire!
Because they have committed vileness in Israel,
And have committed adultery with the wives of their neighbours,
And have spoken, as a word in my name, [a falsehood] [which I commanded them not],—
And I am one who knoweth—and a witness,
Declareth Yahweh.
Also unto Shemaiah the Nehelamite, shalt thou speak, saying:
"Thou shalt speak the word of Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel, saying,—
Because thou hast sent, in thine own name, [letters], unto all the people who are in Jerusalem, and unto Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest, and unto all the priests,
saying:
Yahweh hath made thee priest, instead of Jehoiada the priest, that ye should be deputies in the house of Yahweh, to any man who is raving and prophesying, so shalt thou put him into the stocks and into the pillory:
Now therefore, why hast thou not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth, who is Concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite,—

< Because Shemaiah [hath prophesied to you] when I had not sent him, Because <revolt> hath he spoken against Yahweh.

§ 25. A Scroll of Consolation. With brief Allusions to Israel's Sin and Punishment are given glowing Promises of her Deliverance, Healing, Return, and Permanent Rest, the Appearance of her Illustrious Ruler, the Inclusion of Samaria and Ephraim, the Consoling of Weeping Rachel, and finally a Refrain of Coming Days when there shall be a re-posing of both Israel and Judah with Men; and a making, with both, a New Covenant, which, even in its outward Provisions, is confirmed by reference to the Stability of the Ordinances of Heaven.

30 1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:—
2 <Thus] speaketh Yahweh, God of Israel, saying,— Write thee all the words which I have spoken unto thee, in a scroll;
3 For lo! [days are coming],
Declareth Yahweh,
when I will turn the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, —
Saith Yahweh,—
and will bring them back into the land which I gave to their fathers, that they might possess it.
4 Now <these> are the words which Yahweh hath spoken against Israel and against Judah:
5 Yes [thus] saith Yahweh,
<A voice of trembling> have we heard,
Dread, and not welfare !
1 At that time Declareth Yahweh, I will become a God, to all the families of Israel;
And they shall become my people.

2 Thus saith Yahweh,—
There hath found favour in the desert, a people escaped from the sword,—
I must go to cause him, even Israel, to rest.

3 From afar | Yahweh hath appeared unto me.
Yea <with an age-abiding love> have I loved thee,
For this cause > have I prolonged to thee lovingkindness.

4 Again > will I build thee, and thou shalt be built, thou virgin, Israel,—
Again shalt thou deck thyself with thy timbrels,
And go forth in the dance of them that make merry:

5 Again shalt thou plant vineyards in the mountains of Samaria,—
The planters have planted, and have laid open [the vineyards].
For it is a day the watchmen have proclaimed throughout the hill country of Ephraim,— Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion, unto Yahweh our God.

6 For saith Yahweh—
Shout ye for Jacob, with gladness,
Make shrill thy voice, as the head of the nations,—
Publish ye, praise ye, and say,
Save thou, O Yahweh, thy people, the remnant of Israel.

7 Behold me! bringing them in out of the land of the North,
And I will gather them out of the remote parts of the earth,
<Among them> the blind and the lame,
The woman with child and she that giveth birth together,—
A great convocation shall return hither:

8 With weeping shall they come in.
And with supplications will I lead them,
I will bring them unto rivers of waters,
By a smooth way, wherein they shall not stumble,—

9 For I have become to Israel my father,
And to Ephraim my firstborn is he!

10 Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O ye nations, And declare ye in the Coastlands, afar off,—
And say—
He that scattereth Israel will gather him, And watch over him, as a shepherd his flock;
For Yahweh hath ransomed Jacob,—
And redeemed him from the hand of one stronger than he.

14 Therefore || all who devour thee shall be devoured,
And all thine adversaries—all of them || into captivity shall depart,—
So shall they who plundered thee be plundered,
And <all who preyed upon thee> will I deliver up as a prey.

15 For I will put a bandage upon thee,
And <from thy wounds> will I heal thee.
Declareth Yahweh,—<Because an outcast> they called thee,
Tis Zion! who hath none to ask for her welfare >

19 || Thus saith Yahweh—
Behold me! bringing back the captivity of the tents of Jacob,
And <on his habitations> will I have compassion,—
So shall the city be built, upon her own mound;
And the citadel shall remain:

20 So shall there proceed from them Thanksgiving, and
The sound of them who make merry,—
And I will multiply them, and they shall not become few,
And will make them honourable, and they shall not be despised:

21 And his sons shall come to be as aforetime,
And his assembly <before me> shall continue,—
And I will bring punishment on all his oppressors;
And his illustrious one shall spring from himself,
And his ruler <from his own midst> shall proceed,
And I will bring him near, and he shall approach unto me,—
For who is there that hath pledged his own heart to approach unto me?

22 So shall ye become my people;
And || I will become your God.

24 Lo! the tempest of Yahweh!
Indignation hath come forth,
A tempest rolling itself upward—
Upon the head of the lawless ones shall it hurl itself down!

25 The fierceness of the anger of Yahweh will not turn back,
Until he hath executed, nor
Until he hath established
The purposes of his heart,—
In the afterpart of the days shall ye understand it.

Then shall they come in, and shall shout in triumph on the height of Zion, and shall stream* unto the goodness of Yahweh. To the wheat, and to the new wine, and to the oil, and to the young of the flocks and of the herds,— So shall their soul become like a garden well watered, and they shall not again languish any more. [Then] shall [the virgin] rejoice in the dance, and young men and elders [rejoice] together,— And I will turn their mourning into gladness, and will comfort them, and will make them rejoice from their sorrow; Then will I satiate the soul of the priests, [with fatness], and my people!! <with my goodness> shall be satisfied. Declareth Yahweh.

||Then] saith Yahweh— A voice] <in Ramah> is heard, Wailing, bitter weeping, Rachel, weeping for her children,— She refused to be comforted for her children, for they are not!

||Thus] saith Yahweh— Restrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears,— For there is a reward for thy labour. Declareth Yahweh, so they shall return from the land of the enemy:

Yea there is hope for thy future.b Declareth Yahweh,— And thy sons shall return to their own boundary.

I have [heard] Ephraim, bemoaning himself, Thou hast chastised me, and I have been chastised, like a bullock [not broken in]. Suffer me to return, that I may return, For [thou] art Yahweh my God. Surely <after my return> I was filled with regret, and <after I came to know myself> I smote upon the thigh,— I turned pale, and was even confounded, For I had borne the reproach of my youthful days.

Was Ephraim [a very precious son to me]? Was he a most delightful child? For <as often as I have spoken against him> I have [remembered] him again! <For this cause> have my affections been deeply moved for him, I must have [compassion] upon him, Declareth Yahweh.

|30| But ||every one] <for his own iniquity> shall die,— <Any human being who eateth the sour grapes> ||his own teeth] shall be blunted.*

Not like the covenant which I solemnised with their fathers, In the day when I grasped their hand, to bring them forth' out of the land of Egypt,— In that they brake my covenant, Though I had become a husband unto them. Then shall they no longer teach Every man his neighbour, and Every man his brother, saying, Know ye Yahweh,— For they all shall know me, From the least of them, Even unto the greatest of them, For I will forgive their iniquity, And their sin will I remember no more.

Thus saith Yahweh— Who hath given the sun for a light by day, The ordinances of the moon and the stars, for a light by night,— Who excite the sea, and the waves thereof roared— Yahweh of hosts is his name:— If these ordinances depart from before me, The seed of Israel also may cease from being a nation before me, all the days. Thus saith Yahweh— If the heavens above can be measured, or the foundations of the earth be searched out, I also will reject all the seed of Israel, for all that they have done. Lo! days are coming, when Jerusalem shall be built for Yahweh, from the tower of Hananel, As far as the gate of the corner; Then shall go forth again the measuring-line straight forward, over the hill Gareb, and it shall go round to Gath.

And all the vale of the dead bodies, and of the ashes, and all the fields as far as the Kidron torrent-bed, as far as the horse-gate corner on the east, Shall be holy unto Yahweh,— It shall not be rooted up, nor thrown down, any more, unto times age-abiding.

§ 26. When requested by King Zedekiah to say why he had been prophesying against Jerusalem and the King, Jeremiah narrates how he had, under Divine Guidance, redeemed his Family's Property at Anathoth: this enables him to return to his Royal Questioner a circumstantial though indirect Reply.

The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah,—the same was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar; and the forces of the king of Babylon were besieging Jerusalem,—and Jeremiah the prophet had been shut up in the guard-court, which was in the house of the king of Judah; whom Zedekiah king of Judah had shut up, saying,—

Why art thou prophesying, saying,—

Thus saith Yahweh, Behold me! giving up this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it; and Zedekiah king of Judah shall not be delivered out of the hand of the Chaldeans,—for he shall be wholly given up into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak—the mouth of the one to the mouth of the other, and the eyes of the one into the eyes of the other; shall look; and into Babylon shall he lead Zedekiah, and there shall he be remain, until I visit him, Declareth Yahweh,—though ye fight with the Chaldeans ye shall not prosper.

And Jeremiah said,— The word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Lo! Hanameel son of Shallum thine uncle hath come unto thee, saying,— Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth, for thine is the right of redemption, to buy it.

So Hanameel son of mine uncle came unto me, according to the word of Yahweh, into the guard-court, and said unto me, Buy. I pray thee, my field that is in Anathoth, which is in the land of Benjamin, for thine is the right of inheritance, and thine is the redemption, buy it for thyself.

Aram. and Sep. both written and read: "dry places": but reads: "places": Cp. 2 K. xxiii. 4.
So I knew, that <the word of Yahweh> it was. And I bought the field, from Hanameel son of mine uncle, that was in Anathoth,—and weighed him the silver, <seventeen shekels> was the silver; and I wrote in the scroll, and sealed it, and took in attestation [witnesses],—and weighed the silver in the balances.

Then took I the scroll of purchase, both that which was sealed—the title and the conditions—and that which was open; and gave the scroll of purchase unto Baruch son of Neriah* son of Mahaseiah, in the sight of Hanameel mine uncle[’s son], and in the sight of the witnesses, who subscribed the scroll of purchase,—in the sight of all the Jews, who were sitting in the guard-court. Then charged I Baruch, in their sight, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel:

Take thou these scrolls, this scroll of purchase, even that which is sealed, and this scroll that is open, and put them in an earthen vessel,—that they may remain many days.

For

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel:

Again shall houses and fields and vineyards, be bought, in this land.

Then prayed I unto Yahweh, after I had delivered the scroll of purchase unto Baruch son of Neriah, saying:—

Alas! My Lord, Yahweh! Lo! thou thyself didst make the heavens, and the earth, by thy great might, and by thine outstretched arm.—

There is nothing too wonderful for thee.

Executing lovingkindness unto thousands,

But recompensing the iniquity of fathers,

Into the bosom of their children <after them>,

Thou God, the great, the mighty,

Yahweh of hosts! is his name:

Great in counsel, and mighty in deed,—

Whose eyes are open on all the ways of the sons of men, to give unto every one According to his ways, and According to the fruit of his doings:

Who didst set signs and wonders, in the land of Egypt, unto this day; and in Israel, and among mankind,—

And didst make for thyself a name; <as at this day>;

And didst bring forth thy people Israel, out of the land of Egypt,

With signs and with wonders, and With a strong hand, and

With an outstretched arm, and With great terror;

And didst give unto them this land, which thou hadst sworn to their fathers to give unto them,—a land flowing with milk and honey;

And they came in and took possession of it. But hearkened not unto thy voice.

Nor <in thy law> did they walk,

<Nought of what thou hadst commanded them to do> did they do,—

And so thou hast caused to befall them, all this calamity.

Lo! the earthworks! they have entered the city, to capture it, and the city hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans, who are fighting against it, because of the sword and the famine and the pestilence,—

And so what thou didst speak hath come to pass,

And there thou art, looking on!

Yet <if thou sayest> unto me, O My Lord, Yahweh,

Buy thee the field for silver,

And take in attestation [witnesses],—

Whereas the city hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans!

Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, saying:—

Lo! I am Yahweh, God of all flesh,—

For me is any thing? too wonderful!

Therefore

Thus saith Yahweh,—

Behold me! giving this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall capture it;

And the Chaldeans, who are fighting against this city,

Shall enter, and Shall set this city on fire and Shall consume it,—

With the houses on whose roofs they burned incense to Baal, and poured out drink-offerings to other gods, that they might provoke me to anger;

For the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah have been nothing but doers of wickedness in my sight, from the days of their youth,—

For the sons of Israel have been doing
And I will rejoice over them, to do them good,—
And will plant them in this land, [in truth], [with all my heart, and with all my soul].

Thus saith Yahweh, <Like as I have brought upon this people all this great calamity>
[So I am I] bringing upon them all the good that I am speaking concerning them.
Therefore shall fields be bought in this land,—whereof ye are saying,
It is [a desolation].
Without man or beast,
It hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans:
<Fields—for silver> shall men buy,
And write in rolls,
And seal them,
And take in attestation [witnesses],
In the land of Benjamin, and
In the places round about Jerusalem, and
In the cities of Judah, and
In the cities of the hill country, and
In the cities of the lowland, and
In the cities of the South,—
For I will cause them of their captivity to return.

§ 27. More Consolation through the Imprisoned Prophet: Promises (with striking Change of Refrain) directed to both Israel and Judah, concerning David's Righteous Offering, and concerning the Fulfilment of both the Davidic and Levitical Covenants—confirmed by the Covenant of Day and Night.

And the word of Yahweh came unto 38 Jeremiah, the second time, when he was yet imprisoned in the guard-court, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh, who fashioneth it, to establish it,
Yahweh is his name:
Call unto me, that I may answer thee,—and tell thee things great and inaccessible, which thou hast not known.
For Thus saith Yahweh,
God of Israel.
Concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the kings of Judah,—which are thrown down against the earthworks and against the sword:
In entering to fight with the Chaldeans it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men, whom I have smitten in mine anger and in mine indignation,—and because of whom I have hidden my face from this city,—by reason of all their wickedness].

6 Behold me! laying upon her a bandage of healing, so will I heal them,—And will reveal to them abundance of prosperity and truth;
7 And I will bring back
Them of the captivity of Judah, and
Them of the captivity of Israel,—
And I will build them, [as at the first];
And I will purify them, from all their iniquity wherewith they have sinned against me,—And I will grant pardon for all their iniquities, Wherewith they have sinned against me, and Wherewith they have transgressed against me;
8 So shall she become to me,—
A name of joy,
A praise, and
An adorning,
To all the nations of the earth,—Who will hear all the good which I’m doing them,
And will dread and be deeply moved, over all the good’ and over all the prosperity’ which I’m causing her.
||Thus|| saith Yahweh—
|Again| shall be heard in this place, <as to which ye’ are saying,
||Deserted|| it is, without man or beast,
In the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,
Which are desolate without man or inhabitant or beast =>

For age-abiding’ is his lovingkindness. [The voice] of them who are bringing a thank-offering into the house of Yahweh,—For I will bring back the captives’ of the land, [as at the first],
Saith Yahweh.

||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,
||Again| shall there be in this place—
Which is deserted, without man or even beast—
And all the cities thereof,—
The home of shepherds, causing [flocks] to lie down.
13 In the cities of the hill country, In the cities of the lowland, and In the cities of the South, and In the land of Benjamin, and In the places round about Jerusalem, and In the cities of Judah>
|Again| shall the flock pass over the hands of the numberer,
Saith Yahweh.

14 Lo! |days are coming|,
Declareth Yahweh,—
when I will establish my good word, which I have spoken—As to the house of Israel,
And concerning the house of Judah:
15 In those days, and at that time| will I cause to bud unto David,
A Bud’ of righteousness,—And he shall execute’ justice and righteousness, in the land:
16 In those days>
Judah shall be saved’, and Jerusalem| abide securely,—And this is that which shall be proclaimed to her—
Yahweh our righteousness!
17 For Thus saith Yahweh,—There shall not be wanting to David,—A man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel;
18 Nor <to the priests the Levites> shall there be wanting—A man, [before me],
To offer an ascending-sacrifice, or
To make a perfume with a gift, or
To offer a [peace] offering, all the days| !
19 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, saying:
20 Thus saith Yahweh,
If ye can break,
My covenant of the day, and
My covenant of the night,
That there be not day and night in their season>
21 My covenant also may be broken,
With David my servant, That he shall not have a son, to reign upon his throne,—
And with the Levites the priests, mine attendants:
22 As the host of the heavens cannot be recorded, Nor the sand of the sea, be measured>
Will I multiply, The seed of David my servant, And the Levites who attend upon me.
23 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, saying:

The two families which Yahweh did choose— he hath even cast them off!

|I did not appoint|

|For I will bring back them of their captivity, and will have compassion upon them.|

§ 28. Two further Messages to King Zedekiah—the Latter based upon the Breach of Covenant by Princes and People as to letting their Bond-servants go free. The Solemnity of Covenanting portrayed.

1 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, —when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his force and all the kingdoms of the earth the dominion of his hand, and all the peoples, were fighting against Jerusalem and against all her cities, saying:

|Thus| see: Yahweh,
|God of Israel,|
|Go and speak unto Zedekiah, king of Judah,—and say unto him—|
|Thus| see: Yahweh,|
|Behold me: giving this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will burn it with fire;|
|And thou shalt not escape out of his hand,|
|For thou shalt be taken;|
|And into his hand: shalt thou be delivered,—|
|And thine own eyes: into the eyes of the king of Babylon shall look, And his mouth: with thy mouth shall speak, And Babylon: shalt thou enter.|

4 Nevertheless hear the word of Yahweh, O Zedekiah, king of Judah,—
|Thus| see: Yahweh,|
|Concerning thee,|
|Thou shalt not die by the sword;|
|In peace: shalt thou die,|
|And with the burnings made for thy fathers, the former kings who were before thee| shall they make a burning unto thee, And with an Alas lord! shall they lament thee,—Because of the word I have spoken, Declareth Yahweh.

6 Then spake Jeremiah the prophet, unto Zedekiah king of Judah, all these words, in Jerusalem; when the force of the king of Babylon was fighting against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left,—against Lachish and against Azekah, for they remained among the cities of Judah, as fortified cities.

8 The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, —after that King Zedekiah had solemnised a covenant with all the people who were in Jerusalem, proclaiming unto them liberty: that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid, being a Hebrew or a Hebrewess, go free, —so that no man should use them as slaves, to wit a Jew his brother; so they hearkened even all the princes and all the people who had entered into the covenant, that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid go free, so as not to use them as slaves any longer, —yes they hearkened and let them go, howbeit they turned, after that, and brought back the servants and the handmaids whom they had let go free, and brought them into subjection as servants and as handmaids.

12 So then the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying: —
|Thus| see: Yahweh,|
|God of Israel,—|
|I myself solemnised a covenant with your fathers, in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slaves, saying:|
|At the end of seven years shall ye let go every man his brother, being a Hebrew, who shall sell himself unto thee, and serve thee six years, then shalt thou let him go free from thee. Howbeit your fathers hearkened not unto me, neither inclined their ear.|
|And though ye just now turned, and did that which was right in mine eyes, by proclaiming liberty, every man to his neighbour,—and solemnised a covenant before me, in the house on which my Name hath been called> yet have ye turned and profaned my Name, and brought back every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom ye had let go free, at their own desire,—and have brought them into subjection, to become your servants and handmaids. Therefore—|

|Thus| see: Yahweh,|
|Ye have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty, every man to his brother and every man to his neighbour: Behold me! proclaiming to you! liberty: Declareth Yahweh, unto the sword, unto the pestilence, and unto the famine, so will I make you a terror to all the kingdoms of the earth; and will give the men who are transgressing my covenant—\(<\text{that they have not confirmed the words of the covenant, which they solemnised before me, when they cut the calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof;}

even the princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land,—who passed between the parts of the calf—\(<\text{yes I will give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life, and their dead bodies shall become food for the birds of the heavens, and for the beasts of the earth.}

§ 29. The Rechabites. Their Persistent Obedience to their father Jonadab used for reproving Judah and Jerusalem, and as a ground of Promise to themselves.

\(<\text{The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, saying: Go unto the house of the Rechabites, and speak with them, and bring them into the house of Yahweh, into one of the chambers, and give them wine to drink. So I took Jaazaniah, son of Jeremiah, son of Habazzineel, and his brethren, and all his sons, and all the house of the Rechabites, and brought them into the house of Yahweh, into the chamber of the HANAN son of Igdaiah, a man of God, which was beside the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah, son of Shallum, keeper of the porch; and I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites, bowls full of wine, and cups, and said unto them. Drink ye wine. Then said they, We will not drink wine—for Jonadab son of Rechab, our father, laid command upon us, saying, Ye shall not drink wine. If ye, nor your sons, unto times age-abiding; nor shall ye build, nor shall ye sow, nor shall ye plant, neither shall ye have them, but shall ye dwell, all your days, that ye may live many days, on the face of the soil where ye are sojourning. So we have hearkened unto the voice of Jonadab son of Rechab, our father, in all that he commanded us, not to drink wine all our days, nor to build houses for us to dwell in, and so shall we dwell in tents, and have hearkened and done, according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us. And so it came to pass, when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said, Let us even enter Jerusalem, because of the force of the Chaldeans and because of the force of the Syrians. So have we dwelt in Jerusalem. Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, saying: Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Go and say to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Will ye not receive correction, by hearkening unto my words? Demandseth Yahweh: Confirmed are the words of Jonadab son of Rechab—which he commanded his sons, that they should not drink wine, and they have not drunk, until this day, for they have hearkened unto the command of their father. But I have spoken unto you, betimes speaking, and ye have not hearkened unto me. And I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, betimes sending, saying, Return, I pray you—every man from his wicked way, and amend your doings. And do not go after other gods to serve them. So shall ye remain on the soil, which I gave to you, and to your fathers, but ye have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened unto me. Because the sons of Jonadab son of Rechab have confirmed the commandment of their father, which he commanded them, whereas this people have not hearkened unto me! Therefore! Thus saith Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! bringing in against Judah, and} against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the calamity, which I have spoken concerning them,— Because I spake unto them, and they did not hearken.

And I called to them, and they did not answer.

But <to the house of the Rechabites> said Jeremiah:

<Thus> saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
<Because ye have hearkened unto the commandment of Jonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and done according to all that he commanded you>

Therefore
<Thus> saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,—
Jonadab son of Rechab shall not want one to stand before me, <all the days>!

§ 30. By Divine Command, Jeremiah, through Baruch, writes in a Scroll all the Words he has hitherto spoken concerning Israel, Judah, and the Nations; after which Baruch reads the Scroll first to all the People, then to the Princes; next, Jehudi begins to read it to King Jehoiakim, who, having heard a Portion, angrily cuts up the Scroll and consumes it in the Fire; for which he is denounced by Yahweh, and the Scroll is rewritten—with Additions.

And it came to pass, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah, from Jerusalem, saying:

Take thee a scroll, and write therein, all the words which I have spoken unto thee, concerning Israel, and concerning Judah, and concerning all the nations,—from the day I began to speak unto thee, from the days of Josiah, even until this day:

<Peradventure> the house of Judah will hearken unto all the calamity, which I am devising to execute against them,—to the end they may return, every man from his wicked way, whereupon I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin.

So Jeremiah called Baruch, son of Neriah,—and Baruch wrote, from the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of Yahweh which he had spoken unto him, upon a scroll. Then did Jeremiah command Baruch, saying,— <If> I am hindered, I cannot enter the house of Yahweh;

Thou shalt therefore shalt enter, and read in the roll which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of Yahweh, in the ears of the people, in the house of Yahweh, on the day of a fast,—moreover also <in the ears of all Judah who are coming out of their cities> shalt thou read them:

<Peradventure> their supplication will fall prostrate, before Yahweh, and they return every man from his wicked way,—
For <great> are the anger and the indignation, which Yahweh hath spoken against this people.

So then Baruch son of Neriah did according to all which Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of Yahweh, in the house of Yahweh. And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, that all the people of Jerusalem, and all the people who were coming in out of the cities of Judah, into Jerusalem, had proclaimed a fast before Yahweh; Baruch, therefore, read in the book, the words of Jeremiah, in the house of Yahweh,—in the chamber of Gemariah son of Shaphan—the scribe, in the upper court, at the opening of the new gate of the house of Shaphan, in the ears of all the people.

<When Micaiah, son of Gemariah son of Shaphan, heard all the words of Yahweh, out of the book> then went he, down unto the house of the king up to the chamber of the scribe, and lo! <there> all the princes sitting,—Eliahma the scribe, and Deliah son of Shemaiah, and Elathan son of Achbor, and Gemariah son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the princes.

So Micaiah told them all the words which he heard,—when Baruch read in the book, in the ears of the people. All the princes, therefore, sent unto Baruch, Jehudi, son of Nathaniah son of Shlemiah son of Cushi, saying,

<The roll, wherein thou didst read in the ears of the people> take it in thy hand, and come.

So Baruch son of Neriah took the roll in his hand, and came in unto them. Then said they unto him,

Sit down, we pray thee, and read it in our ears.

So Baruch read it in their ears.

And it came to pass <when they heard all the words> that they turned with fear one to another,—and said unto Baruch,

We must surely tell the king, all these words!

Then <unto Baruch> put they questions, saying,

Tell us, we pray thee, <How> didst thou write all these words at his mouth?

<With his own mouth> used he to proclaim unto me all these words,—and I kept on writing in the book, with ink!/*

Then said the princes unto Baruch,
Go hide these [thou and Jeremiah], and let no man know where ye are!!
Then went they in unto the king, into the court, but <the roll> had they put in charge, in the chamber of Elishama the scribe,—so they declared, in the ears of the king all the words. [The king], therefore, sent [Jehudi], to fetch the roll, and he fetched it, out of the chamber of Elishama the scribe,—and Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes, who were standing near the king.
Now ||the king|| was sitting in the winter house, in the ninth month,—[with the fire-stove before him burning]. So then it came to pass <when Jehudi had read three or four columns, that he cut it up into fragments with a scribe's knife, and cast them into the fire that was in the stove,—until all the roll was consumed on the fire that was on the stove. Yet were they not in dread, neither rent they their garments,—||the king, nor any of his servants that were hearing all these words]]. [Nevertheless] [Elizur and Deliah and Gemariah] interceded with the king, not to burn the roll,—but he hearkened not unto them.
Then did the king command Jerahmeel son of the king, and Seraiah b son of Azriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel, to fetch Baruch the scribe, and Jeremiah the prophet,—but Yahweh had hid them.
Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah,—after the king had burned the roll, and the words which Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremiah, saying:
[Again] take thee another roll, and write thereon all the former words which were on the first roll, which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned.
But <unto Jehoiakim king of Judah> shalt thou say,
Thus saith Yahweh,—
Thou hast burned this roll, saying,
Why hast thou written thereon,—saying,
The king of Babylon shall certainly come and lay waste this land, and cause to cease therefrom, man and beast?
[Therefore] Thus saith Yahweh
Concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah,—
He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David,—
And his dead body shall be cast out—to the heat by day, and to the frost by night;
And I will visit upon him and upon his seed and upon his servants, the punishment of their iniquity,—and will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and against the men of Judah, all the calamity, which I have spoken against them, but they have not hearkened.
So [Jeremiah] took another roll and gave it unto Baruch son of Neriah, the scribe, who wrote thereon, from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book, which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire,—and further were added thereunto, many words [like unto them].
§ 31. King Zedekiah, at the Beginning of his Reign, asks for Jeremiah's Prayers; and, in answer, is warned not to count on Nebuchadrezzar's Permanent Departure from Jerusalem. During a temporary Withdrawal of the Chaldeans, Jeremiah is caught going out to Anathoth, falsely accused, smitten, and cast into Prison. The King, secretly consulting the Prophet, reduces his sentence to Confinement in the Guard-court, appointing him a Cake per Day while Bread lasted in the City.

1 And Zedekiah son of Josiah |reigned as king| 37 instead of Coniah son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon |made king| in the land of Judah. But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, had hearkened unto the words of Yahweh, which he had spoken through Jeremiah the prophet. And King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest, unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying,— Pray thou, I beseech thee, in our behalf, unto Yahweh, our God.
4 Now ||Jeremiah|| was coming in and going out in the midst of the people, for they had not put him into prison. And ||the force of Pharaoh|| had come forth out of Egypt,—and <when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard the tidings of them> they went up from Jerusalem.
That came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying:
[Thus] saith Yahweh,
God of Israel,
Thus shall ye say unto the king of Judah, who sent you unto me to enquire of me,—
Lo! [the force of Pharaoh, which is coming out to you to help] is about to return to its own land, [to Egypt];
Then will the Chaldeans come back, and fight against this city,—and capture it, and burn it with fire.
[Thus] saith Yahweh,—
Let not your own souls* deceive you, saying, The Chaldeans will [surely depart] from us!
For they will not depart;

10 For <though ye had smitten all the force of the Chaldeans who are fighting with you, and there had remained of them only desperately wounded men> yet [every man in his tent] should have arisen and burnt this city [with fire].

11 Now it came to pass <when the army of the Chaldeans [had gone up] from Jerusalem,—because of the force of Pharaoh> 12 then went forth Jeremiah out of Jerusalem, to go into the land of Benjamin,—to receive a portion from them in the midst of the people. 13 And so it came to pass <he being in the gate of Benjamin, and there being there> a ward-master whose name was Irijah son of Shelemiah son of Hananiah> that he seized Jeremiah the prophet, saying, Unto the Chaldeans! art thou' falling away!

14 Then said Jeremiah, False! I am not falling away unto the Chaldeans! Howbeit he hearkened not unto him,—so Irijah seized Jeremiah, and brought him in unto the princes. 18 Then were the princes wroth against Jeremiah, and smote him,—and put him in prison, in the house of Jonathan the scribe, for <that> had they made the prison. 19 <When Jeremiah had entered into the dungeon-house and into the cells, and Jeremiah [had remained there] many days;> 17 then sent King Zedekiah,—and fetched him, and the king [asked him], in his own house, [secretly], and said,—

Is there a word from Yahweh? And Jeremiah said,—

There is, for (said he), Into the hand of the king of Babylon shall thou be delivered! 18 And Jeremiah said unto King Zedekiah,—

What sin have I committed against thee, or against thy servants, or against the house, that ye have delivered me' up into prison?

19 Wherefore, then, are your prophets, who prophesied unto you, saying,—

The king of Babylon shall not come against you, nor against this land!

20 Now therefore, hear, I beseech thee, O my lord the king,—

Let my supplication, I pray thee, fall prostrate before thee, and do not cause me to return unto the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there!

21 Then King Zedekiah gave command, and they committed Jeremiah into the guard-court, and [said] that there should be given him a cake of bread daily, out of the bakers' street, until all the bread out of the city [should be spent]. So Jeremiah remained' in the guard-court.

§ 32. The Princes again conspiring against Jeremiah, King Zedekiah weakly delivers him into their Hands, and they let him down with ropes into a miry Dungeon; from which Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, having interceded with the King, and taking with him thirty Men, delivers him; and Jeremiah, meanwhile giving good but unheeded Counsel to the King, remains in the Guard-court until Jerusalem is captured.

1 And <when Shephatiah son of Mattan, and 38 Gedaliah son of Pashhur, and Jucal son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur son of Malchiah, heard> the words which Jeremiah was speaking unto all the people, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh,—

He that remaineth in this city shall die, by sword, by famine, or by pestilence,— whereas he that goeth forth unto the Chaldeans shall live, so shall he have his life for a spoil, and shall live.]

Thus saith Yahweh,—

This city shall surely be given into the hand of the force of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it>

4 Then said the princes unto the king,—

Let this man, we pray thee, be put to death, for <in this way> is he weakening the hands of the men of war who are left in this city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking unto them such words as these; for this man is not seeking prosperity for this people, but misfortune.

5 Then said King Zedekiah,—

Lo! he' is in your hand; for [the king] is not one who is able to do anything against you.

6 Then took they Jeremiah, and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah' son of the king, which was in the guard-court, and they let Jeremiah down with ropes,—now <in the dungeon> was no water, [only mire], so Jeremiah sank' in the mire.

7 When Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, one of the eunuchs, he' being in the house of the king, heard' that they had delivered Jeremiah into the dungeon,—the king being seated in the gate of Benjamin,—then went forth Ebed-melech, out of the house of the king, and spake unto the king, saying:

My lord, O King! wickedly' have these men done all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom indeed they have cast into the dungeon,—since he would have died where he was, because of the famine, for there is no bread any longer in the city.

Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying,—

Take with thee from hence, thirty men, and lift Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon, before he die.

So Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the house of the king, under the treasury, and took thence, pieces of cast-off clothes, and old rags, and let them down unto Jeremiah in the dungeon, with the ropes. Then said Ebed-melech unto Jeremiah,—

Put, I pray thee, the pieces of cast-off clothes and the old rags, under thine arm-joints, under the ropes. And Jeremiah said so. Then drew they Jeremiah, with the ropes, and lifted him up out of the dungeon, and Jeremiah remained in the guard-court. Then King Zedekiah sent and fetched Jeremiah the prophet unto him, in the third entrance, which is in the house of Yahweh, and the king said unto Jeremiah—

I am going to ask thee a thing, do not hide anything from me. Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah,—

When I tell thee will thou not surely put me to death? And when I counsel thee thou wilt not hearken unto me.

So King Zedekiah aware unto Jeremiah, secretly saying,—

By the life of Yahweh, who made for us this soul—I will in no wise put thee to death, Neither will I deliver thee into the hand of these men, who are seeking thy life.

Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah,—

Thus saith Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel—If thou wilt indeed go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon unto shall shine own soul live, and this city shall not be burned with fire, but thou shalt live, and thy house.

But if thou wilt not go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon then shall this city be delivered into the hand of the Chaldaeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and thou shalt not escape out of their hand.

Then said King Zedekiah, unto Jeremiah;

I am afraid of the Jews, who have fallen away unto the Chaldaeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they maltreat me.

But Jeremiah said, They shall not deliver!—

Hearken, I pray thee, unto the voice of Yahweh, in what I am speaking unto thee, that it may be well with thee, and thy soul live.

But if thou art refusing to go forth, is the thing which Yahweh hath showed me:—

behold, then, all the women that are left in the house of the king of Judah, brought forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon,—and those very women saying,
The men thou wast wont to salute have goaded thee on, and prevailed upon thee, and thou hast turned away back.

Yea, thou shalt behold all thy wives and thy children, brought forth unto the Chaldaeans, and shalt not escape out of their hand,—but by the hand of the king of Babylon shalt thou be taken, and this city shall be burned with fire.

Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah—

Do not let any man know of these words, and thou shalt not die. But when the princes hear that I have spoken with thee, and they come in unto thee and say unto thee—

Do tell us, we pray thee, what thou didst speak unto the king; do not hide it from us, or will we not put thee to death,—and what speaketh the king unto thee?

Then shalt thou say unto them,—I was causing my supplication to fall prostrate before the king, that he would not cause me to return to the house of Jonathan, to die there.

Then came in all the princes unto Jeremiah, and asked him, and he told them, according to all these words which the king had commanded, so they turned in silence from him, for the matter had not been reported. So Jeremiah remained in the guard-court, until the day when Jerusalem was captured; thus it fell out, when Jerusalem was captured.

§ 33. After an eighteen Months' Siege, Jerusalem is taken; King Zedekiah flees to the Waste Plains of Jericho, is captured, brought to Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah, his Sons and Nobles are slain in his presence, his Eyes are put out, and he is taken in Fetters to Babylon. Jerusalem burned, her Walls thrown down, and her Inhabitants carried captive to Babylon—saving some of the Poor, who are left to till the Soil.

1 In the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his force against Jerusalem, and they besieged it. In the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month,

4 U.: "soul."
on the ninth of the month> was the city [broken into]. Then came in all the princes of the king of Babylon, and sat in the middle gate,
—Nergal-sharezer, Sarna-nebo, Sarasechim, chief eunuch, Nergal-sharezer, chief soothsayer, and all the residua of the princes of the king of Babylon.

And it came to pass <as soon as Zedekiah king of Judah and all the men of war saw> them, that they fled, and went forth by night out of the city, by way of the king’s garden, through the gate between the two walls, and he went forth by way of the waste plain.

But the force of the Chaldeans pursued them, and overtook Zedekiah in the waste plains of Jericho, and when they had taken him, they brought him up unto Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon to Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—and pronounced upon him sentences of judgment.

And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah in Riblah, before his eyes, and <all the nobles of Judah> did the king of Babylon slay; and <the eyes of Zedekiah> did he put out, and bound him with fetters of bronze, to bring him into Babylon.

And <the house of the king, and the house> of the people did the Chaldeans burn with fire,—and <the walls of Jerusalem> brake they down; and <the remnant of the people> who were left in the city, and the disheartened, who fell away unto him, and the remnant of the people who were left> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, take captive to Babylon.

But <of the poor people, who had nothing>: did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, leave remaining in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and ploughed fields, [on the same day].

§ 34. By Nebuchadrezzar’s Command Jeremiah is to be well treated: he is taken out of the Guard-court.

Then Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon gave command, concerning Jeremiah,—through Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, saying:

Take him, and <thine eyes> set thou upon him, and do not unto him any’ harmful thing,—but <just as he shall speak unto thee> shall thou do with him.

So Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, sent, also Nebushazban, chief of the eunuchs, and Nergal-sharezer, chief of the magi, and all the chiefs of the king of Babylon;

yea they sent and fetched Jeremiah out of the guard-court, and delivered him unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, to bring him forth into a home,—so he dwelt in the midst of the people.

§ 35. A Divine Message to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, recognising his Faith and assuring him of his Life.

Now <unto Jeremiah> had come the word of Yahweh, while he was yet shut up in the guard-court, saying:

Go! and speak to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying,—

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
Behold me! bringing about my words against this city, for calamity—and not for blessing,
—and they shall come to pass before thee [in that day].

But I will deliver thee in that day,
Declareth Yahweh,—
and thou shalt not be given up into the hand of the men from the face of whom thou mightest shrink with fear.

For I will surely deliver[1] thee, and <by the sword> shalt thou not fall,—but thou shalt have thine own life [as a spoil],
Because thou hast trusted in me,
Declareth Yahweh.

§ 36. Nebuzaradan giving Jeremiah his Choice, of going down to Babylon or remaining in the Land, the Prophet decides to dwell at Mizpah with Gedaliah, who had been appointed Governor of the Cities of Judah.

The thing that happened Unto Jeremiah, 40 from Yahweh, after Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners had let him go from Ramah,—when he had taken him, he having been bound in fetters in the midst of all the captive-host of Jerusalem, and Judah, who were being carried away captive to Babylon.

So then the chief of the royal executioners [took Jeremiah,—and said unto him, Yahweh thy God had threatened this’ calamity against this place; and so Yahweh hath brought it about and done it, just as he threatened,—for ye have sinned against Yahweh, and have not hearkened unto his voice, and so this thing hathbefallen'] you.

[Now] therefore, lo! I have loosed thee today, from the fetters which were upon thy hand:[4] If it be good in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon> come, and I will set mine eyes upon thee, but if evil in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon> came,”

[ML: “by the hand of,”]

[Written: “Nebuchadzaran”] (with “z”); read: “Nebushazban” (with “n”).

In some cod. is a Ms. note, small “n” — “G. n.”

One school of Masoretes write this as two words: “Sar-ezer”—“G.n.”
forbear, see! all the land is before thee, whither it may be good and right in thine
eyes to go! thereof! go!

And ere yet' he could make reply—

Go thou back then unto Gedaliah, son of Abikam son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath set in charge over the cities of Judah, and dwell thou with him in the midst of the people, or whithersoever it may be right in thine eyes to go! go!

So the chief of the royal executioners gave him an allowance and a present, and let him go.
Then came Jerahmeel unto Gedaliah, son of Abikam, to Mizpah, and dwelt with him in the midst of the people who were left in the land.

§ 37. All the Hebrew Captains left in the Field, with Jews out of Moab, Ammon and Edom, gather unto Gedaliah; among them a Traitor, Ishmael, of whom the Governor is warned; but Gedaliah refusing credence, is cruelly murdered, with the Jews and Chaldeans who are with him.
After further Treacheries, Ishmael is pursued by Johanan and others, and his Captives are rescued, but himself escapes. Johanan and those with him, fearing the Wrath of the Chaldeans, dwell at the Khan of Chimham, ready to go down into Egypt.

7 Now when all the captains of the forces which were in the field—thou and their men—heard that the king of Babylon had set Gedaliah son of Ahikam in charge over the land,— and that he had committed to him men and women and children, and the poor of the land of those who had not been carried away captive to Babylon, then came they in unto Gedaliah in Mizpah, both Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and Johanan, and Jonathan son of Kareah, and Seraiah son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai, the Netophathite, and Jezeaniah, son of the Maachathite,—they and their men.
The Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, sware unto them, and to their men, saying,
Do not be afraid of serving the Chaldeans,— dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, that it may be well with you.

But as for me I will remain in Mizpah, to stand before the Chaldeans' who may come unto us.

Ye! however, gather ye wine and summer fruits and oil, and put [them] in your vessels, dwell in your cities which ye have seized.

Likewise also all the Jews, who were in Moab and among the sons of Ammon and in Edom, and who were in any of the lands;

when they heard that the king of Babylon had granted a remnant to Judah, and that he had set in charge over them, Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, yea, then returned all the Jews out of all the places whither they had been driven, and came into the land of Judah, unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruits, in great abundance.

But Johanan son of Kareah, and all the princes of the forces which were in the field came unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah, and said unto him—Dost thou at all know that Baalis, king of the sons of Ammon hath sent Ishmael, a son of Nethaniah, to smite thee to death?
But Gedaliah son of Ahikam believed them not.
Then Johanan son of Kareah spake unto Gedaliah secretely, in Mizpah, saying,— Let me go. I pray thee, and smite Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and not [a man] shall know it,—wherefore should he smite thee to death, and all Judah who have gathered themselves unto thee, be dispersed, and the remnant of Judah perish?

Then said Gedaliah son of Ahikam, unto Johanan son of Kareah,
Thou mayest not do this thing,—for falsely art thou speaking against Ishmael.

And it came to pass in the seventh month that Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elizaphawn of the seed royal and chiefs of the king, and ten men with him, came in unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam, at Mizpah,—and they did there est bread together, in Mizpah.
Then arose Ishmael son of Nethaniah,—and the ten men who were with him, and they smote Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan—unto the sword, and slew him whom the king of Babylon had set in charge over the land.
And Ishmael smote all the Jews who were with him, even with Gedaliah in Mizpah, and the Chaldeans who were found there, the men of war.

And it came to pass on the second day, after he had slain Gedaliah, not a man knowing it, that men came in from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria,—eightye men, with beards shaven and clothes rent, who also had cut themselves, with a meal-offering and frankincense in their hand, to bring them into the house of Yahweh.
Then went forth Ishmael son of Nethaniah to meet them, out of Mizpah, weeping all along as he went,—and it came to pass when he fell in with them that he said unto them,

Come ye in unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam.

and weeping."
JEREMIAH XLII. 7—18; XLII. 1—11.

7 And so it was <when they had come into the midst of the city> that Ishmael son of Nethaniah slew them [and cast them] into the midst of a pit, and the men who were with him; 8 But ten men were found among them, who said unto Ishmael—Do not put us to death, for we have secret treasures in the field, wheat and barley and oil and honey. So he forbade, and put them not to death, in the midst of their brethren. 9 Now the pit, whereinto Ishmael cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he had smitten, was a large pit, which King Asa had made for fear of Baasha king of Israel, —the same did Ishmael son of Nethaniah fill with the slain. 10 Then Ishmael took captive all the remnant of the people that was in Mizpah,—the daughters of the king, and all the people that were left remaining in Mizpah, whom Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners had committed unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam,—yes Ishmael son of Nethaniah took them captive, and departed, to pass over unto the sons of Ammon. 11 But when Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him, heard of all the wickedness which Ishmael son of Nethaniah had done; 12 then took they all the men, and went their way to fight with Ishmael son of Nethaniah,—and found him near the many waters which were in Gibeon. And it came to pass <when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him> then were they glad. 12 So all the people whom Ishmael had carried away captive out of Mizpah, [compassed about], and returned, and went their way unto Johanan son of Kareah. 13 But [Ishmael son of Nethaniah] escaped, with eight men, from the face of Johanan,—and departed unto the sons of Ammon. 14 Then did Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him, take all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael son of Nethaniah out of Mizpah, after he had smitten Gedaliah son of Ahikam,—mighty men, men of war, and women and children, and eunuchs, whom he had recovered out of Gibeon; 15 and they departed, and dwelt in the Khan of Chimaan, 16 which is near Bethlehem,—that they might go to enter Egypt; 17 because of the Chaldeans, for they were afraid of them,—because Ishmael son of Nethaniah had smitten Gedaliah son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had set in charge over the land.

§38. The Spared and Rescued Remnant of Jews sollicit Jeremiah's Intercession with Yahweh in their behalf, solemnly pledging themselves to abide the Result; yet, when the Answer proves adverse to their Wishes, they stubbornly disobey, and go down into Egypt as far as Tahpanhes, carrying Jeremiah and Baruch with them. Here the Prophet, with accompanying symbolic Action, foretells an Invasion of Egypt by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon.

1 Then drew near, all the captains of the forces, and Johanan son of Kareah, and Jehozania son of Hoekiah,—and all the people, from the least even unto the greatest; 2 and said unto Jeremiah the prophet—Let our supplication, we beseech thee, fall prostrate before thee, and pray thou in our behalf, unto Yahweh thy God, in behalf of all this remnant,—for we are left, a few out of many, just as thine own eyes do behold us; 3 that Yahweh thy God may tell us, the way wherein we should walk,—and the thing that we should do. 4 And Jeremiah the prophet said unto them, I have heard; behold me, praying unto Yahweh your God, according to your words,—and it shall come to pass, that the whole thing that Yahweh shall answer you> I will tell you, I will keep back from you, nothing. 5 They therefore said unto Jeremiah, Yahweh be against us, as a witness, true and faithful,—if according to all the word which Yahweh thy God shall send thee unto us; 6 whether for good or for ill, unto the voice of Yahweh our God for which we are sending thee unto him> will we hearken,—to the end it may be well with us, because we will hearken unto the voice of Yahweh our God. 7 And it came to pass <at the end of ten days> that the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah. 8 Then called he for Johanan son of Kareah, and for all the princes of the forces who were with him,—and for all the people, [from the least even unto the greatest]; 9 and said unto them, Thus saith Yahweh, God of Israel,—unto whom ye sent me, to cause your supplication to fall prostrate before him:—

10 If ye will indeed abide in this land, then will I build you up, and not pull [you] down, and plant you, and not uproot [you],—for I have compassion, as touching the calamity which I have caused you. 11 Do not fear the face of the king of Babylon, of whose face ye are afraid,—do not fear him.

Urgeth Yahweh,
for <with you> am I, to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand: 12 that I may grant you compassions, and he may have compassion upon you,—and suffer you to return unto your own soil.

13 But <since ye> are saying,—

We will not dwell in this land,—nor hearken' unto the voice of Yahweh your God: 14 saying,—

No! for <into the land of Egypt> will we go, where we shall not see war, nor <the sound of a horn> shall we hear,—nor <for bread> shall we be famished,—<there> then will we dwell >

15 [Now] therefore, <for this cause> hear ye the word of Yahweh, O remnant of Judah,—

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,

God of Israel,—

<If ye> do indeed set <your faces> to enter Egypt, and do enter to sojourn there> 16 then shall it come to pass that <the sword which ye are fearing> shall [there] overtake you, in the land of Egypt,—and <the famine which ye are dreading> shall [there] lay fast hold of you, in Egypt, and [there] shall ye die. 17 So shall it be with all the men who have set their faces to enter Egypt, to sojourn there, they shall die, by sword, by famine, or by pestilence,—and they shall have neither survival nor escape, from the face of the calamity' which I am about to bring in upon them. 18 For—

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,

God of Israel,—

<Just as mine anger and mine indignation [have been] poured out upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem> 19 shall mine indignation be poured out upon you' when ye enter into Egypt,—thus shall ye become a curse, and an astonishment, and a contempt, and a reproach, and ye shall no more' see this place.

19 Yahweh hath spoken' concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah,

Do not enter into Egypt:

[Know certainly] that I have taken you to witness to-day. 20 For ye have deceived yourselves at the cost of your lives,* for <ye yourselves> sent me unto Yahweh your God, saying,—

Pray thou in our behalf, unto Yahweh our God,—and <according to all that Yahweh our God shall say> 21 [so] tell us, and we will do it.

21 Therefore have I told you to-day,—and yet ye have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh your God, [even in any thing for which he hath sent me unto you].

22 [Now] therefore, [know ye certainly], that

* U.: “souls.”

<by sword, by* famine, or by pestilence> shall ye die,—in the place whither ye have desired to go, to sojourn.

1 And it came to pass <when Jeremiah had 43 made an end> of speaking unto all the people the words of Yahweh their God, with which Yahweh their God had sent' him unto them,—even all these words > 2 then spake Azariah son of Hoshaiah, and Johanan son of Karesh, and all the proud men,—saying unto Jeremiah—

[False]ly art thou' speaking, Yahweh our God hath not sent thee to say,

Ye shall not enter Egypt, to sojourn there; 3 but Baruch son of Neriah is goading thee on against us,—that he may deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, to put us to death, or take us away captive to Babylon.

4 So Johanan son of Karesh, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, [hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh,—by remaining in the land of Judah; 5 but Johanan son of Karesh, and all the captains of the forces, took' all the remnant of Judah, who had returned out of all the nations whither they had been driven, to sojourn in the land of Judah; 6 both the men and the women and the children, and the daughters of the king, and every soul that Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executives [had left] with Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan,—and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch son of Neriah; 7 and entered the land of Egypt, for they hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh,—yea entered as far as Tahpanhes. 8 Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, in Tahpanhes, saying:

9 Take in thy hand great stones, and hide them in the mortar, that is in the brickyard' which is at the entrance of the house of Pharaoh, in Tahpanhes,—before the eyes of the men of Judah. 10 Then shalt thou say unto them—

[Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,

God of Israel—

Behold me! sending and fetching Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne' over these stones, which I have hid,—and he shall spread his canopy over them. 11 And <when he entereth> then will he smite the land of Egypt [and deliver]

Him who is for death' to death, and Him who is for captivity' to captivity, and Him who is for the sword' to the sword.

12 So will I kindle a fire in the houses of the gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them and carry them away captive,—and shall wrap the land of Egypt about him, just as a shepherd | wrappeth about, him his garment, and shall go forth from thence in peace;
And he shall break in pieces the pillars of Beth-shemesh,* which is in the land of Egypt,—
And the houses of the gods of Egypt shall he burn with fire.

§ 39. Against Jeremiah’s Denunciation of his Countrymen’s renewed Idolatries in Egypt, they perverely defend themselves; calling forth from the Prophet a Crushing Reply by reference to the Fate of Jerusalem, and a specific Prediction of the Capture of Pharaoh-hophra King of Egypt.

The word which came to Jeremiah, against all the Jews who were dwelling in the land of Egypt,—who were dwelling in Migdol, and in Tahpanhes, and in Noph, and in the land of Pathros, saying:

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—
Ye yourselves, saw all the calamity which I brought upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah,—and there they are, a desolation, this day, and there is not in them an inhabitant: because of their wickedness, which they committed, provoked me to anger, by going to burn incense, to serve other gods,—whom they had not known, they, ye, nor your fathers; yet I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, betimes sending them, saying,—
Do not, I pray you, commit this abominable thing, which I hate!

but they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear, by turning from their wickedness,—so as not to burn incense to other gods. Therefore were mine indignation and mine anger poured out, and a fire was kindled in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,—and they became waste and desolate, as at this day.

Thus saith Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel—
Wherefore are ye committing a great wickedness against your own lives,* that ye should cut off from you man and woman, child and suckling, out of the midst of Judah,—so that there should not be left you a remnant: in that ye provoke me to anger by the works of your own hands, burning incense to other gods, in the land of Egypt, which ye have been entering to sojourn,—that ye should cut them off from you, and that ye should become a contempt and a reproach among all the nations of the earth? Have ye forgotten the wicked ways of your fathers, and the wicked ways of the kings of Judah, and the wicked ways of his wives,* and your own wicked ways, and the wicked ways of your own wives,—which they committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

They have not been crushed, unto this day; neither have they been afraid, neither have they walked in my law,* and in my statutes, which I set before you, and before your fathers.

Therefore—
Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,
Behold me! setting my face against you, for calamity,—even to cut off all Judah; and I will take the remnant of a dozen who did set their faces, to enter the land of Egypt, to sojourn there, and they shall all be consumed, in the land of Egypt: shall they fall by the sword, or by famine: shall they be consumed, from the least even unto the greatest, by sword and by famine: shall they die,—so shall they become a curse, and an astonishment, and a contempt, and a reproach; and I will bring punishment upon them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt, just as I brought punishment upon Jerusalem,—by sword, by famine, and by pestilence; and there shall be neither escape nor survival, unto the remnant of Judah, who have been entering, to sojourn there, into the land of Egypt,—that they should return to the land of Judah, even when they are lifting up their soul to return to dwell there, for none shall return, saving fugitives.

Then all the men who knew that their wives were burning incense to other gods, and all the women standing by, a great congregation,—with all the people who were dwelling in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, made answer unto Jeremiah, saying:

<As touching the word which thou hast spoken unto us, in the name of Yahweh, we are not going to hearken unto thee; but we will certainly do> the whole thing that hath gone forth out of our own mouth, by burning incense to the queen of the heavens, and pouring out to her drink-offerings, just as we and our fathers, and our kings and our princes did, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,—then were we filled with bread and wine, and our heart was prosperous, and <calamity> saw we none; whereas <from the very time we ceased burning incense to the queen of the heavens and pouring out to her drink-offerings> we have lacked [everything],—and <by sword and by famine> have we been consumed.

19 And <though we’re burning incense to the queen of the heavens and pouring out to her, drink-offerings> is it [without our men] that we have made to her sacrificial cakes as images of her, and poured out to her, drink-offerings?

20 Then spake Jeremiah unto all the people,—against the men, and against the women, and against all the people who had been making any answer unto him, saying:

21 Was it not <the very incense which ye burned in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye, and your fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land> was it not [those very things] that Yahweh did remember, and that came up on his heart;* 22 so that Yahweh could no longer forbear, because of the wickedness of your doings, because of the abominations which ye committed,—and your land became a desolation, and an astonishment, and a contempt, without inhabitant—[as at this day].

22 <Because that ye burned incense, and that ye sinned against Yahweh, and hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh, and [in his law] and in his statutes and in his testimonies did not walk> [for this cause] did this calamity befal you—[as at this day].

24 And Jeremiah said unto all the people, and unto all the women,—

Hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are in the land of Egypt,—

25 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel, saying,
Ye and your wives have both spoken with your mouth and [with your hands] have ye fulfilled, saying,
We will certainly perform our vows which we have vowed, to burn incense to the queen of the heavens, and to pour out to her, drink-offerings:
the women will certainly confirm your vows, and [certainly perform] your vows.

26 Therefore hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are dwelling in the land of Egypt,—

Behold me! I have sworn by my great Name, Saith Yahweh,
That my Name shall no more be invoked by the mouth of any man of Judah, saying—

By the life of My Lord, Yahweh, in all the land of Egypt.

27 Behold me! watching* over them for calamity, and not for blessing,—so shall all the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt be consumed by sword and by famine, until there be an end of them. 28 Yet [the fugitives of the sword] shall certainly return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah, men easily counted,—that all the remnant of Judah who are entering Egypt to sojourn there [may know, [whose word]] shall stand, [mine or theirs]!

And [this] <to you> shall be the sign,

Declareth Yahweh,

that I am about to bring punishment upon you in this place,—that ye may know that my words shall certainly stand against you, [for calamity]:

Thus saith Yahweh,

Behold me! delivering up Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt, into the hand of his enemies, yea into the hand of them who are seeking his life,*—just as I delivered Zedekiah king of Judah, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon his enemy, and one seeking his life.

§ 40. Jeremiah’s faithful but regretful Sermon.

Baruch, is, by Divine Message, reminded that his Ambition for great Things is ill-timed, and he is simply assured of his Life.

1 The word which Jeremiah the prophet spake, 45 unto Baruch son of Neriah,—when he had written these words upon a book, from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, saying—

Thus saith Yahweh,
God of Israel,
Unto thee, O Baruch,—

3 Thou didst say,
Surely woe to me!
For Yahweh hath added sorrow unto my pain,—
I am weary with my moanings,
And [rest] have I not found!

4 [Thus] shalt thou say unto him,

Thus saith Yahweh,—

Lo, <what I had built> I am pulling down,
And <what I had planted> I am rooting up,—

And that is [all the land]:*—

Wouldst thou then seek to secure* for thyself great things?
Do not seek it!
For, behold me! bringing in calamity upon all flesh,

Declareth Yahweh.

---

* N.B.: Same word as in chap. i. 11, 12, and xxxi. 28. edn.): "And all the land (earth) is mine."

Nevertheless I will give thee thine own life* as a spoil, in all places whithersoever thou goest.

§ 41. The Nations (chaps. i. 10; xxv. 15) — Egypt.

46 1 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet, concerning the nations.

2 [Of Egypt]

Concerning the force of Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates, in Carchemish,—which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote,—in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah:

3 Prepare ye buckler and shield,
And draw near to battle;
4 Harness the horses, and mount, ye horsemen,
Stand forth in helments,—
Polish the lances, put on the coats of mail.
5 Why’ have I seen it?
| They are drawing back,
Yea their heroes are crushed,
Yea they have fled and not turned.—
Terror round about! Declareth Yahweh.

6 Let not the swift [flee],
Nor let the hero [escape],—
Neither the northward, beside the river Euphrates,
Have they stumbled, and fallen.

7 Who is’ that is like the Nile when it riseth,
Like rivers when his waters are tossed?

8 Egypt was like the Nile when it riseth,
And like rivers, when the waters are tossed:
So be said—
I will rise,
I will cover the earth,
I will destroy the city, and the dwellers therein.

9 Mount the horses, and drive the chariots madly on,
So let the heroes [go forth],—
Ethiopians and Libyans that grasp the buckler,
And Lydians, that grasp—that tread—the bow.

10 But that day belongeth to My Lord,
Yahweh of hosts*—
A day of avenging, to avenge him of his adversaries,
When the sword shall devour and be filled, and be sated with their blood,—
For I will sacrifice unto My Lord, Yahweh of hosts.

11 In the land of the North,
Towards the river Euphrates.

<In vain> hast thou multiplied remedies,
<Healing> there is none’ for thee.*

12 The nations have heard’ of thy disgrace,
And [thine outcry] hath filled the earth,—
For [hero against hero] have they stumbled,
[Together] have fallen | the twain! |

13 The word which Yahweh spake, unto Jeremiah the prophet,—as to the coming of Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon, to smite the land of Egypt:

14 Tell ye it in Egypt,
And let it be heard in Migdol,
Yea let it be heard in Noph, and in Tahapanhes,—
Say ye—
Stand thou forth, and prepare thyself,
For a sword hath devoured round about thee.

15 Wherefore’ have thy valiant ones* been laid prostrate?
He hath made no stand, because ||Yahweh|| hath driven him back:
Hath made many a one to be stumbling,
Yea fallen’ is every one against his neighbour,
So they have said—
Arise and let us return to our own people,
And unto the land of our birth,
From the face of the sword of the oppressor.

16 Proclaim ye a name, —
|Pharaoh, king of Egypt;| — a Sound! |
He hath overstepped the time appointed!

17 <As I live> saith the King,
|Yahweh of hosts| is his name:
|Though |
Like Tabor’ among mountains,
Like Carmel>
Into the sea shall he go! |

18 <Baggage for captivity>* prepare thee,
O inhabitress, daughter of Egypt;
For |Noph| shall become |a desolation|,
And be burned, without inhabitant.

19 A calf of great beauty’| is Egypt:
|The gad-fly | out of the North| cometh—cometh.*

20 Even her hirelings, in her midst, are like fatted calves,
For |even they| have turned—
have fled at once!
have* made no stand!

For |their day of doom| hath come upon them,
The time of their visitation.

§ 43. The Nations.—Moab.

| Of Moab: |

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Alas for Nebo, for it is laid waste. Put to shame—captured, is Kiriathaim: Put to shame is Mesech, and dismayed.

No more is the praise of Moab, In Hebron have they devised against her calamity. Come, and let us cut her off from being a nation, Even' thou madmen also shall be silenced. After thee shall march the sword.

A voice of outcry, from Horonaim, Wasting and great destruction! Moab is broken: Her little ones have caused to be heard an outcry. For the ascent of Luhith | with weeping one ascended— with weeping, For in the descent of Horonaim, the distress of the outcry of destruction have they heard:

Flee, deliver your own lives, Then shall the women be as a shrub in the desert. For seeing thou hast trusted in thy works and in thy treasures, Thou too shalt be captured, Then shall Chamos go forth into captivity, His priests and his princess together.

§ 42. The Nations.—The Philistines.

So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet, Against the Philistines, before Pharaoh smote Gaza.

Thus saith Yahweh— Lo! waters rising from the North And they shall become a torrent overflowing, Which shall overflow The land and the fulness thereof, The city, and the dwellers therein,—

And the spoiler shall enter into every city,
And not (is city) shall escape,
Then shall perish the vale,
Then be destroyed the table-land,—
As Yahweh hath said.
Give wing to Moab,
For she must fly away;
And her cities—
To desolation shall be turned,
With no inhabitant therein.
Accursed be he that doeth the business of Yahweh, carelessly;
And, accursed be he that withholdeth his sword from blood!
Moab hath been at ease from his youth,
And settled is he upon his lees,
And hath not been poured out from vessel to vessel,
Nor into captivity hath gone,—
For this cause hath his flavour stood still within him,
And his scent is unchanged.
Therefore! lo! days are coming—
Declareth Yahweh,
When I will send to him tilters, and they shall tilt him,—
And his vessels shall they empty,
And their jars shall they dash in pieces.
Then shall Moab be ashamed of Chemosh,—
Just as the sons of Israel were ashamed of Bethel, their confidence,—
How can ye say,
Heroes are we? and Men of might for the war!
Spoiled is Moab,
And her cities he ascended,
And the choice of his young men have gone down to the slaughter,— Declareth The King,
Yahweh of hosts is his Name.
Near is the doom of Moab, to come,—
And his calamity hasteth greatly.
Lament ye for him—
All that are round about him, and
All that know his name,—
Say, How is broken—
The staff of strength!
The rod of beauty!
Come down from glory, and sit in thirst,
O inhabitress, daughter of Dibon;
For (the spoiler of Moab) hath come up
against thee,
He hath laid in ruins thy strongholds.
Nearer the way> take thy stand and keep outlook,
O inhabitress of Aror:
Ask— Him that feeth, and
Her that hath escaped,
Say, What hath happened?
Confounded is Moab! For it is broken down!
Howl and make outcry,—
Tell ye in Arnon, That Moab is spoiled;
E.O.T.

And judgment hath come
Upon the country of the table-land,—
Upon Holon, and Upon Jazer, and Upon Mephaath; and Upon Dibon, and Upon Nebo, and Upon Beth-diblathaim; and Upon Kiriataim, and Upon Beth-gamul, and Upon Beth-meon; and Upon Kerioth, and
Upon Bozrah,— Yea upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far, and near.
Cut off is the horn of Moab,
Yea his arm is broken,—
Declareth Yahweh.
Make ye him drunken,
Because against Yahweh hath he magnified himself;
So shall Moab stagger into his own vomit,
And shall become a derision, even he!
And was it not (a derision) that Israel became to thee?
And was it not among thieves he was found?
For as often as thou didst speak of him
thou didst wag the head!
Leave ye the cities, and dwell in the cliff,
Ye inhabitants of Moab;
And become ye as a dove, that maketh her nest in the further-side of the fissure's mouth.
We have heard the arrogance of Moab—proud exceedingly:
His loftiness and his arrogance and his majesty, and his elevation of heart!
I know—
Declareth Yahweh,
His passion—that 'tis Unjust!
His boasts, that Untrue have they made [them].
For this cause over Moab will I howl,
And for all Moab will I make outcry,—
For the men of Kir-heres must one moan.
Beyond the weeping of Jazer> will I weep
for thee, O vine of Sibmah,
Thy tendrils have gone over the sea,*
Unto the sea of Jazer> have they reached,
Unto thy summer fruits,
And upon thy vintage> the spoiler hath fallen.

So shall be withdrawn gladness and exultation—
From the fruitful field, and
From the land of Moab,
And that wine from the vats> have I caused to fail,
They shall not tread with shouting, [The shouting] shall be no shouting!
From the outcry of Heshbon,
Even unto Eeleah,
Even unto Jahaz have they given forth their voice,
From Zer even unto Horonaim> the third Eglath,—
For even the waters of Nimrim< to utter desolation> have been turned:
Then will I cause to cease, from Moab,
Declareth Yahweh,—
Him that offereth at a high-place, and Him that burneth incense to his gods.
For this cause [my heart, for Moab] <like flutes> shall make plaintive sounds,
Yes [my heart, for the men of Kir-heres] <like flutes> shall make plaintive sounds,
Because [the abundance he hath gotten] is lost!
For every head is baldness,
And every beard is clipped:
Upon all hands> are gashes,
And [upon the loins] <sackcloth>!
Upon all the houses of Moab,
And in her broadways> it is all lamentation,—
For I have broken Moab—
Like a vessel wherein is no pleasure,
Declareth Yahweh.

<How it is broken down!>
They have howled,
How hath Moab turned the back [for shame],—
So shall Moab become a derision and a terror, to all round about him.
For thus saith Yahweh,
Lo! <as an eagle> shall one dart along,—
And shall spread out his wings towards Moab.
Captured is Kerioth,
And [the fortresses] are seized,—
Then shall the heart of the heroes of Moab become in that day,
As the heart of a woman in her pains.
Then shall [Moab] be destroyed [from being a people],—
Because against Yahweh hath he magnified himself.

Terror, and pit, and snare;* are upon thee,
O inhabitant of Moab,
Declareth Yahweh:
He that fleeth from the face of the terror shall fall into the pit,
And he that getteth up out of the pit shall be captured by the snare,—
For I will bring against her—against Moab,
The year of their visitation,
Declareth Yahweh.
In the shadow of Heshbon stand [strengthless] the fugitives;—
For [a fire] hath gone forth of Heshbon, and shall flame out of the midst of Sihon, and shall devour the head of Moab,*
And the crown of the head of the proudly tumultuous.*
Woe to thee, Moab!
Lost are the people of Chemosh,—
For thy sons |have been taken| into captivity,
And thy daughters into captivity.†
Yet will I bring back the captivity of Moab,
In the afterpart of the days,
Declareth Yahweh.

§ 44. The Nations.—The Sons of Ammon.
1

Of the sons of Ammon,—
|Thus| saith Yahweh:
Hath Israel no [sons]?
Hath he no [their]?
Why hath |Malkam|* taken possession of |Gad|,
Or have [his people] in the cities thereof made their dwelling?

Therefore lo! |days are coming|,
Declareth Yahweh.
When I will cause to be heard against Rabbah of the sons of Ammon, |an alarm of war|,
So shall she become a mound of desolation,
And her villages<with fire> shall blaze,—
Then shall |Israel| inherit them who inherited him'.
Saith Yahweh.
Howl, O Heshbon, for Ai is spoiled,
Make outcry, ye daughters of Rabbah,
Gird you with sackcloth,
Lament ye, and run to and fro among the fences,—
For |Malkam| into captivity shall go,
His priests and his princes, [together]．

Jeremiah XLIX. 4—22.

4 Why shouldst thou glory in the vale,
The flowing of thy vale? O apostate daughter?
She who is trusting in her treasures,
[saying]:
Who shall invade [me]?

5 Behold me! bringing upon thee terror,
Declare My Lord, Yahweh, of hosts,
From all who are round about thee,—
And ye shall be driven out every man before it,
And there shall be none to bring home the wanderer;

But <afterwards> will I bring back the captivity of the sons of Ammon;
Declare Yahweh.

§ 43. The Nations:—Edom. (Cp. Isa. lxiii.)

|| Of Edom:—

|| Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,

Is there [no longer] wisdom in Teman?
Hath counsel perished from the discerning?
Is [their wisdom] corrupt?

8 Flee ye, turn, go down deep to dwell, O inhabitant of Dedan,—
For <the doom of Esau> have I brought in upon him,
The time of his visitation.

9 <If grape-gatherers> came to thee>
Would they not leave [gleanings]?
September, 1951

[If thieves in the night]:—
Would they not take away what sufficed them?

10 But I have stripped Esau bare,
I have uncovered his secret places,
And <to conceal himself> shall he not be able!
Spoiled are his seed, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he is not.

11 Leave thy fatherless children
I will preserve them alive,—
And thy widows:—
<In me> let them trust.

For thus saith Yahweh—
Lo! [they who had not been adjudged to drink the cup] shall surely drink,
And art thou the one to go unpunished?
Thou shalt not go unpunished, but [shall surely drink].

12 For <by myself> have I sworn,
Declare Yahweh,
That Bozrah shall become an astonishment, a reproach, and a desolation, and a contempt;—
And all her cities shall become age-abiding desolations.

14 <A report> have I heard from Yahweh,
Yea an envoy <throughout the nations> hath been sent,— Gather yourselves together, and come against her,
And arise to the battle.

For lo! [Small] have I made thee among the nations,—
Despised among men!

Thy monstrous thing: hath deceived thee. The insolence of thy heart,
O thou that inhabitest the hidden recesses of the cliff,
That holdest the height of the hill,—
<Though thou set high, as an eagle, thy nest>
From thence will I bring thee down,
Declare Yahweh;

So shall Edom become an astonishment,—
Every one passing by her will be astonished and hiss over all her plaques:

<Like the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and her neighbours>:

Saith Yahweh,—
There shall not dwell there—a man,
Nor sojourn therein—any son of the earth-born.

Lo! <like a lion> will he come up from the majesty of the Jordan, unto the pastures perennial,
But I will wink—I will make him run away therefrom,
Who' then shall be the Chosen One whom <over it> I may set in charge?
For who' shall be like unto [me]?
And who' shall appoint [me] a [time]?
And who' is the Shepherd, that shall stand before [me]?

Therefore hear ye
The counsel of Yahweh, which he hath counselled against Edom,
And his devices which he hath devised against the inhabitants of Teman,—
Surely the little ones of the flock shall drag them away!
Surely he will cause their fold to be astounded over them.

At the noise of their fall> hath trembled the earth,
At the outcry> in the Red Sea > was heard its noise.

Lo! <as an eagle> he shall mount and dart,
And spread his wings over Bozrah,—
So shall the heart of the heroes of Edom, in that day, become as the heart of a woman in her pain.

49—2

23 Of Damascus.

Turned pale' have Hamath and Arpad,
For  have they heard —
They tremble.—
<In the sea> is anxiety, it cannot rest."
24 Enfeebled' is Damascus,
She hath turned to flee,
But <terror> hath seized her,— <Anguish and pains> have seized her, as a woman in childbirth.
25 Alas! is she not forsaken—
The city so praised!
The citadel I rejoiced in!
26 |Therefore| shall her young men fall in her broadways,—
And all her men of war shall be silent in that day, — Declareth Yahweh of hosts;
27 Then will I kindle a fire in the walls of Damascus,—
And it shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.

§ 47. The Nations: — Kedar.

28 Of Kedar.

And of the kingdoms of Hazor
Which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote—
|Thus| saith Yahweh,—
Arise ye, go up against Kedar.
So shall they spoil the sons of the East:
29 |Their tents and their flocks| shall they take,
And <their curtains, and all their baggage,> shall they carry off for themselves,—
And shall cry out unto them.
<terror round about>:
30 Flee, remove far away, go deep to dwell.
Ye inhabitants of Hazor —
Urgeth Yahweh;
For Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon—
|Hath counselled against you| a counsel,
And devised against you a device.
31 Arise ye, go up against a nation at ease—
<commandeth Yahweh>:
Having neither doors nor bars,
<alone> do they dwell;
32 So shall <their camels> become a prey,
And <the throng of their cattle> a spoil,
Then will I scatter them to every wind, even the clipt-beards,—
And <from all sides of him> will I bring in their doom, — Declareth Yahweh.

34 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet, Against Elam,—
in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, saying:—
35 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—
Behold me! breaking the bow of Elam,—
The beginning of their might;
36 Then will I bring in against Elam, four winds, from the four quarters of the heavens,
And will scatter them to all these winds,—
And there shall be no nation whither the outcasts of Elam shall not come;
37 And I will cause Elam to be dismayed
Before their enemies,
Even before them who are seeking their life,
38 So will I bring upon them calamity,
Even the glow of mine anger,
Declareth Yahweh,—
And will send after them the sword, until I have made an end of them;
39 And I will set my throne in Elam,
And will destroy, from thence king and princes,
Declareth Yahweh;
40 But it shall come to pass,
In the after-part of the days,
That I will bring back the captivity of Elam,
Declareth Yahweh.

1 The word which Yahweh spake
Against Babylon,
Against the land of the Chaldeans, through Jeremiah the prophet:

2 Tell ye among the nations,
And let it be heard,
And lift ye up a standard,
Let it be heard, do not conceal:
Say ye—
Captured' is Babylon,
Confounded' is Bel,*
Broken in pieces is Merodach,
Confounded' are her images,
Broken down her manufactured gods;”

3 For there hath come up against her—a nation out of the North, the same shall make her land an astonishment, and there shall be none to dwell therein, both man and beast have removed—have gone!

4 <In those days, and at that time>

Declareth Yahweh, shall the sons of Israel come in, They and the sons of Judah together:

4 Weeping as they travel so shall they journey on,

And <Yahweh their God> shall they seek;

5 <To Zion> shall they ask the way, Hitherward> their faces. Come and let us join ourselves unto Yahweh, In a covenant age-abiding, which shall not be forgotten.

6 <Wandering sheep> have my people been, Their own shepherds led them astray, On the mountains they seduced them, From mountain to hill have they gone, They have forgotten their couching-place.

7 All who found them devoured them, And their adversaries said—We shall not be guilty, Because they have sinned against Yahweh, the pasturage of righteousness. Yea, the hope of their fathers—Yahweh.

8 Remove ye out of the midst of Babylon, And out of the land of the Chaldeans come ye forth. And become ye like he-goats before the flock; For lo! I am rousing and bringing up against Babylon, a gathered host of great nations, out of the land of the North, And they shall array themselves against her, From thence shall she be captured, His arrows are as of a hero making childless, None shall return empty.

9 So shall the Chaldeans become a spoil, All her spoilers shall be satisfied. Declareth Yahweh;

10 Because they used to be glad, Because they used to be uprearing, When plundering mine inheritance, Because they used to cager about as a heifer at grass, And bellow like bulls.

12 Your mother hath turned very pale, She that bare you hath turned red,—Lo! the last of nations is—A desert, A parched land, and A waste plain.

13 <Because of the vexation of Yahweh> she shall not be inhabited, But shall become a complete desolation, Every one passing by Babylon shall be astonished and hiss over all her plagues. Set yourselves in array against Babylon round about. All ye who tread the bow, Shoot at her, do not spare so much as an arrow,—For against Yahweh hath she sinned. Raise a shout against her round about. She hath stretched forth her hand, Fallen are her buttresses, Torn down are her walls,—Because the avenging of Yahweh it is>

Take ye vengeance upon her, <As she hath done> do ye unto her.

14 Cut ye off the sower from Babylon, And him that graspeth the sickle, in the time of harvest.

15 From the face of the sword of the oppressor Each to his own people will they turn, and Each to his own land will they flee.

16 A sheep all alone is Israel, Lions have driven him away,—

17 At the first the king of Assyria devoured him, And here, at the last<Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon> hath broken his bones!

18 Therefore Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! bringing punishment against the king of Babylon, and against his land,—Just as I brought punishment against the king of Assyria.

19 So will I bring back Israel unto his own pasture, And he shall feed upon Carmel and Bashan; And <in the hill country of Ephraim and Gilead> shall his soul be satisfied.

20 <In those days, and in that time>

Declareth Yahweh, The iniquity of Israel shall be sought and there shall be none, And the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found; For I will grant pardon to them whom I suffer to remain.

21. Against the land of Merathaim go thou up against her, and against the inhabitants of Pekod. Lay waste and devote to destruction after them. Declareth Yahweh, and do according to all which I have commanded thee.

22. The sound of battle is in the earth, and a great destruction.

23. How is cut and broken, the hammer of all the earth!

24. I laid a snare for thee, yea and thou wast captured, O Babylon, when thou wast not aware, thou wast found out, yea and taken. For <Against Yahweh> hast thou contended.

25. Yahweh opened his armoury, and brought out his weapons of indignation.

26. Come ye against her from farthest parts; throw open her granaries, cast her up as heaps, and devote her to destruction, do not let her have a remnant.

27. Cut up all her bullocks, let them go down to the slaughter, alas for them! For their day hath come, their time for punishment.

28. The voice Of them who are in flight, and Of such as are escaping, out of the land of Babylon, to tell in Zion, The avenging of Yahweh our God, The avenging of his temple.

29. Publish against Babylon, ye chiefs of all who tread the bow—encamp against her round about. Let there be none to escape. Recompense to her according to her work, according to all which she did do ye to her.

30. For <Against Yahweh> hath she acted presumptuously. Against the Holy One of Israel.

31. Behold me! against thee, most insolent one, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts. For thy day hath come. Thy time for punishment.

32. So shall the most insolent one stumble and fall, and he shall have none to lift him up. And I will kindle a fire in his cities which shall devour all who are round about him.

33. Thus saith Yahweh of hosts— Oppressed were the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, together, and all who took them captive held them fast. Refused to let them go:

34. Their Redeemer can hold fast.

35. Yahweh of hosts is his name, He will thoroughly plead their plea, that He may quiet the earth, and disquiet the inhabitants of Babylon.

36. A sword is over the Chaldeans.

37. Yahweh of hosts is against the praters, And they shall be shewn to be foolish. A sword is against her heroes, And they shall be dismayed:

38. A sword is against his horses and against his chariots, and against all the rabble that are in her midst, and they shall become women,

39. A sword is against her treasures, And they shall be made a prey.

40. A drought is against her waters, And they shall be dried up.

41. Lo! a people coming in from the North, Yea a great nation, and many kings shall be roused up out of the remote parts of the earth;

42. <Bow and javelin> shall they grasp, [Cruel are they] and will not have compassion.
Flee out of the midst of Babylon,
And deliver ye every man his own life,
Be not cut off in her punishment,
For it is Yahweh's time of avenging,
<A recompense> is he repaying unto her.

A cup of gold was Babylon, in the hand of Yahweh,
Making drunk all the earth,
Of her wine have the nations drunk,
For this cause have the nations been acting as men who are mad.

Suddenly hath Babylon fallen, and been broken,
Howl ye over her,
Fetch balm for her pain,
If her pain is she shall be healed.

We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed,
Leave her, and let us go every one to his own land,
For her judgment reacheth unto the heavens,
And mounteth as far as the skies.

Yahweh hath brought forth our righteousness,
Come and let us relate in Zion, the work of Yahweh our God.

Polish the arrows,
Lay hold of the shields,
Yahweh hath roused the spirit of the kings of the Medes,
For his purpose is to destroy her,
For it is the avenging of Yahweh,
The avenging of his temple.

Against the walls of Babylon
Lift ye up a standard,
Strengthen ye the watch,
Station the watchmen,
Make ready the ambuscades,
For Yahweh hath both planned and also performed that which he had spoken against the inhabitants of Babylon.

O thou who dwellest upon many waters,
Who aboundest in treasures,
Come, hath thine end!
The measure of thine unrighteous gain!

Yahweh of hosts hath sworn, by his own soul:
Surely I have filled thee with men, as with locusts,
And they have answered against thee, with a shout.

Their voice like the sea will roar,
And on horses will they ride,
Set in array, as one man, for battle,
Against thee, O daughter of Babylon!

The king of Babylon hath heard the report of them,
And unnerve[d] are his hands,
Anguish hath seized him,
Wringing pain, as a woman in child-birth.

Lo! as a lion shall he come up from the majesty of the Jordan,
Unto the pasture perennial,
But I will wink— I will make them run away therefrom,
Who' then shall be the Chosen One whom <against it> I may set in charge?
For who' shall be like unto |me|?
And who' shall appoint |me| a |time|?
And who' is the Shepherd that shall stand before |me|?

Therefore hear ye
The counsel of Yahweh, which he hath counselled against Babylon,
And his devices which he hath devised against the land of the Chaldeans,
Surely the little ones of the flock shall drag them away,
Surely he will cause the pasture to be astounded over them.

At the noise of the taking of Babylon the earth trembled,
And |the outcry| among the nations was heard.

Thus saith Yahweh—
Behold me! stirring up against Babylon,
And against the inhabitants of the centre of them who rise up against me,
A wind that destroyeth;

And I will send to Babylon winnowers,
And they shall winnow her,
And shall empty her land,
For they are against her round about, in the day of calamity.

Let not the archer tare his bow,
Nor lift himself up in his coat of mail,
And do not spare her young men,
Devote to destruction all her host.

So shall they fall wounded, in the land of Chaldea,
Yea thrust through, in her streets,
For Israel and Judah have not been widowed of their God,
Of Yahweh of hosts,
But their land hath been filled with punishment for guilt, from the Holy One of Israel.

<He that Made the earth in his might,
Established the world in his wisdom,—
And <in his understanding> stretched out the heavens>
By the voice that he uttered there was a tumult of waters in the heavens,
And he caused vapours to ascend from the end of the earth,—
Lighthnings for the rain made he,
And brought forth wind out of his treasures.
Every son of earth had become too brutish to
know,—
Every goldsmith <hath been put to shame>
by a graven image,—
For  is his molten image,
Seeing there is no breath in them:
Vanity > they are,
A handiwork of mockery,—
In the time of their visitation shall they perish.
Not like these is the portion of Jacob,
For <the fashioner of all things> is he;
And the portion<sup>2</sup> of his inheritance,—
Yahweh of hosts is his name.
A war-club art thou for me,
Weapons of war;
Therefore will I
Beat down with thee—nations, and Destroy with thee—kingdoms; and Beat down with thee—the horse and his rider,— and
Beat down with thee—the chariot and its rider; and
Beat down with thee—man and woman, and Beat down with thee—elder and youth, and Beat down with thee—young man and virgin; and
Beat down with thee—the shepherd and his flock, and
Beat down with thee—the plowman and his yoke; — and
Beat down with thee—governors and deputies:
So will I recompense to Babylon,
And to all the inhabitants of Chaldea,
All their wickedness which they have committed against Zion, before your eyes,—
Declareth Yahweh.
Behold me! against thee, O destroying mountain, Declareth Yahweh,
That destroyest all the earth,—
Therefore will I stretch out my hand over thee,
And roll thee down from the crags,
And make of thee a burning mountain:
So shall they not fetch from thee,
A stone for a corner, nor
A stone for a foundation,—
For <desolations age-abiding> shalt thou become,
Declareth Yahweh.

Set ye up an ensign in the earth,
Blow ye a horn among the nations,
Hallow against her—nations,
Summon against her the kingdoms of Ararat,
Minni, and Ashkenaz,—
Set in charge against her a marshal,
Bring up cavalry like hairy locusts:
Hallow against her—nations,
With the kings of Media,
With <her> governors and all her deputies,—
And with all the land of his dominion:
Then did the land tremble, and was in pain,—
For the plans of Yahweh <had been established against Babylon>,
To make the land of Babylon an astonishment,
without inhabitant.

The heroes of Babylon have ceased to tight.
They have remained in the strongholds,
Parched<sup>3</sup> is their might.
They have become women,—
They have set fire to her habitations,
Broken' are her bars!
Runner to meet runner shall they run,
And teller to meet teller,—
To tell the king of Babylon.
That captured<sup>4</sup> is his city at the end!
and
The fords<sup>5</sup> have been seized, and
The reeds<sup>6</sup> have they burned with fire; and
The men of war<sup>7</sup> are dismayed!
For <thus> saith Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel,
The daughter of Babylon> is like a threshing-floor, at the time of treading her:
Yet a little> and the time of harvest shall overtake her.
Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon—
Hath devoured me,<sup>8</sup>
Hath vexed me,<sup>9</sup>
Hath set me down as an empty vessel,
He hath swallowed me<sup>10</sup> like a sea-
monster,
He hath filled his belly with my dainties,—
He hath driven me<sup>11</sup> away!
The violence done to me and to my flesh<sup>12</sup>
be upon Babylon!
Shall the inhabitress of Zion say,— Yea! my blood be upon<sup>13</sup> the inhabitant of Chaldea!
Shall Jerusalem say!"
Therefore saith Yahweh, Behold me! pleading thy cause, So then I will execute the avenging of thee; And will dry up her sea, And make dry her spring: Thus shall Babylon become— Heaps, A habitation of jackals, An astonishment, and A hissing, Without inhabitant. Together like wild lions shall they roar,— They have growled like lions' whelps. When they are heated> I will spread their banquet, And let them drink that they may become uproarious, So shall they sleep an age-abiding sleep and not wake,— Declareth Yahweh. I will bring them down As fat lambs to slaughter,— As rams, with he-goats. How hast Sheshach been captured! How hast the praise of all the earth been seized! How hast Babylon become an astonishment among the nations! The sea hath gone up over Babylon,— With the multitude of its rolling waves is she covered. Her cities have become an astonishment, A land parched up, and a waste plain,— A land wherein shall no man dwell', Nor pass through them a son of the earth-born! So will I bring punishment upon Bel in Babylon And will bring forth what he hath swallowed' out of his mouth, And the nations shall stream' unto him no more!— Even the wall of Babylon hath fallen! Come ye forth out of her midst, O my people, And deliver ye every man his own life,— Because of the glow of the anger of Yahweh. And let not your heart be timid', nor be ye afraid, Because of the report that is reported in the earth!' When there shall come in one year the report, And another year the report, With violence in the earth, and ruler upon ruler. Therefore lo! days coming when I will bring punishment upon the images of Babylon, And all her land shall turn pale,— Yea all her wounded shall fall in her midst. Then shall shout over Babylon—heavens and earth, and all who are therein,— For out of the North shall come to her the spoilers, Declareth Yahweh. Not only' hath Babylon caused the fall of the slain of Israel,— By Babylon also have fallen the slain of all the earth. Ye that have escaped the sword, depart, do not stand still,— Remember, from afar, Yahweh, Let Jerusalem come up on your heart:— We have turned pale, for we have heard a reproach, Confusion hath covered' our faces,— For aliens have entered upon the hallowed places of the house of Yahweh! Therefore lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, When I will bring punishment upon her images;* And throughout all her land shall the pierced' one groan. Though Babylon should mount' the heavens, And though she should fortify her strong high-place> From me should come spoilers unto her, Declareth Yahweh. A voice of outcry from Babylon! And a great crash from the land of the Chaldeans! For Yahweh is spoiling Babylon! And will destroy out of her the loud voice,— Though their waves have roared like many' waters, Been uttered the loud boast of their voice. For there hath come upon her—upon Babylon a spoiler, And captured' are their heroes, And broken' are their bows,— For a God of recompenses is Yahweh, He will surely repay]. Then will I make drunk— Her princes and her wise men, Her governors, and her deputies, and her heroes, And they shall sleep an age-abiding sleep, and not wake,— Declareth the King, <Yahweh of hosts> is his name.
Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—
|| The broad walls of Babylon shall be laid utterly bare,
And their lofty gates with fire shall be burned,—
And peoples shall labour for emptiness,
And || for the fire shall weary themselves.

§ 50. Seraiah commissioned to take a Scroll, containing all the Prophecies of Jeremiah against Babylon, and on his Arrival in that City to attach a Stone and cast it into the Euphrates, as a Symbol of Babylon's Fate.

The word which Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah b son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, when he went with Zedekiah king of Judah into Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign,—now || Seraiah || was travelling-marshial. 69 So Jeremiah wrote all the calamity which was to come unto Babylon, in one scroll; even all these words which have been written against Babylon. 70 Then said Jeremiah unto Seraiah,—

<When thou comest into Babylon> then shalt thou look out and read all these words; and thou shalt say—

O Yahweh! for thou hast spoken against this place, to cut it off, That there be in it no inhabitant, Neither man nor beast,— But || desolations age-abiding shall it become !

And it shall be <when thou hast made an end of reading this scroll> that thou shalt bind thereunto a stone, and cast it in the midst of the Euphrates. 72 Then shalt thou say,—

<In like manner> shall Babylon sink and not rise. Because of the calamity which I am about to bring thereupon:
So shall they perish.

<Thus far> are || the words of Jeremiah. 73

§ 51. A supplementary Account of Zedekiah's Reign, of the Siege of Jerusalem, of the Precious Vessels and Leading Men carried away, of the several successive Deportations to Babylon, and of the changed lot of Jehoiachin in Babylon. (Cp. chap. xxxix., 2 K. xxv.)

52 1 <Twenty-one years old> was Zedekiah when he began to reign, and <eleven years> reigned he, in Jerusalem,—and his mother's name was Hamutal d daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. 2 And he did that which was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh,—according to all that Jephoiaim had done. 3 For it was <because the anger of Yahweh> had come against Jerusalem and Judah, until he had cast them' out from his presence> that Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

And it came to pass <in the ninth year of his reign in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month> that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, and all his forces against Jerusalem, and encamped against it,—and he built against it a siege-wall round about. 4 And the city came into the siege, until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah.

<In the fourth month, on the ninth of the month, when the famine had become severe in the city,—and there had come to be no bread for the people of the land> 2 then was the city [broken up], and all the men of war, beginning to flee, went forth out of the city by night, by way of the gate between the two walls which was by the garden of the king (the Chaldeans being near the city round about),—and they went the way towards the Waste Plain. 6 And the force of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and overtook Zedekiah, in the Waste Plains of Jericho,—and || all his forces || was scattered from him. 7 So they seized the king, and brought him up unto the king of Babylon at Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—and he pronounced upon him sentences of judgment. 8 And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah, before his eyes,—moreover also <all the princes of Judah> slew he in Riblah; 11 and <the eyes of Zedekiah> put he out,—and bound him with fetters of bronze, and the king of Babylon took him to Babylon, and put him in prison—until the day of his death.

And <in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month>, || the same || was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon > came Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executions, who stood before the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem; 13 and he burned the house of Yahweh, and the house of the king,—yes <all the houses of Jerusalem, even every great man's house> burned he with fire; 14 and <all the walls of Jerusalem, round about> did all the force of the Chaldeans who were with the chief of the royal executions, || break down]. 15 And <some of the poor of the people, and the residue of the people who were left in the city, and the disheartened who had fallen away unto the king of Babylon, and the residue of the multitude> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executions, || carry away captive]. 16 But <others of the poor of the land> did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executions, leave', for vinedressers and for husbandmen.

And <the pillars of bronze that pertained to the house of Yahweh, and the stands, and the sea of bronze which was in the house of Yahweh> did the Chaldeans || break in pieces,—and they carried away all the bronze of them, to Babylon; 18 and <the caldrons
and the shovels and the snuffers and the dashing bowls, and the spoons, even all the utensils of bronze wherewith ministration used to be made> did they take away; 19 and <the basins and the censers and the dashing bowls and the caldrons and the lamps and the spoons and the cups, which were of gold, in' gold, and which were of silver, in' silver> did the chief of the royal executioners take away. 20 <As for the two pillars, the one sea, and the twelve oxen of bronze which were under the stands' which King Solomon had made for the house of Yahweh> ||without weight|| was the bronze of all these things. 21 Now <as for the pillars> ||eighteen cubits|| was the height of each' pillar, and ||a line of twelve cubits|| compassed it about, and ||the thickness thereof|| was four fingers' breadth; and 22 there was ||a capital|| upon it ||of bronze||, and ||the height of each' capital|| was five cubits, with lattice-work and pomegranates upon the capital round about ||the whole|| was of bronze, and <like these> were the second pillar and the pomegranates. 23 And the pomegranates were ninety-six on a side, ||all the pomegranates were|| were a hundred, upon the lattice-work, round about.

And the chief of the royal executioners took away Seriah, the first' priest, and Zephaniah, the second' priest, and the three keepers of the entrance-hall; 24 and <of the city> took he one eunuch who was in charge over the men of war, and seven men of them who used to watch the face of the king, who were found in the city, and the scribe of the prince of the host, who used to muster the people of the land, and sixty men of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. 25 And <when Nebuzaradan, chief the royal executioners, had taken' them, and brought them unto the king of Babylon, at Riblah> 27 then did the king of Babylon smite' them and put them to death at Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—thus carried he Judah captive, away from off their own soil.

28 ||This|| is the people, whom Nebuchadrezzar carried away captive,—<In the seventh year—of them of Judah> three thousand and twenty-three; 29 <In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar—out of Jerusalem> eight hundred and thirty-two souls; 30 <In the three-and-twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar> Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners, took away captive, ||of them of Judah|| seven hundred and forty-five souls: ||All the souls|| were four thousand and six hundred.

And it came to pass <in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth of the month> that Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the year he began to reign, ||lifted up|| the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, and brought him forth out of prison; 32 and spake with him comfortable words, and set his throne above the throne of the kings who were with him in Babylon; 33 so he changed his prison garments, and used to eat bread before his face continually, all the days of his life. 34 And ||his allowance|| was a continual' allowance, given him from the king of Babylon, the portion of the day upon its own day, until the day of his death,—all the days of his life.

LAMENTATIONS.

1 How' is seated alone, the city that abounded with people,
Hath become as a widow,—
She who abounded among the nations,
Was a princess among provinces,
Hath come under tribute.*

2 She weepeth sore in the night, and ||her tear|| is on her cheek,
She hath none to comfort her, of all her lovers,—
||All her friends|| have betrayed her,
Have become her foes.
* Chapters i.—iv. alphabetical: p. 607, ante.

3 Carried away captive is Judah—
Because of oppression; and
Because of great servitude,
||She|| hath remained among the nations,
Hath found no place of rest,—
||All her pursuers|| have overtaken her, between straits.

4 The ways to Zion are mourning,
Because none come to her appointed feasts,
||All her gates|| are desolate,
||Her priests|| are sighing,—
||Her virgins|| are grieved.
And <she> it is bitter for her'.
LAMENTATIONS I. 5—22.

Her adversaries have become chief,

[For they have transgressed, because of the multitude of their transgressions, —

Her children have gone into captivity, before the adversary.

Thus hath gone forth from the daughter of Zion, All that adorned her, —

Her princes have become like harts that have found no pasture, And have gone strengthless before the pursuer.

Jerusalem hath remembered

In the days of her humiliation and her floggings —

All her precious things, which have existed from the days of old, —

<Now that her people have been falling into the hands of the adversary, with none to help her> —

The adversaries have seen her, have mocked over her sabbath-keepings.

Jerusalem hath grievously sinned,

For this cause, <unto exile> hath she been delivered, —

All who used to honour her have despised her, for they have despised her unseemliness,

Yea, she herself hath sighed, and turned back.

Her impurity is in her skirts,

She hath not remembered her hereafter,

Therefore hath she come down wonderfully, None to comfort her, —

Behold, O Yahweh, my humiliation, That the foe hath made himself great.

Hath the adversary spread out, over all her precious things, —

For she saw that [the nations] entered her sanctuary,

As to whom thou didst command they should not enter — in the convection unto thee!

All her people are sighing, seeking bread,

They have given their precious things for food, to bring back life, —

Behold, O Yahweh, and discern, that I have become worthless.

Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by? Look around and see, whether there is pain like my pain, which is severely dealt out to me, —

In that Yahweh hath caused grief, in the day of the glories of his anger?

<From on high> sent he fire, among my bones, and laid them prostrate, —

He spread out a net for my feet, he made me turn back, He made me desolate, <all the day> faint.

The yoke of my transgressions hath been bound by his hand —

They have intertwined themselves, have come up on my neck, it hath paralysed my strength, —

My Lord hath delivered me into the hands of those against whom I cannot rise up.

My Lord hath flouted at all my magnates in my midst,

He hath called against me a host, to crush my young men, —

<A winepress> hath My Lord trodden, to the virgin, the daughter of Judah.

<For these things> am I [weeping, 'Mine eye, mine eye'] is running down with waters, For <far from me> is any who could comfort, could bring back my life, —

My sons are amazed, for strong is the foe.

Zion hath spread forth, her hands, there is none to comfort her,

Yahweh hath, given command, respecting Jacob, unto them who surround him — his adversaries, —

Jerusalem hath become as a removed woman, in their midst.

Righteous is Yahweh, for <against his bidding> had I rebelled, —

Hear, I pray you, all ye peoples, and see my pain, —

My virgins and my young men have gone into exile.

I called to my lovers, [they, deceived me,

[My priests and mine elders, in the city], have breathed their last, —

For they sought them food, that they might bring back their life.

See, O Yahweh, that I am in distress, [Mine inward parts are in ferment,

My heart is turned within me, —

For I have obstinately rebelled, —

Without] beseath the sword, —

[Without] is like death!

They have heard — that [sighing am I, [and am saying] —

There is none to comfort me,

All my foes — having heard of my calamity — have rejoiced,

Because [thou hast] hast done it, —

Thou hast brought in the day thou didst proclaim, So let them become like me.

Let all their wickedness come in before thee,

And deal thou severely with them,

According as thou hast dealt severely with me, — for all my transgressions;

For many are my sighs, and my heart is sick.

28 1 How could My Lord, in his anger,[enshroud in gloom]
The daughter of Zion?
Have cast from the heavens to the earth,
The beauty of Israel!
And not have remembered his footstool?* In the day of his anger?

2 2 My Lord hath swallowed up—without pity—
All the pastures of Jacob,
Hath laid waste—in his indignation—
The strongholds of the daughter of Judah,
Hath brought them down to the ground,—
Hath profaned the kingdom, and the princes thereof.

3 3 He hath broken off—in the glow of his anger—
The whole horn of Israel,
Hath turned back his right hand, from the face of the foe,—
And hath kindled against Jacob, a very fire of flame,
Devouring round about.

4 4 He hath trodden his bow like a foe,
His right hand erect as an adversary,
And hath slain all them who delighted the eye,—
<In the home of the daughter of Zion> hath he poured out, as fire, his indignation.

5 5 My Lord hath become like a foe.
Hath swallowed up Israel,
Hath swallowed up all her castles, ruined his strongholds,— and Hath caused to abound, in the daughter of Judah, lamentation and mourning.

6 6 Thus hath he destroyed, like a garden4 his pavilion,
Hath laid waste his place of assembly,—
Yahweh hath caused to be forgotten, in Zion, The appointed assembly and the sabbath,
And hath spurned, in the indignation of his anger,
The king and the priest.

7 7 My Lord hath rejected his altar,
Hath abhorr’ed his sanctuary,
Hath delivered, into the hand of the foe, the walls of her castles,—
<A voice> have they uttered in the house of Yahweh,
As on the day of an appointed assembly.

8 Yahweh hath devised to lay in ruins,
The wall of the daughter of Zion,
He hath stretched out a line,
He hath not turned back his hand From swallowing up,—
Thus hath he caused to mourn—rampart* and wall,
Together’ have they languished!

9 Her gates have sunk in the earth;
He hath destroyed and broken in pieces, her bars,—
Her king and her princes are among the nations,
There is no instruction,
Even her prophets have found no vision, from Yahweh.

10 Seated on the ground, in silence,
Are the elders of the daughter of Zion,
They have lifted up dust on their head,
Have girded themselves with sackcloth,—
Bowed down to the ground is the head,
Of the virgins of Jerusalem.*

11 Blinded with tears are mine eyes,
In ferment is my body,*
Poured out to the earth is my grief,*
For the sore hurt of the daughter of my people,—
When child and suckling are swooning,
In the broadways of the city.

12 <To their mothers> they keep saying,
Where are corn and wine?
Swooning off, like one thrust through,
In the broadways of the city,
Pouring out their life* into the bosom of their mothers.

13 How shall I solemnly admonish thee?
What shall I liken to thee,
Thou daughter of Jerusalem?
What shall I compare with thee, that I may comfort thee,
Thou virgin, daughter of Zion?
For <great as the sea> is thy grievous injury.
Who can heal thee?

14 Thy prophets have had visions for thee,
False and foolish,
And have not unveiled thine iniquity,
To turn back thy captivity,—
Yea they have had visions for thee,
Oracles of falsehood, and enticements!

15 All passing by, have clapped, over thee, their hands*,
Have hissed and wagged their head
Over the daughter of Jerusalem,—[saying]
Is this the city, of which men used to say—
The perfection of beauty!
A joy to the whole earth!

16 All thy foes have opened wide, over thee, their mouth*.
They have hissed, and gnashed their teeth,
They have said—
We have swallowed [her] up!
Surely [this] is the day for which we have waited,
We have found! We have seen!

* Op. Ps. xcix. 5. 41. : "like a thief—
* Sep. : "like a vine"; but

71 Yahweh hath done what he thought Hath carried out his word, wherewith he gave charge in the days of old,
Hath thrown down, and not spared,—
Thus hath he let the enemy rejoice over thee,
Hath raised high the horn of thine adversaries.*

3 18 Their heart hath made outcry unto My Lord,—
O wall of the daughter* of Zion—
Let tears run down as a torrent day and night,
Do not give thyself relief,—
Let not the weeping of thine eye cease!

7 19 Arise, cry out in the night,
<At the beginning of the watches> pour out,
like waters, thy heart,
Right before the face of My Lord,—
Lift up, above thee! the palms of thy hands,
For the life of thy children,
Who are swooning for hunger, at the top of every street of all the streets!

7 20 See, O Yahweh, and do consider, to whom' thou hast acted thus severely,—
Will women* devour their own fruit* — the children they have handled?—
Shall priest* and prophet* be slain in the sanctuary of My Lord?!

7 21 Youth and elder have lain down on the ground in the streets, —
My virgins and my young men have fallen by the sword,—
Thou hast slain, in the day of thine anger,
Thou hast slaughtered, hast not spared!

7 22 Wilt thou proclaim, like the day of an appointed meeting—
My tears round about? b
When there was not— in the day of the anger of Yahweh—fugitive or survivor,—
<Those whom I dandled and reared> ||my foe;| hast destroyed.

3 1 ||I am the man, that hath seen affliction,|
By the rod of his indignation;
And not light;

3 2 <Me> hath he driven out and brought into darkness,
And not light;
3 3 Surely <against me> doth he again and again
turn his hand All the day.

LAMENTATIONS IV. 1—22.

1 How is dimmed the gold!
   Changed the most fine gold!
Poured out are the stones of the sanctuary,
At the top of all the streets.

2 <The precious sons of Zion.> They who were weighed against pure gold>
How are they accounted as earthen pitchers,
The work of the hands of the potter!

3 [Even wild dogs] draw out the breast,
Give suck to their whelps—
The daughter of my people hath become cruel,
Like the ostriches in the desert.

4 The tongue of the suckling cleaveth to the roof of his mouth for thirst,—
Young children have asked bread,
There was none to break it to them.

5 They who used to eat delicacies,
Are desolated in the streets,—
They who used to be carried on crimson
Have embraced heaps of refuse.

6 And the punishment of the daughter of my people
Hath grown greater than the punishment of Sodom,—
Which was overthrown as in a moment,
When no hands had been laid violently upon her.

7 Purer were her Nazirites than snow,
Whiter were they than milk,—
More ruddy, in body, than coral,
<A sapphire> was their beauty of form.

8 <Darker than a coal> is their visage,
They are not known in the streets—
Their skin shrivelleth on their bones,
Is withered, became like a stick.

9 Better are the slain of the sword,
Than the slain of famine,—
For these pine away, stricken through,
Wanting the produce of the field.

10 The hands of compassionate women
Have cooked their own children,—
They have served as nourishment to them,
In the grievous injury of the daughter of my people.

11 Yahweh hath completed his indignation,
Hath poured out the glow of his anger:
And hath kindled a fire in Zion,
Which hath devoured her foundations.

12 Neither the kings of the earth, nor any of the inhabitants of the world, believed
That an adversary or an enemy should enter the gates of Jerusalem!

13 [It is] for the sins of her prophets,
The iniquities of her priests,—
Who have been pouring out, in her midst,
The blood of the righteous!

14 They have wandered—blind—in the streets,
Have defiled themselves with blood;
So that men may not touch their garments.

15 Turn aside! Undeal!
Have they cried to them,
Turn aside! Turn aside! Do not touch!
<Because they have fled, yea, wandered> Men said among the nations,
They will not again tarry;

16 <The face of Yahweh> hath scattered them,
He will look them out no more:
<The persons of the priests> they have not respected,—
To the elders have they shown no favour.

17 Still shall our eyes fail,
For our help that is vain:
<In our watchtower> have we watched—
For a nation that will not save.

18 They have laid snares for our steps,
That we cannot walk in our own broadways:
Drawn near hath our end, Fulfilled are our days,
Yea arrived hath our end.

19 Swifter are our pursuers, than the eagles of the heavens,—
<Over the mountains> have they come hotly after us,
<In the wilderness> have they lain in wait for us.

20 [The fragrance of our nostrils,]
The Anointed of Yahweh,
Hath been captured in their pits,—
Of whom we had said—
<In his shade> shall we live among the nations.

21 Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom,
Thou inhabitter in the land of Uz,—
<Even unto thee> shall the cup pass along,
Thou shalt be drunken, and expose thy shame.

22 Completed is thy punishment, O daughter of Zion,
He will no more carry thee away captive,—
He hath punished thine iniquity, O daughter of Edom,
He hath stripped the veil from off thy sins.

5 Remember, O Yahweh, what hath befallen us,
Look around, and see our reproach:
11 Women—in Zion—were raviished,
   Virgins—not in the cities of Judah!
2 Our inheritance—turned over to foreigners,
   Our houses—to aliens.
Young men have lifted,
The faces of elders— not honoured.
3 Our mothers are widows indeed.
   Our water—for silver—have we drunk,
   Our wood—for a price—cometh in.
   Our wood—under wood—have staggered.
Young men from their music.
4 Our fathers—sinned, and are not,
   Their iniquities—have borne.
Elders have ceased,
   The joy of our hearts,
   Finished our dance.
5 Fallen is the crown of our head.
   Surely wool to us, for we have sinned.
   For this cause the faint is our heart.
   For these things dimmed are our eyes:
6 Because of Mount Zion, which is desolate,
   Jackals have gone prowling therein.
   Thou, O Yahweh, unto thyself,
   Tyre throne from generation to generation:
   Wherefore shouldst thou perpetually forget us?
   Forsake us, to length of days?
7 Bring us back, O Yahweh, unto thyself,
   And we will come back!
   Renew our days, as of old;
   For though thou hast not utterly rejected us,
   Thou art wroth with us—exceedingly!

§ 1. A Lightning Throne seen by the River Chebar.

1 And it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, I being in the midst of them of the captivity, by the river Chebar— that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God.

4 So then I beheld, and lo! a tempestuous wind coming out of the North, a great cloud, and a fire catching hold of itself, and it had a brightness round about, and <out of the midst thereof> as burnished copper b to look upon, out of the midst of the fire; and <out of the midst thereof> a likeness of four living ones,— and this was their appearance, <the likeness of a man> had they; and <four faces each, and four wings each> had they; and <their feet> were straight feet,—and <the sole of their feet> was like the sole of the foot of a calf, but sparkling, as shining bronze to look upon; and <the hands of a man> were under their wings, on their four sides,—and <their faces and their wings] belonged to the four of them: 9 joined to each other were their wings—they turned not when they went, each one straight before him did they go; 10 and the likeness of their faces was the face of a man, with the face of a lion to the right of the four of them, and the face of an ox, on the left of the four of them, and the face of an eagle also had they four; 11 and their wings were spread above, two of each joined another, and two covered their bodies. 12 And each one, straight before him, did they go; whirlwind was the spirit that they went, they turned not when they went. 13 As for the likeness of the living ones their appearance was like live coals of fire, burning up like the appearance of torches, the same went to and fro between the living ones, and the fire had brightness, and out of the fire went forth light. 14 And the living ones ran and returned, like the appearance of a flash of lightning.

And I looked at the living ones, and lo! one wheel upon the earth beside the living ones for each of his four faces. 15 The appearance of the wheels and of their structure was like a Tarshish-stone to look upon, and they four had one likeness, and their appearance and their structure were just as would be a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

Upon their four sides, when they went, did they go, they turned not when they went. 16 As for their rings, they were so high, that they were terrible, and their rings full of eyes round about had they four. 17 And when the living ones went, the wheels went beside them, and when the living ones were lifted up from the earth the wheels were lifted up: 20 whirlwind was the spirit that was minded to go they went—thither was the spirit minded to go, and the wheels would be lifted up along with them, for the spirit of the living one was in the wheels: 21 when they went these stood, and when they stood these stood, and when they were lifted up from off the earth the wheels were lifted up [along with them], for the spirit of the living one was in the wheels.

And there was a likeness, over the heads of the living one—an expanse, like terrible crystal to look upon, stretched forth over their heads above. 22 And under the expanse their wings were straight, one towards another, each one had two, covering on this side and each one had two, covering on that side [their bodies].

And I heard the sound of their wings, as the sound of many waters, as the sound of the Almighty, when they went, the sound of a storm, as the sound of a host, as the sound of a host, when they stood they let down their wings. 23 And there was a voice above the expanse that was over their head, when they stood they let down their wings.

And the expanse that was over their heads, as the appearance of a sapphire-stone was the likeness of a throne, and upon the likeness of a throne was a likeness, as the appearance of a man, upon it above.

And I saw, was burned copper to look upon as the appearance of fire within it round about, from the appearance of his loins and upwards, and from the appearance of his loins and downwards saw I, as the appearance of fire, and he had brightness round about: 20 the appearance of the bow which is in a cloud, on a day of rain was the appearance of the brightness round about, that was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of Yahweh, and when I saw I fell upon my face, and heard a voice of one speaking.

§ 2. One who speaks sends Ezekiel to Them of the Captivity.

1 And he said unto me,—

Son of man,

Stand upon thy feet, that I may speak with thee.

2 Then the Spirit entered into me, as soon as he spake unto me, and it caused me to stand upon my feet, and I heard one speaking unto me.

3 And he said unto me—

Son of man,

I am sending thee unto the sons of Israel, unto rebellious nations, which have rebelled against me, they, and their fathers have transgressed against me, until this very day; and it is unto such sons—of shameless face, and emboldened heart that I am sending thee, therefore shalt thou say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh.

And they whether they will hear or whether they will forbear, for a perverse house they are shall then know that a prophet hath been in their midst.

But thou, son of man Be not afraid of them, Nor of their words be afraid. Though thorns and thistles are about thee, And amongst prickly plants thou dost dwell,

Of their words be not afraid, nor At their faces be thou dismayed, For a perverse house they are!
Thou shalt therefore speak my words unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, For perverseness they are.

Thou therefore, son of man, hear what I am speaking unto thee, become not perverse, like the perverse house — open thy mouth, and eat that which I am giving unto thee.

So I looked, and lo! a hand put forth unto me, and lo! therein, a scroll; and he spread it out before me, and it was written upon the front and the back, — and there were written thereon, lamentation and sighing, and wailing.

Then said he unto me, Son of man, What thou findest eat, eat this roll, and go speak unto the house of Israel.

So I opened my mouth, and he caused me to eat this roll. Then said he unto me, Son of man, Thy belly shall cause thou to eat, and thy bowels shall fill thou with this roll, which I am giving unto thee. So I did eat, and it became in my mouth as honey for sweetness.

Then said he unto me, Son of man, Go get thee unto the house of Israel, and thou shalt speak with my words unto them. For not unto a people deep of lip and heavy of tongue art thou sent — but unto the house of Israel: not unto many peoples, deep of lip and heavy of tongue, whose words thou couldst not understand; surely if unto them I had sent thee, they would have hearkened unto thee. But the house of Israel will not be willing to hearken unto thee, for they are not willing to hearken unto me; — for all the house of Israel are bold of forehead and hard of heart.

Lo! I have made thy face bold, like as their faces; and thy forehead bold, like as their forehead. A Adamsant, harder than flint, have I made thy forehead; thou shalt not fear them, neither shalt thou be dismayed at their faces.

For perverseness they are!

Then said he unto me, — Son of man, All my words which I shall speak unto thee receive thou into thy heart, and in thine ears hear thou; then go get thee unto them of the captivity, unto the sons of thy people, and thou shalt speak unto them, and say unto them, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

Then the Spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me the sound of a great rushing:— Blessed be the glory of Yahweh, From his place! Yea the sound of the wings of the living ones, gently touching each other, and the sound of the wheels along with them, seven the sound of a great rushing! So the Spirit lifted me up, and took me away, and I went bitterly, in the rage of my spirit, but the hand of Yahweh upon me] was strong.

§ 3. Ezekiel commences his Mission at Tel-Abib — First "Watchman" Illustration. (Comp. chaps. xviii., xxxiii.)

Thus came I unto them of the captivity, at Tel-Abib, who were dwelling towards the river Chebar, and I dwelt where they were dwelling; [yea I dwelt there seven days,] stunned in their midst.

And it came to pass at the end of seven days that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: Son of man,

A watchman have I appointed thee, to the house of Israel, — and thou shalt hear, at my mouth, a message, and shalt warn them [from me].

<When I say to the lawless man— Thou shalt surely die,> and thou hast not given him warning, neither hast spoken to warn the lawless man from his lawless way, to save himself alive> [the same lawless man] in his iniquity shall die, but [his blood] at thy hand will I require. Whereas <when thou hast warned a lawless man, and he hath not turned from his lawlessness, and from his lawless way> he: [in his iniquity] shall die, but [thou] hast delivered [thine own soul].

And when a righteous man hath turned from his righteousness, and committed perversity, and I have suffered a stumbling-block to be laid before him> [he] shall die, — though thou hast not warned him > [in his sin] shall he die, neither shall be remembered his righteous deeds which he hath done, but [his blood] at thy hand will I require; whereas <when thou hast warned a righteous man, That a righteous man [must not sin], and the [he] hath not sinned> he shall surely live] in that he took warning, and [thou] hast delivered [thine own soul].

18. Or, [turning "speech" into "narrative:" "And the Spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me a great rushing sound, — when the glory of Yahweh from its place," Cp. M.T. chap. p. 4. 19—G.N. The difference results from the change of a single consonant ("from" for "for").}

20. So read; and so both written and read in some cod. (E. 3. ear. pr. edns., Aram. Sep. and Syr.) a perverseness: M.C.T. has: "im prop. or "righteousness": but read: "righteousness" (or "righteousness") in some cod. (E. 1. ear. pr. edns., both written and read in the plural — G.N.)
Then came upon me there, the hand of Yahweh,—and he said unto me,

Arise, go forth into the valley, and <there> will I speak with thee.

So I arose, and went forth into the valley, and lo! there, the glory of Yahweh, standing, like the glory which I saw by the river Chebar,—and I fell upon my face.

Then the Spirit entered into me, and caused me to stand upon my feet,—and he spake with me, and said unto me,

Go in, shut thyself up, in the midst of thine own house. And <thou—O son of man> lo! they have put upon thee bands, and they will bind thee therewith,—so that thou go not forth in their midst; <thy tongue also> will I cause to cleave unto the roof of thy mouth, so shalt thou be dumb, and not be to them a reprover.—

For  they are! But <when I speak with thee> I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,—<He that is minded to hear> let him hear,
And <he that is minded to forbear> let him forbear!

For  they are!

1 [Thou] therefore, O son of man,
Take thee a tile, and lay it before thee,—and pourtray thereon a city, even Jerusalem.

2 Then shalt thou lay siege against it. And build up against it a siege-wall, And cast up against it a mound,—And set against it camps, And place against it battering-rams, round about.

3 [Thou] therefore, take thee a pan of iron, and set it for a wall of iron, between thee and the city,—then shalt thou direct thy face against it, and it shall come into siege, and thou shalt lay siege to it,  shall it be' to the house of Israel.

4 [Thou] therefore, lie thou on thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it,—<during the number of the days which thou shalt lie thereon> shalt thou bear their punishment.

5 [I] therefore, have appointed thee the years of their punishment, by the number of days, a hundred and ninety days,—so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

And <when thou hast ended these> then shalt thou lie, on thy right side, a second' time, and shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah,—<forty days, one day for each year> have I appointed thee.

7 Thus then <unto the siege of Jerusalem> shalt thou direct thy face, with thine arm made bare,—so shalt thou prophesy against it. And lo! I have laid upon thee—bands,—and thou shalt not turn thee from thine one side to thine other, until thou have ended the days of thy siege.

9 [Thou] therefore, take thee wheat and barley and peas and lentils and millet and spelt, and put them in one vessel, and make them ready for thee as bread,—<during the number of days which thou' art lying on thy side> a hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat it; and thy food, which thou shalt eat: shall be by weight, twenty shekels a day,—<from time to time> shalt thou eat it; and <water, by measure> shalt thou drink, the sixth part of a hin,—from time to time shalt thou drink; and  shalt thou eat it, and <the same, with dung proceeding from man> shalt thou bake, before their eyes.

11 Then said Yahweh,

<In like manner> shall the sons of Israel eat their bread, defiled,—among the nations, whither I will drive them.

12 Then said I,

Ah! My Lord, Yahweh, lo! <my person hath not been defiled>: <neither of what hath died of itself, nor of what hath been torn in pieces> have I eaten, from my youthful days even until now, neither hath come into my mouth' the flesh of a foul thing.

13 So then he said unto me,

See, I have granted thee, cow's dung for man's dung,—and thou shalt prepare thy bread thereupon.

14 And he said unto me,

Son of man, Behold me! breaking the staff of bread in Jerusalem,

So shall they eat bread by weight, and with anxious care,

And <water, by measure, and in astonishment> shall they drink:

—that they may lack bread and water and be astonished one with another, and pine away in their punishment.

§ 5. The Prophet's own Hair, shorn, divided, chopped up and burned, a Symbol of the Dispersion of the People.

for weighing, and shalt divide the hair. a
A third part (in the fire) shalt thou burn, in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege are fulfilled;—and thou shalt take a third part, thou shalt smite it with the cutting instrument, round about it, and a third part shalt thou scatter to the wind, and a sword will I make bare after them; and thou shalt take from thence a few in number, and shalt bind them in thy skirts; and of them again take, and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire,—from thence shall go forth a fire, unto all the house of Israel.

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
In the midst of the nations I placed her,—and of the countries round about her;
But she hath changed my regulations into lawlessness, more than the nations, And my statutes, more than the countries which are round about her, For my regulations have they rejected, And in my statutes have they not walked.

Therefore:
Because ye have become more rebellious than the nations who are round about you,
In my statutes have not walked, And my regulations have not done, And according to the regulations of the nations which are round about you have not done:

Therefore:
Therefore saith My Lord, Yahweh,
I am against thee, even I. Therefore will I execute in thy midst judgments, in the eyes of the nations;
Yea I will execute upon thee that which I have not executed, And like unto which I will not execute again,—Because of all thine abominations.
Therefore fathers will eat sons in thy midst, And sons will eat fathers,—And I will execute upon thee judgments, and will scatter the whole remnant of thee, to every wind.

Therefore; as I live,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,—Surely because my sanctuary thou hast defiled, with all thy detestable things, and with all thine abominations;
Even I also will cut off, and mine eye shall not spare; Yea even I will not pity.

§ 6. Against the Mountains of Israel.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
Son of man, Set thy face against the mountains of Israel,—and prophesy unto them: and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of My Lord, Yahweh,—
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
To the mountains and to the hills, to the hollows and to the valleys,—Behold me!
I am bringing upon you a sword, And I will destroy your high places; And your altars shall be laid waste, And your sun-pillars shall be broken in pieces,—And I will cause your slain to fall before your manufactored gods.
And I will lay the carcases of the sons of Israel, before their manufactured gods, and will scatter your bones, round about your altars.

In all your dwelling-places, the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places shall be made desolate, to the end your altars may be laid waste and become desolate, and your manufactured gods be broken in pieces and cease, and your sun-pillars be cut down, and your handiworks be abolished.

And the slain shall fall in your midst, so shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

Yet will I leave a remnant, in that ye shall have such as are escaped of the sword throughout the nations, when ye be scattered throughout the lands.

Then shall they who have escaped of you remember me, among the nations whither they have been carried captive, in that I have broken their adulterous heart, which hath turned aside from me, and their eyes which have adulterously gone after their manufactured gods, so shall they become lost home in their own sight, for the wicked things which they have done in all their abominations.

Then shall they know that I am Yahweh: not in vain had threatened to bring upon them this calamity.

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh: Smite with thy hand, and stamp with thy foot, and say, Alas! regarding all the wicked abominations of the house of Israel, in that by sword, by famine, and by pestilence shall they fall:

He that is far off by pestilence shall die, and he that is near by the sword shall fall, and he that is left and is besieged by the famine shall die; thus will I make an end of mine indignation against them.

So shall ye know that I am Yahweh: in that their slain are in the midst of their manufactured gods, on every side of their altars.

Upon every high hill, in all the tops of the mountains, and under every green tree, and under every tangled oak.
The place where they offered a satisfying odour to all their manufactured gods.

Thus will I stretch out my hand upon them, and make the land a greater waste and devastation than the desert toward Diblah, throughout all their dwelling-places, and they shall know that I am Yahweh.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Thou therefore, O son of man, thus saith My Lord Yahweh, to the soil of Israel there is an end.
The end hath come upon the four skirts of the land.

Now is the end upon thee, therefore will I send mine anger against thee, and judge thee according to thy ways, and lay upon thee all thine abominations, and mine eye shall not shield thee.

Neither will I pity, for thy ways upon thee will I lay, and thine abominations in thy midst shall be found, so shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh: A calamity, a sole calamity! lo! it hath come.

An end hath come, come hath the end, it hath roused itself upon thee, Lo! it hath come.
The circle hath come round unto thee, O inhabitant of the land, the time hath come.
The day of consternation hath drawn near, and not the joyful shout of the mountains.

Now shortly will I pour out mine indignation upon thee, and will bring to an end mine anger against thee, and will judge thee according to thy ways, and will lay upon thee all thine abominations, and mine eye shall not shield thee.

Neither will I have pity, according to thy ways unto thee will I render, and thine abominations in thy midst shall be found, so shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

So (with a "D" in many MSS. w. 10 ear. pr. edns., Aram., Sep., Syr., and Vul., but in other cod. there is a Massoretic note that one school of Massoretes has "Riblah," with an "R" and the other school, "Diblah," G. N. For "D" and "R," See Table I., p. 29, ante.)

Some cods. (w. 4 ear. pr. edns. and Aram.): "Calamity after calamity"—G. N., N.B.: The small diff. between "shar" "one (sole)" and "shar after," in Table I., p. 29, ante.
Lo! the day,
Lo! it hath come,—
The circle hath gone forth,
The sceptre hath blossomed,
Insolence hath sprouted:

Violence hath risen up as a sceptre of lawlessness,
There are none of them,
And none of their multitude,
And none of their thongs,
And no lamentation over them. {a}

The time hath arrived,
The day hath arrived,
<The buyer> let him not rejoice, and
<The seller> let him not mourn,—
For indignation is against all her multitude.

For <the seller> unto that which is to be sold shall not return, though <yet, among the living> were their life,—for the vision is against all her multitude.
He shall not return, and no man shall strengthen his life.

They have blown the trumpet, even to make all ready,
Yet is there none going to the battle;
For indignation is against all her multitude.

The sword without, and Pestilence and famine within,—
He that is in the field shall die, and He that is in the city shall devour him;
While they who escape of them shall escape, and become on the mountains, as the doves of the valleys, all of them cooing, each one in his punishment;

All hands shall be unmannèd; and All knees shall be weak as water.

Therefore shall they gird themselves with sackcloth, and shuddering shall cover them,—And in all faces shall be paleness, and in all their heads baldness.

Their silver <into the streets> shall they cast, and Their gold <for throwing away> shall serve,
Their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them, in the day of the wrath of Yahweh, <Their craving> shall they not satisfy, and <Their belly> shall they not fill,—
For a stumbling-block hath their iniquity become.

When the beauty of his own ornament he had in majesty placed> Then the images of their abominations, Their detestable things Made they therein,—
For this cause have I delivered it up to them for removal;

Yes I will deliver it
Into the hand of foreigners' for a prey,
And to the lawless ones of the earth' for a spoil,
And they will profane it:
And I will turn away my face from them, And they will profane my cherished place,—Yes there will enter it violent men, Who will profane it.

Prepare thou a chain,—
For the land is full of the crime of bloodshed,
And the city is full of violence.

So then I will bring in the wicked ones of the nations,
And they shall take possession of their houses,—And I will cause to cease the pomp of the strong ones,
And their holy places shall be profaned.

Destruction hath entered,—And they shall seek welfare, and there be none.

Disaster upon disaster shall come,
And report after report shall arise,—Therefore shall they seek a vision from a prophet, And law shall perish from priest, And counsel from elders.

The king shall mourn, and The chief shall clothe himself with astonishment, and The hands of the people of the land shall be wrung in anguish,—
After their own way will I deal with them, and With their own sentences will I sentence them, And they shall know that I am Yahweh.

§ 7. The Prophet is carried to Jerusalem in the Visions of God (chaps. viii.—xi.)

And it came to pass <in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, I being seated in my house, and the elders of Judah being seated before me> then fell upon me there’ <the hand of My Lord, Yahweh>.

So I looked, and lo! a likeness as the appearance of a man, from the appearance of his loins and downward fire, and from his loins and upwards as an appearance of shining, as the look of amber. 2 Then put he forth the similitude of a hand, and took me by the forelock of my head,—and the Spirit lifted me up—between the earth and the heavens and brought me to Jerusalem in the visions of God, into the opening of the inner gate that looketh toward the north, where was the seat of the Statue of Jealousy, that provoketh to jealousy; 4 and lo! <there> the glory of the God of Israel, like the appearance which I had seen in the valley. 5 Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

Lift up, I pray thee, thine eyes, the way toward the north.
So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north, and lo! <on the north, by the gate of the altar> this Statue of Jealousy, in the entrance. 6 Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

Canst thou see what they are doing,—the great abominations which [the house of Israel] are committing here, that I should go far away from my sanctuary? Howbeit <yet again> shalt thou see great abominations. 7 So he brought me into the opening of the court,—and I looked, and lo! a single hole, in the wall. 8 Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

Break, I pray thee, through the wall.
So I broke through the wall, and lo! a single opening. 9 Then said he unto me,—

Go in, and see the wicked abominations, which they are committing here.
10 So I went in, and looked, and lo! every similitude of creeping thing, and detestable beast, and all the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,—poured upon the wall, round about on every side; 11 and some seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel, with Zerubbabel son of Shaphan, who stood in their midst, were standing before them, even every man with his censer in his hand,—and the fragrance of the cloud of incense, ascending. 12 Then said he unto me,

Hast thou seen, Son of man, what the elders of the house of Israel, are doing in the dark, every man in his image-chambers? for they are saying—

Yahweh doth not see us! 13 Then said he unto me,—

<Yet again> shalt thou see great abominations, which they are committing.
14 So he brought me into the opening of the gate of the house of Yahweh, which was toward the north,—and lo! <there> women sitting, weeping for Tammuz. 15 Then said he unto me,

Hast thou seen, O son of man? <Yet again> shalt thou see greater abominations than these. 16 So he brought me into the inner court of the house of Yahweh, and lo! <at the opening of the temple of Yahweh, between the porch and the altar> about twenty-five men,—their backs towards the temple of Yahweh, and their faces eastward, and they were bowing down eastward, unto the Sun. 17 Then said he unto me,

Hast thou seen, O son of man? Is it too small a thing for the house of Judah, to be committing the abominations which they have committed here,—that they have filled the land with violence, and have again provoked me to anger, and there they are! putting the branch to my nose. 18 Therefore I will act with indignation; Mine eye [shall not shield].

Neither will I pity,—

<Though they have cried in mine ears, with a loud voice> yet will I not hear them. 1 Then cried he in mine ears, with a loud voice, saying,

Draw near, ye that have charge of the city,—even every man with his weapon of destruction in his hand. 2 And lo! <six men> coming in out of the way of the upper gate, which looketh toward the north, even every man with his destructive weapon in his hand, and one man in their midst clothed with linen, having a scribe's inkholder by his side,—so they came in and stood beside the altar of bronze. 3 And <the glory of the God of Israel> lifted itself up from off the cherub, whereto it had been, unto the threshold of the house,—and he called unto the man clothed with linen, who had the scribe's inkholder by his side. 4 Then said Yahweh unto him,

Pass along through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem,—and set thou a mark upon the foreheads of the men who are sighing and crying over all the abominations that are being done in her midst. 5 But <unto these> said he in mine ears,

Pass along through the city after him, and smite,—let not thy eye see, neither... have ye pity: 6 elder, young man and virgin, and little ones and women> shall ye slay utterly, but unto any man who hath upon him the mark> do not ye come near, and at my sanctuary shall ye begin.

So they began with the elder men, who were before the house. 7 And he said unto them,
Defile ye the house, and fill the courts with the slain,—go ye forth!
So they went forth, and smote in the city. 8 And it came to pass while they were smiting them—I being left remaining—that I fell upon my face and made outcry, and said,
Alas! My Lord, Yahweh! art thou about to destroy all the remnant of Israel, in that thou art pouring out of thine indignation upon Jerusalem?
9 And he said unto me,
The iniquity of the house of Israel and Judah is exceeding great, and the land is filled with shed blood, and the city is full of over-reaching,—for they have said,
Yahweh hath forsaken the land, and Yahweh doth not see.
10 Therefore as for even me>
Mine eye shall not shield,
Neither will I pity,—
Their way upon their own head> have I rendered.
11 And lo! the man clothed in linen, having the inholder by his side, bringing back word, saying,—
I have done, according to all which thou didst command me.

Then I looked, and lo! <in the expanse> which was over the head of the cherubim, as a sapphire stone, [as the appearance of the likeness of a throne] appeared over them. 2 Then said he unto the man clothed in linen—then said he,
Go in between the whirling wheels, even under the cherub, and fill both thy hands with live coals of fire from between the cherubim, and throw> over the city.
So he went in before mine eyes.

Now the cherubim> were standing on the right side of the house, when the man went in,—and the cloud filled the inner court. 4 Then arose the glory of Yahweh from off the cherub, unto the threshold of the house,—and the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was filled with the brightness of the glory of Yahweh. And the sound of the wings of the cherubim was heard, as far as the outer court,—like the voice of the Almighty God> when he speaketh. 6 So then it came to pass—<when he commanded the man clothed with linen>, saying,
Take fire from between the whirling wheels, from between the cherubim> than went he in and stood beside the wheel.
7 And the cherub put forth his hand from between the cherubim, unto the fire that was between the cherubim, and took up [thereof] and gave into the hands of him who was clothed with linen,—who took it and went forth. 8 Now the cherubim appeared to have the likeness of the hand of a man, under their wings.

Then looked I, and lo! four wheels by the cherubim—one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub,—and the appearance of the wheel was to look upon like a Tarshish stone. 10 and as for their appearance> one likeness> had they four,—as might be a wheel in the midst of a wheel.
11 <When they went> upon their four sides they went, they turned not when they went,<for> to the place whithersoever the head turned> after it> they went, they turned not when they went. 12 And all their flesh, and their back, and their hands, and their wings,—and the wheels> were full of eyes round about, even their wheels which they four had,

To the wheels—to them> was made the cry—
O whirling wheel! 13 in mine ears.
14 And four faces> had each one,—<the first face> was the face of a cherub, and <the second face> was the face of a man, and <the third> was the face of a lion, and <the fourth> was the face of an eagle.
15 Then arose the cherubim,—<the same> was the living one, which I had seen by the river Chebar. 16 When the cherubim went> then went the wheels beside them,—<when> the cherubim uplifted their wings, to arise from off the earth> the wheels themselves turned not from beside them; 17 <when they stood> these stood, and <when> they arose> these arose with them,—for the spirit of the living one was in them.

And when the glory of Yahweh went forth from off the threshold of the house,—and stood over the cherubim> then the cherubim uplifted> their wings and arose from the earth, before mine eyes, as they went forth, the wheels also in unison with them,—and it stood at the opening of the gate of the house of Yahweh that was toward the east, with the glory of the God of Israel over them, [above].

29 The same> was the living one, which I saw under the God of Israel.
11 And the Spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the east gate of the house of Yahweh, which looketh eastward, and lo! in the opening of the gate twenty-five men,—and I saw in their midst Jezaniah son of Azzur and Pelatiah son of Benaiyah, princes of the people. Then said he unto me,—Son of man,

[These are the men who are devising iniquity, and who are counselling wicked counsel in this city; who are saying, Not near! let us build houses,—It is the caldron, and we are the flesh!]

Therefore prophesy against them, — prophesy, Son of man.

Then fell upon me the Spirit of Yahweh, and he said unto me,

Say—

[Thus saith Yahweh, Yea the things that come up on your spirit I know, every one. Ye have multiplied your slain in this city, and have filled her streets with slain. Therefore]

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,

<Your slain whom ye have laid in her midst>—They are the flesh, and She is the caldron,—when ye are taken out of her midst.

And a sword shall be in my hand, and I will bring in upon you, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

So will I take you forth out of your midst, and will deliver you into the hand of foreigners, and will execute upon you judgments.

By the sword shall ye fall, Upon the boundary of Israel will I judge you,—So shall ye know that I am Yahweh. This city shall not serve you for a caldron, Neither shall ye serve in the midst thereof, for flesh,—Near the boundary of Israel will I judge you.

So shall ye know that I am Yahweh, In whose statutes ye have not walked, And in whose appointments ye have not executed,—But according to the appointments of the nations that are round about you ye have ye done.

Cp. chap. ii. 2.

12 And it came to pass as I prophesied that Pelatiah son of Benaiyah died,—so then I fell down upon my face, and made my outcry with a loud voice, and said—Alas! My Lord, Yahweh!

<A full end> art thou making of the remnant of Israel?

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

Thine own brethren, thine own brethren, the men of thy kindred, even all the house of Israel, all of it are they to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said,

Get you far away from Yahweh, To us it is that the land hath been given, for a possession!

Therefore say,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,

<Although I have removed them far away among the nations, And although I have dispersed them throughout the lands> Yet have I become to them a sanctuary for a little while, in the lands which they have entered.

Therefore say,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Therefore will I assemble you from among the peoples, And gather you out of the lands wherein ye have been dispersed,—And will give you the soil of Israel.

So shall they come in thither, and take away all her detestable things, and all her abominations, out of her;

And I will give them another heart, And a new spirit will I put within you,— And will take away the heart of stone out of their flesh, and give them a heart of flesh:

To the end that in my statutes they may walk, And in my appointments they may keep, and do them,—So shall they become my people, And I will become their God.

But as for them who having a heart for their detestable things, and for their abominations, <after their own heart> do walk>, Their way upon their own heads> will I render,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
the glory of the God of Israel, being over them [above].

Thus went up the glory of Yahweh, out from the midst of the city, and stood on the mountain, which is on the east of the city.

And [the spirit] lifted me up, and brought me to Chaldea, unto them of the captivity, in the vision, by the Spirit of God,—thus went up from me, the vision which I had seen. So I spake unto them of the captivity,—all the words of Yahweh, which he had showed me.

12 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

In the midst of a perverse house dost thou dwell,—
Who have eyes to see—and have not seen,
Ears have they to hear—and have not heard.

For a perverse house they are.

Thou therefore, Son of man,

Prepare thee baggage for exile, and exile thyself, by day, before their eyes,—so shalt thou exile thyself out of thy place unto another place, before their eyes, by chance they will consider, though a perverse house they are.

Therefore shalt thou take forth thy baggage, as baggage for exile, by day before their eyes,—and thou shalt go forth in the evening, before their eyes, like them who go forth to exile.

Before their eyes break thou forth by thyself through the wall,—and carry forth through it.

Before their eyes

Upon the shoulder shalt thou lift it,

In thick darkness take it forth,

Thy face shalt thou cover, so that thou see not the land;

For a sign have I appointed thee to the house of Israel.

And I did so. just as I was commanded, My baggage took I forth as baggage for exile, by day, and in the evening I brake forth by myself through the wall, by force: in the twilight I took it forth—son to my shoulder—I lifted it, before their eyes. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, in the morning, saying:

Son of man,

Have not the house of Israel, the perverse house, said unto thee,—

What art thou doing?

Say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

[For the Bearer] is this burden, in Jerusalem, and [for] all the house of Israel, such as are in their midst.

11 Say,

I am your sign:

As I have done, so shall it be done to them,

Into exile—into captivity—shall they go.

Yea, the Bearer who is in their midst

Upon his shoulder shall lift it.

In thick darkness shall he go forth,

Through the wall shall they break, to bear forth through it,—

His face shall he cover, to the end that his own eye may not see the land.

Then will I spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare;

And I will take him to Babylon, in the land of the Chaldeans,

The which indeed, he shall not see, And yet there shall he die:—

And all who are round about him to help him, and all his troopers will I scatter to every wind,—and a sword will I make bare after them.

So shall they know that I am Yahweh,—

By my dispersing them among the nations, And scattering them throughout the lands.

Yet will I leave remaining of them, men easily counted, from the sword, from the famine and from the pestilence,—that they may recount all their abominations among the nations whither they have come,

So shall they know that I am Yahweh.

17 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man,

Thy bread, with trembling, shalt thou eat,—

And thy water, in agitation and in fear, shalt thou drink.

Then shalt thou say unto the people of the land,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,

Concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, upon the soil of Israel,

Their bread, with anxious care, shall they eat,

And their water, in astonishment, shall they drink,—

That her land may be deserted, of her fulness, because of the violence of all them who dwell therein.

Yea, the cities that are inhabited, shall be laid waste,

And the land, shall become an astonishment,—

So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.
And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
What is this proverb ye have, concerning the soil of Israel, saying,—
The days are prolonged, Therefore shall every vision come to nought?
Then shall ye say unto him, This vision is for the time to come, and I will speak in the meanwhile.

He shall not be long in speaking, and shall not delay any more,
For in thy days shall thy word be, and I will speak it, and perform it.

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
Lo! the house of Israel are saying, The vision which he seeth is for many days, Yea, for times far away hath the prophetesised.
Then shall ye say unto him, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Son of man, propheesy against the house of Israel, who are prophesying, and say unto them who prophesy out of their own heart, Hear ye the word of Yahweh;

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Alas for the base prophet,—who follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing.

§ 9. Against the Prophets of Israel.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man, propheesy against the house of Israel, who are prophesying, and say unto them who prophesy out of their own heart, Hear ye the word of Yahweh;

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
-Alas for the base prophet,—who follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing.

And I will pull down the wall which ye have coated with whitewash, And will bring it unto the ground, So shall be discovered its foundation,— Yea it shall fall, And ye shall come to an end in the midst thereof,

So shall ye know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

Thus will I bring to an end mine indignation against the wall, and against them who were coating it with whitewash, And will say to you, No more is the wall, And no more are they who were coating it: 14 [to wit] the prophets of Israel, who are prophesying unto Jerusalem, and are seeing, on her behalf, visions of prosperity,— when there is no prosperity,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 10. Against the Oracle Women.

And ||thou||, Son of man, Set thy face against the daughters of thy people, Those who are prophesying out of their own heart,— And prophesy thou against them; 18 and say, ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Alas! for the women Who sew oracle-cases on all elbows, And prepare wraps upon the head of every stature to hunt souls,— ||The souls ye hunt|| are those of my people, Whereas <your own [souls]> ye keep alive. Thus have ye profaned me unto my people, for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, Putting to death the souls that should not die, and Keeping alive the souls that should not live,— By your lying to my people, ||who hearken to lies||.

Therefore|| Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! against your oracle-cases wherever ye’ are hunting the souls, to make them fly, And I will tear them off your arms,— And let go the souls of them whose souls ye’ are hunting as birds; And will tear off your wraps, And deliver my people out of your hand, And they shall be no longer in your hand, to be hunted;—

So shall ye know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

Because of the paining of the heart of the righteous man with falsehood, whom ||I|| have not pained,— And strengthening the hands of the lawless man, that he should not turn from his wicked way, by letting him live>
And will set my face against that man,
And will make of him a sign and a proverb,
And will cut him off out of the midst of my people:
So shall ye know that I am Yahweh.

"Ye" the prophet himself, when he suffereth himself to be deceived, and speaketh a word,
"I, Yahweh" have suffered that prophet to be deceived.
Then will I stretch forth my hand against him, and destroy him out of the midst of my people, Israel:
So shall they bear their punishment,
"As" the punishment of him that enquireth.
So shall [the punishment of the prophet] be:
That the house of Israel may no more go astray from following me,
And no more defile themselves by any of their transgressions,
But may become my people,
And I may become their God.
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 12. For a Traacherous Land, not even Noah, Daniel and Job could be heard.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man,
"When a land shall sin against me by committing treachery, and I shall stretch out my hand against it,
And break for it the staff of bread,
And send thereon famine,
And cut off therefrom, man and beast."

Then "should these three men be in the midst thereof, Noah, Daniel, and Job;
"They" [by their righteousness] should deliver their own lives.
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

"If a mischievous wild beast" I suffer to pass through the land, and that beast bereave it, so that it become too desolate for any man to pass through, by reason of the wild beast.
[Were] these three men in the midst thereof.
"As I live."
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

I should cut off therefrom, man and beast.
Were these three men in the midst thereof.
As I live, saith My Lord, Yahweh.
They should deliver neither sons nor daughters,
For they alone should be delivered.
Or "pestilence" I should send into that land, and should pour out mine indignation thereon in blood, to cut off therefrom, man and beast.
Were Noah, Daniel and Job in the midst thereof.
As I live,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
Surely neither "son nor daughter" should they deliver,
"They", by their righteousness should deliver [only] their own lives.
For [thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh.
How much less [should they avail] when "my four calamitous judgments", sword and famine and mischievous wild beast and pestilence.
I have sent against Jerusalem, to cut off therefrom, man and beast.
Yet lo! there hath been left therein, a remnant of fugitives to be brought forth —sons and daughters,—
There they are! coming forth unto you.
And so ye shall see their way, and their doings, and be consoled, over the calamity which I have brought in upon Jerusalem, even all that I have brought in upon her.
Yea they shall console you, when ye see their way and their doings.
So shall ye know that "not without cause" have I done, anything that I have done with her,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man,
What can the vine-tree be more than any other tree,—any "branch" which hath been found among the trees of the forest?
Shall there be taken from it wood, to be made into any work?
Or will men take therefrom a peg, to hang thereon any vessel?
Lo! "into the fire" it is given up for fuel.
"The two ends thereof" doth the fire devour,
And the middle thereof is charred.
Is it fit for any work?
§ 14. Jerusalem's Infidelity, under the figure of an Adulteress, is graphically portrayed.

16 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
2 Son of man,
Let Jerusalem know her abominations,
3 Therefore shalt thou say—
| Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
To Jerusalem,
Thine origin and thy birth were of the land of the Canaanite,— Thy father was the Amorite,
And thy mother a Hittite,
4 And as for thy birth || in the day thou wast born >
Thy navel-cord was not cut,
And in water wast thou not bathed, to cleanse thee—
And as for being salted thou wast not salted. —
And as for being bandaged thou wast not bandaged.
No eye || threw a shield over thee, || by doing for thee one of these things, taking pity on thee,—
But thou wast cast out, on the face of the field,
Because thy person was abhorred, in the day thou wast born.
6 And I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, thrusting about thee in thy blood,
And said to thee—
| Despite thy blood live! —
Yea I said to thee—
| Despite thy blood live! —
7 Into myriads—like the bud of the field made I thee,
And thou didst increase, and become well-grown, and didst attain to most excellent adornments,—
| Thy breasts were well-formed. —
And thy hair was grown,
But thou thyself wast utterly naked.

5 And I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, and lo! thy time was the time for endearments,
So I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy shame,—
And took an oath to thee,
And entered into covenant with thee,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
And thou didst become mine.
9 And I bathed thee in water, and rinsed thy blood from off thee,
And anointed thee with oil;
10 And clothed thee with an embroidered dress,
And sandalled thee in red leather,—
And wrapped thee about with fine linen,
And put over thee a mantle of silk.
11 Then decked I thee with ornaments,—
And put bracelets upon thy hands,
And a neckchain upon thy throat;
12 And put a nose-jewel upon thy nose,
And earings in thine ears,—
And a crown of adorning upon thy head.
13 Thus wast thou adorned with gold and silver,
And thy raiment] was of fine linen and silk, and embroidered work,
| Fine flour and honey and oil didst thou eat,—
And so thou becamest exceedingly beautiful,
And didst attain unto royalty.
14 Then went forth thy fame among the nations, for thy beauty,—
For || it was in my splendour which I had put upon thee,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
15 Then didst thou trust in thy beauty,
And become unchauste, because of thy fame,—
And didst pour out thine unchastity upon every passer-by, his it was!
16 Yea thou didst take of thy raiment and madest thee high places of hangings,
And didst commit unchastity thereon,—
Which ought not to have befallen,
And not to have come to pass.
17 But thou didst take thine adorning Jewels,
Of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee,
And didst make thee, images of the male,—
And didst act unchastely with them;
18 And thou didst take thine embroidered raiment, and cover them,—
And || mine oil and mine incense didst thou set before them;
19 And my food which I had given thee,
Fine flour and oil and honey wherewith I fed thee,
And didst set it before them for a satisfying' odour,
Yea so it was,—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
And thou didst take thy sons and thy daughters,
Whom thou hadst borne unto me,
And didst sacrifice them unto them, to be devoured,—
Is this, of thine unchastity; a light thing?!

Yea thou didst slay my children,—
And didst deliver them up, that they should be caused to pass through [the fire] unto them.

And <in all thine abominations, and thine unchaste ways> thou rememberest not the days of thy youth,—
When thou wast utterly naked,
When thou wast [thrusting about thee in thy blood]!

And it came to pass <after all thy wickedness>—
Woe! Woe! to thee,
Exclaimeth My Lord, Yahweh;—
That thou didst build thee a brothel,*—
And didst make thee a height, in every broadway:
<At the head of every road> didst thou build thy height,
And bring thy beauty into disgust,
And open thy feet to every passer-by,—
So didst thou make thine unchaste ways to abound.

Then didst thou extend thine unchaste acts unto the sons of Egypt—thy neighbours, great of flesh,—And caused thine unchaste ways to abound, provoking me to anger.

Lo! therefore, I have stretched out my hand against thee,
And diminished thine allotted portion,—And have delivered thee up unto the desire of them who hate thee,
The daughters of the Philistines, who are ashamed of thy lewd way.

Thou didst also extend thine unchastity unto the sons of Assyria, because thou wast instable.
Yet <though thou didst behave unchastely with them>; yet even so couldst thou not be satisfied.

Thou didst therefore cause thine unchaste ways to abound unto the land of Canaan, as towards Chaldea.
Yet <even herewith> wast thou not satisfied.

How weak was thy heart!
Exclaimeth My Lord, Yahweh,—That thou couldst have done all these things,
The doing of a lewd woman, without shame:*
That thou couldst have built thy brothel* at the head of every road,
And <thy height> couldst have made in every broadway,—
Yet becomest not as a harlot, to lay claim to a harlot’s hire.

A wife who committeth adultery instead of her husband’ accepteth strangers'.
To all harlots> they give a present,—But thou didst give thy' presents to all thy lovers,
And didst bribe them to come in unto thee from every side, [in thine unchastity]!

And so there came about <in thee> the reverse of women, in thine unchastity,
In that they did not follow thee for purposes of lewdness,—
And in that thou gavest a present, while <no present> was given to thee.
So didst thou become | the reverse |.

Therefore | O harlot, hear thou the word of Yahweh;
Thus | saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
Because thy money | was poured out |, and thy shame | was uncovered |, in thine unchastity, unto thy lovers,—and unto all thine abominable manufactured gods, even as* the blood of thy children, whom thou didst deliver up unto them >

Therefore | behold me! gathering together all thy lovers, unto whom thou didst make thyself pleasant, Even all whom thou lovedst, With all whom thou hatedst,—Yea I will gather them together unto thee from every side And will uncover thy shame unto them, And they shall see all thy shame.

So will I judge thee, with the judgments meted out to adulteresses and shedders of blood,—And will repay thee with the blood of indignation and jealousy,—And will deliver thee into their hand. And they shall pull down thy brothel, And break in pieces thy heights, And strip thee of thy raiment, And take away thine adorning' jewels,—And leave thee utterly naked.

Then will they bring up against thee a gathered host,* And they will stone thee with stones,—And cut thee to pieces with their swords; And burn up thy houses with fire, And execute upon thee judgments, before the eyes of many women,—

* Or: "mound" — O.G. / Cp. ver. 24, n. / money's-worth."
So will I cause thee to cease from acting unchastely,
Moreover also shalt thou not give any more.
So will I let mine indignation find rest in thee,
And my jealousy shall depart from thee,--
And I will be quiet, and not be provoked any more.

Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth,
But hast enraged me with all these things>
Therefore also behold! I thinke upon thine own head> will place,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
And thou shalt not commit a crime above all thine abominations!

Lo! every one who seeth proverbs shall use a proverb, saying,--
Like the mother> [so] her daughter!
The daughter of thy mother> thou art!
One abhorring her own husband, and her own children,--
Yes, the sister of thy sisters> thou art.
Who abhorred their own husbands, and their own children.

Your mother> was a Hittite,
And your father> an Amorite.
And thine elder sister> was Samaria, she and her sisters, dwelling on thy left hand,--
And thy sister younger than thou, dwelling on thy right hand> was Sodom, and her daughters.

Yet didst thou walk, nor according to their abominations> didst thou do,--
As though that were quite too little> thou didst corrupt thyself beyond them in all thy ways.

As I live> Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Verily! Sodom thy sister had not done,
[neither she nor her daughters],--as thou and thy daughters> have done.

Lo! this> became the iniquity of Sodom thy sister,--
Pride, fulness of bread, and careless security> came to her and to her daughters,
And the hand of the oppressed and the needy> she strengthened not.

So then they became haughty, and committed abomination before me,--
And I took them away, when I saw [it].

Nor did Samaria commit one-half thy sins,--
But thou didst multiply thine abominations more than they,
And didst cause thy sisters> to appear righteous> by all the abominations which thou didst commit.

| Thou also| bear thine own reproach, which thou didst adjudge to thy sisters, <by thy sins, in which thou wast more abominable than they> thou didst make them appear more righteous than thou,--
| Thou also| therefore, turn thou pale, and bear thine own reproach, for making thy sisters appear righteous!

When therefore I bring back their captivity,
The captivity of Sodom and her daughters,
And the captivity of Samaria and her daughters>
Then will I bring back thy captivities in their midst:
That thou mayest bear thine own reproach,
And take to thyself reproach, because of all that thou didst in comforting them.

When thy sisters, Sodom and her daughters, shall return to their former estate,
And Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former estate>
Then thou and thy daughters shall return to thy former estate.

And Sodom thy sister was never heard in thy mouth,--
In the day of thy pride:
Before thy wickedness was discovered,
As now> thou art> the reproach of the daughters of Syria,<d> and all round about her, the daughters of the Philistines,
—who are despising thee> on every side.

As for thy crime, and thine abominations> thou thyself> dost bear them,--
Declareth Yahweh.<e>

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Therefore will I deal with thee, just as thou hast dealt,--
In that thou didst despise an oath, by breaking a covenant.
Therefore will I remember my covenant with thee, in the days of thy youth,--
And will establish for thee, a covenant age-abiding.
Thou shalt therefore remember thy ways, and take to thyself reproach, by receiving thy sisters,
The older than thou,
And the younger than thou,--
And I will give them unto thee for daughters,
Though not by thine own covenant.

§ 15. Parable of the Two Eagles.

17 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,

Put forth a riddle, and speak thou a parable,—

Unto the house of Israel:

So then thou shalt say,

|Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
A great eagle, with large wings of long pinion, full of plumage, which had divers colours, came unto Lebanon, and took the highest branch of the cedar:

The crown of its young twigs plucked he off, and brought it into a land of traffic, in a city of merchants he set it.

So he took of the seed of the land, and planted it in a field for seed,—He took it near mighty waters,

Like a willow-tree he set it.

And it shot forth, and became a spreading vine of lowly stature.

Its branches turning towards him,
And its roots under him spread,—So it became a vine, and brought forth shoots, and sent forth boughs.

And it came to pass, that there was another great eagle, with large wings, and abundant plumage,—And lo! this vine stretched its roots hungrily towards him,

And its branches sent it forth unto him,
That he might cause it to drink, out of the beds where it was planted:

In a goodly field, by mighty waters was it planted,—That it might bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, That it might become a splendid vine.

Say thou,

|Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,

Shall it thrive?

Its roots will he not tear up?

Its fruit will he not cut off, that it wither?

All the fruit, which it hath caused to spring forth shall wither, without a strong arm, or many people, to pull it up by its roots.

Lo! therefore though it remain planted shall it thrive?

As soon as an east wind toucheth it will it not utterly wither?

On the beds where it sprang up, will it not wither?

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Say, I pray thee, unto the perverse house. Know ye not what these things are?

Say thou,

Lo! the King of Babylon entered Jerusalem, and took her king and her princes, and brought them unto him in Babylon;

Yea took of the seed royal, and solemnised with him a covenant,—And brought him into an oath, also the mighty ones of the land did he take.

That the kingdom might be abased, so as not to lift itself up,—

By the keeping of his covenant might be made to stand.

But he hath rebelled against him, by sending his messengers to Egypt, that there should be given to him horses, and much people. Shall he thrive? Shall he escape that doeth these things? Shall he break a covenant and escape?

As I live

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Verily! in the place where dwelleth the king that made him king, Whose oath he hath despised, and whose covenant he hath broken,

With him, in the midst of Babylon shall he die.

Neither shall Pharaoh with a great force, or with a large gathered host work with him in the war, by casting up an earthwork, and by building a siege-wall,—to the cutting off of many lives.

Seeing he hath despised an oath, by breaking a covenant,—yea lo! hath given his hand, and all these things hath done> he shall not escape.

|Therefore|

|Thus| saith My Lord, Yahweh,

As I live:

Surely it is mine oath which he hath despised, And my covenant which he hath broken, Therefore will I bring it upon his own head:

And I will spread over him my net, And he shall be taken in my snare, And I will bring him into Babylon and will enter into judgment with him there, as to his treachery wherewith he hath been treacherous against me;

* Cp. chap. xvi. 40, etc. Heb.: עד יד.
And all his fugitives, throughout all his bands shall fall, And they who are left shall be scattered,— So shall ye know that I, Yahweh have spoken!

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Therefore will I, myself take, of the highest branch of the lofty cedar, and set it,—<Of the crown of its young twigs>  will I pluck off, and I myself will plant it upon a mountain high and terraced,
In the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it,
And it shall put forth boughs,
And bear fruit,
And become a majestic cedar,—
And every bird of every wing shall dwell under it,
In the shade of its branches shall they dwell.
So shall all the trees of the field know that I, Yahweh have laid low the high’ tree, Have exalted the low’ tree, Have dried up the moist’ tree, And have caused to flourish the tree [that was dry],— I, Yahweh have spoken, and performed.

§ 16. The Ultimate Divine Dealing with Individuals. (Cp. chaps. iii., xxxiii.)

18 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

What occasion have ye to be using this proverb, concerning the soil of Israel, saying,—

[As I live] Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Surely ye shall have occasion no longer to use this proverb, in Israel.

Lo! as for all persons, mine they are, as the person of the father so also the person of the son; mine they are,—The person that sinneth the same shall die.

But when any man shall be righteous,—and do justice and righteousness:

Upon the mountains hath not eaten, And his eyes hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel, And the wife of his neighbour hath not defiled, And unto a woman during her removal hath not approached;

And no man hath treated with violence, But his debt-pledge hath restored, Plunder hath not seized,—

His bread—unto the famished hath given, And the naked hath covered with clothing;

Upon interest hath not put out [his money]. And increase hath not accepted, From dishonesty hath turned back his hand,—

Justice, in truth hath done, between man and man;

In my statutes hath walked, And my regulations hath observed, to do them in truth

Righteous he is. He shall surely live;

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

But he hath begotten a son Whose is a violent man. A shedder of blood,—

Who doeth the like of any of these things; Whereas he none of those other things doeth, For indeed upon the mountains he hath eaten, And the wife of his neighbour hath defiled;

The oppressed and the needy hath treated with violence, Hath ruthlessly plundered, The pledge hath not restored, But unto the manufactured gods hath lifted up his eyes, Abomination hath wrought;

Upon interest hath put out, And increase hath accepted. And shall he live? He shall not live,

All those abominations he hath done, He shall surely be put to death, His blood upon himself shall be.

But lo! he hath begotten a son, Who hath considered all the sins of his father, which he hath done,—

Yea he hath considered, and not done like them:

Upon the mountains hath not eaten, And his eyes hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,
The wife of his neighbour hath not defiled;

Gr. : “surely doeth any.” etc.
Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edns. Aram., Sep., Syr. and Vul.) read: “And the w.”—O.n.
16 And <no man> hath he treated with violence,
    Hath <by no means> withheld the pledge,
    And <plunder> hath not seized,—
    <His bread—to the famished> hath given,
    And <the naked> hath covered with clothing;
    <From dishonesty>a hath turned back his hand.
17 <Neither interest nor increase> hath accepted,
    <My regulations> hath executed,
    <In my statutes> hath walked,—
    || He || shall not die for the iniquity of his father.
    He shall surely live!||
19 || His father||
    <Because he exacted unjust gain,
    Seized plunder of a brother,
    And <that which was not good> had done in the midst of his people>6
    Therefore lo! he died, in his iniquity.
20 Will ye then say—
    Why hath not the son borne a part of the iniquity of the father?8
    But || the son || hath done || justice and righteousness||
    <All my statutes> hath observed and done them.
    He shall surely live!||
21 <The person> that sinneth || the same || shall die,—
    A [son] shall not bear a part of the iniquity of the father||
    Neither shall a father bear a part of the iniquity of the son.
    ||The righteousness of the righteous <upon himself> shall be
    And || the lawlessness of a lawless man||4 <upon himself> shall be.
22 But || as for the lawless man—
    <When he shall turn back from all his sins> which he hath committed,
    And observe all my statutes,
    And do justice and righteousness>
    He shall surely live!.
    He shall not die:
23 || None of his transgressions which he hath committed || shall be remembered against him,—
    In his righteousness which he hath done
    he shall live.
24 Could I take delight in the death of the lawless? Demaneth My Lord, Yahweh.
    Must it not be in his turning from his ways*<in which case> he shall live?
25 But <when a righteous man shall turn away> from his righteousness and do that which is perverse,
    Shall do according to all the abominations which the lawless man hath done>7
    Shall be alive?||
    None of his righteous acts which he hath done shall be remembered,
    <In his treachery wherein he hath been treacherous>
    And in his sin wherein he hath sinned>
    <In them> shall he die!=
26 Can ye then say—
    The way of My Lord || will not be equal! 8
    Hear, I pray you, O house of Israel,
    Will my way not be equal?
    Will not your ways be unequal?
27 <When a righteous man shall turn away> from his righteousness and do that which is perverse, and die because of those things>
    <In his own perversity which he hath done> shall he die.
28 But <when a lawless man turneth away> from his lawlessness which he hath done,
    And hath done justice and righteousness>
    || He || shall save || his own soul alive:
29 <When he considered> then he turned away from all his transgressions, which he had committed,
    He shall surely live!.
    He shall not die.
30 Can the house of Israel then say—
    The way of My Lord || will not be equal! 8
    Will my ways not be equal, O house of Israel?
    Will not your ways be unequal?
31 ||Therefore||
    <Every man> according to his own ways will I judge you, O house of Israel,
    Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
    Return ye—and make good your return—from all your transgressions,
    That they become not unto you a stumbling block of iniquity.
32 Cast off from you, all your transgressions which ye have committed against me,4
    And make you a new heart,
    And a new spirit,—
    For why> should ye die, O house of Israel? 4

And he learned to rend prey,

Men he devoured;

And their cities laid waste,

And deserted was the land, and its fulness,

At the noise of his roaring.

8 Then set upon him the nations round about,

From the provinces,

And spread over him their net,

In their pit was he caught;

And brought him to Babylon's king;

They brought him into strong-holds,

That his noise might be heard no more,

10 Thy mother [was] like a vine of thy vineyard,

By waters was planted,

Fruitful and full of branches she became,

By reason of waters abundant;

And they served her as staves of power,

For the sceptres of rulers,

And high became the stature thereof,

With its interwoven foliage,

And it was seen by its height,

By its multitude of branches.

To the ground was she cast,

And an east wind dried up her fruit,

Broken off and withered were her staves of power,

A fire devoured them.

Lit. "the gazelle."
Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them, to bring mine anger to an end against them, [in the midst of the land of Egypt].

9 Howbeit I wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name, that it might not be profaned—before the eyes of the nations, in whose midst they were,—before whose eyes I made myself known unto them, by bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt.

10 Therefore brought I them forth out of the land of Egypt,—and caused them to come into the desert.

11 Then gave I unto them my statutes, And [my regulations] caused I them to know,— By the which the man [that doeth them] shall live.

12 Moreover also [my sabbaths] gave I unto them, to become a sign betwixt me and them,—that it might be known that [I, Yahweh] was hallowing them.

13 But the house of Israel [rebelleth against me] in the desert,

[In my statutes] walked they not,
[And my regulations] they rejected.
By the which the man [that doeth them] shall live,
[My sabbaths also] they profaned exceedingly.
Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them in the desert, to make an end of them.

14 Howbeit I wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name,—that it should not be profaned in the eyes of the nations, in whose eyes I had brought them forth.

15 Yet [even I] lifted up my hand to them, in the desert,— That I would not bring them into the land which I had given to them,* flowing with milk and honey,

[The beauty] it was, of all lands:
Because [my regulations] they had rejected,
And [for my statutes] they had not walked therein,
[My sabbaths also] had they profaned;
For [after their manufactured gods] [their heart] had been going.

16 Nevertheless mine eye [threw a shield] over them, that they should not be destroyed;
So I made not of them a full end, in the desert.

17 But I said unto their children, in the desert,
[In the statutes of your fathers] let it not be that ye walk,
[And their regulations] let it not be that ye observe,—
[And with their manufactured gods] let it not be that ye defile yourselves.

19 [I, Yahweh] am your God,
[In my statutes] walk ye,—
[And my regulations] observe ye and do them;

20 [My sabbaths also] hallow ye,—
And they shall become a sign betwixt me and you,

That it may be known that [I, Yahweh] am your God.

21 Notwithstanding, the children rebelled against me,
[In my statutes] walked they not,
[And my regulations] observed they not, to do them,
Wherein the man [who shall do them] shall live,
[My sabbaths]* they profaned.
Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them, to bring mine anger to an end against them, [in the desert].

22 Howbeit I withdrew my hand, and wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name,—that it should not be profaned before the eyes of the nations, before whose eyes I had brought them forth:

23 Even [I] lifted up my hand to them, in the desert,— That I would disperse them throughout the nations,
And scatter them throughout the lands;
Because [my regulations] had they not done,
And [my statutes] they had rejected,
[My sabbaths also] they had profaned,—
And [after the manufactured gods of their fathers] were their eyes [turned].

25 [I myself] indeed, suffered* them [to walk in] statutes which were [not good],—
And regulations, in which they could not live.4

26 Yea I let them defile themselves with their gifts, when they caused every firstborn to pass through [the fire],—that I might make them desolate.

To the end they might know that [I] am Yahweh.

27 [Therefore] speake thou unto the house of Israel, Son of man, and say unto them,
[Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

[Yet further in this] did your fathers [insult me], by the treachery wherewith they dealt treacherously against me;

With outpoured indignation ;
12 And I will bring you, into the desert of the will I bring them forth,

Yet <upon the soil of Israel> shall they not enter,
So shall ye know' that ||I|| am Yahweh.
16 But <as for you> O house of Israel,
Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Go, serve every man' his own manufactured gods,||
Yet <afterwards> surely
Ye shall be ready to hearken unto me,—
And <my holy name> shall ye profane no more,
With your gifts, and
With your manufactured gods.
17 For <in my holy mountain,
In the mountain of the height of Israel>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
There shall all the house of Israel ||serve me||, ||all of it||, in the land,
There will I accept them, and
There will I seek your heave-offerings, and the firstfruits of your gifts, in all your holy things:
18 <As a satisfying' odour> will I accept |you|,
Through my bringing you forth from among the peoples,
And gathering you, out of the lands,
throughout which ye have been dispersed;
Thus will I hallow myself in you, before the eyes of the nations.
19 So shall ye know' that ||I|| am Yahweh,
Through my bringing you in unto the soil of Israel,
Unto the land, as to which I lifted up my hand, to give it unto your fathers.
20 Then shall ye call to mind, there, your own ways, and all your own doings, wherewith ye had defiled yourselves,—
And ye shall become loathsome in your own sight, for all your wickednesses, which yo have done.
21 So shall ye know' that ||I|| am Yahweh,
Through my dealing effectively with you,
for the sake of mine own Name,—
Not according to your own wicked ways,
Nor according to your corrupted doings,
O house of Israel,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
22 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me,
saying:
23 Son of man,
Set thy face the way towards Teman,

21 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me,
saying:
2 Son of man,
Set thy face against Jerusalem,
And drop [thy word] against the holy places;
And prophesy against the soil of Israel.
3 Thou shalt say then to the soil of Israel,
[Thou] saith Yahweh,*
Behold me against thee,
Therefore will I bring forth my sword out of its sheath,—and will cut off from thee,
the righteous and the lawless.b

4 <Because I have cut off from thee, the

[Therefore] shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh, from south

So shall all flesh know that I, Yahweh have brought forth my sword, out of its

6 [Thou] therefore, O son of man, sigh,—
In the sharp pain of thy loins and in bitterness shalt thou sigh, before their

saying:

Israel,—
Who are thrown to the sword with my people,
[Therefore] smite thou upon thy thigh.
For trial hath been made,
What then, <even though the royal rod despiseth> shall it not be?
Demandeth My Lord, Yahweh.
14 [Thou] therefore, son of man,
Prophecy, and smite thy hands together,
And let the sword smite twice, thrice, [the sword of the slain],
[The same] is the great sword of the slain,
that which hemmeth them* in.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

EZEKIEL XXII. 6—28.

6 Lo! the [princes] of Israel: every man for his own arm have they been in thee, for the sake of shedding blood.
7 Father and mother have they despised in thee, To the sojourner have they dealt with oppression, in the midst of thee,—
The fatherless and the widow have they maltreated in thee:—
8 My holy things hast thou despised,— And my sabbaths hast thou profaned:
9 Slanderers have arisen in thee, For the sake of shedding blood,— And unto the mountains have they eaten in thee, Lewdness have they practised in the midst of thee:
10 A father’s shame hath been uncovered in thee, Her that was unclean in her removal have they humbled in thee;
11 And one man] with the wife of his neighbour hath wrought abomination, And another hath defiled his daughter-in-law by shameless deed,— And another his own sister, daughter of his own father have they humbled in thee:
12 Bribes have they accepted in thee, For the sake of shedding blood,—
13 Interest and increase hast thou accepted, And thou hast overreached thy neighbour by oppression, And hast thou forgotten, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.
14 Lo! therefore, I have smitten my hand, At thine unjust gain which thou hast made,— And over thy bloodshed, which they have caused in thy midst.
15 Can thy heart endure or can thy hands be strong in the days when I am dealing with thee? I, Yahweh have spoken, and will perform.
16 Therefore will I disperse thee among the nations, And scatter thee throughout the lands,— And will cause to cease thine impurity out of thee;
17 So shalt thou be profaned in thyself, before the eyes of nations, Thus shalt thou know that I am Yahweh.
18 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:
19 Son of man, The house of Israel hath become to me, dress,— They all are copper and tin and iron and lead, in the midst of a furnace.
The dress of silver have they become.

19 Therefore saith My Lord, Yahweh,
20 [Because ye all are become dress >
21 Behold me gathering you' into the midst of Jerusalem:
22 As they gather silver and copper and iron and lead and tin, into the midst of a furnace, to blow upon it the fire, to melt it>
23 So will I gather in mine anger and in mine indignation, and will let be and will melt you';
24 Yea I will gather you together, and blow upon you, with the fire of my wrath,— And ye shall be melted in the midst thereof:
25 As silver is melted in the midst of a furnace>
26 So shall ye be melted in the midst thereof,—
Then shall ye know that I am Yahweh have poured out mine indignation upon you.
27 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
28 Son of man, say to her, Thou art a land, that is not to be rained upon], nor to receive fruitful showers, in the day of indignation.
29 Because her princes in her midst are like a roaring lion, rending prey,—
30 Life have they devoured,
31 Wealth and precious things have they been wont to take,
32 Her widows have they multiplied in her midst.
33 Her priests have done violence to my law, And have profaned my holy things, Between the hallowed and the common have they put no difference, And between the unclean and clean have they not taught men to discern,— And from my sabbaths have they hid their eyes, So that I have been profaned in their midst.
34 Her rulers within her have been like wolves, rending prey,— In shedding blood, In destroying lives, For the sake of getting dishonest gain.
35 And her prophets have coated it for them with whitewash, Seeing visions of falsehood, And divining for them lies,— Saying, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, when Yahweh hath not spoken.

* So it shd be (w. Sep.)—
The people of the land have exacted oppression, and seized plunder;
Even the afflicted and the needy have they maltreated,
And the stranger have they oppressed, without justice.

Then sought I from among them, a man
Who could build up a wall,
And stand in the breach before me in behalf of the land,
So that I might not destroy her,—
But I found none.

Therefore have I poured out upon them mine indignation,
In the fire of mine outburst have I consumed them,—
Their way, upon upon their own head have I placed.

§ 21. The Unchaste Sisters Oholah and Oholibah.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
Son of man,
Two women, daughters of one mother there were;
And they became unchaste in Egypt,
In their youth became they unchaste,
Were handled their breasts, and there were pressed their virgin bosoms.
And their names were Oholah—the elder,
And Oholibah—her sister,
And they became mine, and bare sons and daughters,—

And as for their names
Samaria was Oholah,
And Jerusalem was Oholibah.

Then became Oholah unchaste after she had become mine,
And lusted after her lovers,
For Assyrians, so warlike,
Clothed in blue,
Governors and deputies,
Attractive young men, all of them,—
Horsemen, riding on horses.

So she bestowed her unchastities upon them,
The choicest men of Assyria, all of them,—
And with whomsoever she lusted after—
She defiled herself.
And when she was in Egypt, she had not forsaken,
For with her had they lain in her youth,
Yea, they had pressed her virgin bosoms,
And had poured out their unchastity upon her.

Therefore did I deliver her into the hand of her lovers,—
Into the hand of the sons of Assyria, after whom she lusted:
They disclosed her shame,
Her sons and her daughters took they away,
And herself—with the sword they slew.—
Thus became she a by-word among women,
When they had executed upon her.

And though her sister Oholibah saw,
Yet became she more corrupt in her lust than the other,—
And her unchaste doings exceeded the unchaste doings of her sister.

After the sons of Assyria she lusted,
Governors and deputies so warlike,
Clothed in splendid array,
Horsemen, riding on horses,—
Attractive young men, all of them.

So I saw, that she defiled herself,—
One way had they both.
Yet did she add, unto her unchaste doings,—
When she saw men portrayed upon the wall, likenesses of Chaldeans,
Portrayed with vermilion:
Girded with waistcloths upon their loins,
With overhanging high turbans upon their heads,
In appearance knights, all of them,—
The likeness of the sons of Babylon of Chaldea, the land of their birth.

Then lusted she after them, as soon as her eyes beheld them,—
And she sent messengers unto them, to Chaldea.
Then came in unto her the sons of Babylon into the bed of endearments, and defiled her with their unchaste doings,—
And she defiled herself with them,
And then was her soul torn from them.

Thus disclosed she her unchaste desires,
And disclosed' her shame,—
So my soul was torn from her,
Just as my soul had been torn from her sister.

Yea she multiplied her unchaste desires,—
Calling to mind the days of her youth, when she was unchaste in the land of Egypt;
So she lusted after their coartiers,
Whose flesh was the flesh of assails, and whose issue was the issue of horses.

Yea thou didst look about for the lewdness of thy youth,—
When were pressed by the Egyptians, thy bosoms,
When they handled thy youthful breasts.
22 |Therefore| O Oholibah,
 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
 Behold me! rousing up thy lovers against thee,
 Even them from whom thy soul hath been torn,—
 And I will bring them against thee from every side;
 23 The sons of Babylon and all Chaldeans,
 Pekod and Shoa and Koab, a
 All the sons of Assyria, with them,—
 Attractive young men,
 Governors and deputies, all of them.
 Knights and men of renown,
 Riders on horses, all of them;
 24 And they shall come upon thee—
 With battle-axe, b chariot and wheel,
 And with a gathered host of peoples,
 <Shield and buckler and helmet> will they array against thee, on every side,—
 And I will put before them judgment,
 And they shall judge thee with their judgments;
 25 <When I set forth my jealousy against thee> Then will they deal with thee, in indignation, <Thy nose and thine ears> will they remove,
 And <that which is left of thee> <by the sword> shall fall,—
 <They> will take away <thy sons and thy daughters>,
 And <that which is left of thee> shall be devoured by the fire;
 26 And they shall strip off thy raiment,—
 And take away thine adorning’ jewels!
 Thus will I cause thy lewdness to cease’, from thee,
 Even thine unchastity [brought] from the land of Egypt,—
 So that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them,
 And <Egypt> shalt thou not call to mind any more.
 27 For ||thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
 Behold me! delivering thee up, into the hand of them whom thou hatest,—
 Into the hand of them from whom thy soul hath been torn;
 28 And they shall deal with thee in hatred,
 And take away all thy labour,
 And leave thee utterly naked,—
 And thine unchaste’ shame [shall be disclosed], with thy lewdness and unchastities,
 29 These things shall be done’ to thee,—
 In that thou hast gone unchastely after the nations,
 Because thou hast defiled thyself with their manufactured gods.

43 Then said I, of her that was worn out with adulteries,
Will they now join in her unchaste doings, even here?*

44 Yet came they in unto her, as men go in unto a woman that is a harlot,—
So came they in unto Oholah, and unto Oholibah—the lewd women!*

45 But righteous men shall judge them,
With the judgment of adulteresses, and
With the judgment of women that shed blood,—
Because adulteresses they are,
And blood is on their hands.

46 For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
There shall be brought up against them a gathered host,*
Then shall they be delivered up, for a terror and for a prey,
Yea a gathered host shall stone them with stones, and despatch them with their swords,
Their sons and their daughters shall they slay,
And their houses—in the fire—shall they consume.

47 So will I make an end of lewdness, out of the land,—
And all women shall be disciplined, and shall not do according to your lewdness.

Yea the judges shall set your lewdness upon you,
And your sins with manufactured gods shall ye bear;
So shall ye know that I am the Lord, Yahweh.*

§ 22. Jerusalem likened to a Filthy Caldron.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, saying:

2 Son of man,
Write the name of the day, this selfsame day,—the king of Babylon cast himself against Jerusalem, on this selfsame day.

3 Put thou forth, therefore, against the perverse house, a parable, and say unto them,
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Set on the caldron, set it on,
Moreover also pour into it water:

4 Gather the pieces thereof into it,
Every good piece, thigh and shoulder,—
With the choice of the bones fill it:

5 Take of the choice of the flock
Moreover also a pile of bones [place] under it,—
Boil the pieces thereof,
Yea let the bones of it seethe in the midst thereof.

6 Wherefore
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Woe! city of bloodshed.
The caldron whose scum is in it, and whose scum hath not gone out of it:
Piece by piece—bring it out,
There hath fallen thereon no lot.

7 For her own blood hath come to be in her midst,
Upon the smooth face of the cliff hath she set it,—
She hath not poured it out on the earth, that she might cover it with dust.

8 To bring up indignation, to execute an avenging—have I set her blood upon the smooth face of the cliff,—that it may not be covered.

9 Wherefore
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Woe! city of bloodshed,—
Even I myself will make large the pile.

10 Heap on the wood,
Kindle the fire,
Consume the flesh,—
Yes season with spice,
And let the bones be scorched.

11 Then set it upon the live coals thereof, empty,—that the copper b of it may be scorched and burn,
So that the impurity thereof may be annihilated within it,
The scum thereof be consumed.

12 With toils hath she prepared herself,—
Since her abundant scum will not go out of her into the fire with her scum!

13 In thine uncleanness is lewdness; because I purified thee, and thou wast not purified—thou shalt not be purified any more, until I have let mine indignation rest upon thee.

14 I, Yahweh, have spoken.
It cometh, and I will perform,
I will not let alone,
Neither will I shield,
Nor will I repent,—
According to thy ways and according to thy doings have they judged thee.

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 23. The Prophet, bereft of his Wife, becomes a Pathetic Object-Lesson to Israel.

15 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:
16 Son of man, Behold me! taking away from thee the delight of thine eyes, with a stroke, 8—
But thou shalt not lament,
Neither shalt thou weep,
Neither shall come—thine tears:

<Over the dead—no mourning> shalt thou make,
<Thy chaplets> bind thou on thee,
And <thy sandals> put thou on thy feet,
And thou shalt not cover thy beard,
And <the bread of [other] men> shalt thou not eat.

18 So I spake unto the people, in the morning, and my wife died' in the evening,—and I did,
in the morning, as I had been commanded.
19 Then said the people unto me:
Wilt thou not tell us what these things are to us,
that thou shouldst be acting [thus]?

20 So I said unto them:
||The word of Yahweh|| hath come unto me,
saying:  21 Say to the house of Israel,

The delight of your eyes,

<The beard> shall ye not cover,
And <the bread of [other] men> shall ye not eat;

23 And [your chaplets] shall be on your heads,
And [your sandals] on your feet,
Ye shall neither lament, nor weep,—
Yet shall ye pine away in your iniquities, and shall groan, one to another.

24 So shall ||Ezekiel|| become |to you| a wonder,
<According to all that he hath done> shall ye do:
<When it cometh> then shall ye know that

§ 27. Against Tyre (chaps. xxvi., xxvii.).

26 1 And it came to pass |in the eleventh year, on the first of the month| that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

2 Son of man, <Because Tyre hath said' concerning Jerusalem, Aha! She is broken' that was the doors of the peoples, She is turned unto me,— I shall be filled, She is laid waste>

19 For ||thus|| saith ||My Lord, Yahweh,||

<When I make thee a desolate city, Like cities which cannot be dwelt in,— When I bring up over thee the roaring deep,

And the mighty waters cover thee> Then will I bring thee down with them that go down into the pit, Unto the people of age-past times, And cause thee to dwell in the earth below, Among the desolations from age-past times, With them that go down into the pit, That thou mayest not be dwelt in,— Nor yet present thyself e in the land of the living.

Thy wealth and thy wares, thy merchandise, thy mariners, and thy sailors,—thy sailors and the barterers of thy merchandise, and all thy men of war who are in thee, and in all thy gathered host which is in thy midst, shall fall into the heart of the seas,
In the day of thy fall.

At the sound of the outcry of thy pilots,

§ 28. Against the Prince of Tyre.

28 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
Say to the Prince of Tyre,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh—

Because <lofty> is thy heart, and thou hast said,

<A God> am I,

In the heart of the seas;

Whereas <thou art a man, and not a God>,

But hast set thy heart as the heart of God:

Lo! <wiser> <than Daniel>,

<No secret> have they hidden from thee:

In thy wisdom and in thine understanding>

thou hast gotten wealth,—

And hast gotten gold and silver into thine treasuries:

By the greatness of thy wisdom and by thy traffic> hast thou multiplied riches,—

And thy heart hast become lofty in thy riches>

| Therefore |

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

Because thou hast set thy heart as the heart of God:

| Therefore |

Behold me! bringing upon thee aliens,

The terrible ones of the nations,—

And they shall unsheathe their swords over the beauty of thy wisdom,

And profane thy splendour:

To the pit shall they take thee down,—

And thou shalt die the deaths of one thrust through,

In the heart of the seas.

Wilt thou <really say>, <God> am I, before him who is slaying thee;

When <art thou> a man and not a God, in the hand of them who are piercing thee?

The <deaths of the uncircumcised> shalt thou die, by the hand of aliens,—

For I have spoken;

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And thou didst sin,—

So I cast thee as profane out of the mountain of God,

And destroyed thee, O covering cherub, from amid the stones of fire:

§ 30. Against Zidon.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
Set thy face towards Zidon,—

And prophesy over it; and thou shalt say—

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,

Behold me! against thee, O Zidon,

Therefore will I get myself glory in thy midst,—

And they shall know that I am Yahweh,

When I have executed against her judgments,

And bellowed myself in her.

—G.n.
23. So then I will send against her, pestilence and blood in her streets,  And the wounded shall fall in her midst, by  the sword upon her from every side,— And they shall know that I am Yahweh.  24. And the house of Israel shall no more have a stinging thorn, or a wounding thorn, of any round about them, who used to despise them,— So shall they know that I am The Lord, Yahweh.

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,  When I gather together the house of Israel, from the midst of the peoples among whom they have been scattered, and shall hallow myself in them before the eyes of the nations> Then shall they dwell upon their own soil, which I gave to my servant—to Jacob:  25. Yea they shall dwell thereupon, securely,  Yea shall build houses, and plant vineyards, and dwell securely,— When I have executed judgments on all that despised them on every side of them, So shall they know that I am their God.

§ 31. Against Pharaoh King of Egypt, and against his Land (Chaps. xxix.—xxxii.).  29. In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth month> came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:  30. Son of man,  Set thy face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt,— And prophesy against him, and against Egypt |all of it|;  31. Speak, and thou shalt say—  Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,  Behold me! against thee, O Pharaoh, king of Egypt,  The great Crocodile that lieth along in the midst of his rivers:  Who saith—  My river is mine own,  Since I myself made it!  32. Therefore will I put hooks in thy jaws,  And cause the fish of thy rivers to stick fast in thy scales,—  And will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers,  And all the fish of thy rivers shall stick fast;  33. And I will stretch thee out towards the desert, |Thee, and all the fish of thy rivers|,  On the face of the field, shalt thou lie,  Thou shalt not be carried away, nor shalt thou be gathered,  To the wild beast of the earth, and to the bird of the heavens have I given thee for food.  6. So shall all the inhabitants of Egypt know that I am Yahweh,— Because they were a staff of reed to the house of Israel:  7. Whencesoever they took hold of thee by the hand> thou didst run through, and tear open for them every hand,— And whencesoever they leaned upon thee> thou didst break, and caused all their loins |to halt|.

Therefore  8. Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! bringing upon thee a sword,— And I will cut off out of thee, man and beast;  9. And the land of Egypt shall become an astonishment and a desolation,  So they shall know that I am Yahweh,— Because he said—  The river is mine own,  Since I myself made it!  10. ThereforeI beheld me! against thee, and against thy rivers,— And I will make the land of Egypt, to be most desolate, an astounding desolation, From Migdol to Syene, even up to the boundary of Ethiopia:  11. The foot of man shall not pass through it,  Nor shall the foot of beasts pass through it,  Neither shall it be inhabited, forty years:  12. So will I make the land of Egypt a desolation in the midst of lands made desolate,  And <her cities—in the midst of cities that have been laid waste> shall become a desolation, forty years,—  And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations,  And scatter them throughout the lands.  13. For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—  At the end of forty years shall I gather the Egyptians from among the peoples whither I had dispersed them:  14. And I will turn the captivity of the Egyptians,  And will cause them to return  To the land of Pathros,  Upon the land of their nativity,—  And they shall become, there, a kingdom abased:  15. More than [any of] the kingdoms shall she be abased,  And shall lift herself up no more over the nations,—  Yea I will make them too small to rule over the nations.

Calling to mind iniquity, by their turning to follow them,
And they shall know that I am The Lord, Yahweh.

And it came to pass <in the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, in the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
[Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon] hath made his army undergo a long service against Tyre,
[Every head] hath been made bald, and [Every shoulder] worn bare,—
But hath he had none, nor hath his army, out of Tyre, for the service wherewith he hath served against it.

Therefore
[Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me! giving <to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon> the land of Egypt,—
And he shall carry off her multitude, And capture her spoil, And seize her prey,
So shall she become pay for his army.

<As a reward for his labour wherewith he hath served> have I given to him the land of Egypt,—in that they wrought for me,—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

<In that day> will I cause to bud a horn for the house of Israel,
And <to thee> will I give an opening of mouth in their midst,
So shall they know that I am Yahweh.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
Prophecy, and thou shalt say,
[Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
Howl ye, Alas for the day!

For <near> is a day,
Yea <near> is a day pertaining to Yahweh,
A day of cloud,
A time of nations> shall it be!

Then shall come a sword into Egypt, And there shall be a pang in Ethiopia,
When the deadly wounded one falleth in Egypt,—
And they take away her multitude, and [her foundations] are broken down.

Ethiopia and Libya and Lydia, and all the mixed multitude and Cub, and the sons of the land of the covenant <with them,—by the sword> shall they fall.

6 Thus saith Yahweh:
Then shall fall the superciliousness of Tyre,
Then shall come down strength,—

Declareth Yahweh.

7 So shall they be made desert, and lands that are desolate:
And <his cities> — in that they are laid waste> shall be no more inhabited.

8 So shall they know that I am Yahweh.
By my setting a fire in it,
When all her helpers shall become afraid,
And a pang shall be upon the land of Egypt,
For lo! it cometh.

9 Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Therefore will I cause of Egypt, by the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon,
To destroy the land of Egypt, and their people, and their souls;
Therefore shall they <in destroy the land> against Egypt, and so shall they be slain;
And I will make them sell the land into the hands of aliens;—and make them a <in destroy the land> to the fulness thereof, for the fulness thereof for the fulness thereof for foreigners,
[Thus] saith Yahweh.

13 Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Therefore will I destine Noph, and Cause to cease the waters of Noph,
<And prince out of Noph shall none arise to set a king over Egypt; And I will cause Egypt>.

14 Then will I bring desolation and Set a fire in Zaanam, and Execute judgments upon Egypt.
Pour out mine indignation on strongholds of Egypt, Will cut off the multitude of the land of Egypt,
So will I set a fire in Egypt,
[Sore anguish] shall be in Egypt, And [No] shall be fountains of water in Egypt.
And [Noph] be in stumps.
that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

3 Son of man, Say unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, and unto his multitude,— Whom' art thou like in thy greatness?

Lo! ||Assyria|| was a cedar* in Lebanon,
Beautiful in bough and Dense in foliage, — and Lofty in stature,—and
<Among the clouds> came to be his top:

||The waters|| made him great,
||The roaring deep|| made him high,—with its currents going round about the place where it was planted,
<Its channels also> it sent forth unto all the trees of the field.

4 ||For this cause|| <higher> was his stature, than any of the trees of the field,—
And multiplied' were his boughs,
And lengthened' were his branches, b
By reason of the mighty waters, when he shot forth shoots.

5 <Among his branches> all the birds of the heavens |made their nests|,
And <under his boughs> all the wild beasts of the field |brought forth|,—
And <in his shade> dwelt all the mighty nations.

6 Thus became he beautiful in his greatness,
In the length of his waving branches,—
Because his root had gone' towards mighty waters.

7 ||Cedars|| hid him not, in the garden of God,
||Fir-trees|| were not like unto his boughs,
Nor ||plane-trees|| like his branches,—
||No tree in the garden of God|| was like unto him, in his beauty.

8 <Beautiful> I made him in the abundance of his waving branches,—
Therefore was he envied by all the trees of Eden, which were in the garden of God.

Therefore|
<Thus> saith My Lord, Yahweh,
<Because thou hast become lofty in stature,
And he hath stretched his topamong the clouds,
And his heart is exalted' in his loftiness,> Let me then deliver him into the hand of the chief of the nations,—
He shall ||effectually deal|| with him!
<According to> his lawlessness> have I driven him out;
Therefore have foreigners, the terrible of the nations, cut him down,
And abandoned him,—
Upon the mountains, and in all valleys, have fallen his waving branches,
And broken' have been his boughs in all the river-beds of the land,

And all the peoples of the earth have come down out of his shade;
And abandoned him:

13 Upon his trunk> shall settle down all the birds of the heavens;—
And among his boughs> are to be found all the wild beasts of the field:—

To the end that none of the trees of the waters—
May exalt themselves in their stature,
Or stretch their top among the clouds,
Nor their mighty ones take their stand in their height — any that drink of the waters,—
Because they all are delivered to death,
Unto the earth below.
In the midst of the sons of Adam,
Amongst them who descend into the pit.

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
In the day when he descended into hades>
I caused a mourning,
I covered over him the roaring deep,
And restrained the currents thereof,
And stayed were the mighty waters,—
So caused I gloom over him unto Lebanon,
And all the trees of the field> for him were covered with a shroud.

At the sound of his fall> I made nations tremble,
When I caused> him to descend into hades,
with them who descend into the pit,—
Then were grieved, in the earth below—
All the trees of Eden,
The choicest and best of Lebanon,
All who had drunk the waters.

Even they> with him> descended into hades.
Among them who were thrust through with the sword,—
Even his seed> who dwelt in his shade, in the midst of the nations.

Unto whom couldst thou be likened> thus>, in glory and in greatness, among the trees of Eden?
Yet shalt thou be caused to descend, with the trees of Eden, into the earth below,
In the midst of the uncircumcised> shalt thou lie down,
With them who were thrust through by the sword.

The same> is Pharaoh> and all his multitude,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And it came to pass <in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first of the month> that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

Son of man,
Take up a dirge, over Pharaoh king of Egypt, and thou shalt say unto him,
The young lion of the nations> thou didst deem thyself,—

Whereas thou wast like the crocodile in the sea,
And didst cause thy streams to burst forth,
And didst trouble the waters with thy feet,
And foul their rivers.

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Therefore will I spread over thee my net,
With a gathered host> of many>> peoples,—
And they shall bring thee up in my net:
And I will stretch thee out on the land,
Over the face of the field> will I fling thee,—
And will cause to settle upon thee> all the birds of the heavens,
And will satiate with thee, the wild beasts of all the earth;
And I will lay thy flesh on the mountains,—
And fill the valleys with thy blood;
And will soak the earth with thy blood, amongst the mountains,—
And> the channel> shall be filled with thee.

Then> I will quench thee>
I will cover the heavens,
And obscure their stars,—
The sun—with a cloud> will I cover,
And> the moon> shall not shed her light;
As for all the light-bearers in the heavens>
I will obscure them over thee,—
And will stretch out darkness over thy land,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

And I will agrieve the heart of many peoples, — when I bring them who are broken off from thee, among the nations, unto lands which thou hast not known.
Yea I will cause amazement, over thee, unto many peoples,
And the hair> of their kings> shall stand on end over thee, when I brandish my sword over their faces,—
And they shall tremble every moment, every man for his own life,
In the day of thy fall.

For thus> saith My Lord, Yahweh:—
The sword of the king of Babylon> shall reach thee.

With the swords of mighty men> will I cause thy multitude to fall,
—Terrible ones of the nations, all> of them,—
And they shall spoil the pride of Egypt,
And all her multitude> shall be destroyed,
And I will cause to perish all her beasts, from beside the many waters,—
And the foot of man> shall not trouble them any more,
Nor shall the hoof of beast> trouble them.

14 Then will I make their waters subsidence, And their streams, like oil, will I cause to flow,— Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

15 When I make the land of Egypt an astonishment, A land laid bare of its fulness, When I cut off all that dwell therein, Then shall they know that || I || am Yahweh.

16 A dirge it is; And they shall chant it, The daughters of the nations Shall chant it; Over Egypt and over all her multitude Shall they chant it, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

17 And it came to pass in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me saying:

Son of man, Wail thou over the multitude of Egypt, and cause it to descend—her and the daughters of the famous nations—into the earth below, with them who descend into the pit.

19 Than whom art thou more precious? Descend and be laid low with the uncircumcised;

20 Into the midst of them who were thrust through by the sword, let them fall,— To the sword hath she been delivered up, Lay ye hold of her, and all her multitudes.

21 The chief of the mighty shall speak to him out of the midst of hades, with his helpers,— They have descended, They have lain down, The uncircumcised! Thrust through by the sword!

22 There is Assyria, with all her gathered host, Round about him are his graves, All of them thrust through, The fallen by the sword:

23 Whose graves have been set In the recesses of the pit, And so her gathered host is round about her grave, All of them thrust through, Fallen by the sword, Who caused terror in the land of the living.

24 There is Persia, with all her multitude, round about her grave,— All of them thrust through, The fallen by the sword, Who have descended, uncircumcised, into the earth below, Who made themselves a terror in the land of the living, And so they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit:

25 In the midst of them who were thrust through, have they have placed a couch for her, with all her multitude, Round about it are her graves,— All of them uncircumcised, Thrust through with the sword, For that their terror was caused in the land of the living, And so they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit, In the midst of them who were thrust through, hath it been placed.

26 There are Meshech-Tubal and all her multitude, Round about it are her graves,— All of them uncircumcised, Who were thrust through with the sword, For that they made themselves a terror in the land of the living;

Therfore shall they not lie with the mighty men, The fallen ones from age-past times, Who descended into hades with their weapons of war, And their swords were placed under their heads, But their iniquities have come upon their bones, Because of the terror of the mighty, in the land of the living.

28 Thou therefore shalt be overthrown, And shalt lie low with them who were thrust through by the sword.

29 There are Edom, her kings and all her princes, Who have been delivered up in their might, With them who were thrust through by the sword,— They with the uncircumcised shall lie low, Even with them who descend into the pit.

30 There are the princes of the North, all of them, and all the Zidonians, Who have descended with them who were thrust through, By reason of the terror they caused, of their might, are they ashamed, So they have lain down uncircumcised, With them who were thrust through by the sword, And they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit.

31 Them shall Pharaoh see, and be grievend over all his multitude, Thrust through with the sword shall be Pharaoh and all his army! Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 32. Divine Dealing with Individuals
(cp. chaps. iii., xviii.).

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

2 Son of man,
Speak unto the sons of thy people, and thou shalt say unto them,
<As a land—when I bring upon it a sword,—
The people of the land shall take one man out of their whole number, and appoint him for them, as watchman;
And he shall see the sword coming upon the land,—and shall blow with the horn, and warn the people>

3 Then shall he that heard the sound of the horn, and took not warning,
The sword indeed shall come, and taken him away,—
His blood upon his own head shall remain:

4 The sound of the horn〉 he heard, but took not warning,
His blood upon himself shall remain,—
Whereas had taken warning <his own soul> he should have delivered.

5 But as for the watchman—
When he seeth the sword coming, And hath not blown with the horn, And the people have not been warned, And the sword hath come and taken away from among them any person, His blood for his iniquity hath been taken away,
But his blood at the hand of the watchman will I require.

6 Thou therefore, Son of man,
A watchman> have I appointed thee, to the house of Israel,
So then thou shalt hear, at my mouth, a message, and shalt warn them from me.

7 When I say to the lawless man, O lawless man, thou shalt surely die,
And thou hast not spoken to warned the lawless man from his way, His, the lawless man, for his iniquity shall die,
But his blood at thy hand shall I demand.

8 But <as for thyself>,
When thou hast warned a lawless man from his way, to turn therefrom,
And he hath not turned from his way>
He for his own iniquity shall die,
But thou hast delivered thine own life.

9 Thou therefore, Son of man,
Say unto the house of Israel,
Thus have ye spoken, saying:
<When our transgressions and our sins> are upon us,—and >we are melting away>
How, then, can we live?

10 Say unto them,
As I live,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely, I can take no pleasure in the death of the lawless man,
But that the lawless man turn from his way, and live,—
Turn ye, turn ye, from your wicked ways, For wherefores should ye die, O house of Israel?

11 Thou therefore, Son of man
Say unto the sons of thy people—
The righteousnessness of the righteous man shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression,
And as for the lawlessness of the lawless man>
He shall not stumble thereby, in the day of his return from his lawlessness,—
Nor shall the righteous man be able to live thereby in the day of his sin.

12 When I say of the righteous man, He shall surely live, but he hath trusted in his righteousness and committed perversity, None of his righteous deeds shall be mentioned,
But his perversity which he hath committed—thereby, shall he die.
And when I say to the lawless man, Thou shalt surely die, but he shall turn from his sin, and do justice and righteousness:
The debt-pledge> the lawless man shall restore,
Plunder shall pay back,
In the statutes of life hath walked, so as not to commit perversity,
He shall surely live, he shall not die—
None of his sins which he hath committed shall be called to mind against him,— Justice and righteousness hath he done.
He shall surely live.

See note on chap. xx. 25.  "my" G.n.
W. "his"; read: Or: "in."
And can the sons of thy people say, 'The way of the Lord will not be equal? Nay! but as for them, their way will not be equal!' When the righteous man shall turn from his righteousness, and commit perversity, then shall he die for them; but when the lawless man shall turn from his lawlessness, and do justice and righteousness, upon him shall he live. And can ye then say, 'The way of the Lord will not be equal?' every man—according to his own ways—shall judge you, O house of Israel!

And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, on the fifth of the month of our exile that there came unto me one that had escaped out of Jerusalem, saying, Smiten is the city!

Now the hand of Yahweh had come unto me, in the evening, before the coming of him who had escaped, and he had opened my mouth, by the time that he came to me in the morning, so my mouth was opened, and I was dumb no longer. Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Son of man, these inhabitants of waste places, on the soil of Israel are saying thus, O Prince! was Abraham, yet he inherited the land; but we are many; to us is the land given as an inheritance.

Wherefore say unto them, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh. With the blood you do eat, and your eyes do you lift up unto your manufactured gods, and the blood do you shed, and the land shall ye inherit? Ye men have taken your stand by your sword, ye women have wrought abomination, and every man with the wife of his neighbour have ye defiled yourselves; and the land shall ye inherit?

Thus shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh. As I live surely they who are in the waste places shall fall, and him who is on the face of the field, to the wild beast have I given to be devoured, and they who are in the mountains hold and in the pits by pestilence shall die;

And I will make the land a desolation and an astonishment, so shall be made to cease the pride of her strength,—And the mountains of Israel shall be too desolate for any to pass through.

When I make the land a desolation and an astonishment, because of all their abominations which they have committed. Therefore, Son of man, the sons of thy people who are talking against thee, near the walls and in the entrances of the houses are speaking one with another, every man with his brother, saying, Come in, we pray you, and hear, what is the word that is coming forth from Yahweh;

That they may come unto thee as people do come, and may sit before thee, as my people, and they will hear thy words, but the words themselves will they not do, though fond with their mouths. They seem to be, after their unjust gain, that their heart is going.

And lo! thou art to them as a bewitching song. Of one with a beautiful voice, and skillfully touching the strings, so will they hear thy words, and yet be going to do none of them. But when it cometh Lo! it is coming! Then shall they know that a prophet hath been in their midst.

§ 33. Against the Shepherds of Israel. The True Shepherd judges both betwixt Classes and Individuals.

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel, prophesy, and thou shalt say unto them, even to the shepherds—Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh—Alas! for the shepherds of Israel who have been tending themselves! Is it not the flock that the shepherds should tend?

The milk ye do eat And with the wool ye do clothe yourselves,
<The well-fed> ye do sacrifice, a
<The flock> ye do not tend:
4 <The weak> have ye not strengthened,
And <the sick> have ye not healed,
And <the torn> have ye not bound up,
And <that which was driven out> have ye not brought back,
And <that which was straying> have ye not sought out;
But <with force> have ye ruled them, and
with rigour.
5 And they were scattered, because there was no shepherd;
And they became food for every wild beast of
the field,
So were they scattered.
6 My sheep did wander through all the mountains,
And over every high hill,—
And <over all the face of the land> were my sheep scattered,
And there was none to inquire,
And none to seek out.
7 Wherefore| ye shepherds, hear ye the word
of Yahweh:
8 <As I live>—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely <because my flock became a prey,
And my flock became food for every wild beast of the field, through having no’ shepherd,
Neither did my shepherds inquire after the flock,—
But |the shepherds| tended |themselves|.
And <my flock> they tended not>.
9 Therefore| ye shepherds, hear ye the word
of Yahweh:
10 Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Behold me! against the shepherds,
So then I will take my flock at their hand,
And will cause them to cease tending the flock,
Neither shall |the shepherds| any longer tend |
|themselves|,
But I will deliver my flock out of their mouth,
that they may not be their food.
11 For
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
Here am |I myself|,
Therefore will I inquire after my flock, and seek them out:
12 <As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day he is in the midst of his sheep that are scattered:>
So will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all the places where they were scattered in the day of cloud and thick darkness;
13 And I will bring them out from among the peoples,
And will gather them out of the lands,
And will bring them upon their own soil,—
And will tend them Upon the mountains of Israel, In the ravines. a And in all the habitable places of the land:
14 <In good pastures> will I feed them,
And <on the mountains of the height of Israel> shall be their fold,— 15 <There> shall they lie down, in a fold that is good,
And <on pasture that is fat> shall they feed,
among the mountains of Israel.
16 ||I myself|| will tend my flock,
And ||I myself|| will cause them to lie down,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh:
16 <That which is straying> will I seek out,
And <that which hath been driven away>
will I bring back,
And <that which is torn> will I bind up,
And <the weak> will I strengthen,—
But <the fat and the strong> will I watch. b
I will feed them with justice.
17 And <as for you, O my flock>
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:
Behold me! judging between one kind of small cattle and another, as well the rams as the he-goats.
18 Is it too small a thing for you that <on the good pasture> ye feed,
But <the remainder of your pastures> ye must needs trample down with your feet?
Or that <of the pure waters> ye drink,
But <the waters left remaining—with your feet> ye must needs foul?
19 And <my flock>:
<On what hath been trampled down by your feet> may feed,
And <of what hath been fouled by your feet> may drink?
20 Therefore
Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, unto them:
Here am |I myself|,
Therefore, will I judge between fat’ sheep and lean’ sheep,
21 <Because with the side and with the shoulder> ye do thrust,
And <with your horns> ye do push all the sick,—
Until ye have scattered them abroad>.
22 Therefore will I bring salvation c to my flock, and they shall be no longer a prey,—but I will judge’ between one sheep and another,
23 And I will raise up over them one shepherd
And he shall tend them,
Even my servant David,—
He will tend them,
And ||he|| will become to them a shepherd;
24 And ||I, Yahweh|| will become to them a
God. |my servant David| being a prince d in their midst,—
I, Yahweh| have spoken;
25 And I will solemnise for* them a covenant of prosperity,
And will cause to cease the mischievous

And I will cause the abundant rain to come down in its season <abundant rains of blessing> shall they be;
And the tree of the field shall yield its fruit,
And [the land] shall yield her increase,
And they shall remain on their own soil, in security,—

So shall they know that [I am Yahweh],
When I have broken,* the bars of their yoke,
And shall deliver them out of the hand of them who have been using them as slaves.
And they shall be no longer a prey for the
nations,
Nor shall [the wild beast of the earth] devour
them,—
But they shall dwell securely, with none to put them in terror.
And I will raise up unto them a plantation for fame,—
And there shall be no longer the destroyed of hunger in the land.
Neither shall they hear any longer the reproach of the nations.

So shall they know that [I am Yahweh their God]
am with them,—
And that [they] are my people, the house of Israel, Declare My Lord, Yahweh.

[You therefore, my flock, the flock of my pasture] are [men]—
[I am your God],
 Declare My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 34. Against Mount Seir (Edom). (Cp. § 25.)

35 1 And the word of Yahweh came unto me,
saying:

Son of man,
Set thy face against Mount Seir,—and prophecy against it; * and thou shalt say to it, [Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! against thee, O Mount Seir,—
Therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee,
And I will make thee a desolation and an astonishment:

[The cities] will I lay waste,'
And [a desolation shall be becoming],—
So shall thou know that [I am Yahweh].

Because thou hast had an age-abiding enmity,
And hast delivered up the sons of Israel unto the hands of the sword,—

6 |Therefore| [as I live>]

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
Surely <regarding blood> will I deal with thee,
[Blood] therefore, shall pursue thee,—
Since [blood] thou hast not hated a*
Therefore [blood] shall pursue thee,
So then I will deliver up Mount Seir, to desolation after desolation,—
And will cut off therefrom, him that passeth
by and him that returneth,
And I will fill his mountains with his slain,— [As for thy hills and thy hollows and all thy channels] they who are thrust through by the sword shall fall therein;
[Desolations age-abiding] will I make thee,
And [thy cities] shall not be inhabited,—
So shall ye know that [I am Yahweh].

<Because thou hast said>
[The two nations, and the two lands] shall become, that we may possess it >
Whereas [Yahweh] had been [there]>
|Therefore|, <as I live>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
I will even deal according to thine anger, and according to thine envy, wherewith thou hast dealt, out of thy hatred, with them,— So will I make myself known among them, as soon as I shall judge thee!

And thou shalt know that [I am Yahweh] have heard all thy revilings, which thou hast uttered against the mountains of Israel
saying,
They have become desolate,—
[To us:] have they been given for food ;
And so ye have magnified yourselves against me' with your mouth,
And have caused to abound against me' your words,—
[All know]

|Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh,—
[When all the earth is rejoicing] I will make thee:
[As thou didst rejoice over the inheritance of the house of Israel because it had become a desolation] I will do unto thee,—
[A desolation] shall thou become, O
Mount Seir,
And all Edom, [all of it],
So shall they know that [I am Yahweh].

So shall ye know that I am Yahweh;

And I will bring upon you—men, even my people Israel, that they may possess thee. So shalt thou be theirs, as an inheritance,—And shalt no more again make them childless.

|Therefore| prophesy, and thou shalt say, ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,—

|Therefore| ye mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of My Lord, Yahweh,—

|Therefore| prophesy, concerning the soil of Israel,—and say to the mountains and to the hills, to the channels and to the valleys, and to the desolate waste places, and to the cities that are forsaken, which have become a prey and a derision, to the rest of the nations, which are on every side:

|Therefore| prophesy, concerning the soil of Israel,—and say to the mountains and to the hills, to the channels and to the valleys, ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me!

In the rejoicing of all the heart,

||I myself|| have lifted my hand,—

Surely ||the nations which are yours round about|| they ||their own shame|| shall bear:

But ||ye, O mountains of Israel||

Your boughs shall ye shoot forth,

And your fruit shall ye shoot forth, For my people Israel,

For they have drawn near to enter.

For lo! I am towards you, Therefore will I turn towards you,

And ye shall be tilled, and sown;

And I will multiply, upon you—men, All the house of Israel, All of it, Then shall the cities be inhabited,

And ||the waste places|| shall be built,

And I will multiply upon you—man and beast, And they shall multiply and be fruitful,—

And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying:

|The Son of man,|| The house of Israel|| were dwelling upon their own soil, But they defiled it, by their way, and by their doings.

<Like the defilement of her that is removed> became their way before me.

So I poured out mine indignation upon them,

Because of the blood which they had shed upon the land,

Yea <with their manufactured gods> had they defiled it.

So I dispersed them among the nations, And they were scattered throughout the lands,—

<According to their way and according to their doings> I judged them.

But <when they entered among the nations where they did enter> then profaned they my holy Name,—in that it was said of them,

|The people of Yahweh|| these!

Yet <from his land> have they come forth!

Son of man,

Their bones are all the house of Israel, —
Lo! they are saying,
Dried are our bones, and lost is our hope,
We are quite cut off!

Therefore prophesy and thou shalt say unto them,

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Lo! I am going to open your graves,
And will cause you to come up out of your graves, O my people,
And will bring you upon the soil of Israel.

So shall ye know that I am Yahweh,

people Israel, like a cloud covering the land,—

<In the afterpart of the days> shall it be,
that I will suffer thee to enter upon my land,
To the end the nations [may know me], when I hallow myself* in thee before their eyes
O Gog!

17 ||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh,
Aren’t thou he of whom I spake in days atone time, by the hand of my servants
the prophets of Israel, who kept on propheying in those days for years,—
That thou shouldst be suffered to come against them?

So then shall it come to pass in that day,
<In the day when Gog entereth’ upon the soil of Israel,>
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh>
That mine indignation [shall come up] into my nostrils;

19 Yea, <in my jealousy, in the fire of mine
outburst> have I spoken,— Surely <in that day> shall there be a great trembling upon the soil of Israel:

Then shall tremble before me
* The fishes of the sea, and
The bird of the heavens, and
The wild beast of the field, and Every creeping thing that creepeth on the ground, and
All the men, who are on the face of the
ground,— and

The mountains [shall be torn asunder], and
The steep places [shall sink down], and ||Every wall|| <to the earth> shall be thrown.

21 Then will I call against him, every terror,*
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,
||The sword of every man|| <against his brother> shall be;
22 Then will I contend with him, by pestilence and by blood,—
And <an overflowing downpour and hail-ostones, fire and brimstone> will I rain
Upon him, and
Upon his hordes, and Upon the many peoples who are with him.

23 So will I
Magnify myself, and Hallow myself, and
Make myself known,
Before the eyes of many nations,—
And they shall know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

39 1 ||Thou|| therefore, son of man,
Prophesy against Gog, and thou shalt say,—
||Thus|| saith My Lord, Yahweh :
Behold me against thee, O Gog,
Prince of Rosh, Meshech and Tubal,

Therefore will I turn thee about, and lead thee on, and cause thee to come up out of the remote parts of the North,—
And will bring thee in upon the mountains of Israel;

3 And I will smite thy bow, out of thy left hand,—
And <thine arrows — out of thy right hand> will I cause to fall.

4 <Upon the mountains of Israel> shalt thou fall.
||Thou and all thy hordes, and the peoples* who are with thee||,—
<To birds of prey of hordes, and the wild beast of the field> will I give thee for food:

5 <Upon the face of the field> shalt thou
fall,—
For ||I|| have spoken,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

6 And I will send a fire into Magog,
And among them who are dwelling in the Coastlands, securely,—
So shall they know that ||I|| am Yahweh.

7 And <my holy’ Name> will I make known,
in the midst of my people Israel,
And will not suffer my holy’ Name to be profaned any more,—
So shall the nations know that ||I|| am
Yahweh,
Holy in Israel.

8 Lo! it is coming, and shall be brought to pass,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,—
||The same|| is the day whereof I had spoken.

9 Then shall go forth the dwellers of the cities of Israel, and shall make fires of the weapons and burn them,
Both buckler and shield, bow and arrows,
and handstaff and spear,—

And shall make fires of them, seven years;

10 And they shall not take wood out of the field.
Neither shall they cut down out of the forests,—
For <of the armour> shall they make fires,—
So shall they spoil those who spoiled them’
And prey on those who preyed on them’,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

11 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give to Gog a place of memorial* for burial in Israel, even the valley of them that pass through east of the sea,
And it shall be enough to keep back them who would pass through,— and they shall bury there Gog and all his multitude, and shall call it, Ge-hamon-gog.
[That is “The valley of the multitude of Gog.”]

they may cleanse the land),— seven months;

Therefore saith My Lord, Yahweh,
| Now | will I bring back them of the captivity of Jacob,
And have compassion upon all the house of Israel,—
And will be jealous for My holy Name;
And they shall bear their confusion, and the punishment of all their treachery, where with they have committed treachery against me,—
When they dwell upon their own soil securely, with none to make them afraid;
When I have brought them back from among the peoples,
And gathered them out of the lands of their enemies,—
So will I hallow myself in them, before the eyes of the many nations; And they shall know that I, Yahweh, am their God, When I have carried them into exile among the nations, And shall then gather them upon their own soil,— And shall no more leave any of them there.
Neither will I any more hide my face from them,— In that I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

§ 40. An Extraordinary Vision (chaps. xl.—xlviii.)
of Restored Land, Tribal Portions, Temple, Priests, and Sacrifices, as to which the Conditioning Force of chap. xliii. 7—11 should not be overlooked.

<In the twenty-fifth year of our exile, at 40 the beginning of the year, on the tenth of the month, in the fourteenth year, after the city | was smitten > <on this selfsame day> came upon me the hand of Yahweh, and he brought me thither: <In the visions of God> he brought me into the land of Israel,—and set me down upon an exceeding high mountain, and <thereupon> was, as it were, the structure of a city, on the south. And <when he brought me thither> then lo! a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of bronze, with a flax-cord in his hand, and a measuring reed,—and he was standing in the gate. And the man <spake unto me> [saying],
Son of man See with thine eyes, And with thine ears hear thou, And apply thy heart to whatsoever I am about to show thee, For <to the intent it might be shown thee> hast thou been brought hither,— Declare all that thou seest unto the house of Israel.
And lo! a wall on the outside of the house, round about on every side,—and <in the hand

13 Yes all the people of the land | shall bury, and it shall become to them a memorial,—the day that I get myself glory,
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

14 And <men to keep at it constantly> shall they tell off. Men to pass throughout the land, who, with the passers-by, | shall continue burying| them who have been left on the face of the land, to cleanse it,— <At the end of seven months> shall they make search.
And <when any of the passers-by, in going through the land, shall see a human bone> then shall be set up near it a sign,—until the buriers | have buried it,| in Ge-hamon-Gog.
Moreover ||the name of a city|| shall be Hamonah ["To the multitude"], so shall they cleanse the land.

17 ||Thou|| therefore, son of man, ||Thou|| saith My Lord, Yahweh, Say to the bird of every wing, And to every wild beast of the field, Assemble yourselves and come, Gather yourselves from every side, unto my sacrifice which I am sacrificing for you. A great sacrifice, on the mountains of Israel,— And ye shall eat flesh, and drink blood:

|The flesh of mighty men| shall ye eat, And <the blood of the princes> of the earth> shall ye drink,— Rams, well-fed lambs and he-goats, bullocks, Fatlings of Bashan, all of them;
And ye shall eat fat till ye are sated, And drink blood till ye are drunken, Of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you;

So shall ye be sated at my table, with horse and chariot team, mighty man, and every man of war,—
Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

Thus will I set my glory among the nations,— And all the nations shall see,
My judgment, which I have executed,—and My hand, which I have laid upon them.
So shall the house of Israel know that ||I, Yahweh|| am their God,—from that day and forward ;
And the nations shall know
That <in> their iniquity were the house of Israel exiled because they had committed treachery against me, And so I hid my face from them,— And gave them into the hand of their adversaries, And they fell by the sword, |all of them|.

<According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions> dealt I with them,— And so I hid my face from them.

of the man> was the measuring reed, six cubits by the cubit, and a handbreadth, so he measured the breadth of the enclosing-wall, one reed, and the height, one reed.

Then came he unto the gate that looked toward the east, and went up by the steps thereof, and measured the threshold of the gate, one reed broad, and the other threshold, one reed broad. 7 And [the lodge] was one reed long, one reed broad, and [between the lodges] was a space of five cubits, and [the threshold of the gate from beside the porch of the gate inwards] was one reed.

Then measured he the porch of the gate inwards, one reed. 9 Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits, and the projections thereof, two cubits, and [the porch of the gate] was within. 10 And [the lodges of the gate that was towards the east] were, three on this side, and three on that side, one measure had they three, and less one measure had the projections, on this side and on that side.

Then measured he the breadth of the entrance of the gate, ten cubits—the length of the gate, thirteen cubits. 12 And [the space before the lodges] was one cubit, and [one cubit] the space on that side; and [the lodge itself] was six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side.

Then measured he the gate from the roof of this lodge to the roof of that, a breadth of twenty-five cubits, entrance over against entrance.

Then measured he the porch, twenty cubits, even unto the projection of the court, the lodges of the gate round about on every side, and from the face of the gate outwards, unto the face of the porch of the inner gate, was fifty cubits. 14 And [latticed windows] had the lodges, even towards their projections within the gate, round about on every side, and so had the recesses, and windows round about on every side inwards, and against each projection palm-trees.

Then brought he me into the outer court, and lo! chambers and a tessellated pavement, made to the court round about on every side, thirty chambers against the pavement, 18 And the pavement was against the side of the gates, answering to the length of the gates, the lower pavement. Then measured he the breadth, from the front of the lower, to the front of the inner court on the outside, one hundred cubits, to the east and the north. And as for the gate which looked towards the north, pertaining to the outer court, he measured the length thereof, and the breadth thereof.

And [the lodges thereof] were three on this side, and three on that side, and the projections thereof and the recesses thereof were, accordcubits, and by ten steps they ascend into it,— and there were pillars against the projections,

(one) on this side, and (one) on that side.

1 Then he took me unto the temple,—and 41 measured the projection, six cubits broad on this side and six cubits broad on that side, the breadth of the tent. 2 And (the breadth of the entrance) was ten cubits, and (the sides of the entrance) were five cubits on this side, and cubits on that side—and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits.

3 Then went he inwards, and measured the projection of the entrance, two cubits,—and (the entrance itself) was six cubits, and (the sides of the entrance) seven cubits: so he measured the length thereof twenty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits, at the front of the temple. 4 Then said he unto me,
(This) is the holy of holies.

Then measured he the wall of the house six cubits,—and the breadth of the side-chamber, four cubits round about on every side of the house round about. 8 And (the side-chambers, each one over another) were three, and that thirty times, and they entered into the wall which pertained to the house for the side-chambers round about on every side, that they might have support,—and yet not have support in the wall of the house itself. 7 And there was a broadening and a widening about a higher and higher to the side-chambers, for (the circuit of the house) was higher and higher round about on every side of the house. 8 And (for this reason) was there a broadening of the house upwards,—and <from the lower> one ascended to the higher, by which it was in the middle. 8 Then saw I that the house had a height round about on every side,—the foundations of the side-chambers,
a full reed, six cubits, to the joining.
9 (The breadth of the wall which pertained to the side-chamber on the outside) was five cubits,— and that which was left vacant between the side-chambers which pertained to the house.

10 And (between the chambers) was a breadth of twenty cubits round about the house, round about on every side. 11 And the entrance of the side-chamber was at the vacant space, one entrance toward the north, and another entrance toward the south,—and (the breadth of the place left vacant) was five cubits round about on every side. 12 And (the building which was) toward the front of the secluded place on the side toward the west was (in breadth) seventy cubits, and (the wall of the building) was five cubits in breadth round about on every side,—and (the length thereof) ninety cubits. 12 And he measured (the house), six cubits broad on the length, a hundred cubits, and (the secluded place and the structure and the walls thereof),

— 53—2
<in length> a hundred cubits. 14 And the breadth of the front of the house and the secluded place toward the east, a hundred cubits. 15 And he measured the length of the building against the front of the secluded place which was over the hinder part thereof and the galleries thereof on this side and on that side, a hundred cubits, with the inner* temple and the porches of the court: 16 the entrance spaces and the latticed windows and the galleries round about their three stories, over against the entrance spaces wainscoted with wood, round about on every side,—and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were covered; 17 <unto the space above the entrance even unto the inner house and without and against all the wall round about on every side within and without> were the measures. 18 And it was made with cherubim and palm-trees,—with a palm-tree between cherub and cherub, and two faces had each cherub; 19 and the face of a man was toward the palm-tree on this side, and the face of a young lion was toward the palm-tree on that side,—[thus was it] made unto all the house, round about on every side. 20 From the ground as far as the space above the entrance were the cherubim and the palm-trees made. 4

<As for the wall of the temple> the door-posts were squared,—and as for the face of the holy place the appearance of the temple was like the appearance of the temple. 22 The altar was of wood, three cubits in height, and the length thereof two cubits, and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof were of wood, then spake he unto me saying, This is the table, which is before Yahweh. 23 And there were two doors to the temple, and to the holy place; and two leaves to the doors,—two folding leaves, two to the one door, and two to the other door. 24 And there had been made’ unto them, unto the doors of the temple, cherubim and palm-trees, like as had been made to the walls,—and thick beams of wood unto the front of the porch without. 25 And there were latticed windows and palm-trees on this side and on that side, unto the sides of the porch,—and unto the side-chambers of the house and the thick beams.

Then said he unto me, 26 the chambers of the north, the chambers of the south, which face the secluded place: they are the holy chambers, where the priests who draw near to Yahweh shall eat the most holy things; there shall they lay the most holy things, and the meal-offering and the sin-bearer and the guilt-bearer, for the place is holy. 27 When the priests enter them then shall they not go forth out of the holy place into the outer court, but there shall they lay their garments wherein they minister, for they are, and shall put on other garments, and so draw near unto that which pertaineth to the people. 28 Then he brought me forth unto the outer court, the way toward the north,—and brought me unto the chamber which was over against the secluded place and which was over against the enclosing-wall, towards the north. 29 Facing the length of the hundred cubits was the entrance of the north,—and the breadth was fifty cubits: over against the twenty which pertained to the inner court, and over against the pavement which pertained to the outer court was gallery facing gallery, by the thirties; and before the chambers was a walk ten cubits in breadth inward, a way of one cubit,—and their entrances were to the north. 30 Now the highest chambers were shortened, because the galleries took away therefrom more than from the lowest or from the middle, in structure. For three stories they were; and had not pillars like the pillars of the courts; for this cause it differed from the lowest and from the middle, from the ground. 31 And as for the wall that was without, answering to the chambers, toward the outer court, facing the chambers was fifty cubits. 32 For the length of the chambers which pertained to the outer court was fifty cubits,—and lo: in front of the temple, a hundred cubits. 33 And from under these chambers was the entry from the east when one goeth in by them from the outer court. 34 In the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east facing the secluded place and facing the enclosing wall were chambers.

And the way before them was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, as was their length, and was their breadth,—and all their exits were both according to their regulations, and according to their entrances. 35 And according to the entrances of the chambers which were toward the south was the entrance at the head of the way—the way in the face of the covered wall, the way toward the east in entering them. 36 Then said he unto me, 37 These were the measureings of the inner house then he brought me forth by way of the gate which looked toward the east,—and measured it, round about on every side. 38 He measured the east side with the measuring reed, five hundred reeds by the measuring reed, round about. 39 He measured the north side, five hundred reeds by the measuring reed, round about. 40 The south side measured he, five hundred reeds by the measuring reed. 41 He turned about to the west side, he measured five hundred reeds by the measuring reed. 42 Toward the four winds measured he it, a wall had it round about on every side, in length five

Then he took me unto the gate, even the gate that looked toward the east; and when lo! the glory of the God of Israel coming from the way of the east, and the sound of him was as the sound of many waters, and the earth shone with his glory. And it was like the appearance of the vision which I had seen, like the vision which I saw—when I came to destroy the city, also the visions were like the vision which I saw by the river Chebar,—so I fell upon my face. And the glory of Yahweh entered into the house, by way of the gate which looked toward the east. So then the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the inner court, and lo! the glory of Yahweh filled the house. Then heard I one speaking unto me, out of the house, and [a man] there was standing beside me. Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

[This is] the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I dwell in the midst of the sons of Israel, to times age-abiding,

But the house of Israel must no more defile my holy Name. They, nor their kings, by their unchastity, and by the carcases of their kings, in their high places,

When they placed—

Their threshold by my threshold, and their door-post beside my door-post,

With only [the wall] between me and them;

Defiled they my holy Name by their abominations which they committed,

Wherefore I devoured them, in mine anger.

Now let them remove their unchastity, and the carcases of their kings, far from me,—So will I make my habitation in the midst of them, to times age-abiding.

Thou son of man,

Declare the house unto the house of Israel,

That they may be put to the blush for their iniquities,

Then let them measure the pattern.

And when they have blasphemed for all that they have done,—then—

The form of the house,

And the arrangement thereof,

And the exit thereof,

And the entrances thereof,

And all the forms thereof, and all the statutes thereof,

And all the laws thereof,

make thou known unto them,

And write [it] before their eyes;

That they may keep—

All the forms thereof,

And all the statutes thereof,

And do them.

This shall be the law of the house,—

Upon the top of the mountain all the boundary thereof round about on every side shall be most holy,

Lo! this shall be the law of the house.

And these shall be the measures of the altar, in cubits, [a cubit] being a cubit and a handbreadth; and the hollow shall be a cubit, and [a cubit] the breadth, and the boundary thereof unto the edge thereof round about shall be a single span.

And this shall be the upper part of the altar.

And from the hollow of the ground unto the lower ledge shall be two cubits, and the breadth one cubit,—and from the smaller ledge unto the larger ledge shall be four cubits, and the breadth a cubit. And the hearth shall be four cubits—measuring the hearth and upward, the horns shall be four. And the hearth shall be twelve cubits in length, by twelve in breadth, square in the four sides thereof.

And the ledge shall be fourteen in length, by fourteen in breadth, unto the four sides thereof,—and the boundary round about it shall be half a cubit, and the hollow thereunto a cubit, round about, with the steps thereof looking toward the east.

Then said he unto me,

Son of man,

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,

These shall be the statutes of the altar, in the day when it is made,—for offering up thereon—an ascending-sacrifice, and for dashing thereon—blood.

So then thou shalt give unto the priests the Levites, those who are of the seed of Zadok, who approach unto me, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, to wait upon me,—a young bullock, as a sin-bearer.

Then shalt thou take of the blood thereof, and place upon the four horns thereof, and on the four corners of the ledge, and on the boundary round about,—and shalt cleanse it from sin, and put a propitiatory-covering over it.

Then shalt thou take the bullock bearing sin,—and shalt burn it in the appointed place of the house, outside the sanctuary.

And on the second day shalt thou bring near a kid of the goats without defect, as a sin-bearer,—and they shall cleanse the altar from sin, just as they cleansed it from sin with the bullock.

When thou hast made an end of cleansing from sin, thou shalt bring near a young bullock without defect, and a ram out of the flock, without defect; and shalt bring them near before Yahweh, and the priests shall cast over them salt, so shall they cause them to go up as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh.

Then said Yahweh unto me, This gate shall remain, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter thereby, because Yahweh, God of Israel, doth enter thereby.

Therefore shall it remain—shut.

The prince shall sit therein, to eat bread before Yahweh,

By way of the porch of the gate shall he go in, and By way thereof shall he come out.

Then he brought me in by way of the north gate, unto the front of the house, and I looked, and lo! the glory of Yahweh filled the house of Yahweh; so I fell upon my face.

And Yahweh said unto me,

Son of man, apply thy heart, and see with thine eyes,

And with thine ears hear thou, that I am speaking with thee,
as to all the statutes of the house of Yahweh, and as to all the laws thereof,

And thou shalt apply thine heart to the entering in of the house, with all the exits of the sanctuary.

So then thou shalt say unto the perverse [house], unto the house of Israel, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:

Let it more than suffice you, out of all your abominations, O house of Israel:

7 That ye brought in the sons of the foreigner, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh;

To be in my sanctuary, so that he profaned my house,

That ye brought near as my food, the fat and the blood, and so ye brake my covenant—among all your abominations;

Neither kept ye the charge of my holy things.

But ye did set [men] to be keepers of my charge in my sanctuary, for your own pleasure.

Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,

No son of a foreigner, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any son of a foreigner, who is in the midst of the sons of Israel.

But as for the Levites, who went far from me, when Israel went astray, who went astray from me, after their manufactory gods>

Therefore shall they bear their iniquity.

Yet shall they remain in my sanctuary as attendants in charge at the gates of the house,

And attending upon the house, they shall slay the ascending-offering, and the sacrifice of the people, and they shall stand before them, to wait upon them.

Because they used to wait upon them, before their manufactory gods, and became to the house of Israel a stumbling-block of iniquity.

For this cause have I lifted up my hand concerning them,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, and they shall bear their iniquity:

So then they shall not come near unto me to minister as priests unto me, nor come near unto any of my holy things, as regardeth things most holy;—

But they shall bear their rebuke, and their abominations which they have committed;

Yet will I make them keepers of the charge of the house, as to all the labour thereof, and as to all which shall be done therein.

But the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok, who kept the charge of my sanctuary—

when the sons of Israel went astray from me>
||They|| shall draw near unto me, to wait
And shall stand before me, to bring near unto me the fat and the blood.
> Declareth My Lord, Yahweh:

16 ||They|| shall enter into my sanctuary, and
||They|| shall draw near unto my table, to wait upon me,—
So shall they keep my charge.

17 And it shall be <when they shall enter into the gates of the inner court>
||Garments of linen|| shall they put on,— Yea there shall come upon them no wool, when they minister in the gates of the inner court, and within:

18 ||Chaplets of linen|| shall be upon their head, and
||Breeches of linen|| shall be upon their loins,—
They* shall not gird themselves, so as to perisopia.b

19 And <when they go forth into the outer court, into the outer court unto the people>
They shall put off their garments, wherein they do minister, and lay them in the chambers of the holy place,—
And shall* put on other garments, That they may not hallow the people by their garments.

20 And <their heads> shall they not shave,
Nor let [the hair] grow long,— They shall ||only poll|| their heads.

21 And <wine> shall no priest drink,—when they enter into the inner court.

22 <Neither widow nor divorced woman> shall they take to them to wife,—
But <virgins of the seed of the house of Israel,
Or a widow who shall be the widow of a priest> shall they take.

23 And <my people> shall they instruct, between the holy and the common,—
And <between the unclean and the clean> shall they cause them to distinguish.

24 And <in a controversy> 4
||They|| shall stand up for justice,*
<With my judgments> shall they judge it,—
And <my laws and my statutes in all mine appointed assemblies> shall they observe,
And <my sabbaths> shall they hallow.

25 And <unto no dead person> shall they go in, to defile themselves,— Save that <for father or for mother or for

son or for daughter, for brother, or for sister who hath belonged to no husband> they may defile themselves.

26 Yet <after he is cleansed> ||seven days|| shall they count to him.

27 And <in the day when he entereth into the sanctuary, into the inner court to minister in the sanctuary> He shall bring near his sin-bearer,
> Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

28 So shall it come to pass when they have an inheritance, ||I|| am their inheritance,—
And <possession> shall ye not give them in Israel, ||I|| am their possession.

29 <As for the meal-offering and the sin-bearer and the guilt-bearer> ||they|| shall eat them,—
And ||everything devoted in Israel|| <to them> shall belong.

30 And ||the first of all the firstfruits of everything, and every heave-offering of everything, from among all your heave-offerings> <to the priests> shall it be belong,— <The first of your meal> shall ye give to the priest, To cause a blessing to rest upon thy house.

31 <Nothing that died of itself or was torn in pieces, of bird or of beast> shall be eaten’ by the priests.4

1 And <when ye shall have by lot divide the land 45 as an inheritance> ye shall offer up as a heave-offering to Yahweh a holy portion out of the land, <in length> five and twenty thousand long, and <in breadth> twenty thousand,— ||holy|| shall it be throughout all the territory thereof, round about.
2 There shall be, <out of this, for the holy place> five hundred by five hundred, four-square round about,—and fifty cubits, as an open space to it, round about. 3 And <out of this measure> shalt thou measure, a length of five and twenty thousand, and a breadth of ten thousand,—<therein> shall be the sanctuary, the holy of holies: 4  it is, <for the priests who wait in the sanctuary> shall it be, who draw near to wait upon Yahweh,—so shall it be theirs, as a place for houses, and a sanctuary, for the sanctuary. 5 And <five and twenty thousand> in length, and <ten thousand> in breadth,—and it shall be for the Levites who wait upon the house, theirs as a possession of cities to dwell in. 6 And <the possession of the city> shall ye give, <five thousand> in breadth, and <in length> five and twenty thousand, answering to the heave-offering of the holy portion,—<for all the house of Israel> shall it be. 7 And <to the prince—on this side and on that> shall belong [a portion] of the heave-offering of the holy portion and of the possession of the city, facing the heave-offering of the holy portion and facing the possession of the city, on the west side westward, and on the east side eastward, and <in length> answering to one of the portions, from the west boundary to the east boundary. 8 <Of the land> it shall be his for a possession, in Israel,—and so my princes shall no more oppress my people, but <the land itself> shall they give to the house of Israel, by their tribes.

13 And one lamb out of the flock, out of two hundred, out of the watered pastures of Israel, for a gift, and for an ascending-sacrifice, and for peace-offerings,— To put a propitiatory-covering about the house of Israel.

14 [Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh, The gate of the inner court which looketh toward the east shall be shut, the six days of work,—but <on the sabbath-day> shall it be opened, and <on the day of the new moon> shall it be opened. 15 The prince therefore shall enter by way of the porch of the gate, without, and shall stand by the post of the gate, and the priests shall offer his ascending-sacrifice, and his peace-offerings, and he shall bow down upon the threshold of the gate, and then go forth,—but <the gate> shall not be shut until the evening; 2 and the people of the land <shall bow down> at the entrance of that gate on the sabbaths, and at the new moons,—before Yahweh.

16 [Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh, 46 The Sixth of an ephah 8 out of a homer of barley; and <the sixth 9 of an ephah> 8 out of a homer of wheat, shall be the proportion thereof; and <the shekel> shall be twenty gerahs,—<twenty shekels, five and twenty shekels, and fifteen shekels> the weight; shall be to you.

17 But <on the prince himself> shall rest the ascending-sacrifices, and the meat-offering, and the drink-offering, on the festivals, and on the new moons, and on the sabbaths, in all the appointed meetings of the house of Israel,—[he] shall offer the sin-bearer, and the meal-offering, and the ascending-sacrifice, and the peace-offerings. To put a propitiatory-covering about the house of Israel.

18 [Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh, In the first month, on the first day of the month shall thou take a young bullock, without defect,—and shalt cleanse the sanctuary from sin; 13 then shall the priest take' of the blood of the sin-bearer, and put upon the door-posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and upon the door-posts of the gate of the inner court. 20 And [he] shall thou do in the seventh of the month, 1 for any man that waveth or is of feeble mind,—so shall ye cleanse the house by propitiatory.

19 In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month shall ye have the passover,—a festival of seven days, 6 unleavened cakes shall be eaten; 22 therefore shall the prince offer, on that day, for himself, and for all the people of the land,—a bullock as a sin-bearer; 23 and <the seven days of the festival> shall he offer as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh, seven bullocks and seven rams without defect, daily, for the seven days,—and <as a sin-bearer> a young goat, daily; 24 and  shall be offer, —and <of oil> a hin to an ephah. 25 In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month through-out the festival> he shall offer like these, seven days,—like the sin-bearer, like the ascending-sacrifice, and like the meal-offering, and like the oil.

10 [Thus] saith My Lord, Yahweh, [When the prince would bestow a gift upon any one of his sons] shall it be, [for his sons] shall it remain,—[their possession] shall it be, by way of inheritance.
11 But [when he would bestow a gift out of his inheritance, or any one of his servants], he shall return to the prince,—surely it is the inheritance of his sons [theirs] shall it remain.
12 So then the prince [shall not take] of the inheritance of the people, to oppress them out of their possession, [out of his own possession] shall he give an inheritance to his sons,—to the end that my people be not scattered, any one out of his possession.

13 Then he brought me in through the entrance which was by the side of the gate, into the chambers of the holy place for the priests, those facing the north,—and lo! there’s a place, in the hinder parts westwards. Then said he unto me,—

14 [This is the place where the priests shall boil the guilt-bearer, and the sin-bearer,—where they shall bake the meal-offering, that one may not carry them forth into the outer court, to hallow the people.]

15 So he caused me to go out into the outer court, and then made me pass through into the four corners of the court,—and lo! there was a court in each corner of the court: in the four corners of the court were courts covered over, forty long and thirty broad: [of one measure] were those four. And there was an enclosure round about them, round about to those four, and [boiling places] had been made under the enclosures, round about. And he said unto me,—

16 Therefore are the places of them who boil, where they who wait upon the house, shall boil the sacrifices of the people.

Then he brought me back unto the entrance of the house, and lo! measuring line in his hand> then measured he a thousand, by the cubit, and caused me to pass through the waters—waters reaching to the ankles. 4 Then measured he a thousand, and caused me to pass through the waters—waters reaching to the knees,—and again measured he a thousand, and caused me to pass through—waters reaching to the loins. 5 Then measured he a thousand—[a river] which I could not pass through—for the waters had risen”—waters to swim in, [a river] that could not be forded. 6 Then said he unto me,

Hast thou seen, son of man? Then he took me along and caused me to return, to the bank of the river. 7 <When I returned> then lo! <by the bank of the river> trees very many,—on this side, and on that side. 8 And he said unto me, 9 These waters are going forth unto the region toward the east, and shall go down unto the waste plain, and shall enter the sea, <unto the sea> being led forth then shall the waters be healed; 9 And it shall come to pass that [every living soul that swarreth, whithersoever the rivers shall come] shall live, and the fish shall become a very great multitude; for these waters have come thither, that they may be healed, so shall everything live ‘whithersoever the river cometh’. 10 And it shall come to pass that there shall stand by it fishes, from En-gedi even unto En-eqalim, <places for spreading out nets> shall they be,—after their kind,—shall be their fish, like the fish of the great sea, exceeding many. 11 [The swamps thereof and the pools thereof] shall not be healed, <to salt> have they been given up. 12 And <by the river> shall grow up on the bank thereof, on this side and on that side, every tree for food, the leaf thereof shall not fade; neither shall it fall the fruit thereof, <by its months> shall it break forth, for [as for the waters thereof] <out of the sanctuary> are they coming forth,—and [the fruit] thereof shall be [for food], and [the leaf thereof] [for healing].

13 Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, 14 This shall be the boundary whereby ye shall take your inheritances in the land, according to the twelve tribes of Israel,—Joseph shall have portions. 14 So shall ye inherit it, each man like his brother, as to which I lifted my hand to give it to your fathers,—so shall this land fall to you, as an inheritance.

15 This then shall be the boundary of the land,—<on the north side> from the great sea by the way of Hethlon, to the entering in of Zedad; 18 Hamath, Berothah, Sibraim, which is between the boundary of Damascus, and Hamath,—Hazer-hatticon, which is by the boundary of Hauran. 17 Thus shall there be a boundary, from the sea, Hazar-enan the boundary of Damascus, even the north northward, and the boundary of Hamath,—even the north’ side. 18 And <for the east side> from between Hauran and Damascus and from between Gilead and the land of Israel, the Jordan, <from the boundary by the sea eastward> shall ye measure—even the east side. 19 And <for the south side southward> from Tamar as far as the waters of Meriboth-kadesh, towards the torrent-bed, unto the great sea,—even the south side southward. 20 And <for the west side> the great sea, from the boundary as far as over against the entering in of Hamath—this is the west side.

21 So then ye shall apportion this land to you by the tribes of Israel. 22 And it shall come to pass, that ye shall divide it by lot as an inheritance, to yourselves and to the sojourners who are sojourning in your midst, who have begotten children in your midst,—so shall they be to you as a native among the sons of Israel, <with you> shall they cast lots for an inheritance, in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 23 And it shall be, that <with whatsoever tribe the sojourner hath become a sojourner> there shall ye give his inheritance,

 Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

1 Now [these] are the names of the tribes,— 48 <At the northern’ extremity, beside the Hethlon road—as one entereth Hamath> Hazar-enan the boundary of Damascus northwards by the side of Hamath, and so they shall be his as east side and west—Dan, one;

3 And <on the boundary of Dan, from the east side unto the west side>—||Asher, one; 3 And <on the boundary of Asher, from the east side even unto the west side>—||Naphtali, one; 4 And <on the boundary of Naphtali, from the east side unto the west side>—||Manasseh, one; 5 And <on the boundary of Manasseh, from the east side unto the west side>—||Ephraim, one; 6 And <on the boundary of Ephraim, from the east side even unto the west side>—||Reuben, one; 7 And <on the boundary of Reuben, from the east side unto the west side>—||Judah, one;
8 And <on the boundary of Judah, from the east side, unto the west side> shall be the heave-offering which ye shall offer up, five and twenty thousand in breadth, and <in length> like one of the portions, from the east side unto the west side, so shall the sanctuary be in the midst thereof. If the heave-offering which ye shall offer up to Yahweh shall be <in length> five and twenty thousand, and <in breadth> twenty thousand. 10 And <pertaining to these> shall be the holy offering, even for the priests, <northward> five and twenty thousand, and <northwest> a breadth of ten thousand, and <eastward> a breadth of ten thousand, and <southward> a length of five and twenty thousand,—so shall the sanctuary of Yahweh be in the midst thereof:— 11 for the priests that are hallowed—theb sons of Zadok, who kept my charge,—who went not astray when the sons of Israel went astray, as [the Levites] went astray. 12 So then they shall have an offering out of the offering of the land, a holy of holies,—toward the boundary of the Levites; 13 [the Levites'] boundary answering to the boundary of the priests, five and twenty thousand in length, and <in breadth> ten thousand,—<all the length> five and twenty thousand, and [the breadth] twenty thousand. 14 And they shall not sell thereof, nor shall one exchange or alienate the first-fruit of the land,—for it is holy unto Yahweh. 15 And <the five thousand that are left in the breadth, facing the five and twenty thousand> [common] shall it be to the city, for dwelling and for open space,—and the city shall be in the midst thereof. 16 [These] moreover, shall be the measures thereof:—<the north side> four thousand and five hundred, and <the south side> four thousand and five hundred, and <the east side> four thousand and five hundred, and <the west side> four thousand and five hundred. 17 And the open space of the city shall be, <northward> two hundred and fifty, and <southward> two hundred and fifty, and <eastward> two hundred and fifty, and <westward> two hundred and fifty. 18 And [the residue] <in length answering to the offering of the holy portion> shall be ten thousand on the east, and ten thousand on the west, so shall it answer to the offering of the holy portion,—and the increase thereof shall be for food, for them who serve the city. 19 And [they who serve the city] shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel. 20 All the offering shall be five and twenty thousand, by five and twenty thousand, —<foursquare> shall ye offer up the offering of the holy portion, towards the possession of the city. 21 And [the residu] shall be for the prince, on this side and on that side of the holy offering and of the possession of the city, facing the five and twenty thousand of the offering, as far as the east boundary, and <westward> facing the five and twenty thousand by the west boundary, answering to the ports, for the prince,—thus shall it be the holy offering, with [the sanctuary of the house] in the midst thereof. 22 And <out of the possession of the Levites, and out of the possession of the city, in the midst of that which is for the prince> shall it be: <between the boundary of Judah, and the boundary of Benjamin> for the prince shall it be.

23 And [the residue of the tribes]—<from the east side unto the west side> [Benjamin, one]. 24 And <on the boundary of Benjamin, from the east side unto the west side> [Simeon, one]. 25 And <on the boundary of Simeon, from the east side unto the west side> [Issachar, one]. 26 And <on the boundary of Issachar, from the east side unto the west side> [Zebulun, one]. 27 And <on the boundary of Zebulun, from the east side unto the west side> [Gad, one]. 28 And <on the boundary of Gad, by the south side southward>,—so shall there be a boundary from Tamar, [unto] the waters of Meribath-kadishah, towards the torrent-bed, as far asb the great sea. 29 This is the land which ye shall divide by lot for inheritance, to the tribes of Israel,—and these shall be their portions.

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

30 And [these] are the exits of the city,—<on the north side> four thousand five hundred measures. 31 And [the gates of the city] shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel, [three gates] northward,—[the gate of Reuben] one, [the gate of Judah] one, [the gate of Levi] one; 32 and <on the east side> four thousand and five hundred, with three gates,—even [the gate of Joseph] one, [the gate of Benjamin] one, [the gate of Dan] one; 33 and <on the south side> four thousand and five hundred in measure, with three gates,—[the gate of Simeon] one, [the gate of Issachar] one, [the gate of Zebulun] one; 34 <on the west side> four thousand and

THE BOOK OF

DA N I E L.

§ 1. Daniel, in his Youth, carried Captive to Babylon, and there Trained for the Service of the King.

1 In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, went to Jerusalem and laid siege against it; and the Lord gave into his hand Jehoiakim king of Judah, and a part of the vessels of the house of God, and he brought them into the land of Shinar, into the house of his gods; and brought him into the treasure-house of his gods.

3 Then did the king give word to Ashpenaz, chief of his eunuchs, that he should bring in, of the sons of Israel, even of the seed royal, and of the nobles, four youths in whom was no blemish, but comely of countenance, and skillful in all wisdom, and possessed of knowledge, and able to impart instruction, and who had vigour in them, to stand in the palace of the king, and that they should be taught the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans. And the king appointed them the provision of each day upon its day, out of the delicacies of the king and out of the wine which he drank, and so to let them grow three years, and at the end thereof that they should stand before the king.

6 Now there were, among them, of the sons of Judah, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; and the ruler of the eunuchs gave them names,—yea he gave to Daniel the name of Belteshazzar, and to Hananiah of Shadrach, and to Mishael of Meshach, and to Azariah of Abed-nego. But Daniel laid it upon his heart, that he would not defile himself with the delicacies of the king, nor with the wine which he drank, therefore sought he of the ruler of the eunuchs, that he might not defile himself. But although God had brought Daniel into lovingkindness and tender compassion, before the ruler of the eunuchs yet said the ruler of the eunuchs unto Daniel, I do fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your food and your drink,—for why should he see your faces more sado than those of the youths of your own age? so should ye bring me under the penalty of mine own head unto the king.

11 Then said Daniel unto the overseer whom the ruler of the eunuchs had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah:

12 I pray thee,—prove thy servants, ten days,—and let them give us vegetable food, that we may eat, and water that we may drink: then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenances of the youths who have been eating the delicacies of the king; and as thou shalt see deal thou with thy servants.

14 So then he hearkened unto them, according to this word,—and proved them ten days; and at the end of ten days their countenances appeared more comely, and fatter in flesh, than any of the youths who had been eating the delicacies of the king. Thus it came about that the overseer continued taking away their delicacies, and the wine appointed them to drink, and kept on giving them vegetable food.

17 And as for these four youths, God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom, and Daniel had discernment, in all visions and dreams.

18 Now at the end of the days after which the king gave word to bring them in, then did the ruler of the eunuchs bring them in, before Nebuchadnezzar. So then the king [spake with them], and there was not found, from among them all, one like unto Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah,—therefore stood they before the king; \[10]\ and <in any matter of wisdom and discernment as to which the king enquired of them> he found them ten times better than all the sacred scribes—the magicians, who were in all his realm.

Now Daniel continued, until the first year of Cyrus the king.

And <in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar> Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, and his spirit was troubled, and <his sleep> had gone from him. So the king gave word to call for the sacred scribes and for the magicians, and for the users of incantations, and for the Chaldeans, that they might tell the king his dreams—they came in therefore, and stood before the king. And the king said to them:

<A dream> have I dreamed,—and my spirit is troubled to know the dream.

Then spake the Chaldeans to the king, in Aramaic,—O king <to the ages> live! Tell the dream to thy servants, and <the interpretation> we will declare.

The king answered and said to the Chaldeans:

||The word from me|| is unalterable: <If ye shall not make known to me the dream and the interpretation thereof> ye shall be cut in pieces, and ||your houses|| <into a dung-hill> shall be turned; 4 but <if> the dream and the interpretation thereof ye will declare ||gifts and a present and great dignity|| ye shall receive from me,—therefore <the dream and the interpretation thereof> declare ye unto me:

They answered again and said,—Let ||the king|| tell ||the dream|| to his servants, and <the interpretation thereof> we will declare.

The king answered and said, ||Of a certainty|| I know, that <time> ||ye> would gain,—merely because ye see that <unalterable from me> is the word:

That <if> <the dream> ye shall not make known to me ||one and the same|| is the decree, and  have ye agreed to speak before me, that meanwhile the time may be changed,—therefore <the dream> tell ye me, so shall I know that <the interpretation thereof> ye can declare for me.

The Chaldeans answered before the king and said,

There is not a man upon the earth, who can declare ||the matter of the king||;—although indeed there is no king, chief or ruler who  hath asked of any sacred scribe or magician or Chaldean; and ||the thing which the king hath asked|| is difficult, and ||none other|| is there, who can declare it before the king,—saving the gods whose dwelling is ||not with flesh||.

<For this cause> ||the king|| was provoked and exceedingly indignant,—and gave word to destroy all the wise men of Babylon; and the decree went forth, that ||the wise men|| should be slain,—and they sought Daniel and his companions that they might be slain.

Immediately ||Daniel|| made answer with prudence and discretion, to Arioch, chief of the executioners of the king,—who had come forth to slay the wise men of Babylon:

he began to speak and said to Arioch, the king's captain,—

<For what cause> is the decree raging forth from before the king?

Then did Arioch make the matter known unto Daniel. So Daniel entered in and desired of the king,—that <an appointed time> he would give him, and then <the interpretation> he would declare unto the king. Then Daniel <to his own house> departed,—and <to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions> made the matter known; that <tender compassion> they might seek from before the God of the heavens, concerning this secret,—that Daniel and his companions [might not be destroyed], with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

Then <unto Daniel—in a vision of the night> the secret was revealed,—whereupon ||Daniel|| blessed the God of the heavens:

Daniel responded, and said,

Let the name of God be blessed from age to age,—In that ||wisdom and might|| to him belong;—And ||he|| changeth times and seasons, Removeth kings, and setteth up kings,—Giving wisdom to the wise, And knowledge to them who are skilled in understanding:

||He|| revealeth the deep things, and the hidden,—Knoweth what is in the darkness, And ||light|| <with him>, doth dwell.

<Unto thee, O God of my fathers> do I render thanks and praise, In that <wisdom and might> thou hast given unto me,—Yea ||already|| hast thou made known to me, that which we desired of thee, For <the matter of the king> hast thou made known unto us.

* Or: "began to speak."
24 |Therefore| Daniel entered into Arioich, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon,—he went in, and <thus> he said unto him,

<The wise men of Babylon> do not thou destroy, bring me in before the king, and <the interpretation—unto the king> will I declare.

25 Thereupon <Arioich—with haste> brought in Daniel before the king,—and <thus> he said to him—

I have found a man of the sons of the exile of Judah, who <the interpretation—unto the king> will make known.

26 The king answered and said unto Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar,—

Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof?

27 Daniel answered before the king, and said,—

<The secret which the king hath asked> <the wise men, the magicians, the sacred scribes, the astrologers> are not able to declare unto the king; 28 but there is a God in the heavens, who revealeth secrets, and hath made known to King Nebuchadnezzar, what shall come to pass, in the afterpart of the day:

|| Thy dream and the visions of thy head upon thy bed are these:—

29 <As for thee, O king> thy thoughts upon thy bed arose regarding what should come to pass hereafter; and <thee> that revealeth secrets made known to thee what shall come to pass.

30 But <as for me—not for any wisdom that is in me, more than any of the living> is this secret revealed to me,—<therefore> it is in order that <the interpretation—unto the king> they should make known, and that <the thoughts of thy heart> thou shouldst get to know.

31 <As for thee, O king> thou wast looking, when lo! a great image, <this image, being mighty, and the brightness thereof surpassing> was standing before thee,—and <the appearance thereof> was terrible.

32 <As for this image> its head was of fine gold, its breast and its arms were of silver,—its belly and its thighs of bronze; its legs of iron, and its feet part of them of iron, and part of them of clay.

34 Thou diest look, until that a stone tare itself away, <not by the aid of hands>, and smote the image upon its feet, which were of iron and clay,—and they were broken in pieces.

35 Then were broken in pieces at once, the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold, and became like chaff out of the summer threshing floors, and the wind carried them away, and no place was found for them,—but the stone that smote the image became a mighty rock, and filled all the land.

36 || This is the dream, and <the interpretation thereof> we will tell before the king.

37 || Thou, O king art the king of kings,—for the God of the heavens hath given unto thee the kingship, the might, the power and the dignity; 38 and wheresoever the sons of men do dwell <the wild beasts of the field and the birds of the heavens> hath he given into thy hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. || Thou art the head of gold.

39 And <after thee> shall arise another kingdom, inferior to thee,—and another—a third kingdom, of bronze, which shall bear rule throughout all the earth.

40 And the fourth kingdom shall be hard as iron,—<in like manner as iron breaketh in pieces and crusheth all things, even as iron which bringeth to ruins all these> it shall break in pieces and bring to ruins. 41 And <wheresoever thou sawest the feet, part of them of potter's clay, and part of them of iron> <the kingdom> shall be divided, and <of the hardness of the iron> shall there be in it,—forasmuch as thou sawest the iron combined with the miry clay; 42 and <the toes of the feet> part of them of iron, and part of clay,—some part of the kingdom shall be strong, but a part thereof shall be brittle; 43 and <wheresoever thou sawest the iron> combined with the miry clay> they shall be combined with the seed of men, but shall not cleave firmly one to another,—lo! as iron is not to be combined with clay.

44 And <in the days of those kings> shall the God of the heavens <set up> a kingdom, which <to the ages> shall not be destroyed, and <the kingdom> <to another people> shall not be left,—it shall break in pieces and make an end of all these kingdoms, but itself shall stand to the ages. 45 <Forasmuch as thou sawest that out of the rock a stone tare itself away, but not with hands, and brake in pieces the clay, the iron, the bronze, the silver and the gold> the mighty God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter.

Exact then is the dream, and trust ye its interpretation.

46 Then <King Nebuchadnezzar> fell upon his face, and unto Daniel paid adoration; and  gave he word to poured out unto him. 47 The king answered Daniel, and said—

"Of a truth, 46 your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a Revealer of secrets,—seeing thou wast able to reveal this secret. 48 Then the king exalted Daniel, and many large presents gave he unto him, and set him to be ruler over all the province of Babylon,—and chief of the nobles, over all the wise men of Babylon. 49 And Daniel, desired of the king, and he appointed—over the business of the province of Babylon—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego—but Daniel himself was in the gate of the king.

§ 3. Nebuchadnezzar, making an Image of Gold to be Worshipped on Pain of Death, casts Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, for refusing to worship, into a Furnace of Fire; from which, however, they are Miraculously Delivered.

1 Nebuchadnezzar the king made an image of gold, [the height thereof sixty cubits, [the breadth thereof six cubits.],—he set it up in the valley of Dura, in the province of Babylon. 2 And Nebuchadnezzar the king sent to gather together the satraps, the nobles and the pashas, the chief judges the treasurers, the judges, the lawyers, and all the rulers of the province,—to come to the dedication of the image, which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up. 3 Then were gathered together the satraps, the nobles and the pashas, the chief judges, the treasurers, the judges, the lawyers, and all the rulers of the province, to the dedication of the image, which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up,—and they stood before the image, which Nebuchadnezzar had set up. 4 And the herald proclaimed aloud,—

"To you is given the word, O ye peoples, races, and tongues: 5 <At what time ye shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, the bagpipes, and all kinds of instruments of music> ye shall fall down and adore the image of gold, which Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up; 6 and whoever shall not fall down and adore it shall instantly be cast into the burning furnace of fire.

7 Wherefore <at the same time> when all the peoples heard the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, and all kinds of instruments of music> they were falling down—even all the peoples, the races, and the tongues,—adoring the image of gold, which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up. 8 Wherefore <at the same time> drew near certain Chaldeans,—and accused the Jews: 9 they spake, and said, to Nebuchadnezzar the king:

O king! <for ages> live! Thou thyself, O king, hast made a decree, that any man who shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery and the bagpipes, and all kinds of instruments of music shall fall down and adore the image of gold; 11 and whoever shall not fall down and adore shall be cast into the burning furnace of fire.

12 There are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the business of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego,—these men have made thee, O king, of no account, <thy god> they serve not, and <the image of gold which thou hast set up> do they not adore.

13 Then Nebuchadnezzar—with anger and wrath—gave word to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, then these men brought they before the king. 14 Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them,

Is it <with design> O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego,—that <my god> ye are not serving, and <the image which I have set up> are not adoring? 15 Now if ye be ready <at what time ye shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery and the bagpipes, and all the instruments of music> ye shall fall down and adore the image which I have made, but <if ye shall not adore> instantly shall ye be cast into the midst of the burning furnace of fire,—and who is the god that shall deliver you out of my hands?

16 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered, and said to the king:

O Nebuchadnezzar! we are not accounting it needful, [concerning this] to answer thee. 17 If it is <your God, whom we serve> is able to deliver us,—<out of the burning furnace of fire, and out of thy hand> O king, he will deliver. 18 But if not, be it known to thee, O king,—that <thy god> will we not serve, and <the image of gold> which thou hast set up will we not adore.

19 Then Nebuchadnezzar was filled with wrath, and <the likeness of his countenance> was changed, against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego,—he spake and gave word to heat the furnace seven times hotter than it was ever seen heated; 20 and <to men, who were the mightiest men in his army> gave he word to bind fast Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego,—to cast them into the burning furnace of fire. 21 Then bound they [these men] in their trousers, their tunics, and their cloaks, and their (other) clothing,—and cast into the midst of the burning furnace of fire. 22 Therefore, <because the word of the king had raged forth>, and the furnace was exceeding hot—

1 Nebuchadnezzar the king <unto all the peoples, the races and the tongues who are dwelling in all the earth,> Let your prosperity be abolished!
2 <The signs, and the wonders,> which the king himself gave you, and which you said were signs and wonders, are fulfilled, and your wise men do not know them.

3 His signs <how great!>
And his wonders <how mighty!>
His kingdom <is an age-abiding kingdom,>
And his dominion <lasteth from generation to generation.>
4 I, Nebuchadnezzar <was at peace in mine own house, and was prosperous> in my palace.
5 <A dream> I saw, and it made me afraid—and <fancies upon my bed, and visions of my head> terrified me.
6 Therefore made I a decree, to bring in before me, all the wise men of Babylon,< who <the interpretation of the dream> should make known to me.
7 Then came in the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldeans, and the astrologers,< and <the dream> told I before them, but <the interpretation> could they not make known to me.
8 Howbeit <at last> came before me—Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, after the name of my god, and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and <the dream—before him> I told [saying]:
9 O Belteshazzar, chief of the sacred scribes, <because I know that the spirit of the holy gods> is in thee,—and no secret giveth thee trouble> [therefore] <the visions of my dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof> do thou tell.
10 The visions then of my head upon my bed [were these],—
I was looking, when lo! a tree in the midst of the land,< and the height thereof was great.
11 The tree grew, and became strong,—And <the height thereof reached unto the heavens, And <the view thereof unto the end of all the land;>
12 <The foliage thereof was beautiful, And <the fruits thereof abundant, And there was food for all therein,—<Under it> the wild beast of the field found shade, And <among its branches dwelt the birds of the heavens, And <therefrom> was well fed all flesh.>
13 I was looking, in the visions of my head, upon my bed, when lo! a watcher and holy one <out of the heavens> coming down.
14 He cried aloud, and <thus> he said—
How ye down the tree,
And lop off its branches,
Strip off its leaves, And scatter its fruit,—
Let the wild beasts flee' from under it,
And the birds, out of its branches;
Nevertheless, the stock of its roots* in the earth > leave ye, yea in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field,
And with the dew of the heavens let it be drenched,*
And with the wild beasts be its portion, amongst the herbage of the earth;
Let its heart << from a man's > be changed,
And the heart of a wild beast given to it,—
And let seven seasons pass over it.

By the decree of the watchers is the thing,
And the mandate of the holy ones the matter:
To the intent that the living may get to know that the Most High hath dominion over the kingdom of men, and to whomsoever he pleaseth he giveth it, and one low among men he setteth up over it.

This dream > have I, King Nebuchadnezzar, seen.
Thou therefore, O Belteshazzar, <the interpretation do thou tell, forasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are unable <the interpretation to make known to me, but thou art able, because the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, was astonished for about one moment; and his thoughts troubled him. The king spake and said,
O Belteshazzar, let neither the dream, nor the interpretation trouble thee.
Belteshazzar answered and said,
My Lord,
The dream be for them who hate thee, and the interpretation for them who are thy foes.

<< The tree which thou sawest, which grew and became strong,
Whose height reached unto the heavens,
And the view thereof to all the earth:
Whose foliage was beautiful,
And whose fruit abundant,
And its food for all was in it,—
Under it dwelt the wild beasts of the field,
And in the branches thereof nestled the birds of the heavens:>

Thyself it is, O king, in that thou art grown, and become strong,—and thy greatness hath grown, and reached to the heavens, and thy dominion to the end of the earth.

And whereas the king saw' a watchman and holy one coming down out of the heavens, who said,
Hew ye down the tree and despoil it,
Nevertheless <the stock of its roots—in the earth> leave ye, even in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field,—
And <with the dew of the heavens> let it be drenched, and <along with the wild beasts of the field> be its portion,
Until that seven seasons pass over it>
This is the interpretation. O king,—and the decree of the Most High it is, which hath come upon my lord the king:
That <thee> are they going to drive forth from among men,
And <along with the wild beasts of the field> shall be thy dwelling,
And grass—like oxen will they suffer <thee> to eat,
And <with the dew of the heavens> will they suffer <thee> to be drenched,
And seven seasons shall pass over thee,—
Until that thou come to know, that the Most High hath dominion over the kingdom of men,
And to whomsoever he pleaseth he giveth it.

And whereas they gave word to leave the stock of the roots of the tree thy kingdom <unto thee> is sure,—after that thou come to know, that the heavens have dominion.
Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be pleasing <unto thee,
Thy sin, then,—by righteousness> break thou off,
And thine iniquities by shewing favour to the oppressed,—
If so be it may become the lengthening out of thy security.

All this came upon Nebuchadnezzar the king.
At the end of twelve months <over the palace of the kingdom of Babylon> was he walking: 30 the king spake* and said, Is not this Babylon the great,—which I myself have built as the home of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the dignity of my majesty?
While yet' the word was in the mouth of the king > a voice <out of the heavens> fell,— Unto thee it is said, O Nebuchadnezzar the king,
The kingdom hath departed from thee;
And <from among men> are they going to drive <thee> forth,
And <with the wild beast of the field> shall be thy dwelling,<grass—like oxen> will they suffer <thee> to eat,
And seven seasons shall pass over thee,—
Until that thou come to know that the Most < Immediately > the word was fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, and from among men was he driven forth. And a grass—like oxen did he eat, and with the dew of the heavens his body was drenched, until that his hair < like to eagles' feathers > was grown, and his nails, < like birds' claws >.

And at the end of the days I, Nebuchadnezzar, mine eyes unto the heavens did uplift, and mine understanding unto me returned, and the Most High I blessed, and to him that liveth age-abidingly I rendered praise and honour, Whose dominion is an age-abiding dominion, and his kingdom lasteth from generation to generation;

And all the inhabitants of the earth are accounted, and according to his own pleasure he dealeth with the army of the heavens, and the inhabitants of the earth, and none there is who can smite upon his hand, or say to him, What hast thou done?

< At the same time > mine understanding returned unto me, and for the dignity of my kingdom my majesty and my brightness returned unto me, and unto me my nearest friends and my nobles did seek, and over my kingdom was I restored, and surpassing greatness was added unto me.

Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, am praising and extolling and honouring the King of the Heavens, All whose works are truth, and his ways right; and them who walk in pride he is able to abase.

§ 5. To King Belshazzar, while dishonouring the Sacred Vessels, is Handwriting put forth, which Daniel interprets, and which is swiftly fulfilled.

Belshazzar the king made a great feast, to a thousand of his nobles, and before the thousand was drinking wine. Belshazzar gave word, at the flavour of the wine, to bring the vessels of gold and silver, which Nebuchadnezzar his father had brought forth, out of the temple which was in Jerusalem—that the king and his nobles, his wives and his concubines might drink therein.

Then brought they the vessels of gold which had been taken out of the temple of the house of God, which was in Jerusalem, and the king and his nobles, his wives and his concubines drank therein; they drank wine, and praised the gods of gold and silver, bronze, iron, wood and stone.

< Immediately > came forth the fingers of the hand of a man, and wrote, over against the chandelier, upon the plaster of the wall of the palace of the king, and the king saw the part of the hand which was writing. Then as for the king his bright looks changed in him, and his thoughts terrified him, and the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another. The king began crying out amain, to bring in the magicians, the Chaldeans and the astrologers, the king spake and said to the wise men of Babylon,

Whosoever it is that shall read this writing, and the interpretation thereof shall declare unto me,

With purple shall he be clothed, and have a chain of gold upon his neck, and as the third in the kingdom shall he have dominion.

Then were coming in all the wise men of the king, but the writing could they not read, nor the interpretation make known to the king. Then King Belshazzar was greatly terrified, and his bright looks were changed upon him, and his nobles were perplexed. The queen < by reason of the words of the king and his nobles > into the house of banqueting entered, the queen spake and said

O king! for ages live! Let not thy thoughts terrify thee, and as for thy bright looks let them not be changed.

There is a man in thy kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy gods, and in the days of thy father light, and intelligence, and wisdom like the wisdom of the gods were found in him, and King Nebuchadnezzar thy father appointed him chief of the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldeans, and the astrologers—thy father, O king!

< Forasmuch as is distinguished spirit, and knowledge and intelligence, ability to interpret dreams and solve riddles and unravel knotty points were found in the same Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar > now let Daniel be called, and the interpretation will he declare.

Then Daniel was brought in before the king, the king spake and said unto Daniel, Art thou that Daniel, that is of the sons of 14 Then I have heard concerning thee, that the spirit of the gods is in thee, and that light and inteligence and distinguished wisdom are found in thee.

15 Now therefore, have been brought in before me, the wise men, the magicians, that this writing might they read, and the interpretation thereof might make known unto me, but they were not able the interpretation of the thing to declare.

16 I however, have heard concerning thee, that thou art able, interpretations to unfold, and knotty points to unravel. Now if thou be able the writing to read, and the interpretation thereof to make known unto me> with purple shalt thou be clothed, and a chain of gold shall thou have upon thy neck, and as the third in the kingdom shalt thou have dominion.

17 Then spake Daniel, and said before the king, As for thy gifts thine own let them remain, And thy presents on another bestow, Howbeit the writing will I read to the king, And the interpretation thereof will I make known to him.

18 As for thee, O king [the Most High God gave] [kingship and greatness and honour and majesty] unto Nebuchadnezzar thy father; and for the greatness that he gave him> [all peoples, races and tongues] used to tremble and to withdraw fearfully from before him,—

19 Whom he would he slew, And whom he would he kept alive, And whom he would he put down.

20 But when uplifted was his heart and his spirit became ovative so as to act arrogantly> he was put down from the throne of his kingdom, and his dignity took them from him; And from among the sons of men he was driven, And his heart to a wild beast's became equal, And with the wild asses was his dwelling, And grass—like oxen they suffered him to eat, And with the dew of the heavens his body was drenched, until that he came to know that the Most High God [had dominion] over the kingdom of men, and whomsoever he pleaseth he setteth up over it.

21 And yet thou, his son, O Belshazzar! hast not humbled thy heart, though call this thou knewest; but against the Lord of the heavens hast uplifted thyself, and the vessels of his house have they brought before thee, and thou, and thy nobles, thy wives and thy concubines have been drinking wine therein, and gods of silver and gold, of bronze, iron, wood, and stone, which see not nor hear nor know hast thou praised,—whereas God, in whose hand thy breath is and whose are all thy ways> [him] hast thou not glorified.

22 Then was there put forth from before him the part of the hand,—and the writing was inscribed:

23 And this is the writing which was inscribed, M'nè, M'nè, T'kèl, u-Pharsin.

24 This is the interpretation of the thing,— M'nè [Reckoned-up]. God hath reckoned up thy reign, and ended it; T'kèl [Weighed]. thou art weighed in the balances, and found wanting; P'ras [Snatched-away].—snatched away is thy kingdom, and given to the Medes and Persians.

25 Then Belshazzar gave word, that they should clothe Daniel with purple, and put a chain of gold upon his neck,—and should make a proclamation concerning him, that he should be the third ruler over the kingdom.

26 In that night was slain—Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans.

§: Darius the Mede, unwarily Signing an Edict against Prayer, consigns Daniel to the Lion's Den, from which the King gladly welcomes him back Unharmed.

31 And Darius the Mede received the kingdom,—when about sixty-two years of age.

1 It was pleasing before Darius, that he should set up over the kingdom, a hundred and twenty satraps,—that they should be over all the kingdom; and over these three confidential ministers, of whom Daniel was first,—that to them these satraps should render an account, and the king not be suffering loss. Then this Daniel signalled himself, above the ministers and the satraps, because a distinguished spirit was in him, and the king thought to set him up over all the kingdom.

4 Then the ministers and the satraps began seeking to find occasion against Daniel, in respect of the kingdom,—but no occasion nor wickedness could they find, inasmuch as faithful was he, and neither error nor wickedness could be found against him.

5 Then these men were saying,

We shall not find against this Daniel, any occasion; unless we find it against him in respect of the law of his God.

6 Then these ministers and satraps crowded together unto the king,—and thus were saying to him,

O Darius the king! [for ages] live!

54-2
All the ministers of the kingdom, the nobles and satraps, the near friends and the pashas, have consulted together, to establish a royal statute, and to confirm an interdict.—

That (whosoever shall ask a petition of any God or man, for thirty days, save of thee, O king) shall be cast into the den of lions.

Now, O king! wilt thou establish the interdict, and sign the writing, that it may not be changed—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished.

Wherefore (King Darius) signed the writing and the interdict.

But (Daniel) when he knew that the writing was signed, went to his own house, and <the windows being opened to him, in his chamber, toward Jerusalem> (three times a day) was he kneeling upon his knees, and praying and giving thanks before his God, in like manner as he had been doing aforetime.

Then (these men) crowded together and found Daniel, praying and making supplication, before his God.

Then drew they near, and began to speak before the king, concerning the royal interdict,

Didst thou not sign [an interdict].

That any man who should petition of any God or man, for thirty days, save of thee, O king, should be cast into the den of lions?

The king answered and said,

Certainly is the thing—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished.

Then answered they and were saying before the king,

(Daniel, who is of the sons of the exile of Judah) hath made thee, O king, of none account, also the interdict which thou hast signed,—but <three times a day> is asking his petition.

Then (the king) when he heard (the matter) was sorely displeased with himself, and <upon Daniel> set his heart, to deliver him,—and <until the going in of the sun> was striving to rescue him.

Then (these men) crowded unto the king,—and were saying to the king,

Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that [no interdict nor statute which the king establisheth] may be changed.

Then (the king) gave word, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. The king spake and said to Daniel,— <Thy God, whom thou art serving continually> [he] will deliver thee.

And there was brought a certain stone, and laid upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet-ring, and with the signet-ring of his nobles, that nothing might be changed, as to Daniel.

Then the king departed to his palace, and spent the night fasting, and no table* was brought in before him,—and his sleep fled from him. Then the king rose early, with the dawn, and <hastily unto the den of lions> departed; and <when he drew near to the den> unto Daniel, with a distressed voice> made he outcry,—the king spake' and said unto Daniel.

O Daniel! servant of the Living God! (Thy God, whom thou art serving continually) hast he been able to deliver thee from the lions?

Then (Daniel) with the king> spake,—O king! (for ages) live!

My God> hath sent his messenger, and hath shut the mouth of the lions, and they have not hurt me; forasmuch as (before him) rectitude was found in me, moreover also (before thee, O king) no crime had I committed.

Then (the king) was exceedingly glad concerning him, and gave word to take up [Daniel] out of the den. So Daniel was taken out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found in him, for that he had trusted in his God.

And the king (gave word) that they should bring those men who had accused Daniel, and <into the den of lions> they cast them—them, their children, and their wives,—and <they had not reached the bottom of the den> when the lions [seized them], and <all their bones> brake they in pieces.

Then (Darius the king) wrote to all the peoples, the races, and the tongues who were dwelling in all the earth,

Your prosperity abound! [From before me] is appointed a decree that <throughout every dominion of my kingdom> men tremble and withdraw falteringly from before the God of Daniel,—for that [he] is the Living God, and abiding for ages, and [his kingdom] that which shall not be destroyed, and [his dominion] is unto the end: who delivereth and rescueth, and worketh signs and wonders, in the heavens, and in the earth,—for that he hath delivered Daniel out of the power of the lions.

And (to this Daniel) prospered in the reign of Darius,—and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

7 Daniel here goes back to record his own dreams. And first, that of Four Wild Beasts coming out of the Great Sea, with the Interpretation of which he is favoured.

1 In the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon, Daniel beheld a dream, and visions of his head upon his bed, then the dream he wrote, the sum of the matters he told. Daniel spoke, and said, I was looking in my vision [which came] with the night, when lo! the four winds of the heavens burning forth upon the great sea, and four large wild beasts, coming out of the sea, diverse one from another:

The foremost, like a lion, having [the wings of an eagle]. I looked until the wings thereof were torn out, and it was lifted up from the earth, and upon its feet, like a man, was it caused to stand, and the heart of a man was given to it.

And, lo! another wild beast, a second resembling a bear, and on one side was it raised up, with three ribs in its mouth, between its teeth, and they saying to it, Rise! devour much flesh.

After that, I was looking, and lo! another, like a leopard, and [it had] four heads and [four heads] had the wild beast, and dominion was given to it.

After that, I was looking in the visions of the night, when lo! a fourth wild beast, terrible and well-hipped and exceeding strong, and it had [four] heads of iron, it devoured and brake in pieces, and the residue—its feet—trampled down, and it was diverse from all the wild beasts that were before it, and it had [ten] horns.

I was considering the horns, when lo! another, a little one, came up among them, and three of the former horns were uprooted from before it, and lo! the eyes, like the eyes of a man, in this horn, in a mouth speaking great things.

I continued looking, until that [thrones] were placed, and the Ancient of days took his seat, whose [garment] was white, and the hair of his head like pure wool, his throne was flames of fire, his wheels a burning fire.

A stream of fire was flowing on and issuing forth from before him, a thousand thousand waited upon him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood up, the Judge took its seat, and books were opened.

I continued looking, and the sound of the great words which the horn was speaking, I continued looking, until that wild beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning of the fire. As concerning the rest of the beasts, their dominion was taken away, but a lengthening of life was given to them, until time and season.

I continued looking in the visions of the night, when lo! with the clouds of the heavens one like a son of man was coming, and unto the Ancient of days he approached, and before him they brought him near; and unto him were given dominion and dignity and kingship, that all peoples, races and tongues, should do service, his dominion was an age-abiding dominion, which should not pass away, and his kingdom that which should not be destroyed.

The spirit of me Daniel was grieved in the midst of the sheath, and the visions of my head terrified me. I drew near unto one of them who stood by, and made exact enquiry of him, concerning all this, so he told me, and the interpretation of the things he known unto me.

These great wild beasts, which are four, are four kings who shall arise out of the earth; but the holy ones of the Highest shall receive the kingdom, and shall possess the kingdom for the age, yea for the age of ages.

Then desired I to be sure, concerning the fourth wild beast, which was diverse from all of them, exceeding terrible, whose teeth were iron, and his claws of bronze, he devoured, brake in pieces, and the residue—his feet—he trampled down; also concerning the ten horns, which were in his head, and the other, which came up, and there fell—from among them that were before it—three, and this horn which had [eyes], and a mouth speaking great things, and this look was more proud than his fellows: I continued looking, when this horn made war with the holy ones, and prevailed against them, until that the Ancient of Days came, and justice was granted to the holy ones of the Highest, and the time arrived, that the holy ones should possess the kingdom.

Thus he said, The fourth wild beast is a fourth kingdom which shall be in the earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms, and shall devour all the earth, and shall trample it down, and break it in pieces.

And the ten horns of that kingdom are ten kings who will arise, and another will arise after them, and he will be diverse from the former ones, and three kings will he cast down; and words against the Most High will he speak, and the holy ones of the Highest>, will he afflict, and will hope to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand, for a season and seasons and the dividing of a season, but Judgment will take its seat, and his dominion will they take away, to destroy and make disappear unto an end.

27 And the kingdom, and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdoms under all the heavens shall be given to the people of the holy ones of the Highest, his kingdom is an age-abiding kingdom, and all the dominions <unto him> will render service, and shew themselves obedient.

28 Hitherto is the end of the matter.

§ 8. Daniel's Second Vision—of the Ram and of the He-goat: which is explained by the Angel Gabriel.

1 In the third year of the reign of Belshazzar the king, a vision appeared unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me at the beginning.

2 So then I saw in the vision, and it came to pass, when I saw, that I was in Shushan the fortress, which is in Persia the province,—yes I saw it in a vision, when I was by the river Ulai. So then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! a ram, standing before the river, and its two horns, and the two horns were high, but the one was higher than the other, and the higher had come up last. I saw the ram, pushing strongly westward and northward and southward, so that no wild beast could stand before him, and none could deliver out of his hand,—but he did according to his own pleasure, and shewed himself great.

3 Now I was observing, when lo! a he-goat coming in out of the west, over the face of all the earth, but it meddled not with the earth,—and the goat had a conspicuous horn between his eyes. So then he came up to the ram having the two horns, which I had seen standing before the river,—and ran unto him, in the fury of his strength. Yes I saw him coming close upon the ram, and he was enraged at him, and smote the ram, and brake in pieces both his horns, and there was no strength in the ram to stand before him,—but he cast him down to the ground, and trampled him underfoot, and there was none could deliver the ram out of his power.

4 But the he-goat shewed himself very great, and <when he had become mighty> the great horn was broken in pieces, and there came up afterwards four, in its stead, towards the four winds of the heavens; and <out of the first of them> came forth a little horn,—which became exceedingly great, against the south and against the east, and against the beautiful [land]; yes it became great as far as the host of the heavens,—and caused to fall, to the earth, some of the host and some of the stars, and trampled them underfoot; even as far as the ruler of the host> shewed he his greatness,—and <because of him> was taken away the continual [ascending-sacrifice], and the place of the sanctuary was cast down; and [a host] was set over the continual [ascending-sacrifice], by transgression,—and faithfulness was cast down to the ground, and so he acted with effect, and succeeded.

5 Then heard I a certain holy one, speaking,—and another holy one said to that certain holy one who was speaking—How long is the vision of the continual [ascending-sacrifice] as taken away, and the transgression which saith dometh, for both sanctuary and host to be given over to be trampled underfoot?

6 And he said unto him, Until two thousand and three hundred evening-mornings,—then shall the sanctuary be vindicated.

7 And it came to pass, when I Daniel had seen the vision,—and had sought discernment, that lo! there was standing before me, as the appearance of a man. Then heard I a human voice, between the banks of the Ulai,—which cried out, and said, Gabriel: cause this man to understand the revelation.

8 So he came near where I stood, and <when he came> I was terrified, and fell upon my face,—but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man, that <to the time of the end> belonged the vision.

9 And <when he spake with me> I fell stunned upon my face, to the earth,—but he touched me, and caused me to stand up where I was. Then said he, Behold me! causing thee to know, that which shall come to pass in the afterpart of the indignation,—for <at an appointed time> shall be an end.
The ram which thou sawest, having the two horns, represents the kings of Media and Persia; and the he-goat is the king of Greece, and the great horn which was between his eyes is the same is the first king.

Now as for its being broken in pieces, whereupon there stood up four in its stead, four kingdoms, out of his nation, shall stand up, but not with his strength; but in the latter time of their kingdom, when transgressions have filled up their measure, there shall stand up a king of mighty presence, and skilful in dissimulation; and he shall be strong, and he shall not break his strength, but he shall work against him, and he shall destroy mighty ones, and the people of holy ones; and by his cunning he will cause them to fall, and by his own heart he will move himself to be great; and by their careless security will he destroy many, and against the ruler of rulers he will stand up, but without hand shall be broken in pieces.

Now the revelation of the evening and the morning which has been told is, indeed it is, but thou close up the vision, because it is for many days.

Now as for me Daniel, then was I sick for days, but I arose and did the business of the king, and though I was confounded concerning the revelation yet could no one discern it.

§ 9. Encouraged by Jeremiah's prophecies, Daniel makes Intercession for his City and his People. Gabriel despatched with a direct and intelligible Revelation.

1 In the first year of Darius son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes, who made king over the kingdom of the Chaldeans, in the first year of his reign I, Daniel, perceived by the writings, the number of the years, as to which the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah the prophet, to fulfil the desolations of Jerusalem seventy years; So I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek him by prayer, and supplication, with fasting, and sackcloth and ashes; yea I prayed unto Yahweh my God, and made confession, and said—

I beseech thee, O Lord, the God great and to be revered, keeping the covenant and the lovingkindness to them who love him, and to them who keep his commandments. We have sinned and committed iniquity, and been guilty of lawlessness and been rebellious, even departing from thy commandments, and from thy regulations; and have not hearkened unto thy prophets, who spake in thy name unto our kings, our rulers, and our fathers, and unto all the people of the land.

To thee O Lord, belongeth righteousness, but to us the shame of faces, as at this day, to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, the near and the far off, throughout all the lands whither thou hast driven them, in their treachery, wherewith they had been treacherous against thee.

O Yahweh, to us belongeth the shame of faces, to our kings, to our rulers, and to our fathers, in that we have sinned against thee. To the Lord our God, belong compassions and forgivenesses, for we have rebelled against him; and have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh our God, to walk in his instructions which he set before us, through means of his servants the prophets; yea all Israel have transgressed thy law, even going away, so as not to hearken unto thy voice, therefore were poured out upon us the curse and the oath which had been written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we had sinned against him.

Thus hath he confirmed his words which he had spoken against us, and against our judges who had judged us, by bringing in upon us a great calamity, as to which there had not been done, under all the heavens, as hath been done unto Jerusalem.

Even as written in the law of Moses hath all this calamity come in upon us, yet entreated we not the face of Yahweh our God, by turning away from our iniquities, and by getting intelligence in thy truth.

Therefore hath Yahweh kept watch for the calamity, and brought it in upon us, for righteous is Yahweh our God concerning all his deeds which he hath done, seeing that we had not hearkened unto his voice.

Now therefore, O Lord our God, who didst bring forth thy people out of the land of Egypt with a firm hand, and didst make for thyself a name, as at this day,—we have sinned, we have been guilty of lawlessness.
O Lord! <according to all thy righteousness.> I beseech thee, let thine anger and thine indignation turn away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain, —for by reason of our sins, and by reason of the iniquities of our fathers [Jerusalem and thy people] have become a reproach, to all who are round about us.

Now therefore, hearken, O our God, unto the prayer of thy servant, and unto his supplications, and let thy face shine, upon thy sanctuary, that is desolate, —for the sake of thy servants, O Lord.

Incline, O my God, thine ear, and hearken, open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city on which hath been called thy name: for not on the ground of our own righteousnesses are we causing our supplications to fall down before thee, but on the ground of thine abounding compassions.

O Lord, b hear! O Lord, b forgive! O Lord, b hearken and perform! Do not delay! For thine own sake, O my God, Because [thine own name] hath been called, upon thy city, and upon thy people.

And while yet I was speaking and praying, and confessing mine own sin, and the sin of my people Israel, —and causing my supplication to fall down before Yahweh my God, concerning the holy mountain of my God; while yet I was speaking in prayer> then [the man Gabriel, whom I had] seen in vision at the beginning, weared with rapid flight] touched me, about the time of the evening present. Ye he came, and spake with me, —and said—

O Daniel! [now] have I come forth, to teach thee understanding.

At the beginning of thy supplications came forth a word, [and] therefore, am arrived to tell, because  thoy art, —mark then the word, and have understanding in the revelation:

Seventy weeks have been divided concerning thy people and concerning thy holy city —

10. By the river Tigris, after a Three Weeks' Fast, Daniel receives his Final Revelation (chaps. x.—xii.).

1 In the third year of Cyrus, king of Persia, the matter was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar; and faithful was the word, but [concerned] a great warfare, and he marked the word, and had understanding in the revelation.

2 In those days [I, Daniel] was mourning three sevens of days: food to delight in did not eat, neither flesh nor wine came into my mouth, nor did I so much as dwell in my house; I was fulfilled of three sevens of days.

And on the twenty-fourth day of the first month, —when I] was by the side of the great river, [the same: is Tigris] 8 then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! a man clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with the bright gold of Uphaz; * whose body was like Tarshish-stone, * and his face like the appearance of lightning, and his eyes were like torches of fire, and his arms and his feet like the look of bronze burnished, * and the sound of his words was like the sound of a multitude.

And I, Daniel, alone beheld the revelation, and the men who were with me beheld not the revelation, in truth a great terror had fallen upon them, and they had fled while hiding themselves. Therefore was I left alone, and beheld this great revelation, and there remained in me no strength—but my freshness was turned upon me into disfigurement, and I retained no strength.

So then I heard the sound of his words, and when I heard the sound of his words then I myself came to be in a deep sleep upon my face, with my face to the earth. And lo! a hand touched me; and roused me up on my knees and the palms of my hands. Then said he unto me,

O Daniel! man greatly delighted in! have understanding in the words which I am about to speak unto thee, and stand up where thou art, for now have I been sent unto thee.

And when he had spoken with me this word I stood up trembling. Then said he unto me,

Do not fear, Daniel, for from the first day that thou didst set thy heart to understand and to humble thyself before thy God thy words were heard; and I am come, by reason of thy words. But the ruler of the kingdom of Persia withstood me twenty-one days, but lo! Michael, one of the chief rulers came in to help me, and left him there, beside the kings of Persia.

So then I am come to let thee understand that shall befall the people in the afterpart of the days, for yet is the vision for those days.

And when he had spoken with me such words as these, I set my face towards the earth, and was dumb. Then lo! like the similitude of the sons of men one was touching my lips, so I opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him who was standing before me,

O my lord!

By the revelation my pains have seized me, and I retain no strength. Then can the servant of this my lord speak with this my lord, seeing that as for me henceforth there remaineth in me no strength, and no spirit is left in me?

Then again there touched me one like in appearance to a son of earth, and he strengthened me. And he said,

Do not fear, man greatly delighted in! peace to thee, be strong, yea be strong! And as he spake with me I gained strength, and said,

Let my lord speak, for thou hast strengthened me.

And he said,

Knowest thou wherefore I am come unto thee? But now must I return to fight with the ruler of Persia; I therefore am going forth, and lo! the ruler of Greece is coming. Howbeit I will tell thee that which is inscribed in the writing of truth, but there is no one who holdeth strongly with me concerning these things, save Michael your ruler.

II therefore, in the first year of Darius the Mede was at my station to strengthen and embolden him; and now <the truth> I will tell thee—

Lo! there are yet three kings to arise—belonging to Persia, and the fourth will amass greater riches than they all, and when he hath strengthened himself in his riches the whole will stir up the kingdom of Greece. And so a hero king will arise, and wield great authority, and do according to his own pleasure; but when he hath arisen he shall become strong in pieces, and be divided, toward the four winds of the heavens, but not to his own posterity, nor according to his own authority which he wielded, for his kingdom shall be uprooted, even for others besides these.

But a king of the south will become strong, even from among his rulers, and will prevail against him, and have authority, a great authority shall his authority be.

And at the end of years they will league together, yea the daughter of the kings of the north, to make peace, but she shall not retain strength of arm, neither shall he stand, nor his arm, but she shall be delivered up—she herself and they who brought her in, and he who begat her, and he that strengthened her in the times.

But one will stand up from the sprout of her roots, in his stead, and he will enter the army, and enter into a fortress of the king of the north, and deal with them and shew himself strong; yea even their gods, with their molten images with their delightful vessels of silver and gold, with a host of captives> will he bring into Egypt,—and he will stand more [years] than the king of the north; 9 so will the king of the south [enter into the kingdom], and then return unto his own soil.

But [his sons] will rouse themselves to war, and gather together a multitude of large armies, but he will come on and on, and overflow and pass through,—and will return and wage war, up to his fortress.

Then will the king of the south [be enraged], and go forth and fight with him, with the king of the north,—and will raise a great multitude, but the multitude will be delivered into his hand. 12 And when he hath taken away the multitude> his heart will be uplifted,—and he will cause tens of thousands to fall, but will not conquer.

Then will the king of the north again raise a multitude, greater than the first,—and at the end of the times—some years—he will come on and on with a great army, and with great substance. 14 And in those times [many] will rise against the king of the south,—and [the sons of the oppressors] of thy people] will exalt themselves to confirm the vision, but will be overthrown.

Then will come in the king of the north, and cast up a rampart, and capture a city of strongholds,—and the arms of the south will not rise, nor the people of his chosen ones, and there shall be no strength to rise. 16 So shall he that cometh against him do according to his own pleasure, and none shall stand before him,—therefore will he take his stand in the beautiful land, and it will languish and be exhausted in his hand.

Then will he set his face to enter, with the might of all his kingdom, and with equitable terms with him, will make,—and a daughter of women will give him to corrupt her, but she will not remain, nor shall she come.

Then will he turn his face to the Coastslands, and will capture many,—but a commander [will bring to an end] his reproach against himself, that his reproach will return not unto him. 19 Therefore will he turn his face towards the fortresses of his land,—but he shall stagger and fall, and shall not be found.

Then will rise up in his stead, one causing an exactor to pass through the ornament of the kingdom,—but in a few days> shall he be broken in pieces, with anger, and in battle.

Then will rise up in his stead, one despised, and they will not lay upon him the dignity of the kingdom,—but he will come in unexpectedly, and strengthen the kingdom by flatteries; 20 and the arms of an overflowing flood will sweep all before him, and they shall be broken in pieces,—moreover also, the prince of a covenant; 21 and by reason of the longing against him> he will work deceitfully, and will come up and become strong, with a small nation.

Unexpectedly, even into the rich places of the province> will he enter, and will do what neither his fathers nor his fathers' fathers had done, and spoil and spoil and subdue—among them> will be scatter,—and against strongholds will be devise plots even until a (convenient) time.

Then will he stir up his strength and his heart, against the king of the south, with a great army, and the king of the south will wage war, with a great and exceedingly mighty army,—but will make no stand, for they will devise against him plots; 24 and they that haue enuied his delicacies] will break him in pieces, and his army will be overwhelmed like a flood,—and many wounded will fall.

Now <as for the two kings> their heart will be set on acting wickedly, and <at one table> will they speak [falsehood],—but it shall not succeed, for ye is the end for an appointed time.

So then he will return to his own land, with great substance, with his heart set up a holy covenant; yea he will act with effect, and return to his own land.

<At the appointed time> will he again enter the south,—but it shall not be like the former, nor like the latter.

Then will come in against him the ships of Cyprus, and he will be disheartened, and against have indignation against a holy covenant, and will act with effect,—and again gain intelligence, concerning them who are forsaking a holy covenant.

And [the arms] from him will arise,—and will profane the sanctuary, the fortress, and will set aside the continual [ascending-sacrifice], and place the horrid abomination that astoundeth. 23 And <them who are ready to deal lawlessly with a covenant, will he make impious by flatteries, but the people who know their God will be strong and act with effect. 23 And those who make the wise wise will impart understanding to the many, yet shall they be brought low, by sword and by flame, by captivity and by prey, for some days; 24 but when they are brought low they shall be helped with a little help, and many will join themselves unto them by flatteries; 25 and of them who make wise some shall be brought low, to refine them, and to purify and make white, up to the time of the end, for yet is it for an appointed time.

And the king will do according to his own pleasure, and will exalt himself, and magnify himself against every God, yea against the God of Gods, will he speak wonderful things, and will succeed until the end, and the people that know their God shall be increased. 26 And he will prepare for, the stronghold of the fortress, the people of an alien god, whom he will acknowledge, will greatly honour, and will give them authority over the many, and the soil will he apportion for a price.

And in the time of the end will the king of the south push at him, and the king of the north will rush against him, with chariots and with horsemen, and with many ships, and he will enter the lands, and overthrow and pass over; 27 yea he will enter the beautiful land, and many lands shall be laid low, but these shall be delivered out of his hand, Edom and Moab, and the first portion of the sons of Ammon; yea he will thrust forth his hand against the land, and the land of Egypt shall have no deliverance; and he will have authority over the treasures of gold and silver, and over all the delights things of Egypt, with Libyans and Ethiopians among his followers; but these will terrify him, out of the east, and out of the north, therefore will he go forth with great fury, to destroy and to devote many; and will plant his palace-home between the seas, towards the beautiful holy mountain, but shall come to his end, with none to help him.

And at that time will Michael, the great ruler who standeth for the sons of thy people, make a stand, and there will be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation, up to that time, and at that time shall thy people be delivered, every one found written in the book; and many of the sleepers in the dusty ground shall awake; these shall be to age-abiding life, but these to reproach, and age-abiding abhorrence; and they who make wise shall shine like the shining of the expanse, and they who bring the many to righteousness like the stars to times age-abiding and beyond.

But thou, Daniel, close up the words, and seal the book, until the time of the end, many will run to and fro, and knowledge shall abound.

Then I, Daniel, looked, and lo, two others standing, one on this side of the bank of the river, and one on that side of the bank of the river. And one said to the man clothed with linen, who was upon the waters of the river, How long shall be the end of the wonders? And I heard the man clothed with linen who was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left unto the heavens, and swore by him that liveth unto times age-abiding, For a set time and times and a half, and when the dispersion of a part of the holy people [is brought to an end] then shall come to an end all these things.

And I heard, but could not understand, so I said, O my lord! what shall be the issue of these things?

Then said he, Go thy way, Daniel; for closed up and sealed are the words, until the time of the end. Many will purify themselves and be made white and be refined, but the lawless will act lawlessly, and none of the lawless shall understand, but they who make wise shall understand; and from the time of the taking away of the continual ascendone thousand three hundred and thirty-five days.

13 But [the] way thy end, and thou shalt rest, and shalt rise to thy lot at the end of the days.

HOSEA.

PART I.—The Prophet, by a series of painful Matrimonial Experiences, is caused to enter into Fellowship with Yahweh's unrequited Love for Unfaithful Israel (chaps. i.—iii.).

1 The word of Yahweh which came unto Hosea son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel.

2 The beginning of the word of Yahweh with Hosea, was,—that Yahweh said unto Hosea, Go take thee a woman of unchastity, and the children of unchastity, for <unchastely indeed> hath the land been going away from following Yahweh.

3 So he went and took Gomer, daughter of Diblaim,—and she conceived and bare him a son. Then said Yahweh unto him,

4 Call his name Jezreèl; for <yet a little> and I will visit the bloodshed of Jezreèl upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel.

5 And it shall come to pass <in that day> that I will break the bow of Israel, in the vale of Jezreèl.

6 Then conceived she again, and bare a daughter, and he said to him,

7 Call her name Lo-ruhamah ["Uncompassioned"],—for <not again any more> will I have compassion upon the house of Israel, that I should forgive them; 7 but <on the house of Judah> will I have compassion, and I will save them, as Yahweh their God,—but will not save them by bow, or by sword, or by battle, by horses, or by horsemen.

And <when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah> she conceived, and bare a son.

9 Then said he, Call his name Lo-ammi [= "No people of mine"],—for ye' are Lo-ammi [= "No people of mine"], and I will not be yours.

10 Yet shall the number of the sons of Israel become like the sand of the sea, which can neither be measured, nor numbered,—and it shall come to pass <in the place where it used to be said to them> <No people of mine> are ye, it shall be said to them—Sons of a Living God!

11 Then shall the sons of Judah and the sons of Israel (gather themselves together) as one, and shall appoint them one head, and come up out of the earth,—for great shall be the day of Jezreèl.

1 Say ye unto your brethren, O Ammi [= "O 2 my people"],

And unto your sisters, O Ruhamah [= "O compassionate one "]:

2 Contend ye with your mother, contend,

For she is no wife of mine, And I am no husband of hers,

Let her then put away her paramours, from before her, And her partners in adultery, from her embraces:

3 Lest I strip off her under-clothing, And set her forth to view, as in the day she was born,— And make her like a wilderness, And render her like a land that is parched, And suffer her to die of thirst; And <on her children> not have compassion,— Because <the children of paramours> they are:

4 For their mother [hath been unchaste], And she that conceived them [hath caused shame],—

5 Heb.: lo' ammi 'attam. Or: "land." * The 'mother' is, of course, the community conceived as a whole, the 'children' being the individual members — Driver, Intro. O.T., 303. * cf. Is. 4: 7; 43: 18: "from between her breasts."
For she said,
Let me go after my lovers! who used to give my bread, and my water, my wool, and my flax, mine oil, and my drink.
6 [Therefore] behold me! hedging up her way,
with thorns,—
And I will wall her in, and <her footpaths> shall she not find.
7 And <when she shall pursue her lovers, and not overtake them,
And shall seek them and not find>
Then will she say,
Let me go my way now! and return unto
my first husband,
For it was better with me [then] than [now]!
8 But [she] owneth not, that [I] gave her—the corn, and the new wine and the oil,— <silver> also increased I unto her, and gold [which] they offered to Baal.
9 [Therefore] will I again take away my corn,
in the time thereof,
And my new wine, in the season thereof,—
And will recover my wool and my flax [given]
to hide her shame.
10 [Now], therefore, will I expose her unseemliness, before the eyes of her lovers,—
And no [man] shall deliver her out of my hand!
11 And I will cause to cease all her mirth,
Her pilgrim-festival, her new moon and sabbath,—and her every appointed meeting;
12 And will lay waste her vine and her fig-tree,
As to which she hath said,
<A present> are they for myself, which my lovers [have given me],—
And will make of them a thickest, and the wild beasts of the field shall devour them.
13 So will I upon her the days of the Baals, Unto whom she used to burn incense, and decked herself with her nose-ring and her jewelry, and went her way after her lovers,— Whereas <me> she forgot,
Declareth Yahweh.
14 [Therefore] lo! [I] am going to persuade her,
And <though I conduct her forth into a wilderness>,—
Yet will I speak unto her heart.
15 Then will I give to her her vineyards from thence,
And the vale of Achor [= "trouble"] for a door of hope,—
And she will respond there,
As in the days of her youth,
And as in the day when she came up out of
the land of Egypt."

16 And it shall come to pass <in that day>
Declareth Yahweh,
That she will call me Ishi [= "My husband"],
And will not call me any more, Baali
[= "Mine owner"].
17 So will I take away the names of the Baals, out of her mouth,—
And they shall not be called to mind any more, by their name.
18 And I will solemnise to them a covenant, in
that day,
With the wild-beast of the field,
And with the bird of the heavens,
And the creeping thing of the ground,—
And <bow and sword and battle> will I break in pieces out of the land,
So will I cause them to lie down, in security.
19 And I will take thee unto myself, unto times age-abiding,—
Yea I will take thee unto myself, in righteousness and in justice, and in lovingkindness,
and in abounding compassion:
20 Yea I will take thee unto myself, in faithfulness,—
So shalt thou know Yahweh.
21 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I
will respond,
Declareth Yahweh,
I will respond to the heavens,—
And [they] shall respond to the earth;
23 And [the earth] shall respond to the corn,
and to the new wine and to the oil,—
And [they] shall respond to Jezreel [= "Whom God scattereth," "Whom God soweth"].
23 So will I sow her unto me in the land,
And will have compassion upon the Uncom-passioned one [= "Lo-ruhamah"]—
And will say to him who was No-people-of mine [= to "Lo-ammi"] <My people>
 thou art,
And [he] shall say, My God!

1 Then said Yahweh unto me,
<Once more> go love a woman who loveth a friend, and is an adulteress,—according to the love of Yahweh unto the sons of Israel, though they keep turning away unto other gods, and love [idolatrous] raisin-cakes.
2 So I secured her to me, for fifteen pieces of silver,—and a homer of barley, and a half-homer of barley;
And I said unto her,
<Many days> shalt thou tarry for me,
Thou shalt not be unchaste,
Neither shalt thou become another man’s,—
Moreover also [I] [will tarry] for thee.

Unchastity, and wine, and new wine, take away the heart.f

|| My people ||< of their Wood > do ask,—
Let || their Staff || then tell them,—
For || the spirit of unchastity || hath led them astray,
And they have unchastely departed from under their God.

< On the headlands of the mountains > they sacrifice,
And < on the hills > burn they incense,
Under oak and poplar and terebinth.
Because pleasantr is the shade thereof:
|| For this cause || do your daughters' [become unchaste],
And || your brides || commit adultery.

I do not bring punishment upon your daughters when they become unchaste,
Nor upon your brides, when they commit adultery,
For || the men themselves ||b with unchaste women do seduce themselves,
And < with the common women > of the shrine do offer sacrifice,—
And || a people who will not discern || must be ruined.

< Though unchaste art thou, O Israel >
Let not Judah || become guilty,||
Neither let them enter Gilgal, Nor go up to Beth-aven,
And [ then ] swear. By the life of Yahweh!

For < as a hoifer that is stubborn > hath Israel' || been stubborn,——
|| Now || can Yahweh || turn them out to

The brains! Heb.: the heart, which ancient Israel conceived as the seat of the intellect.”

Hosea IV. 17—19; V. 1—15; VI. 1—6.

17 [Mated with idols] is Ephraim, let him alone.
18 Their drinking-bout [having passed],—they became [unchaste].
    They loved wildly,
    <A contempt> became her great men. l
19 The wind hath bound her up in its wings,—
    That they may be ashamed, because of their sacrifices.

5 1 Hear ye this—O priests,
    And attend, O house of Israel,
    And ye [House of the King] give ear,
    For <to you> pertaineth the sentence,—
    For  have ye been to Mizpah,
    And a net spread on Tabor.
2 And  have apostates deeply designed,— Though [I] was a rebuker to™ them all.
3 [I] have known Ephraim,
    And [Israel] hath notbeer hidden from me,—
    For [now] hast thou committed unchastity,
    O Ephraim,
    Israel [hath made himself impure].
4 Their doings [will not suffer] them to return unto their God,—
    For [the spirit of unchastity] is within them,
    And [Yahweh] have they not known.4
5 Therefore will the Excellency [of Israel]
    answer1 to his face,—
    And [Israel and Ephraim] shall stumble in their iniquity,
    Even Judah with them [hath stumbled],
6 <With their flocks and with their herds> will they go to seek Yahweh,
    But shall not find him;
    He hath withdrawn himself from them.
7 <With Yahweh> have they dealt treacherously,
    For <to alien children> have they given birth,—
    [Now] a new moon [shall devour them], with their portions.
8 Blow ye a horn in Gibeah,
    A trumpet in Ramah,—
    Sound an alarm at Beth-aven;5
    Behind thee, O Benjamin !
9 [Ephraim] shall become [a desolation],
    in the day of rebuke:
    <Throughout the tribes of Israel> have I made known what is sure.
10 The rulers of Judah have become as they who remove a land-mark.6
    <Upon them> will I pour out, like water,
    my wrath.

11 <Oppressed> is Ephraim, crushed in judgment,—
    Because he hath [wilfully] walked after falsehood. l
12 But [I] was like a moth, to Ephraim,—
    And like rotten wood, to the house of Judah.
13 <When Ephraim> saw his injury,
    And Judah his wound>:
    Then went Ephraim unto Assyria,6
    And [Judah] sent unto a hostile king,—
    Yet [thee] cannot heal you,
    Nor will the wound [remove from you].
14 For [I] will be as a lion unto Ephraim,
    And as a young lion to the house of Judah,—
    [I], I will tear in pieces, and depast,1
    I e will carry off, and none be able to rescue.
15 I will depart, will return unto my place!
    Till what time they acknowledge their guilt,
    and seek my face,—
    <In their trouble> will they make for me diligent search.

1 Come, and let us return unto Yahweh! —
    For [he] hath torn, that he might heal us,— smitten, that he might bind us up.
2 He will bring us to life, after two days,—
    On the third day will he raise us up,
    that we may live before him.
3 Then let us know—let us press on to know—Yahweh,
    <Like the dawn> is his coming forth assured,—
    That he may come
    Like a down-pour upon us,
    Like the harvest-rain, [and] the seed-rain of the land.
4 What can I do unto thee 4 O Ephraim?7
    What can I do unto thee, 4 O Judah?7
    For [your lovingkindness] is like a morning cloud,
    Yes [like the dew, early] departing!!
5 [For this cause] have I bewn them in pieces
    by the prophets,
    I have slain them by the sayings of my mouth,—
    And [my justice] as a light' goeth forth.
6 For [lovingkindness] I desired, and not sacrifice,—
    And the knowledge of God,* more than ascending-offerings.

But [they] have transgressed a covenant,—

[They] have dealt treacherously with me.

[Gilead] is a city of workers of iniquity,— tracked with blood.

And [like liars] in wait for a man, in troops> is a band of priests,

<On the road> will they murder towards Shechem,—

Because  they have done.

In the house of Israel> have I seen a horrible thing,—

<There> the unchastity of Ephraim, Detiled is Israel.

Judah too!! a harvest is appointed for thee,—

In that I will bring back the captivity of my people.

When I would have brought healing to Israel>

Then was disclosed the iniquity of Ephraim,

And the wicked doings of Samaria,

For they have wrought falsehood,—

When a thief would enter> a band [roamed about] outside,

And they say not to their own hearts,

That [all their wickedness] I remember,

Now> have their doings | beset them about|,

Right before my face> have they been done.

By their wickedness> they gladden a king,

And by their flatteries>—rulers.

They all> are adulterers,

Like an oven too hot for the baker,—

Who leaveth off stoking, after kneading the dough, till the whole be leavened.

In the day of our king> the rulers> have made themselves ill| with the heat of wine,—

He hath extended his hand with scoffers.

For they have made ready> like an oven, their heart, by their lying in wait,—

All the night> their baker sleepeath,

In the morning> [he] kindleth up as it were a blazing fire.

They all> become hot as an oven, and devour their judges,—

All their kings> have fallen,—

There[h] hath been none| amongst them crying unto me.

As for Ephraim!! [with the peoples] hath he been mingling himself,—

Ephraim> is a cake not turned.

Foreigners have [eaten up] his strength,

And [he] kneweth it not.—

Even grey hairs> are sprinkled upon him,

And [he] knoweth it not.

Therefore doth the Excellency* of Israel |answer|^ to his face;

Yet have they not returned unto Yahweh their God,

Nor have they sought him, in spite of all this!

So then Ephraim hath become >like a simple dove> having no' understanding,*

<On Egypt> have they called.

<To Assyria> have they gone.

<Whithersoever they go> I will spread over them my net,

<Like a bird of the heavens> will I bring them down,

I will chastise them, by the time the report can reach the flock of them.4

Woe to them! for they have taken flight from me,

 Destruction to them! for they have transgressed against me,—

When I would have ransomed them> Then [they] spake — concerning me — falsehoods.

Neither made they outcry unto me, in their heart,

Although they kept on howling upon their beds,

Over corn and new wine> they gathered themselves together *.

They rebelled against me.

When [I] had warned them> I strengthened their arm,—

Yet against me> kept they on devising wickedness.

They would return—not to him who is on high!f

They have become like a deceitful bow,

Their rulers> shall fall by the sword, for the rage of their tongue,

This> shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.

To thy mouth> with a horn!

Like an eagle> on the house of Yahweh,—

Because they have violated my covenant,

And against my law> have they transgressed.

9 They have deeply corrupted themselves, like the days of Gibeah:
   He will call to mind their iniquity,
   He will punish their sins.

10 Like grapes in the desert, found I Israel,
   Like the first-ripe in the fig-tree when it is young,
   Saw I your fathers,—
   They entered Baal-peon,
   And devoted themselves to the Shameful Thing,
   Then became their abominations like their lusts.

11 As for Ephraim! like a bird did their glory fly away,—
   No birth, and none with child.
   No conception.

12 Yea, though they rear their children yet will I make them childless, till there be no human being,—
   For it is nothing less than woe to them when I depart from them!

13 Ephraim! just as I provided for Tyre was planted in a meadow,— Yet Ephraim must needs bring forth for a murderer his children.

14 Give them, O Yahweh—what wilt thou give?
   Give them, a miscarrying womb, and breasts dried up.

15 All their wickedness is in Gilgal,
   Yea, there have I come to hate them,
   For the wickedness of their doings—out of my house—will I drive them forth,—
   No more will I love them,
   All their rulers are unrighteous.

16 Smitten is Ephraim,
   Their root hath dried up,
   Shall they not bear,—
   Yea, though they do bring forth yet will I slay the darlings of their womb.

17 My God will reject them, because they hearkened not unto him,—
   That they may become wanderers throughout the nations.

10 A luxuriant vine is Israel,
   Frucht besecmeth him,—
   According to the abundance of his fruit
   Hath he brought abundance to the altars,
   According to the goodness of his land
   Hath he made goodly statues.

2 Hypocritical is his heart,
   Shall they be held guilty,—
   He will break down their altars,
   He will destroy their statues.

3 For now will they say,
   We have no king,—
   For we revere not Yahweh,
   And what could a king do for us?

4 They have spoken words, swearing falsely, in solemnising a covenant,—
   Therefore shall judgment spring up like a poisonous plant on the ridges of the field.

5 About the calves of Beth-aven is the inhabitant of Samaria to be consoled,—
   For the people thereof have mourned over it,
   And the ascetics thereof, who used to exult shall mourn for the glory thereof, because it hath departed therefrom.

6 Itself also shall Assyria be borne along, as a present to a hostile king,— Shame shall Ephraim receive, that Israel may be ashamed of his own counsel.

7 Silent is Samaria:
   Her king is as a chip on the face of the waters.

8 So shall the high places of Aven be destroyed,
   The sin of Israel,
   Thorn and prickle shall come up on their altars,—
   Therefore shall they say to the mountains, Cover us, and to the hills, Fall on us.

9 Beyond the days of Gibeah hast thou sinned, O Israel:
   There came they to a stand,
   The battle against the sons of perversity touched them not in Gibeah.

10 When I please then will I chastise them,—
   And there shall be gathered together against them—peoples,
   They being harnessed to their two Iniquities:

11 But Ephraim shall be a heifer broken in,
   Loving to tread out corn, when [I] have passed over upon her fair neck,—
   I will drive Ephraim, Judah shall plow,
   Jacob shall harrow to him.

12 Sow to yourselves in righteousness,
   Reap ye at the bidding of lovingkindness,
   Furrow to yourselves the newly-ploughed soil,—
   Then will be the time to seek Yahweh,
   Until he come, that he may rain down righteousness for you.

   Ye have eaten the fruit of deception,—
   Because thou didst trust in thine chariots,*
   In the multitude of thy mighty men.
14 Therefore shall there arise a tumult among thy peoples,*
   And all thy strongholds shall be plundered,
   As Shalman plundered Beth-arbel,* in the day of battle,—
   The mother! <upon her children> dashed to the ground.
15 Even so! hath Bethel [done to you], because of your exceeding wickedness,—
   In the dawn shall the king of Israel be utterly silenced.!

11 1 <When Israel was a child> then I loved him,—
   And <of Egypt> called I my son.
2 They invited them,—
   <At once> they departed* from before me,!
   <They>! to the Baalas! sacrificed,*
   And <to the images> offered incense.
3 Yet [I] had taught Ephraim to walk,
   I used to take them upon mine arms,!—
   But they acknowledged not that I had healed them.
4 <With human cords> used I to draw them,
   With the bands of love,

   on their jaws,*—
   And holding out [food] to him I let him eat.!
5 He was not to turn back into the land of Egypt,
   Howbeit [the Assyrian—he] became his king,
   For they refused to turn.
6 Therefore shall the sword [rage] in his cities,
   And make an end of his multitudes, and consume them,—
   Because of their counsels.
7 But [my people] are bent towards turning from me,—
   <Though upwards they call them> none of them can lift them.!

8 How can I give thee up, Ephraim?— abandon thee, Israel! !
   How can I make thee as Admah?—
   set thee as Zeboim?
   Mine own heart [turneth against me],
   <At once> are kindled my compassions.
9 I cannot execute the glow of mine anger,
   I cannot turn to destroy* Ephraim,—
   For <GOD> am I, and not man,
   <When thou drawest near> [I am] a Holy One, though I do not enter a city.
10 <After Yahweh> let them go.
   <Like a lion> will he roar,—
   <When he shall roar> Then let sons come trembling out of the West.
   Let them come trembling like a small bird out of Egypt,
   And like a dove out of the land of Assyria,—
   So will I cause them to dwell by their own houses.
   Declareth Yahweh.
11 They have compassed me about—
   <With denial> [Ephraim],
   <With deceit> [the house of Israel],—
   But [Judah] hath [again and again] run riot with God,*
   Though <with the holy places> entrusted.
12 [Ephraim] feedeth on wind,
   And pursueth the east wind,
   <All the day> <falsehood and force> doth he magnify,—
   And  would they solemnise,
   And <oil into Egypt> must be borne along.
2 But  hath Yahweh with Judah,—
   So that he may bring punishment on Jacob,
   according to his ways
   <According to his doings> repay him.*
3 <In the womb> took he his brother by the heel;!
   And <in his manly vigour> strove he with God :
4 Yes he strove against a Messenger, and prevailed,
   He wept, and made supplication unto him,—
   <At Bethel> he found him,*
   And <there> he spake with us;
5 And Yahweh is God of hosts,—
   Yahweh is his memorial!*
6 | Thou therefore, <by thy God> shalt return,—
<Lovingkindness and justice> do thou keep,
So wait thou for thy God, continually.
7 | A trafficker! <in his hand> are balances of deceit.
<To oppress> he loveth.
8 | So then Ephraim said,
Surely I have gotten me riches,
I have found wealth for myself,—
<In all my toils> they cannot find in me pertinacity which is sin.
9 | But || Yahweh|| have been thy God, from the land of Egypt,—
I will yet make thee dwell in tents, as in the days of appointed meeting.
10 | And I will lay my word upon the prophets,
Yea || myself|| have magnified |vision|.—
And <by the hand of the prophets> will I use similitudes.
11 | If || Gilead || is in sorrow> surely false' have they been,
<In Gilgal> have they sacrificed |bullocks|,—
||Their very altars|| shall become as heaps upon the furrows of the field.
12 | <When Jacob fled to the country of Syria> Then Israel served for a wife,
And <for a wife> he watched over a flock.
13 | And <by a prophet> Yahweh |brought up| Israel out of Egypt,—
And <by a prophet> was he watched over.
14 | Ephraim hath provoked |very bitterly|,—
<His own blood, therefore, upon him> will he leave,
And <his reproach> shall his Lord |bring back to him|.

13 1 | <When Ephraim spake> there was terror,
Exalted' was ||he|| in Israel,—
But <when he became guilty with Baal> Then he died.
3 | Now therefore they go on to sin,
And have made them a Molten Thing out of their silver,
After the notion of idols,
<The workmanship of craftsmen> all of it!
<Of them>³ are they saying—
Ye sacrificers of men ²
<The Great Calf> shall ye surely kiss! ⁴
3 | Therefore shall they become
Like the morning' cloud,
And like the dew early departing,—
Like chaff storm-driven out of the threshing-floor,
And like smoke out of a chimney.

4 | Yet || Yahweh|| have been thy God from the land of Egypt,—
And <god beside me> shalt thou not acknowledge,
For <saviour> is there none' beside me.
5 | || I tend || thee in the desert,—
In a land parched with drought:
6 | Whenever they were pastured> then were they satisfied,
They were satisfied, and their heart |was lifted up|,—
<Because of this> they forgot me.
7 | Therefore am I become to them as a lion,—
<As a leopard by the way> do I watch.⁵
8 | I will fall upon them as a bear saved,
And will rend asunder the enclosure of their heart,—
That I may devour them there, like a lioness,
||The wild beast of the field|| shall tear them in pieces.
9 | It hath utterly destroyed thee, O Israel,
For it was against me, as thy helper! ⁶
10 | Where' is thy king, then,
That he may save thee throughout all thy cities?
And thy judges,
Concerning whom thou saidst,
Oh give me a king and rulers?
11 | I might give thee a king in mine anger,
And take him away in my wrath.
12 | <Bound up> is the iniquity of Ephraim,
<Stored away> his sin.
13 | || The pangs of a woman in labour || shall overtake him,—
|| He || is a son, not wise, ⁷
For <now|| he cannot stand still, when children are about to be born.⁸
14 | <Out of the hand of hades> will I ransom them,
<Out of death> will I redeem them,—
Where' is thy pestilence, O death?
Where' thy plague, O hades? ⁹
|| Repentance||² shall be hid from mine eyes.
15 | Though || he || among brethren > be fruitful,
There shall come in an east wind,
The blast of Yahweh out of the desert coming up,
That his spring |may dry up|, and his fountain |be exhausted|,

following:—

4. <That which was left by the creeping' locust> hath the swarming' locust b eaten,
And <that which was left by the swarming' locust> hath the grass' locust b eaten;
And <that which was left by the grass' locust> hath the corn' locust eaten.

5. Awake, ye drunkards, and weep,
And howl, all ye drinkers of wine,—
Over the new wine, because it hath been cut off from your mouth.

6. I will heal their apostacy,
I will love them freely,—
For mine anger [has turned] from them.

7. I will become as the dew unto Israel,
He shall break forth as the lily,—
And he shall strike his roots as Lebanon:—

8. His branches [shall spread],
That <like an olive-tree> may be his fresh beauty,—
And his fragrance, like Lebanon.

9. They who dwell in his shade shall again' SHOW life like the corn,
And break forth as the vine,—
And [the remembrance of him] shall be like the wine of Lebanon.

10. Ephraim [saith]—
What to me' any more' are idols?'
[II] I [have answered, and have closely observed him,
[II] I am like a fir-tree that is green,
<From me> is thgy fruit found.

11. Who is wise, that he may understand these things?
Intelligent, that he may take knowledge of them.
For [straightforward] are the ways of
Yahweh,
And [the righteous] shall travel therein,
But [transgressors] shall stumble therein.

12. "Any one who has seen how the mountain himself self rises from great roots, cast out across the land like those of some giant oak, will not feel it necessary to mitigate the metaphor"—G.A.S.

13. Or: "And be fragrant like," So G.A.S., and
cp. Is. lxvi. 5.

14. Gt.: "As for Ephraim!
what hath he to do any more with idols?" And so the Sep.—G.n.

15. Davids' H.L. 819.

"And their"—G.n.

20. "Some cod. (w. 2 ear. pr.
edms., Sep.): "iniquities" (pl.)—G.n.

21. "Wholly" shall thou take away iniquity,
Accept, then, with favour,
And we will make good the boldness of our lips!

22. "Amosia shall not save us,
Upon horses will we not ride,
Neither will we say any more:
Our God! to the work of our own hands!
For [in thee] shall the fatherless [find compassion]."
6 For [a nation] hath come up over my land,
    Bold, and without' number,—
    [His teeth] are the teeth of a lion,
And <the fangs of a lioness> hath he!
7 He hath turned my vine to a waste,
And my fig-tree to splinters,—
He hath [barked it clean], and cast it down,
Bleached' are its branches.
8 Wail thou, like a virgin girded with sackcloth, for the owner of her youth.
9 Cut off' are the meal-offering and the drink-offering, from the house of Yahweh,—
In grief' are the priests, the attendants on Yahweh—:
10 Laid waste' is the field,
In grief' is the soil,—
For laid waste' is the corn,
Absashed' is the new wine,
Languished' the oil.
11 Turn pale, ye husbandmen,
Howl, ye vine-dressers,
Over the wheat, and over the barley,—
For perished' is the harvest of the field.
12 [The vine] is abashed,
And [the fig-tree] languished,—
Pomegranate, palm also, and apple—
All the trees of the field' have withered,
Yea abashed' is gladness, away from the sons of men.
13 Gird yourselves and beat the breast—ye priests,
Howl, ye attendants of the altar,
Go in and wrap yourselves for the night in sackcloth, ye attendants on my God,—
For <withholden from the house of your God> are the meal-offering and the drink-offering.
14 Hallow ye a fast,
Call a solemn assembly,
Gather, O elders, all the inhabitants of the land, unto the house of Yahweh your God,—
And make ye outcry unto Yahweh.
15 Alas for the day!
For near' is the day of Yahweh,
And <as a veritable Destruction from the Destroyer> shall it come.
16 Is it not <before our eyes> that [food] hath been cut off?
<From the house of our God> rejoicing and exultation.
17 Rotted' hath the seed, under their clods,
Laid waste' are their stores,
Thrown down' are the garners,—
Yea abashed' is the corn.

18 How do the beasts groan!
Perplexed' are the herds of oxen,
Because there is no' pasture for them,—
Even [the flocks of sheep] are destroyed!
19 <Unto thee> O Yahweh, will I cry,—
For [a fire] hath consumed the pastures of the wilderness,
And [a flame] hath set ablaze all the trees of the field.
20 [Even the beasts of the field] moan unto thee,—
Because dried up' are the channels of water,
And [a fire] hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

1 Blow ye a horn in Zion,
Sound an alarm in my holy mountain,
Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble,—
For coming' is the day of Yahweh,
For it is near!—
2 A day of obscurity and deep gloom,
A day of cloud, and thick darkness,
As dusk, spread over the mountains,—
A people, many and bold,
Like whom' hath not been from age-past times,
And <after whom> shall not be again' unto the years of generation after generation.
3 <Before him> hath a fire' devoured,
And <after him> shall a flame' consume,—
As the garden of Eden' is the land before him,
But <after him> a desert most desolate,
Moreover also <escape> giveth he none.
4 <As the appearance of horses > is his appearance,
And <as war-horses> shall they run:
5 <Like the noise of chariots on the tops of the mountains> shall they rattle along,
Like the noise of a flame of fire, devouring dry straw,—
Like a people bold, arrayed for battle.
6 <Because of him> shall peoples' be in anguish,—
All faces' have withdrawn their colour.
7 <Like heroes> shall they run,
Like men of war shall they mount a wall,—
And <every one—along his own road> shall they march along,
And shall not change their paths;
8 Nor <against each other> shall they strike,
Each—on his own highway shall they march,—
Though <in among the weapons> they fall, they shall not stop.
9 <Upon the city> shall they leap,
<On the wall> shall they run,
<Up the houses> shall they climb,—
<Through the windows> shall they enter, live like a thief.\(^a\)

10 <Before him> hath quaked the earth, have trembled the heavens,—
[]The sun and the moon have become dark,
And [] the stars have withdrawn their shining;
And [] Yahweh hath uttered his voice, before his host,
For great indeed is his camp,
For bold is he who executeth his word,—
For great is the day of Yahweh, and awful exceedingly,
Who then shall endure it?

12 <Even now> therefore,
Urgeth Yahweh,
Turn ye unto me, with all your heart,—
And with fasting and with weeping, and with lamentation;
And rend your heart, and not your garments,
Turn therefore, unto Yahweh your God,—
For [] gracious and full of compassion is he,'
Slow to anger, and abundant in loving-kindness,\(^b\)
And will grieve over Calamity.

13 Who knoweth he may turn and grieve,—
And leave behind him, a blessing,\(^d\)
A meal-offering and a drink-offering, to Yahweh your God?

15 Blow ye a horn, in Zion,—
Hallow a fast,
Call a solemn assembly:

16 Gather the people,
Hallow a convocation,\(^g\)
Collect the elders,\(^f\)
Gather the children, and the sucklings of the breasts,—
Let the bridegroom [come forth] from his chamber',
And the bride [from her bower];\(^*\)

17 <Between the porch and the altar> let the priests [weep], the attendants of Yahweh,—
And let them say—
Look with pity, O Yahweh, upon thy people,
And do not deliver thine inheritance to reproach,
That the nations [should mock them],
Why should they say among the peoples,
Where's is their God?

18 And Yahweh became jealous for his land,—
And took pity on his people;

19 Then answered Yahweh, and said to his people:—
Behold me! sending you the corn, and the new wine and the oil,
So shall ye be satisfied therewith; .
And I will not make you any more, a reproach among the nations.
And <the Northerner> will I remove far from you,
And drive him into a land parched and desolate,
With [his face] toward the eastern sea,
And [his rear] toward the hinder sea,—
Then shall come up his ill odour,
Yea his stench shall ascend,
Because he hath shown himself great in doing.

21 Be not thou afraid, O soil,—
Exult and rejoice,
Because Yahweh hath shewn himself
great in doing.

22 Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field,
For sprouted have the pastures of the wilderness,—
For [the tree] hath borne its fruit,
The fig-tree and the vine have yielded their wealth.\(^*\)

23 [] Ye sons of Zion, then, exult and be glad in Yahweh your God,
For he hath given you the seed-rain, in right manner,—
Yea he hath caused to descend for you a down-pour of seed-rain and of the harvest-rain in the first month;
So shall the threshing-floors [be filled] with corn,—
And the vats [overflow] with new wine and oil.

25 Then will I make good to you the years' which were eaten by the swarming locust, the grass locust, and the corn locust and the creeping locust,—even my great army, which I sent among you.\(^*\)

26 And ye shall eat and eat,\(^d\) and be satisfied,
And shall praise the name of Yahweh your God,
Who hath dealt with you wondrously,—
So shall my people [not be abashed] unto times age-abiding.

27 So shall ye know that <in the midst of Israel> I am',
And that [] I, Yahweh, am your God, and none else,—
And my people [shall not be abashed] unto times age-abiding.

§ 2. The Promise of the Spirit.

28 And it shall come to pass [afterwards],
I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh',
And your sons and your daughters [shall prophecy,—
[] Your old men shall dream [dreams],
[] Your young men shall see [visions];

\(^a\) Or: "strength."
\(^b\) Or: "old men."
\(^c\) Or:冠head of the house, bridal tent—G.A.S.
\(^d\) Or: "And ye shall eat on."
Moreover also | upon the servants and upon the handmaids— in those days | will I pour out my spirit; And I will set forth wonders in the heavens, and in the earth,— Blood, and fire, and columns of smoke: The sun! shall be turned into darkness, And the moon into blood,— Before the coming of the great' and awful' day of Yahweh. And it shall come to pass Whosoever shall call on the name of Yahweh shall be delivered,— For <in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem> shall be a delivered remnant; Just as Yahweh hath said, And among the survivors, whom Yahweh doth call.b

§3. All Nations, especially those around Palestine, summoned to the Vale of Jehoshaphat to be judged for their Treatment of Judah.

For lo! <in those days, and at that time,— When I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem> Then will I gather all the nations, And bring them down into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,— And will enter into judgment with them there, Concerning my people, and mine inheritance Israel, Whom they scattered among the nations, And <my land> they apportioned; And <for my people> they cast lots,— And gave a Boy for a harlot, And a Girl sold they for wine— and drank.

Moreover also what have ye to do with me, O Tyre and Zidon, And all the circuit of Palestine? "A recompense" are ye' paying back unto me? But <though ye' should make a recompense unto me> Swiftly, speedily would I return your recompense upon your own head. Because <my silver and my gold> ye took away,— And <my richly beautiful things> carried ye into your temples; And <the sons of Judah and the sons of Jerusalem> ye sold to the sons of Greece,— That they might be far removed from their own bounds.

Behold me! rousing them up out of the place whither ye sold them,— So will I bring back your dealing upon your own head. And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the sons of Judah, And they will sell them to Sabaeans, unto a nation afar off,— For ||Yahweh|| hath spoken.

Proclaim ye this, among the nations, Hallow a war, Rouse the mighty ones, Let them draw near, come up, all the men of war! Beat your plough-shares into swords, And your pruning-hooks into spears,— <As for the weak> let him say, <Mighty> I am'. Give help—and come in, all ye nations on every side, and gather yourselves together,— <Thither> bring down, O Yahweh, thy mighty ones!

Let the nations be roused, and come up| into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,— For <there> will I sit to judge all the nations, on every side. Thrust ye in the vintage knife, For [grown ripe] is the vintage,— Go in, tread down, For full is the winepress, Flow over' do the vats, For abundant' is their wickedness.

Multitudes, multitudes, in the vale of strict decision,— For near' is the day of Yahweh, in the vale of strict decision. ||The sun and the moon|| have become dark,— And ||the stars|| have withdrawn their shining. And ||Yahweh|| <out of Zion> will roar, And <out of Jerusalem> will utter his voice, And the heavens and the earth [shall tremble],— But ||Yahweh|| shall be a shelter to his people, And a refuge' to the sons of Israel. So shall ye know that ||Jehovah|| am your God, making my habitation in Zion my holy' mountain,— So shall [Jerusalem] be [holy], And ||foreigners|| shall pass through her no more.

And it shall come to pass in that day, That the mountains shall drip' sweet wine,* And the hills shall flow down with milk, And ||all the channels of Judah|| shall flow down with waters,— And ||a spring|| <out of the house of Yahweh> shall come forth,

*a Cp. Is. iv. 2, 3; Ob. 17.
*b Ml. : "is calling" — "is going to call."
*c Or. " captives."
*d Some cod. (w. 2 car. pr. edns.) "temple" (sing.) —O.n.
*e Or. " mead."

And shall water the torrent-valley of the 19 *Egypt; <to a desolation> shall be turned, And <to a desert most desolate> shall be changed,— Because of the violence done to the sons of Judah, In that they shed innocent blood in their land.

20 But <Judah> <age-abidingly> shall remain, And <Jerusalem> to generation after generation.

21 And I will free from their blood-guiltiness them whom I had not freed,— For <Yahweh> is about to make his habitation in Zion.

§ 1. After a brief Introduction and Note of Warning, an Unalterable Divine Threat goes forth, in succession, against Damascus, Gaza, Tyre, Edom, Ammon, Moab, Judah, and finally Israel (chaps. i. and ii.).

1 The words of Amos, who was among the herdmen* of Tekoa,—of which (words) he had vision concerning Israel, in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake.

* So then he said—

||Yahweh| <out of Zion> will roar, And <out of Jerusalem> will utter* his voice,— And the pastures of the shepherds shall mourn, And the top of Carmel | be dried up|.

||Thus| saith Yahweh,

<Because of three transgressions of Damascus, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—

<Because <with threshing instruments of iron> they have threshed Gilead> Therefore will I send a fire, into the house of Hazael,— Which shall devour the palaces of Benhadad;

And I will break the bolt of Damascus, And cut off the inhabitant* out of the plain of Aven, And the holder of the sceptre' out of the house of Eden,— And the people of Syria |shall be exiled| unto Kir, Saith Yahweh.

||Thus| saith Yahweh,

<Because of three transgressions of Gaza, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—

<Because of their taking into exile the whole body of exiles, to deliver to Edom>

7 Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Gaza,—

* Which shall devour the palaces thereof;

And I will cut off the inhabitant* out of Ashdod, And the holder of the sceptre' out of Ashkelon,— And will turn my hand against Ekron, So shall perish' the remnant of the Philistines,

Saith My Lord, Yahweh.|b

9 ||Thus| saith Yahweh,

<Because of three transgressions of Tyre, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—

<Because of their delivering up the whole body of exiles to Edom, And they remembered not the brotherly covenant> Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Tyre,—

Which shall devour the palaces thereof.

11 ||Thus| saith Yahweh,

<Because of three transgressions of Edom, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—

<Because he pursued, with the sword, his brother, And stifled his compassions, And his anger' tare in pieces evermore, And <his indignation> kept watch perpetually> Therefore will I send a fire into Teman,—

Which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.

13 ||Thus| saith Yahweh,

<Because of three transgressions of the sons of Ammon, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—

<Because of their ripping up the pregnant women of Gilead, that they might enlarge their own boundary>

4 Or: “the Idol” = Bealbee (Melopolis in Syria)—

7 8 Or: “him that is seated” = “that is reigning.” Cp. O. O. 442, And so in ver. 5.

8 Or, “And his anger continued evermore.” Cp. Jer. iii. 5—8 n.

b Or transfer both names: “Adonay Yahweh.”

Or: “shepherds.”

4 Or: “gl. kng.”

b Cp. ver. 8, n.
14 Therefore will I kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabbah,
Which shall devour the palaces thereof,—
With a war-cry in the day of battle,
With tempest in the day of storm-wind;
And Milcom shall go into exile,—
He and his rulers together.
Saith Yahweh.

2 1 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Moab, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
<Because he burned the bones of the King of Edom to line>
Therefore will I send a fire into Moab,
Which shall devour the palaces of Kerioth,—
And Moab shall die with tumult, with war-cry, with the sound of a horn;
And I will cut off the judge out of her midst,
And <all her rulers> will I slay with him.
Saith Yahweh.

4 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Judah, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
<Because they have rejected the law of Yahweh,
And <his statutes> have not kept,
But their falsehoods> have led them astray;
after the which their fathers> (did walk>)
Therefore will I send a fire upon Judah,—
Which shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

6 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh,
<Because of three transgressions of Israel, and because of four> will I not turn it back,—
<Because they have sold—for silver—the righteous,
And the needy—for a pair of shoes:
Who strive to bring> the dust of the earth on the head of the poor,
And <the way of the oppressed> they pervert,—
Yea [a man and his own father] go in unto the maid,
To profane my holy’ Name!
And <on pledged garments> they recline, beside every altar,—
And <extracted wine> do they drink, in the house of their God.
Yet it was ||I|| who destroyed the Amorite,
from before them.||
Whose height was ||like the height of cedars||,
And ||strong was he', like the oaks,—
But I destroyed his fruit above,
And his roots beneath.

10 And it was ||I|| who brought you up out of the land of Egypt,—
And led you in the desert, forty years,
To take possession of the land of the Amorites;
And I raised up, of your sons, for prophets,
And, of your young men, for Nazrites,—
Was it not even 'so ye sons of Israel?
Demandeth Yahweh;
And yet ye caused the Nazrites' to drink wine,—
And <on the prophets> laid ye command, saying,
Ye shall not prophesy!

12 Lo! ||I|| am pressed under you,—
As a full cart is pressed by its sheaves>.
Therefore shall flight ||perish> from the swift',
And ||the mighty> shall not invigorate his strength,—
Nor shall ||the hero> escape with his life; *
Nor ||he that handleth the bow> make a stand,
And ||the swift on his feet> shall not escape,—
Nor ||the that rideth on a horse> escape with his life; *
Nor ||the that causeth to ride> upon the wild ass>
<be that is stout in his heart, among heroes> <naked> shall flee, in that day,
Declareth Yahweh.

§ 2. A First Solemn Summons to the Whole Family of Israel.

1 Hear ye this word, which Yahweh hath spoken 3 concerning you, ye sons of Israel,—Concerning the whole family which I brought up out of the land of Egypt, saying:—
3 ||Only you> have I acknowledged, of all the families of the ground,*—
<For this cause> will I visit upon you all your iniquities.
Can two walk together,—
Except they meet?
4 Will a lion roar in the forest,
When <pray> he hath none?
Will a young lion utter his voice out of his den,
When he hath made no capture?
5 Will a bird fall upon a net to the earth,
When there is no ||snare|| for it?
Will a net rise from the ground,
When it hath ||captured nothing||?
6 Or a horn be blown in a city,
And ||a people> not tremble'?
Or calamity happen in a city,
And ||Yahweh> not have wrought with effect,*
Surely My Lord Yahweh ||will do> nothing',— except he have disclosed his secret unto his servants, the prophets!

Sworn' hath My Lord, Yahweh, a
By his own holiness,
That lo! [days] are coming upon you,—
When he will take you away with hooks,
And your fellows' with fishhooks;
And <through fissures> shall ye go out,
[Every woman] straight before her,—
And ye shall be thrust forth towards the castle.b
Declareth Yahweh.

Enter ye Bethel, and transgress,
At Gilgal > cause transgression to abound,—
Yea, carry in, every morning, your sacrifices,
<Every three days> your tithes;
Yea, burn thou incense, of that which is leavened, as a thank-offering,
And proclaim ye freewill-offerings, let them be known,—
For [so] ye love [to have it], ye sons of Israel, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.a

Moreover also, I have given you
Cleanness of teeth' throughout all your cities,
And want of bread' throughout all your dwelling-places,—
Yet have ye not returned unto me,
Declareth Yahweh.

Moreover also, I have withholden from you the abundant rain, when yet there were only three months to the harvest,
Or I might rain upon one' city,
And <on another' city> might not rain,—
One portion would be rained upon,
And [the portion whereupon it] should not rain would be dried up;
Then would two or three cities totter' to one city to drink water, without being satisfied,—
Yet have ye not returned unto me,
Declareth Yahweh.

I have smitten you with blight and with mildew,
<When your gardens and your vineyards and your fig-trees and your olive-trees have increased> the creeping locust would devour them,—
Yet have ye not returned unto me,
Declareth Yahweh.

I have sent among you pestilence, in the manner of Egypt,
I have slain, with the sword, your young men,
And therewith have been taken captive your horses,
And I have caused to ascend— the stench of your camps, even into your own nostrils,
Yet ye have not returned unto me,
Declareth Yahweh.
I have made an overthrow among you,
Like the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah,
And ye have become like a brand snatched out of the burning;—
Yet have ye not returned unto me,
Declareth Yahweh.

Therefore| thus will I do unto thee, O Israel,—
Because this’ thing I will do unto thee>
Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel.

For lo!
He that fashioned the mountains,
And created the wind,
And who telleth the son of earth what is his thought,
Who turneth dawn into darkness,
And marcheth upon the high places of the earth>

Yahweh, God of hosts is his name!

A third Summons, commencing with a Dirge, and widening out into an Exhortation: "Seek Me"—"Seek Yahweh"—"Seek Right."

Hear ye this word, which I am taking up* concerning you—
Even a dirge, O house of Israel.

She hath fallen—she cannot* again’ rise,
The virgin, Israel,—
She lieth forsaken on her soil,
There is none4 to raise her up.

For thus5 saith My Lord, Yahweh,*
The city that goeth out a thousand strong
Shall have left it a hundred,—
And that which goeth out a hundred strong Shall have left it ten, Belonging to the house of Israel.

For thus saith Yahweh, to the house of Israel,—
Seek me, and live;

Then do not seek Bethel,
And <Gilgal> shall ye not enter,
And <unto Beer-sheba> shall ye not cross over,
For <Gilgal> shall surely go into exile,
And <Bethel> shall become a trouble.

Seek ye Yahweh, and live,—
Lest he break forth, like a fire, upon the house of Joseph,
And it devour with none’ to quench it for,
Bethel.

Ye who turn <into wormwood> justice,
And <righteousness—to the ground have let fall>
§ 5. A Lament for such as long for Yahweh’s Day, when it can bring them no good.

18 Alas for them who are longing for the day of Yahweh,—
   What good to you is the day of Yahweh?
   [It] being darkness and not light:

19 As if a man should flee from the face of a Lion, And there should meet him—a Bear! Or he should have entered the house, and leaned his hand upon the wall, And there should bite him—a Serpent!

20 Shall not the day of Yahweh be [darkness] and not light? Yes, thick darkness, and no brightness in it?

§ 6. Divine Abhorrence of Israel’s Festivals.

21 I hate, I despise your festivals,— And can savor no fragrance in your solemn feasts.

22 Nay <though ye cause to ascend unto me ascending sacrifices, and your meal-offerings>
   I will not accept them,— Nor <the peace-offering of your fat heifers> will I regard.

23 Take thou away from me, the noise of thy songs,— <Even the melody of thy harps> will I not hear.

24 But let [justice] roll along like water,— And [righteousness] as a torrent ever flowing.

25 <The sacrifices and meal-offering> ye brought near unto me, in the desert, for forty years, O house of Israel;¹

26 But ye carried the tent of your king-idol,* and your Saturn-images,—the star of your gods, which ye made for yourselves:

27 Therefore will I carry you into exile beyond Damascus,— Saith Yahweh, ||God of hosts|| is his name.

6 1 Alas for the careless in Zion,
   And for them who put confidence in the mountain of Samaria,— The distinguished among the first group of nations,
   To whom came in the house of Israel.

2 Pass ye over to Calneh, and see,
   And go on from thence to Hamath the great,—

And go down to Gath of the Philistines, Are they better than these kingdoms? Or their boundary larger than your boundary?

3 Ye who are putting far away the day of calamity,— But bringing near the abode of violence:

4 Who are lying on beds of ivory, And sprawling on their couch of pleasure,— And eating the well-fed of the flock, And the fatted calves out of the midst of the stalls:

5 Who are bawling at the bidding of the harp,⁴
   <Like David> have they invented for themselves instruments of song;:

6 Who are quaffing bowls of wine, And <with the best of oils> anointing themselves,— And are not afflicted for the injury of Joseph;—

7 |Therefore| <at once> shall they go into exile among the first of the exiles,— So shall be disturbed the revelry of sprawlers.

8 Sworn hath the Lord, Yahweh,⁴ by his own life,⁴ Declareth Yahweh, God of hosts,⁴ |Abhorring am I| the grandeur of Jacob, And <his palaces> I hate,— Therefore will I cast off the city and the fulness thereof.

9 And it shall come to pass,
   <Though there be left remaining ten men in one house> Yet shall they die;

10 And a man’s near of kin, even he who is about to burn the bones, shall carry him out of the house,
   <When he shall say to him that is in the hinder parts of the house— Are there yet any with thee>? And he shall say— No one > Then shall he say—
   Hush! for we must not invoke the name of Yahweh.

11 For lo! ||Yahweh|| is giving command, and will smite The great house into ruins,— And the little house with clefts.

§ 8. Amos, moved by Two Visions, twice makes successful Intercession for Jacob: a Third Vision—No more Forgiveness!

7 ¶ Here, My Lord, Yahweh, 1 gave me to see,
And lo! he was preparing the locust, in the beginning of the shooting up of the after-grass,—and lo! [after-grass] cometh after the mowing for the king. 2 And it came to pass <when they had made an end of eating the herbage of the land> that I said—
Oh, My Lord, Yahweh, forgive, I beseech thee:
By whom shall Jacob arise? 4 For [small] he is.'
3 Grieved was Yahweh, over this,—
It shall not be,
Said Yahweh.*

4 ¶ Here, My Lord, Yahweh, 1 gave me to see,
And lo! My Lord Yahweh, proclaiming that [the controversy should be settled by fire,—which had devoured the mighty roaring deep] should devour the inheritance. 5 Then said I,
My Lord, Yahweh, forbear, I beseech thee,
By whom shall Jacob arise? 4 For [small] he is.'
6 Grieved was Yahweh, over this,—
[Even this] shall not be,
Said My Lord, Yahweh.

7 ¶ Here he gave me to see, And lo! My Lord stationed upon a pinnacle, 6—and, in his hand, a plummet. 8 And Yahweh said unto me,
What canst thou see, Amos?
And I said,
A plummet,—
Then said My Lord,
Behold me! fixing a plummet in the midst of my people Israel,
I will not again any more forgive him.

9 So shall the high places of Isaac [be made desolate],
And the holy places of Israel shall be laid waste,—
And I will rise up, against the house of Jeroboam, with the sword.

§ 9. Amaziah, Priest of Bethel, attempts to silence Amos: who defends himself by relating his call to the Prophetic Office, and proceeds to censure Amaziah definite alarming Predictions.

10 Then sent Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, unto Jeroboam king of Israel, saying:
A conspiracy' hath Amos [raised against thee,] in the midst of the house of Israel.
The land [is not able to endure] all his words;
For [thus] saith Amos,
<By the sword> shall Jeroboam [die],—
And [Israel] shall surely be exiled] from off his own soil.

12 Then said Amaziah unto Amos,
O seer, go flee thee away unto the land of Judah,—
And eat, there, bread, and there eat, and prophesy;
But <at Bethel> [not again, any more] mayest thou prophesy,—
For <the holy place of the king> it is',
And <the house of the kingdom> it is'.

14 Then answered Amos, and said unto Amaziah,
[No prophet] was I,—
[Nor the son of a prophet] was I,—
But [a herdsman] was I;
And a preparer of sycamore fruit; 6
But Yahweh [took me away] from following the flock,—and Yahweh [said unto me], Go prophesy against my people Israel.

15 ¶ Now therefore, hear thou the word of Yahweh,—Thou'art saying,
Thou must not prophesy concerning Israel,
Nor let thy word drop down upon the house of Isaac.

17 Therefore—
¶ Thus saith Yahweh,—
Thy wife, <in the city> will commit unchastity,
And thy sons and thy daughters<by the sword> shall fall,
And thine own soil <by line> shall be apportioned,—
And thou: <on a polluted soil> shalt die,
And [Israel] shall surely go into exile: away from his own soil.

§10. A Basket of Summer Fruit (καῖς) symbolises Israel's End (καῖς). Gross Sin call forth Threats of Divers Calamities, including a Famine of the Prophetic Word.

8 1 "Here" My Lord, Yahweh, gave me to see,—and lo! there was a basket of summer fruit. 2 So then he said,

What canst thou see, Amos?

And I said,

A basket of summer fruit.* Then said Yahweh unto me,

The end hath come unto my people Israel,

I will not again any more forgive them; but palacesongs shall become howlings:* in that day,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,*

Many shall be the dead bodies in every place—cast forth—[with a] Hush!

Hear this,

Yea who pant after the needy,

And to make an end of the oppressed of the land:

Who say,

When will the new moon pass away, that we may sell corn?

And the sabbath that we may open grain?

Who diminish the ephah and increase the shekel, and who falsify by deceitful weights:

Who buy—for silver—the poor,

And the needy* for a pair of shoes,—

And that the refuse of the grain we may sell.

Sworn hath Yahweh,

By the Excellency of Jacob,—

Surely I will never forget any of their doings!

Is it not <for this> that the land shall tremble?

And shall mourn every inhabitant therein?

Shall it not come up—like the Nile, all of it,

And be tossed and subside, like the river of Egypt?

Yea it shall come to pass, in that day,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,*

That I will cause the sun to go in at high noon,—

And will darken the earth on a day of brightness.

So will I turn your festivals into mourning,

And all your songs into a dirge,

And I will bring up—on all loins—sackcloth,

And upon every head—baldness,—

And I will make it the mourning for an only one. [Even the afterpart thereof as a day of bitterness.

11 Lo! days* are coming,

Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,*

That I will send a hunger throughout the land,—

Not a hunger for food,

Nor a thirst for water,

But for hearing the words*b of Yahweh;

Therefore shall men rove about—

From Sea to Sea, and

From the North even unto Sunrise,—

They shall run to and fro—seeking the word of Yahweh, but shall not find [it].

In that day shall the fair virgins and the choice young men faint for thirst. 13

They who swear by the Guilt of Samaria,

And say, As thy God liveth, O Dan! And, As the Way of Beer-sheba liveth, Shall fall, and shall not rise any more.

§11. Offenders cannot escape; yet, though both the Sinful Kingdom and Boastful Individuals be destroyed, the House of Jacob shall not utterly perish.

I saw My Lord stationed by the altar, and he said—

Smite the capital—that the sills may tremble.

Yea break them off on the head of them all,

And the last of them<c <with the sword> will I slay,—

He that fleeth of them shall not flee away,

And he that escapeth of them shall not make good his escape.

<Though they break through into hades> 2

From thence shall my hand fetch them,—

And <though they ascend the heavens> From thence will I bring them down;

And <though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel> From thence will I search for them and take them,—

And <though they conceal themselves from before mine eyes at the bottom of the sea> From thence will I will search for them and take them,—

And <though they go into captivity before their enemies> From thence will I command the sword, and it shall slay them,—

So will I set mine eyes upon them for calamity, and not for blessing.

Now [My Lord, Yahweh of hosts] is he—Who toucheth the earth, and it melteth, And all that dwell therein [mourn]; And it cometh up like the Nile, all of it, And subsideth like the river of Egypt:

So shall they kindle upon them, and devour them,—
And there shall be no survivor to the house of Esau,
For [Yahweh] hath spoken.

19 Then shall they of the South possess Mount Esau,
And they of the Lowlands, the Philistines,
And they of the Mountain shall possess the field of Ephraim, and the field of Samaria,—
And Benjamin shall possess Gilead;

20 And <the captivity of this force pertaining to the sons of Israel> shall possess that of the Canaanites, up to Zarephath,
And <the captivity of Jerusalem who are in Sepharad> shall possess the cities of the South.

JONAH.

§ 1. Jonah, commissioned to proclaim against Nineveh for her Wickedness, flees from Duty by taking Ship for Tarshish. A Storm overtaking the Vessel, the Sailors reluctantly cast the Prophet into the Sea, when a great Fish swallows him; he prays as out of the Belly of Hades, and is vomited upon Dry Land.

1 And the word of Yahweh came unto Jonah son of Amittai, saying:

2 Arise, get thee to Nineveh the great city, and proclaim unto it,—That their wickedness hath come up before me.

3 But Jonah arose to flee unto Tarshish, away from the presence of Yahweh,—and went down to Joppa, and found a ship going to Tarshish, so he paid the fare thereof and went down into it, to go with them to Tarshish, away from the presence of Yahweh.

4 But Yahweh hurled a great wind against the sea, and there arose a mighty tempest in the sea,—and the ship was broken into pieces. Then were the mariners afraid, and made outcry every man unto his own god, and they huddled the wares which were in the ship, into the sea, to lighten of them,—but Jonah had gone down into the hinder parts of the vessel, and had lain down, and fallen into a sound sleep. Then drew near unto him the shipmaster, and said to him, What meanest thou? O sound sleeper? Arise, cry unto thy God, Peradventure God will bethink himself of us, that we perish not.

5 And they said—every one unto his fellow. Come, and let us cast lots, that we may get to know for whose sake this calamity is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

6 Then said they unto him, Tell us, we pray thee, for whose sake this calamity is upon us? What is thy business, and from whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?

7 And he said unto them,

8 And he said unto them,

9 Then did the men revere with great reverence, and said unto him, What is it thou hast done?

For the men knew that <away from the presence of Yahweh> he was fleeing,—for he had told them. Then said they unto him,

What shall we do to thee, that the sea may cease raging over us?

For the sea was raging more and more. And he said unto them,

Take me up, and hurl me into the sea, that the sea may cease raging over you,—for I do know that <for my sake> is this great tempest upon you.

Nevertheless the men [wrought hard to bring it back unto the land, but could not,—for the sea] was raging over them more and more. Then cried they unto Yahweh, and said,

Ah now, Yahweh, pray let it not be that we perish for this man's life,—neither lay upon us innocent blood,—for thou, O Yahweh,

As thou hast pleased, hast ever done.

So they took up Jonah and hurled him into the sea,—and the sea [left off] her roaring. Then did the men revere Yahweh with a great reverence,—and offered sacrifice to Yahweh, and vowed vows.

Now Yahweh had appointed a great fish, to swallow up Jonah,—and Jonah was in the belly of the fish, three days and three nights. Then prayed Jonah, unto Yahweh, his God,—out of the belly of the fish; and said—

I cried,—out of my distress, unto Yahweh,

And he answered me,—

Out of the belly of Hades, called I,

Thou didst hear my voice.

3 For thou hast cast me into the deep,

Into the heart of the seas,

And a flood enveloped me,—

All thy breakers and thy rolling waves overlapped me.

4 And I said,

I am driven out from before thine eyes,—

Yet will I again have regard unto thy holy temple:

The waters encompassed me, to the peril of my life.

The roaring deep enveloped me,—

The sea-weed was wrapped about my head.

G.A.S.: "'up to the soul.'"
<To the roots of the mountains> went I down,
<As for the earth> [her bars] were about me, age-abidingly,—
Then didst thou bring up—out of the pit—my life, O Yahweh my God.

<When my soul|darkened itself over me|>
<Yahweh> I remembered,—
And my prayer|came in
Unto thee,
Unto thy holy temple.

||They who take heed to the vanities of falsehood| do <their own lovingkindness>| forsake.

But ||<with the voice|of praise> will sacrifice unto thee,
<What I have vowed> I will pay,—
||Salvation|belongeth to Yahweh!

So then Yahweh spake unto the fish,—and it vomited out Jonah, upon the dry land.

§ 2. Again commissioned, Jonah this time obeys, and proclaims to Nineveh her impending Destruction; wherein People and Monarch humble themselves for their Sins and cry unto God for Mercy—which is granted, and Nineveh is spared.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jonah, the second time, saying:

Arise, get thee unto Nineveh, the great city,—and cry against it the cry that I am bidding thee.

So Jonah arose, and went his way unto Nineveh, according to the word of Yahweh,—

Nineveh| being a city great before God, of three days' journey.

So Jonah began to enter into the city, one day's journey,—and he cried out and said—

Yet forty days| and Nineveh is to be overthrown!

And the people of Nineveh believed in God,—and proclaimed a fast, and clothed themselves in sackcloth, from the greatest of them, even unto the least of them.

And the word reached unto the king of Nineveh, so he arose from his throne, and laid aside his robe from off him,—and covered him with sackcloth, and sat on ashes.

And he caused an outcry to be made—and said—thoroughly Nineveh,

<By decree of the king and of his great men>

Be it known:—

<Man and beast, herd and flock>.

Let them taste [nothing],

Let them not feed,

And <water> let them not drink:

Let both man and beast [cover themselves with sackcloth],

And let them cry unto God, mightily,—

Yes let them turn, every man from his wicked way, and from the violence which is in their lands:

Who knoweth whether God himself—may turn and grieve,—

and turn away from the glow of his anger.

That we perish not?

And God saw their doings, that they turned from their wicked way,—and God was grieved over the calamity which he had spoken of executing upon them, and executed it not.

§ 3. Jonah, charting at the Divine Clemency, which he protests he had expected, asks to die; but, instead of obtaining his Request, by the help of a Gourd, is taught a useful Lesson.

And it was vexing unto Jonah, with a great vexation,—and it angered him.

So he prayed unto Yahweh, and said,—

Ah now! Yahweh!

Was not this my word, while I was yet upon mine own soil?

||For this cause| I did hasten to flee unto Tarshish,—

Because I knew that thou|art a God of favour and compassion, slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness,| and art grieved over calamity.

||Now| therefore, O Yahweh, take, I pray thee, my life|from me,—for it were better for me [to die], than [to live].

Then said Yahweh,

Art thou rightly' angry?

But Jonah|went forth| out of the city, and abode on the east side of the city; and made for himself there, a hut, and sat under it, in the shade, until he should see what would become of the city.

Now Yahweh God appointed a gourd,* and caused it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shade over his head, to deliver him from its vexation,—and Jonah rejoiced over the gourd, with great rejoicing.

But God appointed a worm, at the uprisings of the dawn; the next day,—and it smote the gourd, that it withered.

And it came to pass <at the breaking forth of the sun> that God appointed a sultry east wind, and the sun smote upon the head of Jonah, that he became faint,—and asked his life, that he might die, and said,

It were better for me [to die], than [to live].

Then said God unto Jonah,

Art thou rightly' angry, over the gourd?

MICAH I. 11—16; II. 1—13; III. 1, 2.

11 Pass thou over (for you), thou inhabitress of Shaphir, of disgraceful disclosure, The inhabitress of Zaanan [hath not gone forth], At the lamentation of Beth-ezel shall he take from you his station,

12 <Though the inhabitress of Maroth [waited for blessing]>,—
Yet there came down calamity from Yahweh, to the gate of Jerusalem.

13 Bind the chariot to the steed, O inhabitress of Lachish,—
<The beginning of sin> was she to the daughter of Zion, For in thee have been found the transgressions of Israel.

14 |Therefore| shalt thou give a dismissal, against Moresheth-gath,—
||The houses of Achish| served for a deception| to the kings of Israel.

15 The time shall yet be when <the heir> I will bring unto thee, O inhabitress of Mareshah,—
<As far as Adullam> shall enter the glory of Israel.

16 Make thee bald, and cut off thy hair, For the children of thy pleasures,— Enlarge thy baldness, like a vulture,— For they are exiled from thee.

2 1 Alas for them who devise iniquity' and work wickedness' upon their beds,—
<In the light of the morning> they will execute it, for it is' in the power of their hand.

2 Thus do they covet fields' and seize them, And houses' and take them away,— And so they oppress the master and his household, the man' and his inheritance.

3 |Therefore|—
||Thus| saith Yahweh, Behold me! devising, against this family, a calamity,—
From which ye shall not remove your neck, Neither shall ye walk lofty,
For  shall it be.

4 <In that day> shall one Take up against you a by-word, And lament a lamentable lamentation, Saying—
We are made utterly desolate, [our fields'] doth be apportioned.

5 |Therefore| shall thou have none to throw a measuring-line by lot,—in the convocation of Yahweh.

6 Do not sputter—
So they sputter! They must not sputter as to these things, b
Must he not put away reproaches?

7 O thou who art said to be the house of Jacob, Is the spirit of Yahweh impatient'? Or are these his doings? Are not his words pleasant to him who is upright in his walk?

8 But <against my people> as an enemy he setteth himself, From off the robe they tear away the cloak,— From such as are passing by with confidence, as men averse from war.

9 <The wives of my people> ye do even drive out, each from the house of her darlings,— From over her children ye do take away mine ornament, as long as life shall last. c

10 Arise ye and depart, for ||this|| is not the place of rest,— Because it is desolated with a desolation that is ruthless.

11 If there be a man Who goeth after wind, And falsehood hath woven, [saying]— I will discourse to thee, concerning wine and strong drink>
Then shall he become a fountain of discourse unto this people.

12 I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee, I will surely gather! the remnant of Israel, At once] will I make them like sheep in distress,— Like a flock in the midst of its pasture shall they hum with men,

13 One making a breach hath gone up before them, They have broken in, and passed through, And <by the gate> have departed,— And their king hath passed through before them, with ||Yahweh|| at their head! 3

1 Then said I, Hear, I pray you, ye heads of Jacob, And ye judges of the house of Israel,— Is it not yours to know justice?

And their skin from off them> have stript,
And <their bones> have they broken in pieces,
And will spread them out, as flesh* with a fork,
And as flesh, in the midst of a pot.

¶ Then shall they make outcry unto Yahweh,
But he will not answer them,—
That he may hide his face from them, at that time,
Even as they have made wicked their doings.

¶ Thus saith Yahweh,
Concerning the prophets who are leading astray my people,—
Who bite with their teeth, and then cry—Prosper!
<And whoso holdeth not to their mouth> they hallow against him a war!

¶ Therefore shall it be
Night to you, for lack of vision,
And darkness to you, for lack of divination,—
And the sun shall go in over the prophets,
And the day shall be overcast because of them;—
And the men of vision shall turn pale,
And the diviners shall blush,
And shall put a covering upon their lip, all of them,—
Because there is no answer of God.

But [in very deed] [I] am full of vigour,
With the spirit of Yahweh,
And of justice and of valour,—
To declare to Jacob, his transgression, and to Israel, his sin.

¶ Hear this, I pray you,
Ye heads of the house of Jacob, and Ye judges of the house of Israel,—
Who abhor justice,
And <all right> do pervert:—
Building Zion, with deeds of blood,—
And Jerusalem, with perversity.

¶ Her heads <for a bribe> pronounce sentence,
And <her priests> <for a price> give direction,
And <her prophets> <for silver> divine,—
Yet <on Yahweh> they lean, saying,
Is not Yahweh in our midst?
There shall not come upon us calamity.

¶ Wherefore, <for your sake>
[¶ Zion] as a field shall be ploughed,
And Jerusalem] unto heaps of ruins shall be turned,—
And [¶ the mountain of the house] shall [be] like mounds in a jungle.

3. In strong Contrast with Jerusalem's Punishment just described is set forth her ultimate and abiding Royal Destiny.

But it shall come to pass [in the afterpart* of 4 the days]
That the mountain of the house of Yahweh
Shall be [setup] as the head of the mountains,
And <exalted> shall it be, above the hills,—
And peoples shall stream thereunto;—

Yea many nations shall go, and say—
Come ye, and let us ascend
Unto the mountain of Yahweh, and
Unto the house of the God of Jacob,
That he may teach us of his ways.
And we may walk in his paths,—
For <out of Zion> shall go forth a law,
And the word of Yahweh] out of Jerusalem;
And he will judge between many peoples,
And be umpire to strong nations far and wide,—
And they will beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks,
[Nation]—against nation—shall not lift up sword.
Neither shall they learn—any more—to make war.

And they shall dwell—every man—
Under his own vine and
Under his own fig-tree,—
With none to make them afraid,—
For the mouth of Yahweh of hosts] hath spoken.

For shall the peoples walk, every man in the name of his god,—
¶ We therefore, will walk in the name of Yahweh our God, to times age-abiding and beyond.

¶ In that day> Declareth Yahweh,
¶ Will I take up her that is lame,
And <her that hath been an outcast> will I carry,—
Even whomsoever I have afflicted;

¶ And will make of her that was lame a residue,
And of her that was removed far away a strong nation,—
And Yahweh] shall be king] over them, in
Mount Zion,
From henceforth, even unto times age-abiding.

¶ Therefore,
O Migdal-eder*
Mound of the daughter of Zion,
¶ As far as shec> shall it come,—
So shall arrive the chief dominion,
The kingdom of the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Meanwhile, wherefore shouldst thou cry out aloud?
   Where is the king thereof? in what city is he found?
   Or hath any of his counsel shewn it to thee?
   For labour [he hath seized thee], as a woman in child-birth:—

10 Be in labour, and bear, O daughter of Zion, as a woman in child-birth,—
   For [meanwhile] shalt thou go forth out of the city,
   And dwell in the field;
   And shalt come as far as Babylon.
   There shalt thou be delivered,
   There will Yahweh [redeem thee] out of the grasp of thine enemies.

11 Meanwhile therefore, shall be gathered against thee many nations,—Who are saying—
   Let her be defiled,
   And let our eyes gaze upon Zion.

12 But [they] know not the purposing of Yahweh,
   Neither have they discerned his counsel,—
   For he hath gathered them, as sheaves, to a threshing-floor.

13 Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion,
   For [thy horn] will I make to be iron,
   And [thy hoofs] will I make to be bronze,
   So shalt thou beat in pieces many peoples,—
   And shalt devote to Yahweh their unrighteous gain,
   And their substance, to the Lord of all the earth.

§ 5. When Israel shall have received her Messiah, and been herself, as a Nation, restored, she will find no difficulty in dealing with Assyria: the Remnant of Jacob among the Nations being, then, like nourishing Dove or like a destroying Lion.

<As for Assyria—
   When he shall enter our land, and
   When he shall tread down in our palaces>

Then will we raise up against him,
   Seven shepherds, and
   Eight princes of mankind.

Then shall they shepherd the land of Assyria with the sword,
   And the land of Nimrod in the entrances thereof,—
   So shall he deliver from Assyria,
   When he shall enter our land, and
   When he shall tread down within our bounds.

And [the remnant of Jacob] shall be [in the midst of many peoples],
   As dew from Yahweh,
   As [myriad drops on plants],—
   Which tarrieth not for man,
   Nor waiteth for the sons of Adam.

And [the remnant of Jacob] shall be [among the nations],
   In the midst of many peoples,
   As a lion among the beasts of the jungle,
   As [a young lion among flocks of sheep],—
   Who <if he passeth by> Both treadeth down, And teareth in pieces, And none can deliver.

Let thy hand be uplifted against thine adversaries,—
   And [all thine enemies] shall be cut off.

§ 6. But Israel must herself be delivered from her old Sina and from all forbidden Grounds of Trust.

10 And it shall come to pass <in that day> Declareth Yahweh,
That I will cut off thy horses out of thy midst,—
And will destroy thy chariots;
11 And will cut off the cities of thy land,—
And will pull down all thy fortresses;
12 And will cut off incantations, out of thy hand,—
And <users of hidden arts> shalt thou not have;
13 And I will cut off thine images and thy pillars, out of thy midst,—
And thou shalt not bow thyself down, any more, to the work of thine own hands;
14 And I will uproot thy Sacred Stems out of thy midst,—
And will destroy thy cities:—
15 Then will I execute,
With anger and with indignation,
Vengeance upon the nations,—
Of which they have not heard.

§ 7. A Renewal of the Controversy (§ 2) between Yahweh and his People.

6 Hear, I pray you, what ||Yahweh|| is saying,— Arise thou, maintain thy controversy before the mountains,
And let the hills hear thy voice:—
2 Hear, ye mountains, the controversy of Yahweh,
And ye lasting rocks, the foundations of the earth, —
For  hath Yahweh, with his people,
And <with Israel> will be dispute, —
O my people! what have I done to thee?
And wherein have I wearied thee?
Testify thou against me! —
4 For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt,
And <out of the house of slaves> I ransomed thee,—
And I sent before thee, Moses, Aaron and Miriam.
5 O my people! remember, I pray you,
What Balak king of Moab [counselled], and
What Balaam son of Beor [answered him], —
From the Acacias as far as Gilgal,
That ye may know the righteousness of Yahweh.

8. The Prophet, speaking for Repentant Jerusalem, deplores his present Condition, but determines to wait and hope; being assured of Ultimate Vindication and Triumph.

1 Alas for me! for I am become
As gatherings of summer fruit,
As gleaning-grapes in harvest,
There is no cluster to eat,
<The first ripe fruit> my soul* craved.

2 Perished is the man of loving-kindness out of the earth,
And <upright among men> is there none,—
<They all> for bloodshed> lie in wait.
<Every man> for his brother> do they hunt
as for one devoted to destruction.

3 <Of wickedness' with both hands' to make sure>b
|| The ruler: doth make demand—
The judge—for a recompense, —

4 <The best of them> is as a sharp briar,

The daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law,—
<The foes of a man> are the men of his own house.

7 But || <for Yahweh> will watch,
I will wait' for the God of my salvation,—
My God! will bear me.

9 Do not rejoice, O mine enemy, against me,
<Though I fall> I shall rise again!

For

N A H U M.

§ 1. Out of the full-orbed perfection of Yahweh comes, the Two-fold Manifestation, designed to alarm his Foes and assure his Friends. From Nineveh proceedeth a Wicked Schemer against Yahweh.

1 The oracle, on Nineveh,— the scroll of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite.

2 <A God jealous and avenging> is Yahweh, <An avenger> is Yahweh, and a lord of wrath,<An avenger is Yahweh> towards his adversaries, And  is he to his foes.

3 || Yahweh || is slow to anger, but great in vigour. He will not leave unpunished,

|| As for Yahweh || <in storm-wind and in tempest> is his way, And || clouds || are the dust of his feet. Who rebuketh the sea, and hath made it dry, And <all the streams> hath he dried up,— Withered* are Bashan and Carmel, || Even the bloom of Lebanon || is withered:

5 || Mountains || have trembled because of him, And || the hills || have melted,— And the earth [hath lifted itself up] at his presence, || The world also, and all who dwell therein. ||

6 <Before his indignation> who shall stand? And who shall abide the glow of his anger? || His wrath || hath been poured forth like fire, And || the rocks || have been broken down because of him.

7 Good* is Yahweh, as a protection* in the day of distress,— And one who acknowledgeth them who seek refuge in him.

8 But <with an overflow rolling on>  will he make of them who rise up against him,* And <his foes> will he pursue into darkness.*

9 What can ye devise* against Yahweh?

<A full end> is he* making,— Distress* shall not rise up twice!*<Though they were like thorns intert Wined— And as drunkards drenched with their drink> Yet have they been devoured, like stubble fully dry.

11 <Out of thee> hath one come forth— Plotting against Yahweh, wickedness,— A counsellor of the Abandoned One.*

§ 2. Yahweh quiets the Fears of his People; threatens the City of Idols; and sends Good News to Judah.

12 || Thus* saith Yahweh, ||<Though they be in full force, And so* in great numbers> Yet || even so || have they been cut off, and have passed away,— <If I humble thee [once]> I will not humble thee again'.

13 || Now: therefore, will I break his yoke* from off thee,— And || thy fetters || will I tear off.

14 Then will Yahweh give command concerning thee, None of thy name shall be sown any more,— <Out of the house of thy gods> will I cut off carved* image and molten* image. I will appoint* thy grave, For thou art of little esteem.

15 Lo! <upon the mountains> The feet of one, who bringeth Good Tidings! who publisheth Prosperity! Celebrate, O Judah, thy pilgrim festivals, Fulfil thy vows,— For <not again, any more> shall the Abandoned One [pass through thee], He hath been wholly* cut off.

§ 3. The Siege of Nineveh vividly described.

2 He that breaketh in pieces hath come up over thy face.
Keep the keels,—
Watch the way,
Brace the loins,
Make vigour very firm.

2 For Yahweh hath restored the excellency of Jacob, like the excellency of Israel,—
For the plunderers have plundered them, and < their vine branches > have they marred.

3 ||The shield of his heroes| is made red,
||The men of war| are clad in crimson,
<On fire > are the chariot-stools, on the day he maketh ready,—
And ||the lances| are put in motion.

4 <In the streets> madly go the chariots, They rush along in the broadways,—
||Their appearance| is like torches,
<As lightnings> hither and thither do they run.

5 Let him call to mind his nobles,
They shall stumble as they go—
Let them hasten to her wall,
Yet* the storming cover | is prepared.|#

6 ||The gates of the rivers| have been opened,—
And ||the palace| doth quake.

7 And ||Huzzaah| hath been taken captive—
hath been led up,—
And ||her handmaiden|s are making a moan like the sound of doves, as they taber upon their heart.

8 Yet <as for Nineveh> ||like a reservoir of waters| are her waters,—
But ||those men| are in flight!
Stand! stand!!
But no one is turning.

How long, O Yahweh, have I called out, And thou wouldst not hear me?

Have I kept crying unto thee of violence, And thou wouldst not save?

Wherefore Shouldst thou let me see iniquity, And <wrong> shouldst let me behold, And <force and violence> be straight before me,— And there should have ever been someone who <contention and strife> would uphold?

Behold ye, among the nations, and look around,
Yes stand stock still—stare,—

Ye will believe, when it is recouunted.
For behold me! raising up the Chaldeans,
The bitter and headlong nation,—
That marcheth to the breadths of the earth,
To take possession of habitations—his.

Awful and fearful is he,—
From himself—his decision and his uprising—proceed.

Then swifter than leopards are his horses,
And more sharply they attack—than evening wolves,
And forward have leapt his chargers,—
Yes his chargers—from afar—will come in,
They will fly—"as an eagle hath hastened to devour.

Solely for violence—will he come,
The intent of their faces is—"to the east!"
And he hath gathered, as the sand, a captive host;
Over kings—will make merr,y And nobles—will be a scorn to him:
"He—"at any fortress—will laugh,
Once he hath heaped up dust—he hath captured it!

Then hath he become arrogant in spirit,
And hath committed excess,
And so is guilty,—
His violence is due to his god.

§ 3. The Prophet again appeals to Yahweh, since the Invader is Oppressive, Idolatrous, and Cruel.

Art not thou from of old, O Yahweh, my God, my Holy One!
Thou diest not!

O Yahweh, "to judgment" hast thou appointed him,
And, O Rock, "to correction" hast thou devoted him:

Thou whose eyes are too pure to look with approval on wrong.
"To respect oppression" canst not endure,—
Wherefore' Shouldst thou respect the treacherous?
Be silent, when the lawless swalloweth up—one more righteous than he?

So wouldst thou have made Men,
Like the fishes of the sea,—
Like the creeping thing that hath no ruler over it:
All of which—"with a hook" one bringeth up,
Raketh together with his drag.
And hath gathered with his net,—
On which account—"he is glad and exulteth:
On which account—"He sacrificeth to his Net,
And burneth incense to his Drag;
Because—"in a rich, is his portion,
And his food—fatness!

Shall he—"empty his net?
And—"the continual slaying of nations—deem
To be no pity?

§ 4. The Prophet awaits a further Answer, which he obtains: in which Nations enlightened with the Knowledge of Yahweh direct a Five-fold Taunt against the Cruel Invader.

Upon my watch-tower—will I stand,
And will station myself upon the bulwark,—
So will I keep outlook, to see—
What he will speak with me, and
What I shall reply, when I am reproved.

Then Yahweh answered me, and said,
Write the vision, and say,
Yes, make it plain on tablets,
That one may swiftly read it;
For yet—"the vision for an appointed time,
Still, it presseth towards an end,
And will not deceive,—
If it tarry—wait thou for it,
For it will surely come,
Will not be too late.

Lo! "as for the conceited one—crooked is his soul within him,—
But one who is righteous—"by his faithfulness shall live.

The cup of the right hand of Yahweh [shall come round unto thee],
And ignominious filth be upon thy glory;
For [the violence done] to Lebanon[b] shall cover thee,
And wasting by wild beasts shall cause them' terror,—
For shedding Human blood,
And doing violence
To the earth,*
To the city,
And to all who dwell therein.

ZEPHANIAH.

1 The word of Yahweh which came unto Zephaniah, son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, 1 son of Hezekiah, — in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah.

§ 1. A world-wide Destruction is announced, culminating on Judah and Jerusalem for their sins.

2 I will take away everything from off the face of the ground, — Declareth Yahweh.

3 I will take away man and beast, I will take away the bird of the heavens and the fishes of the sea, And the stumblingblocks, even them who are lawless, — And will cut off mankind, from off the face of the ground, — Declareth Yahweh.

4 And I will stretch out my hand— Over Judah, and Over all the inhabitants of Jerusalem,— And will cut off out of this place, — the name of Baal, The name of the priestlings, 1 with the priests;

5 And them who bow down upon the house-top, to the host of the heavens,— And them who bow down— Who swear to Yahweh, And swear by Milcom; 2 And them who turn away from following Yahweh,— And have neither sought Yahweh, nor enquired for him.

6 Hush! at the presence of My Lord, — Yahweh, — For [near] is the day of Yahweh, For Yahweh hath prepared his 3 sacrifice, — hath hallowed his guests. 1

8 And it shall come to pass <in the day of Yahweh's sacrifice> — That I will punish — The rulers, — And the sons of the king,— And all such as are clothed with foreign apparel; — And I will punish — Every one who leapeth over the threshold, 2 in that day,— Those who fill the house of their lords with violence and deceit.

10 And there shall come to be, in that day,— Declareth Yahweh, — The noise of an outcry from the fish-gate, And of a howling out of the new city, 2 And of a great crashing, from the hills.

11 Howl ye inhabitants of the lower city,— Because destroyed' are all the people of traffic, Cut off are all they who were laden with silver.

12 And it shall come to pass, at that time, — That I will search through Jerusalem, with lamps,— And will punish the men — Who are thickened upon their loins, — Who are saying in their heart, — Yahweh [will not give blessing], — Neither will he bring calamity.

13 Therefore shall — Their goods become a booty, — and Their house, a desolation, — And they shall build houses, but not inhabit them, And plant vineyards, but not drink the wine thereof.

14 Near' is the great day of Yahweh, — [Near, and very speedy], — The noise of the day of Yahweh, A strong man — there! — [bitterly crying out]! —

15 <A day of indignation> — that day! — Day of danger and distress, — Day of rush, and of crash, — Day of obscurity, and deep gloom, — Day of cloud, and thick darkness; —

16 Day of horn, and war-shout,— Against the fortified cities, and Against the high towers.

17 And I will bring distress to mankind,
And they shall walk like them who are blind,
Because [against Yahweh] have they sinned,—
And their blood [shall be poured out] as dust,
And their bowels like dung.

18 Neither their silver nor yet their gold shall be able to deliver them,
In the day of the indignation of Yahweh,
But in the fire of his jealousy shall the whole earth be consumed;
For a destruction, surely a terrible one shall he make, with all them who dwell in the earth.

§ 2. In Dirge-like Accents the Patient and Obedient Remnant of Judah are encouraged to seek Yahweh, if peradventure His Wrath may be mitigated: In the Doms of the Philistines the Intercessors find hope.

2 Collect your thoughts, aye collect them,—
O nation [depressed]!—
Ere yet the decree [have given birth],
Ere yet the decree [have vanished],—
Ere yet shall come upon you
The glow of the anger of Yahweh;
Ere yet shall come upon you
The day of the anger of Yahweh.

Seek Yahweh—
All Ye lowly of the land,
Who have wrought what he appointed,—
Seek righteousness,
Seek humility,
[Peradventure] ye shall be concealed,
In the day of the anger of Yahweh.

3 For Gaza [sionsaken] shall be,
And Ashkelon [a desolation],— Ashdod! [at high noon] shall they drive her forth,
And Ekron be uprooted:
Also for the inhabitants of the line of the sea,
The nation of Kerethim,—
The word of Yahweh is against you,
O Canaan of the land of the Philistines,
Therefore will I destroy thee, to the last inhabitant.
So shall the line of the sea become a meadow,
The wells of shepherds,
The folds of flocks;
And the line shall belong to the remnant of the house of Judah,
Thereon shall they feed their flocks,—
In the houses of Ashkelon shall they [at eventide] lie down,
For Yahweh their God will visit them,
And bring their captives back.

§ 3. A Gracious Answer: Israel's Reproach must be removed, and Gentile Worshippers be obtained.

6 I have heard the reproach of Moab,
And the revilings of the sons of Ammon,—
Who have reproached my people;
And have magnified themselves up to their bounds.

9 Wherefore [as I live]
Declareth Yahweh of hosts,
God of Israel.
Surely [Moab] shall become,
And the sons of Ammon like Gomorrah,
A possession for the thorn,—
And a pit of salt,
Yea, a desolation, unto times age-abiding:
The remnant of my people shall make of them a prey,
And the residue of my nation shall inherit them.

10 This shall they have, instead of their pride,—
Because they reproached and magnified themselves against the people of Yahweh of hosts.

11 Terrible will Yahweh be against them,
For he hath caused to waste away all the gods of the earth,—
That men may bow down to him,
Every one from his place,
All the coastlands of the nations:
Even ye, Ethiopians,
The slain of my sword were they!

§ 4. The Prayer, thus emboldened, is directed against Assyria and Nineveh: their Devastation foretold.

13 And may he stretch out his hand against the North,
And destroy Assyria,—
And may he make of Nineveh a desolation,
Dry as the desert!

14 So shall lie down in her midst—flocks,
Each living thing of a nation,
Both pelican and bittern [in her capitals]
shall roost,—
A voice shall resound in the window,
The bastard, on the sill,
For he hath destroyed,
Hath laid bare.4

15 [This] is the city exultant,
That sat secure,
That said in her heart, II [am]!—
And no one besides!
How hath she become a desolation!
A lair of beasts,
Every one passing by her doth hiss,
Shaketh his hand.

§ 5. But Jerusalem has fearfully sinned, and must be severely chastised. In the End, the Remnant is victorious; Divine Love triumphantly saves; and the Captivities are reversed before all Nations.

3 Alas for her that is rebellious, and polluted,
   The city that oppresseth!
2 She hath hearkened to no voice,
   Accepted no correction;
   In Yahweh hath not trusted,
   To her God hath not drawn near:
3 Her rulers in her midst are roaring lions,—
   Her judges evening wolves,
   They have left nothing until morning!
4 Her prophets are reckless,
   Treacherous men!:
   Her priests have profaned the holy,
   Done violence to law.:
5 Yahweh, the Righteous One is in her midst,
   He dealeth not perversely,—
   Morning by morning <his justice> bringeth
   he forth to light,
   He is not found lacking,
   But the perverse man knoweth no shame.

6 I have cut off nations,
   Deserted are their towers,
   Have made desolate their streets,
   That none passeth through;
   Ruined are their cities,
   For want of men of note,
   From lack of any dweller:
7 I said, Surely thou wilt reverence <Me>,
   Wilt accept correction,
   Let her abode should be cut off,
   Howsoever I had punished her;
   But |in truth| they soon corrupted all their deeds.
8 Wherefore wait for me,
   Urgeth Yahweh,
   Until the day when I rise up as witness,
   For <my decision> is
   To gather nations,
   To assemble kingdoms,
   To pour out on them mine indignation,
   All the glow of mine anger,
   For <in the fire of my jealousy> shall be devoured the whole earth.

9 Surely <then> will I turn unto the peoples a lip made pure,—
   That they all may call on the name of Yahweh,
   May serve him with one consent.:
10 From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia>
   [Shall come] my suppliants.:
   The daughter of my dispersed ones will
   Shall bear along a gift for me.
11 In that day Wilt thou not turn pale, for all thy deeds, wherein thou hast transgressed against me?
   For <then> will I take away out of thy midst thy proudly exulting ones,
   And thou shalt not again be haughty any more in my holy mountain:
12 So will I leave remaining in thy midst, a people oppressed and poor,—who will seek refuge in the name of Yahweh:
13 The remnant of Israel—
   Will not do perversely.
   Nor speak falsehood.
   Neither shall there be found in their mouth a tongue of deceit,— Surely they shall feed and lie down,
   With none to make them afraid.
14 Sing out, O daughter of Zion,
   Shout aloud, O Israel,—
   Rejoice and exult with all thy heart, O daughter, Jerusalem:
15 Yahweh hath set aside thy judgments,
   Hath turned back thy foes,—
   The king of Israel, Yahweh.:
   Is in thy midst, Thou shalt not fear calamity, any more.
16 In that day shall it be said—
   To Jerusalem Do not fear,—
   O Zion Let not thy hands hang down:
17 Yahweh, thy God, in the midst of thee;
   As a mighty one
   Will save,—
   Will be glad over thee with rejoicing,
   Will be silent in his love,
   Will exult over thee with shouts of triumph.
18 The sad exiles from the appointed meeting have I gathered,
   From thee had they been!
   [But were] a burden on thee—a reproach!

§ 1. In the second Year of King Darius, the Prophet Haggai seeks, by appealing to their Experience, to stir up the Zeal of the Returned Captives in building the House of Yahweh in Jerusalem.
His Appeal is successful.

1 <In the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, on the first of the month> came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pulses of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak a the high priest, saying:

†Thus‖ speaketh Yahweh of hosts,
saying,—

"This people have said,
Not yet hath come' the time b for the house of Yahweh to be built.

Therefore hath come' the word of Yahweh by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying:

Is it a time that ye yourselves should be dwelling in your own paneled' houses? and [this house] be in ruins?

Now therefore,

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—
Apply your heart unto your own experience. c

Ye have sown much, but have brought in little,
Have eaten, and not been filled,
Have drunk, and not been satisfied with drink,
Have clothed you, and none hath been warm,—
And he that hath hired himse... hath put his wages into a bag with holes.

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—

8 Ascend the mountain—and bring in wood and build the house,—
That I may be pleased therewith; and get myself glory. —Saith Yahweh.

9 <When ye looked for much> then lo! it came to little,
<When ye brought it home> then I did blow into it,—
Because of what?

Demandeth Yahweh of hosts,
Because of my house, the which is in ruins, while ye' keep running every man to his own house.

10 <Wherefore—on your account>—
Have the heavens [held back] dew, —
And [the earth] held back her fruit;

11 And I have called for drought,
Upon the land and upon the mountains, and Upon the corn and upon the new wine and upon the oil, and Upon that which [bringeth forth],—and Upon man, and upon beast, and
Upon all the labour of the hands.

12 Then hearkened'
Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and all the remnant of the people, unto the voice of Yahweh their God, and unto the words of Haggai the prophet, as Yahweh their God had sent him, a—and the people [stood in awe] before Yahweh.

13 Then spake Haggai the messenger of Yahweh, in the message of Yahweh, to the people,
saying,—

Thus am with you. Declareth Yahweh.
14 Thus did Yahweh [stir up]—The spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and the spirit of Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people—and they came in and did service in the house of Yahweh of hosts their God; on the twenty-fourth day of the month, in the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king.

§ 2. Seven Weeks later the Prophet is sent with a second Message; and encourages the Builders with Assurance of the Present Spirit, of a future Influx of Nations, and a Grant of Prosperity.

1 <In the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month> came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying:

2 Speak, I pray thee, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and unto the remnant of the people, saying:

3 Who is there among you that saw this house, in its former glory? And how do ye see it now? Is it not in comparison with that> as nothing, in your eyes?

4 ||Now|| therefore—Be strong, O Zerubbabel, Urgeth Yahweh, And be strong, O Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, And be strong, all ye people of the land, Urgeth Yahweh, And work; For ||I|| am with you, Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

5 <The very thing that I solemnised with you, when ye came forth out of the land of Egypt> That <my spirit> abiding in your midst ye should not fear.

6 For ||thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts, ||Yet once|| a little it is,—And I am shaking, The heavens and the earth, and The sea, and the dry land; And I will shake all the nations, And the delight of all the nations ||shall come in||,—And I will fill this house with glory, Saith Yahweh of hosts.

7 Mine is the silver and Mine the gold,* Declareth Yahweh of hosts:

8 Greater shall be the last glory of this house than the first, Saith Yahweh of hosts,—And <in this place> will I give prosperity,* Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

§ 3. Two Months later still, Haggai is sent with a Third Message, in which an Appeal to the Ritual Law is used to enforce whole-hearted Devotion to the Work and Service of their God.

10 <On the twenty-fourth of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius> came the word of Yahweh unto Haggai the prophet, saying:

11 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,—I pray you, ask the priests a direction saying:

12 ||If a man carry|| holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, And then toucheth with his skirt bread or a cooked dish or wine or oil or any food> Shall it be holy? And the priests answered‘ and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai,

14 Then answered Haggai and said, ||So|| is this people and ||So|| is this nation before me, Declareth Yahweh, And ||so|| is every work of their hands,—Therefore ||whatsoever they offer there|| is defiled.

15 ||Now|| therefore, I pray you apply your heart, from this day and upwards,—<So long as there had not been laid one stone upon another in the temple of Yahweh>

16 So long were things thus, that <On coming unto a heap of twenty> then was it found to be ten,—<On coming unto the vat to draw off fifty measures> then were there found to be twenty.

17 I smote you with blight and with mildew and with hail, in all the work of your hands,—Yet ye did not< return unto me, Declareth Yahweh.

time, unto Haggai, on the twenty-fourth of the month, saying:

§ 4. On the same Day, Haggai conveys to Zerubbabel the Message that, when Yahweh overturns the Kingdoms, He will use Zerubbabel as His Signet-ring.

Then came the word of Yahweh, the second

ZECHARIAH.

[PART I.—A SERIES OF DATED PROPHECIES, ALL ATTRIBUTED TO ZECHARIAH.]

§ 1. Zechariah’s First Message to the Returned Exiles: a Simple Reminder that the Threatenings made to their Fathers had confessedly been Fulfilled.

In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, the prophet, saying:—

Yahweh was sore displeased with your fathers: therefore shalt thou say unto them,

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,

Return ye unto me, Urgeth Yahweh of hosts,—That I may return unto you,

Saith Yahweh of hosts.

Do not become like your fathers, unto whom the former prophets [proclaimed]—saying,

Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,

Return, I pray you.

From your wicked Ways, and From your wicked Practices;

But they heard not, nor hearkened unto me.

Declareth Yahweh.

5 <Your fathers> where are they?
And <the prophet> to times ago-abiding, do they live?

6 Howbeit <as for my words and my statutes with which I charged my servants the prophets> did they not overtake your fathers? and so they returned and said,

<Just as Yahweh of hosts planned> to do unto us, according to our Ways, and according to our Practices>

So hath he dealt with us?

§ 2. A Vision of Horses. (The First of a Series of Visions, all given on the Date here named; Each with its Meaning supplied.)

Upon the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, [the same] is the month Seisehet, in the second year of Darius] came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, the prophet, as followeth:—

I looked by night. And lo! a man riding upon a red horse, and he was standing among the myrtle trees, in the shade; and <after him> were horses, red, bay, and white. Then said I,

What are these, my lord?

* See Ex. v. 1, 2; vi. 14.

* ML.: "between."

* Or: "sorrel."
And the messenger who was speaking with me said unto me,

And he spake, saying,

These are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man lifted up his head, but these [others] have come in to put them in fear, to cast down the horns of the nations, the which have lifted up the horn against the land of Judah to scatter her.

§ 4. Man with Measuring Line. (Third Vision—same Date.)

1. Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked, and lo: a Man,—and in his hand a Measuring Line,—and I said and Whither art thou going? And he said unto me.

To measure Jerusalem, to see what [should be] the breadth thereof, and what the length thereof.

And lo! the messenger who was talking with me, coming forward,—and another messenger, coming forward to meet him. So he said unto him,

Run, speak unto this young man, saying:

Like open villages shall Jerusalem remain, for the multitude of men and cattle in her midst.

And I will become to her,

Declareth Yahweh,

A wall of fire round about,—And  will I become in her midst.

Ho! ho! <see ye>, therefore, out of the land of the North, Urgeth Yahweh.

For <as> the four winds of the heavens have I spread you abroad.

Declareth Yahweh.

Ho! Zion, deliver thyself,—thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon. For [Thus] saith Yahweh of hosts,

For his own honour, hath he sent me unto the nations that are spoiling you,—Surely [he that toucheth you] toucheth the pupil of mine eye.

For behold me! brandishing my hand over them, and they shall become a spoil unto their own slaves,—And ye shall know that [Yahweh of hosts] hath sent me.

Sing out and rejoice, O daughter of Zion,—For behold me! coming in, and I will make my habitation in thy midst.

Declareth Yahweh.
Then shall many nations [join themselves] unto Yahweh, in that day, And shall become my people.— And I will make my habitation in thy midst, So shalt thou know that Yahweh of hosts hath sent me unto thee.

Thus will Yahweh inherit Judah, his portion, on the soil of the sanctuary,—and make choice, yet again, of Jerusalem.

Hush! all flesh, before Yahweh,— For he hath roused himself out of his holy dwelling.

§ 5. Joshua, Typical Companions, and Seven-Eyed Stone. (Fourth Vision—same date.)

And he shewed me Joshua the high priest, standing before the messenger of Yahweh, — and the Accuser, standing at his right hand, to accuse him. Then said Yahweh unto the Accuser, Yahweh rebuke thee, O Accuser, Yea Yahweh rebuke thee, he who is choosing Jerusalem,— Is not this a brand snatched out of the fire?

Now was clothed with filthy garments,—though standing before the messenger. Then responded he and spake unto those who were standing before him, saying, Take away the filthy garments, from off him; And he said unto him, See! I have caused to pass from off thee, thine iniquity, And will cause thee to be clothed in robes of state.

Then said I, Let them put a clean turban upon his head,— So they put the clean turban upon his head, and clothed him with garments, and the messenger of Yahweh was standing up. So then the messenger of Yahweh did solemnly affirm unto Joshua, saying:

This is the word of Yahweh, unto Zerubbabel, saying,— Not by wealth, nor by strength, But by my spirit. Saith Yahweh of hosts.

§ 6. A Lampstand and Two Olive-trees. (Fifth Vision—same date.)

And once more the messenger who was speaking with me, roused me up, just as a man might be roused up out of his sleep. Then said he unto me, What canst thou see?

And I said,— I have looked, and lo! a Lampstand—all of gold, with the Bowl thereof upon the top thereof, and its Seven Lamps upon it, [Seven Pipes each] to the lamps which are upon the top thereof; and [Two Olive-trees] by it, —one upon the right hand of the bowl, and one upon the left hand thereof.

Then responded I, and said unto the messenger who was speaking with me, saying,— What are these, my lord?

Then answered the messenger who was speaking with me, and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these are? And I said, No my lord. Then responded he, and spake unto me, saying, This is the word of Yahweh, unto Zerubbabel, saying,—

Who art thou? O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel! [brought down] to a plain!

And shall he bring forth the headstone, with thundering shouts! Beautiful! Beautiful! thereunto.
§ 8. The Woman "Lawlessness" conveyed in an Ephah to the Land of Shinar. (Seventh Vision—same date.)

Then came forward, the messenger who was talking with me,—and said unto me—

Lift up, I pray thee, thine eyes, and see what this is which is coming forth.

And I said,

What is it?

Then said he,

||This\ is an ephah\  that is coming forth.

And he said,

||This\ is their iniquity,\ throughout all the land.

And lo! a leaden disc uplifted,—and here\ a certain woman, sitting inside the ephah.

Then said he,

||This\ is Lawlessness.

So he thrust her back inside the ephah,—and then thrust the leaden weight into the mouth thereof.

Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked, and lo! Two Women coming forward, with the wind in their wings, and \[they\ had wings, like the wings of the stork,—and bare up the ephah, between the earth and the heavens.

Then said I unto the messenger who was speaking with me,—

Whither are they’ carrying the ephah?

And he said unto me,

To build for it a house in the land of Shinar,—so shall it be ready, and they shall settle it there, upon its own base.*

§ 9. Four Chariots with Horses of divers Colours,  (Eighth Vision—same date.)

And once more I lifted mine eyes, and lo! four chariots;* coming forward from between two mountains,—now \[the mountains\ were mountains of copper.\ 4 <In the first chariot > were red' horses; and <in the second chariot > black' horses;  and <in the third chariot > white' horses,—and <in the fourth chariot > horses spotted, deep red.

Then began I, and said, unto the messenger who was speaking with me,—

What are these, my lord?

And the messenger answered, and said unto me,—

||These\ are the four winds\ of the heavens, coming forward after each hath presented itself\ near the Lord of all the earth.\ 6 \[They in whose chariot are the black horses\ are going forth into the land of the North, and \[the white\ have gone forth after them,—and \[the spotted\]

* Or: "to the west of them"—the hinder sea being the west.
have gone forth into the land of the South; and the deep red have come forward and sought to go their way, that they might journey to and fro, in the land, so he said.

Go your way, journey to and fro in the land, and they journeyed to and fro in the land.

Then made he outcry beside me, and spake unto me, saying,—

See those who are going forth into the land of the North! I have settled my spirit in the land of the North.

§ 10. Crowning the Priest—Figurative.

Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying:

Take of them of the exile, of Heldai, and Tobijah, and of Jedaiah,—then shalt thou thyself enter; on that day, yea thou shalt enter into the house of Josiah, son of Zephaniah, with them; who have come out of Babylon; yea thou shalt take silver and gold, and make a crown;—and set it upon the head of Jehozadak, the high priest; then shalt thou speak unto him, saying;

Thus speaketh Yahweh of hosts, saying,—

Lo! a man of the house of Jehosua son of Jehozadak, the high priest; moreover he shall be priest upon his throne, and shall become a priest upon his throne, and the counsel of peace shall be between the two of them.

But the crown shall belong to Heldai and to Tobiah and to Jedaiah, and to the house of Zephaniah,—for a memorial in the temple of Yahweh.

And they who are afar off shall come in, and shall build at the temple of Yahweh, so shall ye know that Yahweh of hosts hath sent me unto you, and it shall come to pass, if ye will indeed hearken unto the voice of Yahweh your God:

§ 11. An Inquiry about Fasting, calls forth a Divine Protest that Formalism and Corruption had occasioned the Captivity; and a Promise of abundant Blessing, in which Gentiles should partake, provided only the needful Conditions were fulfilled: affording a Glimpse (viii. 7) of a wider Return from Exile than that from Babylon.

1 And it came to pass in the fourth year of Darius the king, that the word of Yahweh came unto Zechariah, on the fourth of the ninth month, in Chislev; yea when Belshazzar was king in Babylon.

2 And it came to pass in the fifth month, separating myself, as I have done these so many years;

3 Then came the word of Yahweh of hosts unto me, saying:

Speak thou unto all the people of the land, and unto the priests, saying,—

<When ye fasted and lamented in the fifth and in the seventh, even these seven years did ye really fast?] unto the Lord?

4 And when ye used to eat, and when ye used to drink was it not of your own accord ye did eat, and of your own accord ye did drink?

7 Should ye not have been doing] the things which Yahweh had proclaimed by the hand of the former prophets, while yet Jerusalem was inhabited and in peace, with her cities round about her, and the South; and the Lowland were inhabited?

8 And the word of Yahweh came unto Zechariah, saying:

Thus spake Yahweh of hosts, saying,—

<With true justice> give ye judgment, and loving-kindness and compassions observe one with another;

10 And the widow and the fatherless, the sojourner and the humbled do not ye oppress,—

11 Howbeit they refused to give heed, but put forth a rebellious shoulder, and their ears were made hard of hearing, that they might not hear; and <their heart> turned them into adamant, that they might not hear the law, nor the words which Yahweh of hosts sent by his spirit, through the former prophets,— and so there came great wrath from Yahweh of hosts. 10 Therefore came it to pass that—<Just as he cried out, and they hearkened not.>

So used they to cry out, and I used not to hearken,*
Saith Yahweh of hosts;
But I whirled them over all the nations, whom they had not known, and the land was made desolate after them, that none passed through and returned,— Yea they made of a delightful land—a desolation.

8 1 And the word of Yahweh of hosts came, saying:*

2 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
I am jealous for Zion, with a great jealousy,—
Yea, with great wrath am I jealous for her.

3 Thus saith Yahweh,
I have returned unto Zion, And will make my habitation in the midst of Jerusalem,—
And Jerusalem shall be called
The city of fidelity, and
The mountain of Yahweh of hosts
The mountain of holiness.

4 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
Yet shall old men and old women sit in the broadways of Jerusalem,— Yea, each one with his staff in his hand for multitude of days:
And the broadways of the city shall be full of boys and girls,—playing in the broadways thereof.

5 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,<Because it will be marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people, in those days>—
In mine own eyes also shall it be marvellous? Demandeth Yahweh of hosts.

6 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
Behold me! saving my people Out of the land of the dawn,— and Out of the land of the going in of the sun;
And I will bring them in, And they shall have their habitation in the midst of Jerusalem,—
And shall become my people, And I will be their God, In faithfulness and in righteousness.

9 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
Let your hands be strong, ye who are hearing, in these days, these words,—from the mouth of the prophets who <on the day the house of Yahweh of hosts was founded> [foretold] that the temple should be built:—

10 That <before those days> [hire for man] could not be obtained, And <hire for beast> was there none,—
And <neither to him who went out, nor to him who came in> was there success by reason of the danger, Yea I let all men loose, each one against his neighbour.

11 But [now] <not as in the former days> am I to this remnant of the people,—
Declareth Yahweh of hosts;
For the seed shall be secure—
The vine shall yield her fruit, and The land yield her increase, and The heavens yield their dew,—
And I will cause this remnant of the people to inherit all these things.

12 And it shall come to pass that—
<Just as ye had become a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel>—
<So will I save you, and ye shall become a blessing,—
Do not fear, let your hands be strong.>

13 For thus saith Yahweh of hosts,
<Just as I planned to bring calamity upon you, when your fathers provoked me, Saith Yahweh of hosts,—
And I relented not>—
<So have I again planned, in these days, to do good unto Jerusalem, and unto the house of Judah,—
Do not fear!>

14 These are the things which ye shall do: Speak ye the truth, every man with his neighbour, <Truth and the sentence of peace> pronounce ye in your gates;
And let no man devise the injury of his neighbour in your heart, <And the oath of falsehood> do not love,—
For all these are things which I hate. Declareth Yahweh.

15 And the word of Yahweh of hosts came unto me, saying:—

16 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts—
The fast of the fourth, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the eleventh shall become to the house of Judah a gladness and a rejoicing, and pleasant appointed meetings,—
But <truth and peace> see that ye love.

17 Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—
It shall yet be that there shall come in peoples, and the inhabitants of many cities;

* Or: “So they shall cry out and I will not hearken.” Cp. O.G. 704.
 Some cod. (w. 3 ear. pr. edna. Aram. and Syr.): "unto me saying"—G.N.

ZECHARIAH VIII. 21—23; IX. 1—13.

21 And the inhabitants of one city shall go unto them of another saying, Let us be going on to pacify the face of Yahweh, and to seek Yahweh of hosts,—
   6 So shall they go; I will cut off the arrogance of the Philistines;
   7 And will take away his reeking prey out of his mouth, and his abominations, from between his teeth,
   But <he that is left > will belong to our God,
   8 So shall he become as a chief in Judah, and || Ekron || as a Jebusite!

22 ||Thus|| saith Yahweh of hosts,< In those days> [it shall be] that ten men out of all the tongues of the nations shall take hold,—yea, take hold of the skirt of every one that is a Jew, saying—We will go with you!
   For we have heard [that] || God || is with you.

   [PART II.—Some Undated Prophecies, one of which is in the New Testament (Matt. xxvii. 9) Attributed to Jeremiah.]

§ 12. An Oracle, in the manner of the Earlier Prophets; in which, with dramatic suddenness, Jerusalem's King appears, secures Peace to the Nations, and attains to World-wide Dominion in which also the Prophet enacts the part of an Unsuccessful Shepherd, who is contemptuously dismissed; and in which a Worthless Shepherd is represented, who receives condign Punishment.

9 The oracle of the word of Yahweh on the land of Hadraich,*
   And || Damascus || shall be the resting-place thereof,—
   For || Yahweh || hath an eye—
   To mankind, and
   To all the tribes of Israel; 1
   2 || Moreover also || || Hamath || adjoineth thereto,
   || Tyre and Zidon ||—because very wise;
   3 Therefore did Tyre build a stronghold for herself,—
   And did heap up silver like dust,
   Yea gold like the mire of the lanes.
   4 Lo! || My Lord || shall dispossess her, and smite into the sea, her fortresses,—
   And || she herself || <in fire> shall be consumed.

   5 Ashkelon || shall see || and fear,
   || Gaza || also, which shall write in great anguish, 2
   || Ekron || also, because abashed, is her expectation,—
   And the king || shall perish || from Gaza,
   And || Ashkelon || not be inhabited;*

   6 And there shall be seated a half-breed in Ashdod,—
   So will I cut off the arrogance of the Philistines;
   7 And will take away his reeking prey out of his mouth, and his abominations, from between his teeth,
   But <he that is left> <even he> shall belong to our God,—
   8 So shall he become as a chief in Judah, and || Ekron || as a Jebusite!

9 Exult greatly, O daughter of Zion, Shout in triumph, O daughter of Jerusalem, Lo! || thy king || cometh unto thee, || Vindicated and victorious || is he,— Lowly, and riding upon an ass, Yea, upon a colt, a young ass. 3

10 So will he* cut off
   The chariot out of Ephraim, and
   The horse out of Jerusalem, And the war-bow shall be cut off, So shall he speak peace to the nations, And || his dominion || shall be from sea to sea, And from the river [Euphrates] to the ends of the earth. 1

11 || As for thee also ||—
   <By the blood of thy covenant> have I sent forth thy prisoners out of a pit, wherein is no water.
   12 Return to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope,—
   <Even to-day> do I declare—
   <Double> will I return to thee!

13 For I have bent for me—Judah,< As a bow > have I grasped Ephraim, Thus will I rouse up thy sons, O Zion, against the sons of Greece, 9 And will make thee as the sword of a mighty one.

But [Yahweh] <over them> will appear, And forth shall go, as lightning, his arrow,—
Yea [My Lord Yahweh] <with a horn> will blow,
And will move along in the whirlwinds of the south.

Yahweh of hosts! will throw a covering over them,
So shall they eat, and trample underfoot sling-stones,
And shall drink—shall* about as with wine,—
And shall be filled like tossing-bowls,—
Like the corners of an altar.

So will Yahweh their God [save them] on that day.
Yea <as a flock of sheep> his people,—
For [they shall be like] the jewels of a diadem* sparkling* over his land.

For how excellent it is!
Yea how beautiful!
||Corn|| shall make the young men' flourish,
And new wine' the maidens.

10 1 Ask ye from Yahweh rain, in the time of the latter rain,*
Yahweh* who causeth flashes of lightning,—
And <rain in abundant showers> giveth he unto them,;
<To every man> herbage in the field;
For ||the household gods|| have spoken vanity And ||the diviners|| have had vision of falsehood,
And <deceitful> dreams do they relate,
<Vainly> do they consolate,<
For this reason> have they moved about like a flock,
They suffer ill, because there is no shepherd.

Against the shepherds is kindled mild anger, And <upon the leaders of the flock> I will bring punishment,—
For Yahweh of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Judah, And will make them like his noble horse* in battle:
<From him> the commander!
<From him> the supporter,*
<From him> the war-horse,—
<From him> shall proceed every one that driveth on, together;
So shall they become like mighty ones, trampling on the mire of lanes, in battle, And they will fight, because ||Yahweh|| is with them,—
And will abash the riders of horses.

6 So will I make mighty ones of the house of Judah, And <the house of Joseph> will I save, And will cause them to continue, because I have had compassion upon them,
So shall they be as though I had not rejected them,—
For ||Yahweh|| will be their God, and will answer them;
And they* shall be as the mighty one of Ephraim, And their heart [shall rejoice], as through wine,— Yea [their children] shall see and rejoice, Their heart [shall exult] in Yahweh.
I will signal for them, and will gather them, because I have ransomed them,—
And they shall multiply, according as they have* multiplied;
<Though I scatter them among the peoples> Yet <in places far away> shall they remember me,—
And they shall live with their children, and shall return; And I will bring them back out of the land of Egypt, And <out of Assyria> will I gather them,—
And <into the land of Gilead and Lebanon> will I bring them, And [room] shall not be found for them:
<Though he pass through a sea of affliction>* Yet shall he smite the sea, with its waves; And the roaring depths of the Nile [shall appear dry];—
So shall be brought down the pride of Assyria, And ||the sceptre of Egypt|| shall depart; And I will make them mighty in Yahweh, And [in his name] shall they march to and fro,—
Declareth Yahweh.

11 Open, O Lebanon, thy doors,— That a fire may devour thy cedars.
Howl, fir-tree, for fallen is the cedar, Because [the majestic ones] are spoiled: Howl, ye oaks of Bashan, For the inaccessible* forest [hath come down].

Thus saith Yahweh my God,—
Tend thou the flock doomed to slaughter:*
Whose buyers slay them, and are not held guilty,
And whose sellers say—
Blessed be Yahweh, that I am become rich,*
And so [their own shepherds] have no pity upon them.
Surely I will have pity no longer upon the inhabitants of the earth.
Declareth Yahweh,—
Therefore lo! I am delivering up mankind,
Every man into the hand of his neighbour,*
And into the hand of his king,
And they will crush the earth.
Nor will I deliver out of their hand.
So I tended the flock doomed to slaughter,* for the sheep-merchants,—and took unto me two staves, <the one> I called Grace, and <the other> I called Union, thus I tended the sheep. * And I sent off three shepherds, in one month,—for impatient was my soul with them, moreover also [their soul] felt a loathing against me.* Then said I—
I will not tend you,—
The dying* may die, and
The disappearing* may disappear, and
The remainder* may devour one another.*
So I took my staff Grace, and cut it in two,—that I might set aside my covenant which I had solemnised with all the peoples.* * When it was broken, on that day then did the sheepermchant who were watching me [know] that <the word of Yahweh> it was.* Then said I unto them,
If it be good in your eyes* give me my wage.
And if not* forbear.
So they weighed out my wage, thirty pieces of silver. * * Then said Yahweh unto me,
Cast it into the treasury,* The magnificent price* at which I had been valued by them. * * * * * * Then cut I in two my second* staff, even Union,—that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel. Then said Yahweh unto me,— Yet further* take thee the implements of a worthless shepherd.
For lo! I am raising up a shepherd in the land.
The disappearing* will he not visit,
The straying* will he not seek,
And <the fractured>* will he not bind up,—
<The weak>* will he not nourish, But <the flesh of the fat>* will he eat,
And <their hoofs>* will he break in pieces.
Alas! for my worthless shepherd,* who forsook* the flock,
A sword* upon his arm,
And upon his right eye!—
[His arm] shall be [utterly withered],
And [his right eye] shall be [wholly darkened].

§ 13. A Second Oracle, in which is foretold and portrayed a Final Siege of Jerusalem by all Nations, out of which, by the Interposition of One who had been Pierced, the City, after Extreme Peril and Suffering, shall be triumphantly delivered.

The oracle of the word of Yahweh on Israel,—
Declareth Yahweh—
Stretching out the heavens, and
Founding the earth, and Fashioning the spirit of man within him:
Lo! I am making Jerusalem a bowl of reeling to all the peoples, round about,— [Moreover also] <on Judah> shall it be* in the siege against Jerusalem;
And it shall come to pass, in that day, That I will make Jerusalem a lifting-stone, to all the peoples, [All who seek to lift her] shall [cut themselves in pieces],— Though all the nations of the earth [gather themselves together against her].

In that day* Declareth Yahweh,
I will smite every horse with terror,
And his rider with madness,—
And <over the house of Judah> will I keep opening mine eyes, And <every horse of the peoples> will I smite with blindness.
Then will the chiefs of Judah say' in their hearts,—
<A strength unto me> [would be] the inhabitants of Jerusalem, in Yahweh of hosts, their God.
In that day* will I make the chiefs of Judah
Like a pan of fire among sticks, and
Like a torch of fire in a sheaf,
So shall they devour [on the right hand and on the left] all the peoples round about ;
So shall Jerusalem yet be inhabited [in her own place], as Jerusalem.*

* ML: "the flock of slaughter." * Or read: "for he hath enriched me." * Merely changing the vowels, the Heb. may be rendered: "his shepherd*; and so G.A.S.* So it shd be (w. Syr.)—G.n. * See n. on ver. 7.

* Some cod. (w. 2 car. pr. eds. and Sep.) read: "for the worthless shepherds* (pl.) but others (w. Aram. Syr. Vol.)—G.n. * Some scholars omit the "on," so as to read: "Judah shall be in the siegeagainst*—O.G.A. B. Cp. ver. 5.

* Cp. O.G. 39 (I, 7, b).
But Yahweh will save the tents of Judah first,— Lest the honour of the house of David,
And the honour of the inhabitant of Jerusalem,
Should be magnified over Judah.

In that day will Yahweh throw a covering around the inhabitants of Jerusalem,
So shall the tottering among them, in that day, become like David,—
And the house of David—
Like God,
Like the messenger of Yahweh, before them.
And it shall come to pass, in that day,—
That I will seek to destroy all the nations, that come against Jerusalem.

But I will pour out
Upon the house of David and
Upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem,
The spirit of favour, and of supplications,
And they will look unto me, whom they have pierced,—
And will wail over him,
As one waileth over an only son,
And will make bitter outcry over him,
As one maketh bitter outcry over a first-born.

In that day will the wailing be great in Jerusalem,
As the wailing of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon;
So shall the land mourn,—
Family by family, apart,—
The family of the house of David apart,
And their wives apart;
The family of the house of Nathan apart,
And their wives apart;
The family of the house of Levi apart,
And their wives apart;
The family of Shimei apart,—
And their wives apart;

All the families that remain,—
Family by family, apart,—
And their wives, apart.

In that day there shall be an opened fountain, —
For the house of David, and
For the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—
For sin and for uncleanness.

And it shall come to pass, in that day,
Declareth Yahweh of hosts,
That I will cut off the names of idols out of the land,
And they shall not be remembered any more,—
Moreover also (even the prophets and the spirit of impurity) will I cause to pass away out of the land.
So shall it come about that (when any man shall prophesy again) then will his own father and his own mother, of whom he was born, (say unto him)—
Thou shalt not live!
For (falsehood) hast thou spoken in the name of Yahweh,—
So will his own father and his own mother of whom he was born, (pierce him through),
when he prophesieth,
Yea it shall come to pass, in that day, that the prophets (will turn pale) every man by reason of his vision when he prophesieth,— neither will they put on a mantle of hair to deceive.
But he will say,
<No prophet> am I,—
<One tilling the ground> am I, for (one of the common people) hath owned me from my youth.
Then will one say unto him,
What are these wounds between thy hands?
And he will say,
Wherewith I was wounded in the house of them who loved me.
O Sword! awake
Against my shepherd,
Even against the man that is my companion
Urgeth Yahweh of hosts,—
Smite the shepherd, and let the flock be scattered,
Howbeit I will turn back my hand over the little ones.
And it shall come to pass, in all the land,
Declareth Yahweh,
Two-thirds therein shall be cut off, and expire,—
But (a third) shall be left therein;
And I will bring the third into the fire,
And will smelt them as one smelteth silver,
And will try them, as one trieth gold,—
(If it) will call upon my name,
And (If) it will answer it, and will say,
<My people> it is! And (It) will say,
Yahweh is my God!

Lo! upon the day cometh, pertaining to Yahweh, —
When apportioned shall be thy spoil in thy midst;

2 Yea I will gather together all the nations unto Jerusalem, to battle; And the city [shall be captured], And the houses [plundered], And [the women] ravished,— And half of the city [shall go forth] into exile, But [the remainder of the people] shall not be cut off out of the city.

3 Then will Yahweh go forth, and fight against those nations,— Just as he did in the day when he fought, in the day of battle;

4 Yea his feet [shall stand] in that day, on the Mount of Olivet, which is before Jerusalem on the east, And the Mount of Olives [shall be asunder] from the midst thereof, Towards the east and Towards the west. An exceeding great valley,— And half of the mountain [shall give way] toward the north, and half of it toward the south.

5 Then shall ye flee to the valley of my mountains, For the valley of the mountains [shall reach] very near, Yea, ye shall flee, just as ye fled from before the earthquake,* in the days of Uzziah king of Judah,— Then [shall arrive], Yahweh my God, [All thy] holy ones with thee!

6 And it shall come to pass, in that day,— That there shall be no light, [The bright stars] shall be withdrawn; And it shall be a day by itself, [The same] shall be known unto Yahweh— Not day. Nor night,— But it shall come to pass, that in that evening time— there shall be light. And it shall come to pass, in that day, That there shall go forth living waters, out of Jerusalem, Half of them unto the sea before, and Half of them unto the sea behind, <In summer and in winter> shall it be.

7 So will Yahweh become king, over all the earth.— <In that day> Shalt there be one Yahweh, And [his Name] be one.

10 All the land shall turn into a plain, From Geba to Rimmon, south of Jerusalem,— And shall lift herself on high and abide in her own place, From the gate of Benjamin up to the place of the first gate, up to the corner gate, And from the tower of Hananeel up to the wine-presses of the king.

11 So shall men dwell therein, And [utter destruction] shall not be any more,— But Jerusalem [shall abide] in security.

12 And this shall be the plague, wherewith Yahweh will plague all the peoples, who have made war against Jerusalem,— His flesh [shall be made to rot] while he is standing upon his feet, And [his eyes] shall rot in their sockets, And [his tongue] shall rot in their mouth;

13 And it shall come to pass, in that day, That there shall be a great confusion from Yahweh among them,— And they will lay hold ev'ry one upon the hand of his neighbour, And his hand [will rise up] against the hand of his neighbour;

14 [Moreover also] Judah will fight with Jerusalem,— And the wealth of all the nations round about [shall be gathered together], Gold and silver and apparel, in great abundance.

15 And [so] shall be the plague of the horse, the mule, the camel, and the ass, and all the beasts' which shall be in those camps, — Like this plague!

16 And it shall come to pass, that <as for every one that is left, out of all the nations that came against Jerusalem> That they shall come up, from year to year, To bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts, And to celebrate the festival of booths.

17 And it shall come to pass that— [Whoso shall not come up, out of the families of the earth, unto Jerusalem, to bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts],— There shall not, on them', be any rain.

18 And <if the family of Egypt shall not come up, and shall not enter in, upon whom there fell any of these things> Then shall smite them the plague wherewith Yahweh [did] plague the nations, because they came not up to celebrate the festival of booths.
§ 1. Yahweh declares his Love for Jacob, and his Disapprobation of Esau—each considered as a People.

1 ¹ The oracle of the word of Yahweh, unto Israel,—by the hand of Malachi.
2 I have loved you, Saith Yahweh, And yet ye say, Wherein hast thou loved us? Is not Esau thy brother? Enquireth Yahweh, Yet have I loved Jacob,
3 And <Esau> have I hated,— And made his mountains a desolation, And his inheritance [a dwelling] for the jackals of the wilderness.
4 <Whereas Edom may say>, We are laid waste, but we will again build the desolate places> Thus saith Yahweh of hosts: They may build, But I will pull down,— And men shall call them, The Boundary of Lawlessness, and The people with whom Yahweh hath indignation unto times age-abiding;
5 And your own eyes shall see,— And ye yourselves shall say, Yahweh be magnified beyond the boundary of Israel.

§ 2. A Divine Complaint against the People, and especially the Priests, for Disgraceful Negligence and Dishonesty in the Temple Worship: enforced by reference to the hopeful Attitude of Gentile Nations and to the Covenant with Levi.

6 If a son will honour a father, And thy servant his lord,— If then [a father]: I am' where is mine honour?
7 Wherein 'have we despised thy Name? in bringing near upon mine altar, polluted food, while yet ye say, Wherein have we polluted thee? Because ye say, <As for the table of Yahweh> is a thing to be despised: it is'
And when ye bring near the blind as a sacrifice, [saying]— No harm! a 8 Or when ye bring near the lame or the sick, [saying]— No harm! a
Offer it, I pray you, unto thy pasha, Will he accept thee? Or lift up thy countenance? Saith Yahweh of hosts.

9 Now therefore, pacify, I pray you, the face of God, that he may grant us favour,— <At your hands> hast this come to pass, b Will he lift up the countenances [of any of you]? Saith Yahweh of hosts.
10 Who is there even among you that will shut the doors, so as not to set light to mine altar, for nothing?" I can take no' pleasure in you, Saith Yahweh of hosts, And <your present> can I not accept at your hand.

11 For <from the rising of the sun, even unto the going in thereof> great' is my Name, among the nations, and <in every place> [incense] is offered to my Name, and a pure present,—for great' is my Name among the nations, Saith Yahweh of hosts.

a Or: "nothing' wrong!" b Some cod.: "At your own hands hath this be- fallen you"—G.n.
But ye are profaning me, in that ye say,
As for the table of the Lord, it is;
And as for his produce, contemptible is his food.

And ye have said,
Lo! what a weariness!
And ye have snuffed at Me;
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
And have brought in the torn and the lame and the sick, thus have ye brought the present,
Could I accept it at your hand?
Saith Yahweh. 4

But accursed is he that defraudeth,
Who when there is in his flock a male yet voweth and sacrificeth a corrupt thing to the Lord,*
For a great king am I.
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
And [my Name] is reverenced among the nations.

§ 3. The People charged with Unfaithfulness to their Matrimonial Obligations, and with affirming Wrong to be Right.

Is there not one Father to us all? Did not [one God] create us? Wherefore should we deal treacherously one with another, 6 profaning the covenant of our fathers?

Judah hath dealt treacherously, And an abomination hath been wrought in Israel, and in Jerusalem,—
For Judah had profaned the holy place of Yahweh, which he had loved, and hath taken to himself the daughter of a foreign god.

May Yahweh [cut off], from the man that doeth it—him that crieth out and him that answereth, 7 out of the tents of Jacob,— Him also that bringeth near a present to Yahweh of hosts.

And <this, a second time> will ye do, covering with tears, the altar of Yahweh, weeping and making outcry,—because he will not again turn unto the gift, and receive [it] with acceptance, at your hands?

Yet ye say,
For what cause?
Because [Yahweh] hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, with whom thou hast dealt treacherously, though she was thy consort, 9 and thy covenant's wife.

Now was it not [One] who made [you] who had the residue of the spirit? 10

12 For the lips of a priest should keep knowledge,
And a deliverance should men seek at his mouth,—
For the messenger of Yahweh of hosts he is.

But ye have departed out of the way,
Ye have caused multitudes to stumble at the deliverance,—
Ye have violated the covenant of Levi,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

9 Therefore [I also] will suffer you to be despised and of no account, unto all the people,*—
In proportion as none of you have been keeping my ways,
But have had respect to persons, in giving your deliverance.

11 Or: "mate."
What, then, of that One?
He was seeking a godly seed.
Therefore should ye take heed to your spirit, and
<with the wife of thy youth> do not thou deal treacherously.

16 For he hateth Divorce, —
Saith Yahweh, God of Israel,
Him also who covereth with violence his own clothing.
Therefore should ye take heed to your spirit, and
not deal treacherously.

17 Ye have wearied Yahweh with your words,
and yet ye say,
Wherein have we been wearisome?
When ye have said,
<Everyone who doeth wrong> is right in the eyes of Yahweh, and <in them> he hath taken delight, or,
Where is the God of justice?

§ 4. A Sudden Visit of the Divine Purifier foretold:
the Object, Results and Need of such a Visit—
a Gloomy Outlook.

3 Behold me! sending my messenger,
Who will prepare a way before me,—
And shall come to his temple
The Lord whom ye are seeking,
Even the messenger of the covenant in whom ye are delighting.
Lo! he cometh! Saith Yahweh of hosts.

5 But who may endure the day of his coming?
And who is he that can stand' when he appeareth?
For he is like a refiner's fire,
And like fuller's alkali;
Therefore will he sit as a refiner and purifier of silver,
And will purify the sons of Levi,
And will smelt them, as gold and as
silver;
So shall they belong to Yahweh,
Offering a gift in righteousness.

4 Then shall the gift of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant to Yahweh,—
As in the days of age-past times,
And as in the ancient years.

5 Therefore will I draw near unto you for judgment,
And will become a swift witness
Against the matterers of incantations, and Against the adulterers, and Against them that swear to a falsehood,—and Against them who rob the hire of the hireling, the widow and the fatherless,
And that drive away the sojourner,
And do not reprove me,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

6 <Because I, Yahweh> have not changed;
therefore <ye, the sons of Jacob> have not
been utterly consumed.

7 <From the days of your fathers> have ye departed from my statutes, and not observed them,
Return ye unto me,
That I may return unto you,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

8 <Because I, Yahweh> have not changed;
therefore <ye, the sons of Jacob> have not
been utterly consumed.

8 Will  defraud <God>?
Nevertheless <ye> have been defrauding
me,
And yet ye say,
Wherein have we defrauded thee?
In the tithe and the offering.

9 <With a curse> have ye been cursing.
And yet <me> have ye been defrauding,— the whole nation.
Bring ye all the tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house,
Yea, I pray you, put me to the proof hereby,
Saith Yahweh of hosts,
whether I will not open to you the storehouses of the heavens, and pour out for you blessing, until there be no room.

10 Then will I rebuke, for you, the devourer that he spoil not, for you, the fruit of the ground,—
Neither shall the vine in the field be barren to you,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

11 So shall all the nations pronounce you happy,—
For <ye> shall become, a land of delight,
Saith Yahweh of hosts.

12 <Stout against me> have been your words,
Saith Yahweh,—
And yet ye say,

against thee?

SPECIAL NOTE
ON THE APOCRYPHA.

It was once customary to bind up the Apocrypha between the authorised versions of the Old and New Testaments. This has now ceased, and as a consequence this curious, interesting, and instructive part of Jewish literature is now known only to scholars. Under these circumstances, the following account of the Apocrypha, condensed from Hastings' "Dictionary of the Bible" (T. & T. Clark), may be found useful.

The word "Apocrypha" is applied by English-speaking Protestants to the following collection of books and parts of books—l. Eedras, II. Eedras, Tobit, Judith, Additions to Esther, The Wisdom of Solomon, The Wisdom of Sirach or Ecclesiasticus, Baruch (chap. vi., Epistle of Jeremy), The Song of the Three Holy Children, The History of Susannah, The History of the Destruction of Bel and the Dragon (ix., x., and xi. are Additions to the Book of Daniel), The Prayer of Manasses, 1. Maccabees, II. Maccabees. The collection consists of the excess of the Latin Vulgate over the Hebrew Old Testament; and this excess is due to the Greek LXX. ["Sep."] from which the old Latin Version was made. The difference between the Protestant and Roman Catholic Old Testament goes back, then, to a difference between Palestinian and Alexandrian Jews.

The word "Apocrypha," meaning "hidden," was no doubt first applied to books in a quite literal sense—of books kept from the public. The hiding of a book was easy when copies were few. It might be done on two opposite grounds—to keep from outsiders secrets laws or wisdom, or because the contents were judged to be useless or harmful. Official Judaism rejected these hidden books, and declared for the exclusive recognition of the twenty-four books of the Canon. The Catholic Church decided that the Apocrypha were not to be regarded as sacred Scriptures, since publicity and universality were marks of genuineness and truth. Protestantism went over to the Jewish usage, applying the words to the books withdrawn by it from the commonly accepted Canon, though this no longer meant withdrawn from public reading and common use, but only from full authority for doctrine—not disapproved, but recommended as good and useful, not secret or hidden in origin, meaning or use. The evil name, however, helped to lower the first estimate of the books.

In the Eastern Church clearness and consistency have never been reached. In the Latin Church there was an inclination to let Christian usage, rather than scholarly theory, determine the place of the Apocrypha in the Canon. Jerome strongly pressed the sole validity of the Hebrew Canon, but nevertheless gave these books an intermediate position. Augustine stands for the Catholic principle as determining the Canon, but reveals a growing sense of the secondary authority or security of the Apocrypha. Carlistadt vindicates Jerome's position. Luther wavers, but in his Bible (completed 1534) the Apocrypha stands between O. T. and N. T., with the title: "A., that is books which are not held equal to the sacred Scriptures, and nevertheless are useful and good to read." Calvin reaffirms Jerome's view. It was not until 1827, after two years' sharp dispute, that the British and Foreign Bible Society decided to exclude the Apocrypha from all its publications of the Bible. Within the Church of England the number of readings has been, at a comparatively recent date, reduced. In the Revision of Luther's Bible (1829) the Apocrypha still stands, with Luther's title. The modern historical interest is putting these writings in their true place as significant documents of a most important era in religious history.
APPENDIX.

DEUTERONOMY, AUTHORSHIP OF

At first sight it might seem that the translator of The Emphasized Bible had no need to trouble himself about the authorship of the Book of Deuteronomy. There it is: simply translate it, and leave all such questions to commentators and the higher critics. Even had this self-exculsion policy prevailed, however, that would not have obliterated the impression naturally received in the process of rendering the book. It is true that the remaining of that impression into silence might have enabled no loss to the world. But there was another reason for offering an opinion, which was this. The design of this Bible—to give effect, among other things, to the interesting distinction between meaning and speech—made imperative to take a definite attitude as to the literary question involved in this discussion. That is to say, it depended on the translator not only an exercise that we own judgment as to what portions of the book of Deuteronomy were probably editorial, so that he might differentiate them, setting fully out to the other hand of the column portions that were \"speech\"; but the very fact of doing this was sure to draw the inquisitive reader into the task here and there an editorial question of which some parts of Deuteronomy are marginally distinguished from other parts; why, for example, chaps. iv. 10-12, 20-21; iii. 11, 13-15; iv. 41-44, 44-49, are thus separated from their contexts. It seemed better, therefore, to take the reader into connection with this line of thought, and to explain that the points so marked, if so marked at all, themselves, as at chaps. iv. 13; vi. 5; vili. 17; vili. 2, and then by the present connected statement, to employ the book as the medium of the reader's examination of the book itself, as the spokes of the wheel. It is from this point of view that the whole book is examined, and thus self-explained to the reader. In this way it is meant that the book, taken as a whole, is a matter of the “old man eloquent.” As an author, there may be more or less of Moses the man of God in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers; but here we come within the sphere of his living voice, and listen to his impassioned pleadings with Israel. No later writer could have so completely entered into the expository spirit of the book. Moses himself, the living voice, offers once for all, in that legitimate higher criticism which no honest man of reverence judgments need fear to study.

The purpose thus defined may perhaps be most effectively attained by first presenting, substantially as it was written, a paper which appeared in a weekly magazine two years ago, and by then submitting such further observations as may appear to be called for.

In this book we hear the voice of “the old man eloquent.” As an author, there may be more or less of Moses the man of God in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers; but here we come within the sphere of his living voice, and listen to his impassioned pleadings with Israel. No later writer could have so completely entered into the expository spirit of the book. Moses himself, the living voice, offers once for all, in that legitimate higher criticism which no honest man of reverence judgments need fear to study.

This impression was deeply determined when, later on, he carefully revised his translation. It is true that his previous conviction became slightly qualified, yet only in such wise as to strengthen the conclusion so which he had previously come. The more one became familiar with the name of the speaker's living voice, the more evident it was that here and there editorial annotations had been subsequently added. Than one could have so completely entered into the expository spirit of the book. Moses himself, the living voice, offers once for all, in that legitimate higher criticism which no honest man of reverence judgments need fear to study.

The evidence of the Mosaic authorship of the speeches—of which, be it noted, the book of Deuteronomy is mainly composed—springs from something more subtle and more conclusive than the aforesaid converging lines of evidence, however satisfactory to the advocates of those lines may be. It springs from the manner in which the speaker enters into the entire situation, leading us to exclaim, “None but Moses could have done it.” Coupled with this and constituting an especial form of it, is the profound emotionalism—in a word, the psychology which pervades the book, prompting us to say, “None but Moses could have felt all this!”

What, then, was the situation into which the speaker so completely enters? It was a situation created by time, place, event, and personality; and, naturally, owing to the concurrence of these causes, a situation that had never existed before and could never exist again. The time was after the forty years' wanderings, after the conquest of Sihon, king of Heshbon, and Og, king of Bashan; and just before the passage of the Jordan into Canaan. This time was momentous, a momentous time, crowded with memories, thronging with exciting expectations. The place was the Ark of the Lord, near the Jordan, over against Jericho, the center of the whole east of Canaan, along which the people had skirted or into which they had penetrated—a place, that which invited them to course, to enter, to possess, without more delay. And what unique events had already happened: the sullen acquiescence in Israel’s triumph, and, with it, exulted conquest of the magnanimous lands of the sullen over the matter of Baal-peor, with which the names of Balak and Balaam are shockingly associated; the moral prostration, at the tribulation of the magnanimous Gilead and Bashan, with all the stir of war whetting the swords of Israel’s warriors with keen eagerness for the grant of garments. Then, finally, back at the precipice, from which into the entrance is Caleb is there, and Joshua, both of whom knew personally something, still vivid in their memories, as of the inheritance and cities and products of the land; and there are Eleazar and Phineas, son and grandson of Aaron, Moses, Aaron, and Joshua; there, also, the memories, many of them, reached back to the early days of the wanderings, who had seen that great and terrible desert, who had skied Edom and Zobah and Ammon, and penetrated Gilead and Bashan, many of whom had lost near relatives in the fearful revolt of Baal-peor; and towering above them all was the commanding personality of Moses himself. Now the contention here submitted is, that the speaker of those discourses, which constitute the chief portion of the book of Deuteronomy, so completely enters into the situation created by the time, the place, the events, and the characters, that he becomes no other than Moses himself. Only the man who lived them, and stood there, who had passed through those stirring events, who knew and understood that generation that could possibly speak in the strain that here greets our ears.

For not, finally, the marked peculiarity of this book. We find in it emotions and anontations, the speaker displays. All the forms of speech that betoken depth of feeling are present here—repetitions, as if the speaker could not make enough of expressing his own purpose; digressions, caused by vivid memories crowding in upon him while he was speaking; appeals, recommendations, recriminations which none but Moses could have dared; and, especially, confessions of disappointment and regret—so keen, so bitter, as if his heart would break—that he might not be willing to enter into the grant of garments and Note well, also, the extremes that meet, and are melted into a living whole, by the intense feeling with which the speaker is beseeching his generation: What nation on earth is like this great nation! Foolish people and unwise!" Note also the language—"the travail—"for the people’s well-being into which his passionate love or ushh. He speaks, and speaks; he must surely have spoken from day to day! Yes, there is nothing he can do. He can resolve his passion into song—a song for the tongue, for the ear, for the memory; a song to live among the people, to be recited in their gatherings, to be accompanied by the harp. He has harangued them, he has warned them; now he will bewitch them. Thus is born his Witnessing Song (chap. xxxii). This is not the place to analyse that marvellous composition. Read it; get into sympathy with it. Against the doubt whether Moses could have composed it, it be let be said, Could anyone else have composed it? With regard to the Song of "Blessing" which stands in the next chapter (chap. xxxiii), the case in many ways is very different. Instead of seeming to grow out of the speeches which have gone before, it is couched in a totally opposite style. Does it seem to be a blessing composition only—dedication only. What then? Shall we contradict Moses’ editor, who records that "This is the blessing wherewith Moses the servant of God blessed the children of Israel before his death"! There is no need: One of two supposition is open to us, both of which are perfectly rational, either of which, despite all the strain of the argument, is perfectly legitimate for the prophet-post. We may conceive of the "Blessing" as in the main composed long years before these parting scenes, only now put into the present form; or we may form another hypothesis: we may conceive that the mind of Moses passed into a serener atmosphere after the event, and strain of the imminent speeches were over—that his fears having found adequate expression, the man of God rested in the consciousness that he had done his duty; knowing, moreover, that, after all, there was hope in the end for Israel, how many owers her sins would be, how terrible scores the sufferings must be which she would receive, to enter, to possess, without more delay. And what unique events had already happened: the sullen acquiescence in Israel’s triumph, and, with it, exulted conquest of the magnanimous lands of the sullen over the matter of Baal-peor, with which the names of Balak and Balaam are shockingly associated; the moral prostration, at the tribulation of the magnanimous Gilead and Bashan, with all the stir of war whetting the swords of Israel’s warriors with keen eagerness for the grant of garments. Such is the paper as it originally appeared in print. There is little to add. Since it was written some attention has been given to what the critics who treat of the Literature of the Old Testament—so to write the general persuasion of the present writer. It is still conceived that, full allowance being made for the necessary editing of the Sacred book, it is great that no disturbance of the internal claim to Authorship where, as in this case, it is plainly made in the writing itself, and where that claim is seen to rest on some points of inherent probability. It is, of course, undesirable to get involved in technicalities. It matters little whether the term "author" is applied to Moses or to his Editors, provided it is well understood what is intended. The one weighty question is whether the great Lawgiver did actually deliver the sacred scrolls from his own recollection, from his mouth, and whether his speeches have been honestly and competently edited for the purpose, and during the process, of being handed down to us.

ESCAPE GOAT, TREE— FOR AZAZEL.

"As one lot for Azazel" (Lev. vii).—It seems impossible to dissent from the opinion that "Azazel," instead of being a name for the (escape) goat, is the name or title of an evil being, opposed to Yahweh, to whom the live goat on the great Day of Propitiation was sent. Admitting so much, it still remains to inquire into the meaning of this very peculiar but impressive ceremony of sending the living goat to Azazel. Assuming that Satan is represented by Azazel—and there does not appear anything else which bibliically we can assume—it is most important to observe that there is here no sacrifice offered to the evil spirit. The second goat is not slain, but in marked contrast to its fellow is preserved alive, and remains the living goat to the end. It is true it is led away to or toward the desert, and goes thither bearing the sins of the people which have been symbolically laid upon its head. But it has been too much overlooked that it carries the desert something else besides the sins of the congregation. It bears the death of its companion, which has been just as truly put upon it as it has for the altered moral structure of the people (ver. 10). The death thus put upon it was the death of the people’s sin-bearer. Therefore, the only sin that it bears into the desert has already been exacted. And, unless we stultify the whole transaction of that solemn day, we must admit that, if the sins referring to the sacrifices of Azazel, "Slay me if thou canst," the death of its fellow, which covered it, as loudly cried, "Slay me if thou darest! I claim to live! I have already died in my companion whose death is accounted mine!" In point of fact, no hint is given of any harm befalling the goat that was dismissed; and despite the romance of the book of Enoch, preceded or followed by Jewish tradition, to the effect that the goat was the one from which the seed of Noah was preserved, it is far more respectful to the Levitical appointment to stop where it closes than to add a sequel which might purposefully lend a false colour to the narrative. As well imagination, an untimely end to the living bird dipped in the blood of its fellow and then let go free ( chap. xiv. 53) as to pursue the tale with any such gold imagination. Then it was taken, by the man appointed, into a lone land is excellent symbolism; and may well have pictured the discomposed looks of the people's return to forsaken homes—into utter oblivion. Instead of fancying anything further, rather let common sense suggest that the goat could (just as our sentry and his conductor) in its way back to the haunts of men, to be indistinguishably lost in the crowd of its natural congeners. Delivered once and for all from this mistaken dream, and reverting once more to Azazel, it is enough to say that this particular feature, instead of suggesting any sacrifice to Satan, much rather amounts to a triumphant disance of "him that held the dominion of death, that is, the Adversary" ( Heb. ii. 14); all the more so when the trend of such passages as Is. i. 8, Rom. viii. 35, 38, Rev. xii. 10, 11, is patiently considered. From the above it may rightly be inferred that the meaning of "and all the inhabitants of the earth shall know that I am the Lord" ("entire remnant here is regarded by the present translator as unsatisfactory.

PHARAOH'S HEART. THE HARDENING OF.

In his commentary on this place (Ex. iv. 21) Kalshe says: "As the external, often accidental, occasion of an event is mostly more obvious, even to the reflecting mind, than its primary cause or its true (often hidden) original, it has been a linguistic peculiarity in most ancient languages, especially the Semitic, languages, to use indiscriminately the former instead of the latter, so that the phrase, 'I shall harden Pharaoh's heart,' means: 'I know that I shall be the cause of Pharaoh's obstinacy; my commands and wonders will be an occasion, an inducement to a certain degree of volition on his part.' The change from the passive to the active voice, is thus a unmistakable lassitude of God, who, instead of crushing the haughtiness of the refractory king with one powerful blow, is pleased to reform him by various lesser punishments, and who generally announced the time of the occurrence of the plagues by the words, 'Behold, I shall afflict thee to-morrow.' In order to grant him time for reflection and repentance; this clemency on the part of God increased Pharaoh's refractoriness; it was to him a cause of prolonged and renewed resistances.

The importance of the question thus suggested, coupled with a consideration of the translator's responsibility to do justice partly can, partly must, in the present state of the matter, may render a few further facts and observations of practical interest. Is it right, on the part of the translator, to render the contexts of the passages, that he endeavoured to avoid representing God as the author or instigator of wickedness.

1. That Hebrew Grammarians distinctly avow occasion or permission to be sometimes the sense of verbs which ordinarily signify cause may be verified by a reference to the Hebrew Grammar of Gesenius, say in the admirable translation of Dr. Benjamin Davies (p. 12). After stating that the verbal form (conjugation) called denotes intensity and repetition, this grammar adds: "It often takes the modifications expressed by permit, to allow, to help, etc., to help, etc., simply "let them go." The only cause was permission, the removal of restraint. Again, when Elisha said (2 Kings vii. 5), "Send me, and let me go," all he meant was, "Let me go." But, when they urged him until he was ashamed, he said, "Send," A command, you may say! But did Elisha himself regard it in that light? On the contrary, when the seekers for Elisha returned without success, he exclaimed, "Did I not say unto you, Do not go after me (2 Kings ii. 16-18). Why multiplLy illustrations? Let it suffice to apply those already given. There is at least a single case in which the Most High appears to have commanded an act of destruction, and a good example of what is to be understood in the case of the prophet Meshaiah was in peril of his life, daring to oppose two absolute monarchs, one of whom mortally hated him; though an appeal to the king was worth nothing, he could go straight to the ultimate mark by declaring that the words of God to the seducing spirit can and must be regarded as absolute and literal. Our translation mission to deceive. Either this, or the holiness of God is a myth, and the Bible has been written in vain. In fine, on the referred character of God we n't

PROPIETATORY COVERING.

Instead of "make atonement for" this translation has, mostly, "put a propitiatory covering over," and this is undeniable a more adequate rendering of the original. The word kippur is the intensive (pi'el) form of kiphar, which by general consent means to cover. And though kippur is set apart to denote moral covering generally by sacrifice, yet it does not follow that the mental conception of covering is thereby lost. Indeed the prevailing reference of this species of covering to persons as the object, and the favourite construction of the verb with 'aš 'upon' and bā'ar 'about,' point clearly to the wisdom of preserving the more graphic rendering which has here been ventured, and which preserves the striking idealism of the Hebrew. Speaking of the application of kippur to various classes of offerings, the Oxford Testament (p. 498) says: "Underlying all these offerings there is the conception that the persons offering are covered by that which is regarded as sufficient and satisfactory by Yahweh. Although this thought may be held to abate something of its picturesqueness when the action is regarded as taking effect on inanimate such as the 'altar,' the tent of meeting," &c.—yet these merely derived applications can scarcely be taken to efface the deeper idealism, where that apply holds good. Kippur may easily be said to signify 'to atone,' but the question arises, what is the radical O.T. conception of 'atonement'? Or, the word in question may be held to denote 'to cover,' but still the question is pertinent. Has this great 'atonying' word nothing to say regarding the means by which forgiveness is secured? The more must be made of this, that in many instances (ill it becomes the standing formula in the book of Leviticus) forgiveness is spoken of as a sequent to the atoning act rather than to that act itself. The atoning lies behind the forgiving. Even where the verb 'to forgive' would seem an apt rendering of the Hebrew kippur, it will generally be found that the more graphic translation which keeps up a filiation of connection with the sacrificial means by which forgiveness is secured, is to be preferred. The great heat of this rendering, however, most clearly comes in throughout those numerous cases in which there is an undeniable surrender of life for life. The sacrifice covers the sinner—how? By dying in his stead. One life covers another when one is surrendered and the other therefore spared. The blow must fall; for the wages of sin is death, and without the shedding of blood there is no remission. But it falls on the substituted life. The dead covers the living. The living is ransomed—purloined—set free. Such covering is essentially propitiatory covering. Substitution is of its essence. Any possible abuse of this fundamental Hebrew concept will be cut short by doing careful and equal justice to the entire Levitical ritual. The offerer consents to the substitution: and by himself or his representative takes an essential share in the transfer of the penalty of the sin which he confesses. Man consents; God consents. The substitutionary death is granted by God; it is accepted by the offerer. Accepting under the solemn stipulation that the spared life shall be wholly consecrated to the holy and merciful God who brings near this costly value, he is wanting in the ritual—the consent of the substitute. Nay, a second thing is missing—adequacy of value in the substituted. Be it so! Then when a substitute shall appear who shall willingly bear the sin of the world, and be worthy to bear it; and God consents and ordains; and man consents and accepts; then the whole idea of Propitiatory Covering will be complete. It remains for the World and for the Individual to carry the matter to its practical consummation.

SIN = SIN-OFFERING = SIN-BEAVER.

One of the most striking and significant facts in the language of Leviticus among the O.T. generally is the fact that the sin-offering and the guilt-offering are in Hebrew called simply 'sin' and 'guilt'—the victim being called simply the 'offence which it bears and for which it dies.' As this usage could not have been intended to confound moral delinquency or abnormal moral condition with an innocent and unoffending animal, the usage can only be regarded as vividly setting forth the close connection between sin and death—the doom of sin to end in death—the destiny of the sinner to carry his guilt into death and to lose the salvation which was the object of it. The sacrifice thus becomes an impressive object-lesson—a dramatic representation of palkia moral intractability. The victim is put in the sinner's place, and is then slain. One sinner; another dies. Between these two facts is interposed the symbolic ceremony of the laying-on (or more exactly, the leaning-on) of the hands of the sinner upon the head of the sin-bearer. The sinner is thereby represented as transferred from the former to the latter: he is not indeed in its moral insufficiency, but in its legal answerableness. To render such a transference possible, Divine sanction is essential. It is chiefly and ultimately against God that sin is conceived. His prime law is that the person who sins—the same shall die (Ez. xvii. 4); and be Yahweh himself alone as commutate or transfer the penalty. Besides, all life is his gift and care. No animal can be lawfully slain without his permission. Hence, in divinely-appointed sacrifice, his permission is seen—a fact formally and solemnly exemplified in Leviticus xvii. 11. He grants, within certain limits what he alone could rightfully grant, the substances of life for upon the altar of sacrifice. But although, this divine sanction is essential to acceptable substitutionary sacrifice, the interest and obligation of the offender must not be overlooked. He knows that it is for him to make amends, if he can, and if he may. And it is worthy of note that between him and his substitute a near relation is presupposed or implied; that the flesh of the lamb was to be selected and brought to the offerer's house, there to be kept and passed—so as to render the offering of it the offering of his own heart—of himself (Ez. xvi. 5-6).

In like manner, on the great Day of Propitiation, when all the sacrifices of the year are burned up and completed, it was 'from the people that the priest was instructed to accept the sin-bearers which were to be offered in their behalf (Lev. xxi. 5). It is of course conceivable that the sinner may be unable to provide an acceptable sacrifice; in which case it is possible that God himself may provide the Lamb (Gen. ii. 8); and indeed a glimmering perception of the possible need of some notable Divine provision seems to have prophetically carried away the patriarch Abraham into the desert of Mount Moriah, of the name 'Yahweh-yireh' ('Yahweh will provide'), and to have induced others to prolong the anticipation in the saying, 'In the thickness of the thicket shall provision be made' (Gen. xxxii. 14). The need of Divine Sanction to the constitution of effaces Substitution attains its most weighty expression when we read in the prophets: 'Yahweh caused to keep upon him the iniquity of us all' (Isa. lvi. 6). No other than He could make that true in the Servant whom he may. In view of the impressive lesser thus afforded, and which is so prominent in the book of Leviticus (where the word kippur means sin—fifty-three times stands for the sin-ridden the translator would fain have followed the severity of the Hebrew and used the one word kippur. Doubting the intelligibility of such a terminology at present, he has not ventured on that course. He has, however, preferred 'sin-bearer' to 'sin-offering,' as penetrating just a little further into the heart of the matter. "Sin-bearer" meand "sin" should never be "homologate" the one term "sin" for "baita" throughout the book of Leviticus, we should assuredly have climbed the high level which would conduct us triumphantly into the great Pauline utterance of 2 Cor. v. 21. The translator is pleased (on reviewing the three editions of his N.T.) to see that he has resisted the temptation to substitute "sin-offering" for "sin" ('made him to be sin') in that passage, and he traces to it, the origin of the false and abnormal usage in Leviticus: 'sin-offering'—yes, but what constitutes a "sin-offering" save the imputation of the sin of another? The "sin-offering" never led the offerer, as he viewed his substitute, to explain, 'There goes—there dies—my Sin!'

PREFACE TO THE FOURTH EDITION.

The recent completion of "The Emphasised Bible" renders this issue of a Fourth Edition of the New Testament portion of that work a fitting occasion for the insertion of a new Preface here.

The Unity of "The Emphasised Bible" has controlled the moulding of its constituent parts. The New Testament, first published in 1872, and then in 1878 (under the title of "The New Testament Newly Translated and Critically Emphasised"), was entirely remodelled and received its present shorter title in 1897, so that it might take its place as an essential portion of the whole book. To that the Old Testament was conformed in size, type, style of translating, and method of emphasising; both Testaments being dealt with in the Expository Introduction placed before the Book of Genesis, in which Introduction the peculiarities of the entire work are explained in Four Chapters.

It is believed that this Unity of Plan and Execution serves to set in clearer light the essential oneness of the Sacred Volume: to render which service as complete as possible, an Introductory Note on "The Interpretation of the Bible" follows this Preface; moreover also a small handbook has been issued, entitled "Our Sacred Books: being Plain Chapters on the Inspiration, Transmission and Translation of the Bible."

May these endeavours receive the Divine blessing!

INTRODUCTORY NOTE
ON
THE INTERPRETATION OF THE BIBLE.

"Understandest thou what thou readest?" is a most natural question for a Translator to ask: first, from an inevitable solicitude that his rendering should not have missed its mark; and, secondly, from the self-restraint with which, though essentially an interpreter himself, he has continually left outlying questions of exegesis to the judgment of his readers.

But, just here, between the Old Testament and the New, the problem of Interpretation becomes momentous and urgent, since therein is involved the very claim of the New Testament to follow the Old as a rightful part of the One Book. In weighing this problem, the following principles demand consideration—namely, continuity, gradation, fulfilment, adaptation and advancement.

1. Continuity, while chiefly consisting in the re-appearance of the things of the Old in the New, runs partly also on verbal lines of connection between the Hebrew Scriptures and the Christian, so that, by the help of such words as "God," "Israel," and "Gentiles," "faith," "holiness" and "salvation," "heaven" and "earth," "life" and "death," "hades," "messenger," "age-abiding," and others too numerous to mention, the reader finds himself resuming in the Later Writings themes with which he had become familiar in the Earlier. And so, notwithstanding the great difference between them, the New Testament appears to run on as a continuation of the Old. The moral atmosphere is the same. It is God who is still speaking, in words which reveal His holiness and love. The appeal is still to men's consciences.

2. Nevertheless a marked gradation may be traced between the Book of Genesis and the Book of the Revelation. Even the earliest Books of the Bible are marked by the appearances of growth. The Book of Genesis is plainly introductory to the Book of Exodus; but the former shows within itself the signs of development—the small germ-record being followed by the larger narrative, each with its fitting commencement. No subtle criticism is needed to reveal these tokens of advancement: they are open to every eye. And as literary development appears, so does historical. The world before the Flood, leaving behind its admonitory lessons for all time, makes way for the world after the Flood. Of the three sons of Noah, Ham and Japheth, after coming on the scene, retire before Shem, because from Shem Abraham is to arise, and from Abraham the Chosen Nation. Simultaneously with the progress of history, prophecy advances, an early promise being amplified into repeated and enlarged predictions, running along the line which history has prepared for their accomplishment. The Man becomes a Nation, the Nation is called to be the Servant of Yahweh for ministry to the other nations of the earth, until at length the Ministering Nation itself is seen led on to its destiny by its Suffering and Conquering Messiah. The Messiah Himself is more and more clearly foreshadowed as time goes on, the promised Seed of the Woman being destined to appear in Abraham's line, of David's family, and to come forth from Bethlehem. Then we turn over the leaf, and the Coming One appears, though in lowliness at first, to be rejected—like Joseph, like Moses! Meantime, as history and prophecy march on, morals are uplifted, the temporary permission of half-remedies for social evils being closed when the Greater Prophet arrives; and just when hope rises on loftier wing, patience and self-sacrifice become the crowning virtues, and when the Mystery of Suffering deepens, larger and more satisfying solutions are discerned; so that a half-chapter from the Epistle to the Romans does more to solve the riddle than the elaborate drama and lengthy arguments of the Book of Job, and the Hallelujahs of the Apocalypse, in sweep and fulness of triumph, manifestly transcend any heard in the Psalms or the Prophets.

3. The fulfilment of Prophecy begins in the Old Testament, and then runs over into the New. The one man becomes a great nation, yea many nations spring from his loins. The Messiah appears, and the songs sung by heavenly messengers over Bethlehem's plains are learned and lisped for centuries by Gentile babes, and myriads of martyrs from among the Nations joyfully surrender their lives for very love of the Crucified Son of David, whose face they are sure they shall behold in glory. But fulfilment comes by instalments—the Eternal seems to be in no haste. The Old Testament is partly fulfilled in the New, and this measure of accomplishment forms a magnificent pledge of all the rest; nevertheless a glorious Remainder awaits the times of the accomplishment of all the things that are written. What is not fulfilled by the First Advent will be filled to the full by the Second, when "the heavens shall be set open, and the messengers of God ascend and descend unto the Son of Man."* Christians believe that the Jesus of the New Testament is the Messiah foreshadowed in the Old; they are unwise if they affirm that He has already entered upon the whole work assigned Him. Restraining themselves from assuming too much, they are left free to do the completest exegetical justice to the Hebrew Scriptures as well as to their own. They can well afford to favour a natural interpretation of the whole Bible—of poetry as poetry, allowing for poetical license; of prophecy as prophecy, granting that some dimness must needs rest on things yet to come, especially when the like of them have never happened yet; but abasing nothing from the programme, hiding nothing, denying nothing; never allegorising without express warrant or manifest need.

Meanwhile, however, ADAPTATION, as distinguished from fulfilment, claims its due. For a prophecy may be verified in principle long before it is fulfilled according to its own contextual intention. Yahweh has an undoubted right to make "a People" out of Gentiles who before were "No-people," as the Apostle Paul well understood; but He has more than the right, He has the revealed intention of bringing the Hebrew nation itself through the three successive conditions of being first "a People," second "No-people," and third "a People" again, as clearly announced by the Prophet Hosea. It is sheer Gentile blindness not to see this; and the habit of overlooking it may, without exaggeration, be said to wreck all sound interpretation of the Old Testament Prophecies. For under its influence nothing in the ancient predictions can be trusted to mean what it says, even after making reasonable allowance for figurative language. Whereas, when borrowed language is frankly acknowledged to bear that character, and the interpreter faithfully reverts to its original intention in its own context—so that, in the Old Testament, "Israel" means Israel and "Jerusalem" means Jerusalem—then the Messiah's promised Kingdom is seen to remain intact, and the ancient prophecies concerning it can be interpreted according to their obvious significance. The manifold wisdom of God has made ample provision for the Messiah's Ecclesia, so that her heavenly portion can be assigned her as His Bride, without interference with the Messiah's Kingdom, the chief earthly place therein being still regarded as inviolably reserved for that ancient Nation whose continued existence is the most extended and persistent miracle the world has ever seen.

5. With just abatement, however, on the score of partial fulfilment in the realm of facts and of free adaptation in the sphere of language, ADAPTATION presses its way to the front, claiming that, though injustice must not be done to the Hebrew Scriptures, yet less than justice shall not be accorded to the Christian Scriptures. The advancement made in the progress of events is so decisive as of necessity to charge language with new forces and to create new forms of expression, thereby profoundly influencing the whole science of Biblical Interpretation. The fundamental Christian assumptions are: that the Messiah has come—that His own people have rejected Him—that the promised Kingdom is postponed—that now the First Advent must be followed by a Second—that meantime an Ecclesia (or "assembly") is being summoned from the ends of the earth—that, though not herself the Kingdom, yet in her heart the hope of the Kingdom is implanted, and by her activities preparations for its establishment are being signally matured—that on this Ecclesia spiritual gifts have been bestowed, and in its spiritual men have been produced who, though in many ways like the prophets of old, yet in some ways surpass them—and that to one of these spiritual men in particular, namely Saul, of the tribe of Benjamin, also called Paul, has been committed the stupendous privilege of revealing a New Dispensation, intercalated among the Ages between the Two Advents, in other words between the Rejection and Reception of the Messiah by His own people. It thus comes about that by these concurrent advancements of facts, and of revelation as to their meaning, our methods of interpretation are enlarged and elevated. Many new words and phrases are added to our vocabulary, such as "apostle," "disciple," "church" (or "assembly"), "overseer," "imme," "age-abiding life," "wrath to come"; and some old words are deepened in their significance, such as "good-tidings," "sacrifice," "sanctification," "judgment." In short, Christians are the same and yet not the same as Jews: the same, in that the former as well as the latter believe in the promises made unto the fathers; not the same, inasmuch as the hopes of Christians are loftier and their outlook is more comprehensive. And all these things affect Christian Interpretation, which has to embrace new things as well as old, and therefore is naturally compelled to blend old and new in rightful proportions.

These, then, are the leading principles which, it is submitted, must underlie any successful endeavour to interpret harmoniously the Jewish and Christian Scriptures. To render such an undertaking successful is to obtain three results of incalculable value. It is, first, to offer a basis on which each reader may frame for himself a few simple by-laws for Scripture exegesis; secondly, to vindicate the right of the New Testament to stand at the close of the Old as its legitimate sequel; and, thirdly, to offer a triumphant defence of the entire Bible, which—drawn from materials accumulated through long ages, penned by authors mainly to each other unknown, and dealing with facts, laws, and instructions constituting successive dispensations of Divine dealings with human affairs—nevertheless submits to be consistently understood from end to end in a way which satisfies and sanctifies the mind, the conscience, and the life.

|| Double lines indicate more decided stress.
< > these angular marks ask for more or less force in utterance; are always introductory; and therefore never used at the close of a sentence. In long prefixed clauses, their form will readily catch the anticipating eye of the reader; and due attention to them will, it is believed, prove especially helpful towards an immediate perception of the structure of long sentences. They are occasionally borrowed to meet an emergency, when several shades of emphasis can be distinguished to advantage.

m': an acute accent denotes the least possible increase of stress. Its nearly uniform application to prefixed adjectives may interest the Greek student. This sign also helps in an emergency.

 A half comma (,) simply relieves the comma, which is apt to be overmuch used or annoyingly omitted.

Note.—When, in the Epistles, the indentations of the type have been carried as far from the margin as was convenient, and yet the thought of the Writer invited a still further subordinating of clauses, a few logical capitals have occasionally been thrown in, suggesting where new lines might be commenced in writing out a passage upon an enlarged scale as an aid to exposition. In any case, as Logical Analysis is necessarily subjective, and appeals to the reader's comprehension and insight, the student is counselled, pencil in hand, to revise these typographical indications for himself, by pushing in or drawing out the lines according to his own judgment. On the basis here provided, nothing could be easier, while the profit would be certainly great. As Dr. Richard Moulton well observes in his admirable work "The Bible as Literature," it is not so much a question of right or wrong, as of good, better and best.

MATTHEW.

§ 1. The Lineage Roll. Lu. iii. 23-38;
1 Ch. ii. 1-15; iii. 1-19.
1 The Lineage Roll of Jesus Christ.—
Son of David, Son of Abraham.
2 | Abraham | begat Isaac,
    And | Isaac | begat Jacob,
    And | Jacob | begat Judah, and his brethren;
3 | Judah | begat Perez and Zarah of Tamah,
    And | Perez | begat Hezron,
    And | Hezron | begat Ram;
4 | Ram | begat Amminadab,
    And | Amminadab | begat Nahshon,
    And | Nahshon | begat Salmon;
5 | Salmon | begat Boaz of Rahab,
    And | Boaz | begat Obed of Ruth,
    And | Obed | begat Jesse;
6 | Jesse | begat David the King;—
And | David | begat Solomon of her [that had been the wife] of Uriah;
7 | Solomon | begat Rehoboam,
    And | Rehoboam | begat Abijah,
    And | Abijah | begat Asa;
8 | Asa | begat Jehoshaphat,
    And | Jehoshaphat | begat Joram,
    And | Joram | begat Uzziah;
9 | Uzziah | begat Jotham,
    And | Jotham | begat Ahaz,
    And | Ahaz | begat Hezekiah;
10 | Hezekiah | begat Manasseh,
    And | Manasseh | begat Amon,
    And | Amon | begat Josiah;
11 | Josiah | begat Jeconiah, and his brethren,—upon the removal to Babylon.
12 And <after the removal to Babylon> | Jeconiah | begat Shealtiel,
      And | Shealtiel | begat Zerubbabel;
13 | Zerubbabel | begat Abiud,
      And | Abiud | begat Eliakim,
      And | Eliakim | begat Azor;
14 | Azor | begat Sadoc,
      And | Sadoc | begat Achim,
      And | Achim | begat Eliud;
15 | Eliud | begat Eleazar,
      And | Eleazar | begat Mathan,
      And | Mathan | begat Jacob;—
16 And | Jacob | begat Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus,—who is called Christ.

17 So then <all> the generations from Abraham unto David are fourteen generations,

* Ap: “Christ.”

And <from David unto the removal to Babylon> fourteen generations;
And <from the removal to Babylon, unto the Christ> fourteen generations.

§ 2. The Birth.
18 Now the birth of Jesus Christ was thus: His mother Mary having been betrothed to Joseph,—before they came together she was found with child by [the] Holy Spirit.
19 Moreover, Joseph her husband being righteous, and yet unwilling to expose her, intended privately to divorce her. But when these things he had pondered > lo! | a messenger of the Lord | by dream | appeared to him, saying,—
Joseph, son of David: do not fear to take unto thee Mary thy wife, for <that which in her> hath been begotten is of [the] Holy Spirit.
21 Moreover she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins.
22 But <all this> hath come to pass, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord, through the prophet, saying:
23 Lo! | a | Virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son,—and they will call his name Emmanuel; which is, being translated, God with us.
24 And Joseph, <awaking> from his sleep, did as the messenger of the Lord directed him,—and took unto him his wife; and knew her not, until she had brought forth a son, and—he called his name Jesus.

§ 3. The Visit of the Wise Men.
2 Now <when> Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judaea, in the days of Herod the king > lo! wise men from eastern parts came into Jerusalem; <saying>—
Where is he that hath been born king of the Jews? for we saw his star in the east, and have come to bow down to him.
3 But <when> King Herod heard > he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him; and <assembling all> the high-priests and scribes of the people > he was enquiring of them—
Where is the Christ to be born?

* Ap: “Jesus,” better "a."
* He is the one!
* Mi: “the”; but prob. (alf Lu. ii. 7, 21.)
And they said to him, in Bethlehem of Judah,— for so is it written through the prophet:

And thou, Bethlehem, land of Judah, by no means least art thou, among the governors of Judah, for out of thee shall one come forth to govern, who shall shepherd my people Israel.

Then Herod, privately calling the wise men, ascertained from them the time of the appearing star; and sending them to Bethlehem, said—

Go search out accurately concerning the child, and as soon as ye find it bring report unto me, that I also may come and bow myself down to it.

Now they, hearing the king, went, and lo! the star which they had seen in the east was going before them, until it went and stood over where the child was; and seeing the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy; and coming into the house, they saw the child, with Mary its mother, and falling down, prostrated themselves unto it, and, opening their treasures, offered unto it gifts—gold and frankincense and myrrh; and being instructed by dream, not to return unto Herod, by another way retired they unto their own country.

Now when they had retired, lo! a messenger of the Lord appeared by dream unto Joseph, saying—

Arise, take unto thee the child and its mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there, until I tell thee,—for Herod is about to seek the child, to destroy it.

And he arising, took unto him the child and its mother, by night, and retired into Egypt; and was there, until the death of Herod,—that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying—

Out of Egypt called I my son.

Then Herod, seeing that he had been mocked by the wise men, was exceedingly enraged, and sent and slew all the male children that were in Bethlehem, and in all its bounds, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had ascertained from the wise men.

Then was fulfilled, which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet, saying—

A voice in Ramah was heard, Weeping and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted—because they are not.

But when Herod was dead, lo! a messenger of the Lord appeared by dream unto Joseph in Egypt; saying—

Arise! and take unto thee the child and its mother, and be journeying into the land of Israel,—for they are dead, who were seeking the life of the child.

And he arising, took unto him the child and its mother, and entered into the land of Israel.

Hearing, however, that Archelaus was reigning over Judea instead of his father Herod, he was afraid thither to go, and so, being instructed by dream, he retired into the parts of Galilee; and came and fixed his dwelling in a city called Nazareth, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken through the prophets—

A Nazarene shall he be called.

§ 5. The Forerunner. Mk. i. 2-8; Lu. iii. 3-17.

Now in those days came John the Immerser, proclaiming in the wilderness of Judea; saying—

Repent ye, for the kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near.

For this is he who was spoken of through Isaiah the prophet, saying—

A voice, of one crying aloud! In the wilderness prepare ye the way of the Lord.

Straight be making his paths.

But John himself had his raiment of camel’s hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins,—while his food was locusts and wild honey.

Then they were going forth unto him—Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the country round about the Jordan; and were being immersed in the Jordan river, by him, openly confessing their sins.

But seeing [many of the Pharisees and Sadducees] coming unto his immersion he said to them,—

Broods of vipers! who suggested to you, to be fleeing from the coming wrath?

Bring forth, therefore, fruit worthy of repentance; and think not to be saying within yourselves,—As our father we have [Abraham];—

For, I say unto you, that God is able [out of these stones] to raise up children unto Abraham.

Already also the axe unto the root of the trees is being laid,—every tree, therefore, not bringing forth good fruit is to be hewn down, and [into fire] to be cast.

I indeed, am immersing you in water, unto repentance,—but he who after me cometh is mightier than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to bear; he will immerse you in Holy Spirit and fire:

Whose fan is in his hand, and he will clear out his threshing-floor, and will gather his wheat into the granary, but the chaff he will burn up with fire unquenchable.

§ 6. The Immersion. Mk. i. 9-11; Lu. iii. 21, 22; Jn. i. 33.

Then cometh Jesus, from Galilee to the Jordan, unto John,—to be immersed by him.

14 But [he] would have hindered him, saying—
[I have [need]; by thee I to be immersed,— and dost thou come unto me?
15 But Jesus answering, said unto him,
Suffer [me] even now,—for [thus] it becometh us to fulfil [all righteousness];
16 Then he suffered him.
17 And Jesus <having been immersed> straightway went up from the water,—and lo! the heavens were opened and he saw the Spirit of God, descending like a dove coming upon him; 17 and lo! a voice out of the heavens—saying,
This is my Son, the Beloved, in whom I delight.

§ 7. The Temptation. Mk. i. 12, 13; Lu. iv. 1–13.
4 Then Jesus was led up into the wilderness,
by the Spirit, to be tempted by the adversary;
2 and, fasting forty days and forty nights,— afterwards he hungered.
3 And, coming near, the tempter said to him,—
If thou art God's [Son]—speak! that these stones may become [loaves].
4 But [he] answering, said,
Not on bread alone shall man live,
But on every declaration coming forth through the mouth of God.
5 Then the adversary taketh him with him, unto the holy city,—and he set him upon the pinnacle of the temple;
and saith to him—
If thou art God's [Son]—cast thyself down,—for it is written,
[To his messengers] will he give charge concerning thee;
And on hands will they bear thee up,
Lest once thou strike against a stone, thy foot.
7 Jesus said to him,
Again it is written,—
Thou shalt not put to the test [the Lord thy God].
8 Again the adversary taketh him with him, into an exceeding high mountain,—and pointeth out to him all the kingdoms of the world, and their glory;
and said to him,
All these things will I give thee,—if thou wilt fall down and worship me.
9 Then saith Jesus unto him,
Withdraw, Satan! for it is written,
[The Lord thy God] shall thou worship,
And to him alone render divine service.
11 Then the adversary leaveth him,—and lo!
[ messengers] came near, and began ministering unto him.

§ 8. Jesus begins his Ministry in Galilee.
Mk. i. 14–20; Lu. iv. 14, 15.
12 And <hearing that John had been delivered up>, he retired into Galilee; and, forsaking Nazareth, he came and fixed his dwelling in Capernaum, which was by the sea,—within the bounds of Zebulun and Naphtali:
that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying:
13 Land of Zebulun, and land of Naphtali,
The sea-way across the Jordan,—Galilee of the nations>
16 The people that was sitting in darkness
A great light beheld,—
And [on them who were sitting in land and shade of death]
Light rose on them.
17 From that time began Jesus to be making proclamation, and saying,— Repent ye, for the kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near.
18 And walking round beside the sea of Galilee,— he saw two brethren—Simon who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother,—casting a large fishing-net into the sea, for they were fishers;
and he saith unto them,
Come after me,—
And I will make you fishers of men.
20 And [they] straightway leaving the nets, followed him.
21 And going forward from thence> he saw other two brethren—
James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother—in the boat with Zebedee their father, putting in order their nets,—and he called them.
22 And [they] straightway leaving the boat and their father, followed him.
23 And Jesus was going round throughout all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaming the glad-message of the kingdom,— and currying every disease, and every infirmity, among the people.
24 And forth went the report of him into all Syria; and they brought unto him all who were sick, with divers' diseases and tortures! distressed, demonized and lunatic and paralyzed,—and he cured them.
25 And there followed him large multitudes— from Galilee, and Decapolis, and Jerusalem, and Judea, and across the Jordan.

5 But seeing the multitudes he went up into a mountain,—and, when he had taken a seat, his disciples came unto him;
and, opening his mouth, he began teaching them, saying:—
3 Happy! the destitute in spirit;
For [theirs] is the kingdom of the heavens:
4 Happy! they who mourn;
For [they] shall be comforted:
5 Happy! the meek;
For [they] shall inherit the earth:
6 Happy! they who hunger and thirst for
righteousness;
For [they] shall be filled:
7 Happy! the merciful;
For [they] shall receive mercy:
8 Happy! the pure in heart;
For [they] shall [see God]:

Ps. xxiv. 4.
9 Happy the peacemakers; for they shall be called sons of God.
10 Happy they who have been persecuted for righteousness' sake; for theirs is the kingdom of the heavens.
11 Happy are ye, when they say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake; rejoice and exult, because your reward is great in the heavens; for so persecuted they the prophets who were before you.

Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt become tasteless, whatsoever shall be salted shall be salted; it is good for nothing any more, save being cast out to be trampled on by men.

Ye are the light of the world; it is impossible for a city to be hid on the top of a mountain; lying. Neither light they a lamp, and place it under the measure; but upon the lampstand, and it giveth light to all that are in the house. In like manner; let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in the heavens.

Do not think that I came to pull down the law, or the prophets; I came not to pull down, but to fulfill. Verily I say unto you, until the heaven and the earth shall pass away, one letter, or one point, may in nowise pass away from the law, till all be accomplished.

Whoever, therefore, shall relax one of these commandments, the least, and teach men so shall be called least in the kingdom of the heavens; but whoever shall do and teach as he saith shall be called great in the kingdom of the heavens.

For I say unto you, unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees, may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

Ye have heard that it was said, and to them of olden time: Thou shalt not commit murder; and whoever shall commit murder shall be liable to judgment.

But I say unto you, that whoever is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment, and whoever shall say to his brother, Thou fool, shall be liable to the high council; and whoever shall say, Rebel, shall be liable unto the fiery Gehenna.

If, therefore, thou be bearing thy gift towards the altar, and there, thy gift against thee leave, there, thy gift before the altar, and withdraw, first be reconciled unto thy brother, and (then), coming, be offering thy gift. Be making agreement with thine adversary, quickly, while thou art with him, in the way, lest one thine adversary deliver thee up unto the judge, and the judge, unto the officer, and into prison thou be cast. Verily I say unto thee, In nowise mayest thou come out from thence, until thou pay the last halfpenny.

Ye have heard, that it was said,
Thou shalt not commit adultery; But I say unto you, that whoever looks on a woman, so as to want her, already hath committed adultery with her in his heart. And whoever looketh on her with covetousness, causeth her to stumble; but whoever shall make her to stumble, causeth her to stumble; and whoever shall make her to stumble, causeth her to stumble; and whoever shall make her to stumble, causeth her to stumble; and whoever shall make her to stumble, causeth her to stumble. And whoever shall marry a divorced woman committeth adultery.

Again, ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt not swear falsely, but shall render unto the Lord thy oaths. But I tell you, render not with a false oath; Neither by heaven, because it is the throne of God, nor by the earth, because it is his footstool; nor by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the Great King;

Nor shall be thy own head; mayest thou swear, because thou art not able to make one hair white or black. But let your word be, Yes, yes, Nay, nay; and what goeth beyond these, is of evil.

Ye have heard, that it was said, Eye for eye, and tooth for tooth. But I tell you, not to resist evil, Nay, whoever shall smite thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also; and in him who is desiring thee to be judged, and to take thy tunic, shall he have, thy mantle also. And whoever shall impress thee one mile, go with him two:
42. <To him who is asking thee> give;
And <him who is desiring from thee to borrow> do not thou turn away.

43. Ye have heard, that it was said,
_THOU SHALT LOVE THY NEIGHBOUR_ and hate thine enemy.

44. But I say unto you,
Be loving your enemies._
And praying for them who persecute you:

45. That ye may become sons of your Father who is in the heavens;
Because his sun he maketh arise on evil
and good,
And sendeth rain, on just and unjust.
For <if ye love them that love you> what reward have ye?
are not even the tax-collectors_ the same thing_ doing?
And <if ye salute your brethren only> what more than common are ye doing?
are not even the nations_ the same thing_ doing?
Ye therefore, _shall become_ _perfect_;
As your heavenly Father is _perfect_.

6. [But] take heed, that ye do not _your righteousness_ before men, to be gazed at by them,— otherwise at least _reward_ have ye none, with your Father who is in the heavens.

2. When, therefore, thou mayest be doing an alms do not sound a trumpet before thee, just as _the hypocrites_; do, in the synagogues and in the streets—that they may be glorified by men,—<Verily I say unto you, they are getting back their reward._
But _when thou, when doing an alms_ let not _thy left hand_ know _what thy right hand is doing_; _that thine alms may be in secret,_ and _thy Father, who seeth in secret_ will give it back to thee.

3. And _when ye may be praying_ ye shall not be as the hypocrites, because they love _in the synagogues, and at the corners of the broad ways_ to take their stand and pray, that they may shine before men;
<Verily I say unto you, they are getting back their reward._
But _when thou, when thou wouldest pray_ enter into _thy closet, and, fastening thy door, pray_ unto _thy Father who is in secret,_ _and thy Father who seeth in secret_ will reward thee._
And _being at prayer_ use not vain repetitions, just like the nations,—for they think, that _in their much speaking_ they shall be heard_; _do not therefore, make yourselves like them,—for _God_ your Father knoweth of what things ye have need_ before ye ask him._
<Thy Father therefore pray ye_:
Our Father, who art in the heavens,—_HALLOWED be thy name,_
Come may thy kingdom,_

Achieved _be thy will, _as in heaven_ also on earth:_
|Our needful bread_ give us_ this day_; And forgive us our debts_ as _we also_ have forgiven our debtors; _and bring us not into temptation,_ But rescue us from the evil one._

For _if ye forgive men their faults_ _Your Father who is in the heavens_ will forgive _even you_;
But _if ye forgive not men_ _their faults_ _Neither will your Father_ forgive _your faults_.

And _when ye may be fasting_ _become not ye_ as _the hypocrites, of sullen countenance,—_ for they darken their looks, that they may appear _unto men_ to be fasting; _Verily_ I say unto you, they are getting back their reward._
But _when thou _dost fast_ _anoint thy head, and_ thy face _wash_, _that thou do not appear _unto men_ to be fasting, but to thy Father who is in secret,—_ and _thy Father who seeth in secret_ will reward thee._

Be not laying up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where _moth and rust_ _do tarnish, and where_ _thieves_ dig through and steal; _but be laying up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where _neither moth nor rust_ _doth tarnish, and where_ _thieves_ dig not through nor steal; _for _where _thy treasure is_ _there_ will be _thy heart_ [also].

The lamp of the body is the eye:
<If therefore thine eye be single>_ _Thy whole body_ _shall be lighted up_;
But _if thine eye be evil_ _thy whole body_ _shall be in the dark_; _If therefore_ _the light which is in thee_ is _darkness_; _The darkness_ _how great_ !

No one_ _unto two masters_ can be in service; For either _the one_ he will hate, and _the other_ love,
Or _one_ he will hold to, and _the other_ despise:
Ye cannot be in service _unto God_ and _$unto Riches_.

For this cause I say unto you:
Be not anxious _for your life_ _What ye shall eat_ _for what ye shall drink_; _Or for your body_._What ye shall put on:_ _Is not_ _the life_ more than _the food_; _And the body_ _than the raiment_;
Observe intently _the birds of the heavens_; _That they neither sow, nor reap, nor gather into barns_, And yet _your heavenly Father_ feedeth _them_; _Are not _ye_ much better than _they_? _More than “done”..._ _“accepted,” _ _“obeyed,”_ _“brought to pass,” “fulfilled,”_ _Cp. chap. xxvi. 42._ _“Mammon.”_ _“Soul.”_ _“Evil one.”_ _“lu. xi. 31.”_ _“Is. xxvi. 30; 2 K. iv. 33.”_ _“Lu. vi. 9.”_ _“Deu. xviii. 13.”_ _“Lu. xi. 31.”_ _“Lev. xix. 18.”_
27 But who among you, being anxious, can add to his stature one cubit?
28 And why are ye anxious? Consider well the lilies of the field, how they grow,
They toil not, neither do they spin;
And yet, I say unto you, not even Solomon, in all his glory, was arrayed like one of these!
Now if the grass of the field, which is to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into an oven, is God thus adorned?
Not much rather are ye little of faith?
29 Do not then be anxious saying, What shall we eat? or What shall we drink? or Wherewithal shall we be arrayed?
30 For all these things shall the nations seek after.
For your heavenly Father knoweth that ye are needing all these things.
31 But be seeking first the kingdom and its righteousness,
And all these things shall be added unto you.
32 Do not then be anxious for the morrow;
For the morrow will be anxious for itself: Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof.

7 Judge not, that ye be not judged:
2 For with what judgment ye judge shall ye be judged,
And with what measure ye mete shall it be measured unto you.
3 Why moreover, beholdest thou the mote, in the eye of thy brother,
While a beam in thine own eye thou dost not consider?
4 Or how wilt thou say unto thy brother, Let me cast the mote out of thine eye,
When, lo! a beam is in thine own eye?
5 Hypocrite! cast first the beam out of thine own eye,
And then shalt thou see clearly to cast the mote out of the eye of thy brother.
6 Do not give what is holy unto dogs,
Neither cast ye your pearls before swine,
Lest once they trample on them down with their feet,
And turning, tear ye out.
7 Be asking, and it shall be given you,
Be seeking, and ye shall find,
Be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you.
8 For whatsoever asketh receiveth,
And he that seeketh findeth,
And him that knocketh, shall it be opened.
9 Or what man from among yourselves,
Whom his son shall ask for a loaf,
A stone will give him:
Or if a fish also shall ask,
A serpent will give him?
10 If then being evil know how to give gifts to be giving unto your children,
How much more will your Father who is in the heavens give good things to them that ask him?
12 <Whatsoever things therefore, ye would, that men be doing unto you>
[So be ye also; doing unto them.]
For this is the law and the prophets.
13 Enter ye in at the narrow gate:
Because broad and roomy is the way that leadeth unto destruction,
And many are they who enter thereby:
Because the narrow is the gate, and the confined way, that leadeth unto life,
And few are they who find it.
15 Beware of false prophets,
Who come unto you in clothing of sheep,
While within they are ravening wolves.
16 By their fruits shall ye find them out,
Unless perhaps men gather:
From thorns grapes,
Or from thistles figs!
17 So every good tree bringeth forth good fruit,
The worthless tree bringeth forth evil fruit.
It is impossible for a good tree to bring forth evil fruit,
Neither a worthless tree can produce good fruit.
18 Every tree that beareth not good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire.
20 After all then by their fruits shall ye find them out.
21 Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of the heavens:
But he that doeth the will of my Father who is in the heavens.
22 Many shall say unto me in that day, Lord! Lord! did we not in thy name prophesy,
And in thy name cast out devils,
And in thy name perform many works of power?
23 And I will then say unto them, Depart from me, ye workers of unrighteousness!
24 Every one, therefore, who heareth these my words, and doeth them shall be likened to a prudent man, who built his house upon the rock:
And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and rushed against that house, and it fell not; For it had been founded upon the rock.
And every one who heareth these my words, and doeth them shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand:
And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and dashed it, and it was destroyed. a

10. A Leper cleansed. Mk. i. 40-45; Lu. v. 12-14.

And when he came down from the mountain there followed him large multitudes. And lo! a leper coming near, began to bow down to him, saying,—

Lord! if thou be willing, thou canst cleanse me.

And stretching forth his hand, he touched him, saying,—

I am willing, be cleansed!

And straightway was his leprosy cleansed.

And Jesus saith unto him, Mind! tell no one;—but withdraw, thyself, and shew to the priest, and offer the gift which Moses directed for a witness unto them.

And when he entered into Capernaum, there came near unto him a centurion, beseeching him, and saying—

Lord! my servant is sorely tormented;

He saith unto him,—I will come and cure him.

But the centurion answering said,—Lord! I am of no consideration, that under my roof thou shouldest enter,—but only say a word, and he shall be my servant. For I also am a man, under authority, having under myself soldiers, and I say this one, Go! and he goeth, and to another, Come! and he cometh, and to my servant, Do this! and he doeth it.

Now Jesus, hearing, marvelled, and said to them that followed,—Verily! I say unto you, with no one in Israel [such faith as this] have I found.

But I say unto you,

Many from east and west will have come,

And shall recline with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of the heavens;

Whereas [the sons of the kingdom], shall be cast forth into the darkness, outside—

There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

And Jesus said unto the centurion, Withdraw! and as thou hast believed, be it done for thee.

And healed was the servant in that hour.

12. Peter’s Mother-in-law cured, and many others. Mk. i. 29-34; Lu. iv. 38-44.

And Jesus, coming into the house of Peter, saw his mother-in-law laid prostrate and in a fever, and he touched her hand, and the fever left her,—and she arose, and began ministering unto him. But, when evening came, they brought unto him many demonized,—and he cast out the spirits with a word, and all who were sick he cured; that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying,—

Himself [our weaknesses] took, and [diseases] bare.

Now Jesus, seeing a multitude about him, gave orders to depart unto the other side.

And a certain scribe, coming near, said unto him,—

Teacher; I will follow thee, whithersoever thou goest.

And Jesus saith unto him:

The foxes have dens, and [the birds of the heavens] nests,—

But [the Son of Man] hath not where [his head he may recline].

And another of the disciples said unto him,—

Lord! suffer me [first] to depart, and bury my father.

But [Jesus] saith unto him,—Be following me, and leave [the dead] to bury [their own dead].

And when he entered into a boat his disciples followed him. And lo! a great squall arose in the sea, so that [the boat] was being covered by the waves,—but [he] was sleeping. And, coming near, they aroused him, saying,

Master! save, we perish!

And he saith unto them,—Why? are ye [fearful], little of faith? Then, aroused he rebuked the winds and the sea,—and it became a great calm. But [the men] marvelled, saying,

Whence is this one,—that [the both the winds and the sea] unto him, give ear?

And when he came unto the other side, into the country of the Gadarenes, there met him, two men demonized, [out of the tombs] coming forth,—fierce exceedingingly, so that no one could pass that way; and lo! they cried aloud, saying,

What have we in common with thee, O Son of God?

Hast thou come hither, before the right time to torment us?

Now there was, far from them, a herd of many swine, feeding; 21 and [the demons] began to beseech him, saying,

   "If thou dost cast us out">
Send us away, into the herd of swine.
22 And he said unto them,
   "Withdraw!"
So [they] going out, departed into the swine,—and lo! all the herd rushed down the cliff, into the sea, and died in the waters. 23 And [they who were feeding them] fled,—and, departing into the city, reported all things, and what concerned them who had been demonized. 24 And lo! 'all the city' came out to meet Jesus,—and, seeing him, they besought that he would pass on from their bounds.

§ 10. A Paralytic forgiven and healed.
   Mk. ii. 3-12; Lu. v. 18-26.
9 And, entering into a boat, he crossed over, and came into his own city. 2 And lo! they were bringing unto him a paralytic, [on a couch] laid prostrate; and Jesus, [seeing] their faith, said to the paralytic,—
   Take courage! child, forgiven are thy sins.
3 And lo! [certain of the scribes] said within themselves,—
   [This man] speaketh profanely!
4 And Jesus [knowing] their inward thoughts, said,—
   To what end are ye cherishing evil thoughts within your hearts?
5 For which is easier—
   To say, 'Forgiven are thy sins,'—
   Or to say, 'Rise and be walking!'
6 But [that ye may know, that the Son of Man hath authority] upon the earth, to be forgiving sins:
   [Then] saith he to the paralytic,—
   'Rise! take up thy couch,
   And withdraw unto thy house.'
7 And, rising, he departed unto his house.
8 Now the multitudes [seeing] were struck with fear, and glorified the God who had given authority [such as this] unto men.

§ 17. Matthew called.
   Mk. ii. 13-17; Lu. v. 27-32.
9 And Jesus [passing aside from thence] saw a man presiding over the tax-offices, called [Matthew] and saith unto him,—
   Be following me.
And, arising, he followed him. 10 And it came to pass [as he was reclining in the house] that lo! [many] tax-collectors and sinners came, and were reclining together with Jesus and his disciples. 11 And [the Pharisees] [observing it] began to say unto his disciples,— Wherefore [with tax-collectors and sinners] doth your Teacher eat?
12 And [he] hearing it, said,—
   No need have the strong, of a physician, but they who are sick.
13 But go ye, and learn what this meaneth,— [Mercy! I desire, and not] sacrifice;"—

For I came not, to call the righteous, but sinners.

§ 18. Then will they fast.
   Mk. ii. 18-22; Lu. v. 33-38.
14 Then come near unto him the disciples of John, saying,— Wherefore do we, and the Pharisees, fast a whereas [thy disciples] [fast not]?
15 And Jesus said unto them,—
   Can [the sons] of the bride chamber mourn, so long as [the bridegroom] is with them? But days will come, when the bridegroom [shall be taken from them], and [then] will they fast.
16 Howbeit [no one] layeth on a patch of unsprunk cloth, upon an old garment,—for the shrinking of it teareth away from the garment, and [a worse rent] is made.
17 Neither pour they new wine into old skins: otherwise at least, the skins are burst, and the wine runneth out, and [the skins] are spoiled,—but they pour new wine into unused skins, and [both] are together preserved.

§ 19. The Daughter of Jairus raised; and the Woman with a Flow of Blood cured.
   Mk. v. 22-43; Lu. viii. 41-56.
18 [While] these things he was speaking unto them [lo! a [certain] ruler] came, and began bowing down to him, saying,—
   My daughter! just now did! But come, and lay thy hand upon [her], and she shall live.
19 And Jesus, arising, was following him, also his disciples.
20 And lo! [a woman, having a flow of blood twelve years] coming near behind] touched the fringe of his mantle. 21 For she kept [saying] within herself,—
   [If only I touch his mantle] I shall be made well!
22 And [Jesus] [turning and seeing her] said,—
   Take courage! daughter, [Thy faith] hath made thee well.
And the woman was made well, from that hour.
23 And [Jesus] [coming] into the house of the ruler, and seeing the flute-players and the multitude in confusion] was saying:
24 Give place! for the maiden died not, but is sleeping.
And they began to deride him. 25 But [when the multitude had been put forth] he went in, and grasped her hand,—and the maiden arose. 26 And forth went this report, into the whole of that land.

But beware of men:— For they will deliver you up into high councils, And in their synagogues will they scourge you,— And before both governors and kings shall ye be brought; for my sake,— For a witness to them and the nations.

And <when they deliver you up> Be not anxious, how or what ye shall speak,— For it shall be given you, in that hour, what ye shall speak;
  For it is not ye who are speaking, But the Spirit of your Father that is speaking in you.

And <brother> will deliver up <brother> unto death, And <father> or <child>— And <children> will rise up against parents, And will put them to death.

And ye will be hated by all, because of my name,— But the one that endureth throughout, the same shall be saved.¹

Lu. vii. 18—35.

11 And it came to pass <when Jesus had finished giving instructions to his twelve disciples> he passed on from thence, to be teaching and proclaiming in their cities.

2 Now [John] <hearing in the prison the works of the Christ> [sending through his disciples] said unto him,

3 Art thou the coming one? Or [is a different one] are we to expect?

4 And [answering] Jesus said unto them— Go report unto John, what ye do hear and see:—

5 The [blind] recover sight, And [the lame] walk, [Lepers] are cleansed, And [the deaf] hear,— And [the dead] are raised, And [the destitute] are told the joyful tidings;

6 And [happy] is he, whosoever shall not find cause of stumbling [in me].

7 But <as these were going their way> Jesus began to say unto the multitudes, concerning John,— What went ye forth into the wilderness to gaze at?

8 A reed, by a wind, shaken?

9 But what went ye forth to see? A man, in soft clothing, arrayed? Lo! [they who soft clothing do wear] are in the houses of kings.

9 But why went ye forth? | A prophet| to see? Yea, I say unto you, And much more than a prophet.

11 [This] is he, concerning whom it is written,— Lo! [I send my messenger before thy face. Who shall make ready thy way before thee.]

I openly give praise unto thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth,—
In that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning,
And hast revealed them unto babes;
Yea, O Father! that [so] it hath become

[All things] unto me have been delivered up
by my Father;
And [no one] fully knoweth the Son [save
the Father);
Neither doth any one fully know [the Father]

And he to whosoever the Son, may be Come unto me! all ye that toil and are

And [I] will give you rest:

25. Disciples pluck Ears of Corn on Sabbath. Mk. ii. 23-28; Lu. vi. 1-5.

[In that season] went Jesus, on the sabbath, through the cornfields,—and [his disciples] hungered, and began to pluck ears of corn, and to eat. 2 But [the Pharisees] observing it, said unto him,— Lo! [thy disciples] are doing what it is not allowed to do [on sabbath].

And he said unto them,
Have ye never read what [David] did, [when he hungered], and they who were with him? [how he entered into the house of God and [the presence-bread] did eat,] which it was not [allowable] for him to eat, nor for them who were with him,—save for the priests [alone]?
Or have ye not read, in the law, that [on the sabbaths] the priests, in the temple, [the sabbath] profane, and are [blameless]?
But I say unto you,—[Something greater than the temple] is here!

<If, however, ye had known what this

Yea would not have condemned the blameless;
For [the Son of Man] is [Lord of the Sabbath]...

And, passing on from thence, he came into

Is it allowable [on the sabbath] to heal?
that they might accuse him]. 10 And he said unto them,

Wherefore I say unto you,

"All sin and profane speaking," shall be forgiven unto men,—

13 [On that day] Jesus, going out of the house, was sitting near the sea; and there were gathered unto him, large multitudes, so that he came into a boat, entered, and was sitting, and the multitude of the beach was standing.

14 And he spake unto them many things, in parables, saying:

Lo! the sower went forth to sow,—4 and as he sowed>

| Some | indeed, fell by the pathway, and | the birds | came, and devoured it; |

5 And | some | fell on the rocky places, where it had not much earth,—and | straightway | it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth; and | the sun rising | it was scorched, and, because it had no root, it withered away; |

24 Another parable put he before them, saying—The kingdom of the heavens hath become like a man sowing good seed in his field; 22 and while men were sleeping his enemy came, and sowed over the wheat, and the darnel also.

And when the blade shot up and forth [fruit] then appeared [the darnel also].

27 And the servants of the householder, coming near, said to him,—Sir! was it not [good] seed thou didst sow in thy field?

Whence then hath it [darnel]?

And he said unto them,—An enemy hath done this. And they say unto him,—Wilt thou then, that we go and collect it?

And he saith,—Na! let alone at any time while collecting the darnel! ye uproot, along with it, the wheat.

Suffer both to grow together until the harvest, and at harvest time I will say unto the reapers,—Collect ye first, the darnel, and bind it into bundles, with a view to the burning it up; but [the wheat] be gathering into my barn.

§ 34. The Grain of Mustard Seed. Mk. iv.

30-32; Lu. xiii. 18, 19.

31 Another parable put he before them, saying—The kingdom of the heavens is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field; 32 which indeed is less than all seeds; but when grown is greater than garden-plants, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of heaven come and lodge among its branches.

38 All these things spake Jesus in parables unto the multitudes, and without a parable was he speaking [nothing] unto them: 39 that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through the prophet, saying—

I will open [in parables] my mouth, I will bring up things hidden from the foundation.

8 Dan. iv. 21 (Chald.). Ps. lxviii. 2.

§ 37. Private Explanation Of The Darnel.

26 Then <dismissing the multitudes> he went into the house, and his disciples came near to him, saying—

Make quite plain to us the parable of the darnel of the field.

27 And he answering, said—

He that soweth the good seed is the Son of Man;

And [the field] is the world, And [the good seed] these are the sons of the kingdom,—

And [the darnel seeds] are the sons of the evil one;

And [the enemy that sowed them] is the adversary,

And [the harvest] is the conclusion of an age.

And [the reapers] are the messengers.

Just, therefore, as collected is the darnel, and [with fire is burned > so] will it be in the conclusion of the age:—

The Son of Man will send forth his messengers, and they will collect, out of his kingdom, all the causes of stumbling, and the doers of lawlessness, 40 and will cast them into the furnace of fire: 'there will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

Then, the righteous will shine forth as the sun, in the kingdom of their Father.

He that hath ears, let him hear!

§ 38. The Hidden Treasure.

The kingdom of the heavens is like unto a treasure hinder in the field, which a man finding hid, and—by reason of his joy—withdraweth and selleth whatsoever he hath, and buyeth that field.

§ 39. One Very Precious Pearl.

Again, the kingdom of the heavens is like unto a merchant, seeking beautiful pearls, 41 and finding one very precious pearl departing, he at once sold all things whatsoever he had, and bought it.

§ 40. The Drag-net.

Again1 the kingdom of the heavens is like unto a large drag-net cast into the sea and gathering of every kind, 42 which when it was filled, they dragged up on the beach, and, sitting down, collected the good into vessels, but [the worthless] forth they cast.

[So] will it be in the conclusion of the age:

The messengers will come forth, and separate the wicked from among the righteous; 40 and will cast them into the furnace of fire: 'there' will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

§ 41. The Well-taught Scribe—Things New and Old.

51 Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yes!

Zeph. i. 3. Heb.: Dan. xii. 1.
And he said unto them—
Wherefore [every scribe, discipled unto the kingdom of the heavens] is like unto a householder, who putteth forth out of his treasure, things new and old.

§ 42. Offence at the Carpenter’s Son. Mk. vi. 2-6; cp. Jn. vi. 42.

And it came to pass <when Jesus had finished those parables> he removed from thence; 44 and <coming into his own city> began teaching them in their synagogue, so that with astonishment were they being struck, and were saying—
"Whence hast [this one] this wisdom, and the mighty works?

Is not [this one] the carpenter’s ‘son’? Is not [his mother] called Mary, and are not his brethren—James and Joseph, and Simon, and Judas? 36 and [his sisters] are they not all with us? 37 Whence then hast [this one] all these things?

And they began to find cause of stumbling in him. 45 But [Jesus] said unto them—
A prophet is not without honour, save in his own city, and in his house. 46 And he did not, there, many mighty works, because of their unbelief.

14. In that season heard Herod the tetrarch, the fame of Jesus; 4 and he said unto his servants—
This is John the Immerser,—
[He] hath arisen from the dead, 3 for [this cause] are the powers working mightily within him.

3. For [Herod] seizing John, had bound him, and put him away,—because of Herodias, the wife of Philip his brother; 4 for John had been saying to him,
It is not allowed thee, to have her.

And, desiring [to kill] him, he feared the multitude, because [as a prophet] they held him. 5 But  the daughter of Herodias danced in the midst, and pleased Herod; 7 wherefore [with an oath] he promised to give her, whatsoever she should ask for herself; 8 and [she] being led on by her mother,—
Give me (saith she) here, upon a charger, the head of John the Immerser.

And the king [though grieved] yet <because of the oaths and the guests> ordered it to be given; 10 and sent and beheaded John in the prison.

11 And his head was brought upon a charger, and given unto the maiden, and she brought it to her mother. 12 And his disciples [going near] bare away the corpse, and buried him, and came and brought tidings unto Jesus.

§ 44. Five Thousand fed. Mk. vi. 32-34; Lu. ix. 10-17; Jn. vi. 1-13.

13. And Jesus [hearing it] retired from thence in a boat, into a desert place, apart,—and the multitudes [hearing of it] followed him on foot from the cities. 14 And [coming forth] he saw a great multitude,—and was moved with compassion over them, and cured their sick.
15 And [evening] arriving, the disciples came unto him, saying—
The place is [a desert], and [the hour] hath already passed,—dismiss the multitudes, 9 that they may go away into the villages, and buy themselves food.
16 But [Jesus] said unto them,
[No need] have they to go away,—give [ye] them to eat.
17 But they say unto him—
We have nothing here, save five loaves and two fishes.
18 But [he] said—
Bring [them] to me, here.
19 And [giving orders] that the multitudes should recline upon the grass,—taking the five loaves and the two fishes,—looking up into the heaven> he blessed; and, breaking, gave [the disciples] the loaves, and the multitudes unto the multitude.
And they did all eat, and were filled,—and they took up the remainder of the broken pieces, twelve baskets [full]. 21 And [they who did eat] were about five thousand [men], besides women and children.

§ 45. Jesus walks upon the Lake. Mk. vi. 45-56; Jn. vi. 16-21.

22. And [straightway] constrained he the disciples to enter into a boat, and be going before him unto the other side, while he dismissed the multitudes. 23 And, dismissing the multitudes, he went up into the mountain, apart, to pray,—and when [evening] came, [alone] was he there.
24 Now [the boat] [still many furlongs from the land] was holding off, 5 being distressed by the waves,—for [the wind] was contrary. 25 And [in the fourth] watch of the night] he came unto them, walking upon the sea. 26 And [the disciples] seeing him [upon the water] walking, were troubled,—saying—
It is [an apparition];
and [by reason of their fear] they cried out.
27 And [straightway] Jesus spake unto them, saying—
Take courage! it is I,—be not afraid.
28 And [making answer] Peter said unto him,—
Lord! if it is [thou] bid me come unto thee, upon the waters.
29 And [he] said—
Come!
And, descending from the boat, Peter walked upon the waters, and came unto Jesus. 30 But

[seeing the wind] he was affrighted, and [beginning to sink] cried out, saying—

Lord! save me!

And [straightway] Jesus, stretching forth his hand, laid hold upon him and saith unto him—

O little-of-faith! why didst thou doubt?

And, when they came up into the boat [the wind abated].

And [they in the boat] bowed down to him, saying—

"Truly! [God's Son] thou art!"

And, going across, they came up the land, into Gennesaret. And [recognizing him] the men of that place sent out into all that region, and they brought unto him all who were sick; and were beseeching [him], that they might [only] touch the border of his mantle, and [as many as] touched were made well.

§ 46. Eating with Unwashed Hands.
Mk. vii. 1-23.

[Then] there came unto Jesus, from Jerusalem, Pharisees and Scribes, saying—

Wherefore do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands [when they eat bread]!

But [he] answering, said unto them—

Wherefore do [ye also] transgress the commandment of God, for the sake of your tradition?

For [God] said—

Honour thy father and thy mother;—

<Me that receiveth father or mother> let him [surely die].

But [ye] say—

<Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother—

A gift! whatsoever, out of me, thou mightest be profited—

[in nowise] shall honour his father or his mother,— and so ye have cancelled [the word] of God, for the sake of [your tradition].

Hypocrites! well prophesied concerning you, Issiah, saying—

[This people] with the lips do [honour] me,

While [their heart] far off holdeth from me;

But [in vain] do they pay devotion unto me,

Teaching, for teachings, [the commandments of men].

And, calling near the multitude, he said to them—

Hear and understand!

[Not that which entereth into the mouth] defileth the man,

But [that which proceedeth out of the mouth] the same defileth the man.

Then, coming near, his disciples say unto him—

Knowest thou, that the Pharisees [hearing the word] were caused to stumble?!

13 And [he] answering, said—

<Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted> will be uprooted:

Let them alone! they are [blind] leaders;* and [if the blind] lead the [blind] both [into a ditch] will fall.*

And Peter [answering] said unto him,

Declare to us the parable.

And [he] said,

[to this moment.] are [ye also] without discernment?

Perceive ye not that [every] thing which entereth into the mouth [into the stomach] findeth way, and [into the draught] is passed; while [the things which proceed out of the mouth] [out of the heart] come forth, and [they] defile the man.

For [out of the heart] come forth wicked designs,—murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false testimonies, profane speakings: [these] are the things which defile the man, but [the eating with unwashed] hands doth not defile the man.

§ 47. A Canaanite Woman's Daughter healed.
Mk. vii. 24-30.

And, going forth from thence, Jesus retired into the parts of Tyre and Zidon. And lo! a Canaanite woman! [from those bounds] coming forth, began crying out, saying,

Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David!

[My daughter] is miserably demonized.

But [he] answered her not a word. And his disciples, coming forward began requesting him, saying—

Dismiss her, because she is crying out after us.

But [he] answering, said,

I was not sent forth, save unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

And [she] coming, began bowing down to him, saying—

Lord! help me.

But [he] answering, said,

It is not seemly [to take the leaff of the children, and cast into the little dogs].

And [she] said,

True, Lord! [for] even the little dogs eat of the crumbs which are falling from the table of [their masters].

[Then] answering, Jesus said to her—

O woman! [great] is [thy faith]!

Be it done for thee, [as thou desir'est].

And her daughter was healed, from that hour.

And, passing on from thence, Jesus came near the sea of Galilee, and, going up into the mountain, was sitting there. And there came unto him large multitudes, having with themselves the lame, the maimed, the blind, the dumb,* and many others,—and they cast them near his feet, and he cured them; 28 so that the multitude marvelled, seeing the dumb speaking, the lame walking, and the blind seeing,—and they glorified the God of Israel. 29 But [Jesus, calling near his disciples] said—

My compassions are moved towards the multitude, because [even now] [three days] abide they with me, and they have nothing to eat,—and [to dismiss them fasting] I am not willing, lest by any means they faint in the way.

And his disciples say unto him—

Whence [to us, in a wilderness] loaves have in such numbers as to fill a multitude [so great]? 30 And Jesus saith unto them—

[How many] loaves have ye? 31 And [they] said—

Seven, and a few small fishes. 32 And [sending word to the multitude to recline upon the ground.] 33 he took the seven' loaves, and the fishes, and [giving thanks] brake,—and began giving to his disciples, and [the disciples] to the multitude. 34 And they all did eat and were filled,—and [the remainder of the broken pieces] took they up, seven' hampers [full]. 35 And [they who did eat] were four thousand men, besides women and children. 36 And, dismissing the multitudes, he went up into the boat,—and came into the bounds of Magadan.

§ 49. A Sign refused. Mk. viii. 11-13; cp. chap. xii. 38-40; Lu. xii. 54-56.

And [the Pharisees and Sadducees coming near] [putting him to the test] requested him—a sign out of the heaven [to shew unto them. 3 But [he] answering said unto them—

When evening cometh ye say, 4 Fair! for fiery is the heaven; 5 And at morn, 6 To-day! a storm! for fiery, and yet and, is the heaven. 7 The face of the heaven, indeed ye learn to distinguish,—

But [the signs of the times] ye cannot.}
Mercy on thee, Lord!
[In nowise] shall it befall thee.

24 But he, turning, said to Peter—Withhold me, Satan!
A snare art thou of mine,
Because thou art not regarding the things of God, but the things of men.

24 Then] Jesus said unto his disciples—
If any one intendeth [after me] to come,
Let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and be following me;

25 For <whosoever intendeth [his life]b to save>—
Shall lose it,—
But <whosoever shall lose his life, for my sake>—
Shall find it.

26 For what shall a man be profited,
Though [the whole world] he gain,
And [his life] he forfeit?
Or what shall a man give in exchange for his life?

27 For the Son of Man is destined to be coming,
In the glory of his Father,
With his messengers,—
And [then] will he give back unto each one [according to his practice].

28 Verily] I say unto you—
There are some of those [here standing]
Who, indeed, shall in nowise taste of death,
Until they see the Son of Man [coming in his kingdom].

Mk. ix. 2-13; Lu. ix. 28-36; cp. 2 P. i. 16-18.

17 And [after six days] Jesus taketh with him, Peter and James and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain [apart];
2 and was transformed before them,—and his face shone as the sun, and [his garments] became white as the light.
3 And lo! there appeared to them, Moses and Elijah, conversing with him.
4 And Peter [answering] said unto Jesus—
Lord! it is [delightful] for us [to be here],—
[If thou wilt] I will make here three tents,
[For thee] one, and [for Moses] one, and [for Elijah] one.

§ 55. Third Announcement of Sufferings. Mk ix. 30-32; Lu. ix. 43-45.

22 And [as they were being gathered together in Galilee] Jesus said unto them—
The Son of Man is about to be delivered up into the hands of men;

23 And they shall slay him,
And [on the third day] will he arise.
And they were grieved exceedingly.

§ 56. A Fish furnishes Tribute-money.

24 And [when they came into Capernaum] they—who [the half shekel] were receiving, came near unto Peter, and said,

[Your teacher] doth he not pay the half shekel?"

He saith—Yea. And <coming into the house> Jesus anticipated him, saying,
[How to thee] doth it seem, Simon?
[The kings of the earth] of whom receive they dues or tax? from their sons, or from the aliens?

And <when he said> From the aliens Jesus said unto him,
Well then [free] are [the sons]!
<But that we may not cause them to stumble> go unto the sea, and cast in a hook, and [the first fish that cometh up] take, and, opening its mouth, thou shalt find a shekel,—[that] take, and give to me and thee.

§ 57. Little Ones to be Copied, not Ensnared, Despised or Lost.

18 [In that hour] came the disciples unto Jesus, saying—
Who then is [greatest] in the kingdom of the heavens?

2 But <calling near a child> he set it in the midst of them, and said—
_VERILY I SAY UNTO YOU_
_except ye turn and become as the children>_
_In nowise shall ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens._

4 <Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this child>
_The same_ is the greatest, in the kingdom of the heavens;

And <whosoever shall give welcome unto one such child as this upon my name>_
_Unto me_ giveth welcome.

6 And <whosoever shall cause to stumble one of these little ones who believe in me>_
_It profiteth him_ that there be hung a large mill-stone about his neck, and he be sunk in the wide main of the sea.

Alas for the world! by reason of the causes of stumbling;
_for it is necessary_ that the causes of stumbling come,— _Nevertheless_ alas for the man through whom the cause of stumbling cometh!

But _if thy hand or thy foot_ be causing thee to stumble,
_Cut it off, and cast it from thee:_
_It is seemly for thee_ to enter into life, maimed or lame,
_Rather than_ having two hands or two feet to be cast into the age-abiding fire.

9 And _if thine eye_ causeth thee to stumble
_Pluck it out, and cast it from thee:_
_It is seemly_ for thee [one-eyed] into life to enter,
_Rather than_ having two eyes to be cast into the fiery Gehenna.

Beware! do not despise one of these little ones;
For I say unto you—

= Exo. xxx. 11-16.

That [their messengers in the heavens] do continually behold the face of my Father in the heavens. [11]

13 How [to you] doth it seem?
<If a certain man come to have a hundred sheep>
_And one from among them go astray>
_Will he not leave the ninety-nine upon the mountains,>
_And going, seek the straying one?>

13 And <if it should be that he find it>_
_VERILY I SAY UNTO YOU_
_He rejoiceth over it more than over the ninety-nine that have not gone astray._

14 |Thus| there is no desire, in the presence of my Father who is in the heavens,
That [one of these little ones] should be lost.

§ 58. How to Gain and how often to Forgive an Offending Brother. Parable of the Forgiven yet Unforgiving Servant.

But <if thy brother sin>_ _withdraw, convince him, betwixt thee and him [alone],— _if unto thee he hearken>_
_Thou hast gained thy brother;_

16 But <if he do not hearken>_
_Take with thee, yet one or two,_
_That [at the mouth of two witnesses or three]_
_Every declaration may be established;_

17 But <if he hear them amiss>_
_Tell it to the assembly,—_
_And [if even the assembly] he hear amiss>
_Let him be unto thee, just as the man of the nations and the tax-collector._

18 |Verily| I say unto you—
_<Whatsoever things ye shall bind on the earth>_
_Shall be bound in heaven;_
_and whatsoever things ye shall loose or the earth>_
_Shall be loosed in heaven._

21 Then <coming near> Peter said [to him]—
_Lord! how many times shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him?_

22 Jesus saith to him—
_I say unto thee._
Unto [seven] times,
But [unto seventy times seven].

heavens become like unto a man, a king, who wished to settle an account with his servants; 24 And <when he began to settle> there was brought unto him a certain debtor of a thousand talents; 25 and <he> not having wherewith to pay > the master ordered him to be sold, and the wife, and the children, and whatsoever he had,—and payment to be made. 26 The servant therefore [falling down] began to do homage unto him, saying—

Have patience with me,

And [all] will I pay thee. 27 And [moved with compassion] the master of that servant released him, and [the loan] he [forgave] him.

But that servant [going out] found one of his fellow-servants, who owed him ten thousand denaries, and, laying hold of him, he began seizing him by the throat, saying,

Pay! if anything thou owest. 28 His fellow servant, therefore, [falling down] began beseeching him, saying,

Have patience with me! 29 And I will pay thee. 30 [He] however, would not, but went away and cast him into prison,—until he should pay what was owing. 31 His fellow-servants, therefore, [seeing] the things that were done, were grieved exceedingly,—and went and made quite plain to their master all the things which had been done. 32 [Then, calling him near] his master saith unto him—

O wicked servant! [All that debt!] forgave I thee, because thou didst beseech me. 33 Was it not binding [upon thee also] to have mercy upon thy fellow-servant, as I also [on thee] had mercy? 34 And [provoked to anger] his master delivered him up to the torturers, until he should pay all that was owing. 35 [Thus] my heavenly Father also will do unto you, if ye forgive not each one his brother [from your hearts]. 36

And it came to pass <when Jesus ended these words> he removed from Galilee and came into the bounds of Judea beyond the Jordan. 3 And there followed him large multitudes, and he cured them there. 3 And there came unto him Pharisees, testing him, and saying,—

Whether is it allowed a man to divorce his wife for every cause? 4 And [he] answering, said—

Did ye never read—

[He who created at the beginning] [Male and female] made them,—

and said—

[For this cause] will a man leave his father and his mother, And be united to his wife,—

And [the two] will become [one flesh];

So that [no longer] are they [two] but [one flesh].

<What therefore, [God] hath yoked together>

Let not [a man] <put asunder>. 7 They say unto him—

Why then did [Moses] command, to give a writing of repudiation and to divorce? 8 He saith unto them—

[Moses] in view of your hardness of heart permitted you to divorce your wives;

From the beginning however, hath it not been done [thus].

9 And I say unto you—

<Whosoever shall divorce his wife, saving for unfaithfulness, and shall marry another> committeth adultery. 10 The disciples say unto him—

<If [so] is the cause of the husband with the wife> it is not expedient to marry. 11 But [he] said unto them—

[Not all!] find room for the word, save they to whom it hath been given;

For there [are] eunuchs, who [from their mother's womb] were born so,

And there [are] eunuchs, who were made eunuchs [by men].—

And there [are] eunuchs, who have made themselves eunuchs [for the sake of the kingdom of the heavens]:

[He that is able to find room] let him find room.

§ 60. Children brought to Jesus. Mk. x. 13-16;
Lu. xviii. 15-17.

[Then] were brought unto him, children,— that he might lay his hands upon them and pray.

And [the disciples] rebuked them. 14 But [Jesus] said—

Suffer the children—and do not hinder them—to come unto me,—

For of such is the kingdom of the heavens. 15 And, laying his hands upon them, he went his way from thence.

§ 61. A Rich Ruler—"We left all"—Twelve Thousand.
The Day Labourers. Mk. x. 17-31; Lu. xviii. 18-30.

And lo! one coming near unto him, said, Teacher! what good thing shall I do, that I may have life age-abiding? 17 And [he] said unto him—

Why dost thou question me concerning that which is good? There is [One] that is good; But <if thou desirest [into life] to enter> be keeping the commandments.

18 He saith unto him Which?
|Jesus| said— These:*
Thou shalt not commit murder,
Thou shalt not commit adultery,
Thou shalt not steal,—
Thou shalt not bear false witness;
Honour thy father and thy mother,—
and—
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

20 The young man saith unto him—
|These all| have I kept,—
|What| further| do I lack?

21 Jesus said unto him—
<If thou| desirest to be |perfect |>
Withdraw! sell thy substance, and give to the destitute,—
And thou shalt have treasure in the heavens;
And come! be following me.

22 And the young man |hearing| this word, went away sorrowing,—for he was holding large possessions.

23 And |Jesus| said unto his disciples—
|Verily| I say unto you,
||A rich man| with difficulty| shall enter into the kingdom of the heavens.

24 Again I say unto you—
|Easier| is it for |a camel| through the eye of a needle| to enter,
Than a rich man—into the kingdom of God.

25 And |hearing| it| the disciples were being struck with the greatest astonishment, saying—
Who then can be saved?

26 And |looking intently| Jesus said unto them—
|With men| this is |impossible;| But |with God| all things are possible.

27 Then |making answer| Peter said unto him—
Lo! |we| have left all, and followed thee,—
What then shall there be |for us|?

28 And |Jesus| said unto them—
|Verily| I say unto you.
<As for you who followed me in the regeneration—
|When the Son of Man shall take his seat on his throne of glory!
|Ye also| shall be seated upon twelve thrones,
Judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

29 And |whosoever left houses, or brethren,
or sisters, or father, or mother, or children,
or lands, for sake of my name|
|Manifold| shall receive,
And life| age-abiding| shall inherit.

30 But many shall be—
First-last, and Last-first.*

20 For the kingdom of the heavens is like a man, a householder,—
Who went forth with the morning, to hire labourers into his vineyard; and <when he had agreed with the labourers for a denary the day> he sent them into his vineyard.

3 And <going forth about the third hour> he saw others standing in the marketplace, unemployed;
and |to them| he said—
|Ye also| go your way into the vineyard,
and |whatsoever may be right| I will give you;
and |they| departed.

4 And <again| going forth about the sixth and ninth hour> he did likewise.

5 And <about the eleventh> going forth he found others standing, and saith unto them—
Why |here| stand ye, all the day, unemployed?

6 They say unto him—
Because |no one| hath hired |us|.
He saith unto them—
|Ye also| go your way into the vineyard.
And |when evening came| the master of the vineyard saith unto his steward—
Call the labourers and pay the hire,— beginning from the last, unto the first.

7 And they of the eleventh hour |coming| received severally a denary.

8 And <when the first came> they supposed that |more| they should receive,—and |they also| received severally a denary.

9 And |having received it| they began to murmur against the householder,
saying—
|These last| one hour| wrought, and
|thou hast made them| equal unto us| who have borne the burden of the day,
and the scorching heat.

10 And |he| answering| said unto one of them—
|Friend| I wrong thee not:
Was it not |for a denary| thou didst agree with me?

11 Take thine own, and go thy way;
But|I| please| unto this last| to give, as also to thee:

12 Is it not allowed me to do |what I please| with my own?
Or is |thine eye| evil| because I am good?

13 |Thus| shall be—
The last first, and the first last.*

§ 62. Private Announcement of Sufferings.
Mk. x. 32-34; Lu. xviii. 31-33.

17 And <Jesus, being about to go up unto Jerusalem> took unto him the twelve disciples apart, and in the way he said unto them—
Lo! we are going up unto Jerusalem;
And |the Son of Man| will be delivered up unto the chief-priests and scribes,
And they will condemn him to death,
And deliver him up unto the nations, to mock and to scourge and to crucify,—
And |on the third day| he will arise.*

* Chap. xix. 30.
§ 63. Request for Zebedee’s Sons. Mk. x. 35-45.
20 Then came unto him the mother of the sons of Zebedee, with her sons, bowing down, and asking something from him. 2 And [he] said to her, What desirest thou? She saith unto him—
Bid, that these’ my two’ sons may sit, one on thy right hand, and one on thy left, in thy kingdom.
22 But Jesus [answering] said—
Ye know not what ye are asking:
Are ye able to drink the cup, which [I] am about to drink;
They say unto him— We are able.
23 He saith unto them—
|My cup, indeed| ye shall drink;
But <to sit on my right hand and on my left> is not mine to give,—except unto those for whom it hath been prepared by my Father.
24 And the ten [hearing] were sorely displeased, concerning the two’ brethren.
25 But [Jesus] calling them near, said—
Ye know that |the rulers of the nations| lord it over them, And |the great ones| wield authority over them:*—
26 [Not so] is it |among you|,—
But <whosoever shall desire |among you| to become |great|> shall be |your minister|;
27 And <whosoever shall desire |among you| to be first> shall be |your servant!—
28 [Just as]| the Son of Man| came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom instead of many.

§ 64. Two Blind Men recover Sight. Mk. x. 46-52;
Lu. xviii. 35-43.
29 And <as they were going forth from Jericho> there followed him a great multitude; 30 and lo! |two’ blind men, sitting beside the road! [hearing] that Jesus was passing by| cried aloud, saying—
Lord! have mercy on us! Son of David!
31 But the multitude rebuked them, that they might hold their peace. But [they]| the more| cried aloud, saying—
Lord, have mercy on us! Son of David!
32 And [standing still] Jesus called them, and said—
What desire ye I should do for you?
They say unto him—
Lord! that |our eyes| may open.
34 And |moved with compassion| Jesus touched their eyes,—and |straightway| they recovered sight, and followed him.

§ 65. The Triumphal Entry. Mk. xi. 1-10;
Lu. xix. 29-38; Jn. xii. 12-15.
21 And <when they drew near unto Jerusalem, and came unto Bethphage, unto the Mount of Olives> [then] Jesus sent forth two’ disciples;
3 saying unto them—

Be going into the village that is over against you, and |straightway| ye shall find an ass bound, and a colt with her,—loose them, and lead them unto me.
3 And [<if anyone] unto you |say aught| ye shall say—
||Their Lord|| hath |need|,—
and |straightway| he will send them.
4 But [this] hath come to pass, that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through the prophet, saying:
5 Tell ye the daughter of Zion,
Lo! [thy King] is coming unto thee,
Meek and mounted upon an ass.
And upon a colt the foal of a tiring ass. b
And the disciples |went| and did as Jesus directed them; 7 and led the ass and the colt, and laid upon them their garments, and he took his seat upon them. 8 And |the chief multitude| spread their own mantles in the way, and |others| were cutting off young branches from the trees, and spreading them in the way; 9 and the multitudes |who were going before him and they who were following after| were crying aloud, saying—
Hosanna 4a to the Son of David,
|Blessed| is he that is coming in the name of the Lord, 4b
Hosanna 4c in the highest.
10 And [<when he entered into Jerusalem> all the city was startled, saying—
Who is this?
11 And |the multitudes| were saying—
|This| is the prophet Jesus,—
He from Nazareth of Galilee.

§ 66. The Temple cleansed. Mk. xi. 15-17;
12 And Jesus entered into the temple, and cast out all who were selling and buying in the temple,—and |the tables of the money-changers| he overthrew, and the seats of them who were selling doves; 13 and saith unto them—
It is written,
||My house| a house of prayer| shall be called *;
but |ye| are making it, A den of robbers. 8
14 And there came unto him blind and lame, in the temple, and he cured them.
15 But the Chief-priests and the Scribes <$|seeing|> the marvels that he wrought, and the boys who were crying aloud in the temple, and saying, Hosanna 4a to the Son of David!>$ were greatly displeased; 16 and said unto him—
Hearest thou what these are saying?
And [Jesus] saith unto them—
Yes: Have ye never read,
|Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings| hast thou prepared praise? 8

* Or: “The Lord |of them! |

hath need.” 4a Ps. cxviii. 22.
4b Ps. lvi. 7.
4c Ps. cxviii. 25.
8 Ps. cxviii. 25.
8a Jer. vii. 11.
8b Ps. cxviii. 25.
17 And, leaving them behind, he went forth outside the city into Bethany, and spent the night there.

§ 67. The Barren Fig-tree Withered.
Mk. xi. 12-14, 20-24.

23 And <(early) returning into the city> he hungered; 19 and <seeing one fig-tree by the way> he came up to it, and || nothing || found he there, save leaves only; — and he saith unto it —
[No more! from thee! let fruit spring forth, unto times age-abiding, — and the fig-tree (instantly) withered away.]

And the disciples [seeing it] marvelled, saying —
[How instantly! did the fig-tree wither away!]

22 And Jesus [answering] said unto them —
[Verily! I say unto you,
If ye have faith, and do not doubt —
Not only |this of the fig-tree| shall ye do, —
But <even if |unto this mountain| ye shall say, —
Be lifted up, —
And be cast into the sea| it shall be done.]

And |all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing| ye shall receive.

§ 68. By what Authority? Two Sons.
Mk. xi. 27-33; Lu. xx. 1-8.

25 And <when he [entered] the temple> the Chief-priests and the Elders of the people |came unto him as he was teaching| saying —
[By what' authority] |these things| art thou doing —
And |who| to thee |gave| this authority?

24 And [making answer] Jesus said unto them —
[I also] will ask |you| one thing, —
Which if ye tell me, —
[I also] will tell |you| —
[By what authority] |these things| I am doing —
[The immersion by John] whence was it?
Of heaven, or of men?
But |they| began to deliberate among themselves, saying —
[If we say, Of heaven> —
He will say unto us, Wherefore then did ye not believe him?]

26 But <if we say, Of men> —
We fear the multitude —
For ||all| as a prophet| are holding John.

27 And, making answer to Jesus, they said —
(We know not.]
He also] said unto them —
Neither do |I| tell |you| —
[By what' authority] |these things| I am doing —

28 But how |to you| doth it seem?
[A man] had two sons:
<Coming unto the first> he said, —
Son! go thy way, —
[To-day] be working in the vineyard.

29 And [he] answering, said, |I| sir! —
and went not;

30 And <coming unto the second> he spake |in like manner|;

And |he| answering, said, I will not:
[afterwards] smitten with regret, —
[he went].

31 Which of the two |did| the will of the father?
They say, —
The latter.
Jesus saith unto them —
[Verily! I say unto you,
The tax-collectors and the harlots| are going before you, into the kingdom of God; —
For John came unto you, in a way of righteousness,
And ye believed him not, —
But |the tax-collectors and the harlots| believed him;
And |ye| ||seeing it| were not even smitten with regret ||afterwards|; so as to believe him.

§ 69. The Fruits of the Vineyard Demanded.
Mk. xii. 1-12; Lu. xx. 9-19.

33 Another' parable [hear ye: —
A man there was, a householder,
Who planted a vineyard,
And |a wall around it| placed,
And dugged in it a wine-rat,
And built a tower;*

And let it out to husbandmen,—
And left home.

34 And <when the season of fruits drew near> —
He sent forth his servants unto the husbandmen to receive his fruits.

35 And the husbandmen |taking his servants|,
|One| indeed, they beat,
And |another| slew, —
And |another| stoned.

36 Again| sent he forth other' servants, more —
And they did unto them |likewise|.

37 ||Afterwards| however, he sent forth unto — them his son, saying,—
They will pay deference unto my son!

38 But |the husbandmen| seeing the son, said —
among themselves, —
|This| is |the heir|:
Come on! —
Let us slay him,
And have his inheritance.

39 And, taking him, they cast him forth outside the vineyard, — and slew him.

40 ||When therefore the master of the vineyard shall come| —
What will he do unto those husbandmen?

41 They say unto him —
Miserable men!
||Miserably| will he destroy them;
And will let out |the vineyard| to other husbandmen:
Who will render unto him the fruits in their seasons.

* Is. vi. 1 f.
Matthew XXI. 42-46; XXII. 1-29.

42 Jesus saith unto them—
Have ye [never] read in the Scriptures,
[A stone which the builders rejected]—
| [The same] hath become [head of the corner]:
| [From the Lord] hath this come to pass,
And is marvelous in our eyes.

43 Wherefore I say unto you,
The kingdom of God [will be taken away from you],
And given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof:
[And he that falleth on this stone] b
Will be sorely bruised,
But [on whomsoever it may fall]
It will utterly destroy him.

44 And the Chief-priests and the Pharisees [hearing his parables] took note, that [concerning them] he was speaking.
And, seeking to secure him, they feared the multitudes; since [for a prophet] were they holding him.

§ 70. Marriage Feast and Wedding Garment.
Lu. xiv. 16-24.

22 And [answering] Jesus [again] spake in parables unto them, saying:—
The kingdom of the heavens hath become like a man, a king,—
Who made a marriage-feast for his son;
And sent his servants, to call the invited into the marriage-feast,—
And they would not come.

4 And [again] sent he other servants, saying—
Say to the invited,
Lo! [my dinner] have I prepared,
[Mine oxen and my fatlings] are slain,—And [all things] are [ready]:
Come ye into the marriage-feast.

And they [slighting it] went off,
[One] indeed, into his own field,
And [another] unto his merchandise,—
And [the rest] securing his servants, ill-treated and slew them.

And [the king] was provoked to anger,—And, sending his armies,
Destroyed those murderers,
And [their city] set on fire.

8 [Then] saith he unto his servants—
[The marriage] indeed, is ready,—But [the invited] were not [worthy];
Be going, therefore, into the crossways of the roads,
And [as many as ye shall find] call ye into the marriage-feast.

10 And those servants [going forth] into the roads,
Gathered together all whom they found, both bad and good,—And filled was the bride-chamber with guests.

But the king [entering to view the guests]—
Saw there a man, who had not put on a wedding-garment,—

11 And saith unto him—
Friend! how camest thou in here, not having a wedding-garment?
And [he] was put to silence.
12 [Then] the king said unto the ministers—
<Binding him feet and hands>
Cast him forth into the darkness [outside]:—
[There] shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

14 For [many] are [called], but [few] [chosen].

§ 71. Cesar and God.
Mk. xii. 13-17; Lu. xx.

20-26.

15 [Then] went the Pharisees and took [counsel], that they might ensnare him [in discourse].
And they sent forth to him their disciples, with the Herodians, saying,
Teacher! we know that [true] thou art,
And [the way of God] [in truth] dost teach,
And it concerneth thee not about anyone,—
For thou lookest not unto the face of men:
Tell us then, how [to thee] it seemeth?
Is it allowable to give tax unto Cesar, or not?

18 But Jesus [taking note of their wickedness] said—
Why are ye tempting me, hypocrites?
Shew me the coin appointed for the tax.
And [they] brought unto him a denary.

20 And he saith unto them—
[Whose] is this image and the inscription?
They say—Cesar's.
[Then] saith he unto them—
Render, therefore, [the things of Cesar, unto Cesar],—
And [the things of God, unto God].

22 And, hearing, they marvelled,—and, leaving him, departed.

§ 72. Marriage and the Resurrection.
Mk. xii. 18-27; Lu. xx. 27-39.

23 [On that day] there came unto him Sadducees, who say, there is [no resurrection],—and they questioned him, saying—
Teacher! [Moses] said,
<If any man die not having children> his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother. a

Now there were, with us, seven brethren; And [the first] marrying, died, and not having seed, left his wife unto his brother.

Likewise, [the second also], and the third,—unto the seven.

And [last of all] died [the wife].

[In the resurrection, therefore]—
Of which of the seven shall she be wife? For [all] had her.

And Jesus answering, said—
Ye are deceiving yourselves,
Knowing neither the Scriptures, nor yet the power of God.

a Deu. xvi. 5; Gen. xxxviii. 8.
MATTHEW XXII. 30—46; XXIII. 1—22.

30 For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage,
But ye say; They are [as messengers in the heaven] are they.
But [as touching the resurrection of the dead]—
Have ye not read what was spoken unto you by God, saying—
[If] am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?
He is not God [of the dead] but [of the living].
32 And the multitudes hearing, were being struck with astonishment at his teaching.
§ 73. The Greatest Commandment. Mk. xii. 28-31; Lu. x. 25-27.
34 Now the Pharisees, hearing that he had silenced the Sadducees were brought together with one accord; 35 and one from among them, a lawyer [proposed a question] putting him to the test:
Teacher! which commandment is greatest in the law?
37 And he said unto him—
Thou shalt love the Lord thy God—with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.
38 [This] is the greatest and first commandment.
39 [The second, like it] is [this]:
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.
40 In these two commandments are [all] the law is contained, and the prophets.
§ 74. David’s Son and Lord. Mk. xii. 35-37; Lu. xx. 41-44.
41 Now the Pharisees having come together> Jesus questioned them, saying—
How [to you] doth it seem, [concerning the Christ]?
Whose son is he?
They say unto him— David’s.
42 He saith unto them—
How then doth David, in spirit, call him [Lord], saying—
The Lord hath said unto my Lord,—
Sit thou on my right hand,
Until I make thy foes thy footstool?
45 If then [David] calleth him [Lord>
[How] is he [his son]?
46 And no one was able to answer him a word, neither durst anyone [from that day] question him [any more].
§ 75. Alias for the Scribes and Pharisees.
23 Then Jesus spake unto the multitudes and unto his disciples, saying—[Upon Moses’ seat] have sat down, the Scribes and the Pharisees:
48 All things therefore, whatsoever they tell you do and observe,
But according to their works do ye not,
For they [say], and do not [perform].
4 But they bind together heavy burdens, and lay upon men’s shoulders,
Whereas [they]| with their finger are not willing to move them.*
5 But [all their works| they do, |to be gazed at by men,—
For they make broad their amulets,
And make large their fringes,
And dearly love the first couch in the chief
And the first seats in the synagogues,
And the salutations in the market-places,
And to be called by men, Rabbi.
8 But [ye]—do not be called Rabbi,—
For [one] is your Teacher,
And [all ye] are brethren;
9 And father| be none of you called [upon the earth],
For [one] is your Father [the Heavenly];
Neither be called leaders,
For [your leader] is one [the Christ];
And [the greatest of you] shall be to you [a minister];
And [whoever shall exalt himself] shall be [abased],And [whoever shall abase himself] shall be [exalted]. [12]
14 But alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites];
Because ye are locking up the kingdom of the heavens before men,—
For [ye] are not entering,
Neither [them who are entering] suffer ye to enter.
15 Alias for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites];
Because ye compass sea and dry land, to make one’ convert,—
And [when it is done] ye make him a son of gehenna [twofold more than ye].
16 Alias for you, blind guides! that say—
Whosoever shall swear by the Temple> It is [nothing],
But whosoever shall swear by the gold of the Temple> is bound:
17 Foolish and blind! for which is [greater], The gold, or the Temple that hath hallowed the gold?
18 And whosoever shall swear by the altar it is [nothing],
But whosoever shall swear by the gift that is upon it is bound:
19 Blind! for which is greater The gift, or the altar that halloweth the gift?
20 He therefore that hath sworn by the altar> Swareth by it, and by all that is upon it;
And [he that hath sworn by the Temple> Swareth by it, and by him who dwelleth* therein;
22 And [he that hath sworn by heaven> Swareth by the throne of God, and by him who sitteth thereupon.

* Exo. iii. 6. 4 Ps. cx. 1. 6 Deu. vi. 5. 6 Or:WH: “burdens heavy and hard to be borne.” 8 Lu. xi. 46. 8 Or (WH): “foolish and blind.” 10 Lu. xiv. 11; xviii. 14. 12 Or:WH: “dwelt.”
23 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites];
Because ye tithe the mint and the anise and the cummin,—
And have dismissed the weightier matters of the law—the justice, the mercy, and the faith;
Whereas [these] it was binding [to do],
And [those] not [to dismiss].

24 Blind guides!
Straining out the gnat,
But [the camel] swallowing.

25 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites];
Because ye cleanse the outside of the cup and of the dish,—
While [within] they are full of plunder and intemperance.

26 Blind Pharisee! cleanse [first] [the inside] of the cup [and of the dish],
That [the outside thereof] may become [clean].

27 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites];
Because ye make yourselves like sepulchres whitewashed,
Which [outside] indeed appear [beautiful],
But [within] are full [of dead men’s bones and all] uncleanness,—
Thus [ye also] [outside] indeed appear to men [righteous],
But [within] are full [of hypocrisy and lawlessness].

28 Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, [hypocrites];
Because ye build the sepulchres of the prophets,
And adorn the monuments of the righteous,
And say—
If we had been in the days of our fathers,
We would not have been their partners in the blood of the prophets:
So that ye bear witness against yourselves,
That ye are [sons] of them who murdered the prophets.
And [ye] fill ye up the measure of your fathers!

29 Serpents! broods of vipers! how should ye flee from the judgment of gehenna?
[For this cause] lo! [I] send unto you, prophets and wise men and scribes,—
[Some from among them] ye will slay and crucify,
And [some from among them] ye will—
Scourge in your synagogues,
And pursue from city to city:
That there may come upon you—
All’ righteous blood poured out upon the earth,
From the blood of Abel the righteous, Unto the blood of Zachariah, son of Barachiah, whom ye murdered between the Temple and the altar.

30 [Verily] I say unto you—
[All these things] will have come [upon this generation].

31 Jerusalem! Jerusalem!
That slayeth the prophets,
And stoneth them that have been sent unto her,—
[How often] would I have gathered thy children,
Like as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings,—
And ye would not!

32 Lo! your house is left to you;[b]
For I say unto you—
[In no wise] may ye see me [henceforth],
Until ye say—
[‘Blessed’ is he that cometh [in the name of the Lord].]

§ 76. The Prophecy on Mount Olivet. Mk. xiii.
Lu. xxi.

24 And <Jesus coming forth> [from the temple] was taking his departure, when his disciples came forward, to point out to him the buildings of the temple. 3 But [he] answering, said unto them—
Are ye not beholding all these things?
[Verily] I say unto you—
[In no wise] shall there be left here [stone upon stone],
Which shall not be thrown down.

25 And <as he was sitting upon the Mount of Olives> the disciples came unto him, privately, saying—
Tell us, when these things shall be,—
And what the sign of thy presence, and the conclusion of the age.*

26 And [answering] Jesus said unto them—
Be taking heed, lest anyone [deceive] you;
For [many] will come upon my name, saying—
[I] am the Christ,—
And will [deceive many].

27 Moreover ye will be sure to be hearing of wars, and rumours of wars:
Mind! be not alarmed, for it must needs happen,—
But [not yet] is [the end];

28 For there will arise—
Nation against nation,
And kingdom against kingdom,—
And there will be famines and earthquakes [in places].

29 But [all’ these things] are a beginning of birth-pangs.

30 [Then] will they deliver you up into tribulation, and will slay you,—
And ye will be hated by all [the nations] [because of my name];
And [then] will many be caused to stumble,
And [one another] will deliver up,
And will hate one another;

MATTHEW XXIV. 11–43.

11 And many false prophets will arise,
And deceive many;
12 And because of lawlessness being brought to the full,
The love of the many will grow cold;
13 But he that hath endured to the end shall be saved. *
14 And this glad message of the kingdom will be proclaimed in all the inhabited earth,
For a witness unto all the nations,—
And then will have come, the end.
15 Whosoever therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, that was spoken of through Daniel the prophet,
Standing in a holy place,—b
He that readeth let him think>
16 Then | [they who are in Judea]—
Let them flee into the mountains;
17 And | [he that is on the house-top]—
Let him not come down, to take away the things out of his house;—
18 And | [he that is in the field]—
Let him not turn back, to take away his mantle.
19 But alas! for the women with child,
And for them that are giving suck in those days;
20 But be praying that your flight may not happen in winter, nor on sabbath;
21 For there will be then,
Great tribulation,
Such as hath not happened, from the beginning of the world, until the present time;—
Neither in any wise shall happen.
22 And <oixoxep those days had been shortened> a no flesh had been saved;—
But <for the sake of the chosen> those days shall be shortened.
23 | [Then] if any, unto you—
Lo! | [here] is the Christ, or | [there]—
Do not believe it;
24 For there will arise, false Christs, and false prophets,—
And they will show great signs and wonders, —
So that, if possible [even the chosen] should be deceived:
25 Lo! I have foretold you.
26 | [If therefore they should say unto you—
Lo! | [in the desert] he is—
Do not go forth;
<Lo! in the chambers>—
Do not believe it.;
27 For <just as the lightning goeth forth from the east, and shineth unto the west>—
| [So] shall be the presence of the Son of Man.
28 Wheresoever | [the corpse] shall be—
| [There] shall be gathered | [the vultures] —
29 But <straightway after the tribulation of those days>—
30 And | [the sun] will be darkened,
And | [the moon] will not give her brightness,
And | [the stars] will fall from heaven,—
And | [the powers of the heavens] will be shaken;—
31 And | [then] will be displayed—
The sign of the Son of Man in heaven,
And | [then] will shine their breasts—
All | [the tribes of the earth];—b
And they will see the Son of Man—
Coming upon the clouds of heaven, with great power and glory.
32 And he will send forth his messengers, with a great trumpet,—
And they will gather together his chosen—
Out of the four winds,—
From heavens' bounds, unto their bounds. —
33 Now | [from the fig-tree] learn ye | [theparable]:—
<When | [already] her young branch | becometh tender,>
And the leaves | [may be sprouting]—
Ye observe, that | [near] is | [the summer]:
34 Thus | [ye also]—
When ye shall see all these things—
Observe ye, that | [near] he is | [at the doors]. —
35 | [Verily] I say unto you—
In nowise shall this generation pass away—
Until all these things shall happen:—
The heaven and the earth shall pass away,
But | [my words] shall | in nowise pass away.
36 But concerning that day and hour—
No one knoweth,
Neither the messengers of the heavens,
Nor the Son,—
Save the Father only. —
37 For <just as the days of Noah—>
| [So] will be the presence of the Son of Man;
38 For <as they were in those days that were before the flood,
Feeding and drinking,
Marrying and being given in marriage,—
Until the day Noah entered into the ark;—m
39 And they observed not, until the flood came and took away all together—
| [So] will be | the presence of the Son of Man—
40 | [Then] shall there be two men in the field,—
| [One] is taken near, and | [one] is left behind:
Two women grinding at the mill,—
| [One] is taken near, and | [one] is left behind:
41 Be watching, therefore,
For ye know not | on what manner of day| your Lord is coming:
42 But there is | one thing | ye know—
That <if the householder | had known>—
In what watch | the thief was coming—

MATTHEW XXIV. 44—51; XXV. 1—26.

44 Therefore ye also shall be getting ready,
Because ye know, neither the day nor the hour.
45 And verily I say unto you, I know you not.
46 Be watching, therefore,
Because ye know, neither the day nor the hour.
47 For it is just as a man who going from home called his own servants,
and delivered up to them his substance;
48 And to one, indeed, gave he five talents,
and to another, two,
and to another, one,— 49 To each according to his particular ability, and went from home.
50 Straightway he who the five talents had received went and traded with them,
and gained other five:
51 Likewise he of the two gained other two:
52 But he who the one had received went away, and digged up ground, and hid the silver of his lord.
53 And after a long time came the lord of those servants, and reckoned with them.
54 And he who the five talents had received, coming forward brought other five talents, saying—55 Lord! five talents! to me thou didst deliver up:
56 See! other five talents! I gained.
57 His lord said unto him—
Well-done! good and faithful servant,—
Over many things wast thou faithful; Over many things will I appoint thee:
Enter into the joy of thy lord.
58 He also of the two talents coming forward said—
Lord! two talents! to me didst thou deliver up:
59 See! other two talents! I gained.
60 His lord said unto him—
Well-done! good and faithful servant,—
Over a few things wast thou faithful; Over many things will I appoint thee:
Enter into the joy of thy lord.
61 But he also who the one talent had received coming forward said—
Lord! I knew thee, That thou art a hard man,
Reaping, where thou hast not sown,—
62 And gathering, whence thou hast not winnowed;
63 I went away, and hid thy talent in the ground:
See! thou hast what is thine!
64 And his lord answering said unto him—
O wicked servant, and cowardly,
65 \footnotetext[1]{Or: “acknowledge.”} prepared for the adversary and his messengers;
43 For I hungered, and ye gave me not to eat,
44 [And] I was thirsty, and ye gave me not to drink,
45 [A stranger] was I, and ye took me not home,
46 Naked, and ye clothed me not,
Sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not.
47 [Then] will [they also] answer, saying:
Lord! when saw we thee—
Hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison,
And ministered not unto thee?
48 [Then] will he answer them, saying:
Verily! I say unto you—<Inasmuch as ye did it not unto one of these least>;
[Neither unto me] did ye it.
49 And [these] shall go away into [age-abiding]
correction,
But [the righteous] into [age-abiding] life.*

§ 77. The Conspiracy to Betray, and the Anointing
26 And it came to pass <when Jesus ended all these words> he said unto his disciples:
2 Ye know that [after two days] [the passover]
taketh place,—
And [the Son of Man] is to be delivered up,
to be crucified.
3 [Then] were gathered together, the High-priests and the Elders of the people, into the court of the High-priest who was called Caiaphas;
4 and they took counsel together, in order that [Jesus, by guile] they might secure, and slay.
5 They were saying, however:
Not during the feast,
Lest [an uproar] arise among the people.
6 But [Jesus] <happening to be in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper> 7 there came unto him a woman, holding an alabaster-jar of costly perfume, and she poured it down upon his head, as he was reclining. 8 And the disciples [seeing it] were greatly displeased, saying—
To what end [this loss]?
9 For this could have been sold for much, and given to the destitute.
10 But Jesus [taking note] said unto them—
Why vex ye the woman?
For [a seeming] work hath she wrought for
me;
11 For [always, the destitute] have ye with you,—
But [me, not always] have ye;
12 For [she] pouring this perfume upon my body,
[so as to prepare me for burial] did it.
13 [Verily] I say unto you—
<Wheresoever this glad-message* shall be proclaimed in all the world>—
Also what she did, will be told, as a memorial of her.

What are ye willing to give unto me?
And |I| unto you will deliver him up.
And they appointed him thirty pieces of silver.
And from that time was he seeking a favourable opportunity that he might |deliver him up|.

§ 78. The Passover : the Old Feast and the New.
Mk. xiv. 12-26; Lu. xxii. 7-23.

17 And <on the first of the days of unleavened bread> the disciples came unto Jesus, saying—
Where will thou that we make ready for thee to eat the passover?

18 And |he| said—
Go your way into the city, unto such-a-one, and say to him,
|The teacher| saith,
||My |season| is |near|,
||With thee will I keep the passover, with my disciples.

19 And the disciples did, as Jesus directed them, and made ready the passover.
And <when [evening] came> he was reclining with the twelve [disciples];
and, as they were eating, he said—
|Verily| I say unto you,
||One from among you will deliver me up.

22 And |being exceedingly grieved| they began to be saying to him, each one—
Can it be |I| Lord?

23 And |he| answering, said—
|He who hath dipped with me in his hand in the bowl| [the same] will deliver me up.

21 The Son of Man |indeed, goeth his way, according as it is written concerning him,—
But alas! for that man, through whom the Son of Man is being delivered up:
|Well| had it been for him, if [that man] had not been born!

25 And Judas, who was delivering him up, answering said—
|Can it be |I| Rabbi?
He saith unto him—
|Thou| hast said.

26 And |as they were eating| Jesus |taking a loaf and blessing| brake,—and |giving to his disciples| said—
|Take, eat! |this| is |my body|.

27 And |taking a cup, and giving thanks| he gave unto them, saying—
Drink of it, all of you;
For |this| is |my blood of the covenant|, which [for many] is to be poured out, for remission of sins.

30 And, having sung praise, they went forth unto the Mount of Olives.

§ 79. Peter’s Denial foretold.
Mk. xiv. 27-31;
Lu. xxii. 31-34; Jn. xiii. 36-38.

31 Then |Jesus saith unto them—
||All| ye| will find cause of stumbling in me, during this night;
For it is written,
|I will smite the shepherd,
And [the sheep of the flock] will be scattered abroad;|

32 But |after my arising| I will go before you into Galilee.
Now Peter |answering| said unto him—
|Though [all] shall find cause of stumbling in thee>
|||I| shall never find cause of stumbling.

34 Jesus saith unto him:
|Verily| I say unto thee—
|During this night, before a cock crow|
|Thrice| wilt thou deny me.

35 Peter saith unto him:
|Even though it be needful for me |with thee| to die>
||In nowise| will I deny thee.

§ 80. The Agony.
Mk. xiv. 32-42;

36 Then Jesus cometh with them unto a place called Gethsemane,—and he saith unto his disciples—
Sit ye here, while I go yonder and pray.
And |taking with him, Peter and the two sons of Zebedee> he began to be grieved and to be in great distress.
Then saith he unto them:
|Encompassed| with grief| is my soul, unto death|:

39 Abide ye here, and be watching with me.

39 And |going forward a little| he fell upon his face, offering prayer, and saying—
My Father!
|If it is possible| let this cup pass from me,—
|Nevertheless| not as |I| will, but as |thou| wilt.

40 And he cometh unto his disciples, and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter—
|Thus| powerless are ye |one| hour| to watch with me?

41 Be watching and praying, that ye may not enter into temptation:
|The spirit| indeed, is |eager|, but |the flesh| weak.

42 Again, a second time| departing he prayed, saying:
My Father!
<If it is impossible for this to pass, except I |drink| it>
|Accomplished| be thy will,>—Morrison.

Ye are sleeping what time remaineth, and taking your rest:

Lo! the hour hath drawn near, and [the Son of Man] is being delivered up into the hands of sinners.

Arise! let us be going,—

Lo!: [he that delivereth me up] hath drawn near.

§ 81. The Betrayal and Arrest. Mk. xiv. 43-54; Lu. xxii. 47-54.

And [while yet] he was speaking: lo! [Judas, one of the twelve] came, and, with him [a large multitude] with swords and clubs, from the High-priests and Elders of the people.

And [he who was delivering him] gave them a sign, saying—<Whomsoever I shall kiss> [he] it is,—secure him.

And <[straightway] coming unto Jesus> he said—

Joy to thee! Rabbi, and eagerly kissed him. But [Jesus] said unto him—

Friend! wherefore art thou here?

Then, coming forward, they thrust their hands upon Jesus, and secured him.

And lo! [one of those with Jesus] stretching forth his hand, grasped his sword, and smiting the servant of the High-priest, cut off his ear. Then:—

Jesus saith unto him:

Put back thy sword into its place, for <all they who take a sword> [by a sword], [shall perish].

Or thinkest thou that I cannot call upon my Father, and he will set me near me, even now, [more than twelve] legions of messengers?

How then should the Scriptures be fulfilled:

That [thus], it must needs come to pass?

In that hour, said Jesus unto the multitudes: [As against a robber] came ye forth [with swords and clubs] to arrest me?

Daily in the temple, used I to sit teaching, and ye secured me not;

But [this] hath wholly come to pass, that [the Scriptures of the prophets] may be fulfilled.

Then: the disciples, all forsaking him, fled.

And they who secured Jesus, led him away unto Caiaphas the High-priest, where the Scribes and the Elders gathered themselves together.

Now [Peter] was following him afar off, unto the court of the High-priest,—and, entering within, was sitting with the attendants, to see the end.

§ 82. Jesus before the High-priest. Mk. xiv. 55-65.

Now [the High-priests and all the High-council] were seeking false-witness against Jesus, that they might [put him to death]; and found not any, though many came forward as false-witnesses. At length, however, there came forward two, and said:

This man said—

I am able to pull down the shrine of God,
And [in three days] to [build] it.

And the High-priest [arising] said unto him—

[Nothing] answerest thou?

What are these, against thee bearing witness?

But [Jesus] was silent.

And [the High-priest] said unto him:

I put thee on oath, by the Living God, that [to us, thou say]—

Whether [thou] art the Christ, the Son of God.

Jesus saith unto him:

[Thou] hast said; morever, I say unto you—

Hereafter ye will see the Son of Man, sitting on the right hand of power, and coming upon the clouds of heaven.

Then: the High-priest rent asunder his garments, saying—

He hath spoken profanely!

What further need have we, of witnesses?

Lo! ye have heard the profanity!

How [to you] doth it seem?

And [they] answering, said:

[Guilty] of death, he is.

Then: spat they into his face, and buffeted him; and others] struck him smartly, saying—

Prophecy unto us, O Christ!

Who is he that struck thee?

§ 83. Peter’s Denial. Mk. xiv. 66-72; Lu. xxii. 55-62; Jn. xviii. 18-25, 27.

Now [Peter] was sitting without, in the court;

and there came unto him a certain female servant, saying—

[Thou also] wast with Jesus, the Galilean.

But [he] denied before all, saying—

I know not what thou sayest.

And [when he went out into the porch] another female saw him, and said unto them who were there—

This one was with Jesus the Nazarene.

And [again] he denied [with an oath]:—

I know not the man.

And [after a little] the by-standers, coming forward, said unto Peter: [Truly] thou also art from among them,

For [thy very speech] maketh thee manifest;

[Then] began he to be cursing and swearing—

I know not the man!

And [straightway] a cock crowed. 72 And

Peter was put in mind of the declaration of Jesus, of his having said—

"Before a cock crow I thrice wilt thou utterly deny me; and, going forth outside, he wept bitterly."

§ 84. Jesus taken before the Roman Governor.
Mk. xv. 1; Lu. xxiii. 1; Jn. xviii. 28.

27 Now when morning came all the High-priests and Elders of the people took counsel against Jesus, so as to put him to death; and binding him they led him away, and delivered him up unto Pilate the governor.

§ 85. The Remorse and End of Judas.
Ac. i. 15-20.

2 'Then Judas who had delivered him up seeing that he was condemned being smitten with remorse returned the thirty pieces of silver unto the High-priests and Elders, saying—

I have sinned, in delivering up righteous blood.

But they said—

What is that to us? thou shalt see to it for thyself.

And <throwing the pieces of silver into the Temple> he withdrew, and going away, hanged himself.

But the High-priests taking the pieces of silver—

It is not allowed, to cast them into the treasury; since a price of blood they are.

And taking counsel they bought with them, the field of the potter, as a burial-place for strangers.

Wherefore that field hath been called Field of Blood, until this day.

Then was fulfilled, which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet, saying:

And they took the thirty pieces of silver, As the value of him whom they had valued, Whom they had valued of Israel's sons,—

And gave them for the field of the potter, As the Lord directed me.

§ 86. Jesus before Pilate.
Mk. xv. 1-15; Lu. xxiii. 1-7, 13-25; Jn. xviii. 29-40; xix. 1-16.

11 Now Jesus stood before the governor; and the governor questioned him, saying—

Thou art the king of the Jews? And Jesus said—

Thou sayest. And <while he was being accused by the High-priests and Elders> he answered nothing.

13 Then Pilate saith unto him—

Hearest thou not how many things against thee they are bearing witness?

And he answered him no not so much as a single word, so that the governor was marvelling exceedingly.

15 But feast by feast the governor had been wont to release one unto the multitude, a prisoner whom they were desiring. Now they had at that time a distinguished prisoner, called Barabbas. Thence therefore having come together Pilate said to them—

Whom will ye that I should release unto you? Barabbas?

Or Jesus, who is called Christ?

9 For he knew that for envy they had delivered him up.

19 And as he was sitting upon the judgment seat his wife sent unto him, saying: Have thou nothing to do with that righteous man, for many things have I suffered this day, by dream, because of him.

20 But the High-priests and the elders persuaded the multitudes, that they should claim Barabbas, but [Jesus] should be destroyed. Now the governor [answering] said unto them—

Which of the two desire ye I should release unto you? And they said—

Barabbas

23 Pilate saith unto them—

What then shall I do unto Jesus, who is called Christ?

They all say—

Let him be crucified!

23 But he said—

Indeed! what evil hath he done? But they, vehemently were crying aloud, saying—

Let him be crucified!

24 And Pilate seeing that nothing it availed, but rather a tumult was arising> taking water, washed his hands of it before the multitude, saying—

Innocent am I, of the blood of this man,—

Ye shall see to it for yourselves.

25 And all the people, answering, said—

His blood be upon us and upon our children!

26 Then released he unto them Barabbas, but scourging [Jesus], delivered him up, that he might be crucified.

§ 87. Jesus mocked by the Roman Soldiers.
Mk. xv. 15-20; Jn. xix. 2 ff.

27 Then the soldiers of the governor taking Jesus aside into the judgment-hall, gathered unto him all the band; and, unclothing him, a scarlet scarf put they about him, and placing a crown out of thorns they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand, and kneeling before him began to mock him, saying—

Joy to thee, King of the Jews!

29 And spitting upon him they took the reed, and began striking upon his head. And, when they had mocked him, they put off him the scarf, and put on him his garments, and led him away unto the crucifying. And as they were going forth they found a man of Cyrene, [by name] Simon,—the same they impressed to bear his cross.

§ 88. The Crucifixion.
Mk. xv. 22-41; Lu. xxiii. 26-49; Jn. xix. 17-37.

And coming into a place called Golgotha, thus sharing the guilt of their rulers.

a Or (WH): "innocent."

b Or (WH): "this righteous man."
that is to say, Skull-place: they gave him to drink, wine with gall mingled, and tasting he would not drink. And having crucified him they parted among themselves his garments, casting a lot; and being seated, were watching him there. And they put up, over his head, his accusation, written—

| THIS | IS JESUS, THE KING OF THE JEWS. |

| Then | are crucified with him, two robbers,—one on the right hand, and one on the left. And they who were passing by were reviling him, shaking their heads, and saying—

| The man that taketh down the shrine and in three days buildeth it! |

Save [thyself]! If thou art God’s Son come down from the cross.

Likewise the High-priests and the Scribes and Elders were saying:

| Others | he saved,— |

| Himself | he cannot save: |

| Israel’s King | he is! |

He let him come down now, from the cross,—And we will believe on him!

| He hath put confidence upon God. Let him rescue him, now, if he desireth him*; For I said, I am God’s Son! |

And [the same thing] the robbers also, who were crucified with him were casting* in his teeth.

Now from the sixth hour it was darkness came upon all the land—until the ninth hour.

And about the ninth hour Jesus uttered a cry, with a loud voice, saying—

Eloi! Eloi! lema sabachthanei? that is My God! my God! to what end hast thou forsaken me?

Now certain of them who were standing, when they heard, began to say—This man calleth Elijah.

And straightway one from among them running, and taking a sponge, and filling it with vinegar and putting it on a reed was giving him to drink; but [the rest] said—Stay! let us see whether Elijah is coming, and will save him.

| But another | taking a spear, pierced his side, and there came forth water and blood. |

And Jesus, again crying out with a loud voice dismissed the spirit.

And lo! [the veil of the Temple] was rent, from top to bottom, into two; and [the earth] was shaken, and [the rocks] were rent; and the tombs were opened and many bodies of the holy ones who had fallen asleep arose,—and coming forth out of the tombs after his arising entered into [the holy city], and plainly appeared unto many.

Now [the centurion, and those with him watching Jesus] seeing the earthquake and the things coming to pass were violently affrighted, saying—

| Truly | God’s Son | was | he! |

Now there were there, many women, from afar beholding, who indeed had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him: among whom was Mary the Magdalene, also Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

§ 89. The Burial. Mk. xv. 42-47; Lu. 50-56; Jn. xix. 38-42.

And when evening arrived there came a rich man from Arimathæa, whose name was Joseph, who also himself had been discipled unto Jesus. The same going unto Pilate claimed the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded it to be given up. And Joseph, taking the body, wrapped it up in a clean Indian-cloth, and laid it in his new tomb, which he had hewn in the rock, and rolling near a large stone unto the door of the tomb departed. Now there were there Mary the Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre.

§ 90. The Sepulchre sealed and guarded.

And on the morrow, which is after the preparation the High-priests and the Pharisees were gathered together unto Pilate, saying—Sir! we have been put in mind that [that] deceiver said, while yet living,—After three days I will | arise.|

Command, therefore, that the sepulchre be made secure until the third day—lest once the disciples should come and steal him, and say unto the people, He hath arisen from the dead! and the last deception shall be worse than the first!

Pilate saith unto them—Ye have a guard:

Go your way, secure it for yourselves, as ye know how.

And they went and secured for themselves the sepulchre, sealing the stone, with the guard.

§ 91. The Resurrection. Mk. xvi. 1-14; Lu. xxiv. 1-43; Jn. xx. 1-31; Ac. i. 3; 1 Co. xv. 1-8.

And in the week, when it was on the point of dawning into the first of the week came Mary the Magdalene, and the other Mary, to view the sepulchre. And lo! a great commotion occurred,—for a messenger of the Lord descending out of heaven, and coming near had rolled away the stone, and was sitting upon it. Now his appearance was as lightning, and his clothing as white as snow; and for fear of him they who were keeping watch

And |if this be reported unto the governor> |will persuade him, and will make you free from care).

And |they| taking the pieces of silver, did as they were instructed. And this account was spread abroad among the Jews . . . until this [every] day.

§ 93. The Great Commission. Mk. xvi. 15-20; Lu. xxiv. 44-49; Jn. xx. 21-23.

And |the eleven| disciples] went into Galilee, unto the mountain which |Jesus| had appointed them: 17 and seeing him, they worshipped, but |some| doubted. 18 And Jesus |coming near| spake unto them, saying—

"All authority, in heaven and on earth, hath been given unto me;"

Go ye, therefore, and disciple all the nations, Immersing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit,—

Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I myself have commanded you, And lo! I am with you, all the days, until the conclusion of the age.

§ 1. The Forerunner. Mt. iii. 1-12; Lu. iii. 3-17.

1 Beginning of the glad-message of Jesus Christ.*

2 According as it is written in Isaiah the prophet—

Lo! I send my messenger before thy face,

Who shall prepare thy way,—

As a voice of one crying aloud—

In the wilderness prepare ye the way of the Lord,

Straight] he is making his paths>*

4 John the Immerser came, |in the wilderness| proclaiming an immersion of repentance, for the remission of sins; and there were going out unto him all the Judean country, and all they of Jerusalem, and were being immersed by him, in the Jordan river, openly confessing their sins.

6 and John was clothed with camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins, and was eating locusts and wild honey; and he proclaimed, saying—

He that is mightier than I cometh after me, Of whom I am not worthy to stoop and unloose the strap of his sandals:

II have immersed you with water, |will immerse you with the Holy Spirit.

§ 2. The Immersion. Mt. iii. 13-17; Lu. iii. 21, 22.

And it came to pass, in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was immersed into the Jordan by John; 10 And |straightway| as he was coming up out of the water> he saw the heavens rending asunder, and the Spirit as a dove descending.
unto him; and a voice came out of the heavens—

[Tou] art my Son, the Beloved,—

[In thee] I delight.

12 And straightway the [Spirit] urged him forth into the wilderness; and he was in the wilderness forty days, tempted by Satan, and was with the wild beasts,—and [the messengers were ministering unto him.

14 And after John was delivered up> Jesus came into Galilee, proclaiming the glad-message of God, [and saying]—

The season is fulfilled,
And the kingdom of God hath drawn near.—
Repent ye, and have faith in the glad-message.

And passing by near the sea of Galilee> he saw Simon, and Andrew the brother of Simon, casting a net in the sea,—for they were fishermen; and Jesus said unto them—

Come after me,
And I will make you become fishermen of men;
And leaving the net they followed him.

And going forward a little> he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, and them who were in the boat putting in order the nets; and straightway he called them,—and leaving their father Zebedee in the boat, with the hired men> they came away after him.

§ 5. In Capernaum Jesus teaches, and expels an Impure Spirit. Lu. iv. 31-37.

21 And they journey into Capernaum. And straightway, on the Sabbath> entering into the synagogue> he began teaching; and they were being struck with astonishment at his teaching,—for he was teaching them as one having [authority], and not as the Scribes.

22 And straightway> there was in their synagogue, a man in an impure spirit,—and he cried out aloud, saying—

What have we in common with thee, 4 Jesus of Nazareth?
Hast thou come to destroy us?
I know thee, who thou art,
[The Holy One of God].

23 And Jesus rebuked him, [saying]—

Be silenced, and come forth out of him!

25 And the impure spirit crying [him] and calling out with a loud voice> came forth out of him;

26 And they were amazed, one and all, so that they began to discuss among themselves, saying—

What is this? New teaching! With authority.

Or: “into.”
Or (WH): “And straightway, on the Sabbath he began teaching in the synagogue.”

As it were, “invested with” and so, “in the power of.”

Or: “What to us and to thee?”

As it were, “We.”

to the impure spirits also> he giveth orders, and they obey him!

29 And forth went the report of him, straightway, on every hand, into all the surrounding country of Galilee.

29 And straightway, out of the synagogue, going forth> he went into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. Now [the mother-in-law of Simon] was lying in a fever, and straightway they spoke to him concerning her; and, coming near, he raised her up, grasping her hand,—and the fever left her, and she began ministering unto them.

And evening arriving, when the sun went in> they were bearing unto him all who were sick, and them who were demonized; and all the city was gathered unto the door; and he cured many that were sick with divers’ diseases, and many demons he cast out, and suffered not the demons to be talking,—because they knew him [to be Christ].

33 And very early by night arising> he went out [and departed] into a desert place, and [there] was praying; and Simon, and they who were with him, went in quest of him, and found him, and say unto him—

[All] are seeking thee;

and he saith unto them—

Let us go elsewhere, into the neighbouring country-towns, in order that [there also] I may be making proclamation,—for [to this end] came I forth;

and he came, making proclamation, into their synagogues, throughout the whole of Galilee,—and was casting the demons out.

37 And there cometh unto him, a leper, beseeching him [and kneeling],—saying unto him—

[If thou be willing] thou canst cleanse me;

and moved with compassion> he stretched forth the hand, and touched him, and saith unto him—

I am willing. Be cleansed!

38 And straightway> the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed; and strictly charging him> straightway he urged him forth; and saith unto him—

Mind! [unto no one] say [aught],—but withdraw, [thyself] show unto [the priest], and offer for thy cleansing what things Moses enjoined [for a witness unto them].

41 But [he] going forth, began to be proclaiming many things, and blaming abroad the story, so that [no longer] was it possible for him [openly] into a city to enter,—but [outside, in desert places] [was he], and they were coming unto him from every quarter.

§ 6. Forgives and Heals a Paralytic. Mt. ix. 2–8; Lu. v. 18–26.

2 And entering again into Capernaum, after some days it was heard say—
   He is in a house;
   2 and many were gathered together, so that no longer was there room even in the approaches to the door,—and he began speaking unto them the word;
   3 and they come, bearing unto him a paralytic, upborne by four,
   4 and not being able to get near him, by reason of the multitude they uncovered the roof where he was, and having broken it up they let down upon the couch whereon the paralytic was lying;
   5 and Jesus, seeing their faith, saith unto the paralytic—
   Child! forgiven are thy sins!

6 Now there were certain of the Scribes there, sitting and deliberating in their hearts—
   7 Why doth this man thus talk? he is speaking profanely! Who can forgive sins save one, God?
   8 And Jesus taking note in his spirit, that thus they are deliberating within themselves, saith unto them—
   Why, these things are ye deliberating in your hearts?
   9 Which is easier—
      To say unto the paralytic, Forgiven are thine sins, Or to say, Rise, and take up thy couch, and be walking?
   10 But that ye may know that the Son of Man hath authority to forgive sins upon the earth—
      he saith to the paralytic:
   11 To thee I say, Rise, take up thy couch, and be going thy way unto thy house.
   12 And he arose, and taking up the couch went forth before all, so that all were beside themselves, and were glorifying God, saying:
      Thus we never saw it!

§ 7. Calls Levi. Mt. ix. 9–13; Lu. v. 27–32.

13 And he went forth again by the sea, and all the multitude was coming unto him, and he began teaching them.
   14 And, passing by, he saw Levi, the son of Alpheus, sitting over the tax-office, and saith unto him—
      Be following me!
   15 And he arose, and following him.
   16 And it cometh to pass, that he is reclining in his house, and many tax-collectors and sinners were reclining with Jesus and his disciples; for there were many, and they began following him.
   17 And the Scribes and Pharisees, seeing that he was eating with the sinners and the tax-collectors began saying unto his disciples—
      With the tax-collectors and sinners is he eating?

§ 10. Then will they fast. Mt. ix. 14–17; Lu. v. 33–38.

18 And the disciples of John and the Pharisees were fasting; and they came and say unto him—
   For what cause do the disciples of John and the disciples of the Pharisees fast, whereas thy disciples fast not?
   19 And Jesus said unto them—
      Is it possible for the sons of the bridechamber while the bridegroom is with them to be fasting?
      <So long as they have the bridegroom with them> it is impossible to fast.
   20 But there will come days when the bridegroom shall be taken from them and then will they fast in that day.

§ 11. Disciples pluck Ears of Corn on Sabbath. Mt. xii. 1–8; Lu. vi. 1–5.

24 And it came to pass, when he [on the Sabbath] was passing through the cornfields, and his disciples began to be going forward, plucking the ears of corn.
   25 And the Pharisees were saying—
      See! why are they doing, on the Sabbath, what is not allowed?
   26 And he saith unto them—
      Have ye never read what [David] did, when he had [need] and hungered,—he, and they who were with him:
   27 [now] he entered into the house of God, while [Abiathar] was High-priest, and [the presence-bread] did eat, which it is not allowed to eat save unto the priests, and gave [unto them also who were with him].
   28 And he was saying unto them—
      [The Sabbath] for man was made, and not [man] for the Sabbath.
   29 So that the Son of Man is [Lord] even of the Sabbath.

§ 12. Withered Hand healed on Sabbath. Mt. xii. 9–13; Lu. vi. 6–11.

3 And he entered again into a synagogue, and there was there, a man having [his hand] ||withered||;
   4 and they were narrowly watching him, whether [on the Sabbath] he would cure him, [that they might accuse him.]
   5 And he and saith unto the man who hath [his hand withered]

4 and saith unto them—

Is it allowed [on the Sabbath] [to do good,
or to do evil]?

To [save] [life], or to [slay]?

but they remained silent. 2

And <looking round upon them with anger, [being at the same time grieved on account of the hardening of their heart]> he saith unto the man—

Strengthen thy hand! and he stretched it forth, and his hand [was restored].

6 And <the Pharisees, going out straightway with the Herodians> were giving counsel against him, that they should [destroy] him.

7 And [Jesus, with his disciples] retired unto the sea; and  followed, [also from Judea, and from Jerusalem, and and from Idumea, and beyond the Jordan, and around Tyre and Zidon] [a great throng];
<hearing whatsoever things he was doing> came unto him.

8 And he spake unto his disciples, that [a little boat] might attend him, because of the multitude,—that they might not be pressing upon him. 10

For he cured [many],
so that they were beseeching him, that they might touch him—as many as had plagues;
and [the impure spirits, as soon as they beheld him] were falling down to him, and crying aloud, [while he was speaking]

[Thou] art the Son of God!

12 and sternly' was he rebuking them, lest they should make him [manifest].

(Mt. x. 1-4.)

And he goeth up into the mountain and calleth near whom [he] pleased,—and they went away unto him; 14 and he appointed * twelve, whom also he named [Apostles],—that they might be with him, and that he might be sending them forth to make proclamation, 15 and to have authority to cast out the demons; 16 and he appointed the twelve (and imposed a name on Simon—Peter, 17 and James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James (and imposed on them a name—Boanerges, that is, sons of thunder); 18 and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the zealot; 19 and Judas Iscariot, who also delivered him up.

§ 15. Charged with casting out Demons in Beelzebul.

Mt. xii. 22-37; Lu. xi. 14-23.

And he cometh into a house; 20 and the multitude come together again, so that they could not so much as eat [bread]. 21 And they who were near to him [hearing of it] went out to secure him,—for they were saying—

He is beside himself!

22 And [the Scribes who from Jerusalem had come down] were saying—

He hath [Beelzebul]; and—

In the ruler of the demons casteth he out the demons.

23 And, calling them near, [in parables] began he to say unto them—

How can [Satan] cast [Satan] out?

24 And <if a kingdom [against itself] be divided> that kingdom cannot be made to stand;

25 And <if a house [against itself] be divided> that house shall be unable to stand;

26 And <if [Satan] hath risen up against himself, and become divided> he cannot stand, but hath [an end].

27 But [no one is able] into the house of the mighty one to enter, and [his spoils] to carry off; unless [first] the mighty one be bound,
and [then] his house will he plunder!

28 [Verily] I say unto you—

[All things] shall be forgiven unto the sons
of men,—

The sins and the profanities wherewith
they shall profane;

29 But <whoever shall revile against the Holy Spirit>

Hath no forgiveness, unto times age-abiding,—

But is guilty of [an age-abiding] sin:

30 because they were saying—

[An impure spirit] he hath!

§ 16. Who are my Mother and my Brethren?

Mt. xii. 46-50; Lu. viii. 19-21.

31 And there come, his mother and his brethren, and, standing outside, they sent unto him, calling him. 32 And there was sitting around him a multitude, and they say unto him—

Lo! [thy mother and thy brethren] [outside] are seeking thee!

33 And answering them, he saith—

Who are my mother and my brethren?

34 And <looking around on them who [about him] in a circle> were sitting> he saith—

See! my mother and my brethren!

35 [Whosoever shall do the will of God] [the same] is my brother and sister and mother.

§ 17. Parable of the Sower. Mt. xiii. 1-9;

Lu. viii. 4-8.

4 And [again] began he to be teaching by the sea;
and there come together unto him a very great multitude, so that [he, into a boat] entering, was sitting upon the sea,—and [all the multitude] were [near the sea upon the land].

3 Hearken! Lo! the sower went forth to sow;

4 And it came to pass [as he sowed—

21 And he was saying unto them—

Doth the lamp come, that under the measure it should be put, or under the couch? Is it not that upon the lampstand it may be put? 2 For it is not hidden, 3 save that it may be made visible; neither did it get hidden away, but that it might come into a place where it could be seen. 4

22 If any one hath ears to hear 5 let him hear.

23 And he was saying unto them—

Be taking heed, what ye are hearing:

—With what measure ye mete it shall be measured unto you, and added unto you:

For he that hath it shall be given unto him, 6 And he that hath not 7 even what he hath shall be taken from him. 8 § 20. First the Blade.

28 And he was saying—

[Thus] is the kingdom of God: As a man may cast seed upon the earth, and be sleeping and rising, night and day, and [the seed] be sprouting and lengthening itself,—how [the] knoweth not: 9 Of itself the earth beareth fruit,—first a blade, afterwards an ear, [after that] full corn in the ear; 10 but [as soon as the fruit yieldeth itself up] straightway he rendeth forth the sickle, because standing by is the harvest. 11

§ 21. The Grain of Mustard Seed. Mt. xiii. 31, 32; Lu. xiii. 18, 19.

30 And he was saying—

How shall we liken the kingdom of God, or [in what' parable] shall we put it?

31 As a grain of mustard seed,—which [whenev er it may be sown upon the earth] is less than all the seeds that are upon the earth; 12 and [as soon as it is sown] springeth up, and becometh greater than all other garden plants, and produceth large branches, so that under the shade thereof the birds of heaven can find shelter. 13

32 And [with many such parables as these] was he speaking unto them the word,—according as they were able to hear; 14 but [without a parable] was he not speaking unto them.—privately however, unto his own disciples was he explaining all things.

§ 22. A Storm rebuked. Mt. viii. 23-27;

38 And [discussing the multitude] they took him with them, as he was in the boat, and [other boats] were with them. 27 And there ariseth a great tempest of wind, —and [the waves] were dashing over into the boat, so that [already being filled] was the boat. 28 And [he] was in the stern [on the cushion] sleeping. And they arouse him, and say unto him,

Teacher! carest thou not that we perish?

And [roused up] he rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea —

Hush! be still!

and the wind lulled, and it became a great calm.

And he said unto them —

| Why? | are ye [fearful]?
| Not yet; have ye faith?

And they were caused to fear a great fear, and were saying one to another —

Who then is this, that [both the wind and the sea] give ear unto him?

§ 33. A Demoniac delivered. Mt. viii. 28—34; Lu. viii. 22—39.

5 And they came unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gerasenes. 2 And [Jesus] went forth out of the boat [straightway] there met him [from amongst the tombs] a man, in an impure spirit: 3 who had [his dwelling] among the tombs, and [not even with a chain, any longer] was anyone able to bind him,—

4 because of his having been—many times, with fetters and chains—bound, and the chains having been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters smashed, and no one was mighty enough to tame him; 2 and [continually, night and day, in the tombs and in the mountains] was he crying aloud, and cutting himself in pieces with stones.

And [seeing Jesus from afar] he ran and bowed down to him; 2 and [crying out with a loud voice] saith —

What have I in common with thee, O Jesus, Son of God Most High?

I adjure thee by God, —Do not torment me!

For he was saying to him —

Go forth thou impure spirit, out of the man;

and he was questioning him —

What is thy name?

and he saith to him —

Legion is my name, because we are many;

and he was beseeching him much, that he would not send them forth outside the country.

Now there was there, near the mountain, a large herd of swine, feeding; 2 and they besought him, saying

Send us into the swine, that [into them] we may enter;

and he suffered them. And the impure spirits [going out] entered into the swine, and the herd rushed down the cliff into the sea, about two thousand, and were choked in the sea. 13 And [they who had been feeding them] fled, and bare tidings into the city and into the fields, —and they came to see what it was that had happened.

15 And they came unto Jesus, and view the demonized man, clothed and of sound mind, [him who had had the legion], —and they were struck with fear. 16 And the beholders narrated to them, how it happened to the demonized man, and concerning the swine. 17 And they began to beseech him, to depart from their bounds.

18 And <as he was entering into the boat> he who had been demonized was beseeching him, that [with him] he might be. 19 And he suffered him not, but saith unto him —

Withdraw into thy house, unto thine own, and bear tidings unto them, how many things the Lord for thee hath done, and hath had mercy on thee.

20 And he departed, and began proclaiming, in the Decapolis, how many things Jesus had done for him, —and [all] were marveling.

21 And [Jesus crossing over in the boat again unto the other side] there was gathered a large multitude unto him, and he was by the sea.

22 And there cometh one of the synagogue-rulers, by name Jairus, and [seeing him, falleth at his feet, and beseecheth him much, saying —

My little daughter is at her last! —that, coming, thou wouldst lay thy hands upon her, that she may be made well, and live;

24 and he departed with him. And there was following him a large multitude, and they were pressing upon him.

25 And [a woman] <who had had a flow of blood twelve years, and suffered much> from many physicians, and spent all her means, and profited nothing, —but had [rather] become worse >27 <hearing the things about Jesus> came in the crowd from behind, and touched his mantle; 28 for she was saying —

If I can touch so much as his mantle I shall be made well;

and [straightway] the fountain of her blood was dried up, and she knew in her body, that she was healed from the plague. 29 And [straightway] Jesus <taking note, in himself, of the power which [out of him] went forth, > turning round in the crowd was saying —

Who hath touched my garments?

30 and his disciples were saying to him —

Thou seest the crowd pressing upon thee, —and sayest thou — Who hath touched me?

32 and he was looking round to see her who [this thing had done]. 33 And [the woman] overcome with fear, and trembling, knowing what had happened to her, came, and fell down before him, and told him all the truth. 34 And [he] said to her —

Daughter! thy faith hath made thee well:

Withdraw into peace, and be whole from thy plague.

35 <While yet he is speaking> they come from the synagogue-ruler's, saying —

Thy daughter is dead!

Why [further] annoy the teacher
But if Jesus [overhearing the word being spoken] saith unto the synagougo-ruler—

Do not fear, only have faith!

And he suffered no one to follow with him, save Peter and James and John the brother of James. And they came into the house of the synagougo-ruler, and he observeth a tumult, and persons weeping and wailing greatly;

and, entering, he saith unto them—

Why are ye making a tumult, and weeping?

[The child] is not dead, but is sleeping;

and they were deploring him. But he thrusting all forth, took with him the father of the child, and the mother, and them who were with him, and entereth where the child was; and grasping the hand of the child: he saith unto her—

Talitha, koum!

which is, when translated—

O damsel! to thee! I say, Arise!

And [straightway] the damsel arose, and was walking about; for she was twelve years of age. And they were beside themselves, straightway, with a great transport; and he commanded them, again and again, that no one should get to know this thing, and bade that food should be given her to eat.

§ 25. Cause of Stumbling found in the Carpenter's Son.

Mt. xiii. 53-58: cp. Jn. vi. 42.

And he went forth from thence, and cometh into his own city,—and his disciples follow him.

And [when it was Sabbath] he began to be teaching in the synagougo, and [the greater part] as they heard] were being struck with astonishment, saying—

Whence hath this man these things?—and—

What the wisdom which hath been given to this man?—and—

Such mighty works as these: [through his hands] are coming to pass!

Is not [this] the carpenter? the son of Mary, the brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon?

And are not his sisters here with us?—

and they were finding cause of stumbling in him.

And Jesus was saying unto them—

A prophet is not without honour, [save in his own city, and among his kinsfolk, and in his house];

and he could not [there] do, so much as a single' mighty work,—save [on a few] sickhe laid his hands, and cured them. And he marvelled, because of their unbelief.

§ 26. The Twelve sent forth. Mt. x.; Lu. ix. 1-6, 10, 11.

And he was going round the villages, in a circuit, teaching. And he calleth near the twelve, and began to be sending them forth, two and two,—and was giving them authority over the impure spirits: and charged them that they should take [nothing] for a journey, save a staff only,—no bread, no satchel, no copper [for the belt]; but having bound on light sandals, and not to put on [two] tunics; and he was saying unto them—

<Wheresoever ye shall enter into a house> [there] abide, until ye go forth from thence;

<And whatsoever place shall not welcome you nor hearken unto you> [when ye are going forth from thence] shake off the dust that is under your feet [for a witness against them].

And they went forth, and made proclamation, in order that men should repent; and [many demons] were they casting out,—and were anointing with oil [many] sick, and were curing them.

§ 27. John the Immerser beheaded. Mt. xiv. 1-12;

Lu. ix. 7-9.

And King Herod heard,—for [famous] had become his name; and he was saying—

John the Immerser hath arisen from among the dead, and [for this cause] are the powers working mightily in him;

But [others] were saying—

It is Elijah,

and [others] were saying—

A prophet, like one of the prophets!

But [when Herod heard] he was saying—

[He whom I beheaded]—John; [the same] hath been raised.

For [Herod himself] had sent and secured John, and bound him in prison, for the sake of [Herodias the wife of Philip his brother,—for] her; had he married. For John had been saying to Herod—

[It is not allowed thee] to have [the wife of thy brother].

And [Herodias] was cherishing [a grudge] against him, and wishing [to slay] him,—and could not; for [Herod] stood in fear of John, knowing him to be a man righteous and holy,—and was keeping him safe; and [when he heard him] he paid earnest heed, and [with pleasure] used to listen to him.

And [an opportune day] arriving when Herod on his birth-day made [a feast] for his nobles, and for the rulers of thousands, and for the first men of Galilee; when the daughter of this very Herodias came in and danced; she pleased Herod and those reclining together, and [the king] said unto the damsel—

<Ask me what thou wilt> and I will give it thee;

and he took an oath to her—

<Whatsoever thou shalt ask me> I will give thee unto half my kingdom.

And [going out] she said unto her mother—

What shall I ask? and she said—

[The head of John the Immerser];

And [coming in straightway, with haste, unto the king] she asked, saying—

I desire, that [forthwith] thou give me—

upon a charger, the head of John the Immerser.

And though the king was very grieved; yet by reason of the oaths, and of them who were reclining, he would not refuse her. And the king, sending off a guard, gave orders to bring his head. And, departing, he beheaded him in the prison, and brought his head upon a charger, and gave it unto the damsel, and the damsel gave it unto her mother. And, hearing of it, his disciples went, and took away his corpse, and laid it in a tomb.

And the apostles gathered themselves together unto Jesus, and reported unto him all things, as many as they had done, and as many as they had taught. And he saith unto them—

Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest yourselves a little. For they who were coming and they who were going were many, and not even to eat were they finding fitting opportunity. And they departed, in the boat, into a desert place [apart]. And many saw them going away, and took note of it, and [asfoot, from all the cities] ran they together thither, and overwent them. And, coming forth, he saw a great multitude and was moved with compassion towards them, because they were like sheep having no shepherd, and he began to be teaching them many things. (And [already] at a late hour having arrived) his disciples came unto him and were saying—A desert is the place, and it is already a late hour: dismiss them, that (departing into the surrounding hamlets and villages) they may buy themselves something to eat.

But he answering said to them—Ye shall give them to eat. And they say unto him—

Shall we depart, and buy two hundred denariis' worth of loaves, and give to them to eat? And he saith unto them—

How many loaves have ye? Go, see! And, getting to know, they say—Five, and two fishes.

And he gave them orders, that all should be made recline in parties, upon the green grass. And they fell back in companies, by hundreds and by fifties. And taking the five loaves, and the two fishes, looking up into heaven, he blessed, and brake up the loaves, and began giving unto the disciples, that they might set before them, and the two fishes divided he unto all. And they did all eat, and were filled. And they took up broken pieces, twelve baskets [full measure], and from the fishes. And they who did eat the loaves were [five thousand men].

§ 29. Jesus walketh upon the Lake. Mt. xiv. 22-36; Jn. vi. 16-21.

And straightway constrained he his disciples, to enter into the boat, and be going forward to the other side, unto Bethsaida, while he was dismissing the multitude. And, bidding them farewell, he departed into the mountain to pray. And when evening came, the boat was in the midst of the sea, and he, alone, on the land. And seeing them distressed in the rowing, for the wind was against them, about the fourth watch of the night, he cometh unto them, walking upon the sea, and was wishing to pass by them. But they, seeing him upon the sea walking, supposed that it was an apparition, and cried out aloud; for all saw him, and were troubled. But he, straightway, talked with them, and saith unto them—

Take courage! it is I; be not afraid!

And he went up unto them, into the boat, and the wind lulled. And exceedingly within themselves were they astonished; for they understood not by the loaves, but their heart had been hardened.

§ 30. Jesus in Gennesaret.

And crossing over unto the land they came unto Gennesaret, and cast anchor near. And when they had come forth out of the boat, straightway recognizing him, the people ran round the whole of that country, and began to be carrying round upon couches them who were sick, wherever they heard that he was. And wheresoever he was entering into villages, or into cities, or into hamlets, in the marketplaces laid they the sick, and were beseeching him, that [only the fringe of his mantle] they might touch, and as many soever as touched it were being made well.

And the Pharisees and certain of the Scribes who have come from Jerusalem gather themselves together unto him; and observing certain of his disciples, that with defiled hands, that is unwashed, they are eating bread—for the Pharisees, and all the Jews, unless with care they wash their hands, eat not, holding fast the tradition of the elders; and coming from market, unless they sprinkle themselves they eat not, and many other things there are, which have accepted to hold fast, immersions of cups and measures and copper vessels, and so the Pharisees and the Scribes question him—

For what cause do thy disciples not walk according to the tradition of the elders, but with defiled hands eat bread?

But he said unto them—

Gr. phantasmo. Or (WH): "immerse themselves."
7 But [in vain] do they pay devotions unto me,
Teaching [for teachings] || the commandments

8 <Having dismissed] the commandment

9 And he was saying to them—
[Well] do ye set aside the commandment of serve;

10 For [Moses] said—

word of God, by your tradition which ye have delivered. And || many such similar things || are ye doing!
14 And [again calling near the multitude] he was saying unto them—
Hearken to me, all! and understand:
[Nothing] is there, [from without the man]
entering into him, which can defile him;
But <the things which [out of the man] come forth> are the things that defile the
man. [15]
17 And <when he entered into a house from the multitudes> his disciples began to question him as to the parable; 18 And he saith unto
them—
|| Thus || are [ye also] without discernment?
Perceive ye not, that <nothing [from without] entering into the man> can defile’ him;
19 because it entereth not into his [heart], but into his [stomach], and [into the draught]; it is passed—[purifying all’ foods]?
20 And he was saying—
<That which [out of the man] cometh forth> [that] defileth the man;
21 For <from within, out of the heart of men>
[the base designs] come forth,—fornications, thieves, 22 murders, adulteries, covetousnesses,
knave-messies, deceit, wantonness, an evil eye, profane speaking, foulness,—23 [all these’ wicked things] [from within] come forth, and defile [the man].

§ 32. Canaanite Woman's Daughter healed.
Mt. xv. 21-28.
24 And [from thence arising] he departed into the bounds of Tyre [and Sidon]. And [entering into a house] he was wise as [no one] to know it, and yet could not escape notice,— 25 but straightway  she came and fell down at his feet. 26 Now [the woman] was a Grecian, a Syrophoenician by race, and she was requesting him that [the demon] be would cast forth out of her daughter. 27 And he was saying to her—
Suffer [the children] [first] to be fed; for it is not seemly to take the bread of the children, and [unto the little dogs] to cast it;
28 but she answered and saith to him—
Yes, Lord, and yet [the little dogs, under the table] do eat of the crumbs of the children;
29 and he said to her—
Because of this’ word] go thy way, the demon hath gone forth out of thy daughter; 30 and, departing unto her house, she found the child laid prostrate on the couch, and the demon gone forth.

§ 33. A Deaf Stammerer healed.
34 And <again coming forth out of the bounds of Tyre> he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the bounds of Decapolis. 35 And they bring to him one deaf and stammering; and beseech him that he would lay upon him his hand. 36 And <taking him away from the multitude apart> he thrust his fingers into his ears, and, spitting, touched his tongue; 37 and looking up into the heaven| sighed deeply, and saith unto him—
Ephphatha! that is, Be opened!
38 and his ears opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed,—and he was speaking correctly.
39 And he charged them that they should be telling [no one],—but <as much as to them> he gave charge >[they’ll exceed more abundantly] were making proclamation. 40 And superabundantly] were they being struck with astonishment, saying—
|| Well, hath he [all things] done,—
Both [the deaf] he causeth to hear, and [the dumb] to speak.

§ 34. Four Thousand fed. Mt. xv. 29-38:
cp. ch. vi. 32, etc.
4 In those’ days, there being <again’s large multitude> and they not having any thing to eat> [calling near the disciples] he saith unto
them—
1 I am moved with compassion towards the multitude, because [already] three days abide they with me, and they have nothing to eat; 2 and <if I dismiss them fasting unto their home> they will be exhausted in the way,—and [certain of them] are [from afar].
Mark VIII. 4—35.

§ 30. A Sign refused. Mt. xvi. 1—4; cp. Mt. xii. 38—40; Lu. xii. 54—56.

10 And straightway entering into the boat with his disciples he came into the parts of Dalmanutha; and forth came the Pharisees, and began discussing with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven; testing him. And deeply sighing in his spirit he saith—

Why do ye seek a sign?
Verily I say—
There shall not be given unto this generation a sign.

13 And leaving them, again embarking he departed unto the other side. And they forgot to take loaves, and save one leaf they had nothing with them in the boat. And he began charging them, saying—

Mind! beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the leaven of Herod!

And they began deliberating one with another, because they had no loaves.

Why do ye deliberate, because ye have no loaves?

[Not yet] perceive ye, neither understand—

Keep ye your hearts hardened?

15 [Eyes] having, see ye not?

And [ears] having, hear ye not?

And remember ye not, when the five loaves I brake unto the five thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces ye took up?

They say unto him—Twelve—

When the seven, unto the four thousand, how many hampers [full measure] of broken pieces, ye took up?

And they say unto him—Seven—

And he was saying unto them—

[Not yet] do ye understand?

§ 37. Blind Man by Degrees recovers Sight.

And they come into Bethsaida. And they bring unto him one blind, and beseech him that he, him, would touch.

And <laying hold of the hand of the blind man> he brought him forth outside the village, and <spitting into his eyes, laying his hands upon him> he was asking him—

Anything, seest thou?

And <looking up> he was saying—

I see men, because [like trees] I behold them walking!

Then again put he his hands upon his eyes, and he saw clearly, and was restored, and was seeing distinctly [in broad splendour] all things together.

And he sent him away unto his house, saying—

Not even into the village mayest thou enter.

§ 38. Peter confesses Jesus to be the Christ.

Mt. xvi. 13—20; Lu. ix. 18—21.

And forth went Jesus and his disciples, into the villages of Caesarea of Philip. And in the way he was questioning his disciples, saying unto them—

Who are men saying that I am?

And they answered him, saying—

John the Immerser, and others, and others, one of the prophets.

And he went on to question them—

But [who] say [ye] that I am?

Peter answering saith unto him—

Thou art the Christ.

And he strictly charged them, that no one should tell, concerning him.

And he began to be teaching them—

The Son of Man must needs suffer many things, and be rejected by the Elders and the High-priests and the Scribes, and be slain; and after three days shall arise.

And openly was he speaking the word. And Peter taking him aside began to rebuke him.

But he, turning round and looking upon his disciples, rebuked Peter, and saith—

Withdraw behind me, Satan! because thou art not regarding the things of God but the things of men.

And calling near the multitude with his disciples he said unto them—

If anyone willeth after me, to come, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and be following me.

For whosoever willeth [his own] life shall lose it, but whosoever shall lose his life for the sake of me and of the glad-message shall save it.

Mt. xxi. 1-13; Lu. ix. 28-36; cp. 2 P. i. 16-18.

And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter and James and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart, alone, — and he was transformed before them; and his garments became brilliant, exceeding white, such as no fuller on the earth is able to whiten. And there appeared unto them, Elijah, with Moses, — and they were conversing with Jesus.

And Peter answering saith unto Jesus: —

Rabbi! it is delightful for us to be here, — let us therefore make three tents, for thee one, and for Moses one, and for Elijah one; for he knew not what he should answer, for greatly afraid he had become. And there came a cloud overshadowing them, and there came a voice, out of the cloud, — This is my Son, the Beloved. Be hearkening unto him. And suddenly looking round, he no longer saw them anyone with them, save Jesus only. And as they were coming down out of the mountain he charged them that unto no one should they narrate what they had seen, save whatsoever the Son of Man from among the dead should arise. And the word they held fast unto themselves, discussing what was the rising from among the dead. And they began to question him, saying:

The Scribes say that Elijah must needs come first?

And he said unto them —

Elijah indeed, coming first, restores all things?

And yet, how is it written, regarding the Son of Man, that many things he must suffer, and be set at nought?

But I say unto you —

Elijah also hath come, and they have done with him whatsoever they pleased, — According as it is written regarding him. a § 41. Jesus cures One whom the Disciples could not cure.

Mt. xvii. 14-21; Lu. ix. 37-42.

And coming unto the disciples they saw a large multitude around them, and Scribes discussing with them. And straightway all the multitude, seeing him were greatly amazed, and running near began saluting him.

And he questioned them —

What are ye discussing with them?

And one out of the multitude answered him — Teacher! I brought my son unto thee, having a dumb spirit; and whereasoever it seizeth him it teareth him, and he foameth, and grindeth his teeth, and earareth himself out; — and I spake to thy disciples, that they should cast it out, and they could not.

But he answering saith —

O faithless generation! how long shall I be with you? how long shall I bear with you? Bring him unto me! And they brought him unto him. And seeing the spirit straightway tare him, and falling upon the ground he wallowed, foaming. And he questioned his father — How long a time is it, that this hath befallen him? and he said —

From childhood; and many times hath it cast him both into fire and into waters, that it might destroy him;

But if anything be possible to thee help us, having compassion upon us.

And Jesus said unto him —

As for this, if it be possible to thee —

All things are possible to him who hath faith.

And straightway crying out the father of the child was saying —

I have faith! help my want of faith.

And Jesus seeing that a multitude is running together rebuked the impure spirit, saying unto it — Thou dumb and deaf spirit! give orders unto thee — Come forth out of him, and do not enter into him. And crying out, and greatly mangling him it came forth; and he became as if dead, so that the more part were saying —

He is dead!

But Jesus, grasping his hand raised him, and he stood up. And when he had gone into a house his disciples privately were questioning him — Why were we not able to cast it out?

And he said unto them —

This kind by nothing can come out, save by prayer. b

§ 42. Jesus instructs his Disciples as to his Sufferings.

Mt. xxi. 22, 23; Lu. ix. 43-45.

And from thence going forth, they were journeying through Galilee, and he was not wishing that any should get to know it; § for he was teaching his disciples and saying [unto them]

"[The Son of Man] is to be delivered up into the hands of men, and they will slay him, and [being slain] after three days, will he arise.

But they were not understanding the declaration, and feared [to question] him.

§ 43. How to be Great. Mt. xviii. 1-5; Lu. ix. 46-48.

And they came into Capernaum. And [happening to be] in the house [he] was questioning them—

"What [in the way] were ye discussing?"

And they were silent; for [with one another] they had discussed in the way, [who should be greatest]. And [taking a seat] he addressed the twelve, and saith unto them—

"If anyone willeth to be [first],

He shall be [least of all],

And [minister of all]."

And [taking a child] he set it in the midst of them, and [folding it in his arms] said unto them—

"Whosoever [unto one of these] children shall give welcome, [upon my name] unto me, giveth welcome;

And [whosoever] unto me, giveth welcome, not [unto me] giveth welcome, but [unto him] that sent me."

§ 44. Forbid him not: Value of Small Services. Mt. x. 42. Cause none to stumble. Mt. xviii. 6; Lu. xvii. 2. Be not caused to stumble. Mt. v. 30; xviii. 8.

John said unto him—

"Teacher! we saw someone in thy name casting out demons;—and we forbade him, because he was not following with us.

But [Jesus] said—

Do not forbid him! For [no one] is there, who shall do a work of power in my name, and have power [soon] to revile me;

For [whosoever is not] against us is [for] us;

For [whosoever shall give you to drink] a cup of water [in name that] of Christ's, ye are;—Verily I say unto you—In nowise shall lose his reward.

And [whosoever shall cause to stumble one of these little ones that believe] It is [seemly] for him, rather, if there is hung a large millstone about his neck, and he is cast into the sea.

And [if thy hand shall cause thee to stumble] cut it off.—It is [seemly] for thee, [maimed] to enter into life,

Rather than having [the two hands] to depart into the gehenna, into the fire that is not quenched; [v. 7]"

And [if thy foot be causing thee to stumble] Cut it off.—It is [seemly] for thee, to enter into life*. [v. 7]

Rather than having [the two feet] to be cast into the gehenna; [v. 9]

And [if thine eye be causing thee to stumble] Thrust it out,—It is [seemly] for thee, [one-eyed] to enter into the kingdom of God,

Rather than having [two eyes] to be cast into gehenna,

Where [their worm] dieth not, And [the fire] is not quenched;

For [everyone] with fire shall be salted.

Salt is [good]; but [if] salt become [saltless] wherewith will ye [prepare] it?

Have [within yourselves] salt, and be at peace [one with another]."

§ 45. Concerning Divorce. Mt. xix. 1-12.

And [from thence] arising, he cometh into the bounds of Judea and beyond the Jordan,—and there came together again, multitudes unto him, and [as he had been wont] again was he teaching them. And Pharisees coming near were* questioning him—Whether it is allowed a husband [to divorce a wife], testing him.

But [he] answering, said unto them—What unto you? did [Moses] command?

And [they] said—Moses permitted [to write] a roll of dismissal, and to divorce;

But [Jesus] said unto them—In view of your hardness of heart, wrote he for you this commandment;

But [from the beginning of creation]

Male and female [made he them];

For this cause shall a man live with his father and mother, and [the two] shall become [one flesh];

so that [no longer] are they two, but [one] flesh.

What then [God] hath yoked together let [a man] not put asunder.

And [coming] into the house again the disciples, concerning this, were questioning him;

And he saith unto them—Whosoever shall divorce his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her;

And [if she] divorcing her husband, marry another she committeth adultery."

And they were bringing unto him children, that he might [touch] them,—the disciples however, were rebuking them. But Jesus [seeing it] was greatly displeased, and said unto them—Suffer the children to come unto me,—do not hinder them;

For [of such] is the kingdom of God.

§ 47. A Rich Ruler. "WE have left all." Mt. xix. 16-30; Lu. xviii. 18-30.
And as he was going forth into a road, [one, running, and kneeling before him] was questioning him—

Good Teacher! what shall I do that life age-abiding, I may inherit?—

And Jesus said unto him—

Why callest thou me [good]?

[None] is good [save one]—[God].

The commandments thou knowest,—

Do not commit murder,

Do not commit adultery,

Do not steal,

Do not bear false witness,

Do not defraud,

Honour thy father and mother.*

And he said unto him—

Teacher! [all these things] have I kept [from my youth].

And Jesus, looking at him, loved him, and said unto him—

[One thing] unto thee [is wanting];—

Withdraw! whatsoever thou hast sell, and give unto [the] destitute,—

And thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come! be following me.

And [his] [becoming gloomy because of the word] departed sorrowing, for he was holding [many possessions].

And looking around, Jesus saith unto his disciples—

With what difficulty shall they who have money enter [into the kingdom of God]!

And the disciples were in amazement, because of the words. But Jesus [again answering] saith unto them—

Children! [how difficult] it is, to enter [into the kingdom of God]!

It is [easier] for a camel [through the eye of a needle] to pass, than for [a rich man] [into the kingdom of God] to enter.

And they were being exceedingly struck with astonishment, saying unto him—

[Who] then, can [be saved]?

Looking at them, Jesus saith—

[With men] impossible, but not [with God]; for [all things] are possible [with God].

Peter began to be saying unto him—

Lo! [we] have left all, and followed thee!

Verily! I say unto you—

There is [no one] [who hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or mother, or father, or children, or lands] [for the sake of me and [for the sake of] the glad-message]

[who shall not receive a hundredfold, now.

in this season] [houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, and persecutions!] and [in the age that is coming]; [life age-abiding.

But [many] shall be—

First-last, and [the] Last-first.

§ 48. Jesus foretells his Sufferings. Mt. xx. 17-19; Lu. xviii. 31-34.
Now they were in the way, going up unto Jerusalem, and Jesus was going on before them, and they were in amazement; and they who followed were in fear. And taking unto himself, again, the twelve he began to be saying unto them, [as to the things about to befall him]—

Lo! we are going up unto Jerusalem;

And the Son of Man will be delivered up unto the Chief-priests and the Scribes,—

And they will condemn him to death,

And deliver him up unto the nations;

And they will mock him, and spit upon him, and scourge him, and [slay]:—

And [after three days] will he [arise].

§ 49. Request of Zebedee's Sons. Mt. xx. 20-23.
And there came near unto him, James and John, the two sons of Zebedee,—saying unto him—

Teacher! we desire—

That whatsoever we shall ask thee, thou wilt do for us.

But he said unto them—

What desire ye, I should do for you?

And [they] said unto him—

Grant us, that [one on thy right hand, and one on thy left] we may sit, in thy glory.

But Jesus said unto them—

Ye know not what ye are asking:

Are ye able to drink the cup that I am to drink?

Or to be immersed with the immersion wherewith I am to be immersed?

And [they] said unto him—

We are able.

And Jesus said unto them—

The cup which I am to drink ye shall drink,

And with the immersion wherewith I am to be immersed shall ye be immersed.

But [to sit on my right hand, and on my left] is not mine to give, except unto them for whom it hath been prepared.

And the ten [hearing] began to be sorely displeased, concerning James and John. And Jesus calling them near saith unto them—

Yo know that [they who think to rule the nations] lord it over them, and [their great ones] wield authority over them;

But [not so] it is [among you];

But whatsoever desireth to become [great] among you shall be [your minister],

44 And whosoever desireth, among you, to be [first] shall be [servant of all];
45 For [even the Son of] Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister,—and to give his life [a ransom instead of many].

Mt. xx. 29-34; Lu. xviii. 35-43.

46 And they come into Jericho. And [as he was] journeying forth from Jericho, and his disciples, and a considerable multitude [the son of Timæus, blind Bar-Timæus, a beggar], was sitting beside the road. 47 And [hearing that it was] Jesus the Nazarene [he began to be crying aloud, and saying—
O Son of David! Jesus! have mercy on me.
48 And many were rebuking him, that he might hold his peace; but [he] [so much the more] was crying aloud—
O Son of David! have mercy on me.
49 And [coming to a stand] Jesus said—
Call him!
And they call the blind man, saying unto him—
Take courage! rise! he calleth thee!
50 And [he] [throwing off his mantle—springing to his feet] came unto Jesus. 51 And [answering him] Jesus said—
What desirest thou, I should do for thee?
And [the blind man] said unto him—Rabbi! that I may recover sight.
52 And [Jesus] said unto him—
Go thy way! thy faith hath saved thee.
And [straightway] he recovered sight, and was following him in the road.

§ 51. The Triumphant Entry. Mt. xxi. 1-11; Lu. xix. 29-38; Jn. xii. 12-15.

11 And [when they are drawing near unto Jerusalem, unto Bethphage and Bethany, towards the Mount of Olives] he sendeth forth two of his disciples,—and saith unto them—
Go your way into the village that is over against you, and [straightway, as ye are entering it] ye shall find a colt tied, upon which [no man] yet [hath sat: Loosethim, and bring him.

5 And [if anyone, unto you should say—]
Why are ye doing this?—
say—
[The Lord] of him hath [need];
and [straightway] he sendeth him off again here.
6 And they departed, and found a colt, tied unto a door outside, on the street,—and they are loosing him. 7 And [certain of them that were there standing] were saying unto them—
What are ye doing, loosing the colt?
8 And [they] said unto them, as [Jesus] said,—and they let them go. 7 And they bring the colt unto Jesus, and throw upon them their mantles,—and he took his seat upon him. 8 And [many] spread out [their mantles] along the way, and [others] young branches,—cutting them out of the fields].

§ 52. The Barren Fig-tree cursed.
Mt. xxii. 18, 19. (See § 54.)

12 And [on the morrow, when they came forth from Bethany] he hungered; 13 and [seeing a fig-tree from afar, having leaves] he came...if therefore, he should find nothwithstanding it, and [coming up to it] [nothing] found he, save leaves; for it was not [the season] of figs.
14 And [answering him] he said unto it—
[No more]! [unto times age-abiding]: let anyone of thee [eat fruit].
And his disciples were listening.

15 And they come into Jerusalem. And [entering into the temple] he began to be casting out them who were selling and them who were buying in the temple, and [the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them who were selling doves] he overthrew,—and was not suffering that anyone should carry a vessel through the temple; 17 and was teaching, and saying—
Is it not written,
[My house] [a house of prayer] shall be called [for all the nations]?—
but [ye] have made it,
A den of robbers.

18 And the High-priests and the Scribes [heard] it, and began seeking how they might [destroy] him,—for they were fearing him; for [all the multitude] were being struck with astonishment at his teaching. 19 And [as soon as it became late:] they were going forth outside the city.

§ 54. The Cursed Fig-tree Withered.
Mt. xxi. 19-22. (See § 52.)

20 And [passing by early] they saw the fig-tree [withered from its roots]; 21 and [put in mind] Peter saith unto him—
Rabbi! see! [the fig-tree which thou didst curse] is withered.
22 And [answering him] Jesus saith unto them—
Have faith in God.
23 | Verily | I say unto you—
<Whosoever shall say unto this mountain,
Be lifted up, and cast into the sea,
and shall not doubt in his heart but shall believe that [what he speaketh| cometh to pass> it shall be his.

§ 56. The Vineyard’s Fruits Demanded.
Mt. xxi. 33-46 ; Lu. xx. 9-19.

12 And he began to be speaking unto them | in parables—|
A man planted | a vineyard|,
And put round it a wall,
And dug a wine-vat,
And built a tower.—

And let it out to husbandmen;
And left home.

2 And he sent forth, unto the husbandmen, in the season, a servant, that | from the hus-bandmen| he might receive of the fruits of the vineyard; 3 and, taking him, they beat him, and sent him away | empty.

4 And | again| sent he forth unto them | another’ servant; | and | him| they smote on the head, and dishonoured.

5 And | another| sent he forth; | and | him
they slew.
And many others; | some| indeed beating,
and | others| slaying.

6 Yet one| he had, | a son beloved|: he sent him forth last unto them, saying—
They will pay deference unto my son!
But | those’ husbandmen| | unto themselves
said—
|This| is |the heir!|
Come! let us slay him,
And | ours| shall be |the inheritance|.

8 And, taking, they slew him, and cast him forth outside the vineyard.

9 What will the lord of the vineyard do? He will come, and destroy the husbandmen, and let the vineyard unto others.

10 Have ye not | this scripture| read—

11 | From the Lord| hath this come to pass,
And is marvellous in our eyes?

12 And they were seeking | to secure| him,—and were in fear of the multitude; for they perceived that |against them| theparable he had spoken. And, leaving him, they departed.

§ 57. Cæsar and God. Mt. xxi. 15-22 ;
Lu. xx. 20-26.

13 And they send forth unto him, certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, that they might |catch| him |in discourse|. 14 And, coming,
they say unto him—
Teacher! we know that |true| thou art,
And it concerneth thee not about anyone,—
For thou lokest not unto the face of men;
But |in truth|| the way of God| dost teach:—
Is it allowable to give tax unto Cæsar, or not?
Should we give, or should we not give?

15 But | he| |knowing their hypocrisy|, said unto
them—
Why are ye | tempting| me?
Bring me a denary, that I may see it.

16 And | they| brought one. And he saith unto them—
|Whose| is this image, and the inscription?
And |they| said unto him—
Cæsar’s.

17 And |Jesus| said—
|The things of Cæsar| render |unto Cæsar|,
And |the things of God|| unto God|.

And they were marvelling at him.

§ 58. Marriage and the Resurrection.
Mt. xxii. 23-33 ; Lu. xx. 27-30.

18 And there come Sadducees unto him,—|who| indeed say— |Resurrection| there is none! and they were questioning him, saying—

§ 60. David's Son and Lord. Mt. xxii. 41-46;

Lk. xx. 41-44.

And Jesus [answering] was saying [as he taught in the temple] —

How say the Scribes that [the Christ:] is [Son of David]?

And [David himself] hath said [by the Holy Spirit] —

The Lord hath said unto [my Lord],

Sit thou on my right hand,

Until I put thy foes beneath thy feet. e

David himself calleth him [Lord]; whence, then, is he [his own son]?

And the great multitude was hearing him gladly.

§ 61. Judgment denounced against the Scribes. Cp. Mt. xxiii. 6; Lu. xi. 45; xx. 46, 47.

And [in his teaching] he was saying —

Beware of the Scribes,

Who desire [in robes] to be walking about,

And salutations in the markets,

And first seats in the synagogues,

And first couches in the chief meals, —

Who devour widows' houses,

And [for a pretense] are long in prayer:

[These] shall receive a more surpassing judgment.

And [taking his seat over against the treasury] he was observing how [the multitude] was casting in copper into the treasury, and [many] rich were casting in [much]. And there came [one] destitute widow, and cast in two mites, which are a farthing. And [calling near his disciples] he said unto them —

[Verily] I say unto you,

This destitute widow [more than they all] hath cast in [of those casting into the treasury];

For [they all] [out of their surplus] cast in,

But [she] [out of her deficiency] [as much as she had] cast in, — [the whole of her living].

§ 63. The Prophecy on Mount Olivet. Mt. xxiv.;

Lu. xxi.

And [as he was going forth out of the temple] one of his disciples saith unto him —

Teacher! see what manner of stones, and what manner of buildings!
2 And Jesus said unto him—
Art thou beholding these great buildings? In nowise shall there be left here upon stone which shall in any wise not be thrown down.

3 And as he was sitting within the Mount of Olives, over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew were questioning him privately—

4 Tell us, when these things shall be, and what the sign shall be. All things shall be to be concluded.

5 And Jesus began to say unto them— Beware, lest anyone deceive you; for many will come in my name, saying, I am he; and will deceive many.

6 And when ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars, Be not troubled, it must needs come to pass; but be not ye of this world.

7 For there will arise nation against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; there will be famines, earthquakes in places, and there will be famines:

8 And a beginning of birth-pangs are these things. But be ye wise: for your enemies will deliver you up to the synagogues, and before governors and kings ye shall be brought:

9 For my sake, and for the sake of the glad-message, shall all things be delivered up to them. And when they deliver you up, be not therefore anxious, what ye shall speak; for whatsoever shall be given you in that hour shall be spoken. For ye are not the speakers, but the Holy Spirit that will deliver up:

10 And brother unto brother, unto death and unto parents, children will rise up against parents; and put them to death:

11 And ye shall be hated of all, because of my name; and they that endure will be saved.

12 And when ye shall see the abomination of desolation, standing where it ought not, know that the end is.

13 Then let them which are in Judea flee into the mountains; and let him that is on the house-top not come down, nor enter to take away anything out of his house,

14 And he that hath gone into the field, let him not turn back.

15 But let him that is in the field, say, I am in the field; let him that is in the house, I am in the house.

16 And let them which be in the city, not to go out; and let them which be in the field, not to enter in.

17 And let no man say, Lo, here; or, Lo, there; for there is no where else. But let not them that hear say, Lo, we are going to this place; for there is no there.

18 For in those days shall there be a tribulation—

19 And all shall be as the beginning of creation which God created, until the present time.

20 And if in nowise happen.

21 And save that the Lord hath shortened the days.

22 But for the sake of the chosen of whom he hath made choice, he hath shortened the days.

23 And then, if any one say, See! [there] is the Christ! See! [there] is the Son of Man; Do not believe it.

24 For there will arise false Christs and false prophets; and they will show signs and wonders, so as to deceive, if possible, the chosen.

25 But ye shall beware: I have foretold you all things.

26 But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give its brightness, and the stars shall not fall, and the powers which are in the heavens will be shaken.

27 And then will they see the Son of Man, coming in clouds with great power and glory.

28 And then will he send forth the messengers, and they will gather together all his chosen ones from the four winds, from the utmost bound of earth, from the utmost bound of heaven.

29 Now concerning the fig-tree, learn ye the parable:—

30 When ye already see its branch yellowed, ye observe that near it is the summer;

31 Thus shall ye also, when ye see these things coming to pass, observe ye that near he is; at the doors.

32 Verily I say unto you—In nowise shall this generation pass away, until all these things shall happen:

33 The heaven and the earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away:

34 But concerning that day or hour, no one knoweth, neither the messengers in heaven,
Nor the Son,—
"Save taking heed, be watching,
For ye know not [when] the season [is]:—
As a man from home—
Having left his house,
And given his servants the authority,
'To each one' his work,—
And unto the porter hath given command, that he should watch:—

Be watching, therefore,
For ye know not [when] the master of the house [is coming]:—
Whether at even, or at midnight, or at cock-crowing,—or at early morn:—

Let [coming suddenly] he find you [sleeping].
But <what [unto you] I say> [unto all] I say:

Be watching.

§ 64. The Anointing in Bethany, and the Conspiracy to Betray. Mt. xxvi. 1-18; Lu. xxii. 1-6; Jn. xii. 1-8; cp. Lu. vii. 36 ff.

14 Now it was the Passover and the Unleavened [cakes], after two days. And the High-priests and Scribes were seeking, how with guile they might secure, and slay him; for they were saying—
Not in the feast, lest there be an uproar of the people.*

3 And <he being in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as he was reclining> there came a woman, holding an alabaster-jar of perfume, pure spikenard, very costly; and breaking the jar she was pouring down [the perfume] upon [his head].

4 But there were some much displeased among themselves—
To what end? hath this waste of the perfumef happened?

5 For this perfume could have been sold for above three hundred denaries, and given unto the destitute!

6 And they were indignant with her. * But [Jesus] said—
Let her alone!
Why are ye reproaching [her]?*?

7 A seemly work! hath she wrought [in me];
For [always] have ye [the destitute], with you,
And [whosoever ye please] ye can unto them, [at any time] do well!

8 But [me] not [always] have ye.

9 Whosoever [he be] I say unto you—
Wherever the glad-message shall be proclaimed throughout the whole world>
Also what she did will be told for a memorial of her.

10 And [Judas Iscariot], who was one of the twelve*:

* Yet see how it is brought about in the feast, after ye offering insults (reproaches)?*"
And having sung praise they went forth unto the Mount of Olives.

§ 66. Peter’s Denial foretold. Mt. xxvi. 31-35; Lu. xxii. 31-54; Jn. xiii. 36-38.

And Jesus saith unto them—
Ye [all] will find cause of stumbling. Because it is written,—
I will smite the shepherd, And the sheep will be scattered abroad*.

But [after my arising] I will go before you into Galilee.
And [Peter] said unto him—
<Even if [all] shall find cause of stumbling> Certainly not [1].

And Jesus saith unto him—
[Verily] I say unto thee,
Thou [this day] [in this night, before that twice a cock crow>
Thrice will deny me.

But he [most vehemently] was saying—
<Even though I must needs die with thee> In nowise will I [deny] thee.
Likewise indeed, were [all] besides; saying.

And they come into an estate the name of which is Gethsemane, and he saith unto his disciples—
Sit ye here, while I pray.

And he taketh Peter and James and John with him, and began to be exceedingly amazed, and in great distress; and he saith unto them—
Encompassed with grief is my soul unto death:
Abide ye here, and be watching.

And [going forward a little] he fell upon the ground, and was praying that if it were possible the hour might pass from him; and was saying—
Abba! O Father! All things are possible to thee:
Bear aside this cup from me; But not what [1] will,
But what [thou] wilt. And he cometh and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter—Simón! art thou sleeping? Hadst thou not strength [one hour] to watch?

Be watching and praying,
That ye enter not into temptation:
The [spirit] indeed is willing, But the flesh [is weak].

And again departing, he prayed [the same thing] saying. 40 And again coming, he found them sleeping, for their eyes were being [weighed down], and they knew not what to answer him. 43 And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them—
Ye are sleeping the remaining time and taking your rest:— It is enough! the hour hath come!

Lo! the Son of Man is being delivered up into the hands of sinners.

Be rousing yourselves, let us be leading on! 42

Lo! [he that is delivering me up] hath drawn near!.

§ 68. The Betrayal and Arrest. Mt. xxvi. 47-58; Lu. xxii. 47-54; Jn. xviii. 1-12.

And <straightway> while yet he is speaking> Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, cometh near, and with him a multitude, with swords and clubs, from the High-priests and the Scribes and the Elders. 44 He that is delivering him up hath given an agreed sign unto them, saying—Whomsoever I shall kiss> [he] it is! Secure him, and be leading away [safely]. 45 And <coming, straightway> stepping forward to him he saith—Rabbi!
and openly kissed him. 46 And [they] thrust their hands on him, and secured him. 47 [A certain] one of the bystanders, drawing a sword, smote the servant of the High-priest, and took off his [ear]. 48 And Jesus [answering] said unto them—
As against a robber; came ye forth with swords and clubs to arrest me?

[Daily] was I with you, in the temple, teaching; and ye secured me not.
But [that] the Scriptures may be fulfilled> . . .

And they [all] forsok him, and fled. 51 And [a certain young man] was following with him, having cast about himself a fine Indian cloth [over his naked body],—and they are securing him; but [he] leaving behind the cloth [fled naked].

And they led away Jesus unto the High-priest; and all the High-priests and the Elders and the Scribes gathered together. 54 And [Peter]: afar off followed him, as far as within, into the court of the High-priest; and was sitting with the attendants, warming himself by the light. 55 Now [the High-priests and all the High-council] were seeking against Jesus [testimony], with the intent to put him to death, and were not finding any; 56 for [many] were bearing false-witness against him, and the testimonies were not agreed. 57 And some, standing up, were bearing false-witness against him, saying—
[I] will pull down this shrine, [the one made by hand], and [in three days] another, not made by hand: will I raise. 58 And [not even so] was the testimony agreed. 59 And [the High-priest rising up into the midst] questioned Jesus, saying—Answerest thou [nothing]?

What are these, against thee, witnessing?

But [he] was silent, and answered [nothing]. 61 Again the High-priest was questioning him, and saith unto him—

Art thou the Christ the Son of the Blessed?*

And Jesus said—

"I'll am; and ye shall see the Son of Man—

Sitting upon the right hand of Power,

And coming with the clouds of heaven."

And [the High-priest] having rent asunder his inner-garments, said—

What further need have we of witnesses?

Heard ye the profanity?

What to you doth it appear?

And they [all] condemned him to be worthy of death. 65 And some began to be spitting at him, and covering up his face, and to be buffetting him, and saying to him—

Prophecy! And the attendants [with smart blows] took him.

§ 70. Peter’s Denial. Mt. xxvi. 69–75; Lk. xxii. 54–62; Jn. xviii. 15–18, 25–27: cp. ver. 54, ante.

And <Peter [being] below in the court> there came one of the maid-servants of the High-priest 67 and [seeing Peter warming himself] having looked at him said—

And thou wast with the Nazarene—[with Jesus].

But [he] denied, saying—

I neither know [him], nor do I well understand what thou sayest;

and went out into the porch. 68 And [the maid-servant] [seeing him] began [again] to be saying unto the bystanders—

This one is from among them.

But [he] again was denying. And after a little again [the bystanders] were saying unto Peter—

Truly, thou art from among them; for thou art a Galilaean also.

And [he] began to be cursing and swearing—

I know not this man, of whom ye are speaking!

And straightway, a second time, a cock crowed; and Peter was reminded of the declaration, how Jesus had said to him—

Before a cock [twice] crow > thrice wilt thou deny me.

And when he thought thereon he began to weep.

§ 71. Jesus before Pilate. Mt. xxvii. 1, 2, 11–26; Lk. xxiii. 1–7; Jn. xviii. 38–40; xix. 1–16.

And <straightway early when they had made a council> the High-priests, with the Elders, and Scribes, and all the High-counsel [binding Jesus], led him away, and delivered him up unto Pilate. 6 And Pilate questioned him—

Art thou the king of the Jews? 7

And [he] answering him, saith—

Thou sayest. 8

And the High-priests began to accuse him of many things. 9 And [Pilate] again was questioning him, [saying]—

Answerest thou [nothing]? See! [of how many things] they are accusing thee!

10 But [Jesus] [no further] answered anything, so that Pilate began to marvel. 11 Now at least time he was wont to release unto them one prisoner, whom they were claiming. 12 And there was the so-called Barabbas, [with the rebels] bound, even with them who [in the rebellion] had committed [murder]. 6 And going up the multitude began to be claiming—according as he was wont to do for them. 9 But [Pilate] answered them, saying—

Will ye, I release unto you the king of the Jews?

13 For he was getting to know that [for envy] had the High-priests* delivered him up. 11 But the High-priests stirred up the multitude, that rather Barabbas he should release unto them. 12 But [Pilate] again answering was saying unto them—

What then shall I do with him whom ye call the king of the Jews?

13 And [they] again cried out—

Cruify him!

14 But [Pilate] was saying unto them—

Why? what evil hath he done? And they [vehemently] cried out—

Cruify him!

15 And [Pilate] [being minded to do what would satisfy the multitude] > released unto them Barabbas, and delivered up Jesus, having scourged him, that he should be crucified.

§ 72. Mocked by Roman Soldiers. Mt. xxvii. 27–32; Jn. xix. 2 ff.

16 And [the soldiers] led him away, inside the court, which is a judgment-hall,—and called together the whole band; 17 and they array him in purple, and set upon him, when they have plaited it, a crown of thorns,—18 and began to be saluting him—

Joy to thee! King of the Jews!

19 and were striking him on the head with a reed, and were spitting at him,—and, bowing their knees, were doing him homage. 20 And [when they had mocked him] they put off him [the purple], and put on him [his own garments]. And they lead him forth, that they may crucify him.

21 And they impress a certain passer-by, Simon a Cyrenian, coming from a field, the father of Alexander and Rufus,—that he may carry his cross.

22 And they bring him unto the Golgotha’s place, which is being translated Skull-place. 23 And they would have given him myrrhed wine,—who, however, received it not. 24 And they crucify him, and part assunder his garments, casting a lot upon them—who should have anything. 25 And it was the third hour.

* Or (WH): "they.
  Or: "hamlet," or "country-place."
and they crucified him. And the inscription of his accusation [had been inscribed]—

The King of the Jews.

And with him they crucify [two robbers], one on his right hand, and one on his left.

And [the passers-by] were reviling him, shaking their heads, and saying—

Aha! thou who wast pulling down the shrine, and building one in three days!

Save thyself,—coming down from the cross!—

Likewise [the High-priests also] mocking one to another, [with the Scribes] were saying—

Others [he saved], Himself [he cannot save!]

The Christ, the King of Israel:—

[Let him come down now from the cross,]

That we may see and believe. And [they who had been crucified with him were casting it in his teeth.]

And [when it was the sixth hour] [darkness] came on all—the land—until the ninth hour; and [at the ninth hour] Jesus uttered a cry, with a loud voice—

Eloi! Eloi! lama sabachthani? which is, being translated—

My God! [My God!] to what end didst thou foresake me?

And [some of the by-standers] having heard were saying—

See! [Elijah]! he calleth!

And one [running] filled a sponge with vinegar, and, putting about its head, was giving him to drink, saying—

Stay! let us see whether Elijah is coming, to take him down!

But [Jesus]! [sending out a loud voice] ceased to breathe. And the veil of the Temple was rent into two [from top to bottom].

Now the centurion, who was standing near, out over against him, [seeing] that [thus] he ceased to breathe, said—

Truly! this man was God’s son!

And there were [women also] [from afar] looking on,—among whom were both Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the Little and Joses, and Salome; [who] when he was in Galilee [used to follow him, and minister unto him, and many other women, who had come up with him unto Jerusalem.]

§ 74. The Burial. Mt. xxvii. 57–61; Lu. xxiii. 50–56; Jn. xix. 38–42.

*And evening [already] having begun, [since it was a preparation, that is, the eve of a Sabbath] Joseph of Arimathea, a noble counsellor, who [also, himself] was awaiting the kingdom of God, came; and [venturing] went in unto Pilate, and claimed the body of Jesus. But [Pilate] wondered whether [already] he was dead; and [calling near the centurion] questioned him—whether he had [already] died. And [getting to know from the centurion] he presented the corpse unto Joseph. And [buying a fine Indian cloth] he took him down, and wrapped him about with the cloth, and laid him in a tomb, which had been hewn out of a rock,—and rolled a stone upon the door of the tomb. [Here Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Joses] were viewing how he had been laid."

§ 75. The Resurrection. Mt. xxviii. 1–10; Lu. xxiv. 1–43; Jn. xx. 1–17; cp. Ac. i. 3; 1 Co. xv. 1–8.

*And [the Sabbath having passed] Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome [bought spices, that, coming, they might anoint him. [And [very early, on the first of the week] they are coming towards the tomb—when [the sun] arose. And they were saying one to another—

Who shall roll away for us the stone, out of the door of the tomb?

And [looking up] they observe that the stone hath been rolled up,—for it was exceeding great. [And [entering into the tomb] they saw a young man, sitting on the right, clothed with a white robe,—and they were greatly alarmed. [But [he] saith unto them—

*Be not alarmed! [Jesus]! ye are seeking [the Nazarene, the crucified;]

[He hath arisen! he is not here,—

See! the place where they laid him!]

*But go your way, tell his disciples [and Peter]—

[He is going before you into Galilee:]

[There] shall ye yourselves see him,—According as he said unto you.*

And, going out, they fled from the tomb, for [trembling and transport] were holding them; and [unto no one] said they [anything] for they were afraid.

And [arising early, on the first of the week] he was manifested first, unto Mary the Magdalene, from whom he had cast [seven] demons.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO L U K E.

§ 1. The Prologue.

1 Seeing, indeed, that [not many] had taken in hand to re-arrange for themselves a narrative, concerning the facts which have been fully confirmed amongst us,—according as they who from the beginning became eye-witnesses and attendants of the Word delivered them unto us—

2 it seemed good [even to me] having closely traced from the outset all things accurately to write unto thee [in order], most excellent Theophillus: that [as touching the matters which thou hast been taught by word of mouth] thou mightest obtain full knowledge [of the certainty].

§ 2. Zachariah and Elizabeth.

8 It came to pass [in the days of Herod, king of Judea] that there was a certain priest, by name Zachariah, of the daily course of Abia; and that he had a wife of the daughters of Aaron, and [her name] was Elizabeth. [Now they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and righteous appointments of the Lord, blameless; 7 and they had no child, inasmuch as Elizabeth was barren, and [both] had become [advanced in their days].

9 But it came to pass [as he was doing priestly service in the order of his daily course, before God, according to the custom of his priesthood] it fell to his lot to offer incense, entering into the Temple of the Lord; 10 and [all the throng of the people] was praying outside, at the hour of the incense offering.

11 And there appeared unto him a messenger of the Lord, standing on the right hand of the altar of incense; 12 and Zachariah was troubled when he beheld, and [fear] fell upon him.

13 But the messenger said unto him—

Do not fear, Zachariah! Inasmuch as thy supplication hath been hearkened to,—

And [thy wife Elizabeth] shall bring forth a son unto thee,

And thou shalt call his name [John];

And there shall be joy to thee and exulting,

And [many] over his birth [shall rejoice];

For he shall be great before the Lord,

And [seine and strong drink] in no wise may he drink;

And [with Holy Spirit] shall he be filled, [already] from his mother's womb;

And [many of the Sons of Israel] shall he turn towards the Lord their God;

17 And [he] shall go before him [in the spirit and power of Elijah],—

To turn the hearts of fathers unto children,

And the unyielding, into the prudence of the righteous, among the dead] they believed not; 15 and he said unto them—

Go ye into all the world, and proclaim the glad-message to the whole creation: 16 He that hath believed, and been immersed shall be saved; but he that hath disbelieved shall be condemned:

| Signs moreover shall follow [them who have believed];—

[In my name] shall they cast [demons] out, [With tongues] shall they speak,—

[And in their hands] they shall take up [serpents]:

And [if any deadly thing] they have drunk [in no wise] shall it hurt them: [Upon sick persons] they shall lay [hands], and [well] they shall remain.

19 [The Lord [Jesus]] therefore, on the one hand,

* Or (WE): "With new tongues."

[after talking with them] was taken up into heaven,* and sat down on the right hand of God: 20 [They] on the other hand, going forth, proclaimed on every side, [the Lord] co-working, and confirming [the word] through [the closely following signs].

OTHERWISE.

[All the things given in charge unto the companions of Peter] they concisely reported. But [after these things [Jesus also, himself]] <from east even unto west> sent forth [through them] [the sacred'] and incorruptible' proclamation of the age-abiding' salvation.

And to prepare, for the Lord, [a people made ready].

And Zachariah said unto the messenger—

[Whereby] shall I know this? for [I am aged], and [my wife] advanced in years.

And the messenger answering, said unto him—

[I] am Gabriel,—he that standeth near before God; and have been sent forth to speak unto thee, and to deliver the joyful message unto thee, as touching these things.

And lo! thou shalt be silent, and not able to speak until the day when these things shall come to pass; because thou didst not believe in my words,—the which shall be fulfilled for their season.

And the people were expecting Zachariah, and began to marvel that he should tarry in the Temple; and when he came forth he was not able to speak unto them, and they perceived that his vision he had seen in the Temple,—and he continued making signs unto them, and remained dumb.

And it came to pass [when the days of his public ministration were fulfilled] that he departed unto his house. And [after these days] Elizabeth his wife conceived, and she disguised herself five months, saying—

[Thus] for me, hath the Lord wrought,—

In the days in which he looked upon me, to take away my reproach among men.

§ 3. The Message of Gabriel to Mary.

And in the sixth month was the messenger Gabriel sent forth from God, into a city of Galilee, the name of which was Nazareth,— unto a virgin, betrothed to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the name of the virgin was [Mary]; and entering in unto her, he said—

Joy to thee, favoured one!—

'The Lord' be with thee!

And [she, at the word] was greatly troubled, and began to deliberate, [of what kind] this salutation might be. And the messenger said unto her—

Do not fear, Mary,

For thou hast found favour with God,—

And lo! thou shalt conceive in thy womb. And bring forth a son,

And shalt call his name [Jesus]:—

[The same] shall be great, And [Son of the Most High] shall be called, And the Lord God will give unto him [the throne of David] his father,—

And he shall reign over the house of Jacob unto the ages, And [of his kingdom] there shall be [no end].

But Mary said unto the messenger—

'How shall this thing be, Seeing that [a man] I know not?'

And answering, the messenger said unto her—

'The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, And the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee; Wherefore [even that which is to be born,] Holy shall be called,'

Son of God. And lo! [Elizabeth thy kinswoman, even she] hath conceived a son [in her old age];— And [this month] is [the sixth] to her, [the so-called] barren one;—

Because no declaration from God shall be void of power. And Mary said—

Lo! the handmaid of the Lord! Might it come to pass unto me, according to thy declaration.

And the messenger departed from her.

§ 4. Mary visits Elizabeth. Mary's Song of Triumph.

And Mary, arising, in these days, journeyed into the hill country with haste, into a city of Judah,— and entered into the house of Zachariah, and saluted Elizabeth. And it came to pass that as Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary the babe leapt in her womb, and Elizabeth was filled with Holy Spirit,— and lifted up her voice with loud exclamation, and said—

[Blessed] art thou among women, And [blessed] is the fruit of thy womb; And [whence] to me is [this], That the mother of my Lord should come [unto me]? For lo! [as the sound of thy salutation came into mine ears] The babe in my womb [leapt in exultation].

And [happy] is she who hath believed, that there shall be a perfecting of the things which have been spoken to her from the Lord! And Mary said—

My soul doth magnify the Lord, And my spirit hath exulted upon God my saviour;—

Because he hath looked upon the humbling of his handmaid;— For lo! [from the present time] all the generations will pronounce me happy.

Because he that is mighty hath done for me great things, And [holy] is his name;—

And his mercy is unto generations and generations.

To them who revere him;—

He hath wrought strength with his arm, He hath scattered men arrogant in the intention of their heart;—

He hath deposed potentates from thrones, And uplifted the lowly;

56 And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned unto her house.

§ 5. John's Birth and Zachariah's Song of Triumph.

57 And was the time fulfilled, that she should be bringing forth,—and she gave birth to a son.
58 And her neighbours and kinsfolk heard, that the Lord had magnified his mercy with her, and they were rejoicing with her.
59 And it came to pass on the eighth day that they came to circumcise the child, and were calling it, [after the name of his father] Zachariah.
60 And his mother, answering, said—

Nay! but he shall be called [John].

61 And they said unto her—

There is [no one from among thy kindred] who is called by this name!

62 And they began making signs unto his father, as to what he might be wishing it to be called.
63 And [asking for a small tablet] he wrote, saying—

[John] is his name!

and they marvelled all.
64 And his mouth was opened instantly, and his tongue [loosened], and he began to speak, blessing God.
65 And fear came upon all the neighbours themselves; and [throughout all the hill-country of Judaea] were all these matters being much talked of; 66 and all who heard laid [them] up in their hearts, saying—

What then shall this child be?

for [even the hand of the Lord] was with him.
67 And [Zachariah his father] was filled with Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying:—

Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel!

Because he hath visited and wrought redemption for his people;
69 And hath raised up a horn of salvation for us;

in the house of David his servant:
70 According as he hath spoken by mouth of his holy ancient prophets, —

Of salvation from among our foes, and out of the hand of all them that hate us:
71 To perform mercy with our fathers, —

And to be mindful of his holy covenant, —
72 The oath which he sware unto Abraham our father, —

To grant us, 74 without fear from the hand of enemies' cruel works.

To be rendering divine service unto him, 75 in lovingkindness and righteousness

Before him, all our days.
76 And [even thou, child] | prophet of the Most High | shall be called,—

For thou shalt march on before the Lord, to prepare his ways;
77 Giving a knowledge of salvation unto his people,

By a remission of their sins.
78 Because of the yearning compassion of the mercy of our God,

Wherein shall visit us a day-dawn from on high,
79 To shine on them who [in the darkness and shade of death] are sitting,

To guide our feet into a way of peace.

And [the child] went on growing, and being strengthened in spirit, and was in the deserts, until the day he was pointed out unto Israel.

§ 6. The Birth of Jesus.

80 Now it came to pass [in those days] that there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus, for all the inhabited earth to be enrolled;
2 [this enrolment] first was made, 4 while Cyrenius was governor of Syria: 5 and all were journeying to be enrolled, each one unto his own city.
4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of a city Nazareth, into Judaea, into the city of David which is called Bethlehem; because he was of the house and family of David: 5 to enrol himself, with Mary who was betrothed to him, [she being with child].
6 And it came to pass [while they were there] that the days were fulfilled for her to give birth; 7 and she gave birth to her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.
8 And there were shepherds in the same country, dwelling in the fields, and keeping the watches of the night over their flock.
9 And [a messenger of the Lord] stood over them, and [a glory of the Lord] shine round about them; and they feared a great fear.
10 And the messenger said unto them—

Be not afraid!

For lo! I bring you good tidings of a great joy,

The which shall be for all the people:

That there hath been born unto you, this day,

[a saviour];

—Who is Christ the Lord—

In the city of David;
12 And [this] to you is [a sign]:

Ye shall find a babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger.

And suddenly there came to be, with the messenger, the throng of the heavenly host, praising God, and saying—

14 Glory, in the highest, unto God!
And [on earth] peace, [among men of goodwill].

15 And it came to pass <when the messengers had departed from them into heaven> that [the shepherds] began to say one to another—
Let us go forthwith as far as to Bethlehem, and see this thing which hath come to pass, [which the Lord] hath made known to us.

16 And they came, with haste, and found both Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger. 17 Now [when they beheld] they made known concerning the thing which had been told them as to this child. 18 And [all who heard] marveled concerning the things which had been told by the shepherds unto them; but [Mary] was closely observing [[all]] these things, putting them together in her heart.

19 And the shepherds returned, giving glory and singing praise unto God, over all things which they had heard and seen, [[according as it had been told unto them]].

21 And <when eight days were fulfilled for circumcision> he then was his name called [Jesus],—which it was called by the messenger, [before he was conceived in the womb].

22 And [when the days of their purification, according to the law of Moses, were fulfilled] they took him up into Jerusalem, to present [him] unto the Lord,—[according as it is written in the law of the Lord—]

[Every] male that is a firstborn
[Holy unto the Lord! shall be called,]

24 and to give a sacrifice, according to that which is said in the law of the Lord—
A pair of turtle-doves, or two young pigeons.

25 And lo! there was [a man] in Jerusalem, [whose name] was Simeon; and [the man] was righteous and devout, awaiting the consolation of Israel, and Holy Spirit was upon him;

26 and it had been intimated to him by the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. 27 And he came, in the Spirit, into the temple; and <when the parents brought in the child Jesus, that they might do according to that which was customary by the law concerning it>—[even he] welcomed it into his arms, and blessed God, and said—

[Now] dost thou dismiss thy servant, O Sovereign,
According to thy declaration—in peace;

Because mine eyes have seen [thy salvation].

20 Which thou hast prepared in face of all the peoples:

A light for the unveiling of nations,
The glory of thy people Israel.

23 And his father and mother were marveling over the things which were being spoken concerning him. 24 And Symeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother—

Lo! [this one] is being set for the falling and rising of many in Israel,

And for a sign to be spoken against;

And [thou!]: [through thy very soul] shall pass a sword,

That [reasonings] may be revealed, out of many hearts.

26 And there was one Anna, a prophetess, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher;—[the same; advanced in many days; having lived with a husband seven years from her virginity, and [she] had been a widow for as long as eighty-four years,—who left not the temple, with fastings and supplications| rendering divine service night and day:— and [in that very hour] coming near, she began to give thanks unto God, and to speak concerning him unto all who were waiting for the redemption of Jerusalem.

27 And <when they had finished all things that were according to the law of the Lord> they returned into Galilee, into their own city, Nazareth.

28 And [the child] went on growing, and waxing strong, becoming filled with wisdom; and [the favour of God] was upon it.

§ 8. Jesus, at twelve years of age, found in the Temple.

41 And his parents used to journey yearly into Jerusalem, at the feast of the passover. 42 And <when he became twelve years, and they went up, according to the custom of the feast, and completed the days, and then were returning> the boy Jesus remained behind in Jerusalem.— and his parents noticed it not;—but [supposing him to be in the company] went a day's journey, and then began to seek for him among their kinsfolk and acquaintances, and [not finding him] returned unto Jerusalem, seeking him. 44 And it came to pass, that [after three days] they found him in the temple, sitting amidst the teachers,—both heartening unto them, and questioning them. 44 Now all who heard him were beside themselves, because of his understanding and his answers. 44 And [when they beheld him] they were astonished, and his mother said unto him—

Child! [why] hast thou dealt with us [thus]?

Lo! [thy father and 1] [in anguish] were seeking thee.

46 And he said unto them—

Why was it that ye were seeking me?
Pereceived ye not, that [in the courts of my Father] I must needs be?

46 And they understood not the thing which he spake to them. 51 And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was submitting himself unto them. And [his mother] was closely observing all these things in her heart.

50 And [Jesus] went on ad-

9. The Ministry of John the Immerser, and the Immersion of Jesus. Mt. iii.; Mk. i. 2–11; Jn. i. 19–34.

Now <in the fifteenth year of the supremacy of Tiberius Caesar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and Philip his brother tetrarch of Ituraea and the country of Trachonitis, and Lysanias, tetrarch of Abilene, came a word of God unto John the son of Zacharias; in the desert; and he came into all the country about the Jordan, proclaiming an immersion of repentance unto remission of sins; as it is written in the book of the discourses of Isaiah the prophet:—

VR: A voice of one crying aloud!

In the desert! prepare ye the way of the Lord; straight! be making his paths; every chasm shall be filled up, and [every mountain and hill] be made low; and the [crooked] places shall become [straight], and the [rugged] places, [smooth ways];—

And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.*

He was saying, therefore, unto the multitudes who were going to be immersed by him—Broods of vipers! who suggested to you, to flee from the coming wrath?

Bring forth, therefore, fruits worthy of repentance, and do not begin to say within yourselves—

As our father we have Abraham: For, I say unto you—God is able out of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

And [already] [even the axe] unto the root of the trees is being laid;every tree therefore, not bringing forth [good] fruit, is to be hewn down, and [into fire] to be cast.

And the multitude began to question him saying—

What then, shall we [do]?

And, answering, he said unto them—

He that hath two tunics [let him share with him that hath none, and he that hath food: in like manner let him be doing.]

And there came [even tax-collectors] to be immersed; and they said unto him—Teacher! what shall we [do]?

And [he] said unto them—<Nothing more than what is appointed you> exactly.

Then were questioning him [soldiers also] saying—What shall [even we] do? And he said unto them—Molest ye [no one], neither accuse falsely; and be content with your supplies.

13. Now <as the people were in expectation and all were deliberating in their hearts, concerning John,—whether by any means [he] might be the Christ?> 15 John answered, saying unto all—

If indeed, [with water] am immersing you; but he that is mightier than I [cometh], the thong of whose sandals I am not worthy to unloose,—he will immerse you in Holy Spirit and fire; 17 whose fan is in his hand, to clear out his threshing-floor, and to gather the wheat into his granary; but the chaff will he burn up with fire unquenchable.

18. So then indeed <as to many' things and various he exhorted> and continued telling his glad-message unto the people. 19 But |Herod the tetrarch,* <being reproved by him concerning Herodias, the wife of his brother, and concerning all' the wicked things Herod had done> added this also unto all,—[he locked up John in prison].

Now it came to pass <when one and all the people were immersed> [Jesus also] <having been immersed, and being at prayer> heaven was opened; and the Holy Spirit descended, in bodily appearance, as a dove, upon him,—and [a voice out of heaven] came—

Thou art My Son, the Beloved, [in thee] I delight.

§ 11. The Temptation. Mt. iv. 1—11; Mk. i. 12, 13.

4 And [Jesus, full of Holy Spirit] returned from the Jordan, and was led in the Spirit into the desert, forty days, — being 8 tempted by the adversary; and he did eat nothing in those days, — and when they were concluded, he hungered.

And the adversary said to him —

If thou art God’s [Son] > speak unto this stone, that it become bread.

4 And Jesus made answer unto him —

It is written:

Not [on bread alone] shall [man] live. 2

5 And, leading him up, he showed him all the kingdoms of the inhabited earth, in a moment of time. 4 And the adversary said to him —

Unto thee will I give this authority, all together, and their glory; because [unto me] hath it been delivered up, and [to whomsoever I please] I give it:

7 Thou therefore, if thou wilt worship before me, it shall all [be thine].

8 And, answering, Jesus said to him —

It is written:

The Lord thy God shall thou worship, and unto him alone render divine service. 8

9 And, he led him into Jerusalem, and set him upon the pinnacle of the temple, — and said [to him] —

If thou art God’s [Son] > cast thyself, from hence, down; 10 for it is written —

Unto his messengers will he give command concerning thee, To keep vigilant watch over thee, —

And [on hands] will they take thee up, last once thou strike, against a stone, thy foot. 11

12 And Jesus, answering, said to him —

It is said:

Thou shalt not put to the test the Lord thy God. 1

13 And, having concluded every temptation, the adversary departed from him until a fitting season.

14 And Jesus returned, in the power of the Spirit, into Galilee; 2 and a report went out along the whole of the region, concerning him; and he began teaching in their synagogues, being glorified by all.

16 And he came into Nazareth, where he had been brought up, and entered, according to his custom, on the sabbath day, 3 into the synagogue, and stood up to read. 4 And there was handed to him a scroll of the prophet Isaiah; and unfolding the scroll, he found the place where it was written:

[The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, Because he hath anointed me—
To tell glad tidings unto the desolate;
He hath sent me forth—
To proclaim, to captives, a release,
And, to the blind, a recovering of sight,—
To send away the crushed, with a release; —
To proclaim the welcome year of the Lord. 5
And [folding up the scroll] he handed it to the attendant, and sat down; and the eyes of all [in the synagogue] were intently fixed upon him; 6 and he began to be saying to them —

This day is fulfilled this scripture [in your ears].

22 And [all] were hearing witness to him, and marveling at the words of favour which were proceeding out of his mouth; and they were saying—

Is not [this] the [son of Joseph]? 7

23 And he said unto them—

[By all means] ye will speak to me this similitude:

Physician! heal [thyself]; —

Whatevers things we have heard of coming to pass in [apernnma> do here also, — in thine own country.]

24 And he said—

[Verily] I say unto you,

No prophet is [welcome] in his own country. 4

25 And [of a truth] I say unto you—

Many widows] were in the days of Elijah in Israel,

When the heaven was shut up three years and six months,

When there came a great famine upon all the land;

26 And [unto none of them] was Elijah sent,

[Save unto Sarepta of Sidonia, unto a woman that was a widow].

27 And [many lepers] were in Israel, in the time of Elijah the prophet,

And [not one of them] was cleansed.

[Save Naaman the Syrian].

28 And all were filled with wrath, in the synagogue, as they heard these things. 29 And [rising up] they thrust him forth outside the city, and led § 13. In Capernaum he healeth a Demoniac.

21 And he came down into Capernaum, a city of Galilee. And he was teaching them on the sabbath; and they were being struck with astonishment at his teaching, because with authority was his word. And in the synagogue was a man having a spirit of an impure demon; and he cried out with a loud voice—

24 Let be!
What have we in common with thee, O Jesus, Nazarene!
Hast thou come to destroy us?
I know thee, who thou art,—The Holy One of God.

25 And Jesus rebuked it, saying—Hold thy peace! and go forth from him. And the demon, throwing him into the midst, went forth from him, doing him no hurt.

26 And amazement came upon all,—and they began to converse one with another, saying—What is this word, that with authority and power he giveth orders unto the impure spirits, and they go forth?

27 And a noise concerning him began to go out into every place of the country around.

§ 14. Cures the Mother-in-law of Simon and many others. Proclaims the Kingdom throughout Galilee. Mt. viii. 14—16; Mk. i. 29—39.

28 And rising up, from the synagogue he went into the house of Simon. Now the mother-in-law of Simon was in distress with a great fever; and they made request to him concerning her. And standing over her he rebuked the fever, and it left her; and instantly arising she began to minister unto them.

29 But as the sun was going in they one and all, as many as had any sick with divers diseases, brought them unto him; and he, upon each one of them laying [his hands], was curing them. And demons also were going forth from many; crying aloud, and saying—Thou art the Son of God.

30 And rebuking them he suffered them not to be talking; because they knew him to be [The Christ].

31 And when it was day going forth, he journeyed into a desert place; and the multitudes were seeking after him, and they came unto him, and would have detained him, that he might not depart from them. But he said unto them—
To the other cities also I must needs tell the good-news of the kingdom of God, because [hereunto] was I sent forth.

34 And he was proclaiming in the cities of Judæa.
§ 17. A Paralytic let down through the Roof, forgiven and healed. Mt. ix. 2-8; Mk. ii. 1-12.

17 And it came to pass, on one of the days, that [he] was teaching, and there were sitting Pharisees and Teachers of the law, who had come out of every village of Galilee and Judaea, and Jerusalem; and [the power of the Lord] was there, that he might heal. 18 And lo! men bearing upon a couch, one who was paralyzed, and they were seeking to bring him in; and lay him before him. 19 And <not finding by what means they might bring him in, because of the multitude>; [going up on the house-top] through the tiling; let them him down, with the little-couch, into the midst before Jesus. 20 And beholding their faith] he said—

O man! thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 And the Scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying—

Who is this that speaketh profanities? Who can forgive [sins], save [God alone]?

22 And Jesus, taking note of their reasonings, answering, said unto them—

Why are ye reasoning in your hearts?

23 Which is easier, To say—Thy sins are forgiven thee; or to say—Arise and be walking?

24 But <that ye may know that [the Son of Man] hath [authority] upon the earth to forgive sins>—

he said to the paralyzed man—

To thee] I say, Arise, and, taking up thy couch] be going thy way unto thy house.

25 And [instantly] arising before them; he took up that whereon he had been lying, and departed unto his house, glorifying God. 26 And astonishment seized one and all, and they began glorifying God, and were filled with fear, saying—

We have seen unaccountable things, to-day!

§ 18. Levi called. Mt. ix. 9-13; Mk. ii. 13-17.

27 And [after these things] he went forth, and looked upon a tax-collector, by name Levi,—presiding over the tax-office; and he said to him—

Be following me!

28 And, forsaking all, he arose, and was following him. 29 And Levi made a great reception for him, in his house, and there was a great multitude of tax-collectors, and others,—who were with them reclining. 30 And the Pharisees and their Scribes began murmuring unto his disciples, saying—

Wherefore [with the tax-collectors and sinners] are ye eating and drinking?

31 And, answering, Jesus said unto them—

[No need] have; the whole] of a physician, but [they who are sick].

32 I have not come to call [righteous] men, but [sinners], unto repentance.

§ 19. “Then will they fast.” Mt. ix. 14-17; Mk. ii. 18-22.

33 But [they] said unto him—

The disciples of John:] do fast much, and [supplications] do make,—likewise also the disciples of the Pharisees; but, [thine] do eat and drink!

34 [Jesus] however, said unto them—

[Can] ye make [the sons of the bridechamber] fast, while the bridegroom is with them?

35 But there will come days, [even when the bridegroom shall be taken from them], [then] will they fast, in those days.

36 Moreover, he went on to speak [a parable also] unto them—

[No one] rendering a patch from a new mantle, patcheth it upon an old mantle; otherwise, at least, both [the new] he will rend, and [with the old] [the patch which is from the new] will not agree.

37 And [no one] poureth new wine into old skins; otherwise, at least, the new wine will burst the skins, and will [itself] be poured out, and the skins be destroyed.

38 But [new wine] into unused skins must be poured.

39 [No one] having drunk old; desireth new; for he saith, [The old is] mellow.

§ 20. The Disciples pluck Ears of Corn on Sabbath. Mt. xii. 1-8; Mk. ii. 23-28.

6 And it came to pass [on a Sabbath] that he was passing along through cornfields, and his disciples were plucking and eating the ears of corn, rubbing them with their hands. 2 But [certain of the Pharisees] said—

Why are ye doing what is not allowed on the Sabbath? 3 And, making answer unto them, Jesus said—

Have ye never read [even this], what David did when he hungered, [he] and they who were with him—4 How he entered into the house of God, and the presence-bread he receiving, did eat, and gave to them who were with him, which it is not allowable to eat, [save alone, to the priests].

5 And he was saying to them—

The Son of Man is [Lord of the Sabbath].

§ 21. A Withered Hand healed on Sabbath. Mt. xii. 9-13; Mk. iii. 1-6.

6 And it came to pass [on another Sabbath] that he entered into the synagogue, and was teaching, and there was a man there, and [his right hand] was withered. 7 Now the Scribes and the Pharisees were narrowly watching him, whether [on the Sabbath] he healeth,—that they might find whereof to accuse him. 8 But [he] knew their reasonings, and said to the man who had the [withered] hand—

Arise, and stand forward in the midst!

first.” 8 Or: “secretly.”
And, arising, he stood forward. And Jesus said unto them—

I ask you, whether it is allowed [on the Sabbath] to do good or to do harm,—life or to save; or [to destroy].

And [looking round upon them all] he said unto him—

Stretch forth thy hand! and he did so, and his hand was restored.

But [the] were filled with folly, and began converseing one with another, as to what they might do with Jesus.

And it came to pass [in these days] that he went forth into the mountain to pray, and was spending the night in the prayer-house of God. And [when it became day] he called his disciples, and chose from them twelve, whom also he named Apostles,—Simon, whom also he named Peter, and Andrew his brother; and James and John; and Philip and Bartholomew; and Matthew and Thomas; and James, son of Alphaeus, and Simon, who was called Zealot; and Judas, son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who became betrayer; and [coming down with them] he stood upon a level place, also a great multitude of his disciples,—and a great throng of the people, from all Judaea and Jerusalem and the sea-coast of Tyre and Sidon, who had come to hear him and to be healed from their diseases; and [they who were molested by impure spirits] were being cured; and [all the multitudes] were seeking to touch him, because [power] from him was coming forth, and healing all.

§ 23. The Sermon on a Level Place.
Cp. Mt. v.—vii.

And [he] lifting up his eyes towards his disciples was saying:—

Happy! ye destitute.

For [yours] is the kingdom of God.

Happy! ye that hunger now,

For ye shall be filled.

Happy! ye that weep now,

For ye shall laugh.

Happy! are ye, whosoever men shall hate you, and whosoever they shall separate you, and reproach you, and cast out your name as evil [for the sake of the Son of Man]; be rejoiced in that day, and leap for joy: for your reward is great in heaven; for according to the same things were their fathers doing unto the prophets.

But alas! for you, ye wealthy

For ye are duly receiving *your consolation.

Alas! for ye, ye who are filled full now,

For ye shall hunger.

a Or: proselyte, as in Ac. xvi. 13. Or, simply: a pray'ro, b As yet Jesus heals freely; later, his hand is with-

* That is: either a plain; a prayer; held.

* Cp. chap. xvi. 25.

Alas! ye that laugh now,

For ye shall mourn and weep.

Alas! whosoever all men shall speak well of you; for according to the same things were their fathers doing unto the false prophets.

But [unto you] I say [who are hearkening]:

Be loving your enemies;

Be doing [good] unto them that hate you;

Be blessing them that curse you;

Be praying for them that wantonly insult you.

<To him who is smiting thee upon the cheek> be offering [the other also];

And [from him who is taking away thy mantle] thy tunic also do not forbid;

<To every one seeking thee> give,

And [from him that taketh away thy possessions] ask them not back.

And [according as ye desire that men’ be doing unto you]> be ye doing unto them in like manner.

And [if ye love them that love you]> what sort’ of thanks are there for you? for [even sinners] love [such as love them].

[For] if ye even do good unto them that do good unto you> what sort’ of thanks are there for you? [Even sinners] the same are doing.

And [if ye lend to them from whom ye are hoping to receive]> what sort’ of thanks are there for you? [Even sinners] unto sinners do lend, that they may receive back [as much].

But love your enemies, and do good and lend, hoping for [nothing] back; and your reward shall be [great], and ye shall be sons of the Most High, for [he] is [gracious] unto the ungrateful and wicked.

Become ye compassionate, according as [your Father] is [compassionate];

And do not judge, and in nowise shall ye be judged

And do not condemn, and in nowise shall ye be condemned;

Release, and ye shall be released;

Give, and it shall be given unto you: <good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over> will they give into your lap; for with what measure ye mete shall it be measured back unto you.

He spake, moreover, a parable also unto them:

Can [the blind] guide the blind? will not both fall into a ditch?

A disciple is not above the teacher; but when trained, every one shall be as his teacher.

But why beholdest thou the mote that is in the eye of thy brother, while [the beam that is in thine own eye] thou dost not consider?  42 How canst thou say to thy brother—
Brother! let me cast out the mote that is in thine eye,— thyself | the beam in thine own eye | not beholding?
Hypocrite! cast out | first | the beam out of thine own eye, and | then | shalt thou see clearly, to cast out | the mote that is in the eye of thy brother.

43 For a good tree doth not produce worthless fruit, neither again doth [a worthless tree] produce good fruit.  44 For | every tree | by its own fruit | becometh known. For not [of thorns] do they gather figs, neither [of a bramble-bush] do they gather [a bunch of grapes].  45 The good man | [out of the good] treasure of the heart | bringeth forth that which is good; and | the wicked man | [out of the wicked heart] bringeth forth | that which is wicked; for | [out of an overflowing of heart] | speaketh | [his mouth].

And why call ye me Lord! Lord! and not do the things that I say?

<Every’ one coming unto me, and hearkening unto my words, and doing them> I will suggest to you, whom he is like:  46 He is like unto a man building a house, who digged, and deepened, and laid a foundation upon the rock,—and [a flood] coming, the stream burst against that house, and was not strong enough to shake it, because it had been [well] built.

43 But <he that hath heard and not done> is like unto a man having built a house upon the earth, without a foundation,—against which the stream burst, and [straightway] it fell in; and it came to pass, that [the crash of that house] was [great].

§ 24. A Centurion’s Servant healed. Mt. viii. 5–13.  7 <After he had completed all his sayings within the hearing of the people> he entered into Capernaum.

And | a certain centurion’s servant | being sick, was on the point of dying,—who was, by him, | highly prized.  8 But | hearing about Jesus | he sent forth unto him elders of the Jews, requesting him that he would come and bring his servant safely through.  4 And | they | [coming near unto Jesus] began beseeching him earnestly, saying—
Worthy is he for whom thou mayest do this, for he loveth our nation, and | [the synagogue] | he | built for us.

And | Jesus was journeying with them. But <he [by this time] being not far from the house> the centurion sent friends, saying unto him—
Lord! do not trouble thyself, for I am of no consideration, that | under my roof | thou shouldst enter.  Wherefore, neither deemed—

I | myself | worthy to come unto thee,—but speak with a word, and let my servant be healed.  9 For | [I too] | am a man ranked | [under authority], having | [under myself] | soldiers; and | I say to this one— Go! and he goeth,—and to another—Come! and he cometh,—and to my servant—Do this! and he doeth it.

And | [hearing these things] | Jesus marvelled at him; and | [turning to the multitude following] | him | said—
I tell you, | [Not even in Israel] | [such faith as this] | have I found!

And they who were sent, returning unto the house, found the servant | well.

§ 25. The Son of the Widow of Nain is raised from the dead.  11 And it came to pass thereafter, that he journeyed unto a city called Nain, and there were journeying with him, his disciples and a great multitude.  12 Now | as he drew near unto the gate of the city | then lo! there was being brought forth, one dead, the only-begotten son of his mother,—and | she | was a widow; and | [a considerable multitude of the city] | was with her.  13 And | beholding her | [the Lord] was moved with compassion over her, and said to her—
Be not weeping!  14 And | [going forward] | he touched the coffin, and the bearers stood still; and he said—
Young man! | to thee | I say, Arise!  15 And the dead man sat up, and began to speak; and he gave him to his mother.  16 And | fear | seized them | [all]; and they began to glorify God, saying—
[A great prophet] hath been raised up amongst us! and—

God hath visited his people!

And this report went forth throughout the whole of Judaea, and all the surrounding country.

§ 26. John sends Disciples to question Jesus. Mt. xi. 1–19.  18 And John’s disciples carried tidings unto him concerning all these things.  19 And | [calling unto him certain two of his disciples] | John sent unto the Lord, saying—
Art | [thou] | the Coming One, or | [a different one] | are we to expect?

20 And | [coming near unto him] | the men said—
[John the Immerser] hath sent us unto thee, saying—
Art | [thou] | the Coming One, or | [another] | are we to expect?

21 In that very hour | he cured many from diseases, and plagues, and wicked spirits; and | unto many blind | gave he the favour to see.

22 And, answering, he said unto them—

* Setting a crown of grace.
* Or (WH): "a different one"—cp. Mt. xi. 33.
Go and bear tidings unto John, as to what ye have seen and heard:
[The blind] are receiving sight,
The lame walk,
[Lepers] are cleansed, and [the dead] hear,—
The dead are raised,
[The destitute] are told the glad-message;
And [happy] is he, whosoever shall not find occasion of stumbling in me!

And the messengers of John having departed, he began to say unto the multitudes concerning John—
What went ye forth into the desert to gaze at? A reed, by a wind, shaken?
But what went ye forth to see? A man in soft garments arrayed?
Lo! they who in splendid apparel and luxury are found, are in the kingly courts.
But what went ye forth to see? A prophet? Yes! I say unto you,—
And abundantly more than a prophet.
[This] is he concerning whom it is written—
Lo! I am sending forth my messenger before thy face,
Who shall prepare thy way before thee.]

I say unto you—
[A greater] <among them that are born of women > than John is there none; but [he that is least in the kingdom of God] is greater than he.

And [all the people, when they heard, and the tax-collectors justified God, having been immersed with the immersion of John; but the Pharisees and the lawyers] had set aside [the counsel of God against themselves] not being immersed by him.

[Unto what] then, shall I liken the men of this generation?
And unto what are they like?
They are like unto the children sitting in a market-place, and calling one to another, who say—
We played the flute for you, and ye danced not,
We wailed, and ye wept not.
For John the Immerser hath come, neither eating bread nor drinking wine,
And ye say— [A demon] he hath:
The Son of Man hath come, eating and drinking,
And ye say—
Lo! a man, glutinous and a wine-drinker,
A friend of tax-collectors and sinners.
And yet wisdom hath been justified by all their children.

§ 27. A Sinful Woman washes Jesus' feet.

And a certain one of the Pharisees was requesting him, that he would eat with him; and [entering into the house of the Pharisee] he reclined.

And lo! a woman, who indeed was in the city a sinner; and <when she found out that he was reclining in the house of the Pharisee> providing an alabaster-jar of perfume, and standing behind, near his feet, weeping [with the tears] began she to be wetting his feet, and [with the hair of her head] was wiping off [the tears], and was tenderly kissing his feet, and anointing them with the perfume.
But the Pharisee who had invited him [seeing it] spake within himself, saying—

This one [if he were the prophet] would have been taking notice, [who and of what sort] is the woman, who is even touching him, that she is [a sinner].

And, making answer, Jesus said unto him—
Simon! I have [unto thee] something to say.

He then—
Teacher, speak!—saith he.

[Two] debtors there were, to a certain creditor,—the one owed five hundred denarii, and the other fifty.
They not having wherewith to pay [he forgave [both]. Which of them, therefore, will love him [more]?]

Making answer, Simon said—
I suppose, that he to whom [the more, he forgave].
And [he] said unto him—
[Rightly] hast thou judged.
And [turning towards the woman] unto Simon he said—
Seest thou this woman? I entered into thy house: water to me, on my feet thou didst not give,—but [she] [with her tears] bath my feet, and [with her hair] wiped off [the tears].
A kiss to me thou didst not give,—but [she] [from the time I came in] hath not ceased tenderly kissing my feet.
With oil, my head thou didst not anoint,—but [she] [with perfume] hath anointed [my feet].
For which cause I say unto thee—Her many sins have been forgiven, because she hath loved [much]; but [he to whom little is forgiven] [little] loveth.

And he said unto her—
Thy sins have been forgiven.

And they who were reclining together, began to be saying within <themselves>—
Who is [this], that even forgiveth sins?

But he said unto the woman—
[Thy faith] hath saved thee,—
Go thy way into peace.

§ 28. Carrying the Joyful Message from place to place, Women minister unto him.

And it came to pass [in due course] that he was passing through, city by city and village by village, proclaiming, and delivering the glad-message of the kingdom of God,—and [the twelve] were with him; 2 and certain women, who had been cured from evil spirits and infirmities,—Mary, the one called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had gone forth, 3 and Joanna, wife of Chuza steward of Herod, and Susanna, and many others,—who indeed were ministering unto them out of their possessions.

4 And <seeing that a great multitude were coming together, and they who from every city were journeying forth unto him> he spake through means of a parable:—

5 The sower went forth to sow his seed,—and <as he sowed>:

Some fell beside the pathway, and was trodden down; and the birds of heaven devoured it.

6 And [other] fell upon the rock; and, growing, was withered, because it had not moisture.

7 And [other] fell amongst thorns; and, growing together, the thorns choked it.

8 And [other] fell into good ground; and, growing, brought forth fruit [a hundred-fold]:

These things saying, he went on to cry aloud—

[He that hath ears to hear; let him hear.]

9 But his disciples began to question him—

What might [this very] parable be?

10 And [he] said—

[Unto you] hath it been given, to get to know the sacred secrets of the kingdom of God; but [unto the rest] in parables,—in order that, seeing, they may not see, and hearing, they may not understand.

11 Now the parable [is this]:—[The seed] is [the word of God]. 12 And [those beside the pathway] are they who have heard; [afterwards] cometh the adversary, and catcheth away the word from their heart, lest [believing] they should be saved. 13 And [those upon the rock] are they who [as soon as they hear] [with joy] welcome the word; and [these] not having [root] are they who [for a season] believe,—and in a season of testing: draw back. 14 And [that which is in among the thorns' fell] [these] are they who have heard; and by anxieties and wealth and pleasures of life being borne along are choked up, and bear not to perfection.

15 But [that in the good' ground] [these] are they who indeed [in a noble and good heart having heard the word] hold fast, and bear fruit with endurance.

16 And [no one having lit a lamp] covereth it up with a vessel, or [beneath a couch] putteth it; but [upon a lamp-stand] putteth it, that [they who come in] may see the light. 17 For there is no secret, which shall not be made [manifest]: neither a hidden thing, which shall in anywise not be made known, or not come [where it can be seen].

18 Be taking heed therefore how ye hear; for [whosoever shall have] it shall be given unto him; and [whosoever shall not have] [even what he seemeth to have] shall be taken from him.

§ 31. "My Mother and My Brethren." Mt. xii. 46-50; Mk. iii. 31-35.

19 And his mother and brethren came near unto him, and were unable to reach him, because of the multitude. 20 And it was reported to him—

[Thy mother and thy brethren] are standing outside, desiring [to see] thee.

21 But [he] answering, said unto them—

[My mother and my brethren] are [these,— they who] the word of God are hearing and doing.

§ 32. A Storm rebuked. Mt. viii. 23-27; Mk. iv. 35-41.

22 And it came to pass, on one of the days, that [he] entered into a boat, and his disciples; and he said unto them—

Let us pass over unto the other side of the lake.

And they set sail. 23 Now [as they were sailing] [he] fell asleep. And there came down a hurricane of wind upon the lake, and they began to be filled [and to be in peril]. 24 And [coming near] they roused him up, saying—

Master! Master! we perish! 25 And [he, roused up] rebuked the wind, and the surging of the water; and they ceased, and it became a calm. 26 And he said unto them—

Where was your faith?

But [struck with fear] they marvelled, saying one to another—

Who then is [this]?—that even unto the winds he giveth orders [and unto the water], and they hearken unto him.

§ 33. A Gerasene Demoniac delivered. Mt. viii. 28-34; Mk. v. 1-20.

27 And they sailed down into the country of the Gerasenes, which is over against Galilee.

28 And [when he went forth upon the land] there met him a certain man, out of the city, having demons; and [for a considerable time] he had put on no garment, and [in a house] would not abide, but among the tombs.

29 But [seeing Jesus] he cried out aloud, and fell down before him, and [with a loud voice] said—

What have I in common with thee, O Jesus Son of [God] the Most High?

I beg of thee—Do not torment me!—

a Is. vi. 10. b Or: "stand aloof."
LUKE VIII. 29—36; IX. 1—7.

29 for he was about to charge the impure spirit to come out from the man. For many times had it smitten him; and he used to be bound with chains and fetters for a safeguard, and was wont to break in pieces the bonds, and to be driven by the demon into the deserts. And Jesus questioned him—

What name hast thou? And |he| said— Legion! because many demons had entered into him. And they were beseeching him that he would not order them into the abyss to depart.

22 Now there was there, a herd of a good many swine, feeding in the mountain; and they besought him, that he would suffer them |into those| to enter; and he suffered them. And the demons, going forth from the man |entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the cliff into the lake, and were choked.

24 And they who had been feeding them |seeing what had happened| fled, and carried tidings into the city, and into the country-places. And they went forth to see what had happened; and came unto Jesus, and found the man from whom the demons |had gone forth |sitting| clothed, and of sound mind, near the feet of Jesus,—and they were struck with fear. And they who had seen it |reported unto them| how the demonized man was saved. And one and all of the throng of the surrounding country of the Gerasenes |requested him, to depart from them; because |with a great fear| they were oppressed. And |he| entering into a boat |returned|. And the man from whom the demons had gone forth |began to beg of him| that he might be with him; but he dismissed him, saying—

Be returning unto thy house, and telling forth what great things |God|, for thee, hath done. And he departed, |through all| the city—proclaiming what great things |Jesus| had done for him.

§ 34. The Daughter of Jairus raised. and The Woman with Flow of Blood cured. Mt. ix. 18—26; Mk. v. 21—43.

40 Now when Jesus returned the multitude welcomed him back, for they were all expecting him. And lo! there came a man, whose name was Jairus, and |the same| was |a ruler of the synagogue,—and |falling down near the feet of Jesus| he began beseeching him to enter into his house; |because he had| an only-begotten daughter, about twelve years old, and |she| was dying.

Now |as he withdrew| the multitudes were hemming him in. And |a woman| <with a flow of blood of twelve years standing, who indeed could, from no one, be cured> |coming near behind| touched the fringe of his mantle; and |instantly| was stayed the flow of her blood. And Jesus said—

|Who| is it that touched me?

And when all were denying Peter said—

Master! |the multitudes| are hemming thee in, and pressing along.

45 But |Jesus| said—

Some one touched me, for |I| took: note of power, gone out from me.

47 And |the woman seeing that she had not escaped notice| trembling, came, and |falling down before him| reported before all the people |for what cause she had touched him| and how she was healed instantly! And |he| said to her—

Daughter! |thy faith| hath saved thee:

50 Go thy way into peace.

52 |While yet he is speaking| there cometh one from the synagogue ruler's, saying—

Thy daughter |is dead|;

|No further| be troubling the teacher.

55 But |Jesus| hearing, answered him—

Do not fear! |Only believe| and she shall be saved.

And |when he came into the house| he suffered no one to enter with him, save Peter and John and James, and the father of the girl, and the mother. And they were all weeping, and beating themselves for her. And he said—

Be not weeping; for she died not, but is sleeping.

And they were deriding him, knowing that she died. But |he| called aloud, saying—

O girl! arise!

58 And her spirit returned, and she rose up instantly, and he ordered that something should be given her to eat. And her parents were beside themselves. But |he| charged them to tell |no one| what had happened.

§ 35. The Twelve sent forth. Mt. x. 1—14 ff; Mk. vi. 7—13.

9 And |calling together the twelve| he gave them power and authority over all the demons, and to be curing diseases; and sent them forth, to be proclaiming the kingdom of God, and to be healing; and said unto them—

|Nothing| take ye for the journey,—

Neither staff, nor satchel, nor bread, nor silver,

Nor to have |two tunics|.

4 And |into whatsoever house ye enter|—

|There| abide, and |thence| be going forth.

5 And |as many soever as shall not welcome you|—

|In going forth from that city| the dust of your feet| shake ye off |for a witness against them|.

6 And they went forth, and were passing through, along the villages,—delivering the glad-message, and effecting cures in every direction.

§ 36. Herod at a loss about Jesus. Mt. xiv. 1—12; Mk. vi. 14—29.

7 Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all the things which were coming to pass, and was utterly at a loss, because of its being said [by some], that [John] had been raised from the dead; and [by some], that [Elijah] had appeared; and [by others] that [some prophet of the ancients] had arisen. But Herod said—

[John] [I myself] beheaded; but [who is this] concerning whom I am hearing such things as these?

And he was seeking to see him.

And the Apostles [returning] related to him what great things they had done. And [taking them aside] he retired privately, into a city called Bethsaida. But [the multitudes] [getting to know] followed him; and [giving them welcome] he began speaking unto them concerning the kingdom of God, and [them that had need of cure] he healed. And [the day] began to decline; and the twelve [coming near] said to him—

Dismiss the multitude, that <going into the surrounding villages and hamlets> they may lodge, and find provisions; because [here, in a desert] place are we.

But he said unto them—

Give ye them to eat.

[They] however said—

We have not more than five loaves, and two fishes—unless perhaps [we] should go and buy food [for all] this people.

For there were about five thousand men. And he said unto his disciples—

Make them recline, in companies of about fifty each.

And they did so—and made [one and all] recline. And <taking the five loaves, and the two fishes> [looking up into heaven] he blessed them, and brake [them] up, and went on giving to the disciples, to set before the multitude; and they did all eat and were filled. And that which remained over to them was taken up,—of broken pieces twelve baskets.

§ 38. Peter’s Good Confession. Mt. xvi. 13-20; Mk. viii. 27-30.

And <it came to pass, when he was praying in solitude> [the disciples] were with him. And he questioned them, saying—

Who do the multitudes say that I am?

And they, answering, said—

John the Immerser;

But some, Elijah, and others, that [some prophet of the ancients] hath arisen.

And he said to them—

But who say [ye] that I am?

And [Peter] answering, said—

The Christ of God!

[He] however, sternly admonishing them, gave charge that [unto no one] should they be telling this; but saying—

The Son of Man must needs suffer many things; and be rejected by the Elders and High priests and Scribes, and be slain,—and [on the third day] [arise].

§ 39. Taking up the Cross. Mt. xvi. 24-28;

Mk. viii. 34-38.

And he was saying [unto all]—

<If any one intendeth after me> to come—

Let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily,—and be following me.

For <whosoever intendeth [his life] to save> Shall lose it;

But <whosoever shall lose his life for my sake> [The same] shall save it.

For what doth a man profit,

Who hath gained the whole world,

But hath lost, or been made to forfeit [himself]?

For <whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words> [of him]: the Son of Man will be ashamed, whosoever he shall come in his glory, and that of the Father, and of the holy messengers.

But I tell you of a truth—

There are some of those [here] standing,

Who shall in nowise taste of death, until they see the kingdom of God.

§ 40. The Transformation of Jesus. Mt. xvii. 1-8; Mk. ix. 2-13: cp. 2 P. i. 16-18.

And it came to pass [after those words] about eight days <taking with him Peter and John and James> he went up into the mountain to pray. And it came to pass [while he was praying] that [the appearance of his face] was changed, and [his clothing] became white, [effulgent]. And lo! [two men] were conversing with him, who, indeed, were Moses and Elijah,—who [appearing in glory] were speaking as to his departure, which he was about to fulfil in Jerusalem. Now [Peter, and they who were with him] had become heavy with sleep; but [waking up!] they saw his glory, and the two men who were standing with him.

And it came to pass [when they were being parted from him] Peter said unto Jesus—

Master! it is [delightful] for us to be [here]:—

Let us, therefore, make three tents, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah:

not knowing what he said. Now [while he was saying these things] there came a cloud, and it began to overshadow them,—and they were overcome with fear as they entered into the cloud. And [a voice] came out of the cloud, saying—

[This] is my Son [the Chosen One]:

[Unto him] be hearkening.

And [when the voice came] there was found [Jesus alone]. And they held their peace, and [unto no one] reported they, in those days, any of the things which they had seen.
§ 41. Jesus cures a Demonic whom the Disciples could not cure. Mt. xvii. 14-21; Mk. ix. 14-20.

37 And it came to pass <on the next' day, when they came down from the mountain> that there met him a great multitude. 38 And lo! [a man from the multitude] uttered a cry, saying—

Teacher! I beg of thee, to look upon my son, because [my only begotten] he is. 39 And lo! [a spirit] taketh him, and [suddenly] he crieth out, —and it convulseth him—with foaming, and with difficulty departeth from him, sorely bruising him.

40 And I begg'd of thy disciples, that they would cast it out, and they could not.

41 And, making answer, Jesus said—

O faithless and perverse generation! how long shall I be with you, and bear with you? Bring [hither] thy son.

42 And [while yet] he was coming <the demon took> and mangled him. But Jesus rebuked the impure spirit, and healed the boy, and gave him back to his father. 43 And they were all being struck with astonishment, [at the majesty of God].

§ 42. Jesus warns of His Rejection. Mt. xviii. 22-23; Mk. ix. 30-32.

And <while all> were marveling at all things which he was doing > he said unto his disciples:

44 Lay [ye] up in your ears, these words; for [the Son of Man] is about to be delivered up [into the hands of men].

45 But [they] understood not this saying, and it had become veiled from them, that they might not grasp it,—and they were afraid to question him [concerning this saying].

§ 43. True Greatness. Mt. xviii. 1-5; Mk. ix. 33-37.

46 But there entered a reasoning among them, as to who of them should be greatest.

47 And [Jesus] <perceiving the reasoning of their heart> [taking a child] placed it near himself,—

48 and said unto them:

<Whosoever shall give welcome unto this child, on my name> [unto me] giveth welcome;

And <whosoever [unto me] giveth welcome> giveth welcome unto him that sent me forth.*

For [he who is least among you all] [the same] is [great].

49 But John [answering] said—

Master! we saw some one [in thy name] casting out demons,—and we forbade him, because he followeth not with us.

50 And Jesus said unto him—

Do not forbid; for [whosoever is not against you] is [for you].

§ 44. The Face of Jesus set towards Jerusalem.

51 And it came to pass, <when the days for taking him up were on the point of being fulfilled> [even he himself] set [his face] to be journeying unto Jerusalem,* 52 and he sent messengers before his face,—and, taking their journey, they entered into a village of Samaritans, [so as to prepare for him]. 53 And they welcomed him not, because [his face] was for journeying unto Jerusalem. 54 And the disciples James and John [seeing it] said—

Lord! wilt thou, that we bid fire come down from heaven, and destroy* them?

55 But [turning] he rebuked them.*

56 And they journeyed into a different village.

§ 45. Three Would-be Followers put to the Test. Mt. viii. 18-22.

57 And [as they were journeying on the road] one said unto him—

I will follow thee, whithersoever thou shalt depart.

58 And Jesus said unto him—

The foxes have dens, and [the birds of heaven] [nests]; but [the Son of Man] hath not where [his head] he may recline.

59 And he said unto another—

Be following me!

60 But [he] said—

Suffer me, [first] to depart, and bury my father.

61 And he said unto him—

Leave [the dead] to bury their own' dead; But [thou] departing, be declaring the king- dom of God.

62 And [yet another] said—

I will follow thee, Lord;

But [first] suffer me to bid adieu to them that are in my house.

63 But Jesus said [unto him]—

No one, laying the hand on a plough and looking unto the things behind, is fit for the kingdom of God.

§ 46. The Mission of the Seventy [Two.]

10 And [after these things] the Lord appointed seventy [two] others, and sent them forth, two and two before his face, into every' city and place whither [he himself] was about to come.

2 And he was saying unto them—

The harvest indeed, is [great],

But [the labourers] [few];

Beg ye, therefore, of the Lord of the harvest, That he would thrust forth [labourers] into his harvest.*

3 Withdraw! Lo! I send you forth as lambs amid wolves.

4 Be not carrying purse, or satchel, or sandals, And [no one along the road] salute ye;

5 And [into whatsoever house ye enter] [First] * say Peace to this house!

6 And [if the son of peace be there]> [Your peace] shall rest upon it; But [otherwise, at least] [unto you] shall it return.

* The recurrence of Luke's narrative to the Lord's progress towards Jerusa- lem is most impressive: cp. ver. 38, 39; chap. x. 38; xii. 22, 23; xiv. 20; xviii. 31; xix. 11, 12.

* b K. i. 10-12.

* c Or: "enter first> say" —a question of punctuation.
7 And [in the self-same' house] abide ye,
Eating and drinking such things as they have;
For [worthy] is the labourer [of his hire]:
Be not removing from house to house.

8 And <unto whatsoever city ye shall enter, and ye bid you welcome>
Be eating such things as are set before you;
And be curing the sick that are [therein],
And be saying unto them—
The kingdom of God hath drawn nigh
upon you.

9 But <unto whatsoever city ye shall enter, and ye do not welcome you> [Going forth into the broadways thereof]
say ye:

10 <Even the dust that cleaveth unto us, out of your city, unto our feet> do we wipe off against you;
Nevertheless [of this] be taking notice—
The kingdom of God hath drawn near
upon you.

11 I tell you, [For them of Sodom, in that day] [more tolerable] will it be, [than for that city].

12 Alas for thee, Chorazin!
Alas for thee, Bethsaida!
Because <if [in Tyre and Zidon] had been done the works of power which have been done in you>
[Of old, in sackcloth and ashes sitting] they would have repented.

13 Moreover [for Tyre and Zidon] [more tolerable] will it be, in the judgment, than [for you].

14 And [unto you, Capernaum]—
[Unto heaven] shalt thou be uplifted?...
[Unto hades] thou shalt be brought down!*

15 [He that hearkeneth unto you] [unto me]
doth hearken,
And [he that setteth you] aside [doth set]
me aside;
And [he that setteth me] aside [doth set] him that sent me.

16 And the seventy [-two] returned, with joy,
saying—
Lord! [even the demons] submit themselves unto us, in thy name!

17 And he said unto them—
I was beholding Satan, when [like lightning, out of heaven] he fell!

18 Lo! I have given you the authority—
To be treading upon serpents* and scorpions,
[And over all] 'the power of the enemy',—
And [nothing, unto you] shall in anywise do harm;
Notwithstanding [in this] be not rejoicing—
That [the spirits] unto you submit them-

19 But be rejoicing—
That [your names] are inscribed in the heavens!

20 [In the self-same' hour] exulted he in the Holy Spirit, and said—
I openly give praise unto thee, Father!
Lord of heaven and earth!
In that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning,
And hast revealed them unto babes,—
Yea, O Father! that [so] hast it become [a delight] before thee.

21 [All things] unto me have been delivered up
by my Father;
And [no one] knoweth, who the Son is [save
the Father];—
And who the Father is, [save the Son].
And he to whomsoever the Son may be minded to reveal him.*

22 And [turning unto his disciples, privately;] he said—
Happy the eyes, that see what ye see!
For I tell you—
Many prophets and kings have desired to see what [ye] see, and they saw not,
And to hear what ye hear, and they heard
not.

§ 47. A Lawyer answered: The Good Samaritan.

23 And lo! [a certain lawyer] arose, putting him to the test, saying—
Teacher! [by doing what] shall I inherit life age-abiding?*

24 And [he] said unto him—
[In the law] what is written? how dost thou read?

25 And [he] answering, said—
Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, out of all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might, and with all thine intention;*
And thy neighbour, as thyself.*

26 And he said unto him—
[Rightly] hast thou answered:
[This] do, and thou shalt live.

27 But [he] wishing to justify himself, said unto Jesus—
And who is my [neighbour]?

28 And taking up [the question], Jesus said—
A certain man [was] going down from Jerusalem unto Jericho, and [with robbers] fell in,—who, stripping him, and inflicting [wounds] upon him, departed, leaving him half dead.*

29 And [by chance] [a certain priest] was coming down by that road, and, seeing him, passed by
[on the opposite side].

30 And [in like manner] [a Levite also] coming down to the place, and seeing him, passed by
[on the opposite side].

31 But [a certain Samaritan] going on his journey, came down to him, and, seeing him, was moved with compassion; and, coming near, bound up his bruises, pouring thereon oil and wine,—and, setting him on his own beast, brought him into an inn, and took

Take care of him, and whatsoever thou shalt further spend, I will duly pay thee.
Which of these three saremeth unto thee to have become thine own neighbour unto him who fell among the robbers?
And he said—
He who dealt mercifully with him.
And Jesus said unto him—
Be taking thy journey, and thou shalt be doing in like manner.

§ 48. Martha and Mary: The Good Part.
And as they were journeying he entered into a certain village; and a certain woman, named Martha, welcomed him into her house.
And she had a sister, called Mary, who also was sitting at the feet of the Lord, and hearing his word. But Martha was distracted about much ministering, and, coming near, said—
Lord! carest thou not that my sister hath left me to be ministering alone?
Speak to her, then, that she help me.
But the Lord, answering, said to her—
Martha! Martha! thou art an anxious and troubled about many things:
Of few things is there need, or of one; but Mary, in fact, hath chosen the good part:—one which shall not be taken away from her.

And it came to pass when he was in a certain place praying, as he ceased one of his disciples said unto him—
Lord! teach us to pray.
As John also taught his disciples.
And he said unto them—
Whencesoever ye are praying say—
Father! Hallowed be thy name.
Come may thy kingdom,
Our needful bread be giving us, day by day;
And forgive us our sins,
For even ourselves forgive every one indebted to us;
And bring us not into temptation.
And he said unto them—
Who from among you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him—
Friend! supply me with three loaves; forasmuch as a friend of mine hath come off a journey unto me, and I have not what I can set before him;
and he from within shall answer, and say—

Be not disturbing me,—already the door hath been fastened, and my children, with me, are in bed; I cannot rise and give thee?
I say unto you—Even though he will not give him, rising because of his being a friend of his, because, at least, of his importance, he will raise himself, and give him as many as he needeth.
Therefore, unto you say—
Be asking, and it shall be given to you,
Be seeking, and ye shall find,
Be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you.
For whosoever asketh shall receive,
And he that seeketh shall findeth,
And to him that knocketh shall it be opened.
But which is the father among yourselves?
Whom the son will ask for a fish.
Who instead of a fish will give him a serpent?
Or shall also give an egg?
Who will give him a scorpion?
If therefore ye being evil know how to be giving, how good gifts unto your children.
How much rather will the heavenly Father give Holy Spirit unto them that ask him!

§ 50. Jesus accused of casting out Demons in Beelzebul.
And he was casting out a demon, and the dumb began speaking. And the multitudes marvelled; but some from among them said—
In Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons is he casting out the demons;
and others putting him to the test, a sign out of heaven were seeking from him.
But knowing their thoughts, said unto them—
Every kingdom, against itself divided is laid waste.
And a house, against a house divided; falleth; and if even Satan against himself hath become divided how shall his kingdom stand?
Because ye are saying that in Beelzebul am I casting out the demons.
But in Beelzebul am I casting out the demons.
In whom are your sons casting them out?
Wherefore shall be your judges.
But with the finger of God am I casting out the demons.
Then doubtings unawares hath come upon ye the kingdom of God.

<Whencesoever the mighty one, armed may constant supply.

be guarding his own dwelling;* in peace; are his goods; 22 But whosoever a mightier than he shall come upon and vanquish him; 23 His panoply he taketh away wherein he was trusting, and his spoils he distributeth. 24 He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth. 25 Whosoever the impure spirit goeth out from the man it passeth through waterless places seeking rest; and not finding it; 26 It saith, I will return unto my house whence I came out;— 27 and coming findeth it empty, swept, and adorned. 28 Then goeth it, and taketh along with itself, other spirits, more wicked than itself—seven, and entering in, fixeth its dwelling there; and the last state of that man becometh worse than the first. 29 Now it came to pass while he was saying these things that a certain woman out of the multitude lifting up her voice said unto him—Happy the womb that bare thee! And the breasts which thou didst suck! 30 But they said—Yea rather!—Happy they who hear the word of God, and observe it!

§ 51. The Sign of Jonah and The Wisdom Solomon. Mt. xii. 38-42.

31 And as the multitudes were thronging together; he began to be saying—This generation is a wicked generation: A sign it is seeking, and a sign shall not be given it,—Save the sign of Jonah! 32 For according as Jonah became unto the Ninevites a sign.* So shall be the Son of Man also unto this generation! 33 The queen of the south will rise up in the judgment, with the men of this generation, and will condemn them; because she came out of the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon,—And lo! something more than Solomon here! 34 Men of Nineveh will rise up in the judgment, with this generation, and will condemn it; because they repented into the proclamation of Jonah,—And lo! something more than Jonah here!

§ 52. The Lighted Lamp. Cp. chap. viii. 16; Mt. v. 15; Mk. iv. 21.

35 No one having lighted a lamp, putteth it, nor under the measure; but upon the lampstand, that they who enter may see the light. 36 The lamp of the body is thine eye: 37 Whosoever thine eye may be single; 38 Even the whole of thy body* is* lighted up; 39 But whosoever it may be useless; 40 Even thy body is darkened. 41 Be looking to it, therefore, lest the light that is in thee be darkness. 42 If, therefore thy whole body is lighted up, not having any part darkened 43 The whole shall be lighted up as whosoever the lamp, with its radiance may be giving thee light.

44 And when he had spoken a Pharisee was requesting him that he would dine with him; and entering, he declined. 45 And the Pharisee beholding, marvelled that he was not first immersed, before the dinner. 46 And the Lord said unto him: Now ye, the Pharisees! the outside of the cup and of the tray do make pure; But your inward part is full of plunder and wickedness.

47 Simple ones! Did not he who made the outside the inside also make? 48 Notwithstanding as to the things within give alms, and lo! everything is pure unto you. 49 But alas for you, the Pharisees! Because ye tithe the mint, and the rue, and every garden herb, and pass by justice, and the love of God. But these things it was binding to do, and those not to pass by. 50 Alas for you, the Pharisees! Because ye love the first seats in the synagogues, and the salutations in the market-places! 51 Alas for you! Because ye are as the secret tombs: Even the men that are walking above them know it not. 52 And making answer one of the Lawyers saith unto him—Teacher! these things saying, as also dost thou insult! 53 And he said—And for you, the lawyers! alas! Because ye lade men with burdens hard to be borne, and yourselves with one of your fingers touch not the burdens. 54 Alas for you! Because ye build the tombs of the prophets, and your fathers slew them! Hence witness are ye, and find consent—ing pleasure in the works of your fathers:

Because they indeed, slew them,
And ye are building [their tombs].

| For this cause | the Wisdom of God hath said—
I will send forth, unto them, prophets and apostles,—
And some from among them will they slay,
And [some] persecute:

That the blood of all the prophets which hath been shed from the foundation of the world, may be sought out from this generation,—

From the blood of Abel, unto the blood of Zachariah who was destroyed betwixt the altar and the house;
Yes! I say unto you—
||It shall be sought out from this generation!||

Alas for you, the lawyers!
Because ye took away the key of knowledge:
| Yourselves | entered not,
And them who were entering ye hindered.

And when from thence he came out the Scribes and the Pharisees began, with vehemence, to be hemming him in, and trying to make him speak off-hand concerning many things,—lying in wait for him, to catch something out of his mouth.

§ 54. Various Instructions for Disciples and for the Multitude.

12 <Amongst which things, when the ten thousands of the multitude were gathered together, so that they were treading one upon another> he began to be saying |unto his disciples| ||first||
Be keeping yourselves free from the leaven of the Pharisees, the which is [hypocrisy].

But nothing hath been [covered up]
Which shall not be uncovered,
And hidden
Which shall not be made known.

Because as many things as |in the darkness| ye have said:
|In the light| shall be heard;
And what to the ear ye spake, in the chambers>
Shall be proclaimed on the housetops.

And I say unto you my friends—
Do not be put in fear of them who kill the body,
And |after these things| have nothing more uncommon which they can do.

But I will suggest to you, whom ye should fear—
Fear him who |after killing| hath authority to cast into gehenna—
Yes, I say unto you—
|Him| fear ye.

6 Are not [five’ sparrow] sold for two farthings?
And |not one from among them| hath been forgotten before God.|

7 But |even the hairs of your head| have all’
been numbered:

Be not afraid: |Many’ sparrows| ye excel.

8 And I say unto you—
|Whosoever shall confess me before men>
|Even the Son of Man| will confess him,
before the messengers of God;

9 But |he who denied me before men> shall be denied before the messengers of
God.

10 And |whosoever shall say a word against the
Son of Man>
It shall be forgiven him;
But unto him who |against the Holy Spirit|
speaketh profanely>
It shall not be forgiven.

11 But whenever they shall be bringing you in before the synagogues, and the rulers, and the authorities>
Do not be anxious how |or what| ye shall answer, or what ye shall say;

12 For |the Holy’ Spirit| shall teach you, in that very’ hour, what ye ought to say.

13 And one from amongst the multitude said unto
him—
Teacher! bid my brother divide with me the inheritance.

14 But |he| said unto him—
Man! who hath appointed me a judge or divider over you?

15 And he said unto them—
Mind and be guarding yourselves from all’
covetousness;

For not |in one’s abundance| doth his life
spring out of his possessions.

16 And he spake a parable unto them, saying—
||A certain rich man’s estate| bare well.

17 And he began to deliberate within himself, saying—

What shall I do? because I have not where I can gather my fruits.

18 And he said—
|This| will I do,—I will pull down my barns, and |greater ones| build, and

gather |there| all’ my wheat and good things; and will say to my soul—
Soul! thou hast many’ good things
Dying by for many years:

Be taking thy rest, eat, drink, be making merry!

20 But God said unto him—
Simple one! |on this very’ night| they are asking |thy soul| from thee;
|The things| then, which thou hast prepared| whose shall they be?

21 |So| is he that is laying up treasure for himself, and is not rich |towards God|.

22 And he said unto his disciples—
|For this cause| I say unto you,—

* Mt. xvi. 6.
| Chap. viii. 17; Mt. x. 26, Mt. x. 29-38.

b Chap. viii. 17; Mt. x. 26, || Mt. x. 29-38.

a Not merely "by God.” || Mt. x. 19, 20; Mk. xiii. 11.
The difference is most suggestive.

b Or (WII): "[unto you] I say.”
Be not anxious for the life, what ye shall eat, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on;

For the life is more than food, and the body than clothing.

Consider well the ravens — that they sow not, neither do they reap, which have neither chamber nor barn, — and God feedeth them. By how much do ye excel the birds? If then, not even the least thing ye can do, why, concerning the rest, are ye anxious?

Consider well the lilies, how they grow: they toil not, neither do they spin, and yet I say unto you — Not even Solomon in all his glory was arrayed like one of these.

But if God thus adorneth the grass, which is in a field, to-day, and to-morrow, into an oven is cast, — How much rather you! O little of faith!

Ye therefore, be not seeking what ye shall eat and what ye shall drink, and be not held in suspense;

For after all these things do the nations of the world seek, — But your Father knoweth that ye need these things.

Notwithstanding, be seeking his kingdom, — and these things, shall be added unto you.

Be not afraid, the dear little flock! For your Father delighteth to give you the kingdom.

Sell your possessions, and give alms, make for yourselves purses that wax not old, — treasure unfailing, in the heavens, where thief doth not draw near, and moth doth not spoil.

For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

Let your loins be girded, and your lamps burning, and ye yourselves! like unto men awaiting their own lord, once he may break up out of the marriage-feast,

That when he cometh and knocketh, straightway, they may open unto him.

Happy those servants, whom the lord when he cometh, shall find watching!

Verily: I say unto you, — He will gird himself, and make them recline, and, coming near, will minister unto them.

And if in the second, or if in the third, watch, he come and find, thus: — Happy are they!

But of this, be taking note — Had the householder known, in what hour the thief was coming.

He would have watched, and not suffered his house to be digged through:

Ye therefore, be getting ready, because ye in what hour ye are not thinking:

The Son of Man cometh!

But Peter said —

Lord! this parable: speakest thou! Or even unto all!

And the Lord said —

Who then is the faithful steward, the prudent one,

Whom the lord will appoint over his body of attendants:

To be giving, in due season, the measured allowance of wheat;

Happy that servant, whom the lord, when he cometh shall find doing, thus!

Of a truth! I say unto you — Over all his possessions will he appoint him.

But if that servant should say in his heart — My lord delayeth to come!

And should begin to be striking the youths and the maidens, — To be eating also, and drinking, and making himself drunk;

The lord of that servant will have come; — On a day when he is not expecting,

And in an hour when he is not taking note, — And will cut him asunder, and his part with the unfaithful will appoint.

And that servant, who had come to know the will of his lord, and neither prepared, nor wrought unto his will,

Shall be beaten with many stripes;

Whereas he who had not come to know, and did things worthy of stripes:

Shall be beaten with few stripes.

And every one to whom was given much, — Much shall be sought from him;

And he to whom they committed much, — For more than common will they ask him.

Fire came I to cast upon the earth, —

And what can I wish, if already it hath been kindled?

But an immersion have I, to be immersed with,

And how am I distressed, until it be ended!

Suppose ye, that peace? I am come to give in the earth?

Nay, I tell you, but rather division.

For there shall be henceforth five in one house divided!

Three against two, and two against three:

There shall be divided —

Father against son, and son against father, mother against daughter, and daughter against the mother,

Mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against the mother-in-law.

* Mt. vii. 6.

* cp. Mt. x. 84.
LUKE XII. 54—59; XIII. 1—23.

44  And he went on to say, even unto the multitude—
45  Whosoever ye see a cloud springing up from the west—
46  Ye are saying, A thunder-storm is coming!
        And it happeneth thus.
47  And whosoever a south wind, blowing—
48  Ye say, A scorching heat will there be!
        And it cometh to pass.
49  Hypocrites! the face of the earth and of the heaven ye know how to scan;
        But this season, how know ye not to scan?
50  Why, moreover, even from yourselves, judge ye not what is just?
51  For as thou art going along with thine adversary unto a ruler—
        On the way, take pains to get a release from him;
52  lest once he drag thee along unto the judge,
        And the judge deliver thee up unto the punisher,
        And the punisher cast thee into prison.
53  I tell thee—
        In nowise shalt thou come out from thence,
        Unto even the last fraction thou payeth!
§ 55. All must Repent: The Barren Fig-tree.
13 Now there were present some in that very season bringing tidings to him, concerning the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.
2 And, answering, he said unto them—
        Suppose ye, that these Galileans had become sinners beyond all the Galileans, because these things they have suffered?
3 Nay! I tell thee, but except ye repent ye all, in like manner shall perish.
4 Or those eighteen, upon whom fell the tower in Siloam, and slew them, suppose ye that they had become debtors beyond all the men who were dwelling in Jerusalem?
6 Nay! I tell thee, but except ye repent ye all, in the same way shall perish.
5 And he went on to speak this parable:—
        A certain man had a fig-tree, planted in his vineyard, and he came seeking fruit therein, and found none.
6 And he said unto the vine-dresser—
        Lo! three years! I come, seeking fruit in this fig-tree, and find none. Cut it down! Why doth it make even the ground useless?
8 And he answering, saith unto him—
        Sir! let it alone this year also, until such time as I dig about it, and throw in manure, and if it may bear fruit for the future; but otherwise, certainly thou shalt cut it down.
§ 56. The Woman loosed together, healed on Sabbath.
10 And he was teaching in one of the synagogues, on the Sabbath.
11 And lo! a woman having a spirit of weakness eighteen years,—and was bowed together, and unable to lift herself up at all.
12 And, seeing her, Jesus called her and said to her—Woman! thou art loosed from thy weakness,
        and laid on her his hands; and instantly she was made straight again, and began glorifying God. But the synagogue-ruler, answering, being greatly displeased that on the Sabbath Jesus had healed began saying unto the multitude—
        Six days there are, in which men ought to get their work done;
        On them therefore, come and be healed, and not on the day of rest.
15 The Lord answered him, and said—
        Hypocrites! Doth not each one of you, on the Sabbath, loose his ox or ass from the manger, and leading it away, give it drink?
16 But this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound, lo! eighteen years was there not a need be that she should be loosed from this bond on the day of rest?
17 And as he was saying these things all who had been setting themselves against him were being put to shame; and all the multitude were rejoicing over all the glorious things which were being brought to pass by him.
§ 57. The Mustard Seed and the Leaven.
18 He went on to say, therefore—
        Whereunto is the kingdom of God like? And whereunto shall I liken it?
19 It is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and cast into his own garden; and it grew, and became a tree, and the branches of heaven lodged amongst its branches.
20 And again he said—
        Whereunto shall I liken the kingdom of God?
21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of flour, until the whole was leavened.
§ 58. The Narrow Door: Lord! open to us.
22 And he was journeying on, by city by city, and village by village, and making progress unto Jerusalem.
23 And one said unto him—
        Lord! are they few who are being saved?
        And he said unto them—
        Be striving to enter through the narrow door; for many I say unto you, will seek to enter, and will not be able, when once the householder shall close himself, and lock the door, and ye begin to stand outside, and to knock at the door, saying—
        Lord! open to us;

and he shall answer and say unto you—
  I know you not, whence ye are.

[Then] will ye begin to say—
  We did eat and drink in thy presence,
  And [in our broadways] thou didst [not teach];

And he will speak, saying unto you—
  I know not whence ye are;
  Depart from me, all workers of unrighteousness.

[There] will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, as soon as ye see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and [yourselves] being thrust forth outside.

And they shall have come from east and west, and from north and south, and be made recline in the kingdom of God.

And lo! there are [last], who shall be [first], and there are [first], who shall be [last].

§ 59. Jesus fears not Herod: Laments over Jerusalem.

In that very hour] came near certain Pharisees, saying unto him—
  Go forth, and be journeying hence, because [Herod] desireth to slay thee.

And he said unto them—
  Go and tell this fox,
  Lo! I am casting out demons, and [cures] am I finishing, to-day, and to-morrow,— and [on the third] I am to be made perfect.
Nevertheless, I must needs [to-day, and to-morrow, and the following] be journeying on, because it is impossible that a prophet perish [outside Jerusalem].

Jerusalem! Jerusalem! she that slayeth the prophets, and stoneth them that are sent unto her! [How often] have I desired to gather together thy children, like as a hen, her own brood, under her wings,—and ye did not desire!

Lo! your house is left to you.

[And] I say unto you—
  In nowise shall ye see me, until ye say,—
  Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord!*

§ 60. At a Pharisee's on Sabbath Jesus heals one of Dropsy. "Come higher!" The Great Supper.

And it came to pass <when he entered into the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees, on a Sabbath, to eat bread> that [they] were narrowly watching him.

And lo! there was [a certain man] who had the dropsy, before him. And Jesus, answering, spake unto the Lawyers and Pharisees, saying—
   Is it allowed, on the Sabbath, to cure, or not? But [they] held their peace. And taking hold [of him] he healed and dismissed him, — and [unto them] said—

[Which] of you shall have a son or an ox, that [into a pit] shall fall, and will not straightway pull him up [on the day of rest]?*

And they could not return an answer unto these things.

And he went on to speak, unto the invited, a parable,—observing how [the first couches] they were choosing; saying unto them—

<Whosoever thou hast been invited by any-one unto a marriage feast> do not recline on the first couch; lest once a more honourable than thou have been invited by him, and he that invited both thee and him should come, and say unto thee—
  Give [unto this one] place!
  and [then] thou shouldest begin, with shame, [the last place] to occupy.

But [whosoever thou hast been invited] pass on and fall back into the last place, that [whosoever he that hath invited thee shall come] he may say unto thee—
  Friend! come close up [higher].
  Then shalt thou have honour before all that are reclining together with thee.

Because [everyone] who exalteth himself shall be abased;
  and [he that abaseth himself] shall be exalted.°

Moreover he went on to say [unto him also who had invited him]—

<Whosoever thou mayest be making a dinner or a supper> do not call thy friends, or thy brethren, or thy kinsfolk, or rich neighbours,—lest once [they also] invite thee in return, and it become a recompense unto thee.

But [whosoever] [an entertainment] thou mayest be making, invite the destitute, the tried, the lame, the blind;° and [happy] shalt thou be, that they have not wherewith to recompense thee, for it shall be recompensed unto thee [in the resurrection of the righteous].

And one of those reclining together [hearing these things] said unto him—
  Happy! whoever shall eat bread in the kingdom of God!

But [he] said unto him—
  A certain man was making a great supper, and invited many;° and he sent out his servant, at the hour of the supper, to say unto the invited—
   Be coming! because [even now] is it [ready].

And they all began, one after another to excuse themselves.
  The first said unto him—
  A field have I bought, and have need to go out and see it: I request thee, hold me excused.

§ 62. The Lost Sheep, Lost Silver, and Lost Son.

16 But all the tax-collectors and the sinners were drawn near to him, hearing the word, as he taught it, and being as they were, they rejoiced." And both the Pharisees and the Scribes were murmuring, saying—

"This man draweth near unto sinners, and eateth with them.

3 And he spake unto them this parable, saying—

"What man from among you, if he had a hundred sheep, and one of them went astray, would he not leave the ninety-nine on the mountain, and go after that which is gone astray, until he find it?" And when he found it, he laid it on his shoulders, rejoicing; and came home with joy. And he called his friends and his neighbours, saying, 'Rejoice with me, because I have found my sheep that was lost.'

7 I say unto you—

"Joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety-nine righteous persons, who have no need of repentance.

8 Or 'what woman,' having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a lamp, and make a search, until she find it?" And when she found it, she called her friends and her neighbours, saying, 'Rejoice with me, because I have found the piece of silver which I had lost.'

10 And he said—

'If one of you has a hundred sheep, and one of them go astray, would he not leave the ninety-nine and go after the one which is gone astray, until he find it? And when he finds it, he lays it on his shoulders, rejoicing, and comes home with joy, and calls his friends and his neighbours, saying, 'Rejoice with me, because I have found my one sheep which I had lost.'

11 And he said—

'If one of you has ten pieces of silver, and one of them go astray, would he not light a lamp, and make a search, until he find it? And when he finds it, he lays it on his shoulders, and comes home with joy, and calls his friends and his neighbours, saying, 'Rejoice with me, because I have found my one piece of silver which I had lost.'

12 And the younger of them said unto his father—

'Father! give me the share that falleth to me.' And he divided to them the living.

13 And after many days the younger son gathering all together, left home for a country far away, and there squandered his substance with riotous living. And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine throughout that country, and he began to be in want. And he began to be in want. And he went out to work for his sustenance, and was sent into his fields to feed swine. And he used to long to be filled with the pods which the swine were eating; and no man was giving unto him. But coming to himself he said—

'How much hired servants of my father have bread enough and to spare, whereas I perish! I will arise, and go unto my father, and will say unto him—'

* Mt. v. 18; Mk. ix. 50.

† Mt. x. 27, 28.

‡ Gr. ἀφίλετος.

§ Mt. xviii. 19-14.

* Op. ver. 51; Deut. xxl. 17.
Father! I have sinned against heaven, and before thee:

19 No longer am I worthy to be called a son of thine,—

Make me as one of thy hired servants.

And he arose, and came unto his own father.

20 Now while yet he was holding afar off his father saw him, and was moved with compassion, and running fell upon his neck, and tenderly kissed him.

And the son said unto him—

Father! I have sinned against heaven, and before thee:

[No longer am I worthy to be called a son of thine,—

[Make me as one of thy hired servants.]

But the father said unto his servants—

Quick! bring forth a robe—the best! and put on him, And get out a ring for his hand, and sandals for his feet,—

And be bringing the fatted calf, sacrifice! and let us eat and make merry:

Because this my son

Was [dead], and hath come to life again,

Was lost, and is found.

And they began to making merry.

But his elder son was in a field; and <as in coming, he drew near unto the house> he heard music and dancing.— And, calling near one of the youths, he inquired what these things [could be]. 27 And he said unto him—

[Thy brother] hath come, And thy father hath sacrificed the fatted calf, because [safe and sound] hath he received him back.

But he was provoked to anger, and would not go in. And [his father] coming out began to entreat him. 29 But [he] answering said unto his father—

Lo! [so many years as these] do Iserve thee, And [at no time] a commandment of thine have I transgressed,—

And [unto me, at no time] hast thou given a kid, that [with my friends] I might make merry;

But <when this thy son, who had devoted thy living with harlots] came— thou didst sacrifice [for him] the fatted calf.

But [he] said unto him—

Child! [thou] always art [with me], And [all that is mine] is [thine]!*

But [to make merry and rejoice] there was need,

Because [this thy brother]—

Was [dead] and hath come to life again,

And was lost, and is found.

§ 63. The Prudent Steward.

16 And he went on to say [unto his disciples also]—

There was a certain rich man, who had a steward, and [the same] was accused to him as squandering his goods. 3 And, accursting him, he said unto him—

What is this I hear of thee?

Render the account of thy stewardship, for thou canst no longer be steward.

3 And the steward said within himself—

What shall I do, because my lord taketh away the stewardship from me? [Dig] I cannot: [to beg] I am ashamed.

4 I know what I will do, that [when I am] removed out of the stewardship they may welcome me into their own houses.

And <calling unto him each one of the debtors of his own lord> he was saying unto the first—

How much owest thou my lord?

6 And [he] said—

A hundred baths of oil.

And [he] said unto him—

Kindly take thine accounts, and, sitting down, make haste and write—Fifty!

7 [After that, unto another] he said—

And how much owest thou?

And [he] said—

A hundred homers of wheat.

He saith unto him—

Kindly take thine accounts, and write—Eighty!

8 And the lord praised the unrighteous steward, in that with forethought he acted:—

Because [the sons of this age] have more forethought than the sons of light respecting their own generation;

9 And [I] unto you say—

[For yourselves] make ye friends, with the unjust Riches,* in order that, as soon as it shall fail, they may welcome you into the age-abiding' tents.

10 [The faithful in least [in much also] is [faithful],

And [he that in least] is unrighteous is much also [is] unrighteous.

11 [If therefore [in the unjust Riches] ye proved unfaithful]

[The true] who [unto you] will entrust?

12 And [if in what was another's] ye proved unfaithful

[Your own] who will give unto you?

13 [No' domestic can] [unto two masters: be in service:

For either [the one] he will hate, and [the other] love,

Or [unto the one] he will hold, and the other despise:

Ye cannot [unto God] be in service, and unto Riches.]*

* Ap: "Mammon."
Now the Pharisees, who were lovers of money, were hearing all these things, and were openly sneering at him. And he said unto them—

"Ye!] are they who justify themselves before men.

But [God] knoweth your hearts;

Because [that which amongst men] is lofty

Is an abomination before God.

The law and the prophets were until John—

[From that time] the good news of the kingdom of God is being proclaimed, And [everyone] thereinto is forcing his way.

But it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away, Than that [of the law] one little point should fail.

Every one divorcing his wife and marrying another: committeeth adultery;

And [he] that marrieth a woman divorced from a husband: committeeth adultery.

Now [a certain man] was rich, and he used to clothe himself with purple and fine linen, making merry day by day [brilliantly].

And [a certain beggar, by name Lazarus] used to be cast near his gate, full of sores, and to long to be fed from the crumbs that fell from the table of the rich man: nay! even [the dogs] used to come and lick his sores.

And it came to pass that the beggar died, and was carried away by the messengers, into the bosom of Abraham. And [the rich man also] died, and was buried. And [in hades] lifting up his eyes, being in torments, he seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

And [he] calling out, said—

Father Abraham! have mercy upon me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue,—because I am in anguish in this flame.

But Abraham said—

Child! remember—

That thou didst duly receive thy good things in thy life, And [Lazarus, in like manner] the evil things;

But [now, here] he is comforted, And [thou] art in anguish.

And besides all these things—

Btwixt us and you! [a great chasm] hath been fixed,—

So that [they who might wish to cross over from hence unto you] should not be able,

Nor any [from thence unto us] be crossing over.

But he said—

I request thee then, father, that thou wouldst send him unto my father's house, for I have five' brethren;—that he may solemnly testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.

But Abraham saith—

They have Moses and the Prophets: Let them hearken unto them.

But [he] said—

Nay! father Abraham, but if one [from the dead] should go unto them, they would repent.

But he said unto him—

If unto Moses and the Prophets they do not hearken, Neither if one [from among the dead] should arise would they be persuaded.

§ 65. Care, Fidelity, Forgiveness, Faith and Humility enjoined.

And he said unto his disciples:—

It is impossible that occasions of stumbling should not come, Notwithstanding, alas! for him through whom they do come:

It profiteth him, if [a millstone] is hung about his neck; and he is cast into the sea, Than that he cause [one] of these little ones to stumble.

Be taking heed to yourselves,—

If thy brother sin rebuke him, And [if he repent] forgive him;

Even if [seven times a day] he bein against thee, and [seven times] turn to thee, saying I repent; thou shalt forgive him.

And the apostles said unto the Lord—

Bestow on us faith!

And the Lord said—

<If ye have faith like a grain of mustard-seed> Ye should be saying unto [this] mulberry-tree—

Be uprooted! and be planted in the sea,— And it should obey you.

But [who from among you] having [a servant] plowing or keeping sheep, [when he hath come out of the field] will say to him—

[Straightway] come, and recline;—

on the contrary, will not say to him—

Make somewhat ready, that I may dine, and girding thyself be ministering unto me, until I have eaten and drunk; and after these things: thou shalt eat and drink?

Doth he offer thanks unto the servant, because he hath done the things enjoined?

[Thus] [ye also] <when ye have done all the things enjoined upon you> say—

§ 66. Ten Lepers cleansed.

And it came to pass <during the journey unto Jerusalem> that [he] was going through the midst of Samaria and Galilee. 11 And <as he was entering into a certain village> there met him ten leprous' men, who stood still, afar off; 12 and they lifted up a voice, saying—

Jesus! Master! Have mercy on us!

And beholding he said unto them—

Go your way, and show yourselves unto the priests. 14

And it came to pass <as they withdrew> they were cleansed. 16 But [one from among them] <beholding that he was healed> returned, [with a loud voice] glorifying God,— and fell prostrate at his feet, giving him thanks; and [he] was a Samaritan. 18 And Jesus, answering, said—

Were not [the ten] cleansed? [But] where are [the nine]?

Have none been found to return to give glory to God, [save this one of another race]? 19

And he said unto him—

Arise and go thy way: [thy faith] hath saved thee.

§ 67. When and How the Kingdom of God comes.

And <being questioned by the Pharisees> when cometh the kingdom of God? he answered them and said—

The kingdom of God cometh not with narrow watching; 21

Neither shall they say— Lo, here! or There! For lo! the kingdom of God is among you.

But he said unto the disciples— 23 There will come days—

When ye shall see one of the days of the Son of Man; and shall not see.

And they shall say unto you Lo there! or Lo here! Do not depart, and do not pursue.

For <just as> the lightning, <lightning out of the one part under heaven> unto the other part under heaven shineth; 33 [So] shall be, the Son of Man.

But <first> he must needs suffer many things; and be rejected by this generation.

And <as it came to pass in the days of Noah> [So] will it be, even in the days of the Son of Man:

They were eating, they were drinking, they were marrying, they were being given in marriage,—

Until the day that Noah entered into the ark.

And the flood came, and destroyed them all.

<In like manner> <as it came to pass in the days of Lot>

They were eating, they were drinking,

They were buying, they were selling,

They were planting, they were building;—

But <in the day Lot came out from Sodom>

It rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all:—

According to the same things will it be on the day the Son of Man is revealed. 26

In that day <he that shall be on the house-top, and his utensils in the house>

Let him not go down, to take them away! And <he that is in the field>

[In like manner] let him not turn unto the things behind; 27

Bear in mind the wife of Lot!

<Whosoever shall seek to make his life his own shall lose it, 28
But shall give it a living birth.>

I say unto you—

On the selfsame night there shall be two men on one bed,—

[The one] shall be taken near, and [the other] left behind;

There shall be two women grinding together,—

[The one] shall be taken near, and [the other] left behind. 29

And, answering, they say unto him—

Where, Lord?

And [he] said unto them—

<Where the body is> [there] [the vultures also] will be gathered together.

And he was speaking a parable unto them, as to its being needful for them always' to pray, and not be faint-hearted; 4 saying—

A certain judge there was in a certain city,—

Having [for God] no reverence, and [for man] no respect.

And  there was, in that city; and she kept coming unto him, saying—

Vindicate me from mine adversary!

And he was unwilling for a time; but [after these things] he said within himself—

Although neither God I reverence, nor man I respect.

Yet [if only because this widow annoyeth me] I will vindicate her;—

Lest persistently coming she wholly wear me out.

And the Lord said—

Hear ye what [the unrighteous] judge saith:—

And shall [God] in any wise not execute the vindication of his chosen ones, who are cry—

He will execute their vindication, quickly! Nevertheless <though | the Son of Man | do come> Will he, after all, find the faith on the earth?

§ 68. The Pharisee and the Tax-collector.

9 And he spake <even unto certain who were confident in themselves that they were righteous, and were despising the rest> this parable—

10 [Two men] went up into the temple to pray,
| One | a Pharisee, and | the other | a tax-collector.

||The Pharisee| taking his stand | these things unto himself | was praying:||
| O God | I thank thee, that I am not like the rest of men,—||
| Extorters, unjust, adulterers,| Or | even as this tax-collector;||
| I fast twice in the week,| I give a tenth of whatsoever things I gain!||

13 But [the tax-collector] afar off standing,— Would not so much as lift up | his eyes | unto heaven, But kept smiting his own breast, saying— O God! be propitiated unto me, the sinner!

14 I tell you—
This one went down justified unto his house, | rather than that one; ||
Because | every | one who exalteth himself shall be abased, ||
But | he that exaltest himself | shall be exalted.

§ 69. Of the Babes brought to Jesus. Mt. xix. 13-15; Mk. x. 13-16.

15 And they were bringing unto him [even the babes] that he might touch | them; but the disciples, seeing it, began to rebuke them.

16 But | Jesus | called them near, saying—
Suffer | the children | to be coming unto me, and do not hinder them; ||
For | of such | is the kingdom of God.

17 Verily I say unto you— | Whosoever shall not welcome the kingdom of God as a child | in nowise shall enter therein.

§ 70. The Rich Ruler: One thing Lacking. Mt. xix. 16-30; Mk. x. 17-31.

18 And a certain | ruler | questioned him, saying— Good Teacher! | by doing what | shall I inherit life age-abiding?

19 But Jesus said to him—
| Why | calleth thou me | good? ||
| None | is good | save one | God.||
| The commandments | thou knowest:— ||
Do not commit adultery. ||
Do not commit murder. ||
Do not steal.

Do not bear false witness,— Honour thy father and mother.*

21 And | he | said—
| All these things | have I kept from my youth.
22 And Jesus, hearing, said unto him—
| Yet one thing | unto thee, is lacking: ||
| Whatsoever thou hast | sell, and distribute unto the destitute,— ||
| And thou shalt have treasure in [the] heavens; ||
And come | be following me.
23 But | he | hearing these things, became [encumbered with grief]; for he was rich exceedingly.
24 And Jesus, beholding him, said—
| With what difficulty | shall | they who have money, | enter | into the kingdom of God.
25 For it is [easier for a camel, to enter | through the eye of a needle],
Than for [a rich man] to enter | into the kingdom of God.
26 And they who heard said—
| Who, then | can be saved?
27 And | he | said—
| The things impossible with men | are | possible with God.
28 And Peter said—
Lo! | we | have left our own possessions, and followed thee. b
29 And | he | said unto them—
| Verily | I say unto you—
| No one | is there, who hath left—house, or wife, or brethren, or parents, or children,—
| for the sake of the kingdom of God; ||
who shall in anywise not receive manifold in this season, and | in the age | that is coming | life age-abiding.

§ 71. Of the foretelling his Sufferings, is not understood. Mt. xx. 17-19; Mk. x. 32-34.

21 And | taking aside the twelve | he said unto them—
Lo! we are going up unto Jerusalem, and all the things will be finished, which have been written through means of the prophets, respecting the Son of Man; ||
32 For he will be delivered up unto the nations, and be mocked, and insulted, and spit upon,— and having scourged him they will slay him, and | on the third day | will he ||arise. ||
34 And | they | not one of these things | understood, and this saying was hidden from them, and they could not comprehend the things spoken.

§ 72. Blind Man in Jericho recovers sight. Mt. xx. 29-34; Mk. x. 46-52.

30 And it came to pass <as he was drawing near unto Jericho> a certain blind man | was sitting beside the road, begging. 35 And <hearkening unto a multitude moving along> he enquired, what this | might be. 37 And they told him—
| Jesus of Nazareth | is passing by!

F. E. T.
And he cried aloud, saying—

Jesus, son of David! have mercy upon me!

And [they that were going before] began to rebuke him, that he might hold his peace.

But [he] by so much the more was crying out—

O Son of David! have mercy upon me!

And [standing still] Jesus commanded him to be led unto him; and, when he had drawn near, he questioned him—

What desirlest thou, I should do unto thee?

And [he] said—

Lord!...that I may recover sight!

And [Jesus] said unto him—

Recover sight! [Thy faith] hath saved thee.

And [instantly] he recovered sight, and began to follow him, glorifying God. And [all] the people beholding, gave praise unto God.

§ 73. Zacchaeus, the Rich Tax-collector.

19 And [having entered] he was passing through Jericho; and lo! a man by name called Zacchaeus, and [he] was a chief tax-collector, and [he] was rich. And he was seeking to see Jesus, what sort of man he was, and could not for the multitude, because [in stature] he was small. And [running forward unto the front] he got up a sycamore-tree; that he might see him; for [by that way] was he about to pass. And [as he came up to the place] [looking up] Jesus said unto him—

Zacchaeus! make haste, and come down; For [to-day] [in thy house] I must needs abide.

And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully. And all, when they beheld, began to murmur, saying—

With a sinful man! hast he gone in to lodge?

But [taking his stand] Zacchaeus said unto the Lord—

Lo! [the half of my possessions], Lord, [unto the destitute] I give; And [if from anyone] I have taken aught by false accusation I give back fourfold.

And Jesus said unto him—

This day, salvation [unto this house] hath come,—

For that [he too] is a son of Abraham;

And [the Son of Man came], to seek and to save that which was lost.

§ 74. The Nobleman’s Journey to a Distant Land, and his Return.

11 And because they were hearing these things he added and spake a parable, because of his being near Jerusalem, and their supposing that instantly was the kingdom of God to shine forth. He said, therefore—

A certain man, of noble birth, went into a country far away, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

And [calling ten] servants of his own he gave unto them ten minas, and said unto them—

Do business, till I come.

But [his citizens] hated him, and sent off an embassy after him, saying—

We desire not [this] man, to be made king over us!

And it came to pass [when he returned], having received the kingdom, that he bade be called unto him these servants, to whom he had given the silver, that he might take note, what business they had done.

And the first came near, saying—

Lord! [thy minas] hast made [ten minas].

And he said to him—

Well done! good servant. Because [in a very small thing] thou hast been [faithful]; Have thou authority over [ten] cities.

And the second came, saying—

[Thy minas], Lord, hath made five minas.

And he said to him also—

And [thou] be over five cities.

And [the other] came, saying—

Lord, lo! thy mina, which I kept lying by in a napkin;

For I was afraid of thee, because [a harsh man] thou art,— Thou takest up, what thou laidest not down, And reapest, what thou sowedst not!

He saith to him—

[Out of thy mouth] do I judge thee, O wicked servant!

<Because thou knowest that [I] a harsh man am,—

Taking up, what I laid not down, And reap ing, what I did not sow>

Wherefore, then, didst thou not place my silver upon a money-changer’s table, And [I] when I came] with interest might have exacted it?

And [unto the by-standers] he said—

Take, from him, the mina, And give unto him that hath [the ten minas];—

And they said to him, Lord! he hath ten minas;—

I tell you—

[Unto everyone] that hath! shall be given, Whereas [from him] that hath not! even what he hath! shall be taken away.

But [these mine enemies who desired not] that I should be made king over them bring ye here, and slay them outright before me.

And [having said these things] he was moving on in front, going up unto Jerusalem.

§ 73. Zacchaeus, the Rich Tax-collector.

19 And [being] entering, he was passing through Jericho; and lo! a man by name called Zacchaeus, and [he] was a chief tax-collector, and [he] was rich. And he was seeking to see Jesus, what sort of man he was, and could not for the multitude, because [in stature] he was small. And [running forward] unto the front he got up a sycamore-tree; that he might see him; for [by that way] was he about to pass. And [as he came up to the place] [looking up] Jesus said unto him—

Zacchaeus! make haste, and come down; For [to-day] [in thy house] I must needs abide.

And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully. And all, when they beheld, began to murmur, saying—

With a sinful man! hast he gone in to lodge?

But [taking his stand] Zacchaeus said unto the Lord—

Lo! [the half of my possessions], Lord, [unto the destitute] I give; And [if from anyone] I have taken aught by false accusation I give back fourfold.

And Jesus said unto him—

This day, salvation [unto this house] hath come,—

For that [he too] is a son of Abraham;

And [the Son of Man came], to seek and to save that which was lost.
§ 75. The Triumphant Entry. Jesus weeps over Jerusalem. Mt. xxi. 1-9; Mk. xi. 1-10; Jn. xii. 12 ff.

30 And it came to pass as he drew near unto Bethphage, and Bethany, unto the mount which is called the Mount of Olives he sent off two of his disciples, saying—

Go your way unto the opposite village, in which ye are entering, ye shall find a colt, bound, whereon no man hath sat, and, having loosed him, bring him.

31 And if any one question you—

Wherefore are ye loosing him? >

|thus| shall ye say—

|His Lord| hath |need|.

32 And they who were sent, departing, found as he had said to them. And as they were loosing the colt; his lords said unto them—

Why are ye loosing the colt?

34 And |they| said—

|His Lord| hath |need|.

35 And they brought him unto Jesus; and, throwing their mantles over the colt, they seated Jesus thereon. And, as he moved along, they were spreading their own mantles in the way. And |when| he was drawing near, already unto the descent of the Mount of Olives> one and all the throng of the disciples began joyfully to be praising God with a loud voice, concerning all the mighty works which they had seen; saying—

Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord! |In heaven| peace! And glory in the highest!

39 And |certain| of the Pharisees from the multitude| said unto him—

Teacher! rebuke thy disciples.

And he answered and said—

|you| shall I tell you—

|The stones| will cry out.

42 And, when he drew near, beholding the city, he wept over it, saying—

|If thou hast not known, in this day| even thou| the conditions of peace—|

But |now| are they hid from thine eyes:

Because days will have come upon thee, that thine enemies will throw around a rampart against thee, and enclose thee, and hem thee in from every side,—

And will level thee with the ground, and thy children within thee; and will not leave [stone on stone] within thee;

Because thou didst not get to know the season of thy visitation.

§ 76. Cleanses the Temple. Mt. xxi. 12, 13; Mk. xi. 15-17; cp. Jn. ii. 13-17.

40 And |entering into the temple| he began to be casting out them who were selling; >

saying unto them—

It is written And |my house| shall be |a house of prayer|;

But |ye| have made it a den of robbers.

47 And he was teaching day by day in the temple; but |the High-priests and the Scribes| [also the chiefs of the people] were seeking to destroy him,— and could not find what they might do, for |the people, one and all| were hanging upon him, as they bearkened.

§ 77. "By what Authority?" Mt. xxi. 22-27; Mk. xi. 27-33.

20 And it came to pass, on one of the days, as he was teaching the people in the temple, and telling the good tidings> that the High-priests and the Scribes, with the Elders, came upon him,— and spake, saying, unto him—

Tell us |by what authority| [these things] thou art doing, and |who| is it, that gave thee this authority.

And, answering, he said unto them—

|I| will question |you| as to a matter,— and tell me! |the Immersion of John|

|Of heaven| was it, |of men|?

5 And they deliberated together by themselves, saying—

|If we say, Of heaven| he will say, Wherefore did ye not believe him?

6 But |if we say, Of men| [the people, one and all] will stone us, for |persuaded| they are, that |John| was |a prophet|.

7 And they answered, that they knew not whence. And |Jesus| said unto them—

Neither do I tell you |by what authority| [these things] I am doing.

§ 78. The Vineyard and the Husbandmen. Mt. xxi. 33-46; Mk. xii. 1-12.

9 And he began |unto the people| to be speaking this parable:—

A man planted a vineyard, and let it out to husbandmen, and went from home for a long time.

10 And |in due season| he sent unto the husbandmen |a servant|, that of the fruit of the vineyard they might give him; But |the husbandmen| having beaten him, sent him away empty.

11 And he |another servant|, that of the fruit of the vineyard they might give him; But |the people| having beaten him, sent him away empty.

12 And he |another servant|, that of the fruit of the vineyard they might give him; But |the people| having beaten him, sent him away empty.

Or: ""The Lord hath need of him.""
And the lord of the vineyard said—
What shall I do? I will send my son, the beloved,— [It may be] that [him] they will respect.

But the husbandmen, seeing him, began to deliberate one with another, saying—
[This] is [the heir]; Let us slay him, that [ours] may be [the inheritance].

And [thrusting him forth outside the vineyard] they slew him.

What, then, will the lord of the vineyard do unto them?

He will come, and destroy these husbandmen, and give the vineyard unto others.

But [when they heard it] they said—
Far be it!

But [thee] [looking at them] said—
What, then, is this that is written,—
<A stone which the builders rejected>
[The same hath become, head of the corner]?*

<Every one who falleth on that stone>
Will be sorely bruised,
But <on whomsoever> it shall fall>
It will utterly destroy him.

And the Scribes and the High-priests sought to thrust on him their hands, [in that very hour]; and feared the people; for they perceived that [against them] spake he this parable.

§ 79. Of Tribute to Caesar. Mt. xxii. 16-22; Mk. xii. 13-17.

And [watching narrowly] they sent forth sown men, feigning themselves to be [righteous], that they might lay hold of a word of his, so as to deliver him up unto the rule and the authority of the governor.

And they questioned him, saying—
Teacher! we know that [rightly] thou speakest and teachest, and respectest no person, but [in truth] the way of God dost teach:

Is it allowable for us to give [unto Cesar] tribute, or not?

But [observing their] villainy [he said unto them—
Shew me a denary. [Of whom] hath it an image and inscription?
And [they] said—
Of Cesar.

And [he] said unto them—
Well then! render the things of Cesar [unto Cesar],
And the things of God [unto God].

And they could not lay hold of the saying, before the people; and [marvelling at his answer] they held their peace.

80. Whose Wife, in the Resurrection? Mt. xxii. 23-33; Mk. xii. 18-27.

But there came near certain of the Sadducees, they who say [Resurrection] there is none! and questioned him, saying—
Teacher! [Moses] wrote for us,
If one’s brother die, having a wife, And [he] be [childless].

Ps. cxviii. 22.

That his brother shall take the wife, And raise up seed unto his brother.*

[Seven brethren] therefore, there were,—
And [the first] taking a wife, died childless,
And [the second], and the third] took her,—
Yes, [likewise] even the seven!;
They left no children, and died:

[Later on] [the woman also] died.

<The woman, therefore, in the resurrection>
[Of which of them] doth she become wife?
For [the seven] had her to wife.

And Jesus said unto them—
<The sons of this age>
Marry, and are given in marriage,—

But <they who have been accounted worthy>
[That age] to obtain,
And the resurrection that is from among the dead—

Neither marry, nor are given in marriage;
For they cannot [even die any more];—
For [equal unto messengers] are they, And are [sons of God],
[Of the resurrection] being [sons].

But <that the dead do rise>?
Even Moses disclosed at the bush,
When he calleth the Lord—
The God of Abraham and God of Isaac and God of Jacob:*

Now [God] he is not, [of the dead], but [of the living],—
For [all] unto him do live.4

And certain of the Scribes [answering] said—
Teacher! [well] hast thou spoken.
For [no longer] were they daring to ask him any questions.*

81. David’s Son and David’s Lord. Mt. xxii. 41-45; Mk. xii. 35-37.

And he said unto them—
How say they, that [the Christ] is [David’s Son]?

For [David himself] saith, in [the] book Psalms:
Said the Lord, unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand,
Until I make thy foes thy footstool.4

David therefore, calleth [him] Lord:
How, then, [his son] is he?

82. The Scribes denounced. Mt. xxiii. 6, 7; Mk. xii. 38-40; chap. xi. 43.

And [all] the people hearing [he said unto the disciples:
Be taking heed of the Scribes—
Who desire to walk about in long robes,
And are fond of salutations in the markets,
And first seats in the synagogues,—
And firstouches in the chief feasts,—

Who devour the houses of widows, And [for a show] are a long time at prayer.
[These] shall receive [a heavier] sentence.

§ 83. The Widow's Mite. Mk. xii. 41-44.

51 And looking up he saw the [rich] who were casting their gifts into the treasury, and he saw a certain poor widow, casting in thither two mites; and he said—

\[\text{Of a truth I say unto you—}\]

\[\text{This destitute widow will more than they all who put asunder their wealth into the treasury.}\]

§ 84. The Prophecy of the Overthrow of Jerusalem, and of the Coming of the Son of Man. Mt. xxiv.; Mk. xiii.

8 And certain saying, of the temple—

\[\text{With beautiful stones and offerings hath it been adorned!}\]

he said—

6 As to these things, which ye are looking upon

There will come days, in which there will not be left here stone upon stone which will not be taken down.

7 And they questioned him, saying—

Teacher, when therefore, will these things be?

And what sign when these things shall be about to come to pass?

8 And he said—

Be taking heed ye be not deceived;

For many will come upon my name, saying—

\[\text{I am he, and—}\]

The season hath drawn near!

Do not go after them.

9 But whenever ye shall hear of wars and revolutions be not terrified—

For these things must needs come to pass;

But not immediately is the end.

10 Then said he unto them—

\[\text{There will rise up, Nation against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; As well great earthquakes, as also in places pestilences and famines will there be, As well objects of terror as also from heaven great signs will there be.}\]

And before all these things

They will thrust upon you their hands, and persecute you, Delivering you up into the synagogues and prisons, When ye have been led away before kings and governors, for the sake of my name;

But it shall turn out to you a witness.

34 Settle, then, in your hearts, not to be studying beforehand, how to make defence;

35 For it will give you a mouth and wisdom, which one and all who are setting themselves against you shall be unable to withstand or gainsay.

16 But ye will be delivered up even by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolk, and friends, and they will put to death some from among you;

17 And ye will be hated by all, because of my name;

18 And [a hair of your head] in nowise shall perish,

19 By your endurance shall ye gain your lives for a possession.

20 But whenever ye shall see Jerusalem being encompassed by armies—

Then know, that her desolation hath drawn near.

21 Then they who are in Judæa—

Let them flee into the mountains,

And they who are in the midst—

Let them go forth,

And they who are in the fields—

Let them not enter into her;

22 For [days of avenging] are these, for all the things written to be fulfilled.

23 Alas! for the women with child, and for them who are giving suck, in those days;

For there will be great distress upon the land, and Anger against this people.

24 And they will fall by the edge of the sword, and be carried away captive into all the nations, and Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the nations.

Until the seasons of the nations shall be fulfilled and shall be.

25 And there will be signs in sun, and moon, and stars, and [on the earth] anguish of nations in embarrasment—

Sea and surge resounding,—

26 Men fainting from fear and expectation of the things overtaking the inhabited earth.

For [the powers of the heavens] will be shaken.

27 And then will they see the Son of Man—

Coming in a cloud, with great power and glory.

And when these things are beginning to come to pass—

Unbend and lift up your heads, Because that your redemption is drawing near.

29 And he spake a parable unto them:

See the fig-tree, and all the trees,—

30 Whenever they have already budded—

[Seeing it] ye observe that already near is [the summer]:

31 Thus ye also—Whenever ye shall see these things coming to pass—

\[\text{Dan. vii. 13.}\]
Observe ye, that [near] is the kingdom of God!

22 Verily! I say unto you—
In nowise shall this* generation pass away.
Until all things shall happen:

23 | Heaven and earth| will pass away,
But | my word| in nowise will pass away.

24 But be taking heed unto yourselves,
Least once your hearts be made heavy—
With debauch and drunkenness and anxieties about livelihood,
And that day come upon you suddenly [[as a snare],—]
For it will come in by surprise, upon all’ then that are dwelling on the face of all’
the earth.

25 But be watching in every season,
Making supplication, that ye may gain full vigour
To escape all these things that are about to be coming to pass.
And to stand before the Son of Man. 5

26 And he was | by day | in the temple, teaching;
but | by night | going forth, he was lodging in the mount which is called the Mount of Olives. 30 And | all | the people | were coming at day-break unto him, in the temple, to be hearkening unto him.

§ 85. Judas bargains to Betray his Master.
Mt. xxvi. 1, 2, 14-16; Mk. xiv. 1, 2, 10, 11.

22 And the feast of the unleavened bread, 4 which is called a Passover, was drawing near.

23 And the High-priests and the Scribes were seeking, how they might get rid of him; for they feared the people. 3 3 But Satan entered into Judas, him called Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve; 4 and, departing, he conversed with the High-priests and Captains, as to how | unto them | he might deliver him up.

24 And they rejoiced, and bargained with him to give him | silver; 5 and he freely consented, and began seeking a good opportunity for delivering him up | in the absence of a multitude | unto them.

§ 86. The Last Supper. Mt. xxvi. 17-30 ;
Mk. xiv. 12-25; cp. 1 Co. xi. 23 ff.

7 Now the day of the unleavened bread 4 came,—on which it was needful to be sacrificing the passover. 8 And he sent forth Peter and John, saying—

Go, and make ready, for us, the passover, that we may eat.

9 And | they | said unto him—
Where wilt thou, we should make ready?

10 And | he | said unto them—
Lo! <when ye have entered into the city> there will meet you a man, bearing an earthen-jar of water; follow him into the house into which he is entering.

11 And ye shall say unto the master of the house—
The teacher saith unto thee. Where is the lodging, where | the passover, with my disciples | I may eat?

12 And | he | unto you will shew a large upper room, spread: | there | make ready.

13 And, departing, they found according as he had said unto them, and made ready the passover.

14 And | when the hour arrived | he reclined, and the apostles with him. 15 And he said unto them—
I have greatly desired | to eat | this passover with you before I suffer;

16 For, I say unto you—
In nowise shall I eat it, until it have been fulfilled in the kingdom of God.

17 And | accepting a cup | giving thanks, he said—
Take this, and divide among yourselves;

18 For, I say unto you—
In nowise shall I drink henceforth of the fruit of the vine, until | the kingdom of God | shall come.

19 And | taking a loaf | he gave thanks, and brake and gave unto them, saying—
| This | is my body | which in your behalf is being given: | this | be ye doing, in remembrance | of me!.

20 And—the cup, in like manner, after the taking of supper, saying—
| This | cup | is the new | covenant | in my blood, 6 which | in your behalf | is to be poured out.

21 Nevertheless, lo! | the hand of him who is delivering me up | is with me upon the table.
Because | the Son of Man | indeed, according to what is marked out | goeth his way; nevertheless, alas! for that man through whom he is being delivered up.

22 And | they | began to be enquiring together, among themselves, as to which, then, it could be, from among them, who | this thing | was about to perpetrate!

23 And it came to pass that there was | a rivalry also | among them, as to which of them seemed to be greater | than the rest. 7 8 And | he | said unto them—
| The kings of the nations | lord it over them,
And | they who wield authority over them |
[benefactors] | are called.

26 But | ye | not so! On the contrary—
<The greater among you>
Let him become as | the younger,
And | he that governeth >
As | he that ministereth.

27 For which is greater—
He that reclineth? or He that ministereth?
Is not he that reclineth?
But | | am | in your midst | as he that ministereth.

28 | Ye | however, are they who have remained throughout with me in my temptations; 9

35 And he said unto them—

38 And ||they|| said—
Lord, lo! ||two’ swords|| here!
And ||he|| said unto them—
¶Tis ||enough||.†

29 And going out, he went, according to his custom, unto the Mount of Olives; and the disciples [also] followed him. 40 And ||coming up to the place|| he said unto them—
Be praying, lest ye enter into temptation.
41 And ||he|| was torn from them about a stone’s throw; and, bending his knees, he began to pray,
saying—
Father! ||if thou please|| bear aside this’ cup from me.
¶Nevertheless|| not my will, but thine|| be accomplished.*
43 And there appeared unto him a messenger* from heaven, strengthening him,—¶and ||coming to be in an agony¶| more intensely| was he praying; and his perspiration became, as if great drops* of blood, falling upon the ground.¶
45 And ||arising from prayer|| he came unto his disciples, and found them falling asleep by reason of their grief; 46 and he said unto them—
Why are ye slumbering?
Arise! and be praying, lest ye enter into temptation.

63 And [the men who held him bound] kept mocking him, with blows; 64 and [blindfolding him] questioned him, saying—

Prophecy! which is he that smoteth thee?

65 and [many other things, with profane speech] were they saying unto him.

66 And [when it became day] the Eldership of the people was gathered together—both High-priests and Scribes,—and they led him away into their high-council, saying—

<If thou art the Christ> tell us!

67 But he said unto them—

<If I should tell you> in nowise would ye believe.

68 And [if I should put questions] in nowise would ye answer;

69 But [henceforth] shall the Son of Man be seated on the right hand of the power of God.a

70 And they all said—

[Thou] then, art the Son of God?

23 And one and all the throng of them [arising] led him unto Pilate. 2 And they began to accuse him, saying—

[This one] found we, perverting our nation, and forbidding to give tribute unto Caesar,—and affirming himself to be an anointed king.

3 And [Pilate] questioned him, saying—

Art thou king of the Jews?

And [he] answering him, said—

[Thou] sayest.c

And [Pilate] said unto the High-priests and the multitudes,

[Nothing] find I, worthy of blame, in this man.

5 But [they] began to be urgent, saying—

He is stirring up the people, teaching along all Judea, even beginning from Galilee unto this place.

Dan. vii. 13; Ps. cx. 1 ff. 5 Or [WH]: "Dost thou say it!"

6 <Now [Pilate] hearing [that]> questioned whether the man was [a Galilean]. 7 And <getting to know that he was of the jurisdiction of Herod> he sent him back unto Herod, [he also] being in Jerusalem in these days.

8 And [Herod] seeing Jesus, rejoiced exceedingly; for he had been a considerable number of times wishing to see him,—because he had heard concerning him, and was hoping [some sign] to behold [by him] brought to pass.

9 And he went on to question him in a good many words; but [he] answered him [nothing].

10 And the High-priests and the Scribes stood, vehemently accusation him. 11 And Herod with his soldiery <having set him at nought, and mocked him> threw about him a gorgeous robe, and sent him back unto Pilate.

12 And they became friends—both Herod and Pilate—on the self-same day, one with another; for they had previously been at enmity between themselves.

13 And [Pilate] <calling together the High-priests, and the Rulers, and the people> said unto them—

Ye brought unto me this man, as one turning away the people,—and lo! I: [in your presence] examining him, found [nothing in this man worthy of blame, in respect of the things whereof ye were making accusation against him]. 14 Nay! nor Herod; for he hath sent him back unto you,—and lo! [nothing worthy of death] hath been done by him. 15 So, then, [chastising him], I will release him. 12a

16 But they cried aloud, with the whole throng, saying—

Away with this man! and release unto us Barabbas:—

19 who indeed <because of a certain revolt which had occurred in the city, and of murder> had been thrown into prison.

20 [Again] however, [Pilate] called out unto them, wishing to release Jesus. 21 But [they] called out in return, saying—

Crucify! crucify him!

22 But [he, the third time] said unto them—

Why! what base thing hath this man done? [Nothing worthy of death] I found in him. [Chastising him, then] I will release him!

23 But they became urgent with loud voices, claiming to have him crucified; and their voices began to prevail.

24 And [Pilate] consented, that their request should be granted; 25 and released him who of revolt and murder had been cast into prison, whom they claimed,—whereas [Jesus] delivered he up unto their will.

§ 93. The crucifixion. Mt. xxvii. 27—56; Mk. xv. 16—41; Jn. xix. 10—37.

26 And [as they led him away] they laid hold of a certain Simon, a Cyrenian, coming from the country,—they laid on him the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus.

LUKE XXIII. 27—56; XXIV. 1-9.

And there was following him a great throng of the people, and of women, who were smiting themselves and lamenting him. But, turning towards them, Jesus said—

Daughters of Jerusalem!
Do not weep for me;
But for yourselves be weeping, and for your children.

For lo! days are coming, in which they will say—

Happy the barren!
Even the wombs that never bare,
And the breasts that never gave suck.

Then will they begin to say—

Unto the mountains, Fall upon us!
And unto the hills, Cover us!

Because if in moist wood these things they are doing,—

In the dry what shall happen?

And there were being led, two other evil-doers also, to be lifted up. And when they came into the place which was called Skull, there they crucified him; and the evil-doers, one indeed on the right hand, and the other on the left. But Jesus was saying—

Father! forgive them;
For they know not what they do.

And when they were parting his garments they cast lots.

And the people were standing, looking on. But the rulers were scoffing, saying—

Others he saved, let him save himself,—

If this is the Christ of God, the Chosen.

Moreover the soldiers also mocked him,—coming near, offering vinegar unto him, and saying—

If thou art the King of the Jews save thyself.

Now there was an inscription also, over him—

The King of the Jews this!

And one of the suspended evil-doers began to defame him—

Art not thou the Christ?
Save thyself and us!

But the other, answering, rebuked him, and said—

Neither fearest thou God, in that thou art in the same judgment?

And we indeed, justly,—for things worthy of what we have done are we duly receiving, But this man nothing amiss hath done.

And he went on to say—

Jesus! remember me, whencesoever thou shalt come into thy kingdom.

And he said unto him—

Verily! I say unto thee this day—

With me shalt thou be in Paradise.

And it was already about the sixth hour, and darkness came upon the whole land, until the ninth hour; the sun failing; and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst.

And calling out with a loud voice Jesus said—

Father! into thy hands I commend my spirit.

And saying, he ceased to breathe.

And the centurion, beholding that which came to pass, began to glorify God, saying—

In very deed this man was righteous.

And all the multitudes who had been drawn together unto this spectacle, having looked upon the things that came to pass, smiting their breasts began to return. But all they who were acquainted with him were standing afar off; women also who had followed with him from Galilee, beholding these things.

§ 94. The Burial. Mt. xxvii. 57-61; Mk. xv. 42-47; Jn. xix. 38, 42.

And lo! a man, by name Joseph, being a councillor,—a good and righteous man (the same had not consented unto their plan and deed),—from Arimathea, a city of the Jews, who was awaiting the kingdom of God; the same going unto Pilate, claimed the body of Jesus. And taking it down, he wrapped it in a fine Indian cloth, and laid him in a tomb hewn in stone,—where no one as yet was lying.

And it was a day of preparation, and a Sabbath was about to dawn. And the women, who had come out of Galilee with him, following after observed the tomb, and how his body was laid. And, returning, they made ready spices and perfumes.

§ 95. The Resurrection. Mt. xxviii. 1-10; Mk. xvi. 1-14; Jn. xx., xxi.

And on the Sabbath, they were quiet, according to the commandment; but on the first day of the week, a at early dawn, unto the tomb came they, bringing the spices which they had prepared. And they found the stone, rolled away from the tomb; but when they entered they found not the body of the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass while they were perplexing themselves concerning this that lo! two men stood near them, in dazzling raiment. And they becoming afraid, and bending their faces unto the ground they said unto them—

Why seek ye the Living One with the dead?

He is not here, but hath arisen: Remember how he spake unto you while yet he was in Galilee:

Saying as to the Son of Man: That he must needs be delivered up into the hands of sinful men, And be crucified. And—

On the third day! f arose!

And they remembered his sayings; and returning from the tomb, reported all these things unto the eleven, and unto all the rest. 10 Now they were the Magdalene, Mary, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James; and [the other women with them] were tending unto the apostles] these things. 11 And these sayings appeared before them, as if idle talk, and they were minded to disbelieve them. 12 [But [Peter] arising, ran unto the tomb,—and, bending near, beholdeth the linen bandages [alone]; and departed, unto himself—marvelling at the thing that had happened.] 13 And lo! [two from among them] [on the selfsame day] were journeying unto a village, distant sixty furlongs from Jerusalem, [the name of which] was Emmaus; 14 and [they] were conversing one with another, about all these things which had occurred’. 15 And it came to pass [as they were conversing and reasoning together] [that [Jesus himself]] [drawing near] was journeying with them; 16 but [their eyes] were held, so as not to know him. 17 And he said unto them—

What are these things which ye are debating one with another, as ye walk along? And they came to a stand, sad in countenance. 18 But one, by name Cleopas, answering, said unto him—

Art thou lodging [alone] in Jerusalem, and knowest not the things which have come to pass therein in these days? 19 And he said unto them—

What things? 20 And [they] said unto him—

The things concerning Jesus the Nazarene, who became a prophet, mighty in work and word, before God and all the people: 21 In what way also our High-priests and Rulers delivered him up unto a sentence of death, and crucified him. 22 [We] however, were hoping that [he] was the one designated to redeem Israel! But indeed [even with all these things] this brings on [the third] day, since these things happened:—

Nay! [certain women also, from amongst us] have made us beside ourselves, that they went early unto the tomb; 23 and [not finding his body] came, saying—that [a vision of messengers] they had seen, who were affirming him to be alive.

And certain of them who were with us departed unto the tomb,—and found so, according as [the women] had said; but [him] they saw not.

And [he said unto them—

O thoughtless ones! and slow in heart to rest your faith upon all things which the prophets have spoken:—

Was it not needful for the Christ [these very things] to suffer, and to enter into his glory? 27 And beginning from Moses, and from all the prophets he thoroughly explained to them in all the Scriptures, the things concerning himself.

And they drew near unto the village, whither they were journeying; and [he] made for journeying [further]. 28 And they constrained him, saying—

Abide with us; because it is [towards evening], and the day hath already declined. And he went in to abide with them. 29 And it came to pass, when he reclined with them, [taking the loaf] he blessed, and breaking it, went on to give unto them. 30 And [their] eyes were opened, and they knew him; and [he] vanished from them. 31 And they said one to another—

Was not [our heart] burning [as he was speaking to us in the way, as he was opening to us the Scriptures]? 32 And [arising in that very hour] they returned unto Jerusalem,—and found [gathered together] the eleven, and them who were with them, 33 saying—

[In truth] the Lord hath arisen, and hath appeared unto Simon! 34 And [they] went on to relate the things [that had passed] on the journey, and how he was made known unto them in the breaking of the loaf.

Now as [these very things] they were telling, [he himself] stood in their midst and saith unto them—

Peace to you! 35 But [being agitated and becoming afraid] they began to imagine, that [upon a spirit] they were looking. 36 And he said unto them—

Why are ye troubled? and for what cause do reasonings arise in your hearts? 37 See my hands, and my feet,—that it is I myself!: Handle me, and see! because [a spirit] hath not [flesh and bones] as ye perceive [I have]. 38 [And this saying] he pointed out to them his hands and his feet.

Now [while yet] they believed not for the joy, and were marvelling > he said unto them—

Have ye anything to eat here? 39 And they gave unto him a piece of boiled fish; 40 and, taking it before them he did eat.

§ 96. The Commission. Cp. Mt. xxviii. 16-20; Mk. xvi. 15-18; Jn. xx. 21-23.

And he said unto them—

[These] are my words, which I spake unto you yet being with you: That all the things that are written in the law of Moses and the Prophets and Psalms, concerning me, must needs be fulfilled.

[Then] opened he their minds, to understand the Scriptures; 42 and said unto them—

[Thus] it is written.

Or (WH) add: "within their midst, as the other also."
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

JOHN.

§ 1. The Prologue.

1 [Originally was the Word, and the Word was with God.] And the Word was God. [John 1:1]

2 [The same was originally with God.]

3 [All things were through him: and he was in the beginning, and he was before all things.] And the life was the light of men, and the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not. [John 1:3-5]

4 [And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.] And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth. [John 1:14]

5 [And the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not.] And the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not. [John 1:5]

6 [And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.] And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth. [John 1:14]
18 Because <out of his fulness> <we all> received,
  Even favour over against favour.
19 Because [the law] [through Moses] was given;
  [Favour and truth] [through Jesus Christ] came into existence.
20 [No one] hath seen [God] at any time:
  <An Only Begotten> God,
  The One existing within the bosom of the Father>
  [He], hath interpreted [him].

§ 2. The Witness of John the Forerunner.

21 And [this] is the witness of John, when the Jews sent forth unto him, out of Jerusalem, priests and Levites,—that they might question him—
  Who art thou?
22 and he confessed, and did not deny, and he confessed—
  I am not the Christ;
23 and they questioned him—
  What then? Art thou Elijah?
  and he saith—
  I am not;
  [The prophet] art thou?
  and he answered—
  No!
24 So they said unto him—
  [Who] art thou? that an answer we may give, unto them who sent us,— What saest thou [concerning thyself]?
25 He saith—
  I am a Voice, of one crying aloud;—
  [In the desert] make ye straight, the way of the Lord;
  according as said Isaiah the prophet.
26 And they had been sent forth from among the Pharisees;
  and they questioned him, and said unto him—
  Why, then, dost thou immerge,— if thou art not [the Christ], nor [Elijah], nor [the Prophet]?
27 John answered them, saying—
  I am immerse [in water]. [In the midst of you] standeth one, whom [ye] know not:—
  [after me] coming;—Of whom [I] am not worthy that I should unloose the thong of the sandal.
28 [These things] [in Bethany] came to pass, beyond the Jordan, where John was, immersing.
29 On the morrow he beheldeth Jesus, coming unto him, and saith—
  See! the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world.
30 [This] is he, of whom [I] said—
  [After me] cometh a man,
  Who [before me] hath advanced,
  Because [my Chief] was he.

31 And [I] knew him not,
  But [that he might be manifested unto Israel] [therefore] came [I] [in water] immersing.
32 And John bare witness, saying—
  I have gazed upon the Spirit, descending like a dove, out of heaven,—and it abode upon him:*
  [An Only Begotten] God,
  The One existing within the bosom of the Father>
  [He], hath interpreted [him].
  [Upon whomsoever thou shalt see the Spirit descending and abiding upon him] [the same] is he that immerseth in Holy Spirit.
34 [I] therefore, have seen, and borne witness—
  That [this] is [the Son of God].

§ 3. The First Disciples of Jesus.

35 [On] the morrow, again [was] John standing, and [from among his disciples] [two];* and looking at Jesus walking, he saith—
  See! the Lamb of God!
36 and the two disciples hearkened unto him speaking, and they followed Jesus.
  But Jesus, turning, and looking at them following, saith unto them—
  What seek ye?
  And [they] said unto him—
  Rabbi! which meaneth, when translated, Teacher
  Where abidest thou?
37 He saith unto them—
  Be coming, and ye shall see.
  They came, therefore, and saw where he abode, and [with him] they abode that day. It was about the tenth hour.
  One of the two that heard from John and followed him was Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter.
  The same findeth, first, his own brother Simon, and saith unto him—
  We have found the Messiah!
  which is, when translated, Anointed.*
  He led him unto Jesus.
  Jesus, looking at him, said—
  [Thou] art Simon, the son of John,—
  [Thou] shalt be called, Cephas;
  which is to be translated, Peter.
39 On the morrow he desired to go forth into Galilee.
  And Jesus findeth Philip, and saith unto him—
  We have found the Messiah!
  which is, when translated, Anointed.*
  He led him unto Jesus.
  Jesus, looking at him, said—
  [Thou] art Simon, the son of John,—
  [Thou] shalt be called, Cephas;
  which is to be translated, Peter.
40 On the morrow he desired to go forth into Galilee.
  And Jesus findeth Philip, and saith unto him—
  Be following me!
41 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, of the city of Andrew and Peter.
  Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him—
  [Beholding the man who walked Moses in the law, and the Prophets> have we found,—Jesus, son of Joseph, him from Nazareth!
42 And Nathanael saith unto him—
  [Out of Nazareth] can any good thing come?
  Philip saith unto him—
  Come, and see!”
47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming unto him, and saith concerning him—
See! [truly] an Israelite, in whom is no [guile].
48 Nathanael saith unto him—
]].Whence] dost thou [know] me? Jesus answered, and said unto him—].Before Philip called thee,—when thou wast under the fig-tree] I saw thee.
49 Nathanael answered him—
Rabbi! [thou] art [the Son of God]; Thou [art] [King] of Israel.
50 Jesus answered, and said unto him—
].Because I said unto thee I saw thee under the fig-tree] believest thou?
].A greater thing than these] shalt thou see! And he saith unto him—
].Verily, verily] I say unto you: Ye shall see heaven—when set open, And [the messengers] ascended and ascending unto the Son of Man.
§ 4. The Marriage in Cana—First Sign.
2 And [on the third day] a [marriage] took place, in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there; and Jesus also was invited with his disciples, unto the marriage.
2 And [wine] falling short, the mother of Jesus saith unto him—].Wine] have they none! And Jesus saith unto her—].What part can I take with thee, O woman? [not yet] hath come [mine hour].
3 His mother saith unto them who are ministering—].Whatsoever he may say to you] do!
6 Now there were there, six stone water-vessels, placed [according to the purification of the Jews]; holding each, two or three measures.
7 Jesus saith unto them—
].Fill the vessels with water. And they filled them up to the brim. And he saith unto them—
].Draw out now, and be bearing unto the master of the feast. And they bare. And [when the master of the feast had tasted the water, now made [wine], and knew not whence it was,—though they who were ministering knew, even they who had drawn out the water] the master accosteth the bridegroom, and saith unto him—].Every man] first the good wine] settest out; And [when they] have been well-supplied—].the inferior].

[Thou] hast kept the good wine until [even now].

3. The First Cleansing of the Temple.
12 [After this] he came down into Capernaum,—[he] and his mother and brethren, and his disciples; and [there] they abode, not many days.
13 And [near] was the passover of the Jews; and [Jesus] went up unto Jerusalem. And he found, in the temple, them that were selling oxen and sheep and doves, also the money-changers sitting.
15 And [making a scourge out of rushes] all of them] thrust he forth out of the temple, both the sheep and the oxen; and [the money-changers] small coins poured he forth, and [the tables] he overturned; and unto them who were selling [the doves] he said—
].Take these things hence! Be not making [the house of my Father] a house of merchandise!
17 His disciples remembered that it was written—].The seat of thy house] casteth me up. And the Jews therefore answered, and said unto him—].What sign] dost thou point out to us, in that [these things] thou dost?
19 Jesus answered, and said unto them—
].Take down this shrine. And [in three days] will I raise it.
20 The Jews, therefore, said—
].In forty and six years] this was this shrine built, And [thou] in three days wilt raise it!
21 But [he] was speaking concerning the shrine of his body.
22 When, therefore, he had been raised from among the dead] his disciples remembered, that [this] he had been saying; and they believed in the Scripture, and in the word which Jesus had spoken.
23 Now [when he was in Jerusalem, during the passover, during the feast] [many] believed on his name, viewing his signs which he was doing.
24 [Jesus himself] however, was not trusting himself unto them, by reason of his understanding them all. And because he had no need] that anyone should bear witness concerning man; for [he] understood what was in man.

3 There was however, a man from among the Pharisees, Nicodemus, [his name,—ruler of the Jews. [The same] came unto him, by night,* and said unto him—
].Rabbi we know that [from God] thou hast come, a teacher!; For [no one] can be doing [these signs] which [thou] art doing, except [God] be with him.

* Cp. Mt. xxvii. 37; Mk. v. 21; Lu. xii. 11; chap vi. 16.; 2 Th. ii. 1. And so, often, with accumulative.*
* Comp. to say the least, uncalled for; and is painfully grotesque. The messengers ascend and descend, not "upon," but "unto," their Lord.*
* As not needing to be "called.*
* The mother being already there (ver. 1), probably as relative or near friend, had naturally accepted a measure of providing care. If so, Jesus hereby merely excuses himself from being yoked in as her helper, and yet may and must have declined her guidance with respectful tenderness.*

John III. 3—33.

2 Jesus answered, and said unto him—
   * Verily, verily * I say unto thee:
   > Except one be born from above.<
   He cannot see the kingdom of God.

4 Nicodemus saith unto him—
   > How can a man be born, when he is old? Can he <into the womb of his mother, a second time> enter, and be born?

3 Jesus answered—
   * Verily, verily * I say unto thee:
   > Except one be born of water and spirit. He cannot enter into the kingdom of God.
   > That which hath been born of the flesh is flesh;
   And that which hath been born of the spirit is spirit.

7 Do not marvel, that I said unto thee:
   Ye must needs be born from above.

9 The spirit wherein he pleaseth doth breathe, and [the sound thereof thou hearest: But knowest not, whence it cometh and whither it goeth;
   Thus is every one that hath been born of the spirit.

9 Nicodemus answered, and said unto him—
   > How can these things come about?

10 Jesus answered, and said unto him—
   Art thou the teacher of Israel, and these things knowest not?

11 Verily, verily I say unto thee:
   What we know we speak, and what we have seen we bear witness,
   And our witness ye receive not.

12 <If the earthly things I told you, and ye believe not>
   How shall I tell you the heavenly things will ye believe?

13 And no one hath ascended into heaven, Save he that [out of heaven descended,—
   > The Son of Man].

14 And just as [Moses] lifted up the serpent in the desert>
   [So] must [the Son of Man] be lifted up,—
   > That [whosoever believeth in him]
   May have life age-abiding.

16 For God so loved the world,
   That [his Only Begotten Son] he gave,—
   > That [whosoever believeth on him]
   Might not perish,
   But have life age-abiding.

17 For God sent not his Son into the world,
   That he might judge the world, But that the world might be saved through him.

18 He that believeth on him is not to be judged:
   > He that believeth not <already hath been judged,—
   Because he hath not believed on the name of the only Begotten Son of God>.

19 And this is the judgment:
   That the light hath come into the world,—
   And men loved, rather the darkness than the light,
   For wicked were their works.

20 For whosoever doth practise <corrupt things>
   Hatesth the light,
   And cometh not unto the light,
   Lest his works should be reprieved;

21 But he that doeth the truth Cometh unto the light,
   That his works may be <made manifest;
   That [in God] have they been wrought>.

§ 7. Further Testimony of the Forerunner, as the Bridegroom’s Friend.

22 After these things came Jesus and his disciples, into the Judaeum land; and there was he tarrying with them, and immersing. And John also was immersing in <Aenon>, near Salim, because there were many waters; and they were coming, and being immersed;—for not yet had John been cast into prison.

23 There arose, therefore, a questioning, from among the disciples of John, with a Jew, concerning purification. And they came unto John, and said unto him—
   Rabbi! <he who was with thee beyond the Jordan, unto whom thou hast borne witness> see! the same is immersing; and all are coming unto him.

27 John answered, and said—
   A man can receive <nothing>, except it have been given him out of heaven.

28 Ye yourselves unto me bear witness, that I said—
   > I am not the Christ;
   But—
   I am sent before him that One.

29 He that hath the bride is <bridegroom>, But <the friend of the bridegroom, who standeth by and hearkeneth unto him> greatly rejoiceth by reason of the voice of the bridegroom.

This, my joy therefore, is fulfilled.

30 >That One! it behoveth to increase,—
But <me> to decrease.

31 He that from above doth come>
   Over all is;
   > He that is of the earth is,
   And of the earth doth speak:
   > He that out of heaven doth come;
   Over all is;

32 What he hath seen and heard>
   Of the same he beareth witness,—
   And <his witness> no one receiveth;

33 He that received his <witness>
Hath set seal—
That [God] is true.

For [he whom God hath sent]
| The sayings of God doth speak;
For | not by measure | giveth he the Spirit.
| The Father loveth the Son,
And | all things | giveth into his hand.
And [he that believeth on the Son]
Hath life age-abiding:
Whereas [he that yieldeth not unto the Son]
Shall not see life,—
But [the anger of God] awaiteth him.

§ 8. The Woman of Samaria, and the Samaritans.

<When therefore the Lord knew, that the Pharisees had heard—
| Jesus | more' disciples | is making and immersing, than John,— although indeed | Jesus himself | was not immersing, but his disciples— he left Judæa, and departed again into Galilee.
Now he must needs pass through Samaria. He cometh, therefore, unto a city of Samaria, called Sychar, near the parcel of ground which Jacob gave unto Joseph his son. Now Jacob's fountain was there. Jesus, therefore, <having become toil-worn with the journey> was sitting thus upon the fountain. It was about the sixth hour. There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water. Jesus saith unto her—

Give me to drink!

for | his disciples | had gone away into the city, that | food | they might buy. The Samaritan woman therefore, saith unto him—

How dost | thou | being | a Jew, | ask to drink | of me | who am | a Samaritan woman? | [for | Jews | have no dealings with | Samaritans.]>

Jesus answered, and said unto her—

If thou hadst known the free gift of God, and who it is that is saying unto thee,

Give me to drink>

| thou | wouldst have asked him', and he would have given thee living' water.

She saith unto him—

Sir! not even a bucket | hast thou,—and | the well | is | deep | — Whence then, hast thou the living' water?

Art | thou | greater | than | our father Jacob, | who gave us the well,—and | himself | out of it drank, and his sons, and his flocks?

Jesus answered, and said unto her—

<Whosoever drinketh of this water
Will thirst | again | ;
But | whosoever shall drink of the water which
| will give him>
In nowise shall thirst, unto ages-abiding,—
But | the water which I will give him>
Shall become, within him, a fountain of water,
| Springing up unto life age-abiding'.

11 Or: "things."
12 Or: "bounty."
13 The woman saith unto him—
Sirs, give me this water, that | I thirst not, neither be coming hither to draw.
14 He saith unto her—
Go, call thy husband, and come hither:
15 The woman answered, and said unto him—
I have no husband.
16 Jesus saith unto her—
| Well | saist thou, | A husband | I have not; and | five husbands | thou hast had, and | now | he whom thou hast, is not thy husband;:
This true thing | hast thou spoken.
17 The woman saith unto him—
Sir! I perceive that | a prophet | art thou;—
| Our fathers | in this mountain | worshipped; and | ye | say, that in Jerusalem is the place, where | to worship | it behoveth.
18 Jesus saith unto her—
Believe me, woman:
There cometh an hour, when | neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem | shall ye worship the Father.
19 | Ye | worship, that which ye know not; | We | worship, that which we know; Because | salvation | is | of the Jews.
20 But there cometh an hour, and | now | is',—When | the real worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth; For | even the Father | is seeking | such as these | as his worshippers.
21 God is | spirit | ; And | they that worship him | in spirit and truth | must needs worship.
22 The woman saith unto him—
I know that | Messiah | cometh, who is called Christ,—
| Whosoever | he | shall come | he will tell us | everything.
23 Jesus saith unto her—
| I, that speak unto thee | am he.
24 And | hereupon | came his disciples, and they began to marvel, that | with a woman | he was talking. No one | however, said—
What seekest thou? or— Why talkest thou with her?
25 The woman, therefore, left her water-vessel, and went away into the city, and saith unto the men—
Come! see a man, that told me all things that ever I did:
Can | this | be | the Christ? They came forth out of the city, and were coming unto him.
26 In the meantime, the disciples were requesting him, saying—
| Rabbi | eat.
27 But | he | said unto them—
| I | have | food | to eat, of which | ye | know not.
28 The disciples, therefore, began to say, one to another—
Hath anyone brought him to eat?
34 Jesus saith unto them—
   [My food] is, that I should do the will of Him that sent me, and complete [his work].
35 Are [ye] not saying—
   <Yet> [a fourmonth] it is and [the] harvest
cometh?
Lo! I say unto you—
Lift up your eyes, and gaze at the fields,—
That [white] are they unto [harvest].
   [Already] [he that reapeth] receiveth [a] reward,
And gathereth fruit unto life age-abiding;
That [he that soweth] together may re-joyce [with him that reapeth].
37 For [herein] doth the saying [hold good],—
   [One] is the sower,
And [another] is the reaper. a 38 I sent you forth, to be reaping that wherein [ye] have not toiled:
[Others] have toiled,
And [ye] [into their toil] have entered.
39 And [out of that city] [many] believed on him—of the Samaritans,—by reason of the word of the woman in bearing witness—
He told me all things that ever I did.
40 <When, therefore, the Samaritans came unto him> they went on to request him to abide with them; and he abode there two days. 41 And [many] more [believed] by reason of his discourse; 42 and [unto the woman] began to say—<No longer, by reason of thy' talk b> do we believe;
For [we ourselves] have heard, and know that [This One] is, in truth, [the Saviour of the world].

But [after the two days] he went forth from thence, into Galilee. 43 For [Jesus himself] the bare witness, that [as prophet] [in his own fatherland] hath not [honour]. 44 So when [he came into Galilee] the Galileans welcomed him, having seen [all things] whatsoever he had done in Jerusalem during the feast; for [they also] went unto the feast.
45 So he came again unto Cana of Galilee, where he had made the water [wine]. And there was a certain courier, whose son was sick, in Capernaum.
46 <The same> hearing that Jesus had come out of Judea into Galilee> came away unto him, and began requesting him, that he would come down and heal his son; for he was on the point of dying. 47 Jesus therefore said unto him—<Except [signs and wonders] ye see> in nowise will ye believe. 48
49 The courier saith unto him—
Sir! come down, ere my child die!
50 Jesus saith unto him—
Be going thy way: [thy son] liveth!
And the man believed in the word which Jesus spake to him, and at once went his way. 51 And

---

<when he was even now' going down> [his servants] met him, saying, that [his boy] was living. 52 So he enquired the hour, from them, when he began [to amend]. They said, therefore, unto him—
   [Yesterday], at the seventh hour, the fever left him.
53 So the father took note that it was in that hour wherein Jesus said unto him—[Thy son] liveth!
and he believed, [he] and all' his house.
54 Now [this again] as [a second sign] Jesus did, after coming out of Judea into Galilee.

§ 10. Cure at the Pool of Bethsaida. Jesus claims to be the Son of God.

5 After these things was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up unto Jerusalem. 2 Now
there is in Jerusalem at the Sheep-gate, a pool, which is called in Hebrew Bethzatha,—having five' porches'. 3 In these [lay] was lying a throng of them who were sick,—blind, lame, withered. 4 5 And there was a certain man
there, who [for thirty-eight] years had continued in his sickness. 6 Jesus <seeing this one> lying, and taking note that now [a long' time] had he continued > saith unto him—
Desirest thou to be made [well]?
7 The sick man answered him—
Sir! I have [no man] that [as soon as the water hath been troubled> might thrust me into the pool; but <while [I] am coming> [another] [before me] goeth
down.
8 Jesus saith unto him—
Rise! take up thy couch, and be walking.
9 And [straightway] the man was made well and took up his couch, and began to walk.
Now it was Sabbath, on that' day. 10 The Jews, therefore, were saying, unto him who had been cured—
   It is [Sabbath]; and it is not allowable for thee to take up thy couch :—
11 [who] however, answered them—
<He that made me well> [he] unto me
said—
Take up thy couch, and be walking.
12 They questioned him—
Who is the man that said unto thee, Take up [thy couch], and be walking?
13 But [the healed one] knew not [who] it was;
for [Jesus] had turned aside, [a multitude] being in the place.
14 After these things Jesus found him, in the temple, and said unto
him—
See! thou hast become [well]:—
[No more] be committing sin, lest [some worse thing] do thee' befall.
15 The man went away, and told the Jews, that it was [Jesus] who had made him well.
16 And [on this account] were the Jews persecuting Jesus, because [these things] he had been doing [on Sabbath].
17 But [he] answered them—

---

a Or: "speaking."
Or: "Bethsaida."
Or (WH): "will ye...

b Or (WH): "Bethsaida."
18 [My Father] until even now,* is working;
    And [I] am working.k

19 On this account therefore the rather were the Jews seeking to slay him,—because <not only was he breaking the Sabbath,> but was calling God [his own Father,] making [himself] equal with [God].

Jesus, therefore, answered, and went on to say
unto them—

,"Verily, verily," I say unto you:
The Son cannot be doing, of himself, a single thing;—
Save anything he may see [the Father] doing;
For whatever he may be doing, These things, [the Son also, in like manner] doeth.

For [the Father] dearly loveth the Son,
And all things pointeth out to him, which [himself] is doing;
And greater works than these will he point out to him,
That ye may marvel.

For just as the Father waketh up the dead, and quickeneth them
[In like manner] the Son also whom he pleaseth doth quicken.e

For neither doth [the Father] judge anyone,—
But all the judging hath given unto the Son:
That all may honour the Son,
Just as they honour the Father:
He that doth not honour the Son, doth not, in fact, honour the Father who sent him.

,"Verily, verily," I say unto you:
He that heareth my word, and believeth in him that sent me,
Hath life age-abiding,
And into judgment cometh not, But hath passed over, out of death into life.

,"Verily, verily," I say unto you:
There cometh an hour, and now is,
When the dead shall hearken unto the voice of the Son of God,
And they who have hearkened shall live.

For just as [the Father] hath life in himself,—
[In like manner] unto the Son also hath he given, life to have, in himself;—
And authority hath he given him, to be executing judgment,— Because [Son of Man] is he!

Do not be marveling at this:
Because there cometh an hour, in which [all they in the tombs shall hearken unto his voice, and shall come forth,—

They who the good things have done>
Unto a resurrection of life;
But they who the corrupt things have practised>
Unto a resurrection of judgment.

,"I will not be doing, of myself, a single thing,—
Just as I hear I judge;
And my judging is just,—
Because I seek not my own will,
But the will of him that sent me.

,"If I bear witness concerning myself,>
My witness is not true;—
Another it is, who beareth witness concerning me,—
And I know that true is the witness which he witnesseth concerning me.

,"Ye have sent forth unto John,—"
And he hath borne witness to the truth:—
,"I however, not from man, my witness receive;
But these things I say, that ye may be saved:—
"He was the burning and shining lamp,
And ye were willing to exult, for an hour,
in his light;"

But I have, as my witness, something greater than John's;
For the works which the Father hath given me, that I should complete them,— the works themselves which I am doing bear witness concerning me,
That [the Father] hath sent me.

And so [the Father who sent me] he hath borne witness concerning me.
Neither a sound of him at any time have ye heard,
Nor a form of him have ye seen;
And his word ye have not, within you abiding,— Because [as touching him whom he sent>"
In him ye believe not.

Ye search the Scriptures,
Because ye think by them to have life age-abiding;—
And those [Scriptures] are they which bear witness concerning me:
And yet ye choose not to come unto me, that life ye may have.

<Glory from men> am I not receiving;—
But I have taken knowledge of you.e
That the love of God ye have not in yourselves:—

,"I have come, in the name of my Father,—
And ye are not receiving me:
If another shall come in his own name>
Him ye will receive!

44 How can ye believe, —
Glory from one another receiving;
And the glory which is from the only God* are not seeking?
45 Do not think that I will accuse you unto the Father:
There is one who accuseth you, even Moses; —
On whom ye have set your hope.
46 For if ye had been believing in Moses >
Ye would, in that case, have been believing in me ;
For concerning me he wrote.
47 But if in his writings ye are not believing >
How in my sayings will ye believe ?

Mk. vi. 32-44 ; Lu. ix. 10-17.

6 ||After these things|| Jesus went away across the sea of Galilee, that is, of Tiberias ; and there was following him a great multitude, because they had been viewing the signs which he did upon such as were sick. 3 But Jesus had gone up into the mountain, and there was sitting with his disciples. 4 Now the passover was near, the feast of the Jews. 2 So then Jesus, lifting up his eyes, and beholding that a great multitude was coming unto him, saith unto Philip—

Whence are we to buy loaves, that these may eat?
6 But this he was saying, to test him; for he knew what he was about to do.
7 Philip answered him—
Two hundred denaries-worth of loaves are not sufficient for them, that [each one] may take a little.
3 One from among his disciples, Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, saith unto him —
9 There is a little lad here, that hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes,—
But what are they for such numbers? 2

Jesus said—
Make the people recline.
Now there was much grass in the place.
So the men reclined, to the number of about five thousand. 3 Jesus therefore took the loaves, and giving thanks went on distributing unto them that reclined; in like manner of the small fishes also : as much as they were wishing. 12 And when they were well-filled he saith unto his disciples—
Gather up the broken pieces left over, that nothing be lost.
13 So they gathered them up, and filled twelve baskets, with broken pieces out of the five barley loaves,—which were left over by them who had eaten. 14 ||The people|| therefore, seeing what signs he wrought began to say—
This is, of a truth, the prophet who was to come into the world.

§ 12. Jesus walks on the Lake. Mt. xiv. 22-36 ;
Mk. vi. 45-56.
13 ||Jesus|| therefore <getting to know> that they were about to come, and seize him, that they might make him king; > retired again into the mountain [himself, alone].
15 But [when evening came] his disciples went down unto the sea; 17 and entering into a boat were going across the sea unto Capernaum. And [dark, already] had it become, and [not yet] had Jesus reached them; 18 moreover the sea <by reason of a great wind that blew> was rising high.
19 <Having therefore rowed about twenty-five or thirty furlongs> they observe Jesus, walking upon the sea, and near the boat| coming; and they were affrighted.
20 But [he] saith unto them—
It is [I]: be not affrighted!
21 They were willing, therefore, to receive him into the boat; and [straightway] the boat was at land, whither they had been slowly going.

22 ||On the morrow|| the multitude that was standing on the other side of the sea saw that there was not [another small-boat] there, save one,— and that Jesus entered not [along with his disciples] into the boat, but that [alone] his disciples departed:—howbeit there came' boats out of Tiberias, near the place where they did eat the bread, after the Lord had given thanks:—
24 ||When, therefore, the multitude saw that|| Jesus was not there, nor yet his disciples >
they themselves got into the small boats, and came unto Capernaum, seeking Jesus; 25 and <finding him on the other side of the sea> they said unto him—
Rabbi! when camest thou hither?!

Jesus answered them, and said—
||Verily, verily|| I say unto you:
Ye seek me,
Not because ye saw signs,
But because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled.

27 Be working.
Not for the food that perisheth,
But for the food that endureth unto life age-abiding.—
Which [the Son of Man] unto you, will give;
For upon [the same] hath the Father
[even God] set his seal.
29 They said, therefore, unto him—
What are we to do, that we may be working the works of God?
30 Jesus answered, and said unto them—
||This|| is the work of God:
That ye believe on him whom [he] hath sent forth.
31 They said, therefore, unto him—
What, then, art thou doing [by way of sign],
That we may see, and believe in thee: What art thou working?

* Or: "observing."
" Or: "make a king."
23 Our fathers] did eat [the manna] in the desert,—
Just as it is written:
Bread out of heaven; he gave them to eat.*

24 Jesus said unto them—
Verily, verily | I say unto you:
Not Moses] gave you the bread out of heaven;
But [my Father] giveth you the real bread out of heaven.

25 For the bread of God is that which is coming down out of heaven,
And giving [life] unto the world.

26 They said, therefore, unto him—
Sir! [evermore] give us this bread.

27 Jesus said unto them—
I am the bread of life:
He that cometh unto me shall not hunger,
And [he that believeth on me] shall thirst any more.

28 But I told you—
Ye have [seen] me,
And yet do not believe.

29 All that] which the Father is giving me—
Unto me will have come,
And [him that cometh unto me]
In nowise will I cast out.—

30 Because I have come down from heaven,—
Not that I should be doing my own will,
But the will of him that sent me.

31 And [this] is the will of him that sent me,
That [all] that which he hath given me—
I should lose nothing,
But should raise it up at the last day.

32 For [this] is the will of my Father,
That every one that vieweth the Son, and believeth on him—
Should have life everlasting,
And I will raise him up at the last day.

33 The Jews, therefore, began to murmur concerning him, because he said—
I am the bread that came down out of heaven;

34 and were saying—
Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph,—
Of whom we know the father and the mother?
How is it then, that he |now| saith:
Out of heaven have I come down?

35 Jesus answered, and said unto them—
Be not murmuring, one with another:
No one can come unto me, except the Father that sent me |draw him,—
And I will raise him up, in the last day.

36 It is written in the prophets,—
And they shall be all, the instructed of God:*
Every one who hath heard of the Father, and learned—
Cometh unto me.

37 Not that any one hath seen |the Father|,
Save he who is from God,—
This one |hath seen the Father.

38 Verily, verily | I say unto you:
He that believeth |hath life age-abiding.

39 I am the bread of life:—
Your fathers |did eat, in the desert, the manna,—
And died:]

40 This is the bread which [out of heaven] cometh down,—
That one |thereof] may eat,—
And not die:]

41 I am the living bread, which [out of heaven] came down:
If one eat of this| bread—
He shall live unto times age-abiding;
And |the bread, moreover, which |I| will give—
Is |my flesh| for the world’s life.

42 The Jews, therefore, began to strive one with another, saying—
How can this one |unto us| give his flesh to eat?

43 Jesus, therefore, said unto them—
Verily, verily | I say unto you—
Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man,
And drink his blood—
Ye have not life within yourselves.

44 He that feedeth upon my flesh,
And drinketh my blood—
Hath life age-abiding,
And I will raise him up at the last day;
For |my flesh| is |true| food,
And |my blood| is |true| drink:

45 He that feedeth upon my flesh,
And drinketh my blood—
In me |abideth,
And |I| in him.

46 Just as the living Father sent me,—
And I live by reason of the Father—
He also that feedeth upon me—
Shall live unto times age-abiding.

47 These things| said he, as |in a synagogue| he was teaching, in Capernaum. Many of his disciples, therefore, |when they heard| said—
Hard |is this discourse,—
Who can |thereunto| hearken?

48 But Jesus |knowing within himself that his disciples were murmuring concerning this| said unto them—
It causeth you to stumble!

49 Then |if ye should view the Son of Man ascending where he was before|... —

50 The spirit it is, that giveth life,—
The flesh] profiteth |nothing|:
The declarations which |I| have spoken unto you—
Are |spirit| and A [life].

* Or: "is coming down"; "is to come down."
64 But there are some from among you, who do not believe.
For Jesus knew from the beginning, who they were that did not believe, and who it was would deliver him up;—65 and he went on to say—
| For this cause | have I said unto you: |
| No one | can come unto me, except it have been given him | of the Father. |
66 Because of this| many from among his disciples | went away back, and | no longer, with him | were walking. |
Jesus, therefore, said unto the twelve—
Are | ye also | wishing to withdraw?

65 Simon Peter answered him—
| Lord | unto whom | shall we go? |
| Declarations of life age-abiding | thou hast; |
66 And | we | have believed, and come to know,— |
That | thou | art the Holy One of God.

67 Jesus answered them—
Did not | I | make choice | of you, the twelve? |
And yet | from among you | one | is an adversary. |

71 Now he was speaking of Judas, son of Simon Iscariot; for | the same | was about to deliver him up,—one of the twelve. |

§ 14. The Feast of Tents, Jerusalem.

7 And | after these things | Jesus was walking in Galilee; for he was not wishing | in Judaea to be walking, because the Jews were seeking to slay him. 2 But the feast of the Jews was near, that of the pitching of tents. 3 His brethren, therefore, said unto him— Remove hence, and withdraw into Judaea, that | thy disciples also | may view thy works which thou art doing.

4 For | no one | anything in secret doth, and yet is seeking | himself | to be well-known. a
If | these things | thou art doing | manifest thyself unto the world.

5 For | not even his brethren | were believing on him. 6 Jesus, therefore, saith unto them—
| My season | not yet | is here; |
But | your season | at any time | is ready:
7 The world cannot | hate you; |
But | me | it hateth, |
Because | I | bear witness concerning it,|
That | the works thereof | are wicked. |
8 Ye | go up unto the feast: |
| I | not yet | am coming up unto this feast, |
Because | my season | not yet | hath fully come.

9 And | these things | having said unto them | he | was still abiding in Galilee. 10 But | when his brethren had gone up unto the feast | then | the also | went up, —not openly, but as it were in secret. 11 | The Jews | therefore, were seeking him in the feast, and were saying— Where is that one?
12 and there was great | murmuring | about him.

a Or | [WH]:” the.”

b Or | [WH]:” that it be well-known.”

among the multitudes: some, indeed, were saying—
| Good | is he! |
| But | others | were saying—

Not so! but he is leading the multitude astray.
13 | No one | nevertheless, was speaking | openly |
| Presently | however, <the feast being at its height> | Jesus went up unto the temple and was teaching. 15 The Jews, therefore, began to marvel, saying— |
| How | doth this one know | letters, not having learned? |
16 Jesus, therefore, answered them, and said—
| My teaching | is not mine, but his who sent me. |
17 | If any one intend | his will | to do; |
He shall get to know concerning the teaching— Whether it is | of God, |
Or | from myself | am speaking. 18 |
| He that | from himself | doth speak |
| His own glory | is seeking: |
| That he seeketh the glory of him that sent him > |
The same is | true, |
And | iniquity | is there none. 19 Did not | Moses | give you the law? And yet | not one of you | doth the law: — |
Why | seek ye | to slay | me? 20

The multitude answered—
| A demon | thou hast : |
| Who | is seeking | to slay | thee. |
21 Jesus answered, and said unto them— |
| One work | I | did, and ye | all | are marvelling: |
22 | For this cause | Moses | hath given you | circumcision, a. |
Not that | of Moses | it | is, but of the fathers:— |
And | on Sabbath | ye circumcise a man. |
23 If | circumcision | a man received on Sabbath, |
That the law of Moses may not be broken > |
With me | are ye bitter as gall, |
Because | a whole man | I | made | well | on Sabbath |
24 Be not judging according to appearance. But | just | judgment | be judging. |
25 So then, some of them of Jerusalem were saying— Is not | this | he whom they are seeking to kill? 26 And yet, see! with freedom of speech, he is talking. And | nothing | unto him | do they say— |
Have the rulers perhaps come to know of a truth |

That | this | is the Christ! 27 But | as for this one | we know whencesoever he is: |
The Christ, however, whencesoever he shall come | no one | getheth to know whencesoever he is. 28 Jesus, therefore, cried aloud in the temple, teaching, and saying— |
Both me | ye know, and ye know whencesoever I am,—

And yet [of myself] have I not come, but he is real, who sent me, whom ye know not.

39 [I] know him, because [from him] I am, and [he] sent me forth.

40 They were seeking therefore to seize him; and yet no one laid on him his hand, because [not yet] had come his hour.\textsuperscript{b} But [from amongst the multitude\textsuperscript{ll} [many] believed on him, and were saying—

<The Christ, whenssoever he cometh>

"Greater signs\textsuperscript{ll} will he do, than those which [this one] did!

42 The Pharisees hearkened unto the multitude murmuring concerning him these things; and the High-priests and the Pharisees sent forth officers, that they might seize him.

33 Jesus, therefore, said—

Yet a little time\textsuperscript{,} I am [with you],\textsuperscript{c} and withdraw unto him that sent me:

44 Ye shall seek me, and not find me, and [where \textsuperscript{[I] am}] ye\textsuperscript{[e]} cannot come.

35 The Jews, therefore, said unto themselves—Whither\textsuperscript{[I]} is [this one] about to go, that we shall not find him?

[Unto the dispersion of the Greeks\textsuperscript{ll} is he about to go, and teach the Greeks?]

46 [What] is this which he said:

Ye shall seek me, and not find me, and [where \textsuperscript{[I] am}] ye\textsuperscript{[e]} cannot come?

47 Now [on the last\textsuperscript{[‘] the great\textsuperscript{,} day of the feast\textsuperscript{]}\textsuperscript{d} Jesus was standing, and he cried aloud, saying—

<If any man thirst> let him come unto me and drink:

49 [He also] that believeth on me—just as said the Scripture,—\textsuperscript{e}

Rivers\textsuperscript{[I]} from within him shall flow, of living water.

50 Now [this] spake he concerning the Spirit which they who believed on him were about to receive; for [not yet] was there Spirit,\textsuperscript{f} because Jesus\textsuperscript{[l]} not yet\textsuperscript{,} was glorified.

51 Some from amongst the multitude\textsuperscript{ll} therefore, having hearkened unto these words, were saying—

[This\textsuperscript{ll}] is in truth, [the prophet].

54 [Others] were saying—

[This\textsuperscript{ll}] is [the Christ].

But [others\textsuperscript{[l]} were saying—

[Out of Galilee\textsuperscript{,} is [the Christ] to come?

55 Hath not the Scripture said:

<Of the seed of David,\textsuperscript{g}

And from Bethlehem,\textsuperscript{h} the village where David was>

Conc\textsuperscript{ll}th the Christ?

57 A division\textsuperscript{ll} therefore, arose in the multitude, because of him. \textsuperscript{[Certain]} indeed, from among them, were wishing to seize him; but [no one] thrust upon him his hands.

45 So then the officers came unto the High-priests and the Pharisees, and they\textsuperscript{ll} said unto them—

For what cause\textsuperscript{ll} have ye not brought him?

The officers answered—

[never\textsuperscript{ll} man spake thus!]

47 The Pharisees, therefore, answered them—

Surely ye also have not been led astray!

Surely [none of the rulers\textsuperscript{ll} hath believed in him, nor of the Pharisees?]

But [this multitude, that take no note of the law\textsuperscript{ll} are laid under a curse].

50 Nicodemus saith unto them—he that came unto him formerly, being [one] from among them—

Surely [our law\textsuperscript{ll} doth not judge the man, unless it hear first from him, and get to know what he is doing]

52 They answered and said unto him—

Surely [thou also\textsuperscript{ll} art not of Galilee]\textsuperscript{?}

§ 15. The Light and the Darkness in Conflict.

12 [Again\textsuperscript{ll} therefore, unto them\textsuperscript{ll} spake Jesus, saying—

[I am the light of the world,\textsuperscript{b}

He that followeth me shall in nowise walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.\textsuperscript{c}

13 The Pharisees, therefore, said unto him—

[Thou\textsuperscript{[ll]} concerning thyself\textsuperscript{ll} bearest witness:

Thy witness\textsuperscript{ll} is not true.

14 Jesus answered, and said unto them—

[Even though \textsuperscript{[I]} bear witness concerning myself>

[True\textsuperscript{ll} is my witness, because I know whence I came, and whither I go; But [ye\textsuperscript{[e]} know not whence I came, and whither I go.]

15 Ye\textsuperscript{[l]} according to the flesh\textsuperscript{[ll]} do judge:

[I am judging no one.

And [even if \textsuperscript{[I]} am judging>

[My\textsuperscript{ll} judging\textsuperscript{ll} is [genuine],\textsuperscript{d}

Because [alone\textsuperscript{ll} am I not,] But \textsuperscript{[I]} and the Father who sent me;\textsuperscript{e}

17 And [in your own law\textsuperscript{ll} it is written,\textsuperscript{f}

That [two men's\textsuperscript{ll} witness\textsuperscript{ll} is [true]:

18 \textsuperscript{[I]} am the one bearing witness of myself, and the Father who sent me is bearing witness concerning me. They were saying unto him, therefore—

[Where\textsuperscript{ll} is thy father?]

Jesus answered—

Neither \textsuperscript{[me]} do ye know, nor yet my Father: [If \textsuperscript{[me]} ye had known\textsuperscript{ll} my Father also had ye known.

20 These sayings spake he in the treasury, teaching in the temple, and ye shall seek me, and yet ye shall not believe: that ye may continue in your enmity, and ye might make me free.
21 He said unto them again, therefore—
22 Whither [I] go ye cannot come.
23 And he was saying unto them—
24 Ye are of the world, I am not of the world:
25 Therefore said I unto you, Ye shall die in your sins;
26 For if ye believed not that I am he ye shall die in your sins.
27 Jesus said unto them—
28 Whosoever shall lift up the Son of Man shall be saved;
29 And he that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life.
30 And as he said these things many believed on him;
31 Jesus was saying, therefore, unto the Jews who believed on him—
32 Ye are of your father the adversary;
33 They answered him—
34 Verily, verily, I say unto you:
35 Now the slave doth not abide in the house—

But I seek not my glory:

There is one who seeketh and judgeth.

Verily, verily, I say unto you:

If anyone shall keep my word, he shall not see death.

The Jews said unto him—

Now we know that a demon thou hast—

Abraham died, and the prophets.

And ye shall say—

If anyone shall keep my word, in no wise shall he taste of death.

Surely, thou art not greater than our father Abraham, who, indeed, died?

And the prophets died—

Whom hast thou made thyself?

Jesus answered—

If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing:

It is my Father who glorifieth me—

Of whom ye say—He is your God!

And yet ye have not come to know him;

But if I do know him:

If I say, I know him not,

I shall be like you—false;

But I know him, and his word I am keeping.

Abraham, your father, exulted that he should see my day;

And he saw, and rejoiced.

The Jews, therefore, said unto him—

Fifty years old not yet art thou.

And Abraham hast thou seen?

Jesus said unto them—

Verily, verily, I say unto you:

Before Abraham came into existence I am.

They took up stones, therefore, that they might cast at him; but Jesus was hidden, and went forth out of the temple.

Jesus healed a Blind Man: and avows himself the Good Shepherd.

And passing along, he saw a man, blind from birth.

And his disciples questioned him, saying—

Who sinned, this man or his parents, that he is blind?

Jesus answered—

Neither this man sinned, nor his parents;

But that the works of God should be made manifest in him.

We must needs be working the works of him that sent me, while it is day:

There cometh a night, when no one can work.

Whensoever I may be in the world I am the light of the world.

These things having said, he spat on the ground, and made clay with the spittle, and laid the clay upon his eyes; and said unto him—

One out of the many examples in John in which himself avows himself the Good Shepherd.

Withdraw! wash in the pool of Siloam—which is to be translated, Sent. He went away, therefore, and washed, and came (seeing).

The neighbours, therefore, and they who used to observe him aforetime—that he was a beggar—were saying—

Is it not this he that used to sit and beg?

Others were saying—

Tis the same.

Others were saying—

Nay! but he is like him.

He was saying—

I am he.

So they were saying unto him—

How [then] were thine eyes opened?

He answered—

The man that is called Jesus, made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me:

Withdraw unto the pool of Siloam, and wash.

Going away, therefore, and washing I received sight.

And they said unto him—Where is he?

He saith—I know not.

They bring him unto the Pharisees—him at one time blind.

Now it was the Sabbath, on the day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

Again therefore, the Pharisees also questioned him, as to how he received sight.

And he said unto them—

Clay I laid upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see.

Certain among the Pharisees therefore were saying—

This man is not from God, because the Sabbath he keepeth not.

Others however were saying—

How can a sinful man such signs as these do being?

And there was a division among them.

So they were saying unto the blind man, again—

What dost thou say concerning him, in that he opened thine eyes?

And he said—

A prophet is he.

The Jews, therefore, did not believe concerning him, that he was blind, and received sight, until they called the parents of him that had received sight, and questioned them, saying—

Is this your son, of whom ye say, that he is blind; he was born?

How, then, seest he even now?

His parents, therefore, answered, and said—

We know that this is our son, and that he is blind; he was born.

But how he now seeth we know not.

Or who opened his eyes we know not—

Question him he is of age;

Concerning himself shall speak.

These things said his parents, because they were in fear of the Jews—for already had the Jews agreed together, that if anyone should

* As if to say: "Was he ever blind?"
confess [him] to be Christ> [an excommunicant from the synagogue] should he be made.

23 [For this cause] his parents said—

He is [of age],—question [him].

24 So they called the man a second time—[him] who had been blind, and said unto him—

Give glory unto God !

[We] know that [this] man is [a sinner].

25 He therefore answered—

[Whether he is a sinner] I know not:

One thing I know,—That <whereas I was blind> [now] I see!

26 They said, therefore, unto him—

What did he unto thee? How opened he thine eyes?

27 He answered them—

I told you just now, and ye did not hear:

Why [again] do ye wish to hear?

Are [ye also] wishing to become [his disciples]?

28 And they reviled him, and said—

Thou art [the disciple] of that man*;

But [we are] [Moses'] disciples.

29 We* know that [unto Moses] hath God spoken;

But [as for this man] we know not whence he is.

30 The man answered, and said unto them—

Why! [herein] is [the marvel]:

That [ye] know not whence he is,

And yet he opened mine eyes!.

31 We know that [God] [unto sinners] doth not hearken;

But <if one be [a worshipper of God] and be doing [his will]> [Unto this one] he hearkeneth.

32 [Out of age-past time] hath it never been heard, that anyone opened the eyes of one who [blind] had been born.

33 [If this man were not from God] he could have done nothing.

34 They answered and said unto him—

In sins was [thou] born [altogether];

And art [thou] teaching [us]?

And they cast him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had cast him out: and [finding him] said—

Dost thou believe on the Son of Man?

36 He answered [and said]—

And [who] is he, Sir, that I may believe on him?

37 Jesus said unto him—

Thou hast both seen him and [he that is speaking with thee] is [he].

38 And [he] said—

I believe, Sir! And worshiped him.

39 And Jesus said—

<For judgment> [I unto this world came; That] they who were not seeing might see,

And [they who were seeing] might become [blind].

They of the Pharisees who were with him [heard] these things, and said unto him—

Are [we also] [blind]?

41 Jesus said unto them—

<If [blind] ye had been> ye had not had sin;

But [now] ye say. We see >[your sin] [abideth].*

40 Verily verily I say unto you:—

<He that entereth not through the door> into the fold of the sheep,

But goeth up from another place>

[That man] is [a thief] and [a robber].

2 But <he that entereth through the door> is [shepherd] of the sheep:

3 [To him] the porter openeth,

And [the sheep] unto his voice hearken;

And [his own sheep] he calleth by name, and leadeth them forth.

4 [As soon as] [all his own] he hath put forth >

Before them he moveth on,

And [the sheep] follow him, because they know his voice;

But [a stranger] will they in nowise follow, but will flee from him,

Because they know not the voice [of strangers].

6 [This] similitude spake Jesus unto them; but [those men] understood not* what the things were which he was speaking unto them.

7 Jesus therefore said [again]—

[Verily, verily] I say unto you:—

[I am the door of the sheep;]

All as many as came before me are [thieves] and [robbers];

But the-sheep hearkened not unto them.

9 I am the door:

[Through me] if anyone enter.

He shall be saved,

And shall come in and go out, and [pasture] shall find.

10 [The thief] cometh not, Save that he may thief and slay and destroy:]

[I came,

That [life] they might have,

And [above measure] might have.

11 I am the good shepherd:

The good shepherd [his life] layeth down [for the sheep].

12 [The hireling]

<Even because he is no shepherd, Whose own the sheep are not>.

Vieweth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth,

And [the wolf] seizeth them and scattereth,—

13 Because [a hireling] he is, and hath no care for the sheep.

14 [I am the good shepherd, And know my own,
JOHN X. 15—42; XI. 1—6. 105

15 And [my own] knew me,—

Just as [the Father] knowest me,
And [I] know the Father;*
And [my life] I lay down for the sheep.

16 And [other] sheep have I, which are not of this fold:—

Those also I must needs bring,
And [unto my voice] will* they hearken,
And there shall come to be

One flock.

17 Therefore [doth] the Father [love] me,

Because [I] lay down my life;—

That [again] I may receive it:—

No one [forced] it from me,

But [I] lay it down [of myself;]—

Authority have I, to lay it down,

And [authority] have I, [again] to receive it:

This' commandment I received [from my Father].

18 A division [again] took place among the Jews, because of these words. But many from among them were saying—

A demon he hath, and is raving,—

Why unto him do ye hearken?

19 Others said—

These' sayings are not those of one demonized,—

Can [a demon] open the eyes of [the blind]?

§ 17. The Feast of Dedication—Conflict renewed.

22 The feast of dedication took place at that time, in Jerusalem: it was [winter], and Jesus was walking in the temple, in the porch of Solomon.

24 The Jews, therefore, surrounded him, and were saying unto him—

How long holdest thou [our lives] in suspense?

25 Jesus answered them—

I told you, and ye believe not:

The works which [I] am doing in the name of my Father—

The same bear witness concerning me.

26 But [ye] believe not, because ye are not of my sheep.

27 My sheep [unto my voice] hearken,—

And [I] know [them];

And they follow me,—

And [I] give unto them life age-abiding;—

And in nowise shall they perish, unto times

age-abiding;

And no one shall carry them off out of my hand.

29 [What] [my Father] hath given me is [something greater than all]!*

30 [no one] can carry off out of the hand of

my Father:—

31 [I and the Father] are [one].

32 The Jews again lifted up stones,* that they might stone him. Jesus answered them—

Many works have I showed you, [noble ones, from my Father;—

For which of those works are ye stoning me?

33 The Jews answered him—

Concerning a noble' work are we not stoning thee;

But concerning profane speech,—

And because [thou] being [a man], art making thyself [God].

34 Jesus answered them—

Is it not written in your law b:

If said Ye are [Gods]

35 If [those] he called gods, unto whom [the word of God] came—

And the Scripture cannot be broken—>

36 Of him whom [the Father] hallowed and sent forth into the world are [eye] saying—

Thou speakest profanely,

Because I said [Son of God] I am?

37 If I am not doing the works of my Father

do not believe in me;

38 But [if I am doing them]

Even though [in me] ye believe not—

In the works believe,—

That ye may get to know and go on to know,

That the Father is [in me]

And [I] am [in the Father].

39 They were [therefore] again seeking to take him; and he went forth out of their hand.

And he went away again, beyond the Jordan, unto the place where John was at the first, immersing; and he abode there.

41 And [many] came unto him, and were saying—

John indeed, did not so much as [one sign];

But [all things, whatsoever John said concerning this one] were [true].

42 And [many] believed on him there.

§ 18. The Raising of Lazarus.

11 Now a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, of the village of Mary and Martha her sister. And Mary was she who anointed

the Lord with perfume,* and wiped his feet with her hair,—whose brother Lazarus was sick.

The sisters, therefore, sent out unto him

saying—

Lord, see! [he whom thou tenderly loveth] is sick.

4 But Jesus hearing, said—

This' sickness is not unto death,

But for the glory of God,—

That the Son of God may be glorified thereby.

5 Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus. <When, therefore, he heard that he was sick; indeed, he abode in the place where he was two days. 7. Then, after this, he saith unto the disciples—

Let us be leading on into Judæa again.
8. The disciples say unto him—
Rabbi! just now were the Jews seeking to stone thee.—
And again goest thou thither?
9. Jesus answered—
Are there not twelve hours in the day? <If one walk in the day he doth not stumble,
Because the light of this world he seeth; But if one walk in the night he stumbleth,
Because the light is not in him.

11. These things he said, and after this he saith unto them—
Lazarus, our dear friend hath fallen asleep; But I am going, that I may awake him.
12. The disciples, therefore, said unto him—
Lord! if he have fallen asleep he will recover.
13. But Jesus had spoken concerning his death; whereas they supposed that concerning the taking of rest in sleep he had been speaking.
14. Jesus, therefore then said unto them plainly—
Lazarus died; and I rejoice, for your sake—that ye may believe,—that I was not there;
But let us be going unto him.
15. Thomas, therefore, the one called Didymus, said unto his fellow-disciples—
Let us also go being, that we may die with him.
17. Jesus, therefore, coming, found that four days already had he been in the tomb. 18. Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, about fifteen furlongs off; and many from among the Jews had come unto Martha and Mary, that they might console them concerning their brother. 19. Martha therefore, when she heard that Jesus was coming went to meet him; but Mary sat in the house remained sitting.
21. Martha therefore, said unto Jesus—
Lord! if thou hadst been here my brother had not died;
And now I know, that whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, God will give unto thee.
23. Jesus saith unto her—
Thy brother shall rise.
24. Martha saith unto him—
I know that he shall rise, in the resurrection, in the last day.
25. Jesus said unto her—
If I am the resurrection and the life:
(He that believeth on me) Even though he die, shall live again!
26. And no one who liveth again and believeth on me

Shall in any wise die; unto times age-abiding.
Believest thou this?
27. She saith unto him—
Yea, Lord! I have believed.
That thou art the Christ, the Son of God,— He who into the world should come.
29. And this saying, she went away, and called Mary her sister, secretly saying—
The teacher is present, and calleth thee.
And when she heard, she was roused up quickly, and was coming unto him. 30. Not yet however, had Jesus come into the village, but was still in the place where Martha met him.
31. The Jews, therefore, who were in the house and consoling her, seeing Mary, that quickly she arose and went out followed her, supposing that she was withdrawing unto the tomb, that she might weep there.
32. Mary therefore, when she came where Jesus was> seeing him fell at his feet, saying unto him—
Lord! if thou hadst been here my brother had not died.
33. Jesus therefore, when he saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her weeping was indignant in the spirit, and troubled himself, and said—
Where have ye laid him?
They say unto him—
Lord! come and see.
35. Jesus wept.
The Jews, therefore were saying—
See! how tenderly he loved him!
37. But some from among them said—
Could not this man, who opened the eyes of the blind, and caused that this one also should not have died?
38. Jesus therefore, again being indignant within himself came unto the tomb. Now it was a cave, and a stone was lying thereon.
39. Jesus saith—
Take ye away the stone!
Martha, the sister of the deceased, saith unto him—
Lord! by this time it stinketh, for it is four days.
40. Jesus saith unto her—
Said I not unto thee That if thou wouldest believe thou shouldst see the glory of God?
41. So they took away the stone. And Jesus, lifted up his eyes on high, and said—
Father! I thank thee, thou didst hear me:
If I indeed knew that always unto me thou dost hearken;
But for the sake of the multitude standing around I speak,
That they might believe that thou didst send me forth.
43. And these things having said, with a loud voice he cried out—
Lazarus! come forth!

JOHN XI. 44—57; XII. 1—22.

He that was dead came forth, bound feet and hands with bandages, and [his face] [with a napkin] was bound about. Jesus saith unto them—

Loose him, and let him go.

Many therefore from among the Jews, who had come unto Mary, and gazed on what he did [believed on him]; but [certain from among them] went away unto the Pharisees, and told them what Jesus had done.

The High-priests and Pharisees, therefore, brought together a high-council, and were saying—

What are we to do, in that [this man] doeth [many] signs?

If we let him alone thus [all] will believe on him, and the Romans will come, and take away [both our place and nation].

But [a certain one from among them], Caiaphas [being [High-priest] for that year] said unto them—[Yet] know [nothing at all]; nor do ye take into account, that it is profitable for you that [one] man should die for the people, and not [the whole] nation perish.

This however, from himself he spake not, but [being [High-priest] for that year] he prophesied, that Jesus was about to die for the nation; and [not for the nation only] but that [the scattered children of God also] he might gather together into one.

From that day therefore, they took counsel, that they might put him to death.

Jesus therefore, no longer openly was walking among the Jews, but departed thence, into the country near the desert, unto a city called [Ephraim]; and [there] abode, with his disciples.

Now the passover of the Jews was at hand, and many went up unto Jerusalem, out of the country, before the passover, that they might purify themselves.

They were therefore seeking Jesus, and were saying one to another, [in the temple] standing—

How seesth him unto you? that he will in nowise come unto the feast?

Now the High-priests and the Pharisees had given commands, that [if anyone came to know where he was] he should inform [them], so that they might seize him.

§ 19. The Anointing at Bethany. Mt. xxvi. 6-12; Mk. xiv. 3-8.

Jesus therefore, six days before the passover came unto Bethany, where Lazarus was, whom Jesus had raised from among the dead.

So they made for him a supper there; and [Martha] was ministering, but [Lazarus] was one of them who were reclining with him.

Mary therefore, [taking a pound of pure nard perfume, very precious] anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped with her hair, his feet; and [the house] was filled with the fragrance of the perfume.

But Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples, he that was about to deliver him up, saith—

Why was this perfume not sold for three hundred denaries, and given unto the destitute?

Howbeit he said this, <not that [for the destitute] he cared> but because [a thief] he was, and holding [the bag] used to carry away [what was cast therein]. Jesus, therefore, said—

Let her alone, that [for the day of my burial] she may observe it;

For [the destitute] always have ye with you, whereas [me] not always have ye.

The great multitude of the Jews, therefore, got to know that he was there, and came [not on account of Jesus only] but that Lazarus also, they might see, whom he had raised from among the dead. But the High-priests took counsel [that Lazarus also] they might put to death; because [many] of the Jews [by reason of him] were withdrawing, and believing on Jesus.

§ 20. The Triumphal Entry. Mt. xxi. 1-11; Mk. xi. 1-10; Lk. xix. 29-38.

On the morrow [the great multitude that had come unto the feast] hearing that Jesus was coming into Jerusalem [took] the branches of the palm trees, and went out to meet him, and began crying aloud—

Hosanna!

Blessed is he that is coming in the name of the Lord,—

Even the King of Israel!

And Jesus, finding a young ass, took his seat thereon, just as it is written—

Do not fear, O daughter of Zion!

Lo! [thy king] cometh,

Sitting upon the colt of an ass!

These things his disciples noticed not, at the first; but [when Jesus was glorified] then remembered they that [these things] had [for him] been written, and that [these things] they had done unto him. The multitude therefore, that was with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb, and raised him from among the dead, was bearing witness. On this account the multitude met him also, because they heard that he had done this sign.

The Pharisees therefore, said among themselves—

Ye observe that ye are profiting nothing:

See! [the world] [after him] hath gone away.

§ 21. The Hour is Come. Final Appeals to the Jews.

Now there were certain Greeks, from among them who were coming up that they might worship in the feast.* These therefore, came unto Philip, him who was from Bethsaida of Galilee, and were requesting him, saying—

Sir! we desire to see [Jesus].

Philip cometh, and telleth Andrew: Andrew

Believe on the light,
That [sons of light] ye may become.

These things spake Jesus,—and, departing, was hid from them. 27 And although such signs as these he had done before them they were not believing on him:—30 that [the word of Isaiah the prophet] might be fulfilled, which said—

Lord! who believed that we have heard!
And [the arm of the Lord] [to whom] was it revealed?—

[On this account] they could not believe, because [again] said Isaiah—

He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart;
Lest they should see with their eyes, and understand with their heart, and should turn,—

And I should heal them.

These things said Isaiah, because he saw his glory, and spake concerning him. 44 Nevertheless, however [even from among the rulers] many believed on him; but [because of the Pharisees] they were not confessing him, lest [excommunicates from the synagogue] they should be made; 42 for they loved the glory of men, more than the glory of God. 44 And [Jesus] cried aloud, and said—

[He that believeth on me]
[Believeth not on me, but on him that sent me;]

And [he that vieweth me]
[Vieweth him that sent me].

[I] [a light] into the world have come,
That [no] one who believeth on me [in darkness] should abide.

And [if anyone shall hear me] [saying, and not guard them]—
[I] am not judging him;
For I came not that I might judge the world, But that I might save the world.

[He that setteth me aside, and receiveth not my sayings]—
Hath which is to judge him:
[The word that I spake] [that] will judge him, in the last day.

Because [I] [out of myself] spake not, But [the Father who sent me] hath [himself] given me commandment, What I should say, and what I should speak.
And I know that [this commandment is] [life age-abiding];
[The things, therefore, which I speak] [just as the Father hath told me] [So I speak.

§ 22. The Last Supper. Jesus washes his Disciples’ Feet, and Comforts their Troubled Hearts.

Now [before the feast of the passover] Jesus, knowing that his hour had come, that he should remove out of this world unto the Father—having loved his own that were in the world—unto the end: loved them. And <[supper] being in progress, the adversary having already thrust into the heart of Judas son of Simon Iscariot, that he should deliver him up,—[Jesus] knowing that all things the Father had given unto him, into his hands, and that from God he had come, and unto God he was going.*

rouseth himself out of the supper, and layeth aside his garments, and, taking a linen cloth, girded himself. [Next] he poureth water into the wash-basin, and began to be washing the feet of the disciples, and to be wiping them with the linen cloth wherewith he was girded. So he cometh unto Simon Peter. He saith unto him—

Lord, dost thou wash my feet?

Jesus answered, and said unto him—

<What am I doing? thou knowest not as yet;>

Howbeit, thou shalt get to know hereafter.

Peter saith unto him—

In nowise shalt thou ever wash my feet. Jesus answered him—

<If I wash thee not thou hast no part with me.>

Simon Peter saith unto him—

Lord! not my feet only, but my hands also, and my head.

Jesus saith unto him—

<He that hath bathed himself hath no need [save as to the feet] to get washed; but is pure [as a whole].>

And ye are pure, but not ye all.

For he knew the man that was delivering him up; therefore said he—

Not ye all, are pure.

When, therefore, he had washed their feet, and taken his garments, and reclined—again—said he unto them—

Are ye taking note, what I have done unto you?

Ye call me The Teacher and The Lord,—and [well] say, for I am.

If then [I] have washed your feet,—[I] The Lord and The Teacher.

[Ye also] ought to wash one another's feet;

For an example have I given you,—

That just as did unto you—

[Ye also] should be doing.

Verily, verily! I say unto you—

A servant is not greater than his lord, Neither one sent forth greater than he that sent him.
If these things ye know—

Happy are ye, if ye be doing them.

Not concerning you all!' am I speaking.—For [I] know of whom I made choice; But—that the Scripture might be fulfilled:—

Hath lifted up against me, his heel.

[Henceforth] I tell you (before it cometh to pass),—

That ye may believe, whencesoever it doth come to pass, that I am he.

Verily, verily! I say unto you—

[He that receiveth whomsoever I shall send—

Receiveth me;]

And [he that receiveth me—

Receiveth him that sent me.*

These things having said—[Jesus] was troubled in spirit, and bare witness, and said—

Verily, verily! I say unto you—

One from among you will deliver me up.
The disciples began to look one at another, being at a loss concerning whom he was speaking.

One of Jesus' disciples was reclining in his bosom, one whom Jesus loved: so Simon Peter beckoneth unto the same, and saith unto him—

Say Who is it? concerning whom he spakest.

<And falling back thus, upon the breast of Jesus—saith unto him—>

Lord! who is it?

Jesus, therefore, answereth—

That one! it is, for whom [I] shall dip the morsel, and give unto him. So <dipping the morsel> he taketh and giveth it unto Judas, son of Simon Iscariot.
And after the morsel: then entered [Satan] into that man. Jesus, therefore, saith unto him—

What thou art doing! do quickly!
But [as to this] none of them who were reclining with him knew' respecting what, he said it to him.
For [some] were thinking [since Judas held the bag] that Jesus was saying to him—

Buy the things of which we have [need] for the feast; or that unto the destitute [he should give] something.
So [he] took the morsel, went out straightway—and it was night.
When therefore he had gone out> Jesus saith—

Just now! was [the Son of Man] glorified, And [God] was glorified in him;
And [God] will glorify him in himself,—
And straightway glorify him.

Dear children!
Yet a little! am I [with you].
Ye shall seek me, and <just as I said unto the Jewa>—

[Whither] [I] go ye cannot come—

[Unto you also] I say it [even now].
A new commandment! give I unto you,—

That ye be loving one another;—

Just as I loved you—

That ye also! be loving one another:
By this shall all men take knowledge, that [my disciples] ye are,—

If ye have [love] one to another.

John XIII. 36—38; XIV. 1—26.

Simon Peter saith unto him—
Lord! whither doest thou withdraw?
Jesus answered—
Whither I withdraw thou canst not now follow me.
But thou shalt follow hereafter.

Peter saith unto him—
Lord! why cannot I follow thee even now?
My life! in thy behalf will I lay down.

Jesus answered—
Thy life! in my behalf wilt thou lay down?
Verily, verily I say unto thee—
In nowise shall a cock crow till thou hast denied me thrice.

Let not your heart be troubled:
Believe on God,
And on me believe.

In the house of my Father are many dwellings;
Or else I would have told you, I go to prepare a place for you.
And if I go and prepare a place for you, I am coming and will take you home unto myself;
That where I am ye also may be.
And whither I go ye know the way.

Thomas saith unto him—
Lord! we know not whither thou goest:
How we go the way?

Jesus saith unto him—
I am the way and the truth, and the life:
No one cometh unto the Father but through me.

If ye have been getting to know me, My Father also hath ye known:
From henceforth are ye getting to know him and have seen him.

Philip saith unto him—
Lord! show us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

Jesus saith unto him—
So long as this I have been with you,
And thou hast not come to know me, Philip?
He that hath seen me hath seen the Father.
How art thou saying, Show us the Father?

Believe thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father is in me?
The things which I am saying unto you are from myself, I speak not,
But the Father, within me abiding, doeth his works.

Believe me,
That I am in the Father,
And the Father in me;
Or else on account of the works themselves believe ye.

Verily, verily I say unto you—
The works which I am doing he also shall do;
And greater than these shall be done,
Because I unto the Father am going,
And because whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, the same will I do,
That the Father may be glorified in the Son:
If anything ye shall ask in my name, the same will I do.
If ye be loving me, my commandments ye will keep;
And I will request the Father,
And Another Advocate will be given unto you,
That he may be with you age-abidingly,
The Spirit of truth,
Which the world cannot receive, Because it knoweth it not, nor gettesteth to know it.
But ye are getting to know it;
Because with you it abideth,
And in you it is.
I will not leave you bereft,
I am coming unto you.
Yet a little and the world no longer beholdeth me;
But ye behold me.
Because I live ye also shall live.
In that day shall ye get to know,
That I am in my Father,
And ye in me,
And I in you.
He that hath my commandments and keepeth them
Hold it is that loveth me;
And he that loveth me shall be loved by my Father,
And I will love him, and will manifest myself unto him.
Judas, not the Iscariot, saith unto him—
Lord! what hast happened?
That unto us thou art about to manifest thyself, and not unto the world?
Jesus answered, and said unto him—
If any man be loving me,
My word he will keep,
And my Father will love him,
And unto him will we come,
And an abode with him will we make.
He that loveth me not
DOTH NOT KEEP MY WORD;
And the word which ye hear is not mine,
But the Father’s who sent me.
These things have I spoken unto you,
With you abiding;
But the Advocate,
The Holy Spirit, which the Father will send in my name
Will teach you all things.
And will put you in mind of all things which I told you.

27 Peace I leave with you, my own peace I give unto you:
Not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 Ye heard that I said unto you, I go my way, and I come unto you:
Had ye loved me ye would have rejoiced, that I am going unto the Father.
For the Father is greater than I.

29 But I will come to you. Before it cometh to pass, that whosoever it shall come to pass, ye may believe.

30 No longer many things will I speak with you:
For the world's ruler is coming, and in me hath nothing.

31 But that the world may get to know that I love the Father, and just as the Father hath given me commandment, so do I.

Be rousing yourselves! Let us be leading on from hence.

15 I am the real vine, and my Father is the husbandman: Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh it away:
And every one that beareth fruit he pruneth it, that it may bear.

3 Already, ye are pure because of the word which I have spoken unto you: Abide in me, and I in you.

4 Just as the branch cannot be bearing fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine:
So neither ye except in me ye abide.

5 I am the vine: Ye are the branches.
He that abideth in me and I in him, the same beareth much fruit; Because apart from me ye can bring forth nothing.

6 If one abide not in me he is cast out as the branch, and withered, and they gather them, and into fire they cast them, and they are burned.

7 If ye abide in me, and my sayings ye abide:
Whosoever ye may be desiring ask! And it shall be brought to pass for you.

8 Herein was my Father glorified, that much fruit ye should bear, and become my disciples.

9 Just as the Father loved me I also loved you:

To keep my commandments ye abide in my love,
I shall abide in your love, just as I abide in your love,
And abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you, that my own joy may be in you, and your joy may be made full.

12 This is my own commandment, that ye be loving one another, just as I loved you.

13 Greater love hath no one than this, that one should lay down his life for his friends.

14 Ye are friends of mine, if ye be doing that which I am commanding you.

15 No longer do I call you servants, but I have called you friends, because all things which I heard from my Father I made known unto you.

16 Not ye, but I chose you, and placed you, that ye should go your way and bear fruit:
And your fruit should abide.

17 These things I command you, that ye be loving one another.

18 If the world is hating you, ye are getting to know that before you it hath hated.

19 If of the world ye had been of the world, had been fond:
But because of the world ye are not, on the contrary chose you out of the world:
Therefore the world doth hate you.

20 Remember the word which I spoke unto you:
A servant is not greater than his lord.

21 But all these things will they do unto you, on account of my name, because they know not him that sent me.

22 Had I not come and spoken unto you: Sin had they none:
But now have they no excuse for their sin.

23 He that hateth me hateth my Father also.

24 Had I not done among them the works which no other had done: Sin had they none;

But now have they, both seen and hated me and my Father.

25 But that the word which in their law is written, might be fulfilled—

They hated me without cause.*

26 Whosoever the Advocate shall come, whom I will send unto you from the Father,

The Spirit of truth, which from the Father cometh forth—

He will bear witness concerning me; and do ye also bear witness.

Because from the beginning ye are with me.

16 These things I have spoken unto you, that ye may not be caused to stumble:

Excommunicants from the synagogue will they make you;

Nay! there cometh an hour,

That every one who killeth you shall think to be rendering a divine service unto God;

And these things will they do,

Because they got to know, neither the Father nor me.

But these things I have told you—

That whensoever their hour shall come—

Ye may remember, that thereof I told you.*

These things I however, I told you not, from the beginning,

Because I was with you;

But now I go my way unto him that sent me,

And not one from among you questioneth me—

Whither goest thou?

But because these things I have told you—

Sorrow hath filled your heart.

But I, the truth, am telling you—

It is profitable for you that I depart; for if I should not depart—

The Advocate shall in nowise come unto you,—

But if I go—

I will send him unto you.

And having come—

He will reprove the world—

Concerning sin,

And concerning righteousness,

And concerning judgment:

Concerning sin, indeed—

Because they are not believing on me;

But concerning righteousness—

Because unto the Father: I go my way, and no longer do ye behold me;

And concerning judgment—

Because the ruler of this world hath been judged.†

Yet many things have I unto you to say,

But ye cannot bear them just now;

Howbeit, as soon as he hath come—

The Spirit of truth—

He will guide you into all truth; for he will not speak from himself, but whatsoever he shall hear he will speak,

And the coming things will he announce unto you.

He shall glorify me;

For the things of mine shall he receive, and announce unto you.

All things whatsoever the Father hath are my own;

Therefore said I—

Of mine shall he receive, and announce unto you.

A little while and no longer ye behold me;

And again a little while and ye shall see me.

Some of his disciples, therefore, said one to another—

What is this which he is saying to us—

A little while and ye behold me not, and again a little while and ye shall see me;

And—

Because I go my way unto the Father!

They were saying therefore—

What is this which he saith:— A little while?

We know not what he is saying.

Jesus took note that they were wishing to question him, and said unto them—

Concerning this: are ye enquiring one with another:—

Because I said:—

A little while and ye behold me not, and again a little while and ye shall see me?

Verily, verily I say unto you—

Ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice:

Ye shall be grieved, but your grief shall be turned.

A woman as soon as she is about to bring forth—

Hath grief, because her hour hath come;

But as soon as she hath given birth to the child—

No longer remembereth she the anguish.

By reason of the joy, that a human being into the world hath been born.

And ye therefore, now indeed have grief;
But |again| will I see you,
And your heart shall rejoice,—
And |your joy| no one shall force from you.
23 And |in that day| shall ye request me |nothing|:
24 Verily, verily I say unto you—
<Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father>
He will give you |in my name|.
25 Until even now ye have asked nothing in my name:
26 Be asking, and ye shall receive,—
That |your joy| may be made full.
27 These things |in similitudes| have I spoken unto you:
28 There cometh an hour,
When |no longer in similitudes| will I speak unto you,
29 But |openly, concerning the Father| will I tell you.
30 <In that day>
|In my name| shall ye ask:
31 And I say not that |I| will request the Father for you;
32 For |the Father himself| dearly loveth you,
Because |ye| have dearly loved me,
33 And believed that |I| |from the Father| came forth:
34 I came forth out of the Father,
And have come into the world,—
|Again| I leave the world,
And go |unto the Father|.
35 His disciples say—
36 See! |now| openly art thou speaking,
And |not a single similitude| art thou using:
37 |Now| we know, that thou knowest all things,
And hast |no need| that one be questioning thee.
38 Hereby do we believe,
|That| |from God| thou comest forth.
39 Jesus answered them—
40 As yet |ye believe:
41 Lo! there cometh an hour, and hath come,
That ye should be scattered, |each| unto his own home;
And |me|, alone should leave;—
And yet I am not |alone|.
42 But |the Father| is |with me|.
43 These things have I spoken unto you,
44 That |in me| ye may have |peace|:
45 In the world| ye have |tribulation|;
But be taking courage,—
I| have overcome the world.

§ 23. Jesus prays for His Disciples.

17 |These things| spake Jesus, and |lifting up his eyes unto heaven| said:—
Father! The hour is come!
Glory thy Son,
That |the Son| may glorify |thee|.

2 Even as thou gavest him authority over all flesh,
That <as touching whatsoever thou hast given him>
He might give unto them |life age-abiding|.
3 And |this| is the age-abiding life,
That they get to know thee, |the only real God|,
And him whom thou didst send, |Jesus Christ|.
4 |I| glorified thee on the earth,
|The work| finishing, which thou hast given me that I should do.
5 And now I glorify me—|thou, Father|,
With thyself, with the glory which I had before the world's existence, |with thee|.
6 I manifested thy name, unto the men whom thou gavest me out of the world:
|Thine| they were,
And |to me| thou gavest them,
And |thy word| have they kept:
7 |Now| have they come to know,
That |all things, as many as thou gavest me| are |from thee|;
8 And |the declarations which thou gavest me| have I given them,
And |they| received them, and came to know in truth,
That |from thee| came I forth,—
And they believed
That |thou| didst send me forth.
9 |I| concerning them make request:
Not |concerning the world| do I make request,
But concerning them whom thou hast given me,
Because |thine| they are,—
And |all my possessions| are |thine|,
And |thine possessions| mine,
And I have been glorified in them.
10 And |no longer| am I in the world,
And |they| are |in the world|,—
And |I| |unto thee| am coming.

Holy Father!
Keep them in thy name which thou hast given me,
That they may be one, as |we|.
12 |When I was with them|
|I| kept them in thy name which thou hast given me,—
And I kept watch,
And none from among them went to destruction,—
Save the son of destruction,
That |the Scripture| might be fulfilled.
13 But |now| |unto thee| am I coming;
And |these things| am I speaking in the world,

* Is. lxvi. 14.  + Or: "question me as to nothing."
* Or: "foresight."  + Or: "Age-abiding."
* Or: "am.
1 Jn. v. 19.  + Or (WHE). "these."
* Or: "beside."  + Ver. 22.
* Chap. xvi. 15.
That they may have my own joy fulfilled in themselves.

14 "I," have given them thy word,
And [the world] hated them,
Because they are not of the world—
Even as [I] am not of the world.

15 I request not, that thou wouldst take them out of the world,
But that thou wouldst keep them out of the evil:
Of the world [they are not],
Even as [I] am not of the world.

17 Hallow them in the truth:
Thine own word is [truth].

18 <Even as thou didst send me forth into the world—
[I] also send them forth into the world;—
And [on their behalf] [I,]
[that they also] may have become hallowed in truth.

<Not however concerning these alone'> do I make request,
But [concerning them also who believe] through their word [on me];

21 That they [all] may be [one],—
Even as [thou] Father, in me,
And [I] in thee,—
That [they also] [in us] may be;—
That [the world] may believe that [thou] didst send me forth.

22 And [I] <the glory which thou hast given to me> have given to them,
That they may be one,
Even as [we are] [one],—

23 [I] in them' and [thou] in me';
That they may have been perfected into one,—
That the world may get to know,
That [thou] didst send me forth, and didst love them even as thou didst love [me].

24 Father!
<As touching that which thou hast given me> I desire—
That [where [I] am]
[they also] may be [with me],
That they may behold my own glory which thou hast given me,—
Because thou lovest me, before the foundation of the world.

26 Righteous Father!
And so [the world] came not to know thee;
But [I] came to know thee,
And [these] came to know
That [thou] didst send me forth:—

26 And I made known unto them thy name, and will make known,
That [the love wherewith thou lovedst me]
[In them] may be,
And [I] in them.

§ 24. Jesus arrested and taken before the High-priest.
Peter's Denial. Mt. xxvi. 47-75; Mk. xiv. 43-72; Lu. xxii. 47-71.

18 "Having said these' things a Jesus went out, with his disciples, across the winter torrent of the Kedron, b where was a garden,— into which he entered, [he] and his disciples.

2 Now [Judas also] who was delivering him up, knew' the place; because [of] had been gathered there, with his disciples. 3 [Judas] therefore <receiving the band, and officers [from among the High-priests [and [from among] the Pharisées]> cometh thither, with lights and torches and weapons. 4 [Jesus] therefore, [knowing all the things coming upon him] went forth, and saith unto them—

7 Whom seek ye?

5 They answered him—
Jesus, the Nazarene.
He saith unto them—
[I] am he.

Now Judas also, who was delivering him up, was standing with them. 6 <When, therefore, he said unto them [I am he] they went backwards, and fell to the ground.

7 Again therefore, he questioned them—
Whom seek ye?
And [they] said—Jesus, the Nazarene.

8 Jesus answered—
I told you [I am he] [If, then, ye seek me'] let these go their way:—

9 that the word might be fulfilled' which he had said—
<As touching them whom thou hast given me> I lost from among them, [not so much as one].

10 [Simon Peter, therefore, having a sword] drew it, and smote the High-priest's servant, and cut off his right ear.
Now the name of the servant was Malchus. 11 Jesus, therefore, said unto Peter—Thrust the sword into its sheath:—
"The cup which the Father hath given me shall I in anywise not drink it?"

12 [The band, therefore, and the captain, and the officers of the Jews] apprehended Jesus, a and bound him, 12 and led him unto Annas, first; for he was father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the High-priest of that year. 14 Now Caiaphas was he that gave counsel unto the Jews, that it was profitable for [one's man] to die in behalf of the people. 13 And Simon Peter b was following with Jesus, also another disciple. But [that disciple] was known unto the High-priest, and entered in, with Jesus, into the court of the High-priest; whereas [Peter] remained standing at the door outside. The other disciple, therefore, that was known of the High-priest [went out] and spake a Or ['WH]; "I," unem- "perfecting," the means; phatic.

unto the portress, and brought in Peter. 17 The female servant, therefore, the portress, saith unto Peter—

Art thou also from among the disciples of this man?

He saith—

I am not!

Now the servants and the officers were standing by, having made a coal fire because it was cold; and were warming themselves; and Peter also was with them, standing and warming himself.

11 The High-priest therefore questioned Jesus concerning his disciples, and concerning his teaching. 12 Jesus answered him—

I have spoken unto you in the temple, where all the Jews' gather together; and in secret spake nothing:

Why questionest thou me? question them who have heard, what I spake unto them.

See! these know what I said.

And when these things he had said, one of the officers who was standing by gave a smart blow to Jesus, saying—

Thus answeredst thou the High-priest?

13 Jesus answered him—

If with abuse I spake, bear witness of the abuse;

But if with respect, why smittest thou me?

14 Annas therefore sent him forth, bound, unto Caiphas the High-priest.

15 Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said, therefore, unto him—

Art thou also from among his disciples?

He denied, and said—

I am not!

16 Saith one from among the servants of the High-priest, being a kinsman of him whose ear Peter cut off,—

Did not I see thee in the garden with him?

17 Again therefore, Peter denied. And straightway, a cock crew.

§ 25. Jesus before Pilate. Mt. xxvii. 1; Mk. xv. 1; Lu. xxiii. 1.

So lead Jesus from Caiphas unto the judgment-hall. Now it was early; and they themselves entered not into the judgment-hall, that they might not be defiled, but might eat the passover. 19 Pilate therefore, went forth outside unto them, and saith—

What accusation bring ye against this man?

They answered and said unto him—

If this one had not been doing mischief, unto thee! had we not delivered him up.

Pilate therefore, said unto them—

Ye take him, and according to your law judge ye him.

The Jews said unto him—

Is it not lawful to kill anyone—that the word of Jesus might be fulfilled.

which he spake, signifying by what manner of death he was about to die.

Pilate, therefore, entered again into the judgment hall; and addressed Jesus, and said unto him—

Art thou the king of the Jews?

Jesus answered—

If of thyself art thou this thing saying; or did others tell thee concerning me?

Pilate answered—

Am I a Jew? Thine own nation, and the High-priests, delivered thee up unto me!

What hast thou done?

Jesus answered—

My kingdom is not of this world:

If of this world had been my kingdom mine own officers would have been striving, that I should not be delivered up unto the Jews:

But now my kingdom is not from hence.

Pilate, therefore, said unto him—

And yet thou art not a king?

Jesus answered—

Thou sayest, that a king I am—

For these have been born, and for these have come into the world, that I may bear witness unto the truth:

Every one who is of the truth hearkeneth unto my voice.

Pilate saith unto him—

What is truth?

And this sayest thou again, went he out to the Jews, and saith unto them—

I find in him not a single fault!

Howbeit ye have a custom, that I should release unto you one, during the passover—

Are ye minded, then, that I release unto you the king of the Jews?

So they cried aloud again, saying—

Not this man, but Barabbas!

Now Barabbas was a robber.

19 Then Pilate, therefore, took Jesus, and scourged him. And the soldiers plaiting a crown out of thorns, placed it upon his head, and a purple robe cast they about him; and kept coming unto him, and saying—

Joy to thee! O King of the Jews! and were giving unto him smart blows.

And Pilate went forth again outside, and saith unto them—

See! I lead him unto you outside, that ye may take knowledge, that no single fault do I find in him.

Jesus, therefore, came forth outside, wearing the thorn' crown, and the purple' mantle. And he saith unto them—

Lo! the Man!

When, therefore, the High-priests and the officers saw him they cried aloud, saying—

Crucify! Crucify! *

* Chap. xii. 38. Mt. xxvii. 15, 6; Or (WH): "Dost thou say that I am a king?" Mt. xxvii. 26; Mk. xvi. 17. Or (tr): " Thou sayest it, because I am a king."
Pilate saith unto them—

"If ye will take him, and crucify; for I find not in him a fault."

7 The Jews answered him—

"We have a law, and according to the law he ought to die, because he is a pretender, and a blasphemer." But Pilate gave him no answer. Therefore saith unto him—

"Unto me thou dost not speak? Knowest thou not, that [authority] have I to release thee, and [authority] have I to crucify thee?"

11 Jesus answered him—

"Thou knowest that I have not spoken of my own authority; but the chief priests and elders have spoken unto me."

12 For this cause Pilate began seeking to release him; but the Jews cried aloud saying—

"If this man be released, he will make himself the king's enemy."

13 Pilate therefore, having heard these words, led Jesus out, and sat down upon a raised seat, in a place called Pilate's Palace, and in Hebrew, Caiaphas. Now it was the preparation of the passover, and it was about the sixth hour. And he saith unto the Jews—

"See ye your king!"

15 They therefore cried aloud—

"Away! away! Crucify him!"

Pilate saith unto them—

"Your king shall I crucify?"

The high-priests answered—

"We have no king but Caesar!"

17 Then Pilate therefore delivered him up unto them, that he might be crucified.

They took possession, therefore, of Jesus. And with bearing for himself the cross he went forth unto the so-called Skull-place, which is named, in Hebrew, Golgotha; where him they crucified; and with him other two, on this side and on that, and in the midst of Jesus. And Pilate wrote a title also, and placed on the cross; and there was written—

Jesus, the Nazarene, the King of the Jews.

20 This title therefore, read many of the Jews, because near was the place to the city where Jesus was crucified; and it was written in Hebrew, in Latin, in Greek. The high-priests of the Jews, therefore, were saying unto Pilate—

Do not do writing the King of the Jews; but that he said, the King of the Jews, I am.

22 Pilate answered—

"What I have written, I have written!"

23 The soldiers therefore, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts unto each soldier; a part [also the tunic]. Howbeit, the tunic was without seam, from above, woven throughout. They said, therefore, one to another—

"Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be;—that the Scripture might be fulfilled—" They parted my garments amongst them, and for my vestment they cast lots. Ye see verily the soldiers these things did.

25 And there were standing by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary the Magdalene. "Jesus therefore, seeing his mother and the disciple whom he loved, saith unto his mother—

"O woman, see ye thy son!"

27 Afterwards he saith unto the disciple—

"See thy mother! And from that hour, the disciple took her unto his own home."

28 After this Jesus <knowing that all things were done> that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saith—

"I thirst!"

29 A vessel was standing, full of vinegar. <A sponge, therefore, full of the vinegar, put about his mouth> brought they unto his mouth. 30 When therefore he had received the vinegar> Jesus said—

"It is finished!"

and, bowing his head, delivered up his spirit.

31 The Jews therefore, <since it was a preparation>, that the bodies might not remain upon the cross during the Sabbath, for that Sabbath day was great; requested Pilate that their legs might be broken, and they be taken away.

32 The soldiers therefore, came; and of the first, indeed brake the legs, and of the other who was crucified with him; but coming unto Jesus, <when they saw that already he was dead> brake not his legs; but one of the soldiers <with a spear> pierced his side, and there came out, straightway, blood and water;

And he that hath seen hath borne witness; and genuine is his testimony, and he knoweth that he saith what is true, that ye also may believe.

For these things came to pass, that the Scripture might be fulfilled—

"[A bone thereof] shall not be bruised; and again a different Scripture saith—" They shall look unto him whom they pierced."
§ 27. The Burial. Mt. xxvii. 57-61; Mk. xv. 42-47; Lu. xxiii. 50-56.

36 But [after these things] Joseph from Arimathea was a disciple of Jesus, but having kept it secret for fear of the Jews> requested Pilate, that he might take away the body of Jesus; and Pilate gave permission. He came, therefore, and took away his body. 37 There came, moreover, Nicodemus also,—he that came unto him by night at the first,—bearing a roll of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds’ weight. 40 So they received the body of Jesus, and bound it in linen-bandages with the spices,—just as it is a custom with the Jews to prepare for burial.

41 Now there was, in the place where he was crucified,—a garden, and in the garden, an unused tomb, wherein no one had been laid. 42 So that by reason of the preparation of the Jews, because near was the tomb> laid they Jesus.

§ 28. The Resurrection. Jesus appears to his Disciples. Mt. xxviii. 1-10; Mk. xvi. 1-11; Lu. xxiv. 1-12.

20 But on the first day of the week, [Mary the Magdalene] cometh early, while it is yet dark, unto the tomb,—and beheld the stone, already taken away out of the tomb. 2 She ranneth, therefore, and cometh unto Simon Peter, and unto the other disciple whom Jesus dearly loved, and saith unto them—

They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 Peter, therefore, went out, and the other disciple,—and they were going unto the tomb; 4 and the two were running together, and the other disciple> outran Peter, and came first unto the tomb; 5 and stooping aside, beheldeth, lying, the linen-bandages, nevertheless he entered not. 6 So Simon Peter also cometh, following him, and entered into the tomb, and vieweth the linen-bandages lying,—and the napkin, which was upon his head, not with the linen-bandages lying, but apart, folded up into one place. 8 Then entered, therefore, the other disciple also, who had come first unto the tomb, and he saw and believed. 9 For [not yet] knew they the Scripture, that he must needs [from among the dead] arise. 10 The disciples, therefore, departed again, by themselves.

11 Howbeit [Mary] remained standing against the tomb, outside, weeping. So then [as she wept, she stooped aside into the tomb, 12 and beheldeth two messengers, in white garments, sitting, one at the head, and the other at the feet, where had been lying the body of Jesus. 13 And they> said unto her—

Woman! why weepest thou?

She saith unto them—

They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 These things saying she turned round, and seeth Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus. 15 Jesus saith unto her—

Woman! why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou?

She> supposing he was the gardener> saith unto him—

Sir! if thou hast borne him hence> tell me where thou hast laid him; and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her—

Mary!

She> turning saith unto him, in Hebrew—

Rabboni! which meaneth [Teacher].

17 Jesus saith unto her—

Be not detaining me, for not yet have I ascended unto the Father; But be going unto my disciples, and say unto them—

I am ascending unto my Father and your Father, and my God and your God.

18 Mary the Magdalene cometh, bringing tidings unto the disciples—

I have seen the Lord!

and that these things he had said unto her.

19 [It being late, therefore, on that day, the first of the week,—and [the doors] having been made fast where the disciples were, for fear of the Jews] Jesus came, and stood in the midst, and saith unto them—

Peace be unto you!

20 and [this] saying he pointed out both his hands and his side unto them. The disciples, therefore, rejoiced, seeing the Lord.

21 Jesus, therefore, said unto them [again]—

Peace be unto you!

[Just as [my Father] sent me forth>

I, also, send you’.]

22 And [this] saying, he breathed strongly, and saith unto them—

Receive ye Holy Spirit—

23 [Whosoever sins ye shall remit>

They are remitted unto them,]

24 [Whosoever ye shall retain>

They are retained.]

25 But [Thomas, one of the twelve, the one called Didymus] was not with them when Jesus came. 27 The other disciples, therefore, were saying unto him—

We have seen the Lord!

But [he] said unto them—

[Except I see | in his hands| the print of the nails, and press my finger into the print of the nails, and press my hand into his side> in nowise will I believe.]

26 And [eight days after> his disciples again> were within, and Thomas with them. Jesus cometh—the doors having been made fast—and stood in the midst, and said—

Peace be unto you!
Then saith he unto Thomas—
Reach thy finger hither, and see my hands, and reach thy hand, and press into my side, and become not disbelieving, but believing.

Thomas answered, and said unto him—
My Lord, and my God!

Jesus saith unto him—
Because thou hast seen me hast thou believed? [Happy] they that have not seen, and yet have believed.

Many other signs doubtless did Jesus in presence of the disciples, which are not written in this book; but these are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye may have life in his name.

§ 29. Manifestation at the Lake of Tiberias.

After these things Jesus manifested himself again unto the disciples, by the sea of Tiberias; and manifested himself again:

There were together, Simon Peter, and Thomas, who was called Didymus, and Nathaniel, who was from Cana of Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and [two other] of his disciples.

Simon Peter saith unto them—
I go fishing!
They say unto him—
We also go with thee!
They went out, and got up into the boat, and [during that] night they caught nothing.

But <morning by this time drawing on> Jesus stood upon the beach; [nevertheless] the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

Jesus, therefore saith unto them—
Children! perhaps ye have nothing to eat?
They answered him—
No.

And [he] said unto them—
Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and ye shall find.
They cast therefore, and [no longer] were they able to draw it, for the multitude of the fishes.

That disciple, therefore, whom Jesus loved, saith unto Peter—
It is the Lord!
Simon Peter therefore saith, hearing that it was the Lord, girded about him [his upper garment,]—for he was naked, and cast himself into the sea; but [the other disciples] came by the little boat,—for they were not farther from the land than about two hundred cubits off, dragging the net of fishes; So when they got out upon the land they beheld a coal fire lying, and fish lying over, and bread.

Jesus saith unto them—
Bring of the fish which ye caught just now.
Simon Peter therefore, went on board, and drew the net on to the land,—full of large fishes, a hundred and fifty-three; and [though they were so many] the net was not rent.

Jesus saith unto them—
Come! break your fast.

Not one of the disciples was venturing to ask him—
Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

Jesus cometh, and taketh the bread, and giveth unto them; and the fish [in like manner].

This already is the third time Jesus was manifested unto the disciples, after he was raised from among the dead.

§ 30. Peter restored to his Apostleship. Conclusion.

<When, therefore, they had broken their fast> Jesus saith unto Simon Peter—Simon, son of John! lovest thou me more than these?

He saith unto him—
Yea, Lord! [thou] knowest that I am fond of thee,

He saith unto him—
Be feeding my lambs.

He saith unto him—
Simon, son of John! [the third time]—
Art thou fond of me?

Peter was grieved, that he said unto him [the third time]—Art thou fond of me? and he said unto him—
Lord! [all things] thou knowest: thou perceivest that I am fond of thee.

Jesus saith unto him—
Be looking after my sheep.

He saith unto him—
Lord! I [this] saith, saith unto me—
Verily, verily I say unto thee—
When thou wast younger thou usedst to gird thyself, and to walk whither thou didst choose;
But when thou shalt become aged thou shalt stretch out thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and bear thee [whither thou dost not choose].

Now [this] he said, signifying by what manner of death he should glorify God. And having said this he saith unto him—
Be following me.

Peter, turning about, beheldeth the disciple whom Jesus loved, following,—who also reclined during the supper upon his breast, and said—Lord, who is it that is delivering thee up?

Peter, therefore, seeing [this], saith unto Jesus—
Lord! and [this] one, what?

Jesus saith unto him—

JOHN XXI. 23—25. [VII. 53; VIII. 1—11.] ACTS I. 1—10. 119

<If I will that [he, remain until I come> what is that to thee?
[Thou] be following me,”
23 This’ word, therefore, went forth unto the brethren, that [that disciple] should not die. Howbeit, Jesus did not tell him, he should not die; but <If I will that [he, remain until I come> what is that to thee?
24 This is the disciple who beareth witness concerning these things, and who hath written these things; and we know that [true] is [his witness].
25 Now there are many other things also which Jesus did, which, indeed, <if they were to be written one by one> not even the world itself; I suppose, would contain [the books which must be written].

A SECTION CONCERNING AN ADULTERESS.
23 And they went, each unto his own house; 8 but [Jesus] went unto the Mount of Olives.
2 And [early in the morning] again came he into the temple, [and all the people were coming unto him]; and, sitting down, he began to teach them.
3 And the scribes and the pharisees bring a woman, caught [in adultery]; and [setting her in the midst] they say unto him—

Teacher! this woman hath been caught in the very’ act’ of committing adultery!
5 Now [in the law, Moses] unto us gave command to stone [such as these]. What, then, dost thou say?*
6 [This] however, they were saying, by way of testing him,—that they might have whereof to accuse him]. But [Jesus] stooping down [with his finger] wrote in the ground. ? [When, however, they still continued questioning him]—he lifted himself up and said [unto them]—
7 [Helo of you] that is without sin] let him first cast at her a stone; and [again’ stooping down] he wrote in the ground.
8 And [they who heard] began to go out, one by one, from the elders,—and he was left [alone]; [the woman also being in the midst].
9 And lifting himself up, Jesus said unto her—Woman, where are they? hath [no one] condemned thee?
10 And [she] said—No one, Sir! And Jesus said—Neither do I condemn thee,—be going thy way:
Henceforth be sinning [no more].]
* Or add (WH): “concerning her.”

ACTS OF APOSTLES.

§ 1. The Prologue: Jesus appears unto his Disciples, gives them charge, and ascends.

1 The first* narrative* indeed, made I, concerning all things, O Theophilus, which Jesus [began] both to do and teach,—until the day when <having given command unto the apostles, whom [through Holy Spirit] he had chosen> he was taken up; 3 unto whom he also presented himself alive, 3 after he had suffered, by many sure tokens, [throughout forty days] making himself visible unto them, and speaking the things concerning the kingdom of God.* 4 And [being in company with them] he charged them, from Jerusalem 4 not to absent themselves, but—

To abide around the promise of the Father which ye have heard of me,

Because [John] indeed, immersed with water;

But [ye, in Holy Spirit] shall be immersed,—* After not’ many’ or these days.

6 They therefore, having come together, began to question him, saying—Lord! art thou [at this time] duly establishing the kingdom unto Israel?
7 He said unto them—It is [not yours] to get to know times or seasons which [the Father] hath put in his own authority;

But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit cometh upon you, and ye shall be my witnesses, both in Jerusalem and [in] all Judaea and Samaria, and as far as the uttermost part of the land.*

9 And having said these things [as they were beholding] he was lifted up, and a cloud caught him away from their eyes.* 10 And <while they were looking steadfastly into heaven> then lo! [two men] had taken their stand beside them, in white garments,— who also said—

Men of Galilee! why stand ye looking into heaven!?

["This Jesus, who hath been taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye yourselves have gazed upon him going into heaven."]

§ 2. The Disciples return to Jerusalem.

["Then they returned to Jerusalem, from a mountain called Olivet, which is nigh unto Jerusalem, a Sabbath day's journey."]

["And when they had entered, into the upper-story, went they up, where remained behind—both Peter and John and James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alphaeus and Simon the zealot, and Judas the son of James. [These all] were giving constant attention, with one accord, unto the prayer, with [certain] women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren."]

§ 3. Speech of Peter, and Choice of Matthias.

["And in these days Peter, standing up in the midst of the brethren, said,— and there was a multitude of names, of one accord, about a hundred and twenty,—

Brethren! It was [needful] for the Scripture [to be fulfilled] which the Holy Spirit spake beforehand, through the mouth of David, concerning Judas,—who became guide unto them who apprehended Jesus; for that he had come to be reckoned among us, and obtained the lot of this ministry.—

"This man therefore had possessed himself of a field out of the reward of unrighteousness,—and [falling headlong] burst asunder in the midst, and forth [gushed] all his bowels; and it became [known] unto all— who were dwelling in Jerusalem, so that that field was called, in their language, Akeldama, that is, Field of Blood.—

For it is written in the [Book of Psalms:

Let his encampment become desolate, And let there be none to dwell therein! 14

And—

[His overseership let a different man take! 15

It is [needful] then that <of the men who companied with us> during all the time in which the Lord Jesus came in and went out over us, 16 beginning from the immersion by John until the day when he was taken up from us> that [as] witness of his resurrection, along with us, should [one of these] become.

23 And they appointed two,—Joseph, called Barabbas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And praying, they said—

Thou Lord! observer of the hearts of all men! Shew forth whom thou hast chosen,—

[Of these two] [one]—

25 To take the place of this ministry and apostleship,

From which Judas went aside, to go his way unto his own place.

26 And they gave lots for them; and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

§ 4. The Day of Pentecost.

2 And [when the day of pentecost was filling up] the [number of days] they were all together with one intent;— 3 when there came, suddenly, out of heaven, a sound, just as of a mighty rushing wind,—and it filled all the house where they were sitting; 4 and there appeared unto them—parting asunder—tongues, like as of fire, and it sat upon each one of them; 5 and they were all filled with Holy Spirit, and began to be speaking with other kinds of tongues, just as [the Spirit] was giving unto them to be sounding forth.

6 Now there were in Jerusalem, sojourning Jews, reverent men, from every nation, who were under heaven; 7 and [this sound occurring] the throng came together, and was thrown into confusion, because each one severally heard in his own language, them who were speaking; 8 yea, they were beside themselves, and did marvel, saying—

Lo! are not all these who are speaking—

[Galileans]?

6 How then do we hear, each one in our own language in which we were born? 7 <Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and those dwelling in Mesopotamia, Judea also and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, <Phrygia also and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of the Libya that is towards Cyrene, and the sojourning Jews,—both Jews and proselytes, Creteans and Arabians: we do hear them speaking, in our own tongues, the magnificient things of God.

But they were all beside themselves, and were utterly at a loss, saying [one to another]—

What doth this please to be?

12 while [others] in mockery were saying—

[With sweet wine] are they drunken!

14 But [taking his stand] Peter, with the eleven lifted up his voice, and sounded out unto them—

Ye men of Judea, and all ye who are sojourning in Jerusalem!

Let [this] unto you be [known], And give ear unto my declarations;—

13 For not, as [ye] suppose, are these men drunken, for it is the third hour of the day;—

16 But [this] is that which hath been spoken through the prophet Joel—

And it shall be, in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh;

And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, And your young men shall see visions, And your elders shall dream,—

ACTS II. 18—47; III. 1—3.

18 And even upon my men-servants and upon my maid-servants.
In those days I will pour out of my Spirit, And they shall prophesy;
And I will set forth wonders in the heavens above,
And signs upon the earth beneath,—
Blood, and fire, and vapour of smoke:
The sun shall be turned into darkness,
And the moon into blood,—
Before the coming of the day of the Lord, the great and manifest day;
And it shall be—
Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.\(^a\)

22 Ye men of Israel! hear these words:—
Jesus the Nazarene, a man pointed out in God unto you by mighty works and wonders and signs, which God did through him in your midst, just as ye yourselves know—
The same, by the marked-out counsel and foreknowledge of God given up:—through the hands of lawless men suspending ye alew.\(^b\)
Whom God raised up, loosing the pangs of death, inasmuch as it was not possible for him to continue held fast by it.\(^c\)
For saith concerning him—
I foresaw the Lord, before me, continually,
Because he is on my right hand, that I may not be shaken;
For this reason was my heart made glad,
And my tongue exulted,—
Yea further, even my flesh shall encamp on hope:
Because thou wilt not abandon my soul unto hades,
Neither wilt thou give thy angels charge of my life.
Thou wilt make me full of gladness with thy countenance.\(^b\)

Brethren! it is allowable to say with freedom of speech unto you, concerning the patriarch David,—That he both died, and was buried, and [his tomb] is among us until this day.

26 Being then a prophet, and knowing that with an oath God had sworn unto him of the fruit of his loins, to set on his throne;
with foresight spake he concerning the resurrection of the Christ—
That neither was he abandoned unto hades,
Nor did his flesh see corruption.\(^b\)

27 The same Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we are witnesses!
By the right hand of God therefore, having been exalted.
Also the promise of the Holy Spirit, having received from the Father. He hath poured out this which yourselves do see and hear.

31 For [David] hath not ascended\(^a\) into the heavens; but he saith himself—
Said the Lord unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand,
Until I make thy footstool.\(^b\)

32 Assuredly then, let all the house of Israel know:
That both Lord and Christ hath God made him,
Even the same Jesus whom ye crucified!
And when they heard this, they were pricked to the heart, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles—
What are we to do, brethren?\(^c\)
And Peter [said] unto them—Repent ye,
And let each one of you be immersed, in the name of Jesus Christ, into the remission of your sins,—
And ye shall receive the free-gift of the Holy Spirit;
For unto you I am the promise,
And unto your children,—
And unto all them who are afar off:
As many soever as the Lord our God shall call unto him.\(^c\)

And with many different words, bare he full witness, and went on exhorting them saying—
Be saved from this perverse generation!
They, therefore, who welcomed his word were immersed; and there were added, on that day, about three thousand souls.\(^b\)
And they went on to give constant attention—
Unto the teaching of the apostles,
And unto the fellowship,
Unto the breaking of bread,
And unto the prayers.
And there came, on every soul, [fear,\(^d\) and many wonders and signs], through means of the apostles were coming to pass.\(^d\)
And all who believed, [with one accord] began to hold all things common; and [their possessions and goods] were they selling and distributing them unto all [in so far as anyone had need].\(^d\)
And [daily giving attendance with one intent in the temple, and [at home] breaking bread] they were partaking of food with exultation and singleness of heart;\(^d\) praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord was adding them who were being saved [daily] together.

§ 5. The Lame Man Healed.

3 Now [Peter and John] were going up into the temple, for the hour of prayer—the ninth; and a certain man who had been lame from his mother's womb was being carried,—whom they used to lay daily at the door of the temple—the [door] called Beautiful, that he might ask alms of them who were entering into the temple:
who [seeing Peter and John about to enter into the temple>, was requesting to receive an alms. But Peter looking steadfastly at him—with John—said:

Look on us!

And [he] gave heed unto them, expecting to receive something from them. But Peter said—

"Silver and gold I have none, but what I have I will give you."

In the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene>

Walk:

And laying hold of him by the right hand, he raised him up; and instantly were his feet and ankles strengthened; and leaping forward he stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping, and praising God. And all the people saw him, walking and praising God; and they began to recognise him, that [the same] who [for the alms] used to sit at the Beautiful Gate of the temple—; and they were filled with amazement at what had happened unto him. And he held fast Peter and John— all the people ran together unto them, in the portico which was called Solomon's,—greatly amazed. And Peter, seeing it, made answer unto the people:

Ye men of Israel! Why marvel ye at this man? Or why consider ye these things? Why are ye intently looking, as though by our own power or godliness we had made him walk?

Hath glorified his servant Jesus— Whom [ye] indeed, delivered up and denied to Pilate's face.

When he had adjured him to deny him—; But ye denied the Holy and Righteous One,

And claimed that was a murderer, to be granted you;

But the Prince of Life ye slew— Whom [God] raised from among the dead, whereof [we] are witnesses.

And by the faith of his name Unto this man whom ye see and know hath his name given strength—

Yea, the faith which is through him; hath given unto him this perfect soundness, over against you all!

And now your brethren, I know that by way of ignorance ye acted,—

Just as even your rulers.

Howbeit [God]:—

<what things he had before declared, through the mouth of all the prophets, for his Christ to suffer:—

—did thus fulfill!

Repent ye, therefore, and turn,—unto the blotting out of your sins; To the end that, in that case, there may come seasons of refreshing from the face of the Lord, And he may send forth him who had been fore-appointed for you—

[Christ Jesus]:

Unto whom, indeed, heaven must needs give welcome, until the times of the due establishment of all things, of which God hath spoken through the mouth of his holy age-past prophets.

Moses, indeed, said—

"A prophet? [unto you] shall the Lord raise up, from among your brethren, like unto me.

Unto him, shall ye hearken, respecting all things, whatsoever he shall speak unto you; And it shall be—

Every soul, whatsoever, which shall not hearken unto that prophet?, Shall be utterly destroyed from among the people.

But, indeed [all the prophets]:—

<From Samuel and those following after, as many as have spoken>

Have even announced these days. Ye are the sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God covenanted unto your fathers, saying unto Abraham—

And in thy seed shall be blessed. All the families of the ground:

Unto you, first— God.

Having raised up his Servant— Hath sent him forth, ready to bless you. When ye are turning away, each one, from your wickednesses.

§ 6. The Arrest of Peter and John.

But [as they were speaking] unto the people of the High-priests and the Captain of the temple and the Sadducees, came upon them, being tired out because of their teaching the people, and announcing [in Jesus] the resurrection from among the dead; and they thrust on them their hands, and put them in custody for the morrow, for it was evening [already].

Howbeit [to many of them that heard the word] believed; and the number of the men became about five thousand.

And it came to pass, upon the morrow, that there were gathered together of them, the rulers and the elders and the scribes, in Jerusalem; also Annas, the high-priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of high-priestly descent; and setting them in the midst they began to enquire—

In what manner of power, or in what manner of name; did ye [all] do this?

Then Peter, filled with Holy Spirit, said unto them—

Ye rulers of the people, and elders!

If [we] this day, are to be examined for doing good to a sick man,—

In whom [this] man hath been made well;

Deut. xxviii. 15, 18, 19; cp. Gen. xvii. 3; xxii. 18. Lev. xxiii. 29. Or [WH]: "our." 4 Or [WH]: "the priests."
ACTS IV. 10—37: V. 1—3.

10 Be it known unto you all, and unto all the people of Israel:
That in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, whom ye crucified,
Whom God raised from among the dead,
In him doth this man stand by, in your presence, whole.

11 This is the stone, set at nought by you the builders,
Which became the head of the corner;
And there is no other name under heaven, which hath been set forth among men,
In which we must needs be saved.

12 And looking at Peter's boldness of speech, and John's, and having discovered that they were unlettered and obscure men: they began to marvel, recognizing them also, that they had been with Jesus;

13 Howbeit, ordering them to go forth outside the high-council, they began to confer one with another, saying—
What are we to do with these men?
For, indeed, <that a notable sign hath come to pass through their means; unto all> who are dwelling in Jerusalem is manifest, and we cannot deny [it]!

17 Nevertheless <lest it further spread abroad among the people> let us charge them with threats, to be no more speaking upon this name. <to any soul of man.>

18 And calling them, they gave them the sweeping charge,—Not to be sounding aloud nor even to be teaching upon the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answering said unto them—
<Whether it be right> in presence of God
 Unto you to be hearkening rather than unto God? Judge!

20 For <we cannot> but speaking the things which we have seen and heard.

21 [They] however, further charging them with threats, let them go, finding nothing as to how they might chastise them on account of the people; because all were glorifying God that had come to pass;—

§ 7. The Apostles Triumphant.

22 But when they had been let go they came unto their own friends, and told as many things as unto them: the High-priests and Elders had said. And [they], having heard, with one accord uplifted a voice unto God, and said—
O Sovereign! art he that made the heaven, and the earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein:

23 Who <by our father, through means of the Holy Spirit, even by the mouth of David thy servant> said—
Unto what end did nations rage,
And peoples busy themselves with empty things?

25 The kings of the earth stationed themselves,
And the rulers were gathered together,
with one intent,
Against the Lord,
And against his Christ.

27 For they were gathered together, of a truth, in this city, against thy holy servant Jesus, whom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with them of the nations, and peoples of Israel;—
to do whatsoever thy hand and thy counsel marked out beforehand to come to pass.

<As to the present things>, then, O Lord,—
Look upon their threats, and grant unto thy servants with all freedom of utterance to be speaking thy word, by stretching forth thy hand for healing, and by the coming to pass of both signs and wonders through the name of thy holy servant Jesus.

31 And when they had made supplication the place was shaken in which they were gathered together, and they were filled, one and all, with the Holy Spirit, and began speaking the word of God with freedom of utterance.

32 And the throng of them that believed had one heart and soul, and not so much as one was saying that sought of his goods was his own, but they had all things common. And with great power were the apostles giving forth their witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus; great favour also was upon them all.

33 For there was not so much as anyone lacking among them; for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the money, and laid it at the feet of the Apostles, while on the other hand they were distributing unto each one, in so far as any one had need.

34 And Joseph, who had been named Barnabas, by the Apostles, which is to be translated Son of Exhortation, a Levite, a Cyprian by nation> having a field sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the feet of the Apostles.

§ 8. Ananias and Sapphira.

5 But  sold a possession, and kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it; and bringing a certain part at the feet of the Apostles, he laid it. But Peter said—

Ananias! wherefore did Satan fill thy heart, that thou shouldst deal falsely with the Exo. xx. 11; Ps. cxlv. 6. * Or: "Anointed One." Ps. ii. 1, 2.

Holy Spirit, and keep back part of the price of the field?

4 [While it remained] was it not [as thine own; it remained?] and [when sold; was it not [in thine own' authority] that it still continued? Why was it that thou didst contrive in thy heart this deed?

Thou hast not dealt falsely [with men] but [with God].

5 And [as Ananias heard these words] he fell, and expired. And there came great fear upon all' that heard; [but the young men [rising up] wrapped him about, and, bearing him forth, buried him. 7 <And it came to pass, after about three' hours' interval> that his wife [not knowing what had happened] came in. 8 And Peter began to say unto her—

Tell me! was it [for so much] ye gave up [the field]?

And [she] said—

Yes! for so much.

9 And [Peter] [said] unto her—

Why was it agreed [by you] to put to the proof the Spirit of the Lord? Lo! [the feet of them that have buried thy husband] are at the door, and they shall bring thee forth.

10 And she fell instantly at his feet, and expired. And the young men [coming in] found her dead; and, bearing her forth, they buried her with her husband. 11 And there came great fear upon the whole' assembly, and upon all' them that heard these things.

12 And [through the hands of the Apostles] were coming to pass many signs and wonders among the people; and they were all with one accord in the portico of Solomon;—howbeit [of the rest] [no one] durst join himself unto them,—nevertheless the people continued to magnify them; 14 and [the more] were being added [when they believed in the Lord] through both of men and women;—15 so that [even into the broad-ways] were they bringing forth the sick, and laying them on small couches and beds, in order that [if Peter were coming along] [even perchance his shadow] might overshadow some one of them. 16 Moreover even the throng of the cities all round Jerusalem was coming together, bearing sick folk, and such as were harassed by impure spirits,—[who] indeed, were being cured [one and all].

§ 10. The Authorities, foiled, are advised by Gamaliel.

17 But the High-priest [arising], and all' who were with him,—being the sect of the Sadducees,—were filled with jealousy, and thrust their hands upon the Apostles, and put them in a public ward. 19 But [a] messenger of the Lord [by night] opened the doors of the prison; and [leading them out] said—

Be going your way, and [taking your stand]

be speaking, in the temple, unto the people, all' the declarations of this Life.

21 Now [when they heard this] they entered, under the dawn, into the temple, and began teaching. And the High-priest and they who were with him [arriving] called together the high-council, and all' the senate of the sons of Israel; and sent off unto the prison, to have them brought.

22 And [the officers who came to the place] found them not in the prison; and, returning, brought tidings, 25 saying—

'The prison' found we locked with all' safety, and the keepers standing at the doors; but [when we had opened the prison] [inside] found we no one.

24 Now [when both the captain of the temple and the High-priests heard these words] they were utterly at a loss concerning them—what perhaps this might come to. 25 But some one [entering] brought tidings unto them—

Lo! [the men whom ye put in the prison] are in the temple, standing, and teaching the people.

26 Then [the captain with the officers] departing brought them—not with violence,—for they were afraid of the people, lest they should be stoned; 27 but, leading them in, set them in the high-council. And the High-priest questioned them, 28 saying—

[Strictly] did we charge you not to be teaching upon this name; and lo! ye have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and are minded to bring down upon us' [the blood of this man].

29 But Peter and the Apostles [answering] said—

It is needful [to be yielding obedience] unto God' [rather than unto men]:—

30 [The God of our fathers] hath raised up Jesus,—whom [ye] got into your hands, [suspending him upon a tree];—

31 [Him, as Prince, leader and Saviour] hath God exalted unto his right hand,—to give repentance unto Israel, and remission of sins.

32 And [we] are witnesses of these things,—also the Holy Spirit, which God hath given unto them who are yielding obedience unto him.

33 And [they, when they heard] this, were cut to the heart, and were making up their minds to slay them. 34 But a certain man, rising up in the high-council, by name Gamaliel, a law-teacher honoured by all' the people, gave orders to put the men [outside, for a little].—35 and said unto them—

Men of Israel!

Be taking heed unto yourselves, what ye are about to inflict [upon these men].

36 For [before these' days] there rose up one Theudas, affirming [himself] to be somebody,—unto whom was inclined a number of men, about four hundred; who was slain, and [all as many as had been trusting in him] were disbanded, and came to nothing.

37 [After him] rose up Judas the Galilean, in the days of the enrolling, and drew a people into revolt after him; and [they] perished, and [all, as many as had trusted in him] were scattered.

20 [Now, therefore] I say unto you—Stand aloof from these men, and let them alone; because [if of men] be this project or this work—it will be overthrown,—20 but if it is [of God] ye will not be able to overthrow them; lest once [even fighters against God] ye be found.

And they were persuaded by him; and [calling unto them] the Apostles; they [with beating] charged them not to be speaking upon the name of Jesus; and let them go.

31 [They], therefore, went rejoicing from the presence of the high-council; in that they had been accounted worthy [in behalf of The Name] to suffer dishonour. 32 And [every] day in the temple, and at home] they ceased not to be teaching, and telling the good news as to the Anointed Jesus.

§ 11. Murrmuring among the Disciples: Seven chosen to minister.

6 But [in these days] [the discples] [multiplying:] there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, in that [their widows] were being overlooked in the daily ministry.

2 And the Twelve, calling near the throng of the disciples, said—

It doth not seem [right] that [we] forsaking the word of God, should be ministering unto tables.

3 But look out for yourselves, brethren, seven men from among you, who can be well-attested, full of Spirit and wisdom,—whom we will appoint over this need;

4 But [we] unto prayer and unto the ministry of the word] will give constant attention.

5 And the word [was pleasing] in the sight of all the throng; and they selected Stephen, a man full of faith and Holy Spirit, and Philip and Prochorus and Nicanor and Timon and Parmenas and Nicholas, a proselyte of Antioch; 6 whom they set before the Apostles, and [praying] they laid upon them their hands. 7 And [the word of God] went on growing, and the number of the disciples in Jerusalem continued to multiply [exceedingly]; a great multitude of the priests also] were becoming obedient unto the faith.

§ 12. Stephen stirs up Opposition.

8 Now [Stephen] full of favour and power began to do great wonders and signs among the people. 9 But there rose up certain of those out of the synagogue which is called [the synagogue] of them of Libertinum and Cyrene and Alexandria, and certain of them from Cilicia and Asia,—disputing with Stephen; 10 and they could not withstand the wisdom and the Spirit with which he was speaking. 11 [Then] they set on men who were saying—

We have heard him speaking profane things against Moses and God.

12 And they stirred up the people and the elders and the scribes; and [coming upon him] they caught him away, and led him into the high-council. 13 And they set up false witnesses, who said—

[This man] ceaseth not speaking against this holy place and the law; 14 for we have heard him saying—

[This Jesus the Nazarene] will overthrow this place, and will change the customs which [Moses] delivered unto us.

15 And [looking steadfastly at him] all] they who were sitting in the high-council saw his face, as if the face of a messenger.

7 And the High-priest said—

Are these things [so]?

8 And [he] said—

Brethren and fathers, hearken! 9 The God of Glory appeared unto our father Abraham, while he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Haran, and said unto him—

Get thee forth, out of thy land, and from among thy kindred, and come unto the land which I will point out. 4

10 And [coming forth out of the land of the Chaldeans] he dwelt in Haran; and [from thence, when his father was dead] he removed him into this land, in which [ye] now dwell; and gave him no inheritance therein, [not even a place to set his foot on]; 11 and yet promised to give it unto him in possession, and unto his seed after him, [when as yet he had not a child]. 12 But God spake thus—

His seed shall be a sojourner in a foreign land, and they shall bring it into bondage, and ill-treat it four hundred years; and the nation unto which they shall be in bondage will [I] judge—said God;

and [after these things] shall they come forth, and render divine service unto me, in this place. 1

8 And he gave unto him a covenant of circumcision; and [thus] he begat Isaac, and circumcised him on the eighth day, and Isaac, Jacob, and Jacob, the twelve patriarchs.

9 And [the patriarchs] being jealous of Joseph gave him up into Egypt; and [God] was with him, 3 and rescued him out of all his tribulations, and gave him favour and wisdom before Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he... appointed him governor over Egypt and all his house. 11 And there came a famine upon all Egypt and Canaan, and great tribulation, and [our fathers] could not find pasture. 12 But Jacob, hearing there was corn in Egypt, sent off our fathers [first]; and [the second time] Joseph was made known unto his brethren, and [the race of Joseph] was made manifest unto Pharaoh. 13 And Joseph, sending forth, called for Jacob his father, and all the kindred, consisting of seventy-five souls; 14 and Jacob went down into Egypt. And he died, [he] and our fathers; 15 and were brought over into Shechem, and laid in the tomb which Abraham had purchased, for a price of silver, of the sons of Hamor in Shechem.

Now just as the time of the promise was drawing near wherein God had agreed with Abraham > the people grew, and were multiplied in Egypt, 18 until there arose another sort of king over Egypt, who had not known Joseph. 19 || The same || dealing craftily with our race || ill-treated our fathers, so as to cause their babes to be exposed, to the end they might not be suffered to live. 20 In which season || Moses || was born, and was exceeding goodly. 21 who was nourished up three months in the house of his father; 22 but, when he was exposed, the daughter of Pharaoh rescued him, and nourished him for herself as a son. 23 And so Moses was trained in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in his words and works. 24 And when there was being fulfilled unto him a period of forty years it came up on his heart, to look after his brethren the sons of Israel and seeing one being wronged, he defended him, and avenged him that was getting worn out, || smiting the Egyptian; 25 But he supposed his brethren would understand that || God || through his hand would give them deliverance; whereas they understood not. 26 On the following day also, when he appeared unto them, as they were contending, and would have reconciled them in peace, saying—
Men! ye are || brothers! Wherefore wrong ye one another? 27 But || he that was wrongdoing his neighbour|| thrust him away, saying—
Who hath appointed thee to be ruler and judge over us? 28 Art thou || wishing || to kill me || in the same way thou didst kill yesterday, || the Egyptian? 29 And Moses || fled || at this saying, and became a sojourner in the land of Midian, where he begat two sons. 30 And <when forty years were fulfilled> there appeared unto him || in the desert of Mount Sinai || a messenger, in a flame of fire, in a bush. 31 And || Moses || seeing it marvelled at the sight; and || as he was going near to observe || there came a voice of the Lord—

|| I am the God of thy fathers. The God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob. 32 And Moses becoming || terrified || durst not observe. 33 And the Lord said unto him—
Loose the sandals of thy feet; For the place whereon thou art standing is hallowed ground. 4 I have || indeed seen || the ill-treatment of my people that is in Egypt, And unto their groaning || have I hearkened. And have come down to rescue them. [Now] therefore, come! I will send thee into Egypt. 35 <The same> Moses whom they had refused, saying—
Who hath appointed thee to be ruler and judge? 36 The same || both as ruler and redeemer || did God send || by the hand of the messenger who had appeared unto him in the bush: 37 The same || let them forth, || doing wonders and signs in Egypt, and in the Red Sea, and in the desert forty years: 38 The same || is the Moses that said unto the sons of Israel—
A prophet, unto you || will God raise up from among your brethren, like unto me! 39 The same || is he that came to be in the assembly in the desert, with the messenger who was speaking with him in Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, [the] who welcomed living utterances, to give unto us: 40 Unto whom || our fathers || would not become obedient, but thrust him away, and turned in their hearts unto Egypt, saying unto Aaron—
Make us gods who shall go before us; For <as for this Moses who brought us forth out of Egypt> We know not what hath befallen him! 41 And so they fell to self-making in those days, And offered sacrifice unto the idol. And rejoiced in the works of their hands. 42 But God || turned || and delivered them up to be doing divine service unto the host of heaven,—

Just as it is written in a book of the prophets—
Victims and sacrifices did ye offer unto me,
ACTS VII. 43—60; VIII. 1—17.

43 And they stoned Stephen, as he was invoking and saying—
   Lord Jesus! give welcome unto my spirit.
   And [kneeling down] he cried out with a loud voice—
   Lord! do not charge against them [this sin].
   And [having said this] he fell asleep.

8 And [Saul] was taking pleasure with them in his death. Moreover there arose, in that day, a great persecution against the assembly which was in Jerusalem; [And] [all] were scattered abroad throughout the countries of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles. Howbeit reverent men assisted at the burial of Stephen, and made great lamentation over him.

3 But [Saul] went on to lay waste the assembly, [along the houses] going in, and [dragging off both men and women] was delivering them up into prison.

§ 15. Philip preaches in Samaria.

4 [They, indeed, therefore, who were scattered abroad] passed through, telling the good news of the word; [and] [Philip] [going down unto the city of Samaria] proclaimed unto them the Christ. [And] the multitudes began to give heed unto the things that were being spoken by Philip, with one accord, when they heard him, and saw the signs which he was working. For [from many who had impure spirits] [shouting with a loud voice] they were going out, and [many that were paralysed and lame] were cured. [And there came to be great joy in that city.]

9 But [a certain man named Simon] was already in the city, practising magical arts, and astonishing the nation of Samaria,—saying that himself was someone great: [unto whom all were giving heed, from small even to great, saying—
   [This] is the Power of God, which is called Great.

11 And they were giving heed to him, because that [for a considerable time] [with his magical arts] he had astonished them. [But when they believed Philip telling the good news concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ] they proceeded to be immersed, both men and women. [And Simon himself also] believed; and [having been immersed] was in constant attendance on Philip, and [beholding signs and great works of power coming to pass] was astonished.

14 And the Apostles who were in Jerusalem, [hearing] that Samaria had received the word of God, sent out unto them Peter and John; who, indeed, going down, prayed for them, that they might receive Holy Spirit; [for not yet] had it [upon any one of them] fallen, but [only, to begin with] they had been immersed into the name of the Lord Jesus. [Then] proceeded they to lay their hands upon them, and they were receiving Holy Spirit.

18 But Simon <seeing that> through means of the laying on of the hands of the Apostles| the Spirit was being given| offered unto them money,
19 saying—
Give unto me also| this authority,—
In order that <on whomsoever I may lay my hands|> he may receive Holy Spirit.
20 And |Peter| said unto him—
<Thy silver| with thee|> go to destruction!
Because ||the free-gift of God|| thou didst suppose could |with money| be obtained!
21 Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter;
For ||thy heart| is not upright before God.a
22 Repent, therefore| from this thy baseness,
And entreat of the Lord—
Whether |after all| the purpose of thy heart
shall be forgiven thee;
23 For I see that thou servest as
A gall-root of bitterness,
And a bond of unrighteousness.b
24 And Simon |answering| said—
Entreat ye, in my behalf, unto the Lord;
That |nothing| may come upon me,
Of the things whereof ye have spoken!
25 ||They, therefore, ||having fully borne witness, and spoken the word of the Lord| began their return unto Jerusalem, and |unto many villages of the Samaritans| were they telling the glad tidings.

§ 16. The Conversion of an Ethiopian Eunuch.
26 And ||a messenger| of the Lord| spake unto Philip, saying—
Arise, and be journeying along southward,
unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, |the same| is desert.
27 And, arising, he journeyed. And lo!  who had come to worship in Jerusalem; 28 and was returning, and |sitting in his chariot| and was reading the prophet Isaiah. 29 And the Spirit said unto Philip—
Go near, and join thyself unto this chariot!
30 And |running near| Philip heard him reading Isaiah the prophet, and said—
Dost thou then, understand what thou art reading?
31 And |he| said—
How indeed should I be able—unless someone shall guide me!
And he called upon Philip, to come up and sit with him.
32 Now ||the passage of Scripture which he was reading| was this:—
As a sheep unto slaughter was he led,
And <as a lamb, before him that sheareth it, is dumb>
||So he openeth not his mouth.
33 ||In his humiliation|| his judgment was taken away,—
||His generation|| who shall describe?
Because ||his life|| is taken away from the earth.4

34 And the eunuch |making answer| unto Philip, said—
I pray thee! ||Of whom| is the prophet saying this?
35 And Philip <opening his mouth, and beginning from this scripture| told him the glad tidings of Jesus.
36 And <as they were journeying along the way| they came unto a certain water,—
and the eunuch saith—
Lo! water!
What doth hinder my being immersed? [7]
37 And he commanded the chariot to stand still;
and they went down, both, into the water, ||both Philip and the eunuch|,—and he immersed him.
38 But |when they came up out of the water| ||the Spirit of the Lord| caught away Philip, and |the eunuch| saw him no more; for b he was going on his way rejoicing.
39 Now |Philip| was found at Azotus; and |passing through| he was telling the glad tidings unto all the cities, until he came unto Cesaræa.

9 But ||Saul| <yet breathing| threatening and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord|> going unto the High-priest| asked from him letters for Damascus, unto the synagogue; to the end that <if he should find |any| who were of The Way, whether men or women| he might bring them |bound| unto Jerusalem. 3 But ||as he was journeying| it came to pass that he was drawing near unto Damascus, and suddenly thare flashed around him a light out of heaven; 4 and ||falling unto the earth| he heard a voice saying unto him—
Saul! Saul! why ||me| art thou persecuting?
3 And he said—
Who art thou, Lord?
And |he| [said]—
||I am Jesus, whom thou| art persecuting;
6 But rise up, and enter into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do.
7 But ||the men who were accompanying him| stood speechless,—hearing, indeed, the voice,4 but beholding ||no one| one. 8 And Saul arose from the earth, and |his eyes being opened| he could see ||nothing|; and |taking him by the hand| they led him into Damascus,—9 and he was three days without seeing, and did neither eat nor drink. 10 Now there was a certain disciple in Damascus, by name Ananias; and |the Lord| said unto him in a vision—
Ananias:
and |he| said—
Lo! ||I am here| Lord!
11 And the Lord [said] unto him—
Rise! go into the street which is called Straight, and seek |in the house of Judas| one Saul, by name, of Tarsus.

---

For lo! he is praying,—and hath seen a man [in a vision]. Ananias by name, coming in and laying on him his hands, to the intent he should see.

And Ananias answered—

Lord! I have heard from many, concerning this man,—how many evil things, unto thy saints he hath done, in Jerusalem;

And here he hath authority from the High-priests, to bind all’ them that call upon thy name.

But the Lord said unto him—

Be going thy way; for [a choice vessel unto me] is this man, to bear my name before both [the] nations and kings, and the sons of Israel; for [I] will let him understand how many things he must needs [for my name] [and suffer].

And Ananias departed, and entered into the house; and [laying upon him his hands] said—

Saul, brother! [The Lord] hath sent me,—

Jesus, who appeared unto thee in the way by which thou wast coming,—

That thou mayest recover sight, and be filled with Holy Spirit.

And straightway; there fell from him—from his eyes,—as it were scales; he recovered sight also, and, arising, was immersed; and, receiving food, gained strength. And he came to be with the disciples who were [in Damascus], certain days; and straightway, in the synagogues he began proclaiming Jesus, that [This] is the Son of God.

And all’ who were hearing were astonished, and began to say—

Is not [this] he who destroyed, in Jerusalem, them that invoke this name? and here, for this purpose, had come, in order that he might lead them [bound] unto the High-priests?

But [Saul] was the more gaining power; and was confounding the Jews that dwelt in Damascus, shewing, by comparison, that—

[This] is the Christ.

Now [when a considerable number of days were being fulfilled] the Jews took counsel together to kill him; but their plot was made known unto Saul, and they were even narrowly watching the gates, both day and night, that they might kill him; but the disciples, taking him by night, [through the wall] let him down, lowering him in a basket.

And [when he had arrived in Jerusalem] he made attempts to join himself unto the disciples; and all were afraid of him, not believing that he was a disciple. But [Barnabas] taking him, brought him unto the apostles, and related unto them—how [in the way] he had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken unto him; and how [in Damascus] he had spoken boldly in the name of the Lord; and was both speaking and discussing with the Grecian Jews,—but [they] were setting to work to kill him.

And the brethren [discovering it] brought him down into Caesarea, and sent him away unto Tarsus.

So then [the assembly, throughout the whole of Judaea and Galilee and Samaria] had peace, building itself up, and going on its way in the fear of the Lord; and [by the advocacy of the Holy Spirit] was being multiplied.

§ 18. Ἐνεας ἰατρός at Lydda.

And it came to pass that [Peter] going through all [quarters] went down unto the saints also dwelling in Lydda. And he found there a certain man, by name Ἐνεας, who [for eight years] had been lying prostrate upon a bed, for he was paralysed. And Peter said unto him—

Ἐνεας! Ἰησοῦς Χριστὸς Ἰατρός οὐκ ἦν ἡμῖν. Arise, and smooth thy bed for thyself. And [straightway] he arose. And all’ who dwelt in Lydda and Shmon [saw him],—and [they] turned unto the Lord.

§ 19. Νούς ἱατρός at Joppa.

Now [in Joppa] there was a certain female disciple, by name Ῥαββίθα, which being translated, means Dorcas [a Gazelle]. [The same] was full of good works and alms which she was doing.*

And it came to pass, in those days, that she sickening died; and, baying her, they laid her in an upper room. Now <Lydda being [nigh] unto Joppa> the disciples hearing that Peter was therein, sent off two’ men unto him, beseeching him—

Do not delay to come through unto us!

And Peter, arising, went with them,—whom [when he arrived] they brought up into the upper room; and there stood by him all’ the widows, weeping, and showing the tunics and mantles—whatsoever things [Dorcas] was making while she was with them. But Peter [putting them all outside] knelt down and prayed; and [turning towards the body] said—

Ῥαββίθα, ἀρεία; And [she] <opening her eyes, and seeing Peter> sat up. And [giving her his hand] he raised her up; and, calling the saints and the widows, presented her [living]. And it became [known] throughout the whole of Joppa, and many believed upon the Lord. And it came to pass that [for a considerable number of days] he abode in Joppa, with one Simon, a tanner.

10 But at a certain man in Caesarea, by name Cornelius, a centurion of the band called Italian,—devout, and fearing God with all his house, doing many alms unto the people, and supplicating God continually;> saw, in a vision, manifestly. as if about the ninth hour of the day, a messenger of God coming in unto him, and saying unto him— Cornelius!

 NB: not full of what she had done.
And they looking steadfastly at him, and becoming full of fear, said—

What is it, Lord? a

And he said unto him—

Thy prayers and thine alms have gone up for a memorial before God.

Now therefore, send men unto Joppa, b and fetch one Simon who is surnamed Peter,— the same is a guest with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea.

And when the messenger who had been speaking with him had departed, he [calling two of the domestics, and a devout soldier of them that constantly attended him, b and relating everything unto them, b] sent them off unto Joppa.

Now on the morrow, as those men were journeying, and unto the city drawing near, Peter went up on the house-top to pray, about the sixth hour; b but he became hungry, and wished to eat, b and while they were making ready, there came upon him a trance; b and he beheld heaven opened, and [coming down a kind of vessel, like a large linen cloth, b by its four corners, b being let down upon the earth, b in which were all the quadrupeds and creeping things of earth and birds of heaven. b And there came a voice unto him—

Rise, Peter! sacrifice b and eat.

But Peter said—

By no means, Lord! because [at no time] have I ever eaten anything common or unclean.

And a voice came again, a second time, unto him—

What things God hath cleansed b be not thou making common.

Now this took place thrice; and straightway was the vessel taken up into heaven.

And as within himself, Peter was doubting what the vision which he had seen might mean; b lo! the men who had been sent by Cornelius, b having sought out the house of Simon, b stood at the gate, b and, calling, enquired whether Simon who was surnamed Peter, b was there being entertained. b And as Peter was pondering over the vision, the Spirit said—

Lo! two men, seeking thee.

But rise, go down, and be journeying with them, b nothing doubting; because I will have sent them.

And Peter, going down unto the men, said—

Lo! I am he whom ye are seeking; b What is the cause for which ye are come?

And [they] said—

Cornelius! a centurion, a man righteous and fearing God, well-attested by the whole nation of the Jews, hath been divinely instructed by a holy messenger, to send for thee unto his house, and to hear words from thee.

Inviting them in, therefore, he entertained them; b but on the morrow, he rose up and went forth with them, and certain of the brethren who were from Joppa went with him; b and on the morrow, he entered into Cesarea.

And [Cornelius] was expecting them, having called together his kinsfolk and intimate friends.

And when it came about that Peter entered Cornelius met him, and falling at his feet, did homage. b But [Peter] raised him up, saying—

Arise! I also myself am a man.

And conversing with him, he went in, and foundeth many come together; b and said unto them—

Yo well know, how unlawful it is, for a Jew to be joining himself, or coming in unto one of another race.

And yet unto me hath God pointed out that I should be calling no man common or unclean.

Wherefore even without gainsaying came I when sent for.

I ask, therefore, for what reason ye sent for me.

And [Cornelius] said—

Four days ago, counting up unto this very hour I was keeping the ninth hour as one of prayer, in my house.

And lo! a man stood before me, in bright clothing, b and saith—

Cornelius! Thy prayer hath been heard; b And thine alms have been remembered before God.

Send, therefore, unto Joppa, and fetch Simon, who is surnamed Peter. b The same is being entertained in the house of one Simon a tanner, by the sea.

Immediately therefore, I sent unto thee:

[Thou also, hast well] done in coming. b Now therefore, all we b before God are present, to hear all things that have been enjoined upon thee by the Lord.

And Peter, opening his mouth, said—

Of a truth I find, that God is no respecter of persons; b but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is acceptable unto him.

As touching the word he hath sent unto the sons of Israel, announcing the glad tidings of peace through Jesus Christ—that the same is Lord of all; b ye yourselves know what hath come to pass throughout the whole of Judaea, beginning from Galilee, after the immersion which John proclaimed, respecting Jesus who was of Nazareth;—

How God anointed him with Holy Spirit and with power, Who went about, doing good and healing all, that were oppressed by the adversary, because [God] was with him.

We also are witnesses of all things which he did, both in the country of the Jews and Jerusalem; Whom they even slew by suspending upon a tree;—

E Or: "Sir."
God raised up on the third' day, and gave him to become [manifest], 43 not unto all the people, 42 but unto witnesses who had been fore-appointed by God, 43 unto us 42, who, indeed, did eat and drink with him after his rising from among the dead. 44 And he charged us to proclaim unto the people, and bear full witness—that

[This is he that hath been marked out by God to be judge of living and dead.] 45 [Unto the same] do all the prophets bear witness, that [remission of sins] is to be received through his name, 46 by every one that believeth on him. 47 <While Peter was yet speaking these words,> the Holy Spirit fell upon all who were hearing the word. 48 And the faithful 49 of the circumcision 48, who had come with Peter, were amazed,—in that upon the nations also 47 the free-gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out; 49 for they heard them speaking with tongues, and magnifying God. Then answered Peter—

Surely then [the water] can no man forbid, that these should not be immersed,—seeing that [the Holy Spirit] they have received [as well as we].

And he commanded them [in the name of Jesus Christ] to be immersed. Then requested they him, to abide still some days.

§ 21. Peter's defence to Them of the Circumcision.

11 Now the Apostles and the brethren who were throughout Judæa [heard] that [the nations also 11] had welcomed the word of God. 4 And <when Peter came up unto Joppa 11>, they of the circumcision [began to find fault with him], 3 saying—

He went in unto men [uncircumcised], and did eat with them.

But Peter [making a beginning] went on to set forth the matter unto them in order, saying—

[I was in the city of Joppa, praying, and saw, in a trance, a vision:—coming down, a sort of vessel, like a large sheet, by four corners] being let down out of heaven, and it came even unto me: 6 into which steadfastly looking, I began to observe, and saw the quadrupeds of the earth, and the wild beasts, and the creeping things, and the birds of heaven.

Moreover I heard a voice also, saying unto me—

Rise, Peter! sacrifice and eat.

But I said—

[By no means] Lord, because [a common or unclean thing] hath [at no time] entered into my mouth.

And a voice answered, a second time, out of heaven—

And [this] took place [thrice],—and the whole was drawn up again into heaven; and lo! [immediately] three men halted at the house wherein we were, sent from Caesarea unto me. 12 And the Spirit bade me go with them, [nothing] doubting. And there went with me, these six brethren also; and we entered into the house of the man, 13 and he related to us how he had seen the messenger in his house, standing, and saying—

Send away unto Joppa, and fetch Simon, who is surnamed Peter; 14 who shall speak words unto thee, whereby thou shalt be saved, [thou] and [all] thy house.

And [as I began to be speaking] the Holy Spirit fell upon them, [just as upon us also, at the beginning].

And I was put in mind of the word of the Lord, how he used to say—

[John] indeed, immersed [with water]; 15 But [ye] shall be immersed in Holy Spirit. 15

<If therefore> [the like free-gift] God gave unto them, as even unto us, when we had believed upon the Lord Jesus Christ> who was [I] that I could withstand God?

And [having heard these things] they held their peace, and glorified God, saying—[ Hence] [even unto the nations] God hath granted repentance unto life.

§ 22. The Dispersion (chap. viii. 1): the Faith spreads as far as Antioch in Syria, whether Barnabas is sent, Saul is brought, and Agabus comes with tidings of a Famine.

[They, therefore, who had been scattered abroad by reason of the tribulation that took place on account of Stephen] passed through as far as Phœnicia and Cyprus and Antioch, unto no one speaking the word, save alone unto Jews. 20 And there were some from among them, Cyprians and Cyrenians, who, indeed, [coming unto Antioch], began speaking [even unto the Grecian Jews], announcing the glad tidings as to the Lord Jesus; 21 and the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number—they who believed—turned unto the Lord. 22 And the matter was reported in the hearing of the assembly that was in Jerusalem concerning them; and they sent forth Barnabas, as far as Antioch; 22 who <arriving, and seeing the favour which was of God> rejoiced, and went on to beseech all [with the purpose of their heart] to abide [in] the Lord; 24 because he was a good man, and full of Holy Spirit and faith; and a considerable multitude were added unto the Lord. 25 He went away, however, unto Tarsus, to seek up Saul: 26 and, finding him, he brought him unto Antioch. And so it was with them, that [for a whole year] they were brought together in the assembly, and taught a considerable multitude; also that the disciples [first in Antioch] were called [Christians].

Now in these days, there came down from Jerusalem prophets, unto Antioch. 2 And one from among them, by name Agabus [raising up] gave a sign, through means of the Spirit, that [a great famine] was coming over all the inhabited earth; which, indeed, came to pass under Claudius. 22 And <according as any one of the disciples was being prospered> they each one of them set apart [something] for ministering, to send unto the brethren who dwelt in Jerusalem;—20 which thing they also did, sending it unto the Elders through the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

§ 23. Herod slays James, and imprisons Peter.

Peter delivered: Herod smitten.

12 Now [in the course of that season] Herod the king thrust forth his hands to harm some of them of the assembly,—2 and slew James the brother of John with a sword;—2 and [seeing that it was] acceptable unto the Jews, he went on to apprehend Peter also (now they were the days of unleavened bread),—4 whom also having seized, he put into prison, delivering him up unto four quaternions of soldiers, to be guarding him,—intending after the passover to bring him up* unto the people. 6 [Peter], therefore, was kept in the prison; but [prayer] was earnestly being made by the assembly, unto God, concerning him. 6 And [when Herod was about to bring him forth] [on that night] was Peter sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains; [guards] also, before the door, were keeping the prison. 7 And lo! [a messenger of the Lord] stood over him, and [a light] shone in the cell; and [smiting the side of Peter] he roused him up, saying—

Rise up quickly!
And his chains fell off out of his hands. 8 And the messenger said unto him—
Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals.
And he did so. And he saith unto him—
Throw around thee thy mantle, and be following me.

And, coming out, he began following, and knew not that it was [true] which was coming about through means of the messenger; but supposed that [a vision] he was beholding. 10 And passing through the first ward and the second they came unto the iron gate that leadeth into the city, the which [of its own accord] opened unto them; and, coming out, they went on through one street, and straightway the messenger was parted from him. 11 And [Peter] coming [to himself] said—
[Now] know I, of a truth, that the Lord hath sent forth his messenger, and taken me out of the hand of Herod, and all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

12 And, considering the matter, he came unto the house of Mary, the mother of John who was surnamed Mark, where a considerable number were gathered together and praying. 12 And [when he had knocked at the door of the porch] there came unto it a maiden to hearken, by name Rhoda;—14 and [recognizing the voice of Peter] [by reason of her joy] she opened not the porch,—but [running in] bare tidings, that Peter was standing before the porch. But they [unto her] said—

Thou art raving!

13 [She [however, kept on strongly declaring that it was. But [they were saying—

It is his messenger!.

14 And [Peter] continued knocking; and, opening, they saw him, and were amazed.

15 But <making a sign to them with his hand to hold their peace> he related to them how [the Lord] had brought [him] forth out of the prison; and he said—

Carry tidings unto James and the brethren, as to these things.

And, going out, he went his way unto some other place.

18 And [when it became day] there was no small commotion among the soldiers, as to What, then, Peter had become:\n
19 And [Herod] [seeking after and not finding him] [having examined the guards] ordered them to be led away [to death]; and [going down from Judea unto Caesarea] stayed there.

20 Now he was bitterly hostile to them of Tyre and Sidon; but [with one accord] they came unto him, and [persuading Blastus, who was over the bed-chamber of the king] they were suing for peace; because their country was fed by the king's. 21 And [on an appointed day] [Herod] <putting on royal apparel, and seating himself upon the tribunal> proceeded to deliver an oration unto them. 22 And [the populace] began to shout—

[A god's] voice, and not [a man's]!

23 And [instantly] there smote him, a messenger of the Lord, because he gave not the glory unto God; and [becoming worm-eaten] he expired. 24 And [the word of the Lord] went on growing and multiplying.

And [Barnabas and Saul] returned unto Jerusalem, fulfilling the ministering, taking with them John who was surnamed Mark.

§ 24. Barnabas and Saul sent forth from Antioch, visit Cyprus, Pamphylia, Pisidia and Lyœonia; and return by Attalia unto Antioch.

13 Now there were in Antioch, distributed through the existing assembly—prophets and teachers: both Barnabas and Symeon who was called Niger, and Lucius the Cyrenian, Manaen also, Herod the tetrarch's foster-brother, and Saul. 3 And <as they were publicly ministering unto the Lord and fasting> the Holy Spirit said—

Separate forthwith unto me, Barnabas and Saul, unto the work whereunto I have called them.

4 [Then] <fasting and praying, and laying their hands upon them> they sent them away.

6 [They], therefore, being sent forth by the

* Or: "back."
Holy Spirit went down unto Seleucia, and from thence sailed away unto Cyprus; * and, coming to be in Salamis, they declared the word of God in the synagogue of the Jews; and they had [John also] as an attendant.

6 And passing through the whole island, as far as Paphos, they found a certain man, a magician, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesus; * who was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man. [The same calling for Barnabas and Saul] sought to hear the word of God. * But Elymas the magician, —for so, when translated, is his name,—withstood them; seeking to turn aside the proconsul from the faith. * But Saul [who is also Paul] <filled with Holy Spirit, looking steadfastly at him> said—

O full of all guile, and all recklessness! Son of an adversary!

Enemy of all righteousness! —

Wilt thou not cease to pervert the straight ways of the Lord? *

[Now therefore, lo! [the hand of the Lord] is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun, until a fitting time. And instantly there fell upon him a mist and darkness; and [going about] he was seeking such as might lead him by the hand.

7 Then the proconsul [seeing what had happened] believed, being amazed at the teaching of the Lord.

8 And setting sail from Paphos [Paul’s company] came into Perga of Pamphylia; but John [withdrawing from them] returned unto Jerusalem. * [They] however, passing through from Perga, arrived at Antioch of Pisidia; and [going into the synagogue on the sabbath-day] 9 sat down. And after the reading of the law and the prophets the synagogues-rulers sent unto them, saying—

Brethren! <if there is in you a word of exhortation unto the people> say on.

And Paul <standing up> and making a sign with his hand <said>—

Ye men of Israel! and such as revere God! hearken:—

10 The God of this people Israel chose our fathers, and the people he exalted, by their sojourn in the land of Egypt,—and with a high arm brought he them out of it; * and for the time of about forty years bare with their manners in the desert; * and overthrowing seven nations in the land of Canaan * gave them their land as an inheritance,—about four hundred and fifty years. And after these things he gave them judges, until Samuel the prophet. * And from that time they asked for themselves a king, and God gave them Saul, son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, during forty years; * and <setting him aside> raised up [David] unto them for king,—Of whom he also said [bearing witness]—

I have found David, * the son of Jesse,—

[A man] according to my heart," * Who will do all my will. *

22 [From this man’s seed] hath God [according to promise] brought unto Israel, a saviour—[Jesus]; *

23 John [beforehand proclaiming] before the face of his coming in, an immersion of repentance, unto all the people of Israel.

And as John was fulfilling his course > he was saying—

Whom are ye supposing that I am? * [I am not he!]

But lo! there cometh, after me,

One of whom I am not worthy [the sandals of his feet] to loose.

24 Brethren! sons of the race of Abraham, and those who among you revere God,—unto you hath this word of salvation been sent forth. *

25 For <they who were dwelling in Jerusalem>, and their rulers [not recognising him] have, by judging him, [fulfilled] the very voices of the prophets which every sabbath are being read; * and [though no single cause of death they found] yet claimed they of Pilate that he should be slain. And <when they had finished all those things which concerning him> had been written; [taking him down from the tree] they put him in a tomb.

26 But [God] raised him from among the dead: * Who appeared, during many days, unto them who had come up with him from Galilee unto Jerusalem; who, indeed, [now] are his witnesses unto the people.

27 [We] therefore, unto you bring the good news, as to the promise which [unto our fathers] was made,— * That God hath fulfilled [the same] for our children, [by raising up Jesus]:

As also [in the second psalm] it is written—

My son, ar[thou]: "T, [this day] have begotten thee."

28 And <in that he raised him from among the dead, no more> destined to return unto corruption; > on this wise hath he spoken—

I will give unto you the faithful loving-kindnesses of David."

29 Wherefore also [in a different [place]] he saith—

Thou wilt not give thy man of loving-kindness to see corruption."

30 For [David] indeed, <unto his own generation> having done service, by the counsel of God > fell asleep, * and was added unto his fathers, * and saw corruption;

But he whom God hath raised did not see corruption.
Be it known unto you, therefore, brethren,—That through this man shall remission of sins be declared; and from all things from which ye could not by the law of Moses be justified, hereby this man [everyone] that believeth is justified. Be taking heed, therefore, lest that come upon you which hath been spoken in the prophets—

See, ye despisers, and marvel, and disbelieve:

In that work am I working in your days,—

A work which in nisue will ye believe.

Though one relate it in full unto you.*

And as they were going out, they kept on beseeching that on the ensuing sabbath might be spoken unto them these things. And when the congregation was broken up, there followed many of the Jews, and of the devout proselytes, with Paul and Barnabas; who, indeed, in speaking unto them, went on persuading them to abide in the favour of God. And on the coming sabbath, almost all the city was gathered together, to hear the word of God.* But the Jews seeing the multitude were filled with jealousy,—and began speaking against the things which by Paul were being spoken, defaming them. And Paul and Barnabas speaking boldly said—

Unto you was it necessary, that the word of God should first be spoken;—

Seeing ye are thrusting it from you, and unworthy are judging yourselves of the age-abiding life! lo! we turn unto the nations;* for all hath the Lord commanded us—

I have set thee for a light of nations, That thou mayest be for salvation unto the end of the earth.

And they of the nations hearing [this] began to rejoice, and to be glorifying God, and they believed—as many as had become disposed for life age-abiding. And the word of the Lord went on to be carried through the whole country. But the Jews urged on the devout women of the higher class, and the chief men of the city, and roused up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas,—and thrust them out from their bounds. But they shaking off the dust of their feet against them came into Iconium. And the disciples were filled with joy, and with Holy Spirit.

And it came to pass, in Iconium, that they together entered into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that there believed, both of Jews and Greeks, a great throng. But the unpersuaded Jews roused up and provoked the souls of them of the nations against the brethren.*

Hab. i. 5.

Is. xlviii. 8.

*A good while, therefore, tarried they using boldness of speech [in dependence] upon the Lord, who was bearing witness unto his word of favour, granting [signs and wonders] to be coming to pass through their hands. And the throng of the city was divided; and some; indeed were with the Jews, while some were with the apostles. But when there took place an assault both of them of the nations and of the Jews, with their rulers, to maltreat and to stone them they became aware of it, and fled unto the cities of Lycaonia, Lystra and Derbe, and the surrounding country; and there were they announcing the glad tidings. And a certain man in Lystra, impotent in his feet was sitting,—lame from his mother's womb, who never had walked. This man hearkened unto Paul, as he was speaking,—who looking steadfastly at him, and seeing he had faith to be made well* said, with a loud voice—

Stand up on thy feet, erect! And he sprang up, and began to walk about. And the multitude seeing what Paul had done lifted up their voice, in the speech of Lycaonia—

The gods, made like unto men, have come down unto us! And they went on to call Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercury, seeing that [he] was the leader of discourse. Also the priest of the Jupiter that was before the city bringing bulls and garlands unto the gates: [with the multitude] would have offered sacrifice. But the apostles Barnabas and Paul, hearing of it, rending asunder their own mantles, sprang forward amidst the multitude, crying aloud, and saying—

*Men! why these things are ye doing?* We also of like nature with you are men, bringing you the good news, that from these vain things ye should be turning unto a living God:*—

Who made heaven and the earth and the sea and all things therein—

Who in the lygonest generations suffered all the nations to be going on in their own ways,— Although not without witness he left himself, doing good, From heaven upon you giving rain and fruitful seasons, Filling with food and gladness your hearts. Even these things saying, scarcely restrained they the multitudes from offering sacrifice unto them. But there came thither, from Antioch and Iconium, Jews, and persuading the multitude, and stoning Paul they dragged him outside the city, supposing him to be dead. Howbeit, the disciples surrounding him he rose up, and entered into the city. And on the morrow he went forth, with Barnabas, unto Derbe.*

*Or (WH.): “their m.”

Ex. xx. 11; Ps. exdvi. 6.
<Delivering the good news unto that city also, and making a good number of disciples> they returned unto Lystra, and unto Iconium, and unto Antioch,—22 confirming the souls of the disciples, beseeching them to abide in the faith, and [declaring] that

Through many’ tribulations must we enter into the kingdom of God. 23 Moreover <appointing unto them by vote, in each assembly, elders, praying with fasting> they commended them unto the Lord on whom they had believed. 24 And [passing through Pisidia] they came into Pamphylia; 25 and [speaking in Perga’ the word] they came down unto Attalia; 26 and [from thence] they set sail for Antioch, whences they had been given up unto the favour of God for the work which they had fulfilled. 27 And <when they had arrived and gathered together the assembly> they began recounting how many things God had done with them, and that he had opened [unto the nations] [a door of faith]. 28 And they spent no little time with the disciples.

§ 25. Must Gentiles be Circumcised? The Question settled in Jerusalem.

15 And [certain persons] [coming down from Judaea] began to teach the brethren—<Except ye be circumcised according to the custom of Moses> ye cannot be saved. 3 And [when Paul and Barnabas had had no little dissension and discussion with them] it was arranged, that Paul and Barnabas and certain others from among them should go up unto the Apostles and Elders in Jerusalem, concerning this question. 3 [They], therefore, [being set forward by the Assembly] began passing through Phoenicia and Samaria, fully relating the conversion of the nations, and were causing great joy unto all the brethren. 4 And [having arrived in Jerusalem] they were welcomed by the Assembly and the Apostles and the Elders; and they recounted all things God had done with them. 5 But there [had] stood forth some of those who [from the sect of Pharisees] had believed, saying—

It is needful to be circumcising them, also to charge them to be keeping the law of Moses.

6 And the Apostles and Elders [were gathered] together to see about this matter. 7 And [when much’ discussion had arisen] Peter standing up, said unto them—

Brethren! [Ye yourselves] well know that [in days long past] [amongst you] God chose that [through my mouth] the nations should hear the word of the glad tidings, and believe. 8 And [the heart-observing] God [bare witness, unto them], giving the Holy Spirit, just as [even unto us]; 9 and made no distinction at all’ between us and them, [by their faith] purifying their hearts.

10 [Now] therefore, why are ye provoking God, that ye should put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers, nor we, have been able to bear.

11 But [through the favour of the Lord Jesus] we believe we shall be saved, in like manner as [even they].

12 And all’ the throng held their peace, and began to hearken unto Barnabas and Paul relating how many signs and wonders God had done among the nations [through them]. 13 And [after they held their peace] James answered, saying—Brethren! hearken unto me.

14 [Symeon] hath fully told how God [first] visited, to take out of the nations, a people for his name.

15 And [with this] agree the words of the prophets, according as it is written—

After these things will I return, And will rebuild the tent of David that hath fallen, And the ruins thereof will I rebuild, And will set it up again:

17 That the residues of men may seek out the Lord, And all’ the nations upon whom my name hath been called,

Sathan the Lord that doeth these things, Known from ages past times.

19 Wherefore I judge, not to be troubling them who [from the nations] are turning unto God; 20 but to write unto them, To abstain from the pollutions of idols, And from fornication, And from what is strangled, And from blood.

21 For [Moses] [out of ancient generations] hath [in every city] [them who proclaim him]; seeing [that in the synagogues] [every sabbath] he is read.

22 [Then] seemed it good, unto the Apostles and the Elders with the whole’ Assembly, to send [chosen’ men from among them] unto Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas,—even Judas who is called Barsabbas, and Silas, men taking a lead among the brethren; 23 writing through their hand—

The Apostles and the Elder' Brethren [unto the brethren] throughout Antioch and Syria and Cilicia, who are from among the nations> wish joy!

24 [Inasmuch as we had heard that [certain from among us] had troubled you with words, dismantling your souls,—unto whom we had given no instructions> It seemed good unto us [coming to be of one accord], that we should choose men and send them unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul,

25 [men who have given up their lives in behalf of the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.]

26 We have sent, therefore, Judas and Silas, who also [themselves] [by word of mouth] can tell you the same things.

28 For it hath seemed good [unto the Holy Spirit, and unto us] [no greater burden] to be laying upon you, than these necessary things:

29 To be abstaining from idol sacrifices,
And from blood,
And from what is strangled,
And from fornication,—
From which [if ye keep yourselves] ye shall prosper. Fare ye well.

30 They therefore, [being let go] came down unto Antioch; [and having gathered together the throng] delivered the letter, [and when they read it] [they rejoiced for the consolation].
31 And [both Judas and Silas] [being themselves also prophets] [with much discourse] consoled and confirmed the brethren. 32 And [when they had spent a time] they were let go in peace, from the brethren, unto them who had sent them. [9]

§ 26. Paul and Barnabas, differing about Mark; separate: Barnabas, with Mark, sails for Cyprus; Paul, with Silas, journeys from Antioch round about to Tarsus.

33 But [Paul and Barnabas] tarried in Antioch, teaching and telling the joyful tidings,—along with many others also,—of the word of the Lord.
34 And [after certain days] [Paul] said unto Barnabas—
Let us now return, and visit the brethren in every city in which we have declared the word of the Lord, and see how they are.

35 And [Barnabas] was minded to take with them John also, called Mark; 36 but Paul deemed it right <as to him who had withdrawn from them, lack from Pamphylia, and had not gone with them unto the work> not to be taking with them [this] man. 37 And there arose an angry feeling, so that they parted one from the other: and [Barnabas] (taking Mark) sailed away unto Cyprus; 38 whereas [Paul] (choosing Silas) went forth committed unto the favour of the Lord by the brethren, 39 and proceeded to pass through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the assemblies. 40 And he came even unto Derbe, and unto Lystra; and lo! [a certain disciple] was there, by name Timothy, son of a believing Jewish woman, but [whose father was a Greek],—who was well-attested by the brethren [in Lystra and Iconium].

41 [The same] would Paul have go forth [with him], and took and circumcised him, on account of the Jews who were in those places; for they one and all knew that [his father] was [a Greek].
42 And [as they passed through the cities] they were delivering unto them, for observance, the decrees which had been decided upon by the Apostles and Elders who were in Jerusalem.
43 [The assemblies] therefore, were being confirmed in the faith, and increasing in number [every day].
44 And they passed through the Phrygian' and Galatian' country, being forbidden b by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia; 45 but [coming along Mysia] they were attempting to journey [into Bithynia],—and [the Spirit of Jesus] suffered them not; 46 but [passing by Mysia] they came down unto Tarsus.

§ 27. Paul and his Companions come from Tarsus unto Philippi: Lydia—the Jailer—and others believe.

9 And [is a vision by night]: unto Paul appeared:—
[A man of Macedonia] there was, standing and beseeching him, and saying—
Come over into Macedonia, and bring us suocour!
10 Now [when the vision] he had seen:—straightway, we sought to go forth unto Macedonia, concluding that God [had summoned us] to tell the glad tidings [unto them].
11 [Setting sail, therefore, from Tarsus] we ran straight into Samothracia, and [on the morrow] unto New City, 12 and [from thence] unto Philippi,—which, indeed, is the first city of the part of Macedonia,—[a colony]. And we were, in this' city, spending certain days; 13 and [on the day of rest] we went forth outside the gate, beside a river, where we supposed there was [a place of prayer], and [sitting down] we went on to speak unto the women [who had come together].
14 And [a certain woman, by name Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, devout towards God] was hearkening, whose heart [the Lord] fully opened, to be giving heed unto the things being spoken by Paul. 15 And [when she was immersed, and her house] she besought [us], saying—
If ye have judged me to be [a believer in the Lord] > come into my house, and abide [there].
And she constrained us.
18 And it came to pass <as we were on our way unto the place of prayer> [as a certain damsel, having a spirit of Python] met us,—who indeed, [much gain] was presenting unto her masters [by divining].
17 [The same] [following after Paul and us], kept crying aloud, saying—
These men are servants of the Most High God,
Who, indeed, are declaring unto you a way of salvation.
18 And [this] she continued to do for many' days. But Paul <worn out> and turning unto the spirit> said—
I charge thee, in the name of Jesus Christ, to come out from her.
And it came out the same' hour. 19 And <her masters> [seeing] that their hope of gain had gone out [laying hold on Paul and Silas] dragged them into the market-place; unto the rulers; 20 and [leading them forward unto the magistrates] said—
These men are exceedingly troubling our city, they [being Jews],

* Omitted by WH. 9 Or: "hindered."
And are declaring customs, which it is not allowable for us either to accept or to observe. [Being Romans], the multitude rose up together against them, and [the magistrates] rending off them their mantles] were giving orders to beat them with rods; and [laying upon them many stripes] they thrust them into prison, charging the prison-keeper safely to be keeping them: who, [a charige like this receiving] thrust them into the inner prison, and [their feet] made he fast in the stocks. And [at midnight] Paul and Silas being at prayer began singing praise unto God; and [the prisoners] unto them, did hearken. And suddenly a great earthquake took place, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken, and all the doors were [instantly] set open, and the bonds of all were unfastened. And [the prison-keeper wakened] and seeing that the doors of the prison had been opened [drawing his sword] was about to kill himself, saying [being the prisoners] to have fled. But Paul called out with a loud voice, saying—By no means! do thyself harm, for we are [one and all] here. And [asking for a light] he sprang in, and becoming agitated fell down unto Paul and Silas and leading forth outside said—Sirs! what must I be doing, that I may be saved? And [they said]—Believe on the Lord Jesus, and thou shalt be saved, [thou and thy house]. And they spake unto him the word of God, [with all who were in his house]. And [taking them with him] in that hour of the night he bathed them from their stripes, and was immersed he, and his, one and all, on the spot; and [leading them up into his house] he set near a table, and exulted, having [with all his house] believed in God. And [when they came] the magistrates sent off [the constables] saying—Let those men go! And the prison-keeper reported the words unto Paul—The magistrates have sent, that ye be let go. Now therefore, going forth, be taking your journey in peace. But [Paul] said unto them—Beating us [in public] uncondemned men that are Romans] they thrust us into prison; And now, by stealth are they thrusting us forth. Nay, verily! but let them come [themselves] and lead us out! And [the constables] reported unto the magistrates these words; and they were struck with fear, when they heard that they were Romans; and came, and besought them, and [leading them out] went on to request them to depart from the city. And so coming forth from the prison they went unto Lydia, and [seeing the brethren] they comforted them, and went forth.

§ 23. Paul proceeds by Thessalonica and Berea to Athens.

And travelling through Amphipolis and Apollonia they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews; and according to Paul's custom he went in unto them, and [for three sabbaths] reasoned with them from the Scriptures, opening up, and setting forth, that it was needful for the Christ to suffer, and to arise from among the dead; and [saying] This is the Christ,—Jesus whom I am declaring unto you. And [some from among them] were persuaded, and cast in their lot with Paul and Silas; also of the devout Greeks a great throng, and of the chief women not a few. But the Jews being jealous and taking unto themselves certain wicked men of the rabble, and making a riot were setting the city in an uproar; and besieging the house of Jason were seeking to lead them forth unto the populace, and [not finding them] they began dragging Jason and certain brethren unto the city-rulers, shouting—They who have thrown the inhabited earth into confusion! the same! hither also! are come, unto whom Jason hath given welcome; and these all! contrary to the decrees of Caesar are acting, saying that there is another king! Jesus.

And they troubled the multitude and the city-rulers, when they heard these things; and [taking security from Jason and the rest] they let them go.

But the brethren, straightway, during the night sent away both Paul and Silas unto Berea, [who, indeed, arriving] unto the synagogue of the Jews went off; and [these] were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they welcomed the word with all readiness of mind, daily searching the Scriptures, whether these things could be so. Many, therefore, from among them believed, and [of the Grecian women of the higher class, and of men] not a few. But when the Jews from Thessalonica came to know that in Berea also had the word of God been declared by Paul, they came [thither also], stirring up and troubling the multitude. Howbeit [then] immediately the brethren sent away [Paul] to be journeying as far as unto the sea; and both Silas and Timothy stayed behind there. But [they who were conducting Paul] brought him as far as Athens, and receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timothy, that with all possible speed they would come unto him; they departed.

§ 29. Paul in Athens.

29 But [while [in Athens] [Paul] was expecting them> his spirit within him > was being urged on>, seeing how the city was given to idols. 30 So then, he began reasoning in the synagogue with the Jews, and with them who worshipped; and in the market-place, every day, with them who happened to be at hand. 31 But [certain both of the Epicurean' and of the Stoic philosophers] were encountering him; and some were saying—

What might this picker-up-of-scrap wish to be saying?

And [others—]

[Of foreign' demons] he seemed to be a declamer:

because [of Jesus and the Resurrection] he was announcing the joyful tiding. 32 And so [laying hold of him] they brought him up to the Hill of Mars, saying—

Can we get to know what [this new teaching] is, which [by thee] is being spoken?

For [certain foreign things] art thou bringing into our hearing:

We are minded to get to know, therefore, what these things please to be!

33 Now [all Athenians and the sojourning foreigners] unto nothing else were devoting their leisure, than to be telling or hearing something newer. 34 And Paul, [taking his stand] in the midst of the Hill of Mars, said—

Ye men of Athens!

<In every way, how unusually reverent of the demons ye are> I perceive.

For <passing through, and carefully observing your objects of devotion> I found an altar also, in which was inscribed—

Unto an Unknown God.

<What, therefore, [not knowing] ye reverence> [the same] do [I] declare unto you.

35 <The God that made the world and all things that are therein, [the same] being [Lord] [of heaven and earth] *> not in hand-made shrines doth dwell, nor [by human hands] is waited upon, as though in want of anything, [himself] giving unto all life, and breath, and all things; he made also [of one] every nation of men to dwell upon all the face of the earth,—making out fitting opportunities, and the bounds of their dwelling place. 36 They might be seeking God—if, after all, indeed, they might feel after him and find him,—although, in truth, he is already not far from any one of us. 37 For [in him] we live, and move, and are; as [even some of your own poets] have said—

For this' offspring also: we are.

<Being, then, [offspring] of God> we ought not to be supposing that [unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and device of man] is the Divine, is like.

* Is. xiii. 7.

30 <The times of ignorance, therefore, overlooking> [God] [as things now are] is charging all men everywhere to repent, 31 inasmuch as he hath appointed a day, in which he is about to be judging the habitable earth in righteousness,* by a man whom he hath pointed out,—offering faith unto all, by raising him from among the dead.

32 Now [when they heard of raising the dead] [some] indeed, began to mock, while [others] said—

We will hear thee concerning this, [even again].

33 [Thus] Paul came forth out of their midst.

34 But [certain persons, joining themselves unto him] believed; among whom were even Dionysius the Mars-hill judge, and a woman by name Damaria, and others with them.

§ 30. Paul in Corinth.

18 [After these things] withdrawing from Athens he came unto Corinth; 3 and [finding a certain Jew, by name Aquila, of Pontus by birth,—lately] come from Italy, and Priscilla his wife, because Claudius had ordered all the Jews to be leaving Rome> he came unto them. 2 and [because he was of the same craft] he abode with them, and wrought, for they were tent-makers by their trade. 3 And he began reasoning in the synagogue every sabbath, and was persuading both Jews and Greeks. 4 <When, however, both Silas and Timothy had come down from Macedonia> Paul began to urge on in the word, bearing full witness unto the Jews that [Jesus] was [the Christ].

6 But [as they began opposing and defaming] [shaking out his garments] he said unto them—

| Your blood | be upon your own head! |
| Pure | am I! |

7 [Henceforth] unto the nations will I go.

8 And [removing from thence] he came into the house of a certain man by name Titius Justus, who worshipped God, [whose house] was adjoining unto the synagogue. 9 But [Crispus] the ruler of the synagogue believed in the Lord. And [many of the Corinthians] hearing were believing, and being immersed. 10 And the Lord said by night, through means of a vision, unto Paul—

Be not afraid! but be speaking,—and do not hold thy peace;

Inasmuch as [I] am with thee, and no one shall set upon thee to harm thee;

Inasmuch as I have [much people] in this city.

11 And he remained a year and six months, teaching among them the word of God.

12 But [when] Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews, with one accord, set upon Paul, and led him unto the judgment-seat, 12 saying—

Contrary to the law; this is one seducing men to be worshipping God.

ACTS XVIII. 14—28: XIX. 1—20.

14 But (as Paul was about' to open his mouth) Gallio said unto the Jews—
If, indeed, it had been some wrong or wicked recklessness, O Jews! with reason, in that case: should I have been bearing with you.

15 If, however, they are questions concerning discourse, and names, and law, that which ye have> ye shall see to it yourselves; <A judge of these things> [I] am not disposed to be.

And he drove them from the judgment-seat.

17 But they all, laying hold of Sotheneus the ruler of the synagogue, began to strike him before the judgment-seat; and for none of these things did Gallio care.

18 [Paul] however, (still further abiding a good many days with the brethren) bidding them adieu set sail for Syria; and with him Priscilla and Aquila; having shorn his head [in Conchrese], for he had a vow. 19 And they came down to Ephesus; and [as for them] he left them there,—but himself entering into the synagogue he reasoned with the Jews.

20 And when they requested him for a longer time to abide> he consented not; 21 but bidding them adieu, and saying—

[Again] will I return unto you [God willing>] he sailed away from Ephesus; 22 and [putting in at Cesarea, going up and saluting the assembly] went down unto Antioch; 23 and [spending some time] he went forth, passing through, in order, the country of Galatia' and Phrygia, confirming all' the disciples.

§ 32. Apollos at Ephesus: he goes into Achaia.

24 But (a certain Jew, Apollos by name, an Alexandrian by birth, a learned man) came down to Ephesus, being [mighty] in the Scripture. 2 The same had been orally taught the way of the Lord, and [being fervent in his spirit] began speaking and teaching accurately; the things concerning Jesus,—properly knowing, only' the immersion of John. 26 [The same] also began speaking boldly in the synagogue; and Priscilla and Aquila [hearing him] took him unto them, and [more accurately] expounded unto him the way of God. 27 And (he being minded to pass through into Achaia) the brethren urgently wrote unto the disciples, to welcome him,—who [arriving] was very useful unto them who had believed [with his gift]; 28 for [with great force] began he confuting the Jews publicly, shewing by the Scriptures that [Jesus was] the Christ.

19 And it came to pass, [while Apollos was in Corinth] [Paul] passing through the upper parts, came to Ephesus, and found certain disciples; 2 and he said unto them—

Holy Spirit: received ye, when ye believed?

3 And they [said] unto him—
Nay! [not even whether there is Holy Spirit] did we hear.

4 And he said—
Into what then, were ye immersed?
And [they] said—

Into John’s immersion.

4 Then said Paul—

[John] immersed with an immersion of repentance, [unto the people] saying, That [on him who was coming after him] they should believe,—that is, [on Jesus].

5 And [when they heard [this]] they were immersed into the name of the Lord’ Jesus; 6 and [Paul laying hands] upon them> the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they began speaking with tongues and prophesying. 7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 And [entering into the synagogue] he was speaking boldly for three months, reasoning and persuading concerning the kingdom of God.

9 But when some were hardening themselves, and refusing to be persuaded, speaking evil of the Way before the throng> [withdrawing from them] he separated the disciples; [day by day reasoning in the school of Tyrannus]. 10 And [this] took place for two years, so that [all] who dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks.

11 Mighty works, also, not the ordinary! God was working through the hands of Paul; 12 so that [even unto the sick] were being carried from his body, handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases were departing from them, and [the wicked spirits] were going out. 13 But certain also of the wandering Jews, exorcists, took in hand to be naming, over them that had the wicked spirits, the name of the Lord Jesus, saying—

I adjure you, by Jesus whom [Paul] proclaimeth!

14 And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, a High-priest; who [this thing] were doing. 15 But the wicked spirit, answering, said unto them—

Jesus [indeed] I am getting to know, and [Paul] I well-know,—but who are [ye]?

16 And the man in whom was the wicked spirit, [springing upon them, mastering them both>] prevailed against them, so that [naked and wounded] fled they out of that house.

17 And [this] became known, to all—both Jews and Greeks—who were dwelling in Ephesus; and fear fell upon them all, and the name of the Lord’ Jesus was being magnified. 18 Many also of them who had believed, were coming, making open confession, and renouncing their practices. 19 And [a good many of them who had practised the curious arts] bringing together the books were burning them before all; and they reckoned up the prices of them, and found them fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 Thus, with might; the Lord’s word was growing and prevailing.

* Mt. iii. 11; Mt. i. 4, 8; chap. i. 5; xl. 16.
Lev. iii. 16; Jn. i. 20;
Mk: "skin."
Now when these things were fulfilled, Paul, being sent forth to Macedonia, and Achaia, to be journeying unto Jerusalem, saying—

After I have been there, I must see Rome also. And sending off into Macedonia, two of them that ministered unto him, Timothy and Erastus, he himself being held on, whilst in Asia.

And there arose during that season no small disturbance concerning the Way. For one Demetrius by name, a silversmith, making shrines of Diana, used to bring unto the craftsmen no little business; gathering whom together, and them who in such things wrought, he said—

Men, ye well know that by this business we have our prosperity; and ye perceive and hear that not only in Ephesus, but well-nigh in all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away a considerable multitude, saying that they are no gods which with hands are made. And not only there is danger, that this our heritage into ill-repute may come; but even that the temple of the great Goddess Diana for nothing may be counted; and that even on the point of being pulled down may be Her Majesty, whom all Asia and the habitable world do worship.

Now hearing this, and becoming full of wrath, they began crying aloud, saying—

Great is Diana of the Ephesians!

And the city was filled with the confusion; they rushed also with one accord into the theatre, carrying off with them, Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians, fellow-travellers of Paul. But Paul, being minded to enter in among the populace, the disciples would not suffer him.

Moreover certain of the Asiarchs also, being his friends, sending unto him, were beseeching him not to adventure himself into the theatre. Others indeed, were crying out, something else; for the assembly had become confused, and the greater part knew not for what cause they had come together. Howbeit out of the multitude, they bare aloft one Alexander, the Jews thrusting him forward; Alexander however waving his hand was wishing to make his defence unto the populace. But recognizing that he was a Jew one voice arose from all for about two hours, as they cried aloud—Great is Diana of the Ephesians!

Howbeit the town-clerk having calmed the multitude said—Ephesians! why, who is there of mankind, that doth not acknowledge the city of Ephesus, to be temple-keeper of the Great Diana, and of the Image that fell from Jupiter?

As these things then, cannot be denied, it is needful that ye be calmed at once, and nothing rash be doing.

§ 34. Paul, leaving Ephesus, journeys through Macedonia and Greece back again by Philippi, thence to Troas and to Miletus.

But after the tumult had ceased, Paul, sending for the disciples and exhorting them, took leave, and went forth to be journeying unto Macedonia. Passing through those parts, however, and exhorting them with much discourse, he came into Greece; and spending three months, when a plot was laid against him by the Jews, as he was about to sail to Syria, he determined to turn back through Macedonia.

Now there were accompanying him, Sopater, son of Pyrrhus, a Beraean; and of the Thessalonians Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe and Timothy; and of Asia Tychicus and Trophimus. And these came and were waiting for us at Troas. And we sailed forth, after the days of unleavened bread, from Philippi, and came unto them in Troas in five days, where we tarried seven days.

And from the first of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread, Paul went on to discourse with them, being about to depart on the morrow; and he prolonged his discourse until midnight. Now there were a good many torches in the upper room, where we were gathered together. And there sat a certain young man by name Eutychus, in the window, who was getting overpowered by a deep sleep; and while Paul was discourse ye further, being overpowered by his sleep he fell from the third story, down, and was taken up dead.

Going down, however, Paul fell upon him, and embracing him, said—Be not making confusion; for his soul is in him.

And going up, and breaking the loaf, and tasting, for a good while also conversing, until dawn, he returned. And they brought the boy alive, and were comforted beyond measure.

And we, going forward unto the ship, set sail for Assos, from thence being about to take up Paul; for so had he arranged, being about himself to go on foot. And when he fell in with us in Assos, we took him on board, and came into Mitylene; and from thence sailing away on the morrow we came over against Chios, and on the next day we thrust aside into Samos, and on the succeeding day we came into Miletus. 18 For Paul had determined to sail past Ephesus, lest he should happen to lose time in Asia; for he hastened, if it were possible, for him, against the day of Pentecost, to arrive in Jerusalem. 19

§ 35. Paul's Farewell Address to the Elders of Ephesus. 20 But from Miletus he sent unto Ephesus, and called for the elders of the assembly. 21 And when they were come to him, he said unto them—

Ye yourselves well know, from the first day when I set foot in Asia, in what manner I came to be with you all the time, 19 doing service unto the Lord, with all humility and tears, and temptations which befell me through the plots of the Jews: 20 in what manner I in no wise shrank from announcing unto you anything that was profitable and teaching you publicly and in your homes; 21 bearing full witness, both to Jews and to Greeks, as to the repentance due unto God, and as to belief on our Lord Jesus. 22 And now! lo! I, bound in my spirit, am journeying unto Jerusalem; all the things which therein shall befall me, I not knowing, save that the Holy Spirit, from city to city doth bear me full witness, saying that bonds and tribulations await me. 23 But for no cause whatever am I making my life dear to myself, so that I may finish my course, and the ministry which I have received from the Lord Jesus, to bear full witness as to the good news of the favour of God. 24 And now! lo! I know that no more shall ye see my face, ye all, among whom I have gone about proclaiming the kingdom. 25 Wherefore I take you to witness, on this very day, that pure am I from the blood of all; for I have not shrunk from announcing all the counsel of God unto you. 26 Be taking heed unto yourselves, and unto all the little flock in which the Holy Spirit hath set you, as overseers,—to be shepherding the assembly of God which he hath acquired through means of the blood of his own. 27

I know, that there will enter, after my departure, grievous wolves into your midst, not sparing the little flock; 28 and from among your own selves will arise men speaking distorted things, to draw away the disciples after themselves. 29 Wherefore, be on the watch, remembering that for three years, night and day I gave myself no rest, with tears admonishing each one.
to go up unto Jerusalem. 13 Then answered Paul—
What are ye doing, weeping and breaking my heart?
For [I] not only to be bound, but to die in Jerusalem am ready, in behalf of the name of the Lord’s Jesus.
And [as he was not to be persuaded] we ceased, saying—
[The Lord’s] will be done!
And [after these days] making ready what we had we started to go up unto Jerusalem; and there went certain also of the disciples from Cesarea, along with us, who were to introduce us unto one with whom we might be entertained, one Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple.

§ 37. Paul, in Jerusalem, is rescued from the Multitude by the Captain.

Now when we came to Jerusalem [the brethren] gladly welcomed us. 18 And [on the next day] Paul went in with us unto James, and [all] the elders were present. 19 And [saluting them] he went on to narrate, one by one, each of the things which God had wrought among the nations through his ministry. 20 And they, having heard, began glorifying God; and they said to him—
Thou observest, brother, [how many myriads] there are, among the Jews, who have believed, and [all] are zealous for the law.
Now they have heard it rumoured concerning thee, that [an apostasy] art thou teaching [from Moses] unto all the Jews [who are among the nations], telling them, not to be circumcising their children, nor by the customs to be walking.

What, then, is it? [at all events] they will hear that thou hast come.

This, then, do, which [unto thee] we say:—
We have four men, who have a vow upon themselves. 23 <Taking these unto thee> be purged with them, and spend something upon them, that they may shave their head; and all will get to know that the things which they have heard rumoured concerning thee are nothing,—on the contrary [thou thyself] dost keep the ransoms, guarding the law.

But concerning them of the nations who have believed] we ourselves sent, deciding that they should be guarding themselves, both as to idol sacrifices, and blood, and what is strangled, and fornication.

Then Paul <taking unto him the men> [on the next day, with them] being purified, began entering into the temple to declare the filling up of the days of the purification—until the offering had been presented for each one of them. 27 <When, however, the seven days were on the point of being concluded [the Jews from Asia] observing him in the temple> began to urge-on all the multitude, and thrust upon them their hands, crying out—
Israelites! be giving help! [This] is the man who against the people, and the law, and this place is teaching all men everywhere; furthermore seven Greeks hath he brought into the temple, and hath profaned this holy place.

For they had before seen Trophimus, the Ephesian, in the city along with him, whom they were supposing [Paul] had brought [into the temple]. 28 And the whole city was set in motion, and there took place a running together of the people, and [laying hold of Paul] they proceeded to drag him outside the temple, and straightway the doors were made fast.

When, also, they were seeking to slay him—there was carried up information unto the captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was in confusion:—[who] instantly taking unto him solders and centurions ran down upon them; and [they] seeing the captain and the solders left off striking Paul. 29 Then the captain drawing near laid hold of him, and ordered him to be bound with two chains,—and began to enquire, who he might be, and what he had done; but [others] were calling out something else, in the multitude; and so as he could not get to know the certainty, because of the tumult he ordered him to be brought into the castle. 30 And [when he came unto the stairs] so it was that he was borne along by the solders, because of the force of the multitude; for the throng of the people was following, crying out—
Away with him!

But when he was on the point of being taken into the castle—Paul saith unto the captain—
Is it allowed me, to say somewhat unto thee? And [he] said—
[With Greek] art thou acquainted?
Not, then, art thou the Egyptian, who [before these days] stirred up to sedition, and led out into the wilderness the four-thousand men of the Assassins?
30 And Paul said—
[If] indeed, am a Jew, of Tarsus in Cilicia,—[a citizen] of no obscure city; but I beseech thee, give me leave to speak unto the people!

§ 38. Paul addresses the People: escapes Scourging: is set before the High-council.

And [when he had given leave] [Paul] standing upon the stairs waved with his hand unto the people; and [when great silence] was secured he addressed them in the Hebrew language, saying—
Brethren and fathers! Hear ye [the defence] which I now make unto you:—
And [when they heard that in the Hebrew language he had begun to address them] they kept the more quiet. And he saith—
If I am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but nurtured in this city, at the feet of Gamaliel,—trained after the strictness of our ancestral law; being jealous for God just as all ye are this day; and this way I persecuted unto the death, binding, and delivering up into prisons, both men and women:—

But it befell me as I was journeying, and drawing nigh unto Damascus, that about mid-day—suddenly—out of heaven there flashed a great light all around me; I fell also to the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me—

Saul! Saul! Why dost thou persecute?
And || I answered—
Who art thou, Lord?
And he said unto me—
|| am Jesus the Nazarene, whom thou art persecuting!
Now they who were with me beheld, indeed, the light; but heard not the voice of him that was speaking with me.
And I said—
What shall I do, Lord?
And the Lord said unto me—
Arise, and be going thy way into Damascus, and there shall it be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.
But as I could not see clearly owing to the glory of that light, being led by the hand of those who were with me I came into Damascus.

And one Ananias, a man devout according to the law, well-attested by all the Jews that dwelt there; coming unto me, and standing over me; said—
Saul, brother! look up.
And || in that very hour looked up on him.
And || || || The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, to get to know his will, and to see the Righteous One,—and to hear a voice out of his mouth.
And || || || what art thou going to do?
Arise, and get thyself immersed, and have thy sins bathed away, calling upon his name.
And it came to pass when I had returned unto Jerusalem, and was praying in the temple that I came to be in a trance, and saw him, saying unto me—
Haste thee, and go forth speedily out of Jerusalem, inasmuch as they will not accept thy witness concerning me.
And || I said—
Lord! they themselves well know, that I was imprisoning and beating, in every synagogue, them who were believing on thee.
And when the blood of Stephen thy witness was being shed, || even I myself was standing by, and approving, and guarding the mantles of them who were slaying him,
And he said unto me—
Be taking thy journey; because || unto nations afar off will send thee.
And they hearkened unto him as far as this word, and lifted up their voice, saying—
Away from the earth, with such a man as this, for it is not fit that he should live.
Now as they were both making an outcry and tearing their mantles,—dust also were throwing into the air the captain ordered him to be brought into the castle, saying, that with scourging he should be put to the test, that he might find out, for what cause they were thus clamouring against him.
But when they had stretched him out with stripes || said unto the by-standing centurion—
[A Roman, and uncondemned] is it allowed you to be scourging?
And when the centurion heard that he went unto the captain, and reported, saying—
What art thou going to do? For this man is a Roman!
And the captain, coming up, said to him—
Tell me! Art thou a Roman?
And || || || Yes!
And the captain answered—
|| || for a large sum this citizenship acquired!
And || || || But || am even [free.] born!
|| Straightway therefore, they who were about to put him to the test, withdrew from him; and even the captain was struck with fear, when he found out he was a Roman, and because him he had bound.
But || || || || being minded to get to know the certainty, as to why he was being accused by the Jews he released him, and ordered the High-priests and all the High-council to come together; and bringing down Paul set him before them.

§ 39. Paul rebukes the High-priest; divides the Council; and is brought back to the Castle.
And Paul looking steadfastly at the High-council, said—
Brethren! || || in all good conscience have used my citizenship for God, until this day.

mouth. 3 [Then] Paul unto him said—
God is about to be smiting thee, thou whitened wall! Dost thou then sit to judge me according to the law,* and unlawfully orderest me to be smitten?
4 And they who stood by said—
[The High-priest of God] dost thou revile Paul?
5 And Paul said—
I was not aware, brethren, that he was high-priest; because it is written—
[Of a ruler of thy people] shall thou not speak injuriously.†
6 <But Paul, getting to know that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees> began to cry aloud in the council—
Brethren! I am a Pharisee, son of Pharisees:—Concerning a hope, even of a rising again of the dead‖ am I to be judged.
7 And as this he was saying] there arose a dissension of the Pharisees and Sadducees; and rent asunder was the throng! For [Sadducees] say, there is no rising again, nor messenger, nor spirit, whereas [Pharisees] confess them both.
8 And there arose a great outcry, and certain of the Scribes of the party of the Pharisees, standing up, began to strive, saying—
[Nothing bad] find we in this man;—but <if a spirit> hath spoken unto him, or a messenger>...
9 And [great dissension arising] the captain fearing lest Paul would be torn in pieces by them> ordered the troop to go down, and take him by force out of their midst, to bring him into the castle.

§ 40. Paul's life being conspired against, he is sent to Caesarea unto the Governor Felix.

10 But on the following night] the Lord, standing over him, said—
Be of good courage! for <as thou hast fully borne witness of the things concerning me, in Jerusalem> [so] must thou in Rome also bear witness.
11 And when it became day] the Jews forming a conspiracy] bound themselves under a curse, saying, That they would neither eat nor drink till they had slain Paul. And they were <more than forty> who this sworn-confedency had formed. And they went unto the High-priests and Elders, and said—
With a curse] have we bound ourselves, to taste nothing until we have slain Paul.
12 [Now] therefore, do ye, with the High-council] make it appear unto the captain, that he should bring him down unto you, as though about to ascertain more exactly the things that concern him; and <well>. <or ever he come near> are ready to kill him.
13 But Paul's sister's son] hearing of the lying-in-wait, happening to be near, and coming into the castle,—reported it unto Paul. And Paul, calling unto him one of the centurions, said—
This young man, lead thou away unto the captain, for he hath somewhat to report unto him.
14 [He] therefore, taking him with him, brought him unto the captain, and said—
[The prisoner] Paul calling me unto him, requested me to bring <this> young man unto thee, as having somewhat to tell thee.
15 And the captain, taking him by the hand, and going aside] began [privately] to ask—
What is it which thou hast to report unto me?
16 And he said—
[The Jews] have agreed to request thee, that to-morrow thou wouldst bring Paul down into the High-council, as though about to ascertain something more exact concerning him.
17 Then therefore, do not be persuaded by them, who are lying in wait for him, from among them, more than forty men,—who, indeed, have bound themselves under a curse, neither to eat nor drink, till they have killed him; and <now> are they ready, awaiting the promise from thee.
18 [The captain] therefore, dismissed the young man, charging him—
Unto no one] divulge thou, that these things thou hast showed unto me.
19 And [calling certain two of the centurions] he said—
Make ye ready two hundred soldiers, that they may journey as far as Caesarea,—and seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen, by the third hour of the night:
20 [beasts also] provide, in order that satting Paul thereon] they may bring him safely through unto Felix the governor.
21 And he wrote a letter, after this form:—
Claudius Lysias, unto the most excellent governor Felix, Joy!
22 [This man, having been apprehended by the Jews, and being about to be killed by them] I went down with the troop, and rescued: having learned that he was a Roman.
23 And being minded to find out the cause for which they were accusing him] I took him down into their High-council] when I found to be accused concerning questions of their law, but of nothing worthy of death or bonds] to be charged.
24 But when I was informed there would be a plot against the man] forthwith] I sent him unto thee, charging his accusers also] to be speaking against him before thee.
25 [So the soldiers] according to their orders, taking up Paul] brought him by night unto Antipatris; and on the morrow] leaving the horsemen to go on with him] returned to the castle,—and the others <entering into Caesarea, and delivering the letter unto the governor> set [Paul also] before him.
26 And when he had read it, and asked, out of what province he was, and learned that he was from Cilicia>
I myself will hear thee in full, said he, whenever thine accusers also are come;
and gave orders that [in the palace of Herod]
a should be kept under guard.

41. Felix hears Paul's case: Converses often with him; but leaves him bound.

And [after five days] came down the High-priest Annas, with certain elders and a certain orator Tertullus, and they informed the governor against Paul.

2 And [when he was called] Tertullus began to make accusation, saying—
<Seeing that [great peace] we are obtaining through thee, and that [reforms] are being brought about for this nation through thy forethought> both in all ways and in all places: we accept all, most excellent Felix, with all thankfulness.

But [lest I too long detain thee] I beseech thee to hear us concisely in thy considerateness.

For [finding this man a pest, and moving sedition with all] the Jews that are throughout the inhabited earth, a leader also of the sect of the Nazarenes, who also attempted to desecrate even [the temple], whom we also seized> from whom thou shalt be able [by examining all these things] to ascertain the things of which we are accusing him.

Moreover, the Jews also were joining in the attack, saying that [these things] were [so].

And Paul answered, when the governor had motioned him to be speaking, — <Well knowing thee to have been [for many years] judge unto this nation> I [cheerfully] as to the things concerning myself; do I make defence; seeing thou art able to ascertain, that there are [not more] than twelve days, since I went up to worship in Jerusalem, [and neither in the temple] found they me [with any one] disputing, or causing [a hal]t of the multitude, either in the synagogues or throughout the city,— neither can they make good the things concerning which they are [now] accusing me.

But I confess [this] unto thee. —That [according to the Way which they call a Sect] am I rendering divine service unto my fathers' God, believing in all the things which [throughout the law] and those which [in the prophets] are written:
Having [hope] towards God, which [even these themselves] do entertain,—that [a resurrection] there shall certainly be, both of righteous and of unrighteous: [herein] even [myself] am studying to have [an unoffending conscience], towards God and men, continually.

Now [after many years] intending to do [alms] unto my nation I arrived,—also

[to present] offerings; among which they found me, purified in the temple, not with a multitude, nor with tumult: but certain Jews from Asia [caused it]. — who [ought] before thee] to have presented themselves, and to have been laying accusation, if [anything] they might have had against me: — Or, [these themselves] say what wrong they found, when I stood before the High-council, unless concerning this one voice, wherewith I cried aloud among them, as I stood—

<Concerning the raising of the dead> am I [to be judged], this day, by you.

And Felix deferred them, having more exact knowledge concerning the Way,—saying—
<As soon as [Lystra the captain] hath come down> I will give judgment as to your affairs,— giving orders unto the centurion, that he should be kept, and have a measure of liberty, and to be hindering [none] of his own from waiting upon him.

And [after certain days] <Felix having arrived, with Drusilla his own wife, who was [a Jewess]> he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith respecting Christ Jesus. — And [as he was reasoning of righteousness, and self-control, and the judgment to come]> Felix becoming greatly afraid answered—
[/For the present] be going thy way, and [when I find an opportunity] I will send for thee.—

[at the same time] also hoping that [money] would be given him by Paul; [wherefore also] <the more frequently sending for him> he used to converse with him. 7 <When however> [two years were completed]> Felix was succeeded [by Porcius Festus], and Felix wishing to gain favour with the Jews left Paul bound.

§ 42. Festus wishing him to go to Jerusalem, Paul appears unto Caesar.

25 Festus therefore, having come upon the province, [after three days] went up unto Jerusalem from Cesarea; and the High-priests and chief of the Jews laid information before him against Paul, and began to beseech him, asking for themselves as a favour against him, that he would send for him unto Jerusalem,—making an ambush to kill him on the way.

Festus therefore, answered, that Paul should be kept in Cesarea, and that [he himself] was about [shortly] to be going out [thither].

<They, therefore, among you] (saith he] who are in power> let them go down with me; and [if there is in the man anything amiss] let them accuse him.

And <spending among them, not more than eight or ten days> he went down unto Cesarea; and [on the morrow] taking his place upon the judgment-seat ordered Paul to be brought. 7 And when he presented himself, the Jews who from Jerusalem had come down, stood round about him, many and grievous charges bringing against him, which they were not able to prove—Paul saying in defence—

<Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Caesar> have I in anything sinned.

9 But Festus <wishing with the Jews to gain favour> answered Paul, and said—

Art thou willing unto Jerusalem to go up, and there concerning these things be judged before me?

10 But Paul said—

<Standing before the judgment-seat of Caesar> am I, where [I] ought to be judged.

<Unto the Jews> have I done no wrong, as [even thou] right well art discovering.

11 If then, on the one hand, I am doing wrong, and anything worthy of death have committed, I deserve not myself from dying; but, on the other hand, if there is nothing in the things whereof these are accusing me—[no man] hath power to give [me] unto them as a favour:

<Unto Caesar> I appeal!

12 Then Festus <having conversed with the council> answered—

§ 43. King Agrippa, informed by Festus of Paul, wishes to hear him.

13 And some days having gone by, Agrippa the king and Bernice came down to Caesarea, to salute Festus. 14 And as they were spending more days there > Festus repeated unto the king, the things relating to Paul, saying—

A certain man hath been left behind by Felix, [as a prisoner]; concerning whom when I happened to be in Jerusalem the High-priests and the Elders of the Jews laid information, claiming against him a condemnation: unto whom I made answer—that it is not a custom with Romans, to grant as a favour any man, before the accused [face to face] should have his accusers, and [opportunity of defence] should receive, concerning the charge.

17 Therefore, they had come together here, no delay whatsoever making, on the next day I taking my place upon the judgment-seat I ordered the man to be brought:

Concerning whom, taking their stand, his accusers, no accusation at all were bringing, of the evil things which I had been suspecting; but certain questions concerning their own demon-worship had they against him, and concerning one Jesus, who had died, whom Paul was affirming to be alive.

19 And [I] <being at a loss> as to the inquiry into these things > was asking—Whether he might be minded to go unto Jerusalem, and there be judged concerning these things. 21 But [Paul] <having appealed to be kept for the decision of the Emperor> I ordered him to be kept, until I could send him up unto Caesar.

23 And Agrippa [said] unto Festus—

I could wish myself also to hear the man. To-morrow (said he) thou shalt hear him.

§ 44. Paul before King Agrippa.

25 [On the morrow, therefore] when Agrippa had come, and Bernice, with great display, and they had entered into the audience-chamber, with the captains of thousands and men of distinction of the city, and Festus had given orders Paul was brought. 24 And Festus saith—

King Agrippa, and all ye men here present with us:

Ye observe this person, concerning whom one and all the throne of the Jews have interceded with me, both in Jerusalem and here, crying aloud that he ought not to be living any longer.

25 But if I gathered, that [nothing worthy of death] had he committed; and <this man himself> having appealed unto the Emperor I decided to send him—

Concerning whom [anything certain to write unto my lord] I have not; wherefore, I have brought him forth before you, and especially before thee, King Agrippa; in order that, after examination had, I might have something I could write;

27 For unreasonable, unto me, it seemeth, [when sending a prisoner; not also the accusations against him] to signify.

28 And Agrippa [unto Paul] said—

It is permitted thee on thine own behalf to be speaking.

29 Then Paul <stretching forth his hand went on to make his defence.>

2 <Concerning all things of which I am accused by Jews, King Agrippa> I have been counting myself happy, that [before thee am I about, this day, to be making my defence; especially as thou art well versed in all the Jewish customs and questions. Wherefore, I beseech thee patiently] to hear me.

4 My manner of life, then, from my youth, which from its commencement was formed among my nation, even in Jerusalem, was known all Jews, insomuch as they were aforetime observing me, from the outset, if they please to bear witness—that according to the strictest sect of our own religion I lived [as a Pharisee].

6 And [now] <for the hope of the promise unto our fathers being brought to pass by God am I standing to be judged>, unto which hope our twelve-tribed nation, with intensity, night and day, rendering
But—

<Both to them in Damascus, first, and in Jerusalem,
Unto all the country of Judaea also, and unto the nations>
I carried tidings—
That they should repent, and turn unto God,
And works worthy of their repentance should practise.

Because of these things! Jews seized me in the temple, and were attempting to slay me with their own hands.

So then <having met with | the help that is from God> | until this day | do I stand, witnessing to both small and great, | nothing else saying, than these things which both the prophets | and Moses did say should certainly come to pass:—

If | to suffer | the Christ was destined,
If <the first of a resurrection of the dead> he is about to carry tidings | of light | both unto the people, and unto the nations.

Now <as he was saying these things in his defence> Festus | with a loud | voice | saith—Thou art raving, Paul!
| Thy great learning | is turning thee round unto | raving madness.

But Paul—

I am not raving (saith he), most noble Festus, —but | the declarations of truth’ and soberness’ am I sounding forth:

For well-knoweth | the king | concerning these things, unto whom | with boldness of utterance | am I speaking; | for | that these things are not hidden from him | I am well persuaded,—for | not in a corner | hath this thing been done.

Believeth thou, King Agrippa, in the prophets? I know that thou believest!

And | Agrippa [said] unto Paul—
Almost | art thou persuading | me | to become a | Christian!

And | Paul [answered]—
I could pray unto God that <both almost’ and altogether, | not only thou’ but all’ who are hearing me this day | might become such,—as even | I am, | [excepting these bonds].

And the king rose up, and the governor, Bernice also, and they who had been sitting with them;

and | retiring | they began conversing one with another, saying—Nothing worthy of death’ or of bonds’ doth this man practise.

This man might have been released | if he had not appealed unto Caesar.

§ 45. Paul’s Voyage and Shipwreck.

Now <when it was determined that we should sail for Italy> they proceeded to deliver Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto a centurion by name Julius, of an Augustan band. 2 and <going on board a ship of Adramittium, about to sail into the places along the coast of Asia> we put to sea, there being with us, Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica; 3 and [on the next day] we put into Zidon, 4 and Julius treating Paul kindly, 5 gave him leave to go unto his friends and refresh himself; 6 and [from thence] putting out to sea we sailed under the lee of Cyprus because the winds were contrary; 7 and [sailing across] the sea which is off Cilicia and Pamphylia>, we came down to Myra, a city of Lycia. 4 And the centurion finding a ship of Alexandria sailing for Italy put us therein. 7 And [for a good many days] sailing slowly, and getting with difficulty over against Cnidus, the wind not suffering us to get on, we sailed under the lee of Crete, over against Salamis; 8 and [with difficulty] coasting it we came to a certain place called Fair Havens, near to which was the city of Lasea.

ACTS XXVII. 2–40.

And when a considerable time had passed, and sailing was already dangerous, because even the Fast 9 had already gone by> Paul began to advise, saying to them—

Sirs! I perceive that with damage and great loss, not only of the cargo and of the ship, but even of our persons shall the voyage certainly be attended.

But [the centurion] by the master, and by the shipowner was more persuaded than that the things which by Paul were spoken. 12 And <the harbour being incommmodious> to winter in> the part advised to put to sea from thence, if by any means they might be able to reach Phenicia, in winter, [which was] a harbour of Crete, looking north-east and south-east.

And [a South wind blowing softly] supposing they had secured their purpose weighing anchor, they began to sail close in shore along Crete. 14 But [after no long time] there beat down from it a tempestuous wind, called Euraqullo, 15 and <the ship being caught and we not being able to bring her head to the wind> we let her go, and were borne along.

And <running under the lee of some small island called Cauna> we were able with difficulty to make ourselves masters of the boat, 17 which, hoisting up, they began to use as a ship, undergirding the ship; and <fearing lest on the sand-bank of Africa> they should run aground lowering the gear, 18 were they borne along. 19 But [as we were exceedingly being tossed] on the next day they began to throw [cargo] overboard; 19 and [on the third day with their own hands] the tackling of the ship they cast away. 20 And <neither sun nor stars appearing for many days, and no small tempest lying upon us> in the end all hope that we should be saved began to be taken from us. 21 But <when they had been long without food> 22 [then] Paul, standing in the midst of them, said—

Ye ought, indeed, Sirs! yielding to me not to have sailed away from Crete, to get this damage and loss. 22 And [now] I recommend you to be of good courage; for [loss of life] shall there be none at all from among you, only of the ship.

For there stood by me this night belonging unto the God whose I am, unto whom also I am doing divine service> a messenger, saying—

Be not afraid, Paul! for before Caesar must thou needs stand.

And lo! God hath granted thee as a favour, all them who are sailing with thee.

Wherefore, be of good courage, Sirs; for I believe in God—that so it shall be, according as it hath been told me.

Upon a certain island however, must we needs be wrecked.

And when the fourteenth night had come, and we were being driven to and fro in the Adriatic about midnight the sailors suspected that some country was [sounding] them and sounding they found twenty fathoms— and going a little further and again sounding they found fifteen fathoms. 28 And <fearing lest haply on rocky places we should be wrecked> out of stern cast they four anchors, and began praying that day might dawn.

But when the sailors were seeking to flee out of the ship, and had lowered the boat into the sea, by pretext, as though out of the prow they had been about to reach anchors> Paul said unto the centurion, and unto the soldiers— Except these abide in the ship> ye yourselves cannot be saved!

Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off. 30 And [until day was about to dawn] Paul continued to beseech one and all to take some food, saying—

This day is the fourteenth day that in suspension fasting ye have completing, having helped yourselves to nothing.

Therefore, I beseech you to take some food, for this lays a foundation for your safety; for of no one of you shall a hair of the head perish.

And <having said these things, and taken a loaf> he gave thanks unto God before all, and [breaking it] began to eat. 35 And <all becoming of good cheer> they also helped themselves to food. 37 Now we were in the ship, in all, about seventy-six souls.

And when they were satisfied with food they began lightening the ship, casting out the wheat into the sea. 39 And [when day came] they could not recognize the land; but perceived a certain bay having a beach—upon which they were minded, if they could safely to bring the ship. 40 And casting off the anchors they let them go into the sea,—at the same time.

time] loosening the lashings of the rudders, and | hoisting up the foresail to the wind | they made for the beach. 41 But <falling into a place where two seas met> they ran the ship aground; and | the foreship sticking fast | remained immovable, while | the stern | began to break up, from the violence [of the waves]. 42 Now | the soldiers' counsel | turned out to be, that they should kill | the prisoners, lest any one should swim out and escape; 43 but | the centurion | <being minded to bring Paul safely through> hindered them of their purpose, and ordered such as were able to swim, to cast themselves overboard and | get first | to the land, 44 and | the rest | [some] on planks, and [some] on other things from the ship>... and [so] it came to pass, that [all] were brought safely through, on to the land.

§ 47. Paul in Rome.

And [when we entered into Rome] Paul was suffered to abide by himself, with the soldier that guarded him.

And it came to pass, after three days, that he called together those who were the chief of the Jews; and [when they came together] he began to say unto them—

And [though I had done] no thing against the people, or the customs of our fathers—[as a prisoner] out of Jerusalem was delivered into the hands of the Romans;—18 who, indeed, [when they had examined me] were minded to set me at liberty, because there was [nothing worthy of death] in me.

But [as the Jews spake against it] I was constrained to appeal unto Caesar, not as though [against my nation] I had anything to bring by way of accusation.

For this cause | therefore, I have called for you, to see and to speak with you; for | on account of the hope of Israel | this chain, have I about me!

And | they | said | unto him|—

We | have neither received | letters concerning thee | from the Jews, nor hath anyone of the brethren | who hath arrived | reported or spoken concerning thee, anything ill.

But we doth it well, that | from thee | we should hear what are thine opinions; for, indeed, [concerning this sect] it is [known to us] that | everywhere | is it spoken against.

And | having arranged with him a day | there came unto him, to the lodging, a larger number; unto whom he proceeded to expound, bearing full witness as to the kingdom of God, and persuading them concerning Jesus, both from the law of Moses, and from the prophets,—from morning till evening. 24 And [some] indeed, were persuaded by the things that were spoken, whereas [others] disbelieved; 25 and <not being | agreed | among themselves> they began to leave.—Paul having said one thing—

Well did | the Holy Spirit | speak through Isaiah the prophet, unto your fathers, saying—

Go thy way unto this people, and say—

Ye shall | surely hear | and yet will in no wise understand,

And | surely see | and yet will in no wise perceive;

For the heart of this people | hath become dense,

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE

ROMANS.

1 Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, the called Apostle,
   Separated unto the glad-message of God—
   Which he promised beforehand, through his prophets, in holy scriptures—
   Concerning his Son,—
   Who came to be of the seed of David, according to flesh,
   Who was distinguished as the Son of God—
   By power,
   According to a Holy Spirit,
   Through means of a resurrection of the dead,—
   Jesus Christ our Lord;
   Through whom we have received favour and apostleship, For obedience of faith among all the nations, in behalf of his name,
   Among whom are also called of Jesus Christ:
   Unto all that are in Rome, beloved of God, called saints,
   Favour unto you, and peace.
   From God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ.

2 How incessantly I am making mention of you at all times in my prayers,—
   Making supplication—
   If by some means, even now, at any time I may have a way opened, in the will of God, to come unto you;—
   For I am longing to see you,
   That I may impart some spiritual gift unto you,
   To the end ye may be established,—
   That is to say—There may be a mutual encouragement among you, Each by the other’s faith, [Both yours and mine].
   I do not wish, however that ye should be ignorant, brethren,
   That many times I have purposed to come unto you,
   But have been hindered, until the present,—
   In order that some fruit I might have among you also, even as among the other nations.

3 Both to Greeks and to Barbarians,
   Both to wise and to unwise] [a debtor] I am:
   Thus the eagerness on my part—
   Unto you also who are in Rome;
   To announce the joyful message.
   For I am not ashamed of the joyful message:
   For it is God’s power unto salvation, to every one that believeth,
   Both to Jew [first] and to Greek;
   For the righteousness of God is therein revealed,—
   By faith unto faith:
   Even as it is written—

   22 Chap. xv. 23, 32.
   23 1 Co. i. 18.
For there is being revealed an anger of God from heaven—
Against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men
Who [the truth, in unrighteousness] do hold down;
Inasmuch as [what may be known of God] is manifest among them,
For [God] unto them hath made it manifest,
For [the unseen things of him] [from a world's creation]. Are clearly seen,
Even his eternal power and divinity.
To the end they should be without excuse;
Inasmuch as [having come to know God].
<Professing to be wise> they were made foolish,
And exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God for the likeness * of an image of a corruptible man, and of birds and four-footed beasts and reptiles:
Wherefore God [gave them up] in the covetings of their hearts, unto impurity, so as to be dishonouring their bodies among them,— [Who], indeed, exchanged away the truth of God for the falsehood, And rendered worship and service unto the creature rather than unto the Creator,— Who is blessed unto the ages. Amen!
For this cause God gave them up unto dishonourable passions; 4 For [even their females] exchanged away the natural use into that which is against nature,—
In like manner also [even the males], <Leaving the natural use of the females>
Flamed out in their eager desire one for another, [Males with males] [the indecency] effecting,—
And <the necessary recompence of their error> [within themselves] duly receiving;—
And <even as they did not approve to be holding [God] in acknowledgment>
God gave them up unto a disapproved mind.

To be doing the things that are not becoming,—
Filled with all unrighteousness, wickedness, greed, baseness, Full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, evil disposition,
Whisperers, detractors, haters of God, insolent, arrogant, vain boasters, inventors of vices; [unto parents] unyielding,
Without discernment, regardless of covenants, without natural affection, unmerciful;—
[Who], indeed, <having acknowledged [the righteous sentence of God]>— That [they who such things as these] do practise are worthy of death;> Not only [the same things] are doing, But are even delighting together with them who are practising [them].

Wherefore <inexcusable> thou art, O man [whoever thou judgest]; For [wherewith thou judgest some one else] thyself thou dost condemn,— For [the very things] thou dost practise [who] art judging:
We know, however. that [the sentence of God] is according to truth, against them who [such things as these] do practise.
And reckonest thou this, O man—<Who dost judge them who [such things] do practise, and yet art doing the same> That [thou shalt escape the sentence of God]? Or [the riches of his kindness, and forbearance, and long-suffering] dost thou despise,— Not knowing that [the kindness of God] unto repentance is leading thee? But [according to thy hardness, and [thine] impenitent heart> Art treasuring up for thyself anger, in a day of anger and revelation of the righteous judgment of God,—
Who will render unto each one according to his works:—
<Unto them, on the one hand, who by way of endurance in good work are seeking [glory, honour and incorruption] [life age-abiding]>.
<Unto them, on the other hand, who are of contention, and are not yielding unto the truth, but are yielding unto unrighteousness> [anger and wrath, tribulation and anguish]—against every soul of man who worketh out what is base, Both of Jew first and of Greek—
But glory and honour and peace—Unto every one who worketh what is good, Both unto Jew first and unto Greek;
For there is no respect of persons with God;—

For as many as without law sinned,
|| Without law || also shall perish,
And as many as within law sinned—
||Through law|| shall be judged;
For not the hearers of law* are righteous with God,
But the doers of law shall be declared righteous;
For whatsoever the nations which have not law || by nature, the things of the law may be doing || the same || not having law || unto themselves, are a law,—
Who indeed show the work of the law written in their hearts, Their conscience therewith bearing witness. And between one another their reasonings accusing—or even excusing—them:—
In the day on which God judgeth the secrets of men according to my glad message, through Christ Jesus:*
|If, however, thou art taking the name of Jew,
And resting thyself upon law,
And boasting in God,
And art taking note of his will. And testing the things that differ—when receiving oral instruction out of the law,
Art persuaded, moreover, that thou thyself art—A guide of the blind. A light of them that are in darkness. || A trainer of the simple. || A teacher of babes. Having the forming of knowledge and truth in the law—>
|Thou therefore, that art teaching someone else
|Thyself art thou not teaching?
|Thou that proclaimest—Do not steal!
Art thou || stealing?
|That sayest—Do not commit adultery!
Art thou || committing adultery?
|That abhorrest sacrilege
Art thou || robbing temples?
|That in law dost boast
||Through the transgression of the law, art thou dishonouring God?
For the name of God || because of you || is defamed among the nations,—
Even as it is written:
For || circumcision || indeed, profteth—if law thou be practising;
But if thou be || a transgressor of law || thy || circumcision hath become uncircumcision.
|If then || the uncircumcision || be guarding || the righteous requirement of the law || Shall not || this uncircumcision || || as circumcision || be reckoned?
|And the uncircumcision by nature || completing the law|
Shall judge thee who notwithstanding:

For not he who is one in appearance is a Jew,
Nor is that which is such in appearance, in flesh || circumcision;
But he who is one in secret is a Jew,—
And that is || circumcision || which is of the heart, in spirit, not in letter,—
Whose praise* is not of men, but of God.

What, then, is the preeminence of the Jew?
Or what, the profit of his circumcision?
Much, every way—
||First,|| indeed, that they were entrusted with the oracles of God.
For what? || If some distrusted || shall their distrust make || the trust of God void?
Far be it! But let || God || prove to be || true,|| albeit || every man || be false!
Even as it is written—
That thou mightest be declared righteous in thy words,
And overcome when thou art in judgment.
But || our unrighteousness || commendeth || God's righteousness || what shall we say?
Surely || not unrighteousness || is God who visiteth with his anger?
|| After the manner of men || I am speaking,—
Far be it! Else how shall God judge the world?
But || the truth of God || by my falsehood hath the more abounded unto his glory> Why || any longer || am I even I || as a sinner to be judged?
And why not || according as we are injuriously charged, || and according as some affirm that we say> Let us do the bad things, that the good ones may come? || whose sentence is || just||.
What then? do we screen ourselves?
Not at all! For we have before accused both Jews and Greeks of being || all under sin:
Even as it is written—
There is none righteous, || not even one,
There is none that discerneth, || there is none that seeketh out
|| All || have turned aside, || together || have become useless,
There is none that doeth kindness, || So not as much as one;
|| A sepulchre, opened || is their throat,
|| With their tongues || have they used deceit,
|| The poison of asp || is under their lips,
|| Whose mouth || of cursing and bitterness is full,
|| Swift || are their feet to shed blood;
|| Destruction and misery || are in their ways,
And || way of peace || have they not known;

\ Or (WH): simply "seek-eth."
There is no fear of God before their eyes.  Now we know, That whatsoever things the law saith, To them who are within the law: it speaketh, In order that every mouth may be stopped, And all the world come under penalty sentence unto God. Inasmuch as by works of law shall no flesh be declared righteous before him;— Through law in fact, is discovery of sin. But now apart from law a righteousness of God hath been manifested, Borne witness to by the law and the prophets,— A righteousness of God, through faith in Jesus Christ, unto all that have faith; For there is no distinction,— For all have sinned, and fall short of the glory of God; Being declared righteous freely by his favour, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus:— Whom God hath set forth as a propitiatory covering through faith in his blood, For a showing forth of his righteousness, By reason of the passing-by of the previously committed sins, in the forbearance of God,— With a view to a showing forth of his righteousness in the present season, That he might be righteous even when declaring righteous him that hath faith in Jesus. Where, then, the boasting! It is excluded. Through what kind of law? Of works? Nay! but through a law of faith: For we reckon that a man is to be declared righteous by faith. Or is God the God of Jews only, and not of the nations also? Yea! of the nations also:— If, at all events, God is one, Who will declare righteous— The circumcision, by faith, And the uncircumcision, through their faith. Do we then make law void, through means of our faith? Far be it! On the contrary, law we do establish! What, then, shall we say— as touching Abraham our forefather? For if Abraham by works was declared righteous, he hath whereof to boast,— Nevertheless, not towards God,— For what doth the Scripture say?

And Abraham believed in God, And it was reckoned unto him as righteousness.  Now unto him that worketh is not reckoned by way of favour, but by way of obligation, Whereas unto him that worketh not, but believeth on him that declareth righteous, the ungodly his faith is reckoned as righteousness. Just as David also affirmeth the happiness of the man, unto whom |God| reckoneth righteousness, apart from works:— they whose lawlessnesses have been forgiven, And whose sins have been covered, The Lord will in no wise reckon.  ||This happiness then, is it for the circumcision, or for the uncircumcision? For we say— His faith was reckoned unto Abraham as righteousness:— How, then, was it reckoned? When he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision, Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision; And a sign he received [namely] of circumcision, A seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had while yet uncircumcised; To the end he might be father of all that believe during uncircumcision, To the end the same righteousness might be reckoned unto them,— And father of circumcision— Unto them who are not of circumcision only, But who also walk in the steps of the faith, while yet uncircumcised| of our father Abraham, For not through means of law doth the promise belong unto Abraham or unto his seed,— That he should be heir of the world; But through a righteousness by faith. For they who are of law are heirs, Made void is faith, And of no effect is the promise. For the law worketh out anger, But where there is no law neither is there transgression. ||For this cause it is by faith, in order that it may be by way of favour, So that the promise is firm unto all the seed,— Not unto that by the law only, But unto that also [which is such] by the faith of Abraham; Who is father of us all,—

17 Even as it is written—
\[Father of many nations\] have I appointed thee:
Before him whom he believed—\[God\],
Who causeth the dead to live,
And calleth the things that are not as things that are:
Who \[past hope\] \[upon hope\] believed,
So that he became \[father of many nations\], —
According to what had been said—
\[So shall be thy seed\] —; —
And \(<\text{without becoming weak in his faith}>\) he attentively considered his own body, already deadened—He being a hundred years old, The deadening also of Sarah’s womb; 20 \(<\text{In respect, however, of the promise of God}>\) he was not led to hesitate by unbelief, But received power by his faith, Giving glory unto God, 21 And being fully persuaded (that) — \(<\text{What he had promised}>\)
\[Able\] is he also to perform:
Wherefore \[also\], \[it was reckoned unto him as righteousness\].
23 Now it was not written for his sake alone, that \[it was reckoned unto him\], —
But for our sakes also—unto whom it is to be reckoned, —
Even unto them that believe upon him who raised Jesus our Lord from among the dead:
\[Who was delivered up on account of our offences\].
And was raised on account of the declaring us righteous.

5 \(<\text{Having, therefore, been declared righteous by faith}>\)
Let us have \[peace\] towards God,
Through our \text{Lord Jesus Christ}, —
Through whom also we have had \[our introduction\] \[by our faith\] into this favour wherein we stand *;
And let us boast in hope of the glory of God.
And \[not only so\] But let us boast also in our tribulations;
Knowing that \[our tribulation\] worketh out \[endurance\].
And \[our endurance\] a testing,
And \[our testing\] hope,
And \[our hope\] \[putteth not to shame\].
Because \[the love of God\] hath been poured out in our hearts, Through the Holy Spirit that hath been given unto us:
Seeing that \[Christ\]
\[We being weak as yet\]
\[Reasonably, in behalf of such as were ungodly\] died.
7 For \[scarcely in behalf of a righteous man\] will one die,—
\[in behalf of the good man, indeed\] \[perhaps\] one even darest to die;
But God \[commendeth his own love unto us\]
In that—
\[We as yet being sinners\] —
\[Christ\] \[in our behalf\] died.
\[Much more\] then, \[having now been declared righteous by his blood\] Shall we be saved \[through him\] from the anger.*
For \(<\text{if being enemies}>\)
We were reconciled unto God through the death of his Son — \[Much more\] \[having been reconciled\] Shall we be saved by his life.
And \[not only so\] but are even boasting in God,
Through our \text{Lord Jesus Christ}, —
Through whom \[now\] \[the reconciliation\] we have received.
For this cause —
\[Just as through one man\] \[sin\] into the world entered,
And \[through sin\] \[death\] —
And \[so\] \[unto all men\] death passed through,
For that \[all\] had sinned; —
For \[until law\] \[sin\] was in the world,
Although \[sin\] is not reckoned, when \[there\] is no law, —
Yet still \[death reigneth\] from Adam until Moses,
Even over them who had not sinned after the likeness of the transgression of Adam, —
\[Who is a type\] of the Coming One\[*\]; —
But \[not as the fault\] —
\[So\] \[also\] the decree of favour,
For \(<\text{if by the fault of the one\rangle the many\rangle died}\) —
\[Much more\] \[the favour of God, and the free-gift in favour, by the one\] man Jesus Christ \[unto the many\] superabounded *;
And \[not as through one that sinned\] Is that which is freely given, —
For \[the sentence of judgment\] indeed was —
\[Out of one\] \[fault\] into condemnation,
Whereas \[the decree of favour\] is — \[Out of many\] faults into a recovery of righteousness.
For \(<\text{if by the fault of the one\rangle death reigneth through the one\rangle}\)
\[Much more\] \[they who\] \[the superabundance of the favour and of\] \[the free-gift of\] \[the righteousness\] do receive — \[In life\] shall reign through the one, \[Jesus Christ\]
Hence, then \[as through one\] \[fault\] \[the sentence was\] unto all men unto condemnation —
\[So\] \[also\] \[through one\] recovery of righteouness> [the decree of favour] is unto all men for *righteous acquittal unto life ;

19 For <just as it> through the disobedience of the one man || [sinners] the many were constituted >

||So> also [through the obedience of the one] || [righteous] the many shall be constituted :—

20 ||Law> however, gained admission, *in order that the fault might abound ;

But <where the sin abounded> the favour greatly superabounded ; — — — — —

21 In order that——

*Just as [sin] reigned in death> ||So> also [favour] might reign through righteousness unto life age-abiding, 4

||Through Jesus Christ our Lord ||

6 What, then, shall we say ?

Are we still to continue in sin, that [favour, may abound ?

Far be it !

<We who have died unto sin> how [any longer] shall we live therein ?

Or know ye not, that ||we, as many as were immersed* into Christ ||[Jesus] ||[into his death] were immersed ?

We were, therefore, buried together with him *through our immersion into his death,

In order that——

*Just as Christ was raised' from among the dead through the glory of the Father> ||So|| we also *in newness of life should walk.

For <if we have come to be [grown together> in the likeness of his death>

Certainly ||in ||that of his resurrection also ||shall we be.

| Of this| taking note——

That ||our old man ||[was crucified together with him, in order that the sinful body* might be made powerless, That we should ||[no longer] be in servitude to sin ;

For ||the that hath died ||hath become righteously acquitted from his sin.

Now <if we have died together with Christ> we believe that we shall also live together with him ;

Knowing that <[Christ having been raised from among the dead> ||[no more] dieth,—

||Death> ||over him ||[no more] hath lordship.—

12 For <in that he died> ||unto sin ||died he ||once for all, But <in that he liveth> he liveth unto God.

11 So ||[ye also] be reckoning yourselves to be — ||Dead indeed unto sin,

But ||[alive unto God] in Christ Jesus ||.

Let not sin, therefore, reign' in your death—doomed body

That ye should be obedient to its covetings ;

Neither be presenting your members, as weapons of unrighteousness, unto sin,

But ||[present yourselves] unto God, as though alive ||[from among the dead], And your members, as weapons of righteousness unto God ;

For ||sin ||[over you] shall not have lordship.

For ye are not under law, but under favour.*

What then?

Shall we sin, because we are not under law, but under favour ?

Far be it !

Know ye not that <unto whom ye are presenting yourselves as servants for obedience> ||[Servants] ye are unto [him unto] whom ye are obedient, Whether of sin unto death, Or of obedience unto righteousness ?

17 But thanks be unto God, that——

<Whereas ye were servants of sin>

Ye became obedient out of the heart unto the mould of teaching [into which ye were delivered] 5 ;

And <being freed from sin> ye were made servants unto righteousness ;—

||In human fashion I am speaking, because of the weakness of your flesh ;—

For <just as ye presented your members as servants unto impurity and unto lawlessness [for lawlessness] >.

||So, now|| present ye your members as servants unto righteousness, for sanctification.

20 For <when ye were ||[servants] of sin> ye were ||[free] as to righteousness ;—

What' fruit, therefore, had ye ||[then]—in things for which ye ||[now] are taking shame to yourselves ?

For ||the end of those things ||is death. 3

22 Whereas ||now|| [having been freed from sin, and made servants unto God]

Ye have your fruit for sanctification.

And ||the end ||[life age-abiding].

23 For ||[the wages of sin] is death ;

But ||God's gift of favour ||is life age—abiding. 4 ||[In Christ Jesus our Lord ||

7 Or are ye ignorant, brethren,—

<For ||unto them that understand* law, am I speaking>.

That ||the law ||hath lordship over a man ||as long as he liveth ?

2 For ||[the married] woman ||unto her living husband ||is bound by law 1.

But if her husband have died>
She hath received a full release from the law of her husband.

Hence then if her husband being alive>
An adulteress shall be called—If she become another man's;
But if the husband have died> she is free from the law;
So that she is not an adulteress, though she become another man's.

So then, my brethren, ye also were made dead unto the law through the body of the Christ,
To the end ye might become another's—
His who [from among the dead] was raised,
In order that we might bring forth fruit unto God.

For when we were in the flesh> the susceptibilities of sins which were through the law, used to be energized in our members, unto the bringing forth of fruit unto death;
But now we have received full release from the law, by dying [in that] wherein we used to be held fast,
So that we should be doing service—
In newness of spirit.
And not in obsolence of letter.

What then shall we say?
Is the law sin? For be it!

On the contrary: I had not discovered sin save through law,
For even [of coveting:] I had not been aware, if the law had not kept on saying—

Thou shalt not covet;

Howbeit sin, taking occasion—
Through the commandment wrought out in me all manner of coveting;
For apart from law, sin is dead;—

And I, was alive, apart from law, at one time,
But the commandment coming>
Sin sprang up to life, whereas I died,—
And the commandment which was unto life was found by me to be itself unto death;

For sin—taking occasion—
Through the commandment completely deceived me,
And through it slew me;

So that the law! indeed is holy, and the commandment holy, and righteous and good.

Did then, that which is good> unto me become death?
Far be it!
But [it was] sin <that it might appear sin>
through that which was good> unto me working out death,

In order that exceeding sinful might become through the commandment;
For we know, that the law is spiritual,—
[1] however, am a creature of flesh,
Sold under sin;

For <that which I am working out> I do not approve,—
For not <what I wish> the same I practise;—

But <what I hate> the same I do:
Now if I wish not the same I do
I consent unto the law, that it is right.

But the sin> that dwelleth in me;—

I know, in fact, that there dwelleth not in me <that is in my flesh> anything [that is good];
For the wishing lieth near me,
But the working out of what is right; not;—
For not <the good that I wish> I do,
But <the evil that I do not wish> the same I practise.

Now if I wish not the same I do
No longer am I working it out,
But the sin> that dwelleth in me;—

Hence, I find the law <To me who wish to be doing the right>
That unto me [the wrong] lieth near:

I have, in fact, a sympathetic pleasure in the law of God;—according to the inner man.
But I behold a diverse law in my members,
Warring against the law of my mind,
And taking me captive in the law of sin which existeth in my members:—

Wretched man am I! Why shall I rescue me out of this body doomed to death?—

[But] thanks be to God!—Through Jesus Christ our Lord;—

Hence, then,—
I myself> [with the mind, indeed am] in servitude unto a law of God;
But >with the flesh> unto a law of sin.

Hence, there is now no condemnation unto them who are in Christ Jesus;
For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath set thee> free from the law of sin and of death;—

For that which was impossible by the law, in that it was weak through the flesh>
[God] <by sending his own Son, in the likeness of sinful flesh, and concerning sin>—

Condemned sin in the flesh,

In order that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in

20 Now if I wish not; the same I do;
No longer: am I working it out,
But the sin that dwelleth in me.

21 Hence, I find the law in me who wish to be doing the right;
That unto me the wrong lieth near.

8 Hence, there is now no condemnation unto them who are in Christ Jesus;
For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath set thee free from the law of sin and of death;

3 For what was impossible by the law, in that it was weak through the flesh;

Condemned sin in the flesh,

In order that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in

20 Now if I wish not; the same I do;
No longer am I working it out,

3 For what was impossible by the law, in that it was weak through the flesh;
[God] by sending his own Son, in the likeness of sinful flesh, and concerning sin—

Condemned sin in the flesh,

In order that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us—Who [not according to flesh] do walk, But according to spirit;
5  For [they who according to flesh] have their being;
[The things of the flesh] do prefer,
But [they according to the spirit] [The things of the spirit];
6  For [what is preferred by the flesh] [is] death,
Whereas [what is preferred by the spirit] [is] life and peace;—
7  Inasmuch as [what is preferred by the flesh] [is] hostile towards God,
For [unto the law of God] it doth not submit itself, neither in fact can it;
8  [They, moreover, who in flesh] have their being [cannot please God].
9  But [ye] have not your being in flesh, but in spirit,—
If at least [God's Spirit] dwelleth in you*;
And [if] anyone hath not [Christ's Spirit] [The same] is not his;—
10  But [if] [Christ] is in you [The body], indeed, is dead by reason of sin,
Whereas [the spirit] is life by reason of righteousness;
11  [If, moreover] [the Spirit of him that raised Jesus from among the dead:] dwelleth in you
He that raised, from among the dead,
Christ Jesus;
Shall make alive [even] your death'dwelt bodies,
Through means of his indwelling Spirit within you.
12  Hence, then, brethren—[debtors] we are,
Not unto the flesh, that [according to flesh] we should live,— 13  For [if] according to flesh ye live> ye are about to die,
Whereas [if] in spirit [the practices of the flesh:] ye are putting to death> ye shall attain unto life;
14  For [as many as] by God's Spirit are being led> [the same] are [God's sons],—
15  For ye have not received a spirit of servitude, leading back into fear,
But ye have received a spirit of sonship.*
Whereby we are exclaiming—
Abba! Oh Father!
16  [The Spirit itself] beareth witness together with our spirit, that we are children of God;
17  And [if children] [heirs also]—
Heirs, indeed, of God,
But co-heirs with Christ,—
If, at least, we are suffering together,
In order that we may also be glorified together.

18  For I reckon, that [unworthy] are the sufferings of the present season,
To be compared with the glory about to be revealed towards us;
19  For [the eager outlook of creation] ardently awaiteth [the revealing of the sons of God],—
20  For [unto vanity] hath creation been made subject—
<Not by choice,
But by reason of him that made it subject>
In hope 21 that [creation itself] also shall be freed—
From the bondage of the decay,
Into the freedom of the glory of the sons of God;
22  For we know, that [all creation] is sighing together, and travailing-in-birth-throes together, [until the present],—
23  And <not only so>
But [we ourselves] also, who have [the first-fruit of the Spirit],—
[We] even ourselves | within our own selves| do sigh, —
[Sonship] ardently awaiting—[The redeeming of our body];—
24  For [by our hope] have we been saved, —
But [hope beheld] is not' hope,
For [what one beholdeth] why doth he hope for?
<If, however, [what we do not behold] we hope for>
[With endurance] are we ardently awaiting [it];—
25  [In the selfsame way] moreover, [even the Spirit] helpeth together in our weakness,—
For [what we should pray for as we ought] we know not,
But [the Spirit itself] maketh intercession, with sighings unutterable,
26  And [he that searcheth the hearts] knoweth what is preferred by the Spirit—
That* [according to God] he maketh intercession in behalf of saints;
27  We know, further, that [unto them who love God]
God causeth [all things] to work together* for good,— 28  [Unto them] who [according to purpose] are [such as he hath called];
29  For [whom he fore-approved] * He also fore-appointed, to be conformed unto the image of his Son, That he might be firstborn among many brethren,—
30  And [whom he fore-approved] [The same] he also called,
And [whom he called] [The same] he also declared righteous;
And <whom he declared righteous>
[The same] he also made glorious:—

* Or: "unto."  * Or: "By reason."
* Gal. iv. 6.
* 1 Co. iii. 16.  * 2 Co. v. 2.
*  Or: "Because."  * Ap: "know."
21 What, then, shall we say to these things? If [God] is for us, who shall stand against us?

22 But [as] in behalf of all [these things] upon us.

23 Who shall bring an accusation against the chosen ones of God? [God, who declareth righteous]?

24 Who is he that condemneth? [Christ Jesus] who died?—Nay! rather was raised [from among the dead],—Who is on the right hand of God, Who also is making intercession in our behalf?—

25 Who shall separate us from the love of the Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?—

26 According as it is written—[For thy sake] are we being put to death [all the day long],—We have been reckoned as sheep [for slaughter].—

27 Nay! in all these things we are more than conquering. [Through] him that hath loved us.

28 For I am persuaded that—Neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing>—

29 Shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

9 Truth! say I, in Christ, I utter no falsehood. [<My conscience bearing witness] with me in the Holy Spirit>—

2 That I have [great grief!] and incessant' travail in my heart;

3 For I could have wished to be [accursed]! even I myself from the Christ, In behalf of my brethren my kinmanes according to the flesh;—

4 [Who] indeed, are Israelites, [Whose] are the sonship, and the glory, and the covenants, and the legislation, and the divine service, and the promises,

5 [Whose] are the fathers, And of whom is the Christ—according to the flesh,—He who is over all, God, blessed unto the ages. Amen.

6 It is not, however, as though the word of God [had failed];

7 For [not all] they who are of Israel [are the same] are Israel,

8 Neither [because they are seed of Abraham] are [all] children,—

9 But [in Isaac] shall there be called unto thee a seed.

10 That is—[Not the children of the flesh] are the same are children of God; But the children of the promise are reckoned as a seed.

11 For [of promise] is this word—[According to this season] will I come, And Sarah shall have a son. b

12 And <not only so>—But [when] Rebekah also was with child [of one]—

13 Isaac our father,—

14 They, in fact, not being yet born, nor having practised anything good or bad,—

15 In order that the purpose of God [by way of election] might stand,—

16 Not by works, But by him that was calling>—

17 It was said unto her—[The elder] shall serve the younger; Even as it is written—[Jacob] have I loved, but [Esa] have I hated. b

18 What, then, shall we say? Is there injustice with God? Far be it!

19 For [unto Moses] he saith—

20 I will have mercy upon whomsoever I can have {mercy},

21 And I will have compassion upon whomsoever I can have compassion.

22 Hence, then, it is not of him that waieth, nor of him that runneth,

23 But of the mercy-shewing God.

24 For the Scripture saith unto Pharaoh—[Unto this end] have I raised thee up,

25 That I may thus show in thee my power,

26 And that I may declare my name in all the earth. b

27 Hence, then,—[On whom he pleaseth] he hath mercy, And [on whom he pleaseth] he doth harden. b

28 Thou wilt say to me, then—Why longer' findeth he fault?

29 For [his purpose] who hath withstood?

30 O man! Who, nevertheless, art [thou] that art answering again unto God?

31 Shall [the thing formed] say [unto him that formed it]—

32 Why didst thou make me thus?

33 Or hath not [the potter] a right [over the clay]?— b

Out of the same lump.
To make some, indeed, into a vessel for honour,
And some for dishonour!

And if God—
Wishing to shew his anger, and to make known his power—
Bare, in much patience, with vessels of anger* already fitted for destruction, —
In order that he might make known the riches of his glory upon vessels of mercy which he prepared beforehand for glory, —
[Whom] he also called, [even us]—
Not only from among Jews, But also from among the nations> [What then?]

As also [in Hosea] he saith—
I will call the Not-my-people || My people||,
And the Not-beloved ||Beloved||.

And it shall be—
<In the place where it was said [to them]>—
||Not my people| are ||ye! ||>
||There: shall they be called—
Sons of a living God.||

Isaiah|| moreover, exclaimeth over d Israel—
<Though the number of the sons of Israel be as the sand of the seas>.
The remnant|| shall be saved;
For ||a complete and concise account|| will the
Lord make upon the earth.||
And (even as Isaiah hath before said) —
<If ||the Lord of hosts|| had not left us a seed> —
As Sodom had we become,
And ||as Gomorrha|| had we been made like.||

What, then, shall we say?
That ||they of the nations|| —
Who were not in pursuit of righteousness—
Have laid hold of righteousness,—
A righteousness, however, which is by faith;

Whereas ||Israel|| —
<Though in pursuit of a law of righteousness>—
||Unto a law|| have not attained.

Wherefore?
Because <not by faith,
But as by works> [have they sought
it];
They have stumbled at the stone of stumbling,||
Even as it is written—
Lo! I lay in Zion,
A stone to strike against,
And a rock to stumble over,
And ||he that resteth faith thereupon|| shall not be put to shame.||

Brethren! ||the delight of my own heart, and my supplication Godward, in their behalf|| are for salvation;

For I bear them witness, that they have ||a zeal for God,||—but not according to correct knowledge;

For <Not knowing ||God's|| righteousness,
And ||their own|| seeking to establish>
||Unto the righteousness of God|| have they not submitted;
For Christ is ||an end of law|| ||for righteousness||, unto every one that believeth.
For ||Moses|| writeth, that—
<As touching the righteousness that is by law>
||The man that hath done [it]| shall live thereby*;||
Whereas ||the righteousness by faith|| ||thus| speaketh—
Do not say in thy heart,
Who shall ascend into heaven?
That is, ||To bring ||Christ|| down,
Or,
Who shall descend into the abyss?
That is, ||To bring up ||Christ, from among the dead!||
But what saith it?
||Near thee|| is ||the declaration||,
||In thy mouth, and in thy heart|;—
That is, ||The declaration of the faith, which
we proclaim|—
That <if thou shalt confess the declaration, with thy mouth—
That Jesus is ||Lord||,
And shalt believe, with thy heart—
That ||God|| raised him from among the dead>||
||Thou shalt be saved|||—
For ||in heart|; it is to be believed unto righteousness,
And ||by mouth|; it is to be confessed
unto salvation.
For the scripture saith—
||No one that resteth faith thereupon|| shall be put to shame|;
For there is no distinction—of Jew or Greek,—
For ||the same [Lord]|| is Lord of all,
Being rich unto all who call upon him;
For ||Whosoever shall call upon the name of the
Lord|| shall be saved !|—
How, then, shall men call upon one in whom they have not believed?
And how shall they believe in one of whom they have not heard?
And how shall they hear, without one
to proclaim?
And how shall they proclaim, except they be sent?
Even as it is written—
How beautiful the feet of them that bring glad tidings of good things*!
But ||not all|| have become obedient unto the glad tidings;—

For Isaiah saith—

Lord, who believed what we have heard?

Hence your faith cometh by something heard,

And that which is heard through a declaration of Christ.

But I say: Have they not heard?

Yes indeed!—

Into all the earth hath gone forth their sound,

And unto the ends of the inhabited world: their declarations.

But I say: Hath Israel not come to know?

First Moses saith—

I will provoke you to jealousy on account of a no-nation,

On account of an undiscerning nation will I make you very angry.

Isaiah however, waxeth daring, and saith—

I have been found by them who after me were not seeking,

Manifest have I become, unto them who for me were not enquiring:

Whereas regarding Israel he saith—

All day long have I stretched forth my hands unto a people yeielding and contradicting.

I say then—

Hath God cast off his people? Far be it!

For I also am an Israelite,—Of the seed of Abraham, Of the tribe of Benjamin:

God hath not cast off his people, whom he foreknew.

Or know ye not, in [the account of] Elijah, what,

the scripture saith, when he intercedeth with God against Israel?

Lord: Thy prophets have they slain,

Thine altars have they overthrown,

And I am left alone,

And they are seeking my life!

But what saith unto him the response?

I have set for myself seven thousand men, who, indeed, have not bowed a knee unto Baal.

Thus then <in the present season also>—

A remnant, by way of an election of favour, hath come into being.

If, however, by favour, no longer] of works; else [favour] no longer] proveth to be [favour]!

What then?

That which Israel seeketh after, the same it hath not obtained:

The election, however, have obtained it, and [the rest] have been hardened:

Even as it is written—God hath given unto them a spirit of stupor,—eyes, not to see, and ears, not to hear,—until this very day!

And David saith—

Let their table be turned into a snare, and into a gin, and into a trap, and into a recompense unto them,

Darkened be their eyes, not to see,

And [their back] do thou [continually] bow down.

I say then—Did they stumble in order that they might fall?

Far be it! But [by their fall] salvation hath come unto the nations, to the end of provoking them to jealousy.

If, moreover, [their fall] is the riches of a world,

And their loss, the riches of nations>

[How much rather] their fulness?

Unto you however, am I speaking,—you of the nations;

Inasmuch, indeed, then, as [I] am an apostle to the nations] [my ministry]: I glorify,

If by any means I may provoke to jealousy my own flesh, And save some from among them;—

For [if] the casting away of them] hath become the reconciling of a world:

What shall [the taking of them in addition] be, but [life from among the dead]!

If, moreover, the first fruit [is] holy]

the lump [shall be] also;

And [in [the root] [is] holy] [the branches] [shall be] also.

If, however, some of the branches have been broken out,

And thou being a wild olive hast been grafted in among them,

And hast become a joint partaker of the root of the fatness of the olive:

Be not boasting over the branches!

Howbeit [if thou boast] It is not thou that bearest [the root]; But [the root] [thee]!

Thou wilt say then—

Branches were broken out, in order that I, might be grafted in.

Well: By their want of faith they have been broken out,—

And [thou] by thy faith dost stand!—

Regard not lofty things, But be afraid

For [if] God hath not spared [the natural branches]

Neither [thee] will he spare!

See, then, the kindness and the severity of God: [Upon them who have fallen] severity,—

But upon thee the kindness of God,

If thou abide still in the kindness,—

Otherwise [thou also] shalt be cut out;

Whereas [they also] [unless they abide still in their want of faith]

Shall be grafted in,

For God is able again to engraft them!

For [if] thou [out of the naturally] wild olive] wast cut out,

Ps. ix. 22 f; xxxv. 8.

Deu. xxxii. 21.
And beyond nature] hast been grafted into the good olive.
How much rather shall these, the natural branches be engrafted into their own olive tree?

For I wish not ye should be ignorant, brethren, of this sacred secret,
Lest within yourselves ye be presumptuous.
That a hardening in part hath befallen Israel.
Until the full measure of the nations shall come in;
And so all Israel shall be saved:
Even as it is written—
There shall have come out of Zion the Deliverer,—
He will turn away ungodliness from Jacob;
And this, for them, is the covenant from me,
As soon as I take away their sins.
As touching the joyful-message, indeed they are enemies for your sake,
But as touching the election beloved for their fathers' sake;
For [not to be regretted] are the gifts and the calling of God:
For [just as ye] at one time had not yielded unto God,
And yet [now] have received mercy by their refusal to yield;
[So] these also have [now] refused to yield, by your own mercy,
In order that themselves also should now become objects of mercy;
For God hath shut up all together, in a refusal to yield,
In order that upon all he may bestow mercy.

Oh! the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God!
[How unsearchable] his judgments!
And [untraceable] his ways!
For who hath come to know the mind of the Lord?
Or who hath become his counsellor?—
Or who hath first given unto him, and it shall be recompensed to him again?—
Because [of him, and through him, and unto him] are all things:
Unto him] be the glory, unto the ages. Amen!

I beseech you therefore, brethren, through the compassions of God,
To present your bodies a living, holy sacrifice, unto God acceptable,—
Your rational divine service;
And be not configuring yourselves unto this age.

But be transforming yourselves by the renewing of your mind.
To the end ye may be proving what is the thing willed by God—the good and acceptable and perfect.

For I say
Through the favour which hath been given me,
Unto every one who is among you,—
Not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think,
But so to think as to think soberly—
As unto each one] God hath dealt a measure of faith.

For just as [in one body] we have many members,
Yet all the members have not the same office;
[So] we, the many are [one body] in Christ.
Yet severally members one of another.
Now having gifts of favour according to the favour given unto us differing—
Whether prophesying] let us use it according to the proportion of our faith,
Or ministering] use it in our ministering,
Or he that teacheth] let him use his gift in his teaching,
Or he that exerciseth] in his exercising,
He that sanceth] let it be] with liberality,
He that taketh] a lead] with diligence,
He that sheweth mercy] with cheerfulness.
Your love] be] without hypocrisy,—
Loathing that which is wicked,
Cleaving to that which is good;
In your brotherly love] unto one another being tenderly affectioned,
In honour] unto one another] giving preference;
In business] not slothful,
In spirit] fervent,
To the Lord] doing service,
In hope] rejoicing,
In tribulation] enduring,
In prayer] persevering,
With the needs of the sainted having fellowship,— Hospitality pursuing.

Bless them that persecute, Bless, and do not curse.
Rejoice with them that rejoice,
Weep with them that weep:
The same thing] one to another] regarding,—
Not the lofty things] regarding,
But by the lowly] being led along.
Be not presumptuous in your own opinion:
Unto no one] evil for evil] rendering:
Providing honourable things before all men:
If possible—so far as dependeth on you—
with all men being at peace:
Not avenging yourselves, beloved, but give place unto their anger;

E. N. T.
Ap. lix. 20 f.
Pr. iii. 9.
Pr. iii. 7.
3 Co. viii. 21.
Pr. iii. 4 (Sep.).
For it is written—
[[Mine] is avenging,]
[[I] will recompense;—saith the Lord*];
20 But—
[If thine enemy hunger> be feeding him,>
If he thirst> be giving him drink;>
For this doing> [counsels of fire] shalt thou heap upon his head.]b 21 Be not overcome by evil, But overcome evil’[ with good].
13 Let every soul unto protecting authorities be in subjection c;
For there is no authority, save by God, And [they that are in being] have [by God] been arranged,—
3 So that [he who rangeth himself against the authority] [Against the arrangement of God’] opposeth himself, And [they who oppose] shall unto themselves a sentence of judgment receive.
5 For [they who bear rule] are not a terror unto the good’ work, but unto the evil. Wouldst thou not be afraid of the authority? [That which is good] be thou doing, and thou shalt have praise of the same;
4 For [God’s minister] is he unto thee, for that which is good. But [if that which is evil] thou be doing be afraid! For [not in vain] the sword he beareth; For [God’s minister] he is,—an avenger unto anger, to him who practiseth [what is evil].
5 Wherefore it is necessary to be in subjection,— Not only’ because of the anger, But also’ because of the conscience;
6 For [because of this] are ye paying [tribute] also,— For [God’s ministers of state] they are. Unto this very thing giving constant attendance.
7 Render unto all their dues,—
6 Nothing to any be owing—save to be loving one another; For the that loveth his neighbour* hath given to [law] its fulfilment.
9 For this—
Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not commit murder, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not covet,—* And if there is any different commandment>

[[In this word is summed up, [namely]—
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.]
10 [Love] unto one’s neighbour worketh not [ill];
Law’s fulness therefore, is [Love].
11 And in this besides,—
Knowing the season— That it is an hour already for you k [out of sleep] to be wakened; For [now] is our salvation nearer, than when we believed:
12 [The night] is far spent, And [the day] hath drawn near; Let us then, cast off the works of darkness, [And] let us put on the armour of light,—
13 [As in daytime] becomingly let us walk: Not in revellings, and in drunken bouts, Not in chamberings, and in wanton deeds, Not in strife, and envy;—
14 But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, And [for the flesh] take not forethought, to fulfil its covetings.
14 Him that is weak in his faith receive ye,— Not for disputing opinions:—
1 One] indeed, hath faith to eat all things, Whereas [he that is weak] eateth [herbs];
3 Let not [him that eateth] despise [him that eateth not], And let not [him that eateth not] judge [him that eateth];
For [God] hath received him. Who art thou, that judgest another’s domestic? To his own master he standeth, or falleth; He shall, however, be made to stand,— For his Master is able to make him stand.
5 [For] one] indeed, esteemeth one day beyond another, Whereas [another] esteemeth every day:— Let [each one] in his own mind be fully persuaded.
6 [He that regardeth the day] unto the Lord regardeth it,— And [he that eateth] unto the Lord doth eat, For he giveth thanks unto God;
And [he that eateth not] unto the Lord doth not eat, and give God thanks.
7 For [none of us] unto himself liveth, And [none] unto himself dieth; For both [if we live] unto the Lord we live, And [if we die] unto the Lord we die;
Whether therefore we live, [the Lord’s] Or whether we die,— we are;

9 For to this end | Christ*| died and lived,*
In order that both of dead and living | he might have lordship.
10 But why dost thou judge thy brother?
Aye! and thou | why dost thou despise thy brother?
For all of us shall present ourselves unto the judgment seat of God b
11 For it is written—
<Living am I, saith the Lord>
| Unto me | shall bow every knee,
And every tongue shall openly confess unto God.
12 Hence, then | each one of us | of himself shall give | account | unto God.
13 No longer | then | upon one another | let us be sitting in judgment,
But this | judge ye, rather—
Not to be putting a cause of stumbling before your brother, or an occasion to fall.
14 I know and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus—
That nothing is profane | of itself,—
Save to him who reckonneth any thing to be profane,
| Unto that man | it is profane.
15 If, in fact | because of food | thy brother is being grieved;—
No longer, by the rule of love | art thou walking:—
Do not by thy food | that man | be destroying, on whose behalf Christ died!
16 Therefore, suffer not to be defamed, your own good thing;
17 For the kingdom of God | is not 'eating and drinking',
But righteousness and peace and joy in Holy Spirit;
18 For he that | in this | doeth service unto the Christ*| Is acceptable unto God,
And approved unto men.
19 Hence, then | the things pertaining to peace | let us pursue,
And the things which belong to the upbuilding one of another:
20 Do not for the sake of food | be throwing down | the work of God!
All things | indeed, are pure;
But ill | is it for the man who | with occasion of stumbling | doth eat,—
21 Well | is it, not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor [to do aught] whereby | thy brother! | is caused to stumble.
22 The faith which thou hast | have | to thyself | before God;
Happy | he that bringeth not judgment upon himself by which he approveth;
23 But he that is in doubt | if he eat | hath condemned himself,—
Because [it was] not of faith,

And everything which is not of faith* | is sin.*

15 We are bound, however, who are strong | The weakness of them who are not strong | to be bearing,
And not unto ourselves | to give pleasure.
2 Let *each one of us | unto his neighbour | give pleasure—
For what is good | unto upbuilding;
3 For *even the Christ | not unto himself | gave pleasure,
But, even as it is written—
| The reproaches of them that were reproaching thee fell upon me:—
4 Whatsoever things, in fact, were written aforetime | [All] | for our own instruction | were written,—
In order that through endurance, and through the encouragement of the Scriptures | we might have their [hope].

3 Now may the God of the endurance, and of the encouragement—
Give you the same thing | to be regarding amongst one another | according to Christ Jesus;
6 In order that with one accord, with one mouth | ye may be glorifying the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
7 Wherefore receive ye one another,
Even as Christ also hath received us | unto the glory of God;—
8 For I affirm | Christ is to have become | a minister of circumcision,
In behalf of the truth of God,—
To confirm the promises of the fathers,
And that the nations | for mercy | should glorify God—
Even as it is written—
| For this cause | will I openly confess unto thee among nations,
And unto thy name | will I strike the strings;
10 And again | he saith—
Be glad, ye nations, with his people;
11 And again—
Be giving praise, all ye nations, unto the Lord,
And let all | the peoples repeat his praise;*
12 And again, Isaiah saith—
There shall be the root of Jesse,
And he that ariseth to rule nations,—
Upon [him] shall nations hope.*

3 Now the God of the hope | fill you with all joy and peace in believing,
So that ye may surpass in the hope,
In the power of Holy Spirit.
But I am persuaded, my brethren,—

Even if myself concerning you:

That ye yourselves also, are Full of goodness,

Filled with all knowledge,

Able also unto one another to be ministering admonition:

Howbeit the more boldly I have written unto you,—

In some measure, as bringing it back to your minds,—

By reason of the favour given unto me from God,—

That I should be a public minister of Christ Jesus unto the nations,

Doing priestly service with the glad-message of God,

In order that the offering up of the nations might prove to be acceptable,

Being hallowed in Holy Spirit;

I have, therefore, my boasting in Christ Jesus, in the things pertaining to God,—

For I will not dare to speak anything

Save of the things which Christ hath wrought out for himself through me,

For the obedience of nations,

By word and deed,

By the power of signs and wonders,

By the power of Holy Spirit;

So that I from Jerusalem, and in a circuit as far as Illyricum have fulfilled the glad-message of the Christ,—

Although thus—-as ambitious to be announcing the glad-message,—

Not where Christ had been named,

Lest upon another's foundation I should be building;

But, even as it is written—

They shall see, unto whom had been announced no tidings concerning him,

And they who had not heard shall understand.

Wherefore also, I have been hindered, these many times, from coming unto you;

But now no longer having [place] in these regions,

And having had [a long]ing to come unto you, a good many years—

As soon as I am journeying to Spain—

I am hoping, in fact, when journeying through to get sight of you, And [by you] to set forward thither,—If with your company I have first in some measure been satisfied.

But now I am journeying unto Jerusalem ministering unto the saints;

For Macedonia and Achaia have been well-pleased to make [a certain fellowship] for the destitute of the saints who are in Jerusalem —

They have been well-pleased, indeed,—

And their debtors they are;

For if with their spiritual things the nations have come into fellowship;

They are bound also with their own carnal things to minister publicly unto them.

This then, having completed, and sealed unto them this fruit—

I will come back, by you, unto Spain—

And I know that when I come unto you—

In the fulness of the blessing of Christ I shall come.

I beseech you, moreover, [brethren],

Through our Lord Jesus Christ,

And through the love of the Spirit;

To strive together with me, in your prayers on my behalf unto God,—

In order that I may be delivered from them who do not yield in Judea,

And [my ministry which is unto Jerusalem] may prove to be acceptable unto the saints;

In order that with joy coming unto you through God's will I may together with you find rest.

Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

And I commend to you Phoebe, our sister,—

Being a minister [also] of the assembly which is in Cenchreae;

In order that ye may give her welcome, in the Lord, in a manner worthy of the saints, And stand by her in any matter wherein she may have need of you;

For [she also] hath proved to be [a defender of many], and [of my own self].

Salute ye Priscus and Aquila, my fellow-workers in Christ Jesus,—

Who indeed, for my life, [their own neck], laid down; Unto whom—not [only] give thanks, but also all the assemblies of the nations;

[Salute] also the assembly at their house.

Salute ye Epenetus, my beloved, Who is a first-fruit of Asia unto Christ.

Salute Mary,—

Who indeed, hath toiled much for you.

Salute Andronicus and Junias, my kinsmen and my fellow-captives,

Who indeed are of note among the Apostles, Who also [before me] had come to be in Christ.

Salute Ampliatus, my beloved in the Lord.

Salute Urbanus, our fellow-worker in Christ:

And Stachys, my beloved.

Salute Apelles, the approved in Christ.

Salute them of the household of Aristobulus.

Salute Herodion, my kinsman.

Salute them of the household of Narcissus who are in the Lord.

* Or (WH): “do.”

+ Or (WH): “They unto whom no tidings had been announced concerning him shall see.”
THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE CORINTHIANS.

Paul, a called apostle of Jesus Christ, through God's will,—
And Sosthenes the brother,—

Unto the assembly of God which is in Corinth,
Sanctified in Christ Jesus,
Called saints,—

With all who call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ [in every place],—[their Lord and ours]:

Favour unto you, and peace,
From God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

I give thanks unto my God, at all times, concerning you,
By reason of the favour of God given unto you in Christ Jesus,—
That in everything ye have been enriched in him—
In all discourse and in all knowledge;
Even as [the witness of the Christ] hath been confirmed in you,
So that ye come short in no gift of favour,—

Romans XVI. 12—27. 1 Corinthians I. 1—7. 165

18 Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, [sisters] who have toiled in the Lord.
Salute Persis, the beloved [sister],
Who indeed hath toiled much in the Lord.
Salute Rufus,
The chosen in the Lord;
Also his and my mother.
Salute Asenath, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas,
And the brethren that are with them.
Salute Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas,
And all the saints that are with them.
Salute ye one another, with a holy kiss.
All the assemblies of the Christ [salute you].

But I beseech you, brethren,
To keep an eye upon them who are causing divisions and occasions of stumbling, aside from the teaching which [ye] have learned,
And be turning away from them:
For [they who are such] unto our Lord Christ are not doing service, but unto their own belly,—
And through their smooth and flattering speech deceive the hearts of the innocent.
For [your] obedience unto all hath reached,— [Over you] therefore, I rejoice!
But I wish you—
To be [wise], [indeed], as to that which is good,
Yet pure, as to that which is evil.

Or: "sacred."
Ph. iii. 19.

19 Howbeit [the God of peace] will crush Satan under your feet [shortly].
The favour of our Lord Jesus [be with you].
21 There salute you—Timothy, my fellow-worker,
And Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen.
22 [I] Tertius, who have written the epistle, salute you in the Lord.
23 There salute you—Gaius, my host and [the host] of the whole assembly.
There salute you—Erastus, the steward of the city, and Quartus the [brother].
25 Now unto him who hath power to establish you.
According to my glad-message—Even the proclamation of Jesus Christ,
According to the revelation of a sacred secret,
[In age-past times] kept silent.
But now [made manifest],
And through means of prophetic scriptures,
According to the command of the age-abiding God,
[For obedience of faith] unto all the nations made known>

Unto a God, wise alone,
Through Jesus Christ,
[Unto whom] be the glory, unto the ages. Amen.

Or: "with speed."
Or (WH): "L. J. Christ."
Or: "him."
Ap: "Mystery."
WH omit.
Ap: "Age."

1 Or: "He. xiii. 15; Jude"
2 Or: "3:17; 1 Th. i. 2."
3 Or: "among."
Ardently awaiting the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ:

Who will also confirm you unto the end,
Unaccurable in the day of our Lord
Jesus Christ [Christ]:

faithful [faithful] is God, through whom ye have been called into the fellowship of his Son
Jesus Christ our Lord.

But I beseech you, brethren,
Through the name of our Lord Jesus
Christ,—
That [the same thing] ye [all] be saying,
And that there be not, among you, [divisions] ;
But that ye be fitly joined together—
In the same mind,
And in the same judgment.

For it hath been signified unto me, concerning you, my brethren,—
By them who are of [the household of]
Chloe,—
That there are [strifes among you].

Now I mean this,—
That [each one of you] is saying—
[1] indeed, am of Paul,
But [2] of Apollos,
But [1] of Cephas,
But [1] of Christ:

The Christ [is divided] !

Was [Paul] crucified for you?
Or [unto] the name of Paul were ye immersed?

I give thanks, that [none of you] did I immsere—
Save Crispus and Gaius,

Lest any should say—
[Into my own name] I immersed ;—

Yea ! I immersed the house of Stephanas also,—
Besides I know not whether anyone else I immersed.

For Christ sent me not, to be immersing,
But to be telling the good news,—
Not with wisdom of discourse,
Lest void should be made [the cross of the Christ].

For [the discourse which concerneth the Cross]
[Unto them, indeed, who are perishing]
is [foolishness] ;
But unto them who are being saved—unto us] it is [God's power].

For it is written—
I will destroy the wisdom of the wise,
And [the discernment of the discerning] will I set aside.8

Where is the wise?
Where is the scribe? b
Where is the disputers of this age?

Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of the world?

For <seeing that> [in the wisdom of God]—
The world [through its wisdom] did not get to know God >
God was well-pleased—
<Through the foolishness of the thing proclaimed> to save them that believe.

Seeing that
Both [Jews] [for signs] do ask,
And [Greeks] [for wisdom] do seek,
Whereas [we] proclaim a Christ who hath been crucified,— [Unto Jews] indeed, an occasion of stumbling,
And [unto Gentiles] foolishness;
But <unto the called themselves>—
Both Jews and Greeks:

Because [God's foolish thing] is [wiser than men],
And [God's weak thing]; [mightier than men].

For be looking at the calling of you, brethren,—
That [there were]
Not many wise, according to flesh,
Not many powerful,
Not many high-born :

On the contrary—
The foolish things of the world; hath God chosen,
That he might put to shame them who
are wise,
And the weak things of the world; hath
God chosen,
That he might put to shame the things
that are mighty,

And <the low-born things of the world,
And the things that are despised> hath
God chosen,—
[And] the things that are not ,—
That [the things that are] he might bring to nought ;

So that no flesh should boast before God.

But [of him] are [ye] [in Christ Jesus],—
Who hath been made wisdom unto us, [from
God],—
Both righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption:
In order that [even as it is written]—
[He that boasteth
[In the Lord] let him boast.]*

Therefore, brethren, [when I came unto
you],
Came not with excellency of discourse or wisdom
Declaring unto you the mystery of God;
For I had not determined <to know anything
among you,
Save Jesus Christ,—and [him] as one who had been crucified !

Therefore, [in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling] Came to be with you,
4 And ||my discourse, and what I proclaimed||
Were not in sound words ||of wisdom,\footnote{Or: “mighty work.”}
But in demonstration of Spirit and power:*
In order that ||your faith\footnote{Is. lxiv. 4.} might not be
In men’s wisdom,
But in God’s power.

6 ||Wisdom|| however, we do speak ||among the full-grown;\footnote{I. xvi. 23; Eph. iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.}
Indeed,
Not of this age,
Nor of the rulers of this age, who are to come to nought;
But we speak ||God’s\footnote{Ap: “Mystery.”} wisdom, in a sacred
That hidden ||wisdom,\footnote{Gal. v. 20; 2 Co. xii. 20.}
Which God marked out beforehand, before the ages, for our glory,—
Which ||none of the rulers of this age had come to know,\footnote{Is. xxviii. 16; Eph. ii. 20.}
For ||had they known||, not, in that case,
||the Lord of the glory\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} would they have crucified!

9 But ||even as it is written||—
<<The things which eye hath not seen, and ear hath not heard,
And upon the heart of man have not come
up,—
Whatsoever things God hath prepared for them that love him>\footnote{Is. xlv. 7.}

10 ||Unto us|| in fact, hath God revealed through the Spirit;
For ||the Spirit\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph. iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} ||into all things|| maketh search,
Yes! the deep things of God.

11 For who of men knoweth the things of a
man,—
Save the spirit of the man that is in him?
||Thus|| ||even the things of God|| hath no one come to know,
Save the Spirit of God.

12 But ||as for us||—
||Not the spirit of the world\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} have we received,
But the Spirit which is of God,—
That we might know the things which ||by
God|| have been given in favour unto us:—

13 Which we also speak—
Not in words ||taught of human wisdom,\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.}
But in such as are taught of [the] Spirit,
||By spiritual words\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} ||spiritual things|| explaining.

14 But ||of man\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} doth not welcome the things of the Spirit of God,
For they are ||foolishness unto him,|| and he cannot get to know them.
Because ||spiritually|| are they examined;

15 But ||the man of the spirit,||
On the one hand, examineth all things,
But, on the other, ||he himself\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.}|| by no one is examined.

16 For who hath come to know the mind of the Lord, that shall instruct him?\footnote{Is. xxviii. 16; Eph. ii. 20.}
But ||we|| have ||the mind of Christ.\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.}

3 ||I|| therefore, brethren, have not been able to speak unto you,
As unto men of the Spirit,
But as unto men of the flesh—
As unto babes in Christ;—

2 ||With milk|| have I fed you,
Not ||with meat||;
For ||not yet|| have ye been able;—
Nay! ||not [yet even now]|| are ye able,
For ye are ||yet fleshly,||
For <whereas there are, among you, jealousy and strife.\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.}
Are ye not ||fleshly,|| and after the manner of men walking?

4 For <as soon as one beginneth to say—
||I|| indeed, am of Paul!
And another—
||I|| of Apollo!>
Are ye not ||men||?

5 What then is Apollo? and What is Paul?
Ministers through whom ye believed, and
||each|| as the Lord ||gave|| to him.
6 ||I|| planted,
||[Apollo]|| watered,—
But ||God|| caused to ||grow||.

7 So that, ||neither is he that planteth\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} anything,
Nor, he that watereth,—
But ||God|| who causeth to ||grow||.

8 Moreover ||he that planteth and he that watereth are [one]:—
Howbeit, ||each one|| [his own’ reward]
shall receive,—according to his own labour.

9 For we are ||God’s\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.}’ fellow-workmen:
Ye are ||God’s\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} farm, God’s building.||

10 <According to the favour of God which hath been given unto me>—
||As a wise master-builder\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} I laid ||a foundation,||
Whereas ||another|| is building thereon;
But ||let each one|| see, how he buildeth
thereon;

11 For ||other foundation\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} can’ ||no one|| lay,
than that which is lying;
Which is ||Jesus Christ.||

12 But ||if anyone is building, upon the foundation—
Gold, silver, precious stones,
Wood, hay, straw—
13 ||Each one’s work\footnote{Ro. xvi. 23; Eph.iii. 9; 1 Thess. iv. 14.} shall be made ||manifest||;
For ||the day|| will make it plain,
Because ||by fire|| is it to be revealed,—
And ||each one’s work|| ||of what sort it is|| the fire itself’ will prove:—

14 <<If ||anyone’s work|| shall abide, which he built,||
||A reward|| shall he receive,—
If ||anyone’s work|| shall be burnt up>
He shall suffer loss,
   But shall himself be saved—
   Though (thus) as through fire.

Know ye not
   That ye are a shrine of God;
   And that [the Spirit of God] within you doth dwell?

If anyone doth mar [the shrine of God]:
   [God] will mar him;
   For [the shrine of God] is holy,—
   And [such] are ye.

Let [no one] be deceiving [himself]:—
   <If anyone imagineth himself to be [wise], among you in this age>
   Let him become [foolish], that he may become [wise];

For [the wisdom of this world] is foolishness with God;
   For it is written—
   He that taketh the wise in their knavery, —
   And [again]:—
   The Lord taketh note of the speculations of the wise, [that they are vain].

So then, let [no one] be boasting in men;
   <Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas,
    Or the world, or life, or death,
    Or things present, or things to come>
   [All] are [yours],—
   And [ye] are [Christ's],—
   And [Christ] is [God's].

Let a man [so] be reckoning [of us],
   As officers of Christ,
   And stewards of sacred secrets of God.

Here furthermore, it is sought in stewards,
   That [faithful] one be found.

With me, however, it counteth [for the very smallest thing],
   That [by you] I should be examined,
   Or by a human' day.

Nay! I am not even examining [myself],
   For [of nothing, to myself] am I conscious;
   Nevertheless, not hereby, am I declared righteous,
   But he that doth examine me is [the Lord].

So then [not before the fitting time] be judging anything,—
   Until the Lord shall come,
   Who will both bring to light the hidden things of darkness,
   And make manifest the counsels of the hearts;
   And [then] [the praise] shall come to each one [from God].

But [these things], brethren, have I transferred unto myself and Apollos [for your sakes],
   That [in us] ye might learn [the lesson]—
   Not beyond the things that are written...!
   That ye do not puff yourselves up [individually] [for this one against that].

For who maketh thee to differ? and what hast thou which thou didst not receive?
   But <if thou didst even receive it> why dost thou boast, as though thou hadst not received it?

<Already> ye have become full,
   <Already> ye are become rich,—
   <Apart from us> ye are become kings!
   And I would indeed ye had' become kings,
   That [we also] with you might have together become kings!

For I think that [God] hath set forth us the apostles, to be last of all, as men devoted to death,—
   In that [a spectacle] we have been made unto the world,—both unto messengers and unto men.

We are foolish for Christ's sake, but ye, prudent in Christ;
   <We> are weak, but <you> mighty;
   <Ye> are all-glorious, but <we> diabolised

Until the present' hour: we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and are wanderers, and tol, working with our own' hands:
   Being reviled, we bless,
   Being persecuted, we hold on,
   Being defamed, we beseech:
   As the sweepings of the world, have we become.
   The offuscouring of all—until even now.

Not <to shame you] write I these things;
   But [as my beloved children] I admonish you
   For <though many of tutors ye should have in Christ>
   Yet not many' fathers;
   For <in Christ Jesus, through means of the joyful message> [I beg] you;
   I beseech you, therefore,—become imitators of me.
   For this cause] sent I unto you, Timothy:
   Who is my beloved and faithful child in the Lord,
   Who shall put [you] in mind of my ways which are in Christ [Jesus],
   Even as [everywhere, in every assembly] I teach.
   But <as though I were not coming unto you>
   Some are puffed up!

Howbeit, I will come quickly unto you,—
   If [the Lord] please,—
   And will get to know—
   <Not the speech of them who are puffed up>
   But [the power]!
   For [not in speech] is the kingdom of God.
   But [in power].

What will ye? That [with a rod] I should come unto you?
   Or [with love, and a spirit of meekness]?

On all hands there is reported to be among you—[fornication],

Chap. vi. 19; 2 Co. vi. 16. 4 Ap: “Mystery.”
* Job v. 12.
4 Ps. xcv. 11.
* Chap. xi. 1.
1 Corinthians V. 2-13; VI. 1-15.

And such fornication as this—
Which is not among the nations (as found),—
As that one should have his father's wife*:
And ye have become puffed up,
And have not rather mourned,
In order that he might be removed out of your midst, who this deed hath wrought.

For, indeed,—
<Being absent in the body, but present in the spirit>
Have already judged. As present,
Him who (thus) this thing hath perpetrated:

In the name of our Lord Jesus:
Ye being gathered together,
And my spirit,
With the power of our Lord Jesus:
To deliver such a one as this, unto Satan,
For the destruction of the flesh,—
That the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord.

Unlearned is your boast!
Know ye not that a little leaven doth leaven the whole of the lump?b
Purge ye out the old leaven,
That ye may be a new lump,—
Even as ye are uncleaned;
For (our passover, hath even been sacrificed) in Christ:

So then, let us be keeping the feast,—
Not with old leaven,
Nor with leaven of baseness and wickedness,—
But with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

I wrote unto you in my letter—
Not to be mixing yourselves up with fornicators;—
Not at all (meaning) the fornicators of this world, or the covetous and extortioners, or idolaters,— Else had ye been obliged, in that case, to go out of the world.
But now I have written unto you not to be mixing yourselves up,—
<If anyone named a brother;
Be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater,
or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner>
With such a one as this (not so much as to be eating together),
For what have I to do to be judging them who are without? Do ye not judge them who are within?,
Whereas they who are without (God) judgeth?

Remove ye the wicked man from among yourselves:

Dave any of you (having a matter) against his brother>

Sue for judgment before the unrighteous,
And not before the saints?
Or know ye not
That the saints shall judge the world?
And (if by you) the world is to be judged:
Unworthy are ye of the smallest judgment-seats?

Know ye not
That we shall judge angels?
And not, then, matters of this life?
If, then (for matters of this life) ye have judgment-seats—
<Them who are of no account in the assembly>
These are ye seating thereupon?

With a view to shame you I am I speaking.
So is it possible that there is among you not so much as one wise man, who shall be able to judge between his brethren,—
But brother with brother sueth for judgment, And that before unbelievers?
Already indeed, it is an utter defeat for you, that ye are having law-suits: one with another.
Wherefore are ye not rather taking wrong?
Wherefore are ye not rather suffering yourselves to be defrauded?
Nay! but ye are doing wrong, and defrauding,—and that [your] brethren.

Or know ye not
That wrong-doers shall not inherit God's kingdom?
Be not deceiving yourselves:—
Neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor sodomites, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners—
Shall inherit God's kingdom.
And these things were some of you;
But ye lathed them away,—
But ye were sanctified;
But ye were justified
In the name of [our] Lord Jesus Christ.
And in the Spirit of our God.

All things (unto me) are allowable, But (not all things) are profitable:
All things (unto me) are allowable, But (I) will not be brought under authority by any.
Foods for the belly, and the belly for foods;
But (God) will set aside both it and them.
The body, however, is not for fornication, but for the Lord,—and (for the Lord), for (the body).
God moreover, hath both raised up the Lord, And will raise us up from among [the dead] through his power.

Know ye not
That your bodies are members of Christ?
Shall I, then, take away the members of the body?

Christ and make them members of a harlot? Far be it!

15 Or know ye not That he that joineth himself unto the harlot is one body? For saith he, The two shall become one flesh;*

17 But he that joineth himself unto the Lord is one Spirit.

18 flee fornication! Every sin, whatsoever a man shall commit, is outside his body; but he that committeth fornication bringeth sin into his own body. b

19 Or know ye not That your body is a shrine of the Holy Spirit which is within you, which ye have from God? And ye are not your own;—

20 For ye have been bought with a price! Therefore glorify God in your body.

7 Now concerning the things whereof ye wrote It were good for a man not to touch a woman, but on account of fornications let every man have his own wife, and let the wife see that she be reverenced by the husband, in like manner also the husband reverence his wife, for the husband is the head of the wife, even as also the Messiah is the head of the church, and he is the savior of the body. But if the husband depart, the brother or the sister hath not come into bondage, in such cases, but in peace let God call him. For how knowest thou, O woman, whether thy husband will be saved? Or how knowest thou, O man, whether thy wife will be saved? But if the unbelieving departeth let him depart. The brother or the sister which cometh by the unbelieving let him be walking, and let not such a man be constrained, but let the unbelieving brother be what he will, but let him not be moved from the faith. Now as God hath distributed, so have I bestowed among you. After being circumcised was there any called? Let him not become uncircumcised, but if thou shalt be called in uncircumcision let him not be moved. But if the circumcision be called in, and thou be called in uncircumcision, let not such an one be moved from the faith. For, if he be called in the Lord, is he not a freedman of the Lord? In like manner if he be called in a free man, is he not a freedman of the Lord?— With a price have ye been bought, therefore do not become bond-servants of men:

But <concerning them who are virgin>
If I had not spoken to you of marriage,
Yet do I give, as one who hath obtained mercy from the Lord to be faithful:
I consider this, then, to be good in the circumstances, by reason of the existing distress,
That it is good for a man to so be:
Hast thou become bound to a wife?
Do not seek to be loosed;
Hast thou become loosed from a wife?
Do not seek a wife.
If, however, thou shouldest even marry
Thou hast not sinned;
And if one who is virgin should marry
That one hath not sinned;—
But tribulation of the flesh shall such have:
Howbeit I spare you.
But this I say—
The opportunity is contracted for what remaineth—
In order that they who have wives
May be as though they had none,
And they who weep,
As though they wept not,
And they who rejoice,
As though they rejoiced not,
And they who bought,
As though they possessed not,
And they who use the world,
As though they used it not to the full,—
For the fashion of this world passeth away;
And I desire you to be without anxiety:
The unmarried man is anxious for the things of the Lord;
How he may please the Lord;
But the that hath married is anxious for the things of the world,
How he may please his wife—
And he is divided;
And the unmarried woman, or the virgin is anxious for the things of the Lord,
That she may be holy both in her body and in her spirit;
But she that hath married is anxious for the things of the world,
How she may please her husband.
This I say, however, with a view to your own profit, am I saying,—
Not that he may be set upon you I may cast,
But with a view to what is comely, and devoted unto the Lord without distraction.
If however anyone considereth it behaving unseemly towards his virginity,—
If he should be beyond the bloom of life,—
And thus it ought to come about>
What he chooseth let him do,—he sinneth not:
Let them marry!

But he that standeth in his heart steadfast,
Having no necessity,
But hath authority concerning his own will,
And this hath determined in his own heart,—
To preserve his own virginity
Well shall he do.
So that he that giveth in marriage his own virginity
Doeth well;
And he that giveth it not
Shall do better.
A wife is bound for as long a time as her husband is living;
But if the husband have fallen asleep
She is free to be married unto whom she pleaseth,—
Only in the Lord;
But happier is she, if so she remaineth,—
In my judgment;
For I think I also have the Spirit of God.

Now concerning the idol-sacrifices we are aware—
Because we have knowledge,—
Knowledge puffeth up,
But love buildeth up;
If anyone thinketh that he knoweth anything not yet knoweth he, as he must needs come to know,
But if anyone loveth God> the same is known of him—
Concerning then, the eating of idol-sacrifices
We are aware—
That an idol is nothing in the world,
And that none is God save one.
For if indeed there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or upon earth,—
As indeed there are gods many and lords many;
Yet to us there is one God the Father,
Of whom are all things, and we for him;
And one Lord Jesus Christ,
Through whom are all things, and we through him.
Howbeit not in all is the knowledge;
But some< by their familiarity, until even now, with the idol> as an idol-sacrifice eat it,
And their conscience being weak is defiled.
Food indeed will not commend us unto God,— Neither if we eat not do we lack,
Nor if we eat do we abound.
But be taking heed lest by any means your right itself become an occasion of stumbling unto the weak:
For if anyone should see [thee] who hast knowledge, in an idol-temple reclining—

* Or (WH): "Moreover."
* Or: "a."
* Or (WH): "him who hath.
* Gal. vi. 8.

* Or (WH): "Moreover."
* Or: "a."
* Or (WH): "him who hath.
* Gal. vi. 8.
11 Will not [his conscience being weak], be built up for the eating of the idol-sacrifices?
12 In fact, he that is weak is being destroyed by thy knowledge—
   [The brother for whose sake Christ died].
13 But if you sin against the brethren and wounding their conscience, [seeing it is weak]>
   [Against Christ] are ye sinning.
14 Therefore if [food] is an occasion of stumbling unto my brother
   In nowise will I eat flesh unto the age that abideth,—
   That I may not occasion my brother to stumble.

9 Am I not free?
Am I not an apostle?
   [Jesus our Lord] have I not seen?
   Are not [ye] [my work] in the Lord?
2 <If [unto others] I am not an apostle>
   Certainly at least [unto you] I am;
   For [the seal of my apostleship] [ye] are in the Lord.

3 [My] defence, unto them who are examining me is [this] :=
4 Have we not a right to eat and drink?
5 Have we not a right to take round a sister wife?
   [As] even the rest of the apostles, and the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?
6 Or have only I and Barnabas not a right to forbear working?
7 Who serveth as a soldier, at his own charges, at any time?
Who planteth a vineyard,—and [the fruit thereof] doth not eat?
8 [Or] who shepherdeth a flock,—and [the milk of the flock] doth not eat?
9 Is it after the manner of men that [these things] I am saying?
Or doth not [even the law] [the same things] say?
10 For [in the law of Moses] it is written—
   Thou shalt not muzzle an ox when it is treading out the corn:
   Is it [for the oxen] God is caring?
Or [for our sakes altogether] is he saying it?
11 [For our sakes] it was written;
   Because he that soweth ought to plow [in hope];
   And he that thresheth [to thresh] in hope [of partaking].
12 <If [we] unto you the things of the Spirit have sown>
   Is it [a great matter if [we] of you] the things of the flesh shall reap?
13 <If [others] of this right, over you, are partaking> [Should] not rather [we] ?

Nevertheless, we used not this right; but
[all such things] do we conceal,—let we should cause any hindrance unto the glad message of the Christ.

13 Know ye not
   [they who labour in the holy vine] do eat [the provisions out of the holy place]?
   [They who at the altar wait]

14 [Thus also hath [the Lord] appointed—
   That {they who the glad-message tell} should of [the glad-message] live;
   [I] however, have not used any of these things; and have not written these things, in order that [so] it should be done [in my case];
   For it were [good for me] rather to die than—
   [My boast] shall [no man] make void:
   For [if I be telling the glad-message] it is [with me] no matter of boasting:
   For [necessity] upon me lieth,—for it is [Woe to me] if I should not be telling the glad-message:
   For [if by choice] this thing I am doing I have [a reward];
   But [if not by choice] [with a stewardship] have I been entrusted:

15 What, then is my reward? That [in telling the glad-message] I am free of cost I should put the glad-message,—to the end I should not use to the full my right in the glad-message.

16 For [though free from all]—
   [Unto all] [myself] I enslaved,—
   That [the larger number] I might win:

17 Therefore became I unto the Jews as a Jew,—
   That [as a Jew] I might win:
   [To them who were under law] as [under law],—
   Not being [myself] under law,—
   That they who were under law I might win;

18 [To them who were without law] as [without law],—
   Not being without law to God,
   But lawfully subject to Christ,—
   That I might win them who were without law.

19 I became unto the weak weak;—
   That the weak I might win:
   [To all men] have I become all things,
   That by all means [some] I might save.

20 But [all things] am I doing [for the sake of the glad-message],
   That a joint-partaker thereof I may become.

21 Know ye not
   [they who in a racecourse] run
   [All] indeed run,
   But [one] receiveth the prize?
   [So] be running, that ye may lay hold.

Deu. xxv. 4; cp. 1 Tim. v. 18.  Ro. xv. 27.
25 But every man that striveth in the games
In all things useth self-control; —
They indeed, then, that a corruptible crown they may receive;
But we an incorruptible!
26 If therefore,
So am running, as [not uncertainly],
So am boxing, as [not thrashing air];
But am beating my body under, and leading it captive,
Lest, by any means,—
üb Unto others having proclaimed [the contest] [ mathematic ] should be rejected.
10 For I wish not ye should be ignorant, brethren,
That all our fathers were under the cloud,
And all passed through the sea,—
And all immersed themselves into Moses;
In the cloud and in the sea;
And all did eat [the same] spiritual food,
And all drank [the same] spiritual drink,—
For they continued to drink of the spiritual rock that followed them,
And the rock was the Christ: —
Nevertheless with the most of them! [God] was not well-pleased,
For they were stoned along in the desert.
6 But in these things they became examples for us;
To the end we should not be covetous of evil things,
Even as they also coveted;
7 Neither become ye idolaters.
As some of them, — As it is written—
The people sat down to eat and drink,
And rose up to be making sport;
8 Neither let us commit fornication,
As some of them committed fornication,
And there fell, in one day, three and twenty thousand;
9 Neither let us be putting the Lord to the test,
As some of them put him to the test,
And by the serpents were perishing;
10 Neither be ye murmuring,
Even if some of them murmured,
And perished by the destroyer.
11 But these things, [by way of type], were happening unto them;
And were written with a view to our admonition,
Unto whom the ends of the ages have reached along.
12 So that he that thinketh he is standing let him take heed lest he fall.
13 Trial hath not taken you, save such as man can bear;
Faithful moreover is God, who will not suffer you to be tried above what ye are able,
But will make [with the trial] also the way of escape, that ye may be able to hold out.
14 Wherefore, my beloved, flee from idolatry,—
As to prudent men I speak,—
Judge ye what I say: —
16 The cup of blessing which we bless:
Is it not [a sharing together] of the blood of the Christ?
The loaf which we break:
Is it not [a sharing together] of the body of the Christ?
17 Because one loaf, one body: we the many are.
For we all of the one loaf partake.
18 Be looking at Israel after the flesh: —
Are not they who eat the sacrifices, joint partakers with the altar?
19 What, then, am I saying? —
That an idol-sacrifice is anything?
Or that an idol is anything?
20 On the contrary —
That the things which the nations sacrifice:
Unto demons and not unto God they sacrifice;
And I wish not that ye should become sharers together with the demons!
21 Ye cannot be drinking — a cup of the Lord, and a cup of demons;
Ye cannot be partaking of [a table of the Lord] and a table of demons.
22 Or are we to provoke the Lord to jealousy?
Are we mightier than he?
23 All things are allowable— but not all things are profitable, —
All things are allowable— but not all things upbUILD.
24 Let no one be seeking what concerneth himself,
But that which concerneth some one else.
25 Whatever is in the market is sold, —
Asking no question, for conscience sake;
26 For unto the Lord belongeth the earth, and the fulness thereof.
27 If one of them who believe not [invite you] and ye are disposed to go>
Whatever is set before you eat, —
Asking no question, for conscience sake.
28 But if anyone should say [unto you] —
This is a holy sacrifice;
Do not eat, for that man’s sake who disclosed it, and for conscience sake: —
But conscience I mean, not thing own, but the other’s,—
For why is my freedom to be judged by another conscience?
29 If I with gratitude partake>
Why am I to be defamed [as to that for which I give thanks]?

a Or (WH): " were immature."
1 Nu. xi. 34. 4
b Or (WH): "they."

2 Exo. xxxii. 16. 3 Nu. xxv. 1. 9
4 Mi: "types of us."
4 Or: "another's."
21 Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all things to the glory of God.
22 Give no occasion of stumbling—Whether to Jews, or to Greeks, or to the assembly of God:
23 Even as I also [in all things] do please [all], Not seeking my own profit, But that of the many, that they may be saved.
24 Become [imitators] of me, [even as] I also [am] of Christ.
25 Now I praise you, that [in all things] ye have me in remembrance, And [even as] I delivered unto you the instructions> ye hold them fast.
26 But I wish you to know—That [the head of every man] is [the Christ],* And [the head of a woman] is [the man]; And [the head of the Christ] is [God],
27 Every man praying, or prophesying, having anything upon his head puttheth to shame his head;
28 But [every woman] praying, or prophesying, with her head [unveiled] puttheth to shame her head,—for it is [one and the same] with her having been shaven.
29 For [if a woman doth not veil herself] let her also be shorn; But [if it were] a shame in a woman to be shorn or shaven; let her be veiled.
30 For [is a man indeed, ought not to be veiling his head, Being the image and glory of God],—* But [the woman] is [the glory of man];
31 For [is man] not of woman, But [man] of woman;
32 For also [man] was not created [for the sake of the woman], But [woman] [for the sake of the man].
33 [For this cause] ought the woman to have permission upon her head, because of the messengers.
34 Howbeit, neither is [woman] apart from [man], Nor [man] apart from woman—in the Lord;
35 For [as long as the woman] is of the man>
[So also] [the man is] through means of the woman;— But [all things] are of God.
36 Among your own selves judge ye,—Is it [becoming] for a woman—[unveiled] to be praying [unto God]?
37 Doth not [even nature herself] teach you—That [if is man] have long hair; it is a dishonour to him;
38 But [if a woman] have long hair; it is a glory to her,— 39 For [her long hair] [instead of a veil] hath been given to her.
40 But [if anyone thinketh to be contentious]> We have no such custom,— Nor yet the assemblies of God.
41 But [in giving you the following] charge I praise you not,— In that [not for the better, but for the worse] ye come together.
42 For [first of all]—<When ye come together in assembly> I hear that divisions among you exist,— And [in part] I believe it;
43 For there must needs be even parties among you, That the approved [themselves] may become manifest among you.
44 When, therefore, ye come together into one place> It is not to eat [a supper unto the Lord];
45 For [each one] taketh beforehand [his own] supper in your eating, And [one] indeed, is hungry, Whereas [another] is drinking to excess.
46 What! have ye not [houses] for your eating and drinking? Or [the assembly of God] do ye despise, and put to shame them who have nothing? *
47 What am I to say to you? Shall I praise you? [In this] I praise you not.
48 For [I myself] received from the Lord—That which I also delivered unto you,—How that [the Lord Jesus];*
49 [In the night in which he was being delivered up] Took a loaf,
50 And, giving thanks, brake it, and said—[This] is my body, which is for you,—[This] do ye, in remembrance of [me];
51 [In the same manner] [the cup also], After they had taken supper saying—[This cup] is [the new] covenant in my blood,—*
52 [This] do ye <as often soever as ye may be drinking> in remembrance of [me].
53 For [as often as ye may be eating this loaf, And [the cup] may be drinking>] The death of the Lord: do ye announce [until he come].
54 So that [whosoever may be eating the loaf, or drinking the cup of the Lord] in an unworthy manner;
55 Shall be [responsible] for the body and blood of the Lord.
56 But let a man be proving himself,— And [so] of the loaf let him eat, and of the cup let him drink;
57 For [he that is eating and drinking]—

1 CORINTHIANS XI. 30—34; XII. 1—26.

<Judgment unto himself> doth eat and drink,—
|| For he be not setting aside the body.||
30 | For this cause, || many among you || are weak and sickly;
And || not a few || are falling asleep.
31 | If, however, we had been setting ourselves aside,
We had not, in that case, been coming under judgment;
32 | But <being brought under judgment> || By the Lord || are we being disciplined,
Least || with the world || we should be condemned.
33 | So then, my brethren,—
| <When ye come together for the eating> || Unto one another<
| giving welcome—
34 | <If anyone be hungry> || at home || let him eat,
Least || unto judgment> || ye be coming together
| And || the remaining things || whenever I come || I will set in order.

12 | But <concerning the spiritually gifted> || brethern, I am not wishing you to be ignorant.
3 | Ye know that <when ye were || of the nations> || Unto the dumb idols, however ye were being led Ye were seduced.

3 Wherefore, I give you to know—
That || no one || in God's Spirit speaking saith—
Accursed< Jesus!
And || no one || can say—
Lord< Jesus!
Save in || the || Holy Spirit.
4 | But <distributions of gifts> || there are,
Yet the same< Spirit,
5 | And <distributions of ministries> || there are,
And the same< Lord,
6 | And <distributions of energies> || there are,
And the same< God—
|| Who energiseth all things in all.||
7 | But <unto each one> is given the manifesting< of the Spirit,
With a view to that which is profitable;
8 | For <unto one> indeed, through the Spirit is given || a word of wisdom,
But <unto another> a word of knowledge< according to the same Spirit>;
9 | Unto a different one< faith> in the same Spirit.
And <unto another> gifts of healings || in the one Spirit.
10 | And <unto another> energies of mighty works,
[And] || unto another> prophesying,
|| a sentence against.||
Or: "a sentence against."
4 Or: "a sentence."
4 Or: "spiritual gifts."
4 Or: "another."
5 Or: "another."
Ro. xii. 6.
7 Or: "showing forth."
8 Or: "sentiments against."
9 Same word as in ver. 31.
When, setting ourselves apart as consecrated persons, we partake of the one sacred loaf, — the feast is likely to be well kept.

[And] || unto another> discriminations of spirits,—
|| Unto a different one< kinds of tongues,
And || unto another> translation of tongues;—
11 | But <all these> energiseth the one and the same Spirit,
Distributing unto each one || peculiarly
|| Even as it is disposed;
12 | For <just as> || the body || is || one, and yet hath || many members,|| But <all the members of the body> || though many || are one body>.*
|| So also || the Christ;—
13 | For <even in one> Spirit || we all || into one body || have been immersed,— Whether Jews or Greeks,
Whether bond or free,—
And <all> || of one Spirit || have been caused to drink.
14 | For <the body also> is not one member, but || many:
15 | Though the foot should say—
Because I am not a hand, || I am not of the body—
Is it <therefore> || not< of the body?||
16 | And <though the ear should say—
Because I am not an eye, || I am not of the body—
Is it <therefore> || not< of the body?
17 | If <the whole body> were || an eye> || Where were || the hearing?|
| If the whole were< hearing> || Where were || the smelling?|
18 | But <now> || hath God set the members, each one of them in the body || even as he pleased;
19 | But <if they all> had been one member>
Where had been <the body>?||
20 | Now|| however, there are many members, yet one body;
21 | And< the eye cannot say unto the hand—
I have <no need of thee>,—
Nor <again> || the head, unto the feet—
I have <no need of you>—
22 | Nay< much more> <the members which seem' to be weaker' are >necessary,
And <the parts of the body which we deem to be <less honourable>||
On these< more abundant honour> do we bestow,
And || our uncomely parts> have <more abundant comeliness>,
24 | Whereas || our comely parts> have <no need>.
But <God> hath tempered the body together,—
|| Unto that which was lacking || giving <more abundant' honour>;
25 | That there might be no division in the body, —
But that the members might have <the same care> || one for another;||
And <whether one member suffereth> || All the members || suffer with it,||
Or  || is glorified>||
All the members || rejoice together,||

*Ro. xii. 4, 5.

* Cp. Gal. iii. 28; Col. iii. 11.
27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members severally;
28 And God hath, indeed, set certain in the assembly,—
First apostles, second prophets, third teachers,
After that mighty works, then gifts of healings, helps, guidings, kinds of tongues.
29 Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers?
Are all mighty works? Do all speak with tongues? Do all translate?
Be jealous, however, of the greater gifts;
And ye shall point out:
13 Although with the tongues of men I be speaking and of messengers,
And have not love, I have become resounding brass, or a clanging cymbal;
And though I have the gift of prophecying, and know all sacred secrets, and all knowledge,
And though I have all faith, so as to be removing mountains,
And have not love, I am nothing;
And though I morsel out all my goods, and though I deliver up my body, that I may boast,
And have not love, I am profited nothing.

"Love" is patient, Is gracious.
"Love" is not envious, Vaunteth not itself, Is not puffed up,
Acteth not unbecomingly, Seeketh not her own things, Is not easily provoked,
Imputeth not that which is base, But rejoiceth not over unrighteousness,
But rejoiceth in sympathy with truth,

All things covereth, All things believeth, All things hopeth, All things endureth.

"Love" at no time faileth,—
But whether prophesying they shall be done away,
Whether tongues they shall cease,
Whether gaining knowledge it shall be done away;
For in part are we gaining knowledge, And in part are we prophesying.

10 But as soon as that which is complete is come
That which is in part shall be done away.
11 When I was a child I used to speak as a child, To reason as a child:
Now I have become a man I have laid aside the things of the child.
For we see, as yet, through a dim window obscurely,
Even as I was also fully known.
But now, and abide—faith, hope, love—These Three;
But the greatest of these is Love.

Pursue love;
Nevertheless be envious of the spiritual gifts, And rather; that ye may be prophesying.
For he that speaketh with a tongue
For no one understandeth, Although in spirit, he is speaking sacred secrets;
But that he prophesieth
Unto men doth speak edification, and exhortation, and comfort.
He that speaketh with a tongue
Buildeth up himself, Whereas he that prophesieth
Buildeth up an assembly.
Howbeit I wish you all to speak with tongues,
But rather that ye may prophesy, Moreover greater is he that prophesieth, Than he that speaketh with tongues,
Unlesse indeed he translate, That the assembly may receive building.

Brethren—
If I come unto you speaking with tongues
What shall I profit you, Except I speak unto you, either by way of revelation, or knowledge, or prophesying, or teaching?
In like manner the things without life giving sound, whether pipe or harp,
If a distinction in the sounds they do not give
How shall it be known, what is being piped or harped?
For if also an uncertain sound a trumpet should give
Who shall prepare himself for battle?
So if also ye through means of the tongue
Except ye give intelligible discourse
How shall it be known what is being spoken? For ye will be speaking to the air.

And there come in persons unskilled or unbelieving:>
Will they not say that ye are raving?
24 But <if [all] be prophesying,—
And there come in one who is unbelieving or unskilled>
He is convicted by all,
He is searched by all,
[The secrets of his heart] become [manifest];
25 And [so] <falling down upon his face>
he will do homage unto God, reporting that [in reality] God is [among you].
26 What, then, is it, brethren?
<Whosever ye are coming together>
[Each one] hath [a psalm], hath [a teaching], hath [a revelation], hath [a tongue], hath [a translation];
27 If [with a tongue] one is speaking>
Let it be by two, or at the most, three,—
And by turns;
And let [one] be translating;
28 But <if there be none to translate>
Let him keep silence in assembly,
And [unto himself] be speaking, and [unto God].
29 <Prophets, moreover>
Let [two or three] speak,
And let [the others] judge.
30 <If, however, [unto another] a revelation be made [as he is sitting]> Let [the first] be silent;
31 For [one by one] ye can [all] be prophesying,—
That [all] may learn, and [all] be encouraged.
32 And [spirits of prophets] [unto prophets] do submit themselves;
33 For God is not [a God] [of confusion] but [of peace] :=
As in all the assemblies of the saints.
34 <As for the women>
[In the assemblies] let them be silent.
For it is not permitted them to be speaking;
But let them be in submission,—
Even as [the law] saith.
35 <If, however, they are wishing [to learn] something>
[At home] [their own' husbands] let them question;
For it is [a shame] for a woman [to be speaking in assembly].
36 Or [if from you] did the word of God come forth?
Or [unto you alone] did it extend?
37 <If anyone thinketh himself to be [a prophet], or spiritually gifted>
Let him acknowledge the things which I am writing to you,—
That they are [a commandment] [of the Lord].

* M1: "the power of the voice." * Or: "offering praise."
* Or: "one."

E.N.T.
But if anyone knoweth not, he is unknown.

So, then, my brethren, be zealous to prophesy, and do not forbid [to be speaking with tongues]; but let all things with comeliness, and by arrangement be done.

Moreover, brethren, I make known unto you the joyful message—Which I myself announced to you, which also ye received, in which also ye stand;

through which also ye are being saved, if ye hold fast with what discourse I announced the joyful message unto you—unless indeed [in vain] ye believed.

For I delivered unto you among the first things what also I received:

How that Christ died for our sins [according to the Scriptures], and that he was buried, and that he hath been raised on the third day, according to the Scriptures, and that he appeared unto Cephas, then to the twelve, after that he appeared to above five hundred brethren [at once], of whom the greater number remain until even now,

but some have fallen asleep, still after that he appeared unto James, then unto all the apostles, and last of all, just as if unto the unreasonableness of birth he appeared even unto me;

for I am the least of the apostles, who are not worthy to be called an apostle because I persecuted the assembly of God.

But by favour of God I am what I am, and his favour, which was unto me hath not been made void.

but much more abundantly than they all have I toiled, albeit not [in this way] but the favour of God with me.

Whether therefore [in this], or they, do we proclaim, and thus did ye believe.

Now if Christ is proclaimed, that from among the dead he hath been raised.

how say some among you—resurrection of the dead is there none?

but not even Christ hath been raised;

and if Christ hath not been raised, void after all is our proclamation, void also our faith,— and we are found even false-witnesses of God;

because we have witnessed respecting God, that he raised the Christ,—whom he did not raise, [if indeed, after all] the dead are not raised!

for if the dead are not raised, not even Christ hath been raised; and if Christ hath not been raised to no purpose is your faith, yet are ye in your sins!

hence also they who are fallen asleep in Christ are lost:

if in this life in Christ we have hoped—and that is all—we are of all men most to be pitied.

but now hath Christ been raised from among the dead,—a firstfruit of them who have fallen asleep;

for since indeed through a man came death through a man also cometh the raising of the dead;

for just as in the Adam all die so also in the Christ shall all be made alive.

but each in his own rank:

a firstfruit of Christ, after that they who are the Christ's in his presence;

afterwards the end—whenever he delivereth up the kingdom unto his God and Father, whenever he shall bring to nought all rule and all authority and power;

for he must needs reign, until he shall put all his enemies under his feet:

as a last enemy [death] is to be destroyed;

for he put all things in subjection under his feet.

but whenever it shall be said—all things are in subjection!

it is evident that it means—except him who did put into subjection unto him the all things—

but whenever have been put into subjection unto him the all things—

then the Son himself also shall be put in subjection unto him who put in subjection unto him the all things—that God may be all things in all.

1 Or: "if anyone is without knowledge—let him be without knowledge." 2 Or: "kept safe." 3 Or: "perfect tense: abiding result." 4 Or: "nothing." 5 Or: "be ensuion of prehensive." 6 Or: "according to." 7 Or: "be shal shall say."
29 Else what will they do, who are being immersed in behalf of the dead?
   <If not at all> are the dead to be raised>
   Why are they even being immersed in their behalf?
30 Why also are we running into peril every hour?
31 Yea! by your own boasting, brethren, Which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord.
32 If after the manner of men I have fought with wild-beasts at Ephesus>
   What is the profit?
   <If the dead are not raised>
   Let us eat and drink,
   For to-morrow we die.
33 Be not deceiving yourselves,—
   Evil communications corrupt gentle man,
34 Wake up to sobriety in righteousness,
   And be not committing sin;
   For some have ignorance of God:
   For shame unto you am I speaking!
35 But some one will say—
   How are the dead raised?
   And with what kind of body do they come?
36 Simple one:
   What thou sowest is not quickened except it die;
   And what thou sowest is not the body that shall come into existence;
   But thou sowest a naked kernel—
   If it so happen of wheat, or of any of the rest,
37 Howbeit God giveth it a body as he pleased,
   And unto each of the seeds a body of its own.
38 Not all flesh is the same flesh;
   But one is flesh of men and another flesh of beasts,
   And another flesh of birds, and another flesh of fishes;
   And there are heavenly bodies and earthly bodies,—
   But of one kind indeed is the glory of the heavenly;
   And of another kind is the glory of the earthly;—
39 One is the glory of a sun,
   And another the glory of a moon,
   And another the glory of stars,—
   Nay! [star from star] differeth in glory.
40 Thus also the resurrection of the dead:
   It is sown in corruption,
   It is raised in incorruption,
41 It is sown in dishonour,
   It is raised in glory,
   It is sown in weakness,
   It is raised in power,
42 Thus also the resurrection of the dead:
   It is sown a body of the soul,*
   It is raised a body of the spirit;—
   If there is a body of the soul>
   There is also of the spirit;—
   Thus also, it is written—
   The first man, Adam, became a living soul,*
   The last Adam a life-giving spirit.
Howbeit not first is the [body] of the spirit;
   But that of the soul,—
   Afterwards that of the spirit.
43 The first man is of the ground earthly;—
   The second man is of the heaven;
   As the man of earth shall such also, the men of earth,
   And as the man of heaven shall such also, the men of heaven;
   And even as we have borne the image of the man of earth,
   Let us also bear the image of the man of heaven.
44 And this I say, brethren,—
   That flesh and blood cannot inherit God's kingdom;
   Neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.
45 Lo! a sacred secret! unto you do I declare:—
   We shall not sleep,
   But we shall be changed;—
   In a moment,
   In the twinkling of an eye,
   During the last trumpet;
   For it shall sound,
   And the dead shall be raised incorruptible,
   And we shall be changed.
46 For this corruptible must needs clothe itself with incorruptibility,
   And this mortal, clothe itself with immortality.
47 But whenever this mortal shall clothe itself with immortality>
   Then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written—
   Death hath been swallowed up victoriously;
   Where, O death, is thy victory?
   Where, O death, is thy sting?
   Now the sting of death is sin,
   And the power of sin is the law;—
   But unto God be thanks, who is giving unto us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.
48 So then, my beloved brethren,—
   Become ye steadfast, immovable,
   Suppressing in the work of the Lord at all times;
Knowing that ||your toil|| is not in vain ||in the Lord||.

16 Now <concerning the collection which is for the saints>
<Just as I directed the assemblies of Galatia>
||So|| also do ||ye|| :-

2 ||Upon the first of the week|| let ||each one|| of you|| put ||by itself, in store|| ||as he may be prospering||,—

3 Lest ||as soon as I come|| ||then|| ||collections|| should be in progress.

And ||as soon as I arrive|| <whomsoever ye shall approve by letters> ||these|| will I send, to bear away your favour unto Jerusalem:

4 And <if it be meet> that ||I also|| be journeying> ||with me|| shall they journey.

5 Now I will come unto you, as soon as I have passed through ||Macedonia||,—

6 For I do ||pass through|| ||Macedonia|| ;

And ||with you|| I may perhaps sojourn, or winter,—

That ||ye|| may set me forward ||whithersoever I may be journeying||.

7 For ||I do not wish to see|| you, ||just now||, by the way;

I hope to remain ||some time|| with you,—

If ||the Lord|| permit.

8 But ||I remain in Ephesus, until the Pentecost,

9 For ||a door, unto me|| hath opened ||great and effectual|| and ||opposers|| are ||many||.

10 But <if Timothy should come> ||see that||, ||without fear|| he be with you,

For ||in the work of the Lord|| doth he labour, even as ||I|| ;

11 Let no one then despise ||him||,*

And set ye him forward in peace, that he may come unto me,

For I expect him with the brethren.

*1 Tim. iv. 12.

12 But <concerning Apollos the brother> ||Much|| did ||I beseech him, that he would come unto you ||with the brethren||,

But there was ||by no means|| any will, that he should come ||now|| ;—

He will come, however, as soon as he hath good opportunity.

13 Be on the watch,

Stand firm in the faith,

Be men,—

Be strong ;

14 Let ||all your affairs|| ||in love|| be carried on.

15 Now I beseech you, brethren,—

Ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is a first-fruit of Achaia, and ||for the purpose of ministering|| they devoted themselves ||unto the saints||—

16 That ||ye also|| be submitting yourselves unto such as these,—and unto everyone helping in the work and toiling.

17 I rejoice, moreover, in the presence of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus :

Because ||your own’ shortcoming|| ||these’ have filled up :—

18 They have given rest, in fact, unto my’ spirit ||and yours’ ;

Hold in acknowledgment, therefore, ||such as these||.

19 The assemblies of Asia salute you :

Aquila and Priscilla, with the assembly meeting at their house, salute you much in the Lord :

20 All the brethren salute you :—

Salute ye one another with a holy kiss.

21 The salutation of Paul—||with my own’ hand||.

22 <If anyone doth not dearly love the Lord> ||Let him be anathema (that is, “accursed!”):

Maranatha ||that is, “[The Lord] cometh,”||.

23 ||The favour of the Lord Jesus|| be with you.

24 ||My love|| be with you all’ ||in Christ Jesus||.
THE SECOND EPISODE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE CORINTHIANS.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God,
   And Timothy the brother,—
   Unto the assembly of God which is in Corinth,
   Together with all the saints who are in the whole of Achaia:

2 Favour unto you, and peace,
   From God [our] Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

3 [Blessed] be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,*
   The Father of compassions,
   And God of all’ encouragement.

4 Who encourageth us in all’ our tribulation,
   To the end we may be able to encourage them who are in any’ tribulation—
   Through means of the encouragement wherewith we [ourselves] are encouraged by God.

5 Because <[even as the sufferings of the Christ overflow unto us,] [So] [through the Christ] overfloweth [our encouragement also].

6 But <whether we are in tribulation>
   It is for your’ encouragement and salvation;
   <Whether we are encouraged>
   It is for your’ encouragement, which work-eth inwardly b by the endurance of the same sufferings which [we also] suffer;—

7 And so [[our hope] is sure in your behalf,— Knowing that—
   <As ye are [ sharers ] of the sufferings > e
   [So!] also, of the encouragement.

8 For we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, as to our tribulation which happened in Asia,—
   That [exceedingly, beyond power] were we weighed down,
   So that we despaired [even of life].

9 But [[we ourselves, within ourselves] have had the sentence of death,]
   That we might not rest our confidence upon ourselves,
   But upon God [who raiseth the dead,]
   Who [[out of so great’ a death:] rescued us, and will rescue,—
   Unto whom we have turned our hope,
   [that] [even yet] he will rescue:

10 Ye also labouring together on our behalf <by your supplication>,

That <[unto many’ persons] being due the gift of favour [unto us]> [Through means of many] might thanks be given in our behalf.

12 For [[our boasting] is [this]—The witness of our conscience,
   [And] not in fleshly wisdom, but in God’s favour>
   Have we behaved ourselves in the world,—
   [And more abundantly towards you].

13 For [[no other things] are we writing unto you, than what ye are either reading or even acknowledging,—I hope, moreover, that [throughout] ye will acknowledge,
   According as ye have also acknowledged us, in part,—
   That [[your theme of boasting] we are,
   Even indeed as [[ye]] also [shall be] [ours]]
   in the day of our Lord Jesus.

15 And [[in this’ confidence] I purposed, [before] to come [unto you],—
   [In order that] [[a second’ joy] ye might have,—

16 And [[by your means] to pass into Macedonia,
   And [again] [[from Macedonia] b to come unto
   you,
   And [by you] be set forward unto Judæa:—

17 [[This] then, being my purpose>
   Perhaps [after all] [with lightness] I dealt [with the matter]?
   Or <the things that I purpose > [according to the flesh] I purpose,—
   That [with me] should be the Yea, yes, and the Nay, nay?

18 [Faithful] however, is God, in that [our discourse, which was [delivered] unto you] is not Yea and Nay;

19 For [[the Son of God’, Christ Jesus]—
   <Who [among you, through us] was proclaimed,—
   Through me, and Silvanus, and Timothy >
   Became not Yea and Nay,—
   But [Yea, in him] hath it become;

20 For [[how many soever be the promises of God]>
   [In him] is the Yea,—

* Eph. i. 3.  * Ph. iii. 10.
"favour."
Wherefore also through him be the Amen, unto God, for glory, through us.

21 Now he that confirmeth us together with you, for Christ, and hath anointed us, is God: 22 Who also hath sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts. 23 But I call upon God as a witness against my own soul, that I have come unto Corinth: 24 Not that we have lordship over your faith, but are helpers of your joy, for your faith. Ye stand.

2 For I have determined, unto myself this—not again in grief to come unto you.

3 For if I be not minded to do the thing which I ought to do, I could do it, and I would. And I wrote this very thing—

Lost if I came, I should have grief from those over whom I had need to rejoice, having confidence in you all. That my joy is the joy of you all.

4 For out of much tribulation and anguish of heart I wrote unto you, through many tears, not that ye might be grieved, but that ye might understand, which I have very abundantly unto you.

5 Now if anyone hath caused grief, whether he be for you or for me, it is none other than that one by whom I am grieved. So that on the contrary ye should forgive and encourage, lest by any means this one by excessive grief such a one should be swallowed up.

6 Therefore, I beseech you, that ye be the more obedient unto me. For I, to this end I also wrote—That I might know the proof of you. Whether in all things ye are obedient.

7 Now to whom ye forgive anything, I also forgive; for if I forgive, I will forgive in the person of Christ, for your sake, in the person of Christ, have I forgiven it. 8 Lest we should be overreached by Satan, for of his thoughts we are not ignorant.

Moreover although I came unto Troas for the glad-message of the Christ, and for a door for me, had been opened in the Lord. 10 I had no relief in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother; but taking my leave of them, I came away into Macedonia.

14 But unto God be thanks. For the grace of the knowledge of him maketh manifest, through us, in every place. 15 That of Christ is a grateful odour, are we unto God, in them who are being saved, and in them who are being lost: In these indeed a fragrance out of death into death, but in those a fragrance out of life into life. And for these things who is sufficient?

17 For we are not, as the many, driving a petty trade with the word of God; but as of sincerity, as of God, before God, in Christ, we speak.

3 Are we to begin again ourselves to commend ourselves, or have we need like some of commendatory letters unto you, or from you?

2 But our letter is not, are, inscribed in our hearts, noted and read by all men.

3 Manifesting yourselves that ye are a letter of Christ, ministered by us, inscribed—Not with ink, but with the Spirit of a Living God, not in tables of stone. 4 But such confidence as this have we, through the Christ, towards God.

5 Not that of our own selves sufficient, we, to reckon anything as of ourselves, but of our sufficiency is of God—Who also hath made us sufficient to be ministers of a new covenant—Not of letter, but of spirit, for the letter killeth, whereas the Spirit maketh alive.

7 But if the ministry of death, in letters engraven in stones, was brought into existence with glory, so that the sons of Israel could not look steadfastly into the face of Moses. By reason of the glory of his face; Which glory was to be done away.

8 How shall not rather the ministry of the Spirit be with glory?

9 For if the ministry of condemnation was glory—Much rather doth the ministry of righteousness abound with glory.

10 For that which hath been made glorious hath been dishonoured.
not even been made glorious] in this respect.—
By reason of the surpassing glory.

11 For [if that which was to be done away was brought in with glory]
[Much more] that which is to abide is in glory.

12 [Having, then, such hope as this>]
Great openness of speech do we use;—

13 And are not just like Moses, [who kept putting a veil upon his face].
So that the sons of Israel should not look steadily unto the end of that which was to be done away.

14 But their thoughts were turned into stone:
For [until this very day] the same veil [upon the reading of the old covenant] abideth, not to be removed,
Because [in Christ] it is to be done away;

15 But [until this day] whencesoever Moses is read [a veil upon their heart] doth lie;

16 Howbeit whencesoever he turneth unto [the Lord] he taketh of the veil:
And [the Lord] is [the Spirit]:
Now [where the Spirit of one who is Lord is there is] freedom!

17 And [we all] [with unveiled face] receiving and reflecting [the glory of the Lord];
Into the same image are being transformed,
From glory into glory,—
Even as from a Spirit that is Lord.

4 Wherefore [having, this ministry, even as we received] mercy we faint not;

5 But have renounced the hidden things of shame,
Not walking in craftiness,
Nor handling the word of God deceitfully,—
But [by the manifestation of the truth] commending ourselves unto every conscience of men, in the sight of God.

6 And [even if our glad-message is veiled].
[In them who are perishing] it is veiled,
In whom [the god of this age] hath blinded the minds of the unbelieving;
To the end they may not discern the [glad-message of the] glory of the Christ—Who is the image of God.

5 For [not ourselves] do we proclaim, but Christ Jesus [as Lord],
And [ourselves] as your servants for Jesus’ sake.

6 Because [the God who said—]

In proportion to the radiance of the glorious knowledge of God, in the face of Christ.

7 Howbeit we have this treasure in earthen vessels,
That [the surpassing greatness of the power] may be of God, and not from ourselves:—

8 [On every side] pressed hard, but not hemmed in,
Without a way, but not without a by-way,
Pursued, but not abandoned,
Thrown down, but not destroyed:—

9 [At all times, the putting to death of Jesus] in our body bearing about,
In order that [the life also of Jesus] in our body may be made manifest;

10 For [evermore] we, the living unto death are being delivered, for Jesus’ sake,
In order that [the life also of Jesus] may be made manifest in our mortal flesh:

11 So that [his death] in us doth energize,
But [his life] in you.

12 Howbeit [seeing that we have the same spirit of faith],
According to that which is written—
I believed, therefore I spake:—

13 We also believe, therefore also we speak:

14 Knowing that [he who raised up the Lord Jesus] will raise up [us also, together with Jesus] and will present [us] together with you.

15 For [all things] are for your sakes,
In order that [the favour abundantly],
May [through means of the greater number] cause the thanksgiving to superabound unto the glory of God.

16 Wherefore we faint not,
But [even if our outer man] is decaying:
Nevertheless [our inner man] is renewing day by day.

17 For [the momentary lightness of tribulation]
[In a manner yet more and more excelling],
In working out for us an age-abiding weight of glory,—

18 So long as we are not looking out for the visible things,
But for the invisible;
For [the visible things] are temporary,
Whereas [the invisible] are age-abiding.

5 For we know that—
If [our earthly tent-dwelling] should be taken down

6 We have [a building of God],
A dwelling not made by hand,
Age-abiding in the heavens.

2 And verily [in this] we sigh earnestly
And in behalf of all died he,—
In order that they who live,
No longer for themselves should live,
But for him who in their behalf died and rose again.

16 So that we, henceforth, know no one after the flesh:
If we have even been gaining, after the flesh, a knowledge of Christ.

17 On the contrary, now, no longer are we gaining it.
So that if any one is in Christ there is a new creation:
The old things have passed away,—
Lo! they have become new!

18 The all things, moreover, are of God,—
Who hath reconciled us unto himself, through Christ,
And hath given unto us, the reconciling ministry:
How that God was in Christ,
Reconciling a world unto himself,
Not reckoning unto them, their offences,—
And hath put, in us, the reconciling discourse.

20 In behalf of Christ therefore, are we ambassadors,—
As if God were beseeching through us: We entreat, in behalf of Christ,—
Be reconciled unto God!

21 Him who knew not sin
In our behalf he made to be sin,
That we might become God's righteousness in him.

6 As co-workers, however, we also beseech, That not in vain the favour of God ye welcome;

3 For he saith;
In an approved season have I harkened unto thee,
And in a day of salvation have I succoured thee:—
Lo! now a well-approved season,
Lo! now a day of salvation:

3 Giving no single occasion of stumbling in anything,
That the ministry be not blamed;

4 But in everything commending ourselves as God's ministers,—
In much endurance, in tribulations, in necessities, in straits, in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in watchings, in fastings, in sauciness, in knowledge, in long-suffering, in graciousness, in Holy Spirit, in love unfeigned,
In discourse of truth, in power of God;
Through the weapons of righteousness on the right hand and left, through glory and dishonour, through bad report and good report;
As deceivers, and yet true, as unknown.

Or: "bad died."

Or: "if we do but clothe ourselves"—the prefix for "ever" being dropped. Note the verb, middle, not passive; and aorist = act, not state.

Or: "creating afresh."
and yet well-known, as dying, and lo! we live, as disciplined, and yet not put to death, 10 as grieving, yet [ever] rejoicing, as destitute, yet making [many] rich, as holding [nothing], and yet firmly holding [all things].

Our mouth is opened unto you, O Corinthians! Our heart hath become enlarged:

Ye are not straitened in us,
But are straitened in your hearts' affections;

Howbeit by way of the like recompense—as unto children I speak—Be enlarged, even [ye].

Be not getting diversely yoked with unbelievers;
For what partnership have righteousness and lawlessness?

Or what fellowship hath light with darkness?

And what concord hath Christ with Beliar?

Or what part hath a believer with an unbeliever?

And what agreement hath a shrine of God with idols?

For [we] are [the] [shrine of a God] that [liveth]:—

Even as God hath said—

I will dwell in them, and walk,
And will be their God,
And [they] shall be my people.

Wherefore come ye forth out of their midst,
And be separated,—saith [the] Lord,—
And [one impure] do not touch;
And [I] will give you welcome,
And will become your Father, And [ye] shall become my sons and daughters,

Saih [the] Lord Almighty.

<Having therefore [these] promises, beloved>

Let us purify ourselves from all pollution of flesh and spirit,
           Perfecting holiness in fear of God.

Give place to us!
||No one| have we wronged,
||No one| have we corrupted,
||No one| have we defrauded.

[Unto condemnation] I am not saying [this] For I have before said—

[In our hearts] are ye, to the end we may die together and live together.

[Great] is my freedom of speech towards you,
[Great] is my boasting in behalf of you:
I am filled with the encouragement,
I am greatly superabounding with the joy,
In all our tribulation.

For [even when we came] into Macedonia>

[No relief at all] had our flesh;

But [in every way] we were in tribulation,—
| Without | fightings !
| Within | fears !

But [he who encourgeth them that are brought low] encouraged us,—

Even God,—by the presence of Titus.

7 Not, however, by his presence [alone],
But also by the encouragement wherewith he had been encouraged over you:
Recounting unto us your earnest desire,
your lamentation, your zeal in my behalf.

So that I the more rejoiced.
Because [if I even grieved you by the letter>

I do not regret,—

Though I could even have regretted,—

I see that that letter [if even for an hour] did cause you grief.

9 | Now | am I rejoicing,—

Not that ye were grieved,
But that ye were grieved unto repentance;
For ye were grieved according to God,
In order that [in nothing] should ye receive damage from us.

10 For [grief according to God] worketh repentance unto salvation, not to be regretted;

Although [the grieving of the world] worketh [death].

11 For lo! this very thing—the being caused to grieve [according to God]:—

What manner of diligence it wrought out in you,—nay! defence,—nay! sore displeasure,—nay! fear,—nay! earnest desire,—nay! jealousy,—nay! avenging.

[In every way] ye showed yourselves to be [chaste] in the matter.

Hence [if I even wrote unto you>

It was not for the sake of him that did the wrong,

| Nay | not even for the sake of him that suffered' the wrong ;

But for the sake of your earnestness, which was on our account, being made manifest unto you, before God:—

| For this cause | have we received encouragement.

<In addition to our encouragement, however>

| Much more abundantly | have we rejoiced over the joy of Titus,—

That his spirit hath received refreshment from you all',

That [if in anything,—unto him—in your behalf—I have boasted] I have not been put to shame;

But [as [all things, in truth] we told you]

So | even our boasting before Titus turned out to be [truth].

And [his tender affections] are [much more abundantly towards you].

When he calleth to mind the obedience [of you all]',—

How [with fear and trembling] ye gave him welcome.

* The count is resumed lower down, ver. 11.
18 Moreover we make known unto you, brethren, The favour of God which hath been given in the assemblies of Macedonia,

2 That in a great trial of tribulation,
   the superabounding of their joy and their deep destitution, superabounded unto the riches of their liberality;

3 That according to power, I bear witness, and beyond power, of their own accord, they acted, —

4 With much exhortation entreat the favor of us, the fellowship of the ministry which was for the saints, —

5 And not merely as we hoped, but gave they first, unto the Lord and unto us through God’s will,
   to the end we should exhort Titus, in order that according as he before made a beginning, so he should also complete unto you this favour also.

6 But just as in everything ye superabound,
   In faith, and discourse, and knowledge, and all earnestness, and in the love among you which proceedeth from us,
   in order that in this favour also ye would superabound.

7 Not by way of injunction, do I speak, but through others’ earnestness, the genuineness of your own love putting to the test.

8 For ye are taking knowledge of the favour of our Lord Jesus Christ, —
   How that for your sakes he became destitute — although he was rich, in order that ye by his destitution might be enriched.

9 And a judgment, herein do I give, —
   For this unto you is profitable, —
   Who, indeed not only of the doing, but of the desiring made for yourselves a beginning a year ago; —

10 Howbeit now the doing also complete ye, in order that even according to the forwardness of the desiring, so may be the completing — out of what ye have.

11 For if the forwardness is set forth, according to what one may have he is well approved, not according to what one hath not.

12 For not unto others’ should be relief, and unto you distress, do I speak.
   But by equality,
   in the present season ye surplus for their deficiency, — in order that their surplus may come to be for your deficiency:

*1 Co. vii. 6.

13 That there may come about an equality; —

14 Even as it is written —
   [He that gathered] the much had not more than enough,
   And he that gathered] the little had not less.

15 Thanks, however, unto God! —
   Who is putting the same earnestness in your behalf in the heart of Titus,
   In that though, indeed, the exhortation he welcomed,
   Yet already being greatly in earnest, of his own accord hath he gone forth unto you.

16 Howbeit we have set forward with him the brother whose praise in the Glad Tidings hath gone through all the assemblies, —

17 Not only so, however, but he hath also been appointed by the assemblies as a fellow-traveller with us in this favour, which is being ministered by us with a view to the Lord’s glory and our earnest desire; —

18 Arranging this lest anyone upon us should cast blame, in this munificence which is being ministered by us; —

19 For we provide things honourable, not only before the Lord, but also before men.

20 Moreover we have set forward with them, our brother whom we have proved in many things, oftentimes earnest, —
   But now much more earnest, by reason of the great confidence which he hath towards you.

21 Whether as regardeth Titus, he is a partner of mine, and towards you a fellow-worker.

22 Or our brethren, Apostles of assemblies, and Christ’s glory.

23 The proof of your love, therefore, and of our boasting in your behalf, shew ye unto them in the face of the assemblies.

24 For indeed, concerning the ministry which is for the saints, it is superfluous for me to be writing to you; —

25 For I know your forwardness of mind —
   Of which in your behalf I am boasting unto Macedonians,
   That [Achaia] hath been prepared for a year past, —
   And [your zeal] hath stirred up the greater number of them.

26 Nevertheless I have sent the brethren, that our boast in your behalf be not made void in this respect;
   That even as I was saying ye may be prepared, —

27 Least by any means if there should come with me Macedonians, and find you unprepared, —

*Ex. xvi. 18. *Pr. iii. 4 *Sap. cp. Ec. xii. 17.
2 Corinthians IX. 5—15; X. 1—15.

5 | Necessary | therefore, I regarded it,
To exhort the brethren that they would go forward unto you,
And make up beforehand your previously-promised blessing.
||The same| to be |ready|—|thus, as a blessing| and not as of constraint.
6 | As to this, however,|
||He that soweth sparingly | [Sparingly] | also shall reap,
And ||he that soweth with blessings||
||With blessings| also shall reap:*:
7 | Each one, according as he hath purposed in his heart|
Not sorrowfully, nor of necessity,—
For ||a cheerful giver || God loveth.*
8 |Moreover God is able to cause | every gracious gift| to superabound unto you,
In order that |<having in every thing, at every time>,| every kind of sufficiency of your own:* Ye may be superabounding unto every good work;*
9 | Even as it is written—
He hath scattered abroad,
He hath given to the needy,—
||His righteousness|| obedieth to futurity.*
10 |Now |<he that supplieth seed to the sower, and bread for eating>|
Will supply and multiply your seed for sowing,
And cause to grow your fruits of righteousness:*:
11 | In every thing| being enriched, unto every kind of liberality,—
Which, indeed, worketh out, through us, thanksgiving unto God;
12 | Because ||the ministry of this public service|| is not only| towards filling up the deficiencies of the saints, but also superabounding | through the thanksgiving of many| unto God,—
[Of many] who |through the proof of this ministry| are glorifying God for your acknowledged’ submission unto the glad-message of the Christ, and for the liberality of the fellowship |unto them, and unto all],—
13 |Themselves also| <with supplication on your behalf> longing after you, by reason of the surpassing favour of God [resting] upon you:—
14 Thanks be unto God, for his unspakeable bounty!*
15 Moreover ||I, Paul, myself|| exhort you,
Through the meekness and considerateness of the Christ,—
I who |to look upon, indeed| am lowly among you,
But |absent| am bold towards you;—
2 | I entreat, however,
That |<when present> I may not be bold with the assurance wherewith I think to be daring against some who account of us as though |according to flesh| we were walking,—
3 For |<though |in flesh| we walk| Not |according to flesh| do we war,—
4 For ||the weapons of our warfare|| are not fleshly,
But mighty, by God, unto a pulling down of strongholds,—
5 When we pull down |calculations| and every height that uplifteth itself against the knowledge of God, And when we bring into captivity every thought unto the obedience of the Christ,
6 And when we hold ourselves |in readiness| to avenge all |disobedience,
As soon as your obedience shall be fulfilled!*
7 ||The things that lie on the surface| ye are looking at:—
<If anyone hath come to trust in himself that he is |Christ’s|>
||This| let him reckon, again, with himself—
That |<even as |he> is Christ’s>
||So| also are |we|.
8 Yea<if |somewhat more abundantly| I should boast concerning our authority—
Which the Lord hath given for building up and not for pulling you down>
I shall not be put to shame,—
9 That I may not seem as though I would be terrifying you through means of my letters;
10 Because ||The letters, it is true||<of one>,* are weighty and strong,
But |the presence of the body| is weak, and |the discourse| contemptible;—
11 ||This| let such a one reckon—
That |what we are, in our word, through means of letters, being absent|,
||Such| also ||being present| are we |in our deed|.
12 For we dare not class or compare ourselves with some’ who do |themselves| commend;
But ||<among their selves> measuring |themselves,| and comparing themselves with themselves>
Are without discernment!
13 ||We|| however |<not as to the things without measure>| will boast ourselves,
But, according to the measure of the limit which God apportioned unto us |as a measure|—
To reach as far as even you!
14 For |<not as though we were not reaching unto you> are we over-stretching ourselves,
For |<as far as even you> were we beforehand in the glad-message of the Christ;
15 Not |<as to the things without measure>| boasting ourselves in other’ men’s toils,
But having |<hope—your faith |growing|—

18 But what I am doing I also will do,—
That I may cut off the occasion of them who are wishing an occasion,
That wherein they are boasting themselves they may be found even as also we.

19 For such as these are false apostles, deceitful workers, transfiguring themselves into apostles of Christ.

20 And no marvel! For Satan himself doth transfigure himself into a messenger of light!

21 No great thing therefore if [his ministers also] are transfiguring themselves as ministers of righteousness!—
[Whose end] shall be according to their works.

22 Again I say—
Let no one deem me to be foolish;
But [otherwise, at least] as foolish give me welcome,
That I also [some little] may boast myself.

23 What I am saying Not according to the Lord am I saying, but as in foolishness,—
In this my boastful confidence!

24 Since [many] are boasting after the flesh—
I also will boast;

25 For gladly do ye bear with the foolish, Being [yourselves] discreet,—
For ye bear with it—
If anyone enslavest you, if any devourest, if anyone taketh, if anyone liftest himself up, if anyone [on the face] doth smite you!

26 By way of disparagement am I speaking,—
As though [we] had been weak!
Whereas in whatsoever anyone dares—
In foolishness I speak—[I also] dare:—

27 Hebrews are they? [I also],
Israelites are they? [I also],
Seed of Abraham are they? [I also],

28 Ministers of Christ are they? As one deranged I am talking—[I] above measure!—
In toi[t] superabundantly,
In [prisons] superabundantly,
In stripes [to excess,
In deaths] oft,—

29 [From Jews] five times! forty-saw[one] have I received,
[Thrice!] have I been beaten with rods,
[Once!] have I been stoned,
[Thrice!] have I been shipwrecked,
[Day and night; in the deep] have I spent;

30 In journeyings oft,
In perils of rivers, in perils of robbers, in perils from my own race, in perils from Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the desert, in perils by the sea, in perils among false brethren, in toil and hardship, in watchings; oft, in hunger and thirst, [in fasting; oft, in cold and nakedness;—

26 <Apart from the things without>
"My daily care"—my anxiety for all the assemblies;—
29 Who is weak, and I am not weak?
Who is caused to stumble, and I am not burning?
30 <If | to boast: is needful | in the things that concern my weakness| will I boast.
31 ||The God and Father of our Lord Jesus| knoweth—
He who is blessed unto the ages—
That I am not speaking falsely:
32 ||In Damascus|| the governor under Aretas the king| was guarding the city of Damascus, to apprehend me,—
33 And |through a window| was I let down by the wall, a
And escaped his hands.
12 |To be boasting| is needful,—it is not, indeed, profitable, b
Yet will I come to visions and revelations of [the] Lord:—
2 I know a man in Christ,
Who |fourteen years ago|
<Whether in the body, I know not,
Or out of the body, I know not, |God| knoweth>
Such a one as this |caught away| as far as the third heaven;
3 And I know such a man as this,
<Whether in the body or apart from the body,
I know not,—|God| knoweth>
4 How that he was caught away into paradise,
And heard unspeakable things,
Which it is not allowable for a man to utter:
5 On behalf of such a one as this| will I boast,
But ||On behalf of myself|| will I not boast ||save in my weaknesses||—
6 Although in fact <if I should wish to boast>
I shall not be foolish, for |the truth| would I speak;—
But I forbear, lest anyone |unto me| should reckon above what he beheldeth me [to be], or heareth from me,—
||Even by the exceeding greatness of the revelations||—
7 Wherefore <lest I should be unduly lifted up>—
There was given to me a thorn c in the flesh,
A messenger of Satan, that he might buffet me,—
Lest I should be unduly lifted up. d
8 ||In this behalf|| [therefore] besought I |the Lord|, that it might depart from me;—
9 And at once he said unto me—
||Sufficient for thee| is my favour,
For ||my power|| in weakness is made complete.

||Most gladly|| therefore, will I rather boast in my weaknesses,
That the power of Christ may spread a tent over me.
10 Wherefore, I take pleasure in weaknesses, in insults, in necessities, in persecutions and straits,*
||In behalf of Christ||—
For <as soon as I am weak> ||then| am I ||powerful||—
11 I have become foolish,—||yes| compelled me:—
||I||, in fact, ought |by you| to have been commended;
For |not a whit| have I come behind the exceeding' overwhelm' apostles,—
||Even if I am nothing||:
12 ||The signs, indeed, of an apostle|| b were wrought out among you |in all' endurance||,—
||Both| in signs, and wonders, and mighty works:
13 For what is there wherein ye were made inferior to the rest' of the assemblies,—
Save that ||I myself| would not allow myself to be a burden unto you?
Forgive me this wrong:
14 Lo! ||this third| I am holding myself |in readiness| to come unto you,
And I will not allow myself to be a burden;—
For I seek not yours, but you:—
For |the children| ought not to lay up |for the parents|,
But the parents for the children:—
15 And ||I|| most gladly| will spend, and be fully spent, for your souls:—
||If I |exceedingly| love you> am I |the less| loved? c
16 But let it be!—
I ||myself| did not burden you,—
Notwithstanding, ||being crafty|| with guile e
I caught you. d
17 Was there |anyone of those whom I have sent unto you| through whom I have overreached you?
18 I exhorted Titus, and sent with him the brother,—
Did |Titus| overreach you?
Was it not |in the same' spirit| we walked?
Was it not |in the same' steps|?
19 ||All this time|| think ye, that |unto you| we are making a defence?
||Before God in Christ|| we speak:—
But all these things, beloved, for your' upbuilding.
20 For I fear—
||Lest, by any means, when I come||
|Not such as I wish| should I find you,
And ||I|| should be found by you, |such as ye do not wish|:—

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE GALATIANS.

1 Paul, an apostle,—
Not from men, nor through man,
But through Jesus Christ, and God the Father who raised him from among the dead,—

2 And all the brethren with’ me—
Unto the assemblies of Galatia:
Favour unto you and peace,
From God our Father,
And Lord Jesus Christ,—

Lest, by any means, [I should find] strife, jealousy, outbursts of wrath, factions, railings, whisperings, puff ed up pretensions, confusions;—

13 [This third time1] am I coming unto you:—
<At the mouth of two’ witnesses, or three’> shall every matter be established.b

2 I have said beforehand, and do say beforehand,—
As present the second time, although now absent>
Unto them who before sinned, and unto all the rest,—
That <if I come again> I will not spare.

3 <Since a test’ ye are seeking, of the speaking in me of Christ;—
Who | unto you| is not weak,
But is powerful in you,—

4 For [although he was crucified through weakness],
Yet is he living through God’s power,—
For [although we’ are weak in’ him],
Yet shall we live with him, through
God’s power [unto us]—>

5 Be trying [yourself] whether ye are in the
faith,
Be putting [youself] to the test!1
Or do ye not recognise yourselves.

* Or: "am I to come unto you?"
* Or: "with’.

Seeing that [Jesus Christ;] is in you,—
Unless peradventure ye fall in the testing.
6 I hope, however, that ye shall come to know, that [we’] fall not in the testing;
7 But we pray unto God, that ye may do nothing base,—
Not that [we’] may appear [accepted’],
But that [ye’] [the honourable thing’ may be doing, even though [we’] should be, as it were, [rejected’];

8 For we can do nothing against’ the truth, but for’ the truth;
9 For we rejoice—whenever [we’] are weak,
and [we’] are [strong’].

10 [This’] also we pray for—your restoration:—
11 [For this cause’] these things, while absent:
I am writing,
That I may not [when present] deal
sharply’—
According to the authority which [the Lord’] hath given me, for building up and not for pulling down.

12 Finally’ brethren, farewell!1
Be getting restored, be taking encouragement, be of one mind, live in peace,—
And [the God of love and peace’] will be with you.

13 Salute ye one another with a holy’ kiss.
[All the saints] salute you.

According to the will of our God and
Father,—

6 I marvel that [thus’] quickly ye are moving away from him that called you in the favour of Christ,

 lawsuits, whisperings, puff ed up pretensions, confusions;—
 Unto a different' glad-message,—
Which is not another;
Only there are some that are troubling you;
And wishing to change the glad-message of the Christ.
But even if I were or a messenger out of heaven announce a glad-message unto you aside from that which we announced unto you:
| Accursed | let him be!
| Accursed | let him be!
| Accursed | let him be!
10 For am I even now persuading men or God?
Or am I seeking to please men?
| If I had been still pleasing men |
| Christ's servant | had I not been!
11 For I make known unto you, brethren,
As to the glad-message which was announced by me:
That it is not after man;
Nor was taught it,—
But through a revealing of Jesus Christ.
For ye have heard as to my own manner of life, at one time, in Judaea,
How that exceedingly I was persecuting the assembly of God, and laying it waste;
And was making advancement, in Judaea, above many contemporaries in my nation,—
Being surpassingly jealous of my paternal instructions.

But when God, who set me apart from my mother's womb and called me through his favour,
Was well-pleased to reveal his Son in me,
That I might announce the glad-message regarding him among the nations;
| Straightway | I conferred not with flesh and blood,
Neither went I up unto Jerusalem among them who before me were apostles,—
But I went away into Arabia, and again returned unto Damascus.

Then, after three years I went I up unto Jerusalem, to become acquainted with Cephas, and tarried with him fifteen days;
But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the brother of the Lord:
Now as touching the things which I am writing to you to! before God I am not guilty of falsehood:—
| After that | I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia,
And was still unknown, by face, unto the assemblies of Judaea which were in Christ,—
Only they were hearing—
| He that was persecuting us formerly |
| Now is announcing the glad-message of the faith which he formerly laid waste;
And they were glorifying God in me.

After that, fourteen years later: I again went up unto Jerusalem, with Barnabas,
Taking with me Titus also;
And I went up by revelation,
And laid before them the glad-message which I proclaim among the nations;
Privately however, to them of repute,—
Lest, by any means, in vain I should be running, or had run.

But not even Titus, who was with me, though he was a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised;—
But this was because of the false brethren secretly introduced,—
Who, indeed, came in secretly to spy out our freedom, which we have in Christ Jesus,
That they might bring us into bondage:—

Unto whom, not even for an hour gave we place by the required submission,
In order that the truth of the glad-message might still abide with you.
Moreover from them who were reputed to be something:—
| Whosoever at one time | they were, maketh no difference to me, God accepteth not a man's person, |
| Unto me | in fact, they who were of repute added nothing further;
But (on the contrary):—
| When they saw that I had been entrusted with the glad-message to the uncircumcision, Even as Peter | with that to the circumcision,—
| For he that energised in Peter, into an apostleship to the circumcision |
| Energised also in me, for the nations,— And when they perceived the favour which had been given unto me | (James and Cephas and John, who were reputed to be pillars) |
| Gave the right hand of fellowship unto me and Barnabas, In order that | should go unto the nations, And they unto the circumcision:—
| Only that we should remember the destitute, |
As to which I had given diligence this very thing to do.

But when Cephas came unto Antioch
To the face | even | him I resisted, Because he stood condemned;
| Or | in my case | as in v. 16.
Galatians II. 12-21; III. 1-16.

For before that certain came from James,

With them of the nations used he to eat;

Whereas when they came,

He used to withdraw, and keep himself separate,

Fearing them of the circumcision;

And the rest of the Jews [also] used hypocrisy with him,

So that even Barnabas was carried away by their hypocrisy.

But when I saw that they were not walking with straightforwardness as regardeth the truth of the glad-message,

I said unto Cephas, before all:—

If thou, although a Jew, like them of the nations, and not like the Jews, dost live,

How dost thou compel them of the nations to live like Jews?

We, by nature Jews, and not sinners from among the nations.

Knowing, however, that a man is not declared righteous by works of law, [Nor at all] save through faith in Christ Jesus.

[Even we] on Christ Jesus believed,

That we might be declared righteous—

By faith in Christ,

And not by works of law;

Because by works of law shall no flesh be declared righteous.

Now if in seeking to be declared righteous in Christ we ourselves also were found sinners——

Is Christ therefore a minister of sin?

Far be it!

For if the things that I pulled down, I build again, I build,

A transgressor I prove myself to be.

For through means of law unto law, died,

That unto God I might live:

With Christ have I been crucified;

And living no longer am I,

But living in me is Christ—

While so far as I now do live in flesh,

[By faith] I live—

The faith in the Son of God,

Who loved me, and gave himself up in my behalf.

I do not set aside the favour of God;

For through law is righteousness.

Then Christ without cause died.

3 O thoughtless Galatians!

Who hath bewitched you,—

Before whose very eyes Jesus Christ was openly set forth as a crucified one?

This only am I wishing to learn from you:—

By works of law received ye the Spirit?

Or by a believed report?

[So thoughtless] are ye?

Having made a beginning in Spirit?

Are ye now, in flesh, to be made complete?

Such things suffered ye in vain,—

If at least [it is] even in vain?

He then who was supplying unto you the Spirit, and energising mighty works among you,

By works of law,

Or by a believed report?[did he it]?

Even as Abraham—

Believed in God,

And it was reckoned unto him as righteousness.

Be taking note therefore—

That they who are of faith are the same are sons of Abraham;

And the scripture

[Foreseeing] that by faith, God would declare the nations righteous.

Fore-announced the good news unto Abraham, saying—

All the nations shall be blessed in thee.

So then they who are of faith are blessed with believing Abraham.

For as many as are of works of law are under a curse,

For it is written—

Cursed is everyone that continueth not in all things that are written in the book of the law to do them.

Moreover, <that in law no one is declared righteous with God is evident,—

Because the righteous one by faith shall live;>

And the law is not of faith, but—

He that hath done them shall live in them.

Christ hath redeemed us out of the curse of the law,

Having become in our behalf a curse;—

Because it is written—

Cursed is everyone that hangeth upon a tree;—

In order that unto the nations the blessing of Abraham might come about in Jesus Christ,—

In order that the promise of the Spirit we might receive through means of the faith.

Brethren! in human fashion am I speaking:

Yet still as a man's confirmed covenant no one setteth aside or addeth unto:

Now unto Abraham were spoken the promises—and unto his seed;—

He saith not— And unto thy seeds, as of many,

But of one— And unto thy seed, which is Christ.

Or: "in."

Mi: "out of a report (or hearing) of faith."

Or (WH): "on Jesus Christ."

Mi: "of."

Or: "is to be declared."
And this I say—

A covenant previously confirmed by God, the law which after four hundred and thirty years hath been brought into being doth not annul, so as to do away with the promise.

For if by law is the inheritance,

It is no longer by promise;

But unto Abraham through promise hath God favoured it.

Why then the law? Because of the transgressions; it was added, until such time as the seed should come, unto whom the promise had been made, and was given in charge through messengers, at the hand of a mediator;

Now a mediator is not a mediator of one, but God is one.

Is the law then against the promises of God? For if a law had been given which was able to give life,

Verily in law would have been our righteousness;

But the Scripture did shut up all things under sin,* that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to them who have faith,

Before the coming of the faith; however, under law were we being kept in ward,

Being shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed.

So that the law hath proved our tutor, training us for Christ,

In order that by faith we might be declared righteous;

But the faith having come, no longer are we under a tutor;

For ye are sons of God through the faith in Christ Jesus;

For ye as many as into Christ have been immersed have put Christ on:

There cannot be Jews or Greeks,

There cannot be bond or free,

There cannot be male and female,

For all ye are one in Christ Jesus:

Now if ye are of Christ;

By consequence ye are Abraham’s seed,

According to promise

But I say—

For as long a time as the heir is an infant;

He differeth nothing from a servant, though lord of all,

But is under guardians and stewards, until the day fore-appointed of the father:

So also when we were infants,

Under the elementary principles of the world, we held in servitude;

But when the fulness of the time came

God sent forth his Son,

Who came to be of a woman,

Who came to be under law,—

That he might redeem, they who were under law might receive;

That we might duly receive;

And because ye are sons,

God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, Abba! Oh Father! 6

So that no longer art thou a servant but a son; and if a son, an heir also through God.

But at that time—

Not knowing God,

Ye were in servitude unto them who are by nature are not Gods;

Whereas now—

Having acknowledged God, or rather, Having been acknowledged by God;

How turn ye back again unto the weak and beggarly elementary principles, unto which ye again ye are wishing to come into servitude?

Days ye do narrowly observe, and months, and seasons, and years:

I am afraid of you—Lest by any means I should have toiled for you!

Become ye as I am, because I also am a brother,

—entreat you.

Not at all have ye wronged me.

Howbeit ye know that by reason of a weakness of the flesh I myself announced the glad-message unto you (formerly);

And your trial in my flesh ye despised not, neither spat ye in disgust,

But as a messenger of God ye welcomed me—As Christ Jesus;

Where then, is the happiness ye accounted yours?

For I bear you witness—that if possible, your eyes ye would have dug out, and given unto me.

So then your enemy have I become, by dealing truthfully with you;

They shew a zeal for you, not honourably,

But wish to shut you out,

In order that ye may be zealous for them;

Howbeit it is honourable to shew zeal in what is honourable at all times, and not only when I am present with you;

My dear children! for whom I again am in birth-pains,

Until Christ be formed within you;

I could wish, however, to be present with you, even now, and to change my voice,

Because I am perplexed regarding you.
Galatians IV. 21—31; V. 1—21.

22 Tell me! ye who are under law, are wishing to be:
   "[The law] do ye not hear?"

23 For it is written, that Abraham had [two' sons]—
   One' by the bondmaid,
   And one' by [the free woman];
   But [he that was of the bondmaid]
   [After the flesh] had been born,
   Whereas [he that was of the free woman]
   Through means of a promise.

24 Which things, indeed, may bear another meaning;
   For [the same] are two covenants,—
   One, indeed, from Mount Sinai,
   [Into bondage] bringing forth
   The which is Hagar,
   And [the Hagar] is [Mount Sinai, in Arabia],—
   She answereth, however, unto the present Jerusalem,
   For she is in bondage with her children;
   But [the Jerusalem above] is [free],—
   Which is our mother;

25 For it is written—
   Be gladdened, O barren one! that was not giving birth,
   Break forth and shout, thou that was not in labour pain,—
   Because [there are] children of the deserted one,
   Than of her that had the husband. 4

26 And we* brethren, [after the manner of Isaac]
   Are children of a promise'.

27 But [just as] then, [he that after the manner of the flesh had been born]
   Did persecute him who [had been born] after the manner of the Spirit:

28 Thus also now.

29 But, what saith the scripture?
   Cast out the serving woman and her son;
   For in no wise shall the son of the serving woman inherit with the son of the free.

30 Wherefore, brethren, we are not children of a serving woman, but of the free:—

31 [With her freedom] Christ hath made you free.
   Stand fast, therefore, and do not again [with a yoke of servitude] be held fast.

32 See! [I, Paul] say unto you—
   [If ye be getting circumcised] Christ will profit you 'nothing'.

33 Yea, I bear solemn witness again, unto every man getting circumcised,—
   That he is [a debtor] to do [the whole law].

34 Ye have been set aside from Christ, ye who [by law] are to be declared righteous,—
   [Out of his favour] ye have fallen;

35 For [we] in Spirit, by faith, for a hope of righteousness are ardently waiting,—

36 For [in Christ] Jesus neither circumcised any thing,* nor [uncircumcision],
   But faith, [through love] energising.

7 Ye were running well:—
   Who hath hindered you, that [by truth] ye are not to be persuaded?

8 [The persuasion] [is] not of him that calleth* you:—

9 [A little] leaven: leaveneth [the whole lump].

10 [If] am persuaded regarding you, in the Lord—
   That [for nothing else] ye will have any regard;
   But [he that is troubling you] shall bear the sentence,— [Whosoever he may be].

11 [If] however, brethren—
   [If] circumcise I yet proclaim> Why am I yet persecuted?
   [After all] the stumbling-block of the cross hath been set aside.

12 Oh! that they would even leave off in dismay who are unsettling you!

13 For [ye] on a footing of freedom were called brethren,—
   [Only] [turn] not your freedom into an occasion to the flesh;
   But [by means of your love] be serving one another;

14 For [the whole] law [in one word] is summed up—[namely] in this,—
   Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

15 [If] however, [one another] ye bite and devour,
   Take heed lest [by one another] ye be consumed!

16 I say, moreover—
   [By Spirit] be walking,
   And [fleshly coveting] ye will in nowise fulfill;

17 For [the flesh] coveth against the Spirit.
   But [the Spirit] against the flesh,—
   For [these] unto one another are opposed.

18 Rest [whatever things ye chance to desire] [these], ye should be doing!

19 And [if] by Spirit ye are being led Ye are not under law.

20 [Manifest] however, are the works of the flesh, which, indeed, are—Fornication, impurity, wantonness,* idolatry, enchantment, enmities, strife,* jealousy,* outbursts of wrath, factions, divisions, parties,* envyings, drunkenness,* revellings:—

   And such things as these:

   As to which I forewarn you, even as I have forewarned you,—
   That [they who such things as these do practise]
   Shall not inherit [God’s kingdom].

But the fruit of the Spirit is —

Love, joy, peace, long-suffering, graciousness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control; —

Against such things as these there is no law.

And they who are of Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh, with its susceptibilities and covetings.

If we live by the Spirit, let us also walk.

Let us not become vain-glorious, —

One another challenging, —

One another envying.

Brethren! if a man should even be overtaken in any fault —

Ye, the spiritual, be restoring such a one in a spirit of meekness, looking to thyself, lest even thou be put to the test.

One another’s burdens be ye bearing, and so fill up the law of the Christ.

For if anyone thinketh he is something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself; but his own work let each one be putting to the proof, —

And then, for himself alone the matter of boasting shall he have, and not for some other.

For each one his own proper load shall bear; —

Howbeit, let him who is being orally instructed in the word, have fellowship with him that is so instructing him, in all good things.

Be not deceiving yourselves!

God is not to be mocked; —

For whatsoever a man soweth shall he also reap, —

Because he that soweth into his own flesh —

Out of the flesh shall reap corruption, —

Whereas he that soweth into the Spirit —

Out of the Spirit shall reap age-abiding life.

And in doing that which is honourable let us not be fainthearted; —

For in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

Hence, then, as we have opportunity —

Let us be working what is good, towards all; —

But especially towards the family of the faith.

See! with what large letters unto you I have written, with my own hand; —

As many as are wishing to make a good show in flesh —

The same are compelling you to get circumcised, —

Only that, for the cross of Christ they may not be suffering persecution! —

For not even they who are getting circumcised are themselves observing law, —

But are wishing you to be circumcised,

That in your flesh they may boast themselves.

With me however, far be it to be boasting,

Save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, —

Whereby unto me a world hath been crucified,

And I unto a world; —

For neither circumcision is anything, nor uncircumcision,

But a new creation; —

And as many as by this rule shall walk —

Peace be upon them, and mercy,

And upon the Israel of God.

For the rest —

Annoyances, unto me let no one be offering; For the brandmarks of Jesus, in my body I am bearing.

The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brethren. Amen.

d Ph. iii. 10.
1. Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through God's will,
   Unto the saints who are in Ephesus, and faithful in Christ Jesus,—
2. Favour unto you, and peace,
   From God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.
3. [Blessed] be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
   Who hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing, in the heavens, in Christ,
4. According as he made choice of us, in him, before the founding of the world,
   That we might be holy and blameless in his presence;
5. In love making us out beforehand unto sonship, through Jesus Christ, for himself,
   According to the good pleasure of his will,
6. Unto the praise of the glory of his favour wherewith he favoured us in the Beloved One,—
7. In whom we have the redemption through his blood, the remission of our offences,
   According to the riches of his favour, which he made to superabound towards us;
8. [In all wisdom and prudence] making known to us the sacred secret of his will,
   According to his good pleasure which he purposed in him,—
9. [For an administration of the fulness of the seasons] to reunite for himself (under one head) the all things in the Christ,
   The things upon the heavens, and the things upon the earth,
10. [In him]:
11. In whom also we were taken as an inheritance,
   According to the purpose of him who energiseth all things according to the counsel of his will,
12. That we should be for the praise of his glory—
   [We who had hoped beforehand in the Christ],—
13. In whom [ye also]—
   [Hearing the word of the truth, the glad-message of your salvation,—
14. In whom also believing—
   Were sealed with the Spirit of the promise, the Holy Spirit,
   Which is an earnest of our inheritance,
   Unto the redemption of the acquisition;—
   [Unto his glorious praise].
15. [For this cause] [I also]—
   [Having heard of the faith on your part in the Lord Jesus, and that towards all the saints]:
16. Cease not giving thanks in your behalf,
   Making mention in my prayers,
17. That [the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory] would give you a Spirit of wisdom and understanding in gaining a personal knowledge of him,—
18. The eyes of your heart having been enlightened,
   That ye may know—
   What is the hope of his calling,
   What the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints,
19. And what the surpassing greatness of his power unto us who believe,—
   According to the energy of the grasp of his might, which he energised in the Christ.
   When he raised him from among the dead, and seated him at his right hand in the heavens,
   Over-above all principality, authority, and power, and lordship, and every name that is named, not only in this age, but also in the coming one,
20. And did put [all things] in subjection beneath his feet.
   And gave him to be head over all things unto the assembly,
   Which, indeed, is his body; the fulness of him who [the all things in all] is for himself filling up.

2 [Unto you also—
Being dead" by your offences and sins, 7 In which at one time ye walked, a According to the age of the world, According to the prince of the authority of the air, of the spirit that now worketh in the sons of disobedience, b Among whom also [we all] had our behaviour, at one time, in the covetings of our flesh, doing the things desired by the flesh and the mind, And were children, by nature, of anger— even as the rest,—

4 But [God] <Being rich in mercy>
By reason of the great love wherewith he loved us]

5 <Although we were dead by our offences>, a
Gave us life together with the Christ,— By favour ye have been saved,—
And raised us up together,
And seat[ed] us together in the heavenlies, f

7 That he might point out, in the oncoming ages, The surpassing riches of his favour in graciousness upon us,
In Christ Jesus;

8 For [by your favour] have ye been saved, through means of faith,
And this [hath come to pass]—
Not from you, Of God the free-gift!

9 Not from works, lest anyone should boast.

10 [His] in fact we are,—his [workmanship],
Created in Christ Jesus upon a footing of good works,
Which God prepared beforehand, That therein we might walk.

11 Wherefore, keep in remembrance—
That [at one time] [ye too, the nations in flesh] <Who are called Uncircumcision by the so-called Circumcision in flesh, made by hand>;

12 That ye were [in that season],
Separate from Christ,
Alienated from the citizenship of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, Having no [hope] And godless in the world;

13 But [just now, in Christ Jesus],
Ye, who at one time were afar off, b
Were made nigh¹ in the blood of the Christ;

14 [He] in fact, is our peace—
Who made both one, And [the enclosing middle-wall] took down. 15 [The enmity, in his flesh—the law of commandments in decree]¹—bringing to nought,—

That [the two] he might create in himself, into one man of new mould, [Making peace].

16 And might fully reconcile* them both, in one body, through means of the cross,— [Slaying the enmity thereby];

17 And [coming] he announced the glad-message— Of peace unto you, the far off,
And peace unto them that were nigh; ¹

18 Because [through him] we have our introduction— [we both] in one Spirit, unto the Father.

19 Hence, then—
[No longer] are ye strangers and sojourners,
But ye are fellow-citizens of the saints, And members of the household of God,—

20 Having been built up on the foundation of the apostles and prophets,
There being [for chief corner stone] ¹
[jesus Christ himself];

21 [In whom] an entire building,
In process of being fittedly joined together,
Is growing into a holy shrine in [the] Lord; [In whom] [ye also] are being built together ¹
Into a habitation of God in Spirit.

3 For [this] cause [I, Paul], the prisoner of Christ Jesus in behalf of you the nations;]

2 If at least ye have heard of the administration of the favour of God which hath been given unto me for you,

3 [How that] by way of revelation was made known unto me the sacred secret,— b

4 Even as I before wrote in brief,—

5 Respecting which ye can [by reading] perceive my discernment in the sacred secret of the Christ,

6 Which [in other generations] had not been made known unto the sons of men,
As it hath now been revealed by his holy apostles and prophets, in Spirit;—

7 That they who are of the nations should be joint heirs, and a joint body, and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through means of the glad-message,— Of which I was made a minister, according to the free-gift of the favour of God which was given unto me, according to the energy of his power:

8 [Unto me]—
<The less than least of all saints>
Was given this favour,
[Unto the nations] to announce the glad-message of the untraceable riches of the Christ,

9 And to bring to light—What is the administration of the sacred secret¹ which had been hidden away from the ages in God, who did all things create: 10 In order that now, unto the principalities and the authorities in the heavenly, might be made known, through means of the assembly, the manifold wisdom of God, — 11 According to a plan of the ages which he made in the anointed Jesus our Lord, — 12 In whom we have our freedom of speech and introduction with assurance, through the faith of him: —

Wherefore I request, that there be no fainting in my tribulations in your behalf, The which is your glory: —

14 For this cause, I bow my knees unto the Father, —

15 From whom every fatherhood in [the] heavens and upon the earth is named, —

16 In order that he may give unto you — According to his glorious riches: —

With power to be strengthened, through his Spirit, in the inner man, That the Christ may dwell, through means of your faith, in your hearts, in love, Having become rooted and founded, —

18 In order that ye may be mighty enough To grasp firmly, with all the saints, —

What is the breadth and length and depth and height, To get to know, also, the knowledge-surpassing love of the Christ, —

19 In order that ye may be filled unto all the fulness of God: —

20 Now unto him who is able to do above all things, Exceeding abundantly above the things which we ask or conceive, —

According to the power which doth energise itself within us, —

21 Unto him be the glory, In the assembly And in Christ Jesus — Unto all the generations of the age of ages; Amen: —

4 I exhort you, therefore, <I, the prisoner in the Lord> To walk in a manner worthy of the calling wherewith ye were called; —

2 With all lowliness and meekness, —

With long suffering, Bearing one with another in love, Giving diligence to keep —

The oneness of the Spirit in the uniting bond of peace, —

One body, and one spirit, even as ye were also called in one hope of your calling, —

One Lord, one faith, one immersion, One God and Father of all —

Who is over all, and through all, and in all.

7 To each one of you however, hath favour been given, According to the measure of the free-gift of the Christ; —

Wherefore he saith — Ascending on high he took captivity captive, [And] gave gifts unto men. —

9 Now this, He ascended; what is it — save — That he also descended into the under parts of the earth? —

10 He that descended it is who also ascended over-above all the heavens, That he might fill all things; —

And he gave —

Some, indeed, to be apostles, And some, prophets, And some, evangelists, And some, shepherds and teachers, —

12 With a view to the fitting of the saints For the work of ministering, For an upbuilding of the body of the Christ; —

13 Until we all advance —

Into the oneness of the faith, and the personal knowledge of the Son of God, Into a man of full-srowth, Into the measure of the stature of the fulness of the Christ; —

14 That we may no longer, be infants — Billow-tossed and shifted round with every wind of teaching, — In the craft of men, In knavery suited to the artifice of error; —

15 But pursuing truth —

May in love grow into him in all things, —

Who is the head, — Christ; —

16 Out of whom all the body —

Fitly framing itself together, And connecting itself, Through means of every joint of supply, By way of energising in the measure of each single part —

Secureth the growing of the body, Unto an upbuilding of itself in love. —

17 This therefore, am I saying and protesting in the Lord: —

That no longer ye walk even as the nations walk —

In the vanity of their minds, — Being darkened in their understanding, Alienated from the life of God — By reason of the ignorance that existeth within them. By reason of their hearts being turned into stone, — Who, indeed, having become past feeling, have delivered themselves up, with wantonness, unto making a trade of all impurity with greed. —

20 Ye however, have not thus learned the Christ; —

21 If, at least, it is him, ye have heard, And in him ye have been taught —

Even as truth is in Jesus, —

22 That ye were to strip off — as regardeth the former behaviour—the old man. Who corrupteth himself according to his deceitful covetings, 23 And were to be getting young again in the spirit of your mind,
24 And were to put on the man of new mould. Who after God hath been created in his truthful righteousness and loving-kindness,
25 Wherefore (stripping off what is false) Be speaking truth each one with his neighbour,
26 Because we are members one of another;
27 Be ye angry, and not committing sin.
Let not (the sun) be going down upon your angry mood,
28 Neither be giving place unto the adversary;
29 Let (the thief) no more steal,
But rather let him be toiling,— Working with his hands the thing that is good.
That he may have (wherewith) to be giving away to him that hath need;
30 Let (no) putrid discourse, (out of your mouth) be going forth,
But if anything is good—suited to the needful upbuilding,— That it may give benefit unto them that hear;
31 And be not grieving the Holy Spirit of God, Wherewith ye have been sealed unto a day of redemption;
32 <All' bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and outbursts, and profane speaking> let it be taken away from you, | With all baselessness;
33 And be ye gracious—one to another, tenderly affectionate, in favour forgiving one another—
Even as (God also, in Christ) hath in favour forgiven you;
34 Become ye, therefore, imitators of God, as children beloved, And walk in love—
Even as (the Christ also) loved you, And delivered himself up in your behalf, An offering and sacrifice unto God, For a fragrance of sweet smell.
35 But (fornication, and all' impurity, or covetousness) Let it not be named among you— Even as become saints;
36 And shamelessness and foolish talking, or jesting,— Which things are beneath you,—
But (rather) giving of thanks;
37 For (this) ye know, if ye take note— That no fornicator, or impure or greedy person, (Who is an idolater), Hath any inheritance in the kingdom of the Christ and God.
6 Let no one be deceiving you with empty words; For (because of these things) is coming the anger of God auf the sons of iniquity;
7 Do not, then, become co-partners with them;
8 For ye were, at one time, darkness, But (now) are ye light in the Lord,— As children of light be walking.—
9 For (the fruit of the light) is in all goodness, and righteousness, and truth,—
10 Putting to the test what is well-pleasing unto the Lord;
11 And be not joining in fellowship in the unfruitful works of darkness, But (rather) be even administering reproof;
12 For (of the secret things which are brought to pass by them) it is shameful even to speak!
13 All things however, <when reproved by the light> become manifest, For (all' that of itself maketh manifest) is light;—
14 Wherefore it saith— Up! thou sleeper, And arise from among the dead, And the Christ will shine upon thee.
15 Be taking heed, therefore, (exactly) how ye are walking.—
Not as unwise, But as wise,—
16 Buying out for yourselves the opportunity, because (the days) are evil;
17 For (this cause) do not become foolish, but have discernment as to what is the will of the Lord;
18 And be not getting drunk with wine, (in which) is dissoluteness,
But be getting filled in Spirit;—
19 Speaking to yourselves, with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, Singing, and striking the strings, with your heart unto the Lord;
20 Giving thanks, always, for all things, (In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ) Unto your God and Father;
21 Submitting yourselves one to another In reverence of Christ,—
22 Ye wives, unto your own husbands, (as unto the Lord);—
23 Because (a husband) is the head of his wife, As (the Christ also) is the head of the assembly,
24 (He being the saviour of the body,— Nevertheless (as the assembly) submittest herself unto the Christ) (so) the wives, unto their husbands (in everything);
25 Ye husbands, be loving your wives, Even as (the Christ also) loved the assembly, and delivered himself up in her behalf,

That he might sanctify, Having purified her, with the bath of water, in declaration;[*]
That he might present unto himself, the assembly, all glorious, not having spot or wrinkle or any of such things, but that she should be holy and blameless;
Luke: ought the husbands [also] to be loving their own' wives as their own' bodies; —
He that loveth his own wife loveth himself;[20]
No one in fact, ever yet hated [his own flesh],
But nourisheth and cherisheth it, —
Even as [the Christ] the assembly,
Because But members are we of his body; —
For this cause will a man leave his father and his mother, and will cleave unto his wife, And they two shall become [one flesh].[b]
This secret is [great], —
I however, am speaking as to Christ and [as to] the assembly; —
Nevertheless ye also do ye, individually,
Each man be so loving [his own' wife] as himself, And he that reverence her husband.

6 Ye children: be obedient unto your parents [in the Lord],
Honour thy father and thy mother,—
Which indeed is the first commandment with promise;[*]
That it may come to be [well with you],
And thou shalt be long-lived upon the land.[1]
And ye fathers,[s] be not provoking your children to anger,
But be nourishing them up in the discipline and admonition of the Lord.[b]
Ye servants,[t] be obedient unto them who after the flesh are your masters,
With fear and trembling, In singleness of your heart, as unto the Christ; —
Not by way of eye-service as men-pleasers,
But as servants of Christ, doing the will of God,
From the soul, with good will rendering service—
As unto the Lord, and not unto men; —

Knowing that [each one] whatsoever he may do that is good, [the same] shall he receive back from the Lord —Whether bond or free.
And ye masters,[a] [the same things] be doing towards them,
Forbearing your threats—
Knowing that [both their' and your' Master] is in the heavens,
And respect of persons there is none with him.[b]

For the rest: —
Be empowering yourselves in the Lord, and in the grasp of his might:
Put on the complete armour of God,
With a view to your having power to stand against the strategies of the adversary; —
Because our struggle is not against blood and flesh,
Against the principalities of this Against the authorities darkness,
Against the world-holders in the heavenlies.

For this cause: take up the complete armour of God,
In order that ye may receive power to withstand in the evil day,
And all things having accomplished to stand! —
Stand, therefore,—
Having girded your loins with truth,
And put on the breastplate of righteousness,[d]
And shod your feet with the readiness of the glad-message of peace;[*]
With all having taken up the shield of faith,
Wherein ye shall have power [all] the igniting darts of the wicked one, to quench;
And the helmet of salvation[7] welcome ye, And the sword of the spirit, which is what God hath spoken,[s]
With all prayer and supplication praying in every season, in spirit,
And watching, with all perseverance and supplication,
For all the saints,—
And on behalf of me; —
That unto me may be given discourse in the opening of my mouth
With freedom of utterance to make known the sacred secret [the glad-message] in behalfe of which I am conducting an embassy in chains: —
That therein I may use freedom of utterance as it is needful for me to speak.

In order, however, that ye also may know the things which relate to me—\* All things shall Tychoias make known unto you. \(He\) the beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, 22 Whom I have sent unto you for this very pur-

THE EPISODE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE

PHILIPPIANS

1 Paul and Timothy, Servants of Christ Jesus,— Unto all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, With overseers and ministers:— 2 Favours unto you, and peace, From God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ. I am giving thanks unto my God, on occasion of all' my remembrance of you, <At all times, in every supposition of mine, in behalf of you all'> \(With joy\) \(II\) my supplication making,— On account of your contribution* unto the glad-message, from the first day until the present:— Being persuaded of this very thing— That he who hath begun in you a good work Will perfect it, until the day of Jesus Christ;— According as it is right in me to have [this] regard in behalf of you all,— Because ye have had me in your hearts, <Both in my bonds and in the defence and confirmation of the glad-message> All of you being [joint partakers of my favour];— For God is [my witness]* how I long for you all in the tender affections of Christ Jesus. And [this] I pray— That your love may be [yet more and more] pre-eminent in personal knowledge and all perception, To the end ye may be putting to the test the things that differ, In order that ye may be incorrupt and may give no occasion of stumbling, unto the day of Christ,

11 Filled with that fruit of righteousness which is through Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God. 12 Howbeit, I am minded, brethren, that ye should be getting to know; That the things which relate unto myself|| rather, unto an advancement of the glad-message|| have fallen out,* 13 So that [my bonds] have become [manifest in Christ], in the whole' palace, and unto all the rest,— And [so that] the most of the brethren in the Lord|| <assured by my bonds> are becoming more abundantly bold to be fearlessly speaking the word of God:— 15 Some indeed, by reason of envy and strife— Some however, by reason of good will— are proclaiming [the Christ]:— These indeed, out of love, Knowing that [for the defence of the glad-message] I am set; But [those] [out of faction] are declaring [the Christ];* Not purely—supposing to rouse up [tribulation] with my bonds. What then? That [in any way] <Whether in pretense, or in truth> [Christ] is declared And [in this] I rejoice—Yea, and will' rejoice! For I know that [this] shall turn unto me for salvation— Through your' supplication, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ,— According to my eager outlook and hope, that [in nothing] shall I be put to shame,
PHILIPPIANS I. 21—30; II. 1—18.

But with all freedom of speech shall Christ be magnified in my body, whether through means of life, or of death.

For unto me—
Living is Christ, and dying is gain.

But if living in the flesh is Christ, this unto me is a fruit of work, and what I shall choose. I make not known: I am held in constraint, however, by reason of the two; having the covenants to be released, and to be with Christ. For it were far better.

But to abide still in the flesh is more needful for your sake; and of this being assured I know that I shall abide, yea abide with you all, for your advancement, and the joy of your faith;

In order that your matter of boasting may be more abundant in Christ Jesus, regarding me, through my own presence again with you.

Only <in a manner worthy of the glad-message of the Christ> be using your citizenship;

In order that—
Whether coming and seeing you, or being absent—
I may hear of the things which concern you—
That ye are standing fast in one spirit, with one soul joining for the combat along with the faith of the glad-message;

And not being affrighted in anything by the opposers,—
The which is unto them a token of destruction, although of your salvation, and this from God;

Because unto you hath it been given as a favour, in behalf of Christ. Not only, on him, to believe, but also, in his behalf, to suffer:—

Having the same contest which ye have seen in me, and now hear to be in me.

But in lowliness of mind accounting one another superior to yourselves, not to your own things; severally looking;

But to the things of others severally:
The same thing esteem in yourselves which also in Christ Jesus ye esteem;

Who <in form of God> subsisting,
Not thing to be seized accounted the being equal with God,
But emptied, taking a servant’s form;
Coming to be in men’s likeness;
And in fashion being found as a man;

Humbled himself, becoming obedient as far as death,
Yes, death upon a cross.

Wherefore also God uplifted him far on high,
And favoured him with the name which is above every name,

In order that in the name of Jesus every knee might bow—
Of beings in heaven, and on earth, and underground,

And every tongue might openly confess—
That Jesus Christ is Lord, unto the glory of God the Father.

So, then, my beloved—
Even as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only,
But now in much more in my absence;
With fear and trembling your own salvation be working out;

For it is God who energiseth within you both the desiring and the energising, is behalf of his good pleasure.

All things: be doing, apart from murmuring and disputings;

In order that ye may become faultless and inviolate;

Children of God, blameless amidst a crooked and perverted generation,
Amongst whom ye appear as luminaries in the world,

A word of life holding forth,
As a matter of boasting unto me, for the day of Christ,
That not in vain I ran, nor in vain I toiled;—

Nay! if I am even to be poured out as a drink-offering, upon the sacrifice and public ministry of your faith,
I rejoice, ye rejoice together with you all;—

The same cause; moreover, do ye

19 I am hoping, however, in the Lord Jesus—
   Timothy to send unto you,
In order that I also may be of cheer soul, when I have ascertained the things that concern you.
For I have, of equal soul, Who genuinely to the things that concern you will be anxious;
For their own things do seek.
Not the things of Christ Jesus;
But of the proof of him be taking note,—
That as a child with father;
With me hath he done service for the gladness;
Him indeed, therefore, am I hoping to send—
As soon as I can look off from the things that concern myself.—
I am assured, however, in the Lord,—That I myself shall shortly come.
Needful nevertheless have I accounted it—
Epaphroditus,
My brother and fellow worker and fellow soldier;
But your apostle and public minister to my need;
To send unto you;
Since he hath been longing to see you all,
And hath been in great distress, because ye had heard he was sick;
And, in fact, he was sick, nigh unto death;
But God had mercy on him,—
And not on him only,
But also on me also.
Lest sorrow upon sorrow I should have.
The more promptly therefore, have I sent him,
That ye may rejoice, And I, the less sorrowful may be.
Be giving him welcome, therefore, in the Lord,
With all joy;
And such as he is in honour, be holding,—
Because for the sake of the work of the Lord,
Unto death he drew nigh, Running hazard with his life,
That he might fill up your lack of the public service towards me.

3 <For the rest, my brethren>—Rejoice in the Lord.
<To be writing the same things unto you>—
To me is not irksome, while [for you] it is safe:—
Beware of the dogs,
Beware of mischievous workers,
Beware of the mutiny;
For we are the circumcision, who
In the Spirit of God are doing divine service,
And are boasting in Christ Jesus,
And [not in flesh] having confidence,—
Although, indeed, I might have confidence even in flesh.
If any other thinketh to have confidence in flesh—
I more:—
Circumcised the eighth day,
Of the race of Israel,
Of the tribe of Benjamin,
A Hebrew of Hebrews,—
Regarding law a Pharisee,
Regarding zeal persecuting the assembly,
Regarding the righteousness that is in law having become blameless.
But whatever things unto me were gain
The same have I accounted for the Christ’s sake I loss;
Yea, doubtless and I account all things to be loss,
Because of the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord,
For the sake of whom the loss of all things have I suffered,
And do account them refuse
In order that Christ I may win, 8
And be found in him—
Not having a righteousness of my own, That which is by law, But that which is through faith in Christ, The righteousness which is of God upon my faith,—
To get to know him, And the power of his resurrection and fellowship of his sufferings, Becoming conformed unto his death,—
If by any means I may advance to the earlier resurrection, which is from among the dead:
Not that I have already received,
Or have already reached perfection,
But I am pressing on—
If I may even lay hold of that for which I have also been laid hold of by Christ Jesus;
Brethren! I as to myself reckon that I have not yet laid hold;
One thing however—
The things behind forgetting,
And unto the things before eagerly reaching out>
With the goal in view, I press on
For the prize of the upward calling of God in Christ Jesus.
As many, therefore, as are full-grown
Let this be our resolve;
And ye are resolved>
This also shall [God] unto you reveal.
Nevertheless whereunto we have advanced
In the same rank stepping along;
Imitators together of me become ye, brethren,

9 Or: "gains," "items of gain."
10 Or: "lay hold, inasmuch as.”

And keep an eye on them who [thus] are walking,—
Even as ye have [us] for [an ensample].

For [many] are walking—
Of whom I have often been telling you,
And [now, even weeping] am telling,—
The enemies of the cross of the Christ;
Whose [end] is destruction,
Whose [God] is the belly, And [whose] glory is in their shame,
Who [upon the earthly things] are resolved.

For [our citizenship] in the heavens hath its rise;
Wherefore [a Saviour also] do we ardently await,—
'The Lord Jesus Christ';—
Who will transfigure our humbled' body;
Into conformity with his glorified' body,
According to the energy wherewith he is able even to subordinate unto himself [all things].

4 So then, my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and crown,—
'Thus' stand fast in the Lord, beloved.

2 [Euodia] I exhort, and [Syntyche] I exhort,—
On the same thing to be resolved in the Lord:

3 Yes! I request thee also, true' yokefellow,
Be thou helping together with these women,—
Who indeed [in the joyful message] have maintained the combat with me,
Along with Clement also, and the rest of my fellow-workers, [Whose names] are in the book of life.

4 Rejoice [in the Lord always]: [Again] I will say—Rejoice!

5 Let [your considerateness] be known unto all men.

'The Lord' is near:—
For nothing be anxious,
But [in everything] [by your prayer and supplication with thanksgiving] Let [your petitions] be made known unto
God;
And [the peace of God, which riseth above every mind] shall guard your hearts and your thoughts, in Christ Jesus.

5 <For the rest, brethren:>
Whatever things are true,
Whatever things are dignified,
Whatever things are righteous,
Whatever things are chaste,
Whatever things are lovely,
Whatever things are of good report,—

If there be any virtue, and if any praise
[The same] be taking into account;

6 <The things which ye have both learned and accepted, and heard, and seen in me> [The same] practise:—
And [the God of peace] shall be with you.

10 Howbeit I have been made to rejoice in the Lord greatly—
That [now, at length] ye have flourished in your care for me,—
Although, indeed, ye were caring, but lacked opportunity.

11 Not that [as to coming short] I am speaking,
For [I] have learned
In whatsoever circumstances I am to be independent;

13 I know [what it is] even to be kept low,
And I know [what it is] to have more than enough,—
In every way, and in all things have I been let into the secret—
Both to be well fed, And to be hungering,
Both to have more than enough, And to be coming short:

13 I have might [for all things] in him that empowereth me.

14 Nevertheless [nobly] have ye done, in taking fellowship with me in my tribulation.

15 Ye know, moreover, [even ye, Philippians].—
That [in the beginning of the glad-message]
When I went forth from Macedonia—
Not so much as one' assembly' with me' had fellowship—in the matter of giving and receiving—save ye alone;—

16 That [even in Thessalonica, both once more again] unto my need: ye sent:—

17 Not that I seek after the gift,
But I seek after the fruit that is to abound unto your account.

18 But I have all things in full, and have more than enough,
I am filled, having welcomed from Ephaphroditus the things that came from you,—
A fragrance of sweet smell,
An acceptable sacrifice,
Well pleasing unto God.

19 And [my God] will fill up your every need,
According to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus.

20 Now [unto our God and Father] be the glory— Unto the ages of ages. Amen!

21 Salute ye every' saint in Christ Jesus.
The brethren who are with me [salute you].
All the saints salute you, but especially they who are of Caesar's household.

25 [The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ] Be with your spirit.

COLOSSIANS I. 1—24.

THE EPISODE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE

COLOSSIANS.

1 [Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus through the will of God,
And I Timothy my brother],—
3 [Unto the holy and faithful brethren in Christ that are in Colossae,] Favour unto you, and peace, from our God and Father.
3 We are giving thanks unto God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,
[Always for you] offering prayer,—
4 Having heard of your faith in Christ Jesus And of the love which ye have unto all the saints,—
5 Because of the hope that is lying by for you in the heavens,
Of which ye heard before, in the word of the truth of the glad-message, 6 when it presented itself unto you;
Even as [in all the world also] it is bearing fruit and growing, even as also among you,
From the day when ye heard, and came personally to know the favour of God in truth, 7 Even as ye learned [it] from Epaphras, our beloved fellow-servant, Who is faithful in our behalf, as a minister of the Christ, 8 Who also hath made evident unto us your love in spirit.
9 [For this cause] [we also]—
[From the day when we heard [of you]—
[Cease not [in your behalf] praying and asking—
That ye may be filled unto the personal knowledge of his will, In all' spiritual wisdom and discernment,
So as to walk worthwhile of the Lord, unto all pleasing,
In every good work bearing fruit,
And growing in the personal knowledge of God,
11 [With all power] being empowered, According to the grasp of his glory, Unto all' endurance and long-suffering with joy,
12 Giving thanks unto the Father that hath made you sufficient for your share in the inheritance of the saints in the light,
Who hath rescued us out of the authority of the darkness,
And translated [us] into the kingdom of the Son of his love;
[In whom] we have our redemption—
the remission of our sins,—
[Who] is an image of the unseen God,
Firstborn of all' creation,—
Because [in him] were created all things in the heavens and upon the earth, The things seen and the things unseen, Whether thrones or lordships or principalities or authorities,—[They all] through him and for him have been created, And [he is] before all, And [they all] in him hold together;
And [he is] the head of the body, the assembly, Who is the beginning, Firstborn from among the dead, In order that [he] might become [in all things] himself [pre-eminent];—
Because [in him] was all' the fulness well pleased to dwell,
And through him fully to reconcile all things unto him, Making peace through the blood of his cross,—
[Through him][—]—Whether the things upon the earth or the things in the heavens;
And [you]—
[Who at one time were estranged and enemies in your mind in your wicked works]—
Yet [now] hath he fully reconciled, in his body of flesh, through means of his death,
To present you holy and blameless and unaccusable before him,— 22 If, at least, ye are abiding still in the faith, founded and firm, and not to be moved away from the hope of the glad-message which ye have heard, Which hath been proclaimed in all' creation which is under heaven,—Of which I Paul have become minister;
24 [Now] am I rejoicing in the sufferings on your behalf,
And am filling up the things that lack of the tribulations of the Christ, in my flesh,
In behalf of his body, Which is the assembly,
Of which || I || have become minister—
According to the administration * of God which hath been given unto me to you-ward.
To fill up the word of God,
The sacred secret which had been hidden away from the ages and from the generations.
But || now|| hath been made manifest unto his saints—7 Unto whom God had been pleased to make known what is the glorious' wealth of this sacred secret b among the nations,
Which e is Christ in you, the hope of the glory,—
Whom we are declaring,
Admonishing every man,
And teaching every man, in all
wisdom,
In order that we may present every man complete in Christ;
Unto which I am even toiling,
Contending according to his energy which is energising itself in me with power.
For I desire you to know, how great a contest
I am having—in behalf of you, And of those in Laodicea, And as many as have not seen my face in the flesh;
In order that their hearts may be encouraged.
Being knit together in love,
Even unto all the riches of the full assurance of their understanding, Unto a personal knowledge of the sacred secret b of
God,—Car|Christ|2:
In whom are all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge hidden away. d
This I say, in order that || no one || may be reasoning || you || aside with plausible discourse;
For <though, indeed, || in the flesh || I am absent>
Yet || in the spirit || with you || I am—Rejoicing and beholding your order and the solid firmness of your Christ'-ward faith.
<As, therefore, ye have accepted the Anointed'
Jesus as you Lord>
|| In him || be walking,—
Rooted, and being built up, in him,
And making yourselves sure in your faith,
|| Even as ye have been taught ||—
Surpassing therein with thanksgiving. f
Be taking heed, lest there shall be anyone leading
|| you || off as a spoil,
Through means of their philosophy, and an empty deceit,—
According to the instruction of men,
According to the first principles of the world,—
And not according to Christ:
Because || in him || dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead b || bodily.||
And ye are || in him || filled full,—
|| Who || is the head of all' principalities and authority,
|| In whom || ye have also been circumcised
with a circumcision not done by hand,
In the despoothing of the body of flesh,
In the circumcision of the Christ,— Having been buried together with him in your immersion,
Wherein d also ye have been raised together.
Through your faith in the energising of God—Who raised him from among the dead.
And <as for you—
Who were || dead || by your offences and by the uncircumcision of your flesh>
He hath brought you e to life together with
him,—
Having in favour forgiven us all our offences,
Having blotted out the handwriting against us' by the decrees,—f
Which was hostile to us,—
And hath taken away || the same out of the midst,
Nailing it up to the cross:
|| Spoiling the principalities and the authorities>
He made of them an open example,
Celebrating a triumph over them thereby.
Let no one, therefore, be judging || you—
In eating and in drinking,
Or in respect of feast, or new moon, or sabbath,—
Which are a shadow of the things to come,
Whereas || the body || is of the Christ.
Let <no one || against you || be arbitrating
|| however wishful>,—
In respect of lowliness of mind, and of a religious observance of the messengers:
|| Upon what things he hath seen || taking his stand,
|| In vain || puffed up by his carnal mind,—
And not holding fast the head b:
|| From which || all the body||
<|| Through means of its joints and uniting bands || receiving supply, and connecting itself together>
Growth with the growth of God.
<<If ye have died, together with Christ, from the first principles of the world>
Why || as though alive in the world; are ye submitting to decrees,—

21 Do not handle, Nor taste, Nor touch:—
According to the commandments and teachings of men.
22 ||The which things,|| indeed, <though they have ||an appearance|| of wisdom, In self-devised religious observance, and lowliness of mind, ||and|| ill-treatment of body> Are in no honourable way, b unto a satisfying of the flesh.
3 <If, therefore, ye have been raised together with the Christ>
||The things on high|| be seeking,
Where ||the Christ|| is — ||On the right hand of God|| setting.
2 ||The things on high|| hold in esteem. Not the things upon the earth:
3 For ye have died, And ||your life|| is hid, together with the Christ, in God, —
4 ||As soon as the Christ shall be made manifest— ||Our life||>
||Then|| ye also ||together with him|| shall be made manifest in glory;
5 Make dead, therefore, your members that are on the earth—
As regardeth fornication, impurity, passion, base coveting, and greed, ||the which|| is idolatry, —
6 On account of which things cometh the anger of God, —
7 Wherein ||ye also|| walked, at one time, when ye were living in these things;
8 But ||now|| do ||ye also|| put them all away, — Anger, wrath, baseness, defamation, shameful talk out of your mouth:
9 Be not guilty of falsehood one to another: Having stripped off the old man, together with his practices,
10 And having put on the new—
Who is being moulded afresh unto personal knowledge,
After the image of him that hath created him, —
11 Wherein there cannot be Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, foreigner, Scythian, bond, free,—But ||all things in all|| ||Christ||
12 Put on, therefore, <as men chosen of God, holy and beloved>
Tender affections of compassion, graciousness, lowliness of mind, meekness, long-suffering,
13 Bearing one with another, and in favour forgiving one another—if any ||against any|| have a complaint, —
<According as ||the Lord|| in favour forgave you> ||so also|| ||ye||.

14 And ||over all these things|| ||love||, Which is a uniting-bond of completeness:
15 And let ||the peace of Christ|| act as umpire in your hearts, —
Unto which ye have been called in ||one|| body:
And be ||thankful||:
16 Let ||the word of Christ|| dwell within you richly, —
||In all wisdom|| teaching and admonishing one another, with psalms, hymns, spiritual songs, ||With gratitude: raising song with your hearts unto God:
17 <And whatsoever ye may be doing, in word, or in work>, ||All things|| ||do|| in the name of the Lord Jesus,
Giving thanks unto the Divine' Father through him: —
18 ||Ye wives||: ||be submitting yourselves unto your husbands, as is becoming in the Lord;
19 ||Ye husbands||: ||be loving your wives, and be not embittered against them;
20 ||Ye children||: ||be obedient unto your parents in all things, for ||this|| is ||well pleasing|| in the Lord;
21 ||Ye fathers||: ||be not irritating your children, lest they be disheartened;
22 ||Ye servants||: ||be obedient ||in all things|| unto them who ||according to the flesh|| are your masters, —
Not with eye-service, as man-pleasers.
But with singleness of heart, revering the Lord,—
23 <Whatsoever ye may be doing> ||From the soul|| be working at it, As unto the Lord, and not unto men,—
24 Knowing that ||from the Lord|| ye shall duly receive the recompense of the inheritance, ||Unto the Lord Christ|| are ye in service; — For he that acteth unrighteously ||shall get back what he had unrighteously done, and there is no respect of persons;
25 ||Ye masters||: ||that which is just and equitable|| unto your servants|| be rendering, Knowing that ||ye also|| have a Master in heaven.
2 ||Unto prayer|| be devoting yourselves,
Watching therein with thanksgiving:
3 Praying, at the same time, ||for us also||,—
That ||God|| would open unto us a door for the word,
So that we may speak the sacred secret

COLOSSIANS IV. 4—18. 1 THESALONIANS I. 1—6.

4 And Jesus, he that is called Justus,—
   They being of the circumcision;
   [These only] [are my] fellow-workers unto the kingdom of God,
   [Men who have been, unto me, a comfort].
5 Epaphras * who is from among you, a servant of Christ Jesus, salute thee, —
   [At all times] contending in your behalf in his prayers,
   That ye may be caused to stand complete and fully assured in everything willed by
   God ;
6 For I bear him witness, that he hath great’
   toil in behalf of you, and them in Laodicea, and them in Hierapolis.
7 Luke, the beloved physician, and Demas, salute
   you.
8 Salute ye the brethren [in Laodicea],
   Also Nymphas, and the assembly b [which meeteth at her house].
9 And <as soon as the epistle hath been read amongst you> cause that [in the assembly of Laodiceans also] it be read ;
   And [that from Laodicea] that [ye also] read.
10 And say to Archippus:
   Be taking heed unto the ministry which thou hast accepted in the Lord,—
   That [the same] thou fulfil.
11 The salutation of me Paul [with my own’
   hand]; —
   Keep in mind my bonds.
   Favour be with you !
   * Chap. i. 7.  b Ap: “Assembly.”

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO THE
THESALONIANS.

1 Paul and Silvanus and Timothy—
   Unto the assembly of Thessalonians in God
   our Father and Lord Jesus Christ,—
   Favour unto you, and peace !
2 We are giving thanks * unto God continually.
   [Concerning you all] making [mention] in our prayers,
3 [Unceasingly] remembering —
   Your work of faith
   And labour of love
   And endurance of hope [of our Lord Jesus
   Christ],
   Before our God and Father :
   * Th. i. 3; Col. i. 3; 2 Th. i. 3.

4 Knowing, brethren beloved by God, [your election],—
5 How that [your glad-message] came not unto you [in word only],
   But also in power,
   And in Holy Spirit,
   And in much assurance,— Even as ye know what manner of men we became unto you, for your sake ;
6 And [ye] became [imitators] of us [and of the Lord],
   Giving welcome unto the word. In much tribulation, With joy of Holy Spirit;

   * 2 Th. iii. 7.
1 Thessalonians I. 7—10; II. 1—20; III. 1—4.

7 So that ye became an ensample unto all who were coming to the faith, in Macedonia and in Achaia:

8 [From you] in fact, hath sounded forth the word of the Lord—
"Not only in Macedonia and in Achaia;"
But [in every place] [your faith which is toward God] hath gone forth,
So that [no need] have we to be saying anything;

9 For [they themselves] concerning us do tell—
What manner of entrance we had unto you,
And how ye turned unto God from the idols—
To be serving a living and true God,
And awaiting His Son out of the heavens—
Whom he raised up from among the dead,—
[Jesus]:
Who is to rescue us out of the anger that is coming.

2 For [yourselves] know, brethren, our entrance which was unto you—that it hath not proved void;

3 But <though we had previously suffered, and been insulted, even as ye know, in Philippi>:
We waxed bold in our God to speak unto you the glad-message of God with much conflict.

4 For [our exhortation is] not of error, nor of uncleanness, nor in guile,

5 But <even as we have been approved by God, to be entrusted with the glad-message> [so] we speak,—
Not as [unto men] giving pleasure,
But unto God—who proveth our hearts.\(^a\)

6 For neither at any time were we found [using words of flattery]—even as ye know,
Nor a pretext for greed—[God] is witness!

7 Nor [of men] seeking glory—either from you, or from others,
Though we could have assumed [dignity] as Apostles of Christ;

8 But we became gentle in your midst,—
As though [a nursing mother] had been cherishing her own children:

9 [Thus yearning after you] we could have been well-pleased to impart unto you—
Not only the glad-message of God,
But [our own lives also],— Because [very dear to us] had ye become.

10 For ye remember, brethren, our toil and hardship:

[Night and day] working, so as not to be a burden unto any of you>
We proclaimed unto you the glad-message of God.

11 Even as ye know how [unto each one of you] we were as a father unto his own children,
Consoling you, and soothing, and calling to witness,—

12 To the end ye might be walking in a manner worthy of God, who is calling you unto his own kingdom and glory.\(^b\)

13 And [for this cause] we are also giving thanks unto God unceasingly,
That <when ye received a spoken word from us—> which was God’s> Ye welcomed it—
Not as a human word,
But [even as it truly is] a divine word,—
Which is also inwardly working itself in you who believe.

14 For [ye] became [imitators], brethren, of the assemblies of God which are in Judea, in Christ Jesus,
In that [the same things] ye also suffered by your own fellow-countrymen, even as [they] also by the Jews:—

15 Who have both slain the [Lord] Jesus—
And the prophets,
And [us] have persecuted,
And [unto God] are displeasing,
And [unto all men] are contrary,—
[Hints dering us from speaking] unto the nations that they might be saved;
To the filling up of their own sins [continually];

16 But anger hath overtaken them at length.

17 Now [we] brethren <having been bereaved away from you, for the season of an hour,—
[in presence, not in heart]>
Gave more abundant diligence [your face] to behold [with much longing];

18 Wherefore we desired to come unto you—
Even [I, Paul, both once and again]—
And [Satan] thwarted us.

19 For what shall be our hope, or joy, or crown of boasting?\(^c\) Shall not even [ye], before our Lord Jesus, in His Presence?\(^d\)

20 [Ye] in fact, are our glory and joy.

3 Wherefore <no longer concealing our anxiety> We were well-pleased to be left in Athens

2 And sent Timothy—
Our brother, and God's minister in the glad-message of the Christ—
That he might confirm and console you over your faith,

3 That [no one] might be shrinking back in these tribulations.
For [ye yourselves] know, that [hereunto] are we appointed;

4 For [even when we were with you] we told you beforehand—
We are destined to suffer tribulation!
Even as it also came to pass, and ye know.

2 For this cause! [1] I also! <no longer' concealing my anxiety>
Sent, that I might get to know your faith,
Lest by any means he that temptest [should have tempted you],
And [in vain] should have been our toil.

5 But [when] just now! Timothy came unto us, from you,
And brought us good tidings of your faith and love,—
And that ye havegood remembrance of us,
[Continually] longing to see |[us]—even as [we also] to see you.'

7: For this cause! were we comforted, brethren,
Over you, in all' our necessity and tribulation,
Through your faith;
8 Because [now] we live,—if only |[ye] stand fast in the Lord.

9 For what thanksgiving can we render back [unto God] concerning you,
On occasion of all' the joy wherewith we rejoice, for your sake, before our God?—
[Then] and day! making very abundant' entreaties.
That we may see your' face, and fit in the things which are lacking in your faith?

11 Now may our God and Father himself! and our Lord Jesus! make straight our way unto you:

12 And [you]! may the Lord cause to abound and excel in your love one toward another,(and toward all),— Even as [we] do toward you:

to the end he may confirm your' hearts, faultless in holiness.
Before our God and Father,
In the Presence* of our Lord Jesus with all' his saints!.

4: For the rest!brethren, we request and exhort you, in our Lord Jesus;
[That]! even as ye received from us, how ye must needs walk and please God,— Even as ye also do walk>

That ye would abound still more.

For ye know what charges we gave you, through the Lord Jesus.

For this! is a thing willed of God, your sanctification,—
That ye should abstain from unchastity,
That ye should know, each one of you, how [of his own' vessel] to possess himself in sanctification and honour:
Not with a passion of coveting,—
Just as even the nations who know not God,—

Not over-reaching and defrauding, in the matter, [his brother];
Because [an avenger] is the Lord,' concerning all' these things,—

Even as we before told you, and solemnly called you to witness.
7 For God did not call us, with a permission of impurity, but [in sanctification].
8 Therefore, indeed! [he that disregards]—
It is not a man! he disregards, [but God]—
Who giveth his Holy Spirit unto you.

9 But [concerning brotherly love]—
No need! have ye, that we be writing unto you;
For [ye yourselves] are [God-taught] to the loving of one another;—
And, in fact, ye are doing it unto all' the brethren [who are] in the whole' of Macedonia;—
But we exhort you, brethren, to abound still more,

And to be ambitious to be quiet;—
And to be attending to your own affairs.
And to be working with your hands,—
Even as [unto you] we gave charge—

That ye should walk reputeably toward those without,
And [of no one] have [need].

12 But we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them who are falling asleep,—
Lest ye be sorrowing, [even as the rest also, who are without hope].

14 For [if we believe that] Jesus! died, and rose again>
So! also will [God] bring forth with him, [them who have fallen asleep through Jesus];

15 For this! unto you! we do say, by a word of the Lord,—
That [we, the living who are left unto the Presence of the Lord] shall ip nowise get before them who have fallen asleep;

Because [the Lord himself]—
With a word of command,
With a chief-messenger's voice,
And with a trumpet of God—
Shall descend from heaven,—
And [the dead in Christ] shall rise [first],

17 After that! we, the living who are left;
[Together with them] shall be caught away, in clouds, to meet the Lord in the air;—
And [thus]! evermore, with the Lord shall we be!

19 So then, be consoling one another with these words.

5 But [concerning the times and the seasons]brethren,—[ye have no need] that [unto you] anything be written;
3 For [ye yourselves] perfectly well know—
That [the day of the Lord] [as a thief in the night] [so] cometh;
<As soon as they begin to say—Peace! and safety!>
THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE THESALONIANS.

1 Paul and Silvanus and Timothy,—
Unto the assembly of Thessalonians, in God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ,— Favour unto you, and peace, from God [our] Father and Lord Jesus Christ.
We are bound [to be giving thanks] unto God, continually, concerning you, brethren, even as it is [meet];
Chap. ii. 13; Eph. i. 16; Ph. i. 3; Col. i. 3; 1 Th. i. 2.

2 But we exhort you, brethren—
Admonish the disorderly, Soothe them of little soul, Help the weak,
Be longsuffering towards all:
See that none evil for evil unto any do render;
But [evermore, what is good] be pursuing, towards one another, and towards all:
[Evermore] rejoice,
[Unceasingly] pray,
[In everything] give thanks,—
[For this] is a thing willed of God, Christ Jesus, towards you:
[The Spirit] do not quench,
[Prophecies] do not despise,
[But] all things put to the proof—
But [the God of peace himself] hallow you completely, And [entire] might your spirit, and soul, and body,—
[So as to be] unblamable in the Presence of our Lord Jesus Christ,—
Be preserved! [B]h! is he that is calling you,—
Who [also will perform].
Brethren! be praying for us [also].
Salute all the brethren with a holy kiss.
I adjure you, by the Lord, that the letter be read unto all the brethren!"

3 The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

4 But we exhort you, brethren—
Admonish the disorderly, Soothe them of little soul, Help the weak,
Be longsuffering towards all:
See that none evil for evil unto any do render;

I adjure you, by the Lord, that the letter be read unto all the brethren!"

5 A proof of the righteous’ judgment of God,
To the end ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, in behalf of which ye are also suffering:—

If, at least, it is [a righteous thing with God]
To recompense [affliction] unto them that afflict you,
And [unto you that are afflicted] release, with us,—
By the revealing of the Lord Jesus from heaven,
With his messengers of power,
In a fiery flame;
Holding forth vengeance—a
Against them that refuse to know God,
And then who decline to hearers unto the glad-message of our Lord Jesus,—
Who, indeed, a penalty shall pay—
Age-abiding destruction from the face of the Lord and from the glory of his might—
Whenever he shall come.
To be made all-glorious in his saints,
And to be marvell'd at in all' who believed.—
Because our witness unto you was believed,—
In that day.a

Unto which end we are also praying continually for you,
That our God may count [you] worthy of your calling.
And fulfil every good-pleasure of goodness and work of faith [with power];—
That the name of our Lord Jesus may be made all-glorious in you, and [ye] in him,
According to the favour of our God and Lord Jesus Christ.

But we request you, brethren,—
In behalf of the Presence of our Lord Jesus Christ,
And our gathering together unto him,—
That ye be not quickly tossed from your mind, nor be put in alarm—
Either by spirit, or by discourse, or by letter as by us,—
As that the day of the Lord [hath set in]:
No one may cheat [you] in any one' respect.
Because [that day will not set in]—
Except the revolt come first,
And there be revealed
The man of lawlessness,b
The son of destruction,
And the one who opposeth and exalteth himself on high
Against every one' called God.
Or an object of worship;
So that he <within the sanctuary of God> shall take his seat;¹
Showeth himself forth, that he is [God]:—

Remember ye not, that [while I was yet with you] these very things; I was telling you:
And [what now restraineth] ye know,
To the end he may be revealed in his own fitting time;
For [the secret] of lawlessness already is inwardly working itself,—
[Only] until he that restraineth at present shall be gone out of the midst;—
And [then] shall be revealed the lawless one,—
Whom [the Lord Jesus] will slay with the Spirit of his mouth,b
And paralyse with the forshining of his Presence:
Whose [presence] shall be [according to an inworking of Satan,
With all' manner of mighty work and signs and wonders of falsehood,
And with all' manner of deceit of unrighteousness in them who are destroying themselves,]
Because [the love of the truth] they did not welcome, that they might be saved;—
And [for this cause] God sendeth them an inworking of error,
To the end they should believe in the falsehood,—
In order that all should be judged
Who would not believe in the truth,
But were well-pleased with the unrighteousness.
But [we] are bound to give thanks unto God continually concerning you,
Brethren beloved by the Lord,a
For that God chose you, from the beginning;
Unto salvation,
In sanctification of spirit and belief of truth,—
Unto which he called you, through means of our glad-message,
Unto an acquiring of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.
Hence, then, brethren, stand firm and hold fast the instructions which ye were taught—whether through discourse, or through our letter.
But may our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and our God and Father,—
Who hath loved you, and given you
Age-abiding consolation and good hope by favour>
Console your' hearts,
And confirm you in every' good work and word.

For the rest, brethren, be praying for us,—
That [the word of the Lord] may be running, and gaining glory,
According as [it did] even with you;:

2 And that we may be rescued from the presuming and wicked men;
   For not all hold the faith.
3 [Faithful] is the Lord—who will confirm you, and guard you from the wicked one:
4 We are persuaded, however, in the Lord, as touching you,—
   That <what things we give in charge>Ye both are doing and will do;—
5 But may the Lord guide your hearts into the love of God, and into the endurance of the Christ.
6 Howbeit, we charge you, brethren,—
   That in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ ye be withdrawing yourselves from every brother—
   Who [in a disorderly way] doth walk, and not according to the instruction which ye received from us.
7 For ye yourselves know, how needful it is to be imitating us,
   In that we were not disorderly among you.
8 Nor as a free-gift did eat [bread] from anyone,
   But [with toil and hardship,] night and day working,—
   That we might not burden any of you;—
9 Not because we have not authority, but that yourselves, as an example, we might hold forth unto you,—
   To the end ye might be imitating us.

10 For [even when we were with you] were we giving in charge unto you,—
   That [if any will not work] neither let him eat!
11 We hear, in fact, of some who are walking among you in a disorderly way, [At nothing] working, yet too busily working!
12 Now [such as these] we charge and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ,—
   That [with quietness] working, [Their own] bread they be eating.
13 But [ye] brethren, be not weary in well-doing;—b
14 And [if anyone] be not giving ear unto our word through means of this letter—
   [On this one] set a mark—
   Not to be mixing yourselves up with him,—
   That he may be reproved;
15 And [not as an enemy] be esteeming him, but be admonishing him [as a brother].
16 But may the Lord of peace himself give you peace.
   [Always in every way].
   [The Lord] be with you all.
17 The salutation of Paul—[with my own hand].
   Which is a sign in every letter:
   [Thus] I write.
18 The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE
TO TIMOTHY

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus—
   By injunction of God our Saviour and Christ Jesus our hope,—
2 Unto Timothy, my true child in faith:
   Favour, mercy, peace,
   From God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord.
3 Even as I exhorted thee to remain in Ephesus, when I was journeying into Macedonia,
   That thou mightest charge some—
4 Not to be teaching otherwise,
   Nor yet to be giving heed to stories and endless genealogies,—
   The which bring arguings, rather than that stewardship of God which is with faith;—
5 Now [the end of the charge] is love—
   Out of a pure heart,
   And a good conscience,
   And faith unfeigned,—
6 [Which some, missing] have turned them aside unto idle talk,
7 Desiring to be law-teachers,—Not understanding, either what they say or whereof they confidently affirm.
8 Now we know that [excellent] is the law, if one put it to a lawful use;—
Knowing this—
That to a righteous man law doth not apply,
But to the lawless and insubordinate, ungodly and sinful, irreligious and profane, Smirners of fathers and smirners of mothers, murderers, 10 fornicators, sodomites, man-stealers, liars, false-swearers,—
And [if anything else] unto the healthful teaching is opposed;—
According to the glad-message of the glory of the happy God, with which entrusted am [I].

[Grateful] am I unto him that empowered me, Christ Jesus our Lord.
In that faithful he accounted me,
Putting me into ministry,—
Though formerly a defamer, and persecutor, and insulter;
Nevertheless mercy was shown me, because without knowledge I acted, in unbelief:
Yet exceeding abundant was the favour of our Lord, with faith and love which are in Christ Jesus.

[Faithful] the saying! and of all acceptance worthy,—
That Christ Jesus came into the world to save:
Of whom am I;—
Nevertheless [on this account] was mercy shewn me,—
That in me, the chief Christ Jesus might shew forth his entire long-suffering.
For an example of them about to believe on him unto age-abiding.

Now unto the King of the ages,—
Incorruptible, invisible, alone God! 8
Be honour and glory, unto the ages of ages.

Amen!

This charge I commit unto thee, child Timothy,
According to the prophecies running before on thee,
In order that thou mightest war, with them, the noble warfare,
Holding faith and a good conscience,—
Which some trusting from them concerning their faith have made shipwreck;—
Of whom are Hymenaeus and Alexander; Whom I have delivered unto Satan, that they may be taught by discipline not to be defaming.

I exhort, therefore, [first of all], that there be made—
Supplications, prayers, intercessions, thanksgivings,

In behalf of all men,—
In behalf of kings, and all them who are in eminent station;—
In order that an undisturbed and quiet life we may lead, In all godliness and gravity;—

This is comely and acceptable before our Saviour God,
Who willeth all men to be saved, And unto a personal knowledge of truth to come;
For there is [one] God;
[One] mediator also, between God and men,—
A man—Christ Jesus;
Who gave himself a ransom in behalf of all,—
The testimony in its own fit times:
Unto which [I] have been appointed proclaimer and apostle—Truth I speak, I utter no falsehood—A teacher of nations, in faith and truth.

I am minded, therefore, that—
The men in every place be offering prayer,
Uplifting hands of lovingkindness. Apart from anger and disputings;

<In the same way> that the women—b
In seemly attire, with modesty and sober-mindedness be adorning themselves,—
Not with plaitings and ornamentation of gold; or with pearls, or with costly apparel,—
But Which becometh women promising godliness> Through means of good works.

Let [a woman] in quietness be learning in all submission;
But teaching unto a woman I do not permit, Nor yet to have authority over a man,—
But to be in quietness;
For Adam was first formed, Then Eve,
And [Adam] was not deceived,
Whereas the woman <having been wholly deceived> hath come to be in transgression;
She shall be saved, however, through means of the child-bearing,—
If they abide in faith, and love, and holiness, with sober-mindedness.

[Faithful] the saying.

<If anyone for oversight is eager> A noble work doth he covet;—
It is needful, then, for the overseer to be irreprouachable, a husband of one wife, sober, of sound mind, orderly, hospitable, apt in teaching. Not given to wine, not ready to wound, But considerate, averse to contention, not fond of money, 4
Over his own house presiding well, Having children in submission, with all dignity; 5
Not a new convert, Lest being belauded into the sentence of the adversary he fall; 7
It is needful moreover, to have [an honourable testimony also] from them who are without, Lest [into reproach] be fall, and the snare of the adversary. 8
Ministers [in the same way]—Dignified, not double-tongued, not [such] much wine given, not greedy of base gain, 8
Holding the sacred secret of the faith in a pure conscience; 9
But let these also be proved first, Then let them be ministering, being [unaccountable]; 10
Wives [in the same way]—Dignified, not given to intrigue, sober, faithful in all things. 11
Let ministers be husbands of one wife, Over children presiding well, and over their own houses; 12
For they who have ministered well [are] a good degree for themselves are acquiring, and great freedom of speech in the faith that is in Christ Jesus. 13
These things unto thee I am writing, Hoping to come unto thee shortly;— 14
But if I should tarry That thou mayest know— 15
How it behoveth [in a house of God] to behave oneself,— 16
The which [is] an assembly of a Living God, A pillar and basement of the truth;— 18
And confessedly great, is the sacred secret of godliness,— 18
Who was made manifest in flesh, Was declared righteous in spirit, Was made visible unto messengers,* Was proclaimed among nations, Was believed on in [the] world, Was taken up in glory.† 19
Howbeit the Spirit expressly saith— That in later seasons,* some will revolt from the faith, Giving heed unto seducing spirits, And unto teachings of demons—* speaking hypocrisy* speaking falsehood, [Of demons] cauterised in their own conscience,— 3
Forbidding to marry, [Commanding] to abstain from foods which {God} created to be received with thanksgiving by them who believe and personally know the truth; 4
Because every creature of God is good, And nothing to be cast away. If with thanksgiving it be received,— For it is hallowed by the word of God and intercession. 6
These things submitting to the brethren>
Thou shalt be a noble minister of Christ Jesus, Nourishing thyself with the words of the faith and of the noble teaching which thou hast closely studied. 7
But from the profane* and old-wives stories excuse thyself, 8
And be training thyself unto godliness; For the bodily training is for little, is profitable, Whereas godliness [for all things] is [profitable];— 9
Having promise of life;—The present and the coming; 10
Faithful in the saying! and of all acceptance worthy; 10
For [this to all] are we toiling but contending, 11
Because we have set our hope on a Living God, Who is Saviour of all men—Specially of such as believe. 11
Be giving these things in charge, and be teaching:— 12
Let no one despise thy youth;* 4
But 1 an ensample become thou, of the faithful,— 12
In discourse, in behaviour, in love, in faith, in chastity, 13
While I am coming be giving heed— To the reading, to the exhorting, to the teaching: 13
Be not careless of the gift of favour [that is in thee], Which was given thee through means of prophesying, along with a laying on of the hands of the eldership. 15
These things be thy care, In these things be thou,— That thine advancement may be manifest unto all: 16
Be giving heed to thyself, and to thy teaching,—Abide still in them; For this doing Both thyself shalt thou save, And them that hearken to thee. 17
An elderly man do not thou reprimand, But beseech him, as [though he were thy] father,— Younger men, as brothers, Elderly women, as mothers, Younger women, as sisters, in all chastity. 18
Widows* honour thou who indeed are widows:— 2

4 Howbeit if any widow hath children or grandchildren:
Let them be learning—first unto their own house— to be showing reverence,
And returns to be making unto their progenitors;
For this is acceptable before God;

8 But if she is indeed a widow, and is left alone
Hath turned her hope towards God,*
And is giving attendance unto the supplications and the prayers, night and day,—

6 Whereas she that runneth riot while living is dead:

7 And these things be giving in charge,
That without reproach they may be;

8 But however, anyone for his own, and specially them of his household take not beforehand; *This hath he denied, And is worse than one without faith!!

9 Let a widow be put on the list*—
Having become not less than sixty years old;—
One man's wife,
In noble works being well-attested;—
If she hath nourished children, If she hath shown hospitality, If saints' feet she hath washed, If them who were in tribulation she hath succoured, If in every good work she hath followed on:

11 But younger widows decline thou;
For as soon as they wax wanton against the Christ:
To marry are they determined,—
Having, as sentence,—
That their first faith they have set at nought;—
At the same time to be idlers! are they learning,
Going about from house to house;
And not only idlers! but gossips also, and busybodies,—
Saying the things they ought not;

14 I am minded, therefore, that the younger ones marry, bear children, be mistress of the house,—
Giving no single occasion unto the opposer, as a cause of reviling;
For already some have turned aside after Satan:

18 If any believing woman hath widows:
Let her be giving them succour,
And not suffer the assembly to be burdened, —
That them who are indeed widows it may itself succour.

17 Let the well presiding elders of double honour be accounted worthy, especially they who toil in discourse and teaching;

18 For the scripture saith—

A thirsty ox, shall thou not muzzle,*
And—

Worthy is the workman of his hire.

19 Against an elder entertain not an accusation, except at the mouth of two or three witnesses;

20 But them who are sinning before all do thou reprove, —
That the rest also may have fear:—

21 I adjure thee before God, and Christ Jesus,* and the chosen messengers
That these things thou observe, apart from prejudice, doing nothing by partiality.

22 Hands suddenly upon no one lay,
Neither have fellowship with sins of strangers:
Thyself keep chaste:—

23 No longer be a water-drinker,
But of a little wine make use,
Because of thy stomach and thy frequent sicknesses.

24 Some men's sins are openly evident, leading on into judgment,
With some, however, they even follow after;
In the same way the noble works also are openly evident,—
And they that are otherwise cannot be hid.

6 Let as many as are servants under a yoke* be counting their own masters, worthy of all honour,*
Lest the name of God and the teaching be defamed.

3 They, however, that have believing masters let them not despise them, because they are brethren;
But the more be doing them service, because believing and beloved are they who from the good workmanship receive advantage.

Those things be teaching, and exhorting:—

3 If anyone doth otherwise teach
And doth not adhere to healthful discourse—those of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the teaching that is according to godliness;—

4 He is blinded, knowing nothing rightly,
But is diseased about questionings and word-battles—
Out of which spring envy, strife, defama tions, wicked surmising, incessant quarrellings of men wholly corrupt in their mind and bereft of the truth,—Supposing godliness to be a means of gain!

6 Now it is a great means of gain—godliness, with a sufficiency of one's own;
THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO TIMOTHY.

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus,
   Through the will of God,—
   According to the promise of life in Christ Jesus;—

2 Unto Timothy, my beloved child:
   Favour, mercy, peace, from God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord.

3 Grateful am I, unto God,—
   Unto whom I am rendering divine ser-

4 Which in its own fit times* the happy only Potentate will shew—
   The King of them that reign,
   And Lord of them that wield lordship,—
   Who alone hath immortality,
   Dwelling in light unapproachable,—
   Whom no man hath seen—nor can' see:
   Unto whom be honour and might age-abiding.* Amen.

5 <Upon them who are rich in the present age> lay thou charge—
   Not to be high-minded,
   Nor to have set their hope on 'riches' uncertainty,—
   But on God, who offereth us all things richly for enjoying,

6 To be doing good,
   To be rich in noble works,
   To be [generous in giving],
   Ready for fellowship,—

7 Treasuring up for themselves a good foundation for the future,
   That they may lay hold on the life [which is life] indeed'.

8 O Timothy! that which hath been entrusted do thou guard,
   Avoiding the profane prattlings and opposi-

   faith> have missed the mark!
   Favour be with you.

*c NB: "see... pursue." 13 Or: "Lord."
2 TIMOTHY I. 6—18; II. 1—18.

[Such] as dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice. — I am persuaded, moreover, that [it dwelleth] in thee also.

[For which cause] I put thee in remembrance, to be stirring up God's gift of favour, Which is in thee through means of the laying on of my hands;

For God hath not given us a spirit of cowardice, but of power, and love, and correction.

Be not thou, therefore, put to shame — With regard to the witness of our Lord, Nor with regard to me his prisoner; But suffer hardnesh together with the glad-message, according to the power of God,—

Who hath saved us, and called us with a holy calling, Not according to our works, But according to the peculiar purpose and favour —

Which was given to us in Christ Jesus before age-during times.

But hath now been made manifest through means of the forthshining of our Saviour Christ Jesus,— Who, indeed, hath abolished death, And hath thrown light upon life and incorruptibility, through means of the glad-message; Whereunto [I] have been appointed herald and apostle and teacher; — 13 [For which cause] [these things also] am I suffering; Nevertheless I am not being put to shame, For I know whom I have believed, And am persuaded that he is [able] to guard [that which I have entrusted] [to him] unto [that day]

[An outline] have thou, of healthful discourses which from me thou hast heard — With the faith and love which are in Christ Jesus:

[The noble] thing entrusted [to thee] do thou guard,

Through means of the Holy Spirit which dwelleth within us.

Thou knowest this —

That all they who are in Asia have turned away from me,— Of whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

The Lord grant mercy unto the house of Onesiphorus,

In that [of times] hath he refreshed me, And [as regardeth my chain] hath not been put to shame,

But [happening to be in Rome] he diligently sought out and found me,—

The Lord grant him to find mercy from [the] Lord in [that] day;— And [how many times [in Ephesus] he hath ministered] better art thou getting to know.

[Thou] therefore, my child, be empowering thyself in the favour that is in Christ Jesus,

And [the things which thou hast heard from me among many witnesses]—

[The same] entrust thou unto faithful men,

Such as shall be [competent] to teach others also,

Take thy part in suffering hardship, as a brave soldier of Christ Jesus:

[No one that is serving as a soldier entangleth himself with the matters of his livelihood, That he may please him that hath summoned him to serve as a soldier;]

[If, moreover, any man] [content even in the games]> He is not crowned, unless [lawfully] he contend;

[The toiling husbandman] ought [first] of the fruits] to partake:

Think, as to what I am speaking;

For the Lord will give thee discernment in all things.

Keep in mind Jesus Christ —

Raised from among the dead,

Of the seed of David,—

According to my joyful message:

In which I am suffering hardship, Even unto bonds, [as an evil-doer];

But [the word of God] is not bound.

[For this cause] am I enduring all things: for the sake of the chosen;

In order that [they also] may obtain [the salvation] which is in Christ Jesus, along with glory age-abiding.

[Faithful] the saying — For

[If we have died together] we shall also live together,

[If we endure] we shall also reign together;

[If we shall deny] he also will deny us,

[If we are faithless] the [faithful] abideth,

For [deny himself] he cannot.

[Of these things] be putting [them] in remembrance,

Adjourning [them] before God,

Not to be wagesing wad-battles,— Useful [for nothing],

Occasioning a subversion of them that hearken.

Give diligence [thyself, approved] to present unto God,—

A workman not to be put to shame,

Skifully handling the word of truth.

But [the profane] prating: shun;

For [unto more] ungodliness will they force themselves on;

And [their discourse, as a gangrene] will eat its way;—

Of whom are Hymenæus and Philetus,

Men who concerning the truth, have erred.

Perhaps a part of a primitive Christian hymn.

Or [WH]: "the Lord."
III. 1—17; IV. 1—5.

2 TIMOTHY II. 19—26; 1—5.

Moreover <like as> [Jannes and Jambres]:
withstood Moses>
[So, these men also] withstand the truth,—
Men utterly corrupted in their mind,
Disapproved concerning their* faith;
But they shall not force their way further,
For [their folly] shall be [fully evident] unto all,—
As also [that of those* men] became.

But [though] hast closely studied—
My teaching, manner of life, purpose, faith, long-suffering, love, endurance, * persecutions, sufferings,
[What manner of things] befeol me at Antioch,
at Iconium, at Lystra,
[What manner of persecutions] I endured,—
And [out of all] [the Lord] rescued me;—
Ye and [all who are determined to live in a godly manner in Christ Jesus] will be persecuted;
Whereas [wicked] men and howling imposters will force their way to the worse,
Deceiving and being deceived.

But [though] abide in the things which thou hast learned, and been entrusted with,
Knowing [from whom] thou hast learned
[them],—
And that <from a babe> [those sacred letters] thou hast known which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, [Through the faith which is in Christ Jesus]:
[Every scripture] [is] God-breathed,
And profitable—unto teaching, unto contraction, unto correction, unto the discipline that is in righteousness,—
In order that [ready] may be the man
[of God], [unto every] good work, being well prepared.

I adjure [these] before God, and Christ Jesus—
Who is about to be judging* living and
dead,—
[Both as to his] forthshining and his kingdom>
Proclaim the word,
Take thy position—in season, out of season.—
Convince, rebuke, encourage,—
With all' long-suffering and teaching.

For there will be a season—
When [the healthful] teaching: they will not endure,
But [according to their own covetings] will unto themselves] heap up teachers,
Because they have an itching ear,
And [from the truth] indeed, [their ear]
will they turn away,
While [unto stories] they will turn themselves aside.

But [though]—be sober in all things, suffer harship, do [the work] of an evangelist, [thy ministry: completely fulfil;]

6 For I have already preached you a drink-offering,
And the season of my release is at hand,—
'The noble' contest have I contested;
The race I have finished,
The faith I have I kept:
Henceforth lieth by for me—
The crown [of righteousness],
Which the Lord will render unto me in
that day,—
The righteous' judge,—
Yet not alone unto me,
But unto all them also who have loved his forthshining.

Give diligence to come unto me speedily, 10 For Demas hath forsaken me, having loved the present age; And hath journeyed unto Thessalonica; Crescens unto Galatia; Titus unto Dalmatia: 11 Luke alone is with me.

<Receiving Mark back > bring him with thyself, For he is very useful to me for ministering; 12 and Tychicus have I sent unto Ephesus.

13 The cloak that I left in Troas, with Carpus, when thou comest| bring; And the scrolls, especially the parchments.

14 Alexander the coppersmith [of much baseness towards me] hath given proof,—
The Lord will render unto him according to his works.—

Or: "taking up Mark."

Ps. xxii. 21; Pr. xxiv. 12.

15 Of whom be thou also on thy guard,
For he hath greatly withstood our words.

16 <In my first defence | no man came in to help me, but all forsook me,—> Unto them may it not be reckoned!—

17 But the Lord stood by me, and empowered me,
In order that the proclamation might be fully made, and all the nations might hear;
And I was delivered out of the mouth of a lion:—

18 The Lord will rescue me from every wicked work,
And will bring me safe into his heavenly kingdom:
Unto whom be the glory, unto the ages of ages. Amen.

19 Salute Priscia and Aquila and the house of Onesiphorus.

20 Erastus remained in Corinth; but Trophimus I left at Miletus sick. 21 Give diligence to come: before winter.

There salute thee—Eubulus, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and [all] the brethren.

22 The Lord be with thy spirit.
Favour be with you.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE

TO TITUS.

1 Paul, a servant of God—an apostle moreover of Jesus Christ.—
According to the faith of the chosen ones of God,
And the personal knowledge of the truth that is according to godliness,—

2 In hope of life age-abiding;
Which God, who cannot lie,
Promised before age-abiding times,
But hath manifested in its fitting seasons,
Even his word, in the proclamation with which entrusted am I.—

By injunction of our Saviour' God:

Or: "Christ [Jesus]."

1 Tim. i. 11.

4 Unto Titus, my true' child according to common faith,—
Favour and peace.
From God [our] Father and Christ Jesus our Saviour.

5 For this cause I left I thee in Crete,
That the things remaining undone thou mightest completely set in order,
And mightest establish [in every city] elders.

As with thee; arranged:

6 If anyone is unaccusable, a husband of one' wife], having [children] that believe, who are not charged with riotous excess, nor insubordinate;

* Ac. xiv. 25.
Titus I. 7—16; II. 1—15; III. 1—7.

For it is needful that the overseer be—

1. Unblameable, as God’s steward, not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, not ready to wound, not seeking gain by base means,

2. But hospitable, a lover of what is good, sober-minded, just, kind, possessing self-control,

3. Holding fast in the matter of his teaching, not the faithful word. That he may be able both to encourage with his healthful instruction, and the gainsayers, to refute.

4. For there are many unruly men,

5. Vain talkers and deceivers,

6. Especially they of the circumcision,

7. Whose mouths must needs be stopped.

8. Men who are upsetting whole houses,

9. Teaching the things which ought not to be taught—

10. For the sake of [base] gain.

11. Said one from among them, a prophet of their own—

12. Cretans! always false, mischievous wild beasts, idle gluttons.

13. This witness is true,—

14. For which cause be reproving them sharply,

15. That they may be healthy in their faith.

16. Not giving heed to Judaeal stories and commandments of men who are turning away from the truth.

17. All things are pure unto the pure, but nothing is pure, but polluted are both their mind and conscience,

18. God they confess that they know.

19. But by their works they deny him, being abominable and obdurate. And as to any good work found worthless.

20. But do thou speak the things which become the healthful instruction:

21. That aged men be sober, grave, sober-minded, healthy in their faith, love, endurance;

22. Aged women, in the same way, in deport-ment as becometh sacred persons, not given to intrigue, nor yet to much wine ensalved, teachers of virtue,—

23. That they may constrain the young women to be lovers of their husbands, lovers of their children, sober-minded, chaste, workers at home, good, Submitting themselves to their own husbands.—That the word of God be not defamed;

24. The younger men, in the same way, exhort thou to be sober-minded:

25. In all things shewing thyself an ensample of noble works,—

In thine instruction uncorruptness, gravity, healthful discourse that cannot be condemned.

In order that, the that is of the contrary part may relent, Having, nothing to say concerning us that is disparaging:

Servants, unto their own masters, to submitting themselves in all things, to well-pleasing, not gainsaying, not taking anything away, shewing all good faith,—

That the instruction which is of our Saviour God, they may adorn in all things.

For the favour of God, bringing salvation for all men, hath shone forth,

Putting us under discipline—

In order that,—

Denying ourselves of ungodliness and worldly covetings,

In a soberminded and righteous and godly manner, we should live, in the present age,

Prepared to welcome the happy hope and forthshining of the glory of the great God and our Saviour Christ Jesus;

Who gave himself up in our behalf,

That he might redeem us from all manner of lasciness and purify for himself a people as his own treasure—Zealous of noble works.

As to these things are speaking and exhorting, and reproving with all manner of precept: Let no one disregard thee!

Be putting them in mind unto rulers, unto authorities, to be in submission, to be yielding to rule, for every good work to be prepared, To be defaming no one, to be averse to strife, considerate, shewing all meekness unto all men.

For even we, used at one time, to be—

Thoughtless, unyielding, deceived, In servitude unto manifold covetings and pleasures, In malice and envy leading on, Detestable, Hating one another.

But when the graciousness and affection for man of our Saviour God, shone forth,

Not by works which we had done in righteousness,

But according to his mercy, he saved us—

Through means of the bething of a new birth.

And the moulding anew of Holy Spirit,—

Which he poured on us richly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour,

In order that, having been declared righteous by his favour, we should
THE EPISTLE OF PAUL THE APOSTLE TO PHILEMON.

1 Paul, prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy my brother,— Unto Philemon the beloved, and a fellow-worker of ours,
2 And unto Apphia our sister,
   And unto Archippus our fellow-soldier,
   And unto the assembly which meeteth at thy house:
3 Favour unto you, and peace.
   From God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I am giving thanks unto my God—
   [Always] making mention of thee in my prayers,
   Hearing of thy love, and of the faith which thou hast towards the Lord Jesus and towards all the saints,—
6 To the end that the fellowship of thy faith may become [energetic] by a personal knowledge of every good thing that is in us towards Christ;
7 For much joy have I had, and encouragement, by occasion of thy love,
   In that the tender affections of the saints have had rest given them by thee, brother.
8 Wherefore [though I have much] freedom of speech in Christ, to be enjoining upon thee which is befitting>

9 Yet [for love's sake] I rather exhort,—
   Being such a one as Paul the aged.
   [Now] also, even a prisoner of Christ Jesus,—
10 I exhort thee concerning [my own] child,
   Whom I have begotten in my bonds,—
   Onesimus:
   Him who [at one time] was [unto thee]
   [unserviceable],
   But now [unto thee] and unto me
   [serviceable];
   Whom I have sent back unto thee—
   [Him],
   That is [my own] tender affections!—
12 Whom I [I] was minded [with myself] to detain,
   That [in thy behalf] [unto me] be might be ministering in the bonds of the joyful message;
14 But [apart from thy] mind I wished to do [nothing],
   That [not as by necessity] thy goodness should be, but [by choice];
15 For [peradventure for this cause] was be separated for an hour>
   That [as an age-abiding possession] thou mightest have him back,—
16 No longer as a servant, But above a servant—[A] brother beloved!—

Col. iv. 17.  * Or (WH): "you."
EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS.

Whereas <£ in many parts and in many ways of old,
God spake unto the fathers £ in the prophets—>
2 At the end of these days—
He hath spake unto us £ in his Son,—
Whom he hath appointed heir of all things;
Through whom also he hath made the ages;
Who <£ being an eradiated brightness of his glory,
And an exact representation of his very being,
Also bearing up all things by the utterance of his power,
(For purification of sins) having achieved—
Sat down on the right hand* of the majesty in high places:

3 By £ so much becoming superior £ to the messengers;£
By £ as much as, going beyond them, he hath inherited a more distinguished name;
For £ unto which of the messengers£ said he at any time—
£ My Son: art thou£,
£ I will be become his father£,
And £ he shall become my Son?£

4 But £ whenever he again introdmoth the first—

* Ps. ex. 1.  * Ps. li. 7; Ac. xiii. 33; chap. v. 6.  * Ps. xcviii. 14.
* Ap: "Messenger."
HEBREWS I. 13, 14: II. 1–18; III. 1–8.

12 But [to which of the messengers] hath he said, at any time—
   Sit thou at my right hand,
   Until I make thy foes thy footstool?

14 Are they not [all] spirits [doing public service]—[for ministry] sent forth for the sake of them who are about to inherit salvation?

2 For this cause it behoveth us [with unwonted firmness] to be holding fast unto the things that have been heard, lest, at any time, we drift away. 2 For <if the word through messengers' spoken became firm, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense> how shall we escape, if so great a salvation as this we have neglected,—which indeed, having received {a beginning} of being spoken through the Lord {by them who heard} unto us was confirmed, 4 God [jointly witnessing also] both with signs and wonders and manifold mighty works, and with distributions of Holy Spirit {according to his own will}?

5 For [not unto messengers] hath he subjected the coming habitable earth b of which we are speaking;

6 But one somewhere hath borne witness, saying—
   What is man, that thou shouldst make mention of him?
   Or the son of man, that thou shouldst put him in charge?

7 Thou hast made him less, some little, than messengers,
   [With glory and honour] hast thou crowned him,—
   [And hast set him over the works of thy hands];
   [All things] hast thou subjected beneath his feet; c

8 For <in submitting [to him] the all things>
   Nothing left be, to him unsuperseded; But now not yet; do we see, to him, the all things subjected—

9 But [Jesus, made some little less than messengers] we do behold;
   By reason of the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour,
   To the end that, by favour of God, [in behalf of every one] he might taste of death.

10 For it was becoming in him—
   For the sake of whom are all the things,
   And by means of whom are all the things,—
   When [many sons] unto glory he would lead,
   [The Princely Leader c of their salvation] through suffering to make perfect;"

11 For [both he that maketh holy, and they who are being made holy] d Are [all] of One; e

[For which cause] he is not ashamed to be called them [brethren], 12 saying—
   I will declare thy name unto my brethren,
   [In the midst of an assembly] will I sing praise unto thee; f

13 and again—
   [I] will be confident upon him; g
   and again—
   Lo! [I] and the children which unto me, [God] hath given.

14 <Seeing therefore the children have received a fellowship of blood and flesh;> He also [in like manner] took partnership in the same,—

   In order that through death—
   He might paralyze him that held the dominion of death,
   That is, the Adversary,—

   And might release these—
   As many as [by fear of death] were all their lifetime liable to bondage.

15 For [not surely of messengers] is he laying hold,
   But [of Abraham's seed] he is laying hold.

16 Whence he was obliged [in every way] unto the brethren [to be made like],
   That he might become a merciful and faithful high-priest,
   [In the things pertaining unto God];—
   For the making of propitiation for the sins of the people.

17 For [in that he suffered [when tested]> He is able [unto them who are being tested] [to give succour];

3 Whence, holy brethren, [partners] in a heavenly calling,
   Attentively consider the Apostle and High-priest of our confession—[Jesus]!

   As one [faithful] to him who made him:
   As [Moses also] in [all] his house.

4 For [of more' glory than Moses] hath [this: one been counted worthy—
   By as much as more' honour than [the house] hath [he that prepared it];

5 For [every' house] is prepared by some one,—
   But [he that hath prepared all' things is] [God];

6 Even Moses [indeed] was faithful in all' his house,
   [As an attendant] for a witness of the things which were to be spoken;

6 But [Christ as a Son] over his house,—
   Whose house are we,—if [the freedom of speech and boast of the hope. [throughout, firm]] we hold fast.

7 Wherefore,—
   According as saith the Holy Spirit—
   To-day [if] unto his voice ye would hearken;

8 Do not harden your hearts,—
   As in the enlargement,
   In the day of testing in the desert;

Ps. ex. 1: Mt. xxii. 44.

Ps. ccc. 1. 6. "The world to come, according to the opinion of the ancient synagogal council, means the renovated earth under the reign of the Messiah."—Adolph Saphir, on "Hebrews."
Ps. xxii. 22.
Ps. xxxii. 22. 2 Is. xxii. 3. 3 Is. viii. 17, 18. 4 Nu. xii. 7. 5 Ver. 14.
9 When your fathers tested by provings,
And saw my works forty years.

10 Wherefore was sore vexed with this generation,
And said, Always err they in their heart;—
Howbeit [they] learned not my ways:
11 So I swore in mine anger—
They shall not enter into my rest *.

12 Be taking heed, brethren,
Last at any time, there shall be in any one of you,
A wicked heart of unbelief,
In revolting from a Living God.

13 But be exhorting one another, on each's successive day, —
While the To-day * is being named!
Last any from among you be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin.

14 For [partners of the Christ] have we become,—
If, at least, the beginning of the confidence, throughout, firm; we hold fast:

15 So long as it is said—
To-day <if unto his voice ye would hearken>
Do not harden your hearts, —
As in the embitterment. b

16 For ||who|| though they heard ||caused embitterment?||
Nay, indeed! did not all who came forth out of Egypt through Moses?

17 But ||with whom|| was he sore vexed forty years? Was it not with them who sinned, ||whose dead bodies fell in the desert||? a

18 But ||unto whom|| sware he, that they should not enter into his rest,—
Save unto them who were obstinate?

19 And we see, that they were not able to enter ||because of unbelief!.

20 Let us therefore fear, lest at any time,
Although there is left behind a promise of entering into his rest,—

21 Any one from amongst you should be deemed * ||to have come short;||
22 For we have had delivered to us the joyful message, just as even [they];
But the word which was heard did not profit [them],
They not having been blended, by faith, with the things heard.

23 For we who have believed ||are to enter into the rest||,
According as he hath said—
|<So I sware in mine anger>||
They shall not enter into my rest*;
And yet [the works] from the foundation of the world [had been brought into existence],

24 For he hath spoken, somewhere, concerning the seventh [day], thus,
And God rested, on the seventh day, from all his works*;

5 And in this again—
They shall not enter into my rest.

6 Seeing, therefore, that it is left over for ||some|| to enter into it,
And [they who formerly] had delivered to them the joyful message ||entered not in by reason of obstinacy,—

7 ||Again|| be marked [out a certain] day,
||To-day|| [in David] saying— after so long a time as this,— according as it hath been said before:—

To-day <if unto his voice ye would hearken>
Do not harden your hearts.

8 For ||unto them|| Joshua's had given rest>
It had not in that case [concerning another] day been speaking ||after|| these things.

9 Hence there is [left over] A Sabbath-keeping, for the people of God.

10 For [he that hath entered into his rest] ||He too|| hath rested from his works,—just as [from his own] ||God|| [rested].

11 Let us, therefore, give diligence to enter into that rest,
Lest anyone fall into the same example ||of obstinacy||.

12 For ||living|| is the word of God, and ||energetic||,
And more cutting than any knife with two edges,
And penetrating as far as a dividing asunder of soul and spirit,
Of joints also, and marrow,—
And able to judge the impulses and designs of the heart;

13 And there is [no created thing] can be secreted before him,
But [all things] are naked and exposed to his eyes:—
As to whom is ||our discourse||.*

14 <Having then a great high-priest who hath passed through the heavens, ||Jesus the Son of God> ||Let us hold fast the confession;||

15 For we have not a high-priest unable to have fellow-feeling with our weaknesses,
But one tested in all respects, by way of likeness, ||apart from sin||.

16 Let us, then, be approaching with freedom of speech, unto the throne of favour,
That we may receive mercy,
And [favour] may find [for seasonable succour].

5 For ||every|| high-priest who from among men' is taken||
|On behalf of men| is appointed, as to the things pertaining unto God,
That he may be offering [both] gifts and sacrifices for sins,—

2 Able [to have a measure of feeling] for the ignorant and erring,—
Since [he also] is compassed with weakness;

* Cp. chap. v. 11.
And of the laying on of hands,
Of the resurrection of the dead,
And of judgment age-abiding;—

And this will we do if at least [God] permit.*

For it is impossible—
<As to those who have been once for all>
Illuminated,
Who have tasted also of the heavenly free-gift,
And have been made [partners] in a Holy Spirit,
And have tasted God’s utterance to be <sweet>,
Mighty works also of a coming’ age.

And who have fallen away>
[Again] to be remoulding them into repentance;
Seeing they are again crucifying unto themselves the Son of God,
And holding him up as an example.

For <and> <which hath drunk in [the rain];
thereupon oftimes coming,
And which bringeth forth vegetation* fit for them whom it is even cultivated>
Partaketh of a blessing from God;

But <should it be bringing forth thorns and briars>
It is disapproved, and unto cursing, nigh,—
Whose [end] is for [burning].

But we are persuaded, concerning you, beloved,
The things which are better and which contain salvation,
Though [even thus] we speak;
For [not unrighteous] is God, to be forgetful of your work and of the love ye have shewn forth for his name,
In that ye have ministered unto the saints, and are’ ministering,—

But we covet
That [each one of you] be shewing forth the same’ diligence,
Unto the full assurance of the hope through- out:
In order that [not slothful] ye may become,
But imitators of them who, through faith and patience, were becoming heirs of the promises.

For [when to Abraham’ God made promise]
<Seeing he had no one greater by whom to swear>
He swears [by himself,—] saying—
[Truly, if blessing] I will bless thee,
And [multiplying] I will multiply thee;

And [thus, being patient] he attained unto the promise.

For [by the greater one] swear,
And [with them] an end of [all] gainsaying by way of confirmation is [the oath]:
Wherein God <being more abundantly disposed> to shew forth unto the heirs of the promise the unchangeableness of his counsel>
Mediated [with an oath].—

In order that <through means of two' unchangeable things, In which it was impossible for [God] to make himself false>
A mighty' consolation we might have,
Who have fled along to grasp | the fore
lying' hope',
Which we have | as an anchor of the soul,
Both secure and firm,
And entering into the interior of the
Where a forerunner in our behalf | hath entered | [even Jesus].
Who | according to the rank of Melchizedek | hath become | a high-priest unto times age-abiding].
For | [this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of God Most High,
Who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him,—
To whom even a tenth of all Abraham apportioned]
<First, indeed, when translated, King of Righteousness,
But [after that] King of Salem also, which is King of Peace,—
Without father, without mother, without pedigree,
Having | neither beginning of days, nor of life an end, |
But made like unto the Son of God>
Abideth a priest evermore'.
Now consider how great this man was, to whom | a tenth | Abraham gave out of the choicest spoils
[Yes Abraham] the Patriarch. Yes Abraham the Patriarch.
And | they, indeed, from among the sons of Levi, who the priesthood received, Have | commandment | to take tithes of the people | according to the law, | That is, of their brethren, although sprung from the loins of Abraham; | But he who deriveth not his pedigree from among them,
Hath taken' tithes of Abraham,
And | the holder of the promises | hath he blessed'.
But | apart from all gainsaying
The less by the greater is blessed.
And | here | indeed, dying' men take tithes, But | there | one of whom it is witnessed | that he liveth'.
And—so to say a word—
Through Abraham | even Levi | who taketh' tithes hath paid' tithes;
For | (even then') was he in the loins of his father, when | Melchizedek | met him.
If indeed, therefore, there had been | a perfecting through means of the Levitical priesthood,—
For the people, thereon | have had based a code of laws>
What further' need | according to the rank of Melchizedek | for a different' priest to be raised up,
And | not according to the rank of Aaron | to be designated?
For <seeing there is to be a change of the priesthood>
Of necessity | of law too | a change cometh.
For | he as to whom these' things are said |
With a different' tribe | hath taken partnership,
From which | no one | hath: given attendance at the altar;
For it is | very evident | that out of Judah' hath sprung our Lord,—
Respecting which tribe | concerning priests | nothing did Moses speak,
And | yet more abundantly' evident | it is—
That | according to the likeness of Melchizedek | there is to be raised up | a different' priest, |
Who <not according to a law of commandment dealing with the flesh> hath arisen,
But according to the power of an indissoluble life;
For it is witnessed—
Thou | art a priest | age-abidingly, |
According to the rank of Melchizedek |. |
For | a setting aside | doth, indeed, take place, of a foregoing' commandment,
By reason of its own' weakness and unprofitableness,—
For | the law | perfected | nothing';
But there is the superinducing of a better' hope,—
Through which we draw near unto God.
And <inasmuch as not apart from oath-taking—
For | they | indeed, | apart from oath-taking have been made priests,
But | he | with an oath-taking,—
Through him that was saying unto him—
The Lord swear, and will not regret,—
Thou | art a priest | age-abidingly];
| By as much as this | hath | [Jesus] become surety of a better' covenant also.
And | they | indeed, | in greater numbers | have been made priests,
Because | by reason of death | are they hindered from | remaining at hand;
But | he | by reason of his remaining age-abidingly;
| Untransmissible' holdeth' the priesthood.
Whence he is able | even to be saving unto the very end
Them who approach, through him, unto God;
Since he evermore liveth to be interceding in their behalf.
For | such a high-priest as this' for us' was | [even] suited: Loving, noble, undefiled.

* Not merely "another," abiding.

v. xi 3, 11.

* Or: "full of loving-kindness."
Set apart from sinners,
And become' [higher than the heavens] ;
27 Who hath no daily' necessity, [like the high-priests],
| Beforehand, over his own' sins | to be offering sacrifices,
| After that | over those [of the people], [a]
| For | this | he did once for all when | himself | he offered up.
28 For the law constituteth [men] high-priests, having [weakness];
But the word of the oath-taking, which cometh after the law,
[| A Son | age-abidingly | made perfect].

8 A crowning point on the things being spoken:—
Such a one as this|| have we [as high-priest],
Who hath sat down on the right hand[b] of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens,—
2 Of the Holy place| a public minister,
| And of the Real' Tent, which | the Lord' pitched| and not | man.|
3 For [every' high-priest]; for the offering of both gifts and sacrifices| is constituted;
Whence it was [necessary] for this one also to have something which he might offer.
4 If, indeed, therefore, he had been on earth;
He had not, in that case, even been' a priest,
Since there are' those who are offering the gifts [according to the law];——
5 Who, indeed, are rendering divine service, with a glimpse' and shadow' [of the heavenly things];
Even as Moses hath received intimation, when about to complete the tent,—
For see! saith he—Thou shalt make all things according to the model which hath been pointed out thee in the mount.*
6 But now he hath attained unto | a more distinguished | public ministry,—
By as much as of a better' covenant also he is [mediator],
Which indeed [upon better'] promises hath been legislated.
7 For [if that first] had been [faultless],
| Not, in that case, for a second | had there been sought [a place].
8 For [finding fault with them] he saith—
Lo! [days] are coming, saith the Lord,
When I will conclude, for the house of Israel
and the house of Judah,
A covenant of a new sort:*
9 Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers,
In the day when I took them by their hand,
to lead them forth out of the land of Egypt,—
| Because | they | abode not in my covenant,
| And | I | disregarded them, saith the Lord.
10 Because [this] is the covenant which I will make with the house of Israel,
| After those days | saith the Lord:—

Giving my laws into their understanding
[| Upon their hearts also | will I inscribe | them:
| And I will become their' God,
| And [they] shall become my people;
| And in nowise shall they teach—
| Every one his fellow-citizen,
| And every one his brother,
| Saying,—Get to know the Lord!
| Because [all] shall know me.
From the least unto the greatest of them;
Because [propitious] will I be as to their unrighteousnesses,*
| And [of their sins] in nowise will I be mindful | any more.]

13 In saying Of a new sort he hath made obsolete | the first;
But the thing that is becoming obsolete and aged
Is near [disappearing]!

9 [Even] the first, indeed, therefore, used to have righteous appointments of divine service,
[Even the holy ritual well arranged];
2 For a tent was prepared, the first,
In which were both the lampstand and the table and the setting forth of the loaves,—
The which is called the Holy place;
3 But after the second' veil | a tent, that which is called Most Holy;
4 Having a golden altar of incense,
And the ark of the covenant covered around on every side with gold,
In which was a golden jar holding the manna,
And the rod of Aaron that sprouted,
And the tables of the covenant;
5 But over-above it | Cherubim of glory overshadowing the propitiatory:—
| Concerning which things | it is not now [needful] to be speaking 'particularly'.
6 Now these things having been thus prepared>
| Into the first tent, | indeed, | continually | do | the priests enter,
The divine services completing;
7 But into the second once for all in the year,
| Only | the high-priest,
| Not without blood,
Which he offered for himself and the ignorances of the people;
8 The Holy Spirit making this evident—
| That | not yet | hath been manifested, the way through the Holy place,
| So long | as the first' tent hath | a standing.
9 The which is a similitude for the present season,
According to which | both gifts and sacrifices | are offered,

| Jer. xxxi. 31-34.
| Ver. 8, above.
| Exo. xxv. 8 ff; xl. 2 ff.
| It would seem to be the safer course to render the simple plural | uniformly, in harmony with the distinction here drawn between the Holy place and the Most Holy.
| Cop. the six occurrences: viii. 2; ix. 8, 13, 24, 25; x. 19.
Which cannot (as to the conscience) perfect him that rendereth the divine service:
Only as to eatings and drinkings, and diversified immersions,
Righteous-appointments of the flesh, Which until a season of rectifying are in force.

But when Christ approached, as high-priest of the coming good things,
Through the greater and more perfect tent, not made by hand, That is, not of this creation,—
Nor yet through blood of goats and calves, But through his own blood, He entered once for all into the Holy place, ||Age-abiding' redemption discovering||.

For the blood of goats and bulls, And the ashes of a heifer sprinkling the profaned, Halloweth unto the purity of the flesh,
||How much rather|| shall the blood of the Christ, Who through an age-abiding spirit Offered himself unspotted unto God! Purify our conscience from dead works, To the rendering of divine-service unto a Living' God!||?

And for this cause, ||of a new covenant,|| is he mediator,— To the end that death coming to pass for the redemption of the transgressions against [the first] covenant,
The called might receive [the promise] of the age-abiding' inheritance;

For where a covenant is, It is necessary for death to be brought in, of him that hath covenanted;
For a covenant over dead persons is firm,— Since it is not then of force when he is living! that hath covenanted.
Whence not even the first, apart from blood! hath been consecrated;
For when every commandment according to the law [had been spoken] by Moses unto all the people>
|Taking the blood of the calves and the goats, With water and scarlet wool and hyssop, Both the scroll itself, and all the people, he sprinkled; Saying—
|This is the blood of the covenant which ||God! hath sent in command unto you:||
Yes! the tent also, and all the utensils of the public ministry, with blood in like manner he sprinkled;
And nearly all things with blood are purified [according to the law], And apart from blood-shedding cometh no remission,||.

It was indeed therefore necessary for the glimpses of the things in the heavens with these to be purified;
But the heavenly things themselves' with better sacrifices than these.
For not into a Holy place made by hand' entered Christ,— Counterpart of the real [Holy place];
But into the heaven itself, |
|Now| to be plainly manifested before the face of God in our behalf;—
Nor yet that oftentimes he should be offering himself,—
Just as [the high-priest] entereth into the Holy place, year by year, with alien' blood;—
Else had it been needful for him oftentimes to suffer, from the foundation of the world;
But now |once for all|
|Upon a conjunction of the ages,* For a setting aside of sin through means of his sacrifice,|
Hath he been made manifest;—
And |inasmuch as it is in store for men—
Once for all' to die, But after this |judgment|>|
|Thus| the Christ also!|
|Once for all' having been offered, For the bearing of the sins |of many| >
|A second time, apart from sin| will appear, To them who for him are ardently waiting|—
|Unto salvation.|;

For the law |having |a shadow|| of the destined' good things, Not the very' image' of the things>
They can never |with the same' sacrifices which year by year' they offer evermore| Make them who approach |perfect'|
Else would they not, in that case, have ceased being offered, By reason of those rendering the divine service having no' further' conscience at all' of sins, ||Being once for all purified||?
But |in them| is a recalling to mind of sins [year by year],
For it is impossible for |blood of bulls and goats' to be taking away sins, Wherefore <coming into the world: he saith: Sacrifice and offering| thou will set not, But |a body| hast thou fitted for me,—
|In whole-burnt-offerings and sacrifices for sins| thou didst not delight:|
|Then| said I—
|Lo! I am come,— |
|In the heading of the scroll| it is written concerning me,—
To do, O God, ||thy will!||;
|Higher up| saying—
|Sacrifices, and offerings, and whole-burnt-offerings, and sacrifices for sins; thou wouldest not, neither delightest in,—
The which [according to the law] are offered>
9 | Then] hath he said—
| Lo! | I am come!
| To do | thy will:—
He taketh away the first, that [the second] he may [establish]:
10 | By which will] we have been made holy.
Through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ [once for all];
11 And [every] priest:* indeed, standeth daily publicly ministering,
And the same sacrifices ofttimes' offering,
The which never' clear away sins;
12 But this' priest <having offered one' sacrifice for sins moreover> Set down on the right handb of God:
13 | As for the rest— waiting—
Until his foes be made his footstoolb;
| For | by one' offering:] hath he perfected for evermore, them who are being made holy.
But on the Holy Spirit [beareth us witness]:
For <after having said—
16 | This] is the covenant which I will covenant unto them
After those days, saith the Lord,—
Giving my laws upon their hearts,
| Upon their understandings also] will I inscribe them>.
17 | He] also [saith]—
| Of their sins, and of their lawlessnesses] I will in nowise be mindful any more.a
18 But | wherever a remission of these is] there is [no further] offering [for sins].
19 <Having therefore, brethren, freedom of speech for the entrance* through the Holy place [by the blood of Jesus],
Which entrance he hath consecrated for us, as a way recent and living,
Through the veil, that is, his flesh,—
21 And having a great priest over the house of God >
22 Let us approach with a genuine' heart, in full assurance of faith,*
Having been sprinkled, as to our hearts, from an evil conscience,
And bathed, as to our bodies, with pure water;
23 Let us hold fast the confession of the hope without wavering,—
For [faithful] is he that hath promised;
24 And let us attentively consider one another,
to provoke unto love and noble' works,—
25 Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together,
According to the custom of some,
But exhorting,
And by so' much the more as this',
By as' much as ye behold [the day], drawing near.

30 For <if [by choice] we be sinning, after the receiving of the full-knowledge of the truth>
[No longer] [for sins] is there left over [a sacrifice],
31 But some [fearful] reception of judgment and fiery jealousy,
[About to devour the opposers].*
32 || Any one having set aside a law of Moses][Apart from compassions, upon [the testimony of] two' or three witnesses] dieth:*
33 Of [how much] sooner [punishment], suppose ye, shall he be accounted worthy,
Who hath trampled underfoot [the Son of God],
And [the blood of the covenant] hath esteemed [a profane thing] || by which he had been made holy,||
And unto the Spirit of favour || hath offered wanton insult ?
30 For we know him that hath said—
[To me] belongeth avenging, ||I will recompense ;
and again—
The Lord will judge his people.*
31 || A fearful thing [it is] to fall into the hands [of a Living God].
32 But he calling to mind the former' days,
In which [once ye were illuminated],
[A great combat of sufferings] ye endured;—
||Partly||, indeed, because [both with reproaches and tribulations] ye were being made a spectacle,
But ||partly] because [into fellowship with them who were so' involved] ye were brought;—
34 For [even with them who were in bonds] ye sympathised,
And [unto the seizure of your goods] with joy' ye bade welcome,—
Knowing that ye have yourselves, for a better' possession and [an abiding],
30 Do not, then, cast away your freedom of speech,—
The which hath a great' recompense'.
30 For [of endurance] ye have need,
In order that <the will of God having done> Ye may bear away [the promise].
30 For <yet a little while, how short! how short! > [The Coming One] will be here, and will not tarry;
30 But [my' righteous one] by faith [shall live],
And [if he draw back] [my soul delighteth not in him],*
30 | We] however, are not of a drawing back unto destruction,
But of faith unto an acquisition of life. 11
11 But faith is' of things hoped for; ||a confidence],
| Of facts] a conviction [when they are not seen];

3 If by faith we understand the ages* to have been fitted together by declaration of God, —
To the end that not out of things appearing should that which is seen have come into existence.

4 If by faith| a fuller's sacrifice| did Abel || offer unto God | than Cain, —

5 If by faith| Enoch | was translated, so as not to see death,
And was not found, because that || God | had translated him ;
For | before the translation | he had received witness that he had become well-pleasing unto God; —

But | apart from faith | it is impossible to be well-pleasing;
For he that approacheth unto God—
| Must needs have faith | that he is,
And that | to whom seek him out | || a rewarder | he becometh.| 6

7 If by faith|| Noah | having received intimation concerning | the things not yet seen |>

And | of the righteousness by way of faith | became || heir|.

8 If by faith|| being called | Abraham | obeyed—
To come forth into a place he was destined to receive for an inheritance;
And he came forth, || not well knowing whither he was coming.||

9 If by faith|| he sojourned in the land of promise | as a foreign land |,
In tents | dwelling,
Along with Isaac and Jacob, the joint-heirs of the same promise |;

10 For he was awaiting the city having foundations,
Whose architect and builder is || God|.

11 If by faith|| even Sarah herself | received | power for founding a seed |
| Even beyond the season of life's prime, —
Seeing that | faithful | she reckoned | him that had promised |;

Wherefore | even from one | were born,
And | as to these things | one who had become dead,—

Like the stars of the heaven, for multitude,
And as the sand that is by the lip of the sea, that cannot be numbered.

12 If in faith* all these died—
Not bearing away the promises,
But | from afar | beholding' and saluting' them,
And confessing that | strangers and sojourners | were they upon the land.||

For | the things | which they said are saying | Make it clear that | of a paternal home they are in quest; —
And | if indeed of that | they had been mindful, from which they had come out |>
They might, in that case, have had an opportunity | to return |;

But | now | after a better one | are they reaching,
That is, a heavenly;
Wherefore || God | is not ashamed of them, to be invoked as | their God|, —
For he hath prepared for them | a city |.

17 If by faith|| Abraham | when tested | offered up Isaac, d
And || the only-begotten | would | he | have offered up | who the promises had accepted; —

Even him of whom it had been said—
|| In Isaac | shall there be called to thee || a seed ;

Accounting that | even from among the dead | || God | was able | to raise | him |, —
Whence | even in similitude | he bare him away.

20 If by faith|| even concerning things to come | did Isaac | bless | Jacob and Esau |.

21 If by faith|| Jacob, when about to die, | blessed | each of the sons of Joseph; —
And bowed in worship on the top of his staff, .

22 If by faith|| Joseph, when drawing to his end —
Concerning the exodus of the sons of Israel called to remembrance,
And concerning his bones | gave commandment |

23 If by faith|| Moses, when born—
Was kid three months by his parents,
Because they saw that goodly was | the child, |
And were not affrighted | at the decree of the king |

24 If by faith|| Moses, when grown up—
Refused to be called the son of a daughter of a Pharaoh,
Rather choosing—
To be jointly suffering ill-treatment with the people of God,
Than | for a season | to be having || sin's enjoyment |

Accounting—

Therefore indeed,

<Seeing that we also have encircling us so great a cloud of witnesses—

|With endurance let us be running the race that is lying before us—

Who in consideration of the joy lying before him—

Lest ye be wearied, [in your souls] becoming exhausted—

Not yet unto blood have ye resisted, [against] sin, [waging] a contest—

And ye have quite forgotten the exhortation which, indeed, [with you as with sons] doth reason:—

My son! be not slothful in the discipline of the Lord,

Neither be fainting, when by him thou art reproved—

For whom the Lord loveth he doth [discipline],

And scourgeth every son whom he doth welcome home—

<For the sake of discipline> persevere!—

[As towards sons] [God] beareth himself towards you—

For who is [a son] whom [a father] doth not discipline—

<If however ye are without discipline, Whereof [all] have received a share—

[Then] are ye [bastards] and [not sons].

Furthermore, indeed, [the fathers of our flesh] we used to have, [as administrators of discipline,]

And we used to pay deference:—

Shall we not [much rather] submit ourselves to [the Father of our spirits] and [live]?—

For they indeed, [for a few days, according to that which seemed good to them] were administering discipline;

But [he] unto that which is profitable, [with a view to our partaking of his holiness]:

But [no discipline] [for the present, indeed] seemeth to be of joy, but of sorrow:—

[Afterwards] however—

[To them who thereby have been well trained—

It yieldeth [peaceful fruit] [of righteousness]:

14 ||Peace|| be pursuing, with all, and the obtaining of holiness,—

Without which no one shall see the Lord:—

Using oversight—

Lest any one be falling behind from the favour of God,—

Lest any root of bitterness [springing up above] [be causing trouble],

And [through it] [the many] be defiled:

Lest there be any fornicator, or profane person [like Esau],—

Who [for the sake of one meal] yielded up his own firstborn rights;

For ye know that <afterwards>—

When he even wished to inherit the blessing>

He was rejected;

For [place of repentance] found he none,

Even though [with tears] he diligently sought it.4

For ye have not approached—

Unto a searching' and smourcing' fire,

And glem, and mist, and tempest,

And a trumpet's peal,—

And a sound of things spoken:—

From which they who heard excused themselves,

Lest there should be added to them a word;

For they could not bear [that which was being enjoined],—

And should a beast be touching the mountain it shall be stoned;

And <so fearful was that which was showing itself>—

[Moses] said—

I am terrified, and do tremble!

But ye have approached—

Unto Zion's mountain,

And unto the city of a Living God, a heavenly Jerusalem,—

And unto myriads of messengers [in high festival],—

And unto an assembly of firstborn ones, enrolled in the heavens,—

And unto God [judge of all],—

And unto the spirits of righteous ones made perfect,—

And unto the mediator [of a new covenant], [Jesus],—

And unto the blood of sprinkling, more excellently speaking than [Abel].

Beware, lest ye excuse yourselves from [him that speaketh];

For <if they] escaped not, who escaped themselves [from him who on earth was warning]>

How much less shall [we] <who from him that warneth from the heavens> [do turn yourselves away]?

Whose voice shook the earth [then],

But [now] hath he promised, saying—

Yet once for all [I] will shake—

Not only the earth,

But also the heavens.6

But [the saying] Yet once for all

Maketh clear the removal of the things which can be shaken,

As of things done with,—

That they may remain [which cannot be shaken].

Wherefore

<Seeing that of a kingdom not to be shaken we are receiving possession>

Let us have gratitude—

Whereby we may be rendering divine service well-pleasingly unto God, [with reverence and awe];

For [even our God] is a consuming fire.6

13 Let [brotherly] love continue.

2 Of the entertaining of strangers [be not forgetful],

For [hereby] unawares have some entertained [messengers].

Bear in mind them who are in bonds,

As having become jointly bound,—

Them who are suffering ill-treatment,

[As being yourselves also] in the body.

Let marriage be [honourable] in all, [and the bed undefiled],

For [fornicators and adulterers] [God] will judge.

| Without fondness for money | be your way of life,—

Being content with the present things,—for

[he] hath said:

| In Nov. 12 | thee | will I leave,

| No indeed | in Nov. 12 | thee | will I forsake:|

So that, taking courage, we may be saying—

The Lord hathest to my cry, —I will not be put in fear:

What shall [man] do unto me?*

Be mindful of them who are guiding you,

Who, indeed, have spoken unto you [the word of God]:

| The outgoing of whose behaviour | reviewing |

Be imitating [their faith].

[[Jesus Christ] yesterday' and to-day is the same],—

| And unto the age];

With teachings, manifold and strange] be not carried aside;

For it is [noble] that [with gratitude] should [the heart] be getting confirmed,—

| Not with matters of food, |

In which [they who are walking] have not been profited.

10 We have an altar—

To eat out of which [they] have no right,

| Who in the tent are doing divine service |

THE EPISTLE OF JAMES.

1 James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ,— <Unto the twelve' tribes that are in the dispersion>
Wishes joy.
2 All' joy' account it, my brethren, whencesoever ye fall in with [manifold] temptations,—
3 Taking note, that [the proving of your' faith] worketh out endurance b;
4 But let [your endurance] have [mature work],
That ye may be mature and complete.
In nothing [coming short].

* Or: "trials."
 b Ro. v. 3; 1 P. i. 7.

5 But <if any of you is coming short of wisdom>
Let him be asking of God,
Who [giveth] unto all' freely and up-braideth not,
And it shall be given him ;
6 But let him be asking in faith, [nothing] doubting.
For [that doubtest] is like a wave of the sea, wind-driven and storm-tossed,—
7 For let not that man think' that he shall receive anything from the Lord—
8 A two-souled man, unstable in all' his ways.
9 But boasting be the lowly brother in his uplifting ;

---

4 For we persuade ourselves that [an honourable conscience] have we,
In all things honourably [desiring to behave ourselves].
10 But [much more abundantly] do I exhort you, the same to do,
That [more speedily] I may be restored [unto you].
11 For [in the case of all those living creatures, whose blood for sins] is carried into the holy place,
Through means of the high-priest>
The bodies of these' are burned up [outside the camp].
12 Wherefore [Jesus also]
<That he might hallow the people through means of his own blood>
[Outside the gate] [suffered]:
13 Now, therefore, let us be going forth unto him
[outside the camp],
[His reproach' bearing].
14 For we have not here [an abiding' city],
But [unto that which is to be] are we seeking our way.
15 [Through him] let us be offering up a sacrifice of praise [continually] unto God;
That is, [a fruit of lips] confessing unto his name.
16 But [of the doing good and of fellowship] be not forgetful;
For [with such sacrifices as these] is [God] well-pleased.
17 Be yielding unto them who are guiding you, and submit yourselves;
For they are watching over your souls [as having an account' to render],
That [with joy] the same' they may be doing,
and not with sighing,—
For [unprofitable unto you] were [this].
18 Be praying for us;

a Lev. xvi. 27. NB: Accepted within, burned up without.

Is. ixxi. 11; Zech. ix. 11; * Or (WH) add: "Amen."
Whereas the rich, in his being brought low,—
Because [as a flower of grass] he will pass away;
For the sun hath sprung up, with its scorching heat,
And hath withered the grass,
And [the flower thereof] hath fallen out.
And [the beauty of the face thereof] hath perished,—
So also the rich, in his going, shall languish.

Happy the man who endureth temptation! b
Because [becoming approved] he shall receive the crown of life—
Which he hath promised unto them that love him.

Let [no one, while tempted] be saying—
[From God] am I tempted,—
For [God] cannot be tempted by things evil,
And [himself] tempteth no one;
But [each one] is tempted, when [by his own] coveting [he is drawn out and enticed],
Then, the coveting [having conceived! giveth birth to sin,
And [the sin] when full-grown e bringeth forth death.]

Be not deceived, my brethren beloved:—
Every good giving, and every perfect gift—is [from above],
Coming down from the Father of lights—
With whom is no alternation,
Nor shadow cast [by turning]:
Because he was so minded, he hath brought us forth with a word of truth,
To the end we should be a sort of firstfruit of his creatures.]

Ye know, my brethren beloved,—
But let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger,
For [man's anger] worketh not [God's righteousness].

Wherefore [putting away all filthiness and overflow of baseness]—
In meekness we welcome ye the word fitted for inward growth, which is able to save your souls:

Become ye doers of the word, and not hearers only—h
Reasoning yourselves astray;
Because [if any is, a word-hearer], and not a doer—
The same; is like unto a man observing his natural face—i in a mirror,—
For he observed himself, and is gone away, and [straightway] it hath escaped him—[What manner of man] he was!
But [he that hath obtained a nearer view into the perfect law of liberty, and hath taken up his abode by it, Becoming—not a forgetful hearer] but a work doer:
The same [happy in his doing] shall be.

If any thinketh he is [observeant of religion],
Not curbing his own tongue; b
But deceiving his own heart; b
This one's religious observance is [vain]:
Religious observance, pure and undefiled with our God and Father is [this]—
To be visiting orphans and widows in their affliction,
UntSpotted to keep [himself] from the world.

My brethren, do not [with respect for persons] be holding the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ [the Lord] of glory.d
For [if there enter into your synagogue a man wearing gold rings in gay clothing, And there enter a destitute man also, in soiled' clothing,—
And ye eye him that hath on the gay clothing, and say,
Thou shalt sit here, pleasantly,—
And [unto the destitute man] say—
Thou shalt stand, or sit there under* my footstool>—
Would ye not have been led to make distinctions among yourselves, and have become judges with wicked reasonings?

Hearken! my brethren beloved:—
Hath not [God] chosen the destitute in the world
[To be] rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?

Whereas [ye] have dishonoured the destitute man!
Do not [the rich] oppress you?
And [themselves] drag you into courts of justice?

Do not [they] defame the noble name which hath been invoked upon you?
If ye are [indeed] fulfilling [a royal law], according to the scripture—
Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself,]
Nobly are ye doing;—
But [if ye are shewing respect of persons]—
Sin are ye working. Being convicted by the law as transgressors!

For [a man who shall keep] the whole law
But shall stumble in one thing>
Hath become [for all things] liable,—
For [the that hath said—Do not commit adultery],
Hath also said—Do not commit murder,—
Now [if thou dost not commit adultery, But dost commit murder> Thou hast become a transgressor of law.

[So] be speaking, and [so] doing,
As they who [through means of a law of freedom] are about to be judged;

For [the judgment] [will be] without mercy, unto him that hath shewed no mercy: [Mercy] boseth over judgment.

What profit, my brethren,—

If one should be saying he hath [faith], but hath not [works],

Can his faith save him?

If [a brother or sister] should be [naked], and coming short of the daily food,

And one from among you should say unto them—

Withdraw in peace.

Be getting warmed and fed,

But should not give them the things needful for the body? What the profit?

[So] also [faith] [if it have not works] is [dead] [by itself].

But one will say—

[Thou] hast [faith], and I [have] works.

Shew me thy faith apart from thy works.

And [I] unto thee will shew by my works [my faith].

Thou believest that God is [one] [b]: Thou dost [well] [—] Even the demons believe, and shudder!

But art thou willing to learn, O empty man!

That [faith] apart from works is [idle]!

Abraham our father—

Was it not [by works] he was declared righteous—

When he offered Isaac his son upon the altar [a].

Thou seest that [his faith] had been working together with his works, And by his works did his faith become full-grown, [c] And the scripture was fulfilled which saith—

And Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness.

And [God’s friend] he was called:

We see that—

[By works] a man is declared righteous, And not by faith alone.

And [in like manner also] Rahab the harlot [d]:

Was it not [by works] she was declared righteous,

When she gave welcome unto the messengers,

And [by another way] urged them forth.

[Just as] the body, apart from spirit, is [dead].

[So, our faith also] apart from works is [dead].

Not [many] teachers become ye, my brethren, Knowing that [a severer sentence] shall ye receive;

For [soft] are we stumbling, [one and all]:

[If anyone] in word doth not stumble>

[The same] is a mature man, Able to curb even the whole body.

Now [if] the horse’s bit [into their mouths] we thrust, to the end they may be yielding to us>

[Their whole] body also do we turn about.

Lo! [the ships also] [large] as they are, and [by rough winds] driven along

Are turned about by a very small helm.

With whithersoever [the impulse of the sternman] inclineth.

[So, also, the tongue] is [a little member] and yet [of great things] maketh boast.

Lo! [how small] a fire maketh burn a forest!

And [the tongue] is a fire—

[As] the world of unrighteousness] the tongue becometh fixed among our members,

That which defileth the whole body And setteth on fire the wheel of our natural life,

And is set on fire [by gehenna]!

For [every] nature—

[Both of wild beasts and of birds, Both of reptiles and of things in the sea] Is to be tamed, and hath been tamed, [by the human] nature;

But [the tongue] none of mankind can [tame],—

A restless mischief! Full of deadly poison!

[Therewith] we are blessing our Lord and Father,

And [therewith] we are cursing the men who [after the likeness of God] [d] have been brought into being!

[Out of the same] mouth come forth blessing and cursing!

[Not meet] my brethren, for [these things], [thus] to be coming to pass!

Doth [the fountain] out of the same opening teem forth the sweet and the bitter?

Is it possible, my brethren, [a fig-tree] to produce [olives], or [a vine] [figs]?

Neither can [salt] water yield [sweat].

Who is wise and well-instructed among you? Let him shew, out of his comely behaviour, his works, in meekness of wisdom.

But [if] bitter jealousy ye have, and rivalry, in your hearts>

Be not boasting and shewing yourselves false against the truth!

This wisdom is not one [from above] coming down,

But is earthly, born of the soul, [demoniacal]!

For [where jealousy and rivalry are—]

[There] are anarchy and every ignoble deed.

But [the wisdom from above] is—

[First] pure, then peaceable, reasonable, easy to be entreated, fraught with mercy and good fruits, without partiality, without hypocrisy.

18 And the harvest of righteousness, with peace, is sown by them that make peace.

4 Whence wars and whence fightings among you? Are they not from hence—due to your pleasures which are taking the field in your members?

2 Ye covet—and have not, Ye commit murder, and are jealous,—and cannot obtain,—

[Ye fight and war]

Ye have not—
Because ye do not really ask,

3 Ye ask and receive not—
Because that basely ye ask, In order that [in your pleasures] ye may spend [it].

4 Adulteresses!
Know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity to God? [Whoever, therefore, is minded to be a friend of the world] is an enemy of God doth constitute himself.

5 Or think ye that [in vain] the scripture speaketh?
Is it for envying that the spirit which hath taken an abode within us doth crave?

6 Howbeit he giveth [greater] favour. Wherefore it saith—

[God] against the haughty; arrayeth himself, Whereas [unto the lonely] he giveth favour.

5 Range yourselves, therefore, under God, But withstand the adversary. And he will flee from you:

9 Draw near unto God, And he will draw near unto you.
Cleanse hands, sinners!
Chasten hearts, double souls!

9 Be miserable and lament and weep,
Let [your laughter] into lamentation be turned,
And [your joy] into [dejection];

10 Be made low in presence of the Lord, And he will lift you up.

11 Be not speaking one against another, brethren!
He that speaketh against a brother, Or judgeth his brother—
Speaketh against law.
And judgeth law;

Now [if upon law] thou art passing judgment—
Thou art not a doer of law, but a judge!

[One] is Lawgiver and Judge—He who hath power to save and to destroy; But who art thou? that judgest thy neighbour?

13 Come now! ye that say—
[To-day or To-morrow] we will journey unto this city here, And will spend there a year, And will trade and get gain,—

14 Men who are not versed in the morrow—Of what sort your life [will be]?
For ye are as a vapour—
[For a little] appearing,
[Then] just disappearing!

15 Instead of your saying—
[If the Lord] be pleased— We shall both live, and do this or that;

16 Whereas [now] are ye boasting in your pretensions—
[All] boasting like this is wicked,

17 <To him, therefore, who knoweth how to be doing [a right thing],> And is not doing it>
It is [sin] unto him.

5 Come now! ye wealthy!
Weep ye, bowing, for your hardships which are coming upon you:

2 [Your wealth] hath rotted, And [your garments] have become moth-eaten,—

3 [Your gold and silver] have rusted away, And [their rust] shall be [witness against you], And shall eat your flesh, as fire!

Ye have laid up treasure in days of extremity:

4 Lo <the wages of the workers who have cut down your fields— That which hath been kept back by you> is crying out;
And [the outcries of them who reaped] [Into the ears of the Lord of hosts] have entered;

5 Ye have luxuriated upon the land, and run riot,
Ye have pampered your hearts in a day of slaughter;

6 Ye sentenced—ye murdered the Righteous one!
Is he not arraying himself against you?

7 Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the Presence of the Lord:

[Lo! the husbandman] awaiteth the precious fruit of the earth, Having patience for it, until it receive the early and the latter rain;

8 Be ye also patient, Stablish your hearts, Because [the Presence of the Lord] hath drawn near.

9 Be not sighing, brethren, one against another, lest ye be judged,—
Lo! [the Judge] before the doors is standing.

10 [An example] take ye, brethren, of distress and patience,—
The prophets who have spoken in the name of the Lord.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER.

1 Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ,
<Unto the chosen pilgrims of the dispersion, throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia,
Asia and Bithynia,—
2 Chosen according to the fore-knowledge of God the Father,
In sanctification of Spirit, unto obedience and the sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ>
Favour unto you, and peace, be multiplied!
3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,
Who <according to his great mercy>
Hath regenerated* us unto a living hope,
Through the resurrection of Jesus Christ
from among the dead,
Unto an inheritance, incorruptible and undefiled and unfading,
Reserved in the heavens for you * who [in God's power] are being guarded through faith unto salvation—
Ready to be revealed in the last ripe

time*:

6 Wherein ye exult,
Though, for a little, just now, if needful,
put to grief in manifold' temptations.*
7 In order that the proving of your faith—b Much more precious than of gold that perisheth even though | by means of fire | it is proved—
May be found unto praise and glory and honour in the revealing of Jesus Christ,—
8 Whom <not having seen > ye love,
On whom <though at present not looking,
but believing> ye exult with joy unspeakable and filled with glory.
Being about to bear away the end of your faith—a salvation of souls:
10 Concerning which salvation*
Prophets—who concerning the favour for you' did prophesy — sought out and searched out,
11 Searching into what particular or what manner of season the Spirit of Christ which was in them was pointing to, when witnessing beforehand as to—
The sufferings [for Christ],
And the glories [after these],—

Unto whom it was revealed—that, [Not unto themselves, But unto us] they were ministering them, Which things have [now] been announced unto you through them who have told you the good tidings with Holy Spirit sent forth from heaven:
Into which things messengers are coveting to obtain a nearer view.

Wherefore [girding up the loins of your mind],
[Keeping sober]
Perseveringly [direct your hope unto the favour being borne along to you] in the revealing of Jesus Christ:

As obedient persons [not configuring yourselves unto your former covetings in your ignorance];

But [according as he that called you is holy] do [ye yourselves] also become [holy in all manner of behaviour],—

Inasmuch as it is written—
[Holy] shall ye be,
Because [I am holy].

And [if as Father ye are invoking him] who [without respect of persons] judgeth according to each man's work;
[With reverence, for the time of your sojourning] behave ye;

Knowing that [Not with corruptible things, with silver or gold] have ye been redeemed from your unmeaning behaviour paternally handed down, But with precious blood [as of a lamb, unblemished and unspotted] of an Anointed One,—

Foreknown, indeed, before the foundation of the world,
But made manifest at a last stage of the times, for the sake of you [who through him] are faithful towards God,—Who raised him from among the dead, and glory to him gave, So that your hope and faith are directed towards God:

Having purified [your souls] by the obedience of the truth, unto unfeigned brotherly affection;
[From the heart] love [one another] earnestly;

Having been regenerated—
Not out of corruptible seed,
But incorruptible—

Through means of the word of a Living and Abiding God;

Inasmuch as—
[All flesh] is as grass,
And [all the glory thereof] as the flower of grass,

The grass hath withered,
And the flower hath fallen out,

But the declaration of the Lord age-abidingly remaineth;

And [this] is a declaration which in the joyful message hath been announced unto you.

<Putting away, therefore, all vice and all deceit and hypocrisy and envyings and all detractions>;—
[As new-born babes] for the pure milk that is for the mind] eagerly crave,
That [thereby] ye may grow unto salvation:—

If ye have tasted for yourselves that [gracious] is the Lord,—

<Unto whom coming near, as unto a living stone—
[By men] indeed, rejected, But [with God] chosen, held in honour;—

[Yourselves also] as living stones are being built up a spiritual house, for a holy priesthood,
To offer spiritual sacrifices, well-pleasing unto God through Jesus Christ;

Inasmuch as it is contained in scripture—
[Lo! I lay in Zion an outmost corner stone, chosen, held in honour, And he that rebuketh faith thereupon] shall not be put to shame;

[Unto you] then, is the honour—[unto you] who believe;
But [unto such as disbelieve],
[The stone which the builders rejected] The same hath become head of the corner,
And a stone to strike against,
And a rock to stumble over:
Who stumble because [unto the word: they do not yield,— Unto which also they have been appointed;—
But [ye] are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for a peculiar treasure,
That [the excellences] ye may tell forth of him who [out of darkness] hath called you into his marvellous light:—

Who [at one time] were a No people,
But [now] are a people of God,—
Who had not been enjoying mercy,
But [now] have received mercy;

Beloved! I exhort you [as sojourners and pilgrims];—
To abstain from fleshly covetings,
Such as take the field against the soul;
Having your behaviour among the nations; —
In order that <wherein they speak against you as evil-doers> they may <owing to the honourable works they are permitted to behold> glorify God in the day of visitation.
Submit yourselves unto every human creation, for the Lord's sake; —
Whether unto a king, as one that protecteth; or unto governors, as through him sent —
For vengeance on evil-doers, but praise to such as do good; —
Because <so> is the will of God, —by doing good to be putting to silence —the ignorance of needless men: —
As free; yet not as a cloak of vice holding your freedom, but as God's servants:
Unto all men give honour, unto the brotherhood, shew love, unto God give reverence, the king hold in honour.
Ye domestic submitting yourselves, in all reverence unto your masters, not only unto the good and considerate, but also unto the perverse; —
For this is thankfully. —If <for the sake of conscience towards God> one beareth griefs suffering wrongfully, —
For what sort of honour is it —<If committing sin> and being buffeted ye endure it? —
But <if doing good> and suffering, ye endure it: —
This is thankfully with God, but —
Both have ye been called; because Christ also suffered in your behalf, unto you leaving behind a pattern, that ye might follow in his steps: —
Who did not yield his spirit to wrath, neither was deceit found in his mouth. —
Who being reviled was not reviling again, suffering was not threatening, but was making surrender unto him that judgeth righteously: —
Who our sins himself bare up, his body unto the tree, —
In order that we from our sins getting away in righteousness might live, —
By whose stripes ye have been healed; —
Ye are as sheep going astray, but have now turned back unto the shepherd and overseer of your souls.

3 Like manner ye wives submitting yourselves unto your own husbands; —
In order that <if any are not yielding unto the word> through their wives' behaviour they may without the word be won, —
Having been permitted to behold your reverently chaste behaviour, —
Whose adorning let it be —not the outward of plaiting the hair and wearing golden ornaments, or putting on of apparel: —
But the hidden character of the heart, —
In the incorruptible ornament of the quiet and meekest spirit, which is in presence of God of great price. —
For <so> at one time the holy women also, who directed their hope towards God used to adorn themselves being in submission unto their own husbands: —
As Sarah was obedient unto Abraham, calling him lord; —
Whose children ye have become —so long as ye are doing good, and not bringing yourselves into fear of any single cause of alarm. —
Ye husbands <in like manner dwelling with them according to knowledge, —as unto a weaker vessel unto the female vessel assigning honour, as joint-inheritors also of life's favour,— To the end that un hindered may be your prayers. —
And finally all being of one mind, having fellow-feeling, attached to the brethren, of tender affection, of lowly mind: —
Not returning evil for evil nor reviling for reviling, but <on the contrary bestowing a blessing, —because have ye been called, in order that ye may inherit. —For he that desireth to live a life, and to see good days, let him cause his tongue to cease from mischief, and lips that speak not deceit; —Let him turn away from mischief and do good, let him seek peace, and pursue it; —Because the eyes of the Lord are towards the righteous, and his ears unto their supplication, whereas the face of the Lord is against them that are doing mischiefous things. —
Who, then, is he that shall harm you, if for that which is good ye become zealous? —Nevertheless even if ye should suffer for righteousness' sake happy are ye! —Their fear therefore, do not fear, neither be troubled: —
But the Lord Christ shall hallow ye in your hearts, ready always for a defence, unto every one.
that is asking you a reason * concerning
|the hope within you;—
Nevertheless, with meekness and reverence:
18 Having a good conscience,
In order that <Wherein they speak against you> they may be put to shame who cast wanton insult on <your good behaviour in Christ>.
17 For it is better, as well-doers] <if it should please the pleasure of God> to be suffering,
then [as evil-doers]:
18 Because <Christ also> [once for all, concerning sins] died,— Just in behalf of unjust,—
In order that he might introduce us unto
God 4 ;
Being put to death, indeed, in flesh,
But made alive in spirit,—
19 In which <even unto the spirits in prison>
he went and proclaimed,—
20 [Spirits] unyielding at one time,
When the long-suffering of God was holding forth a welcome in the days of Nash.
There being in preparation an ark—[Going] into which  were brought safely through by means of water,—
Which [water] in manner corresponding] doth [now] save <you also> even immersion.—Not a putting away of the filth of the flesh, But the request unto God <for a good conscience>, Through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, 22 Who is on the right hand of God, 5 Having gone into heaven, [Messengers and authorities and powers] having been made subject unto him.
4 <Christ> then, having suffered in flesh;—
Do <ye also> with the same purpose, arm yourselves,—
Because <the> that hath suffered in flesh, hath done with sins,—
2 To the end that <no longer, in men's covetings, but in God's will; ye may live [the still remaining] time.
3 For sufficient is the by'gone time—to have wrought out [the will of the nations],
Having gone on in wanton ways, covet-ings, wine-drinkings, revellings, drinking-bouts, and impious idolatries:—
4 Wherein they are taken by surprise that ye run not with them into the same' overflow of riotous excess,—uttering defamation;]
5 Who shall render an account unto him who is holding in readiness to judge living and dead;
6 For <unto this end> <even unto the dead>
was the glad message delivered,—
In order that they might be judged, indeed, according to men in flesh, But might live according to God in spirit.
7 But <the end of all things> hath drawn near:—
Be of sound mind, therefore, and be sober for prayers;
8 Before all things] keeping <fervent> your love <among yourselves>,
Because <love coveteth> a multitude of sins*;
9 Shewing hospitality one to another without murmuring,—
10 <Each one> <according as he hath received a gift of favour> unto one another, ministering the same,
As careful stewards of the manifold favour of God;—
11 <If any one speaketh> as oracles of God,
<If any one ministereth> as of strength which <God> supplieth,—
That <in all things> God may be glorified
through Jesus Christ,
Unto whom are the glory and the dominion, unto the ages of ages. Amen !
12 Beloved: be not held in surprise by the burning among' you, which <for putting you to the proof> is befalling you,
As though a surprising thing were happening unto you ;
13 But <in so far as ye are taking fellowship in the Christ's sufferings> rejoice;
In order that <in the revealing of his glory
also> ye may rejoice with exultation :—
14 <If ye are being reproached in the name of Christ> happy [are ye] !
Because <the Spirit of the glory> and the [Spirit of God> unto you is bringing rest.
15 For let <none of you> be suffering as a murderer, or a thief, or an evil-doer, or as one prying into other men's affairs;—
But <if as a Christian> let him not be ashamed, but be glorifying God in this name.
17 For it is the ripe time for the judgment to begin with * the house of God ;
But <if first with us> what shall be the end of them who yield not unto the glad-message of God?—
18 And <if the righteous man> is with difficulty saved> Where then shall <the ungodly and sinful man> appear?—
19 So then, let them who are even suffering, according to the will of God Unto a faithful Creator be committing their souls, [in well-doing].
5 [Elders therefore, among you] I exhort—
[1] who am their co-slayer and a witness of the sufferings of the Christ;

P E R T E R.

1 Simon Peter, servant and apostle of Jesus Christ,

<Unto them who have obtained [equally precious] faith [with us] in the righteousness of our God, and Saviour Jesus Christ>

2 [Favour unto you, and peace] be multiplied,
In the personal knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord;

3 As [all things] suited for life and godliness his divine power [unto us] hath given,
Through the personal knowledge of him that hath called us through glory and excellence,

4 Through which [his precious and very great promises] have [unto us] been given,
In order that [through these] ye might become sharers in a divine nature—

5 Or [WH]: " Symeon."
6 Or [WH]: "by his own glory, &c."
Wherefore, brethren, give diligence to be making your calling and election sure; for these things do in no wise make ye stumble at any time.

As thus shall richly be further supplied unto you — the entrance into the age-abiding kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Wherefore, I shall be certain to be always putting you in remembrance concerning these things,—

Although, indeed, ye know them, and have become confirmed in the present truth;

Right? nevertheless, I account it —

As long as I am in this tent to be stirring you up by putting you in remembrance,

Knowing that [speedy] is the putting off of my tent —

Even as our Lord Jesus Christ also made clear to me:

Yes, I will give diligence also that [at every time] ye may be able [after my own departure] to be keeping up the remembrance of these very things.

For not as having followed [cleverly devised stories] made we known unto you the power and presence of our Lord Jesus Christ,

But as having been made [spectators] of his majesty.

For when he received from God the Father honour and glory,

[A voice] being borne to him such as this, —

by the magnificence [glory] —

[My Son, the beloved] is [this], in whom I delight;

Even this voice: [we] heard, when [out of heaven] it was borne, We being [with him] in the holy mount.

And we have [more firm] the prophetic word;

Whereunto ye are doing well to take heed, —

As unto a lamp shining in a dusky place, —

Until [day] shall dawn, and [a day-star] shall arise in your hearts: —

Of this] first taking note —

That [no] prophecy of scripture be cometh [self-fulfilling];

For not [by will of man] was prophecy brought in [at any time],

But [as] by Holy Spirit, they were borne along, spake, men, from God.

But there arose false-prophets also among the people,

As among you also, there shall be false-teachers, —

Men who will stealthily bring in destructive parties,

Even the Master that bought’ them denying, —

Bringing upon themselves speedy destruction;

And [many] will follow out their wanton ways, —

By reason of whom [the way of truth] will be defamed, —

And [in greed, with forged words] will they [of you] make merchandise: —

For whom [the sentence from of old] is not idle,

And [their destruction] doth not slumber.

For — if [God] spared not [messengers,] when they sinned,

But [to pits of gloom] consigning them, in the lowest hells, delivered them up to be kept [unto judgment], —

And [an ancient world] spared not,

But [with seven others] preserved [Noah] a proclaimer [of righteousness],

[A flood, upon a world of ungodly persons] letting loose, —

And [the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah] reducing to ashes, he condemned,

[An example of such as should be ungodly having set forth, —

And [righteous Lot, when getting worn out by the behaviour of them who were impious in wantonness] he rescued —

For [in seeing and hearing, since he dwelt right among them, [as a righteous man] he used to torment his soul, day by day, with their lawless deeds] —

[Then] the Lord knoweth how to rescue [the godly out of trial];

But to keep [the unrighteous unto a day of judgment to be punished]; —

[Most of all] however, them who go their way [after the flesh, with a coveting of defilement] and who despise [lordship], —

Daring! wilful! —

[Before dignitaries] they tremble not,

Defaming, [10] where [messengers]! [though greater in might and power] are not bringing against them [before the Lord] a defamatory accusation, —

[These] however, —

<As unreasoning creatures> that have been bred as being [by nature] for capture and destruction —

[In the things they are ignorant of] uttering defamation,

[In their spoiling] shall also be made a spoil, —

Doing wrong themselves, for a reward of wrong,

Accounting [a delight] their day-time delicacy,

Spots and blemishes, indulging in delicacies.
with their stratagems, as they carouse together with you,

14 Having eyes full of an adulteress, and that cannot rest from sin, Enticing unstable souls, Having a heart trained in greed,— Children of a curse,—

15 Forsaking a straight path, they have gone astray, Following out the way of Balaam [son] of Beor, Who loved a reward of wrong;

16 But had a reproof of his own transgression, <A dumb beast of burden in man's voice finding utterance> forsothe the prophet's madness.

17 [These] are fountains without water, And mists by a tempest driven along,—b For whom the gloom of darkness hath been reserved;

18 For [great swelling words of vanity] uttering, they entice with carnal covetings—in wanton ways—them who are well-nigh escaping from the men who in error have their behaviour;

19 Promising freedom to them, [they themselves] being all the while slaves of corruption,—d For <by whom one hath been defeated> [by the same] hath he become enslaved,—

20 For <if> having escaped from the defilements of the world by a personal knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ but [by the same] having again become entangled, they are defeated>,
The [last] state hath become, for them, worse than [the first];

21 For [better] had it been for them— Not to have obtained a personal knowledge of the way of righteousness, Than [having obtained such knowledge] to turn back out of the holy commandment delivered unto them.

22 There hath befallen them the thing [spoken of] in the true proverb— [A dog] turning back unto his own vomit. And— [A sow, as soon as washed] unto wallowing in mire.

3 [This already beloved, is the second letter I am writing unto you; And in these letters, I am stirring up—by way of calling to remembrance—your uncorrupted mind.

To remember the fore-spoken declarations made by the holy prophets, and the commandment of the Lord and Saviour by your apostles.]

3 [Of this first taking note— That there will come in the last of the days, with scoffing [scorners,] a After their own covetings going on, and saying— Where is the promise of his presence? For <since the fathers fell asleep> all things thus remain, from the beginning of creation.

5 For this they wilfully forget— That there were heavens from of old, and an earth] on account of water and by means of water] compacted by God's word;—

6 By which means the world that then was with water being flooded perished;

7 While [the heavens and the earth that now are] by the same word have been stored with fire, Being kept unto the day of judgment and destruction of the ungodly men.b

8 But this one thing forget not, beloved,— That one day with the Lord is as a thousand years, And a thousand years as one day.]

9 The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, As some count slackness; But is long suffering with regard to you, Not being minded that any should perish, But that <all> unto repentance should come.

10 Howbeit the day of the Lord will be there as a thief,—d In which [the heavens, with a rushing noise will pass away, While [elements] becoming intensely hot] will be dissolved,

And [earth, and the works therein] will be discovered.

11 [Seeing that all these things are thus to be dissolved> [What manner of persons! Ought ye all the while to be, in holy ways of behaviour and acts of godliness],—

12 Expecting and hastening the presence of the day of God, By reason of which, [heavens] being on fire will be dissolved, And [elements] becoming intensely hot are to be melted:

13 But [new heavens, and a new earth] according to his promise are we expecting, Wherein righteousness is to dwell.

14 Wherefore, beloved, [these things] expecting— Give diligence [unspotted and unblemished] by him to be found in peace;

15 And account [our Lord's long suffering [to be] salvation]— Even as [our beloved] brother Paul also—<According to the wisdom given unto him>

Hath written unto you;
THE FIRST EPISTLE OF

JOHN.

1 <That which was from the beginning,*
Which we have heard,
Which we have seen with our eyes,
Which we for ourselves gazed upon,
Our hands did handle,
Concerning the Word of Life,—
2 And the Life was made manifest, b and we have seen, and are bearing witness, and announcing unto you,
The Age-abiding Life,Which indeed, was with the Father, and was made manifest unto us>
3 <That which we have seen and heard are we announcing [even unto you], in order that ye too may have fellowship with us, and our own fellowship also] may be with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.
And these things are we writing, in order that your joy may be made full, f
And this is the message which we have heard from him, and are reporting unto you,—
That [God] is [light],
And in him is [no darkness at all].
6 <If we say—
We have fellowship with him! and [in darkness] are walking> we are dealing falsely, and not doing the truth; 7 whereas [if in the light] we are walking, as [he is] in the light; we have fellowship one with another, and [the blood of Jesus his Son] is cleansing us from all sin. 8 & If we say—
[Sin] have we none!>
we are deceiving ourselves, and [the truth] is not in us. 9 <If we are confessing our sins> [faithful] is he and [righteous], that he should forgive us our sins, and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 10 <If we say—
We have not sinned!>

2 Peter III. 16—18. 1 John I. 1—10; II. 1—11.

Be on your guard, lest with the error of the impious' being led away ye fall from your own steadfastness;
18 But be growing in the favour and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ:—
Unto whom be the glory, both now and unto a day that abideth. a knoweth not whither he is drifting, because the darkness hath blinded his eyes.

13 I write unto you, dear children, because your sins have been forgiven you, for the sake of his name:
13 I write unto you, fathers, because ye understand him who was from the beginning:
I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one.

14 I have written unto you, little children, because ye understand the Father:
14 I have written unto you, fathers, because ye understand him who was from the beginning:
I have written you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God which ye abideth,
And ye have overcome the wicked one.

15 Be not loving the world, nor yet the things that are in the world:
15 Be not loving the world:
If anyone be loving the world,
The love of the Father is not in him.

16 Because seall that is in the world—
The coveting of the flesh,
The coveting of the eyes,
And the vain grandeur of life—

Is not of the Father, but is of the world;
17 And the world passeth away, and the coveting thereof,
But the he that doeth the will of God endureth unto times age-abiding.

18 Little children! it is the last hour;
18 Little children! it is the last hour;
And just as ye have heard that antichrist is coming:
Even now antichrists have become many,
Whence we perceive that it is the last hour:
From among us they went out.
But they were not of us:
For if of us, they had been.
They would in that case have abode with us; But it came to pass in order that they might be made manifest,
Because all are not of us.

20 And ye have an anointing from the Holy One,—
20 And ye have an anointing from the Holy One,— Ye all know:

21 I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth,
21 I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth,
But because ye know it, and because no falsehood is of the truth,
22 Who is the False One;
22 Who is the False One;
Save he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ?
(The same) is the Antichrist;
He that denieth the Father and the Son.

23 Whosoever denieth the Son:
Neither hath he the Father:
23 Whosoever denieth the Son:
Neither hath he the Father:
Hath the Father also.

24 As for you:
What ye have heard from the beginning
In you, let it abide.

25 If in you shall abide that which from the beginning ye have heard,
Ye also in the Son and in the Father shall abide.

26 And this is the promise, which he hath promised unto us,—
The age-abiding life.

27 And these things have I written unto you, concerning them who would lead you astray.

28 And as for you:
The anointing which ye have received from him abideth in you, and ye have no need that anyone be teaching you; But as his anointing is teaching you, and is true, and is no falsehood:
Even just as it hath taught you.
Abide ye in him.
29 And now, dear children, abide ye in him.
In order that if he be made manifest he may have boldness, and not be ashamed away from him by his presence.
30 If ye know that he is righteous
Ye perceive that—
Whosoever doeth righteousness is of him; hath been born.

3 Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us,—
That children of God we should be called,—
And such we are:
Therefore the world understandeth us not, because it understandeth not him.
3 Beloved! now are we children of God; And not yet hath it been made manifest what we shall be,
We know that if it should be made manifest
Like unto him shall we be, because we shall see him just as he is.
3 And whosoever hath this hope on him:
Is purifying himself, just as—
Whosoever is committing sin:
Lawlessness also is committing,
And sin is lawlessness;
And ye know, that He was made manifest—
In order that our sins he should take away,
And sin in him is there none.

6 Whosoever is sinning
Hath not seen him, and doth not understand him.

7 Dear children! let no one lead you astray!
He that is doing righteousness is righteous.
Just as He is righteous:
1 JOHN III. 8—24; IV. 1—9.

8. <He that is committing sin> is |of the adversary|,
Because |from the beginning| the adversary is sinning.
To this end was the Son of God made manifest,
In order that he might undo^ the works of the adversary.

9. <Whosoever hath been born of God> is not committing |sin|,
Because |a seed of him| |within him| abideth;
And he cannot be committing |sin|,
Because |of God| hath he been born.

10. Herein^ are |manifest| the children of God,
And the children of the adversary:
<Whosoever is not doing righteousness> is not of God,
Nor yet he that is not loving his brother.

11. Because |this| is the message which ye have heard from the beginning—
That we should be loving one another,—
Not just as |Cain| was |of the wicked one| and slew his brother!
And |for what cause| slew he him?
Because |his works| were |wicked|,
Whereas |those of his brother| were |righteous|.

12. Be not marveling, brethren, if |the world| is hating you:

14. |We know| that we have passed over out of death into life,
Because we love the brethren:
|He that loveth not| abideth in death.

15. |Whosoever is hating his brother| is |a murderer|;
And ye know that |no' murderer| hath life age-during |within him abiding|.

16. Hereby^ have we come to understand love:
In that |He| |for us| his life laid down;
And |we| ought |for the brethren| our lives to lay down.

17. But <whose hath this world's goods,
And beholdeth his brother having |need|,
And shutteth up his tender affections from him>
||How| is |the love of God| abiding in him?'

18. Dear children!
Let us not be loving in word, nor yet with the tongue,
But in deed^ and truth.

19. Hereby^ shall we get to know, that |of the truth| we are,
And |before him| shall persuade our heart;
Because |of our own heart condemn us|
|Greater| is God, than our heart, and perceiveth all things.

20. Beloved! <if our heart be not condemning us>
|Boldness| have we, towards God^;

22. And |whatevers we are asking| we are receiving from him,
Because |his commandments| are we keeping.
And |the things that are pleasing before him| are we doing.

23. And |this| is his commandment,—
That we should believe|^ in the name of his Son Jesus Christ,
And be loving one another—
Just as he gave a commandment unto us.'

24. And |the he| that keepeth his commandments:
|In him| abideth,
|And| he| in him.
And |hereby| perceive we—
That he abideth in us,
By reason of the Spirit which |unto us| he hath given.

2 Beloved! |not in every spirit| believe ye,
But test the spirits, whether they are |of God|;
Because |many' false prophets| have gone out into the world.

3. ||Hereby^ do ye perceive the Spirit of God:—
<Every' spirit that confesseth Jesus Christ as having come| in flesh|>
Is |of God|;

And <every' spirit that doth not confess Jesus|^of God| is not.
And |this| is the |[spirit] of the Antichrist,
Touching which ye have heard that it cometh:
|Even now| is it |in the world|
|already|.

4. ||Ye| are |of God|, dear children, and have overcome them;
Because |greater| is he that is in you, than he that is in the world.

5. ||They| are |of the world|;
|For this cause| they speak,
And the world |unto them| doth hearken.

6. ||Wn| are |of God|:
|He| that is getting to understand God
|hearkeneth unto us,—
|Whoso is not of God| hearkeneth not unto us:
|From this| perceive we—
The spirit of truth,
And the spirit of error.

7. Beloved! let us be loving one another;
Because |love| is |of God|,
And |whosoever loveth| |Of God| hath been born,
And is getting to understand God:

8. ||He| that doth not love
|Doth not understand God,
Because |God| is |love|.

9. ||Herein^ hath the love of God in ^us been made manifest,
That |his only-begotten Son| God sent into the world,
In order that we might live through him.

1 John iv. 10–21; v. 1–16.

10 [Herein] is love:
   Not that [we] have loved God,
   But that [he] loved us,
   And sent forth his Son, as a propitiation concerning our sins.*

11 Beloved! if in this way [God] loved us—
   [We] also ought to love one another.

12 [Upon God] hath no one, at any time, gazed:
   <If we love one another>
   [God] in us, abideth,
   And [his love] hath been perfected within us.

13 [Hereby] we perceive—we—
   That [in him] are we abiding,
   And [he] in us,—
   In that [of] his Spirit he hath given unto us.

14 And [we] for ourselves have gazed, and are bearing witness—
   That [the Father] sent forth the Son, as Saviour of the world.

15 <Whosoever shall confess, that [Jesus Christ] is the Son of God>
   [God] in him, abideth,
   And [he] in God.

16 And [we] have come to understand and to trust the love which [God] hath in us,
   [God] is [love];
   And [he that abideth in love] in God
   abideth,
   And [God] in him, [abideth].

17 [Herein] hath love with us [been made perfect,]
   In order that [boldness] we might have in the day of judging,—
   In that [as] [he] is in us.

18 [Fear] existeth not [in love],
   But [perfect love] casteth fear [outside];
   Because [fear] hath [correction];
   [He that feareth] hath not been made perfect
   [in love].

19 [We] love, because [he] first loved us:

20 [If one should say I love God and should be hating [his brother],] [false] is he;
   For [he that doth not love his brother] whom he hath seen [God, whom he hath not seen] he cannot love.*

21 And [this] commandment we have from him,—
   That [he who loveth God] love [his brother also].

5 [Whosoever believeth that [Jesus] is the Christ>
   [Of God] hath been born;
   And [whosoever loveth him that begat,]
   Loveth him that hath been begotten of him.

2 [Hereby we perceive, that we love the children of God>
   As soon as [God] we love,
   And [this commandments] we are doing.

3 For [this] is the love of God—

That [his commandments] we be keeping,*
And [his commandments] are not [burdensome];
Because [whosoever hath been born of God]
overcometh the world;
And [this] is the victory that hath overcome the world—
Our faith.

[And] who is he that overcometh the world,
Save he that believeth
That [Jesus] is the Son of God?

This] is he that came through means of water
and blood;
[Jesus Christ];
Not [by the water] only,
But [by the water] and [by the blood];—
And [the Spirit] it is, that is bearing witness,
Because [the Spirit] is the truth.

Because [three] are they who are bearing witness—
The Spirit, and the Water, and the Blood;
And [the three] are [witnesses] unto one thing.

If [the witness of men] we receive,
The witness of God] is [greater].

Because [this] is the witness of God—
In that he hath borne witness concerning his Son,—

<He that believeth on the Son of God>
Hath the witness [within himself];
<He that doth not believe God>*
False] hath made him,—
Because he hath not believed on the witness which [God] hath witnessed [concerning his Son]—

And [this] is the witness:—
That [life age-abiding] hath God given unto us,
And [this life] is [in his Son];
He that hath the Son hath [the life],—
[He that hath not the Son of God] hath not the life.

[These things] have I written unto you—
In order that ye may know that ye have [Life Age-abiding]—
Unto you who believe on the name of the Son of God.

And [this] is the boldness which we have towards him:
That [if] anything we ask [according to his will]>
He doth hearken unto us.

And [if we know that he doth hearken unto us],
[Whatsoever we ask]>
We know that we have the things asked.
Which we have asked of him,

<If one should see his brother committing a sin,*
Not unto death>
THE SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN.

1 The Elder, unto an elect lady and her children, whom I love in truth; and not I alone, but all those also who understand the truth,—for the sake of the truth that abideth in us, and in us shall be unto times age-abiding.—Favour, mercy, peace shall be with us, from God the Father, and from Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

4 I rejoiced exceedingly, in that I had found among thy children, such as were walking in truth, even as [a commandment] we received from the Father. And now I request thee, lady, not as writing [a new commandment] unto thee, but one which we were holding from the beginning—That we should be loving one another.

6 And [this] is love, that we should be walking according to his commandments: [This] is [the commandment], even as ye heard from the beginning, that [therein] ye should be walking.

7 Because [many'] deceivers have gone out into the world, they who do not confess Jesus Christ coming in flesh: [This] is the deceiver and the antichrist.

8 Be taking heed unto yourselves, lest ye lose what things we earned,—but [a full reward] ye may duly receive. B. [Every'] one that taketh a lead, and abideth not in the teaching of Christ> hath not [God]: <he that abideth in the teaching> [the same] hath both the Father and the Son. 9 If anyone cometh unto you and [this] teaching> doth not bring> be not receiving him home, and [Joy to thee!] do not say; 11 for the that biddeth him rejoice> hath fellowship with his wicked works.

12 Though I had many things unto you write> I was not minded [to say them] with paper and ink; but I hope to come unto you, and [mouth to mouth] to talk,—that your joy may be made full.

13 The children of thy chosen sister salute thee.

1 John V. 17—21.

12 We know that [of God] are we;
And [the whole world] in the wicked one is lying.

20 We know, moreover, that [the Son of God] hath come,
And hath given us insight,
So that we are getting to understand [him] that is Real,
And we are in' him that is Real,
[This] is the Real’ God, and life age-abiding.

21 Dear children!
Guard yourselves from idols.

1 The elder unto Gaius the beloved, whom I love in truth.
2 Beloved! concerning all things I pray thou mayest be prospering, and be in health, even as thy soul is prospering. 3 For I rejoiced exceedingly, at brethren coming and bearing witness unto thy truth,—even as thou [in truth] art walking. 4 I have no greater favour than these things, that I should be hearing that [my own'] children [in the truth] are walking.
5 Beloved! if a faithful thing art thou doing, whatsoever thou shalt accomplish for them that are brethren and withal strangers,—who have borne witness to thy love before the assembly: whom thou wilt do [nobly] to set forward worthily of God. 7 For [in behalf of The Name] have they gone forth, taking nothing from them of the nations. 8 We therefore ought to be sustaining such as these, that we may become [fellowworkers] with the truth.
9 I wrote something unto the assembly; but he who is fond of taking the first place among them—Diotrephes! doth not make us welcome.
10 For this cause I, if I come, I will bring to remembrance his works which he is doing,—with wicked words prating against us; and not content with these he neither himself maketh the brethren welcome, but them who are minded [to do it]: he forbiddeth, and [out of the assembly] doth cast [them].
11 Beloved! be not thou imitating what is bad, but what is good. 12 He that doeth good is of God: he that doeth what is bad hath not seen God.
13 Unto Demetrius hath witness been borne by all and by the truth itself; howbeit [we also] bear witness, and thou knowest that our witness is true.
14 Many things had I to write unto thee,—but I am unwilling [with ink and pen] to be writing; 14 I hope, however, straightway to see thee, and mouth to mouth will we talk. Peace be unto thee. The friends salute thee. Salute the friends by name.

brance, though ye know all things once for all. That the Lord, when a people out of Egypt he had saved, in the next place, them that believed not, destroyed; and Messengers also; (hence even them who had not kept their own principalities, but had forsaken their proper dwelling) unto the judgment of the great day in perpetual bonds under thick gloom [hath he reserved.]

7 As Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities around them, having in like manner to these, given themselves over to fornication, and gone away after other kind of flesh, lie exposed as an example, a penalty of age-abiding fire undergoing.

8 In like manner, nevertheless, even these [in their dreamings] flesh indeed defile, while lordship they set aside, and dignities they defame.

9 Whereas, [Michael, the chief-messenger, when with the adversary disputing, he was reasoning about the body of Moses,] durst not impose on him a defamatory sentence, but said—

The Lord rebuke thee!

10 But these, whatsoever things, indeed, they know not, they defame; but whatsoever things, naturally, like the irrational creatures, they well understand, by these are they bringing themselves to ruin. Alas for them! because—

In the way of Cain have they gone, and in the error of Balaam's wages have they run riot, and in the gainsaying of Korah have they perished.

12 These are they—

Who in your love-feasts are hidden rocks, as they fare sumptuously together, fearlessly [themselves shepherd]ing, clouds without water, by winds swept along, trees autumnal, fruitless, twice dead, uprooted.

12 Wild waves of sea, foaming out their own infamies, wandering stars, for whom the gloom of darkness age-abiding hath been reserved.

11 But the seventh from Adam, Enoch, [prophecyed, even of these, saying—

Lo! the Lord hath come with his holy myriads,]

To execute judgment against all, and to convict all the ungodly—

Of all their works of ungodliness, which they committed in ungodliness, and of all the hard things which they have spoken against him—sinners, ungodly!

16 These are murmurers, complainers, [according to their covetings] going on, and [their mouth] speaketh great swelling words, holding persons in admiration for profit's sake.

17 But ye beloved! remember the things which were foretold by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, [how they used to say to you—

In the last time there shall be mockers, according to their own ungodly covetings, going on.]

18 These are they who make complete separation, mere men of soul, [Spirit] not possessing!

20 But ye beloved! <Building yourselves up in your most holy faith,> [In Holy Spirit praying>

21 Yourselves, [in God's love] keep,—Awaiting the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto age-abiding life.

22 And on some: indeed, have mercy,—<such as are in doubt> be saving, <out of the fire> snatching them;

23 But on others have mercy with fear, hating even the garment spotted by the flesh.

24 Now unto him who is able—

To guard you from stumbling,

And to set you in the presence of his glory, without blemish, with exultation,—

Unto God alone our Saviour, through Jesus Christ our Lord:—

Be glory, greatness, dominion, and authority, Before all the [by-gone] age,

And now,

And unto all the [coming] ages. Amen!

THE REVELATION.

1 The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him, to point out unto his servants the things which must needs come to pass with speed, - and he shewed them by signs, sending through his messenger, * unto his servant John; * who bare witness as to the word of God, and the witness of Jesus Christ, - and whatsoever things he saw.

2 Happy! he that readeth, and they that hear, the words of the prophecy, and keep the things [therein] written; for [the season] is near.

4 Unto him that loveth us, and freed us out of our sins* with his blood, - and he hath made us [to be] a kingdom - priests* unto his God and Father! Unto him shall be the glory, and the dominion, unto the ages. Amen.

5 Lo! he cometh with the clouds,* and every eye shall see him; and such also as pierced him; and all the tribes of the land shall smite themselves* for him.* Yea! Amen!

6 I* am the A.* and [the Z.]* saith the Lord, - the God who Is,* and who Was, and who is Coming! The Almighty! -

7 I, John!* your brother, and partaker with you in the tribulation and kingdom and endurance in Jesus, came to be in the island that is called Patmos, because of the word of God, and the witness of Jesus.

8 I came to be in Spirit, in the Lord’s Day!, and heard, behind me, a loud voice, as of a trumpet, saying -

\[What thou seest\] write in a scroll, and send unto the Seven Assemblies, - unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamum, - and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, - and unto Laodicea.

9 And I turned round, to see the Voice which was speaking with me, and [having turned], I saw Seven Lamps of gold; 10 and [in the midst of the lamps] One like unto a Son of Man: -

Clothed with a robe, reaching to the feet, and girt about at the breasts with a girdle of gold, -

And the seven lamps are seven assemblies.

3 Unto the messenger of the assembly in Ephesus write:

These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, he that walketh in the midst of the seven lamps of gold;

4 I know thy works, and thy toil, and endurance, and that thou canst not bear bad men, and thou hast tried them who were affirming themselves to be apostles, and they were not, and hast found them false; and thou hast endurance, and hast borne for the sake of my name, and hast not grown weary.

5 Nevertheless, I have against thee that thy first love thou hast left.

6 Remember, therefore, whence thou hast fallen, and repent, and do thy first works; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy lamp out of its place, except thou repent.

7 But this thou hast, that thou hast hate the works of the Nicolaitanes, which I also hate.

8 And unto the messenger of the assembly in Smyrna write:

These things saith the first and the last, who became dead, and lived:

9 I know thy tribulation, and destitution, and work, and patience, and that thou canst not bear bad men, and thou art rich, and thou art not, and hast found them false; and thou hast endurance, and hast not grown weary.

10 Do not fear the things which thou art about to suffer. Lo! the adversary is about to cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried, and may have tribulation ten days. Become thou faithful until death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

11 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the assemblies.

12 And unto the messenger of the assembly in Pergamum write:

These things saith he that hath the sharp, two-edged sword.

13 I know where thou dwellest, where the throne of Satan is; and thou art holding fast my name, and didst not deny my faith, even in the days of Antipas, my witness, my faithful one, who was killed near you, where Satan dwelleth.

14 Nevertheless, I have against thee, a few things,—that thou hast there, such as hold fast the teaching of Balaam,—who went on to teach Balak to throw a cause of stumbling before the sons of Israel, to eat idol-sacrifices and commit lewdness;

15 [thus] even thou hast such as hold fast the teaching of the Nicolaitanes [in like manner].

16 Repent, therefore, or otherwise I come unto thee speedily, and will fight against them, with the sword of my mouth.

17 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the assemblies.

18 Unto him that overcometh I will give unto him of the hidden manna, and I will give unto him a white stone, and upon the stone a new name written, which no one knoweth, save he that receiveth it.

19 And unto the messenger of the assembly in Thyatira write:

These things saith the Son of God, who hath his eyes like a flame of fire, and his feet like unto glowing copper:

20 I know thy works, and thy love, and faith, and ministry, and endurance,—and that thy last works are more than the first.

21 Nevertheless, I have against thee that thou sorrowest the woman Jezebel, who calleth herself a prophetess, and is teaching and leading astray my own servants to commit lewdness and to eat idol-sacrifices; and I gave her time, that she might repent, and she willeth not to repent out of her lewdness.

22 Lo! I cast her into a bed, and them who are committing adultery with her, into great tribulation, except they repent out of her works; and her children will I slay with death; and all the assemblies shall get to know, that I am he that searcheth reins and hearts, and will give unto you, each one, according to your works.

23 But unto you I say,—the rest who are in Thyatira as many as have not this teaching, such as have not come to know the deep things of Satan, as they say > I do not cast upon you any other burden; nevertheless < what ye have hold fast, till I shall have come.

24 And he that overcometh, and keepeth throughout my works, I will give unto him authority over the nations; and he shall shepherd them with a sceptre of iron,—as vessels of earthenware are dashed in pieces; as [I] also have received from

my Father.

§29 And I will give unto him the morning star.®

§30 [He that hath an ear] let him hear what the Spirit is saying unto the assemblies.

§3 And unto the messenger of the assembly [in Sardis]® write:—

These things® saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God®, and the seven stars*: I know thy works,—that [a name] thou hast, that thou art living, and art [dead].

§4 Become thou watchful, and strengthen the things that remain, that were about to die; for I have not found thy works fulfilled before my God.® Remember, therefore, how thou hast received, and didst hear, and keep it and repent.® If then thou shalt not watch, I will have come as a thief,® and in novis® shalt thou get to know, during what sort® of hour,® I will have come upon thee.

§5 Nevertheless® thou hast a few names® in Sardis, which have not defiled their garments®, and they shall walk with me in white, because they are® [worthy].

§6 He that overcometh shall® [thus] array himself® in white garments,® and in novis® will I blot out his name® from the book of life®;® and I will confess his name® before my Father,® and before his messengers.

§7 He that hath an ear® let him hear what the Spirit® is saying unto the assemblies.

§8 And unto the messenger of the assembly [in Philadelphia]® write:—

These things® saith he that is holy, he that is true®, he that hath the key® of David,® he that openeth and no one shall shut,® and shuttest® and no one openeth®:

§9 I know thy works,—lo! I have set before thee an opened door®, as to which® [no one] can shut it,—that thou hast® [a little strength]® and hast kept my word,® and hast not denied my name®.

§10 Lo!® I give thee of the synagogue® of Satan,® who are affi®rming themselves to be® [Jews] and are not,—but say that® is false,—lo!® I will cause® them,® that they shall® have® come,® and shall® bow down before® thy feet®;® and shall get to know® that® I® loved® thee.®

§11 [Because thou didst keep my word® of endurance®]® also® will keep thee® out of® the hour of trial®, which is about to come upon® the whole habitable® world,® to try® them® that dwell® upon the earth.

§12 I come quickly;® hold fast® that® thou® hast,® that® [no one]® take® thy crown.

§13 He that overcometh® shall® make® [him]® a pillar® in® the sanctuary® of® my® God®;® and® outside® shall® he® in® novis® go® forth® any

§21 [He that hath an ear]® let him hear what the Spirit® is saying® unto® the® assemblies.

§22 [After these things]® I saw,® and® lo!® a® door® set® open® in® heaven®,® and® [the® first® voice® which® I® heard® as® of® a® trumpet®,® speaking® with® me]® saying—

Come® up® hither®!® and® I® will® point® out® to® thee® the® things® which® must® needs® come® to® pass.®

[After these things®]® Straightway® I® came® to be in® Spirit®,® and® lo!® [a® throne®]® stood® in® heaven®,® and® [upon® the® throne®]® [was]® one® sitting®;® and® [the® that® was® sitting®]® [was]® like® in® appearance® to® a® jasper® stone® and® a® sardius®,® and® [there® was]® a® rainbow® round® about® the® throne®,® like® in® appearance® unto® an® emerald®.® And® [round® about® the® throne®]® were® four® and® twenty® thrones®;®
and [upon the thrones] four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and [upon their heads] [were] crowns of gold.

And [out of the throne] are coming forth lightnings, and voices, and thunders; and [there are] seven torches of fire, burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God;

and [before the throne] [is] as a glassy see, like unto crystal. And [in the midst of the throne, and around the throne] [are] four living creatures full of eyes, both before and behind;

and [the first living creature] [is] like unto a lion, and [the second] living creature like unto a calf, and [the third] living creature hath the face as of a man, and [the fourth] living creature [is] like unto an eagle flying; and [the four living creatures] [each one of them] have severally six wings, round about and within full of eyes; and they [cease] not, day and night, saying—

Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was and who is, and who is coming.

And whatsoever the living creatures shall give glory, and honour, and thanksgiving, unto him that sitteth upon the throne, unto him that liveth unto the ages of ages. The four and twenty elders will fall down before him that sitteth upon the throne, and do homage unto him that liveth unto the ages of ages, and will cast their crowns before the throne, saying—

Worthy art thou, O Lord, and our God, to receive the glory, and the honour, and the power:

Because thou didst create all things, and [by reason of thy will] they were, and were created.

And I saw, upon the right hand of him that was sitting upon the throne, a scroll; written within, and on the back, sealed up with seven seals. And I saw a mighty messenger, proclaiming with a loud voice—

Who is worthy to open the scroll, and to unloose the seals thereof?

And [no one] was able [in heaven, or on earth, or under the earth] to open the scroll, or [to look thereon]. And [I] began to weep much, because [no one, worthy] was found, to open the scroll, or [to look thereon].

And [one of the elders] saith unto me—

Do not weep! Lo! the lion that is of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, hath overcome, to open the scroll and the seven seals thereof.

And I saw [in the midst of the throne] and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, a Lamb standing, showing that it had been slain—having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth.

And he came, and at once took it[1] out of the right hand of him that was sitting upon the throne.

And when he took the scroll, the four living creatures and the four-and-twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having [each one] a harp, and bowls of gold full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints; and they sang a new song, saying—

Worthy art thou, to take the scroll and to open the seals thereof.

Because thou wast slain,

And didst redeem unto God by thy blood [men] out of every tribe, and tongue, and people, and nation,

And didst make them, unto our God, a kingdom and priests, and they reign on the earth.

And I saw, and heard a voice of many messengers, round about the throne and the living creatures and the elders—and the number of them was myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands,—saying with a loud voice—

Worthy is the Lamb that hath been slain, to receive the power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing.

And every created thing which was in heaven, and upon the earth, and under the earth, and upon the sea, and all the things in them—heard I, saying—

Unto him that sitteth upon the throne.

And unto the Lamb—

Be the blessing, and the honour, and the glory, and the dominion

Unto the ages of ages!

And the four living creatures continued saying—

Amen!

And the elders fell down and did homage.

And I saw—when the Lamb opened one of the seven seals—And I heard one of the four living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder—

Go!

And I saw, and lo! a white horse, and he that was sitting thereon holding a bow; and there was given unto him a crown, and he went forth conquering, and that he might conquer.

And—when he opened the second seal—I heard the second living creature, saying—

Go!

And there went forth another, a red horse,

And I saw—when the Lamb opened one of the seven seals—I heard one of the four living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder—Go!

and unto him that was sitting thereon: it was given unto him to take away peace from the earth, and that one another they should slay; and there was given unto him a great sword.

And when he opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature, saying —

Go!

And I saw, and lo! a black horse, and he that was sitting thereon holding a pair of balances in his hand. And I heard as a voice in the midst of the four living creatures, saying —

A quart of wheat, for a denary,

And three quarts of barley, for a denary,

And the oil and the wine do not wrong.

And when he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature, saying —

Go!

And I saw, and lo! a livid horse, and he that was sitting thereupon had for a name Death, and Hades was following with him; and there was given unto them authority over the fourth of the earth, to slay with sword, and with famine, and with death, and by the wild beasts of the earth.

And when he opened the fifth seal, I saw beneath the altar the souls of them that had been slain because of the word of God and because of the witness which they held. And they cried out with a loud voice, saying —

How long, O Sovereign, the Holy and True, dost thou not vindicate and avenge our blood from them that dwell upon the earth?

And there was given to them, each one, a white robe, and it was hidden them, that they should rest yet a little while — until the number should be made full of their fellow-servants also, and their brethren, who were about to be slain as even they.

And I saw when he opened the sixth seal, that a great earthquake took place; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood, and the stars of heaven fell to the earth, as a fig-tree sheddeth her winter figs, when by a great wind it is shaken, and the heavens was withdrawn as a scroll rolling itself up, and (every mountain and island) out of their places were shaken.

And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rulers of thousands, and the rich, and the mighty, and every bondman and freeman hid themselves within the caves and within the rocks of the mountains; and they said unto the mountains and unto the rocks —

Fall upon us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the anger of the Lamb;

Because the great day of their anger is come, and who is able to stand?

After this, I saw four messengers, standing at the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that no wind might blow upon the land, or upon the sea, or upon any tree. And I saw another messenger, ascending from the rising of the sun, holding the seal of the Living God; and he cried out with a loud voice unto the four messengers unto whom it had been given to injure the land and the sea, saying —

Do not injure the land, or the sea, or the trees, until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their foreheads.

And I heard the number of the sealed, a hundred and forty-four thousand, sealed out of every tribe of the sons of Israel:

Of the tribe of Judah twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Gad twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Asher twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Levi twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand, sealed;

Of the tribe of Benjamin twelve thousand, sealed.

After these things I saw, and lo! a great multitude, which to number it no man was able, of every nation, and of all tribes, and peoples, and tongues; standing before the throne, and before the Lamb; arrayed in white robes, and palm-branches in their hands;

and they cry out with a loud voice, saying —

Salvation unto our God who sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb!

And [all the messengers] were standing round about the throne and the elders and the four living creatures; and they fell down before the throne upon their faces, and rendered homage unto God, saying —

Amen!

The blessing, and the glory, and the wisdom, and the thanksgiving, and the honour, and the power, and the might, — Be unto our God, unto the ages of ages.

And one of the elders began, saying unto me — and Joseph, and the absence of Euphram and Dan.

 Chap. v. 9.

 Or: "Our salvation."

 Chap. v. 12.

 Ap: "Age."
And I saw as soon as he opened the seventh seal, there came to be silence in heaven, as it were half an hour. And I saw the seven messengers, which before God do stand, and there were given unto them seven trumpets.

And another messenger came, and took his stand at the altar, having a censor of gold, and there was given unto him was such incense, that he might give it unto the prayers of all the saints, upon the altar of gold that is before the throne. And the smoke of the incense went up, with the prayers of the saints, out of the hand of the messenger before God. And the messenger at once took the censor, and filled it from the fire of the altar, and cast unto the earth; and there came to be thunders, and voices, and lightnings, and an earthquake. And the seven messengers who had the seven trumpets prepared themselves, that they might sound.

And the first sounded; and there came to be hail and fire mingled with blood, and it was cast unto the earth; and the third of the earth was burned up, and the third of the trees was burned up, and all green herbs was burned up. And the second sounded; and an fire came out of the altar, and cast into the sea; and the third of the sea became blood, and the third of the creatures which were in the sea, which had life, died, and the third of the ships was destroyed. And the third messenger sounded; and there fell, out of heaven, a great star, burning as a torch, and it fell upon the third of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters. And the name of the star is called Wormwood; and the third of the waters became wormwood, and many of the men died of the waters, because they were made bitter. And the fourth messenger sounded; and the third of the sun was smitten, and the third of the moon, and the third of the stars, in order that the third of them might be darkened, and the day might not shine for the third of it, and the night, in like manner.

And I saw, and I heard one eagle, flying in mid-heaven, saying with a loud voice—Woe! woe! woe! unto them that are dwelling upon the earth, by reason of the remaining voices of the trumpet of the three messengers who are about to sound.

And the fifth messenger sounded; and I saw a star, out of heaven fallen unto the earth, and there was given unto him the key of the shaft of the abyss. And he opened the shaft of the abyss; and there came up a smoke out of the shaft, as the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened by reason of the smoke of the shaft. And out of the smoke came forth [locusts] upon the earth; and there was given unto them licence, as the scorpions of the earth have licence. And it was bidden them that they should not injure the herbage of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, but only the men who have not the seal of God upon their foreheads. And it was given unto them, that they should not slay them, but that they should be tormented five months; and the torture of them was as of a scorpion's torture, whosoever it smiteth a man. And in those days shall men seek death, and in nowise shall find it, and shall covet to die, and death feth them from them. And the likenesses of the locusts were like unto horses prepared for battle; and upon their heads as it were crowns, like unto gold, and their faces were as the faces of men, and they had hair as the hair of women, and their feet were like the feet of lions, and they did have breastplates as breastplates of iron, and the sound of their wings was as the sound of chariots of many horses, running into battle; and they have tails like unto scorpions, and stings, and in their tails is their licence to injure men five months. They have over them, as king, the messenger of the abyss, whose name, in Hebrew, is Abaddon (= "Destroyer"), and in the Greek he hath for name Destroyer. The first Woe hath passed away, lo! there some yet two Woes after these things.

And the sixth messenger sounded; and I heard one voice, from among the horns of the altar of gold which is before God, 14 saying unto the sixth messenger, who was holding the trumpet—

Loose the four messengers, who are bound at the great river Euphrates. 15

And the four messengers were loosed, who had been prepared for the hour, and day, and month, and year, that they should slay the third of men. 16 And thus I saw the horses in the vision, and them who were sitting upon them, having breastplates as of fire and hyacinth and brimstone; and the heads of the horses were as heads of lions, and [out of their mouths] come forth fire and smoke and brimstone: 17 they were, and the third part of mankind, by reason of the fire and the smoke and the brimstone, that proceedeth out of their mouths; 18 for the licence of the horses is in their mouth, and in their tails, for their tails are like unto serpents, having heads, and with them they injure. 20 And the rest of mankind who were not slain by these plagues repented of the works of their hands, 4 that they should not do homage unto the demons, nor unto the idols of gold and of silver and of copper and of stone and of wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk; 21 Neither repented they of their murders, or of their sorceries, or of their lewdnesses, or of their thefts.

10 And I saw another, a mighty messenger, descending out of heaven, arrayed with a cloud, and [the rainbow was] upon his head, and [his face] was as the sun, and [his feet] were as pillars of fire, 2 and [he was] holding in his hand a little scroll, opened b; and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left upon the land, 3 and cried out with a loud voice, [just as a lion roareth]. And [when he cried out] the seven thunders uttered their own voices. 4 And when the seven thunders had spoken I was about to write, and I heard a voice out of heaven, saying—

Seal up the things which the seven thunders have uttered, and do not write them. 5 And the messenger, whom I saw standing upon the sea and upon the land lifted up his right hand unto heaven, and sweareth by him that liveth unto the ages of ages, who created heaven, and the things that are therein, and the earth, and the things that are therein, [and the sea, and the things that are therein] > 6

[Delay] no longer shall there be; but in the days of the sounding of the seventh messenger, as soon as he is about to blow his trumpet> then shall have been completed the sacred secret of God as he told the good-news unto his own servants the prophets. 8

And the voice which I had heard out of heaven [he again heard] talking with me, and saying—

Go take the opened scroll, that is in the hand of the messenger who is standing upon the sea and upon the land. 9 And I went away unto the messenger, asking him to give me the little scroll; and he saith unto me—

Take it, and eat it up; and it shall embitter thy belly, but in thy mouth, shall be sweet as honey. 10 And I took the little scroll out of the hand of the messenger, and did eat it up; and it was [in my mouth] as honey [sweet], and when I had eaten it embittered was my belly. 11 And they say unto me—

It behoeth thee again to prophecy against peoples and nations and tongues, and many kings. 12

11 And there was given unto me a reed, like unto a staff, saying—

Rise, and measure the Sanctuary of God, 2 and the altar, and them who are doing homage therein; 3 and the court that is outside the Sanctuary cast thou outside, and do not measure it, because it hath been given unto the nations, and the holy city shall they tread under foot, forty and two months. 4

And I will give unto my two witnesses, that they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and sixty days, arrayed in sackcloth.

4 [These] are the two olive-trees, and the two lamps, which before the Lord of the earth do stand. 5 And <if any one [upon them] chooseth to inflict injury> [fire] cometh forth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies; 6 and <if anyone shall choose> [upon them] to inflict injury> [thus] must he be slain.

6 [These] have authority to shut heaven, in order that no rain be moistening in the days of their prophesying; and [authority] have they over the waters, to be turning them into blood, and to smite the land, with any manner of plague as often as they will.

And <as soon as they have completed their witnessing> the wild-beast that is to come up out of the abyss> will make war with them, and overcome them, and slay them. And their dead bodies lie upon the broadway of the great city, which is called, spiritually, Sodom and Egypt, where their Lord also was crucified. And (some) of the peoples, and tribes, and tongues, and nations see their dead bodies three days and a half, and their dead bodies do they not suffer to be put into a tomb. And they who are dwelling upon the earth rejoice over them, and make merry, and gift them will they send one to another, because these two prophets tormented them that were dwelling upon the earth.

11 And after these three days and a half a spirit of life from God entered within them, and they stood upon their feet; and a great fear fell upon them who were beholding them.

12 And they heard a loud voice out of heaven, saying unto them—Come hither! And they went up into heaven, in the cloud, and their enemies beheld them.

13 And in that hour there came to be a great earthquake; and the tenth of the city fell, and there were slain, in the earthquake, names of men—seven thousand. And the rest became greatly afraid, and gave glory unto the God of heaven.

14 The second Woe hath passed away, lo! the third Woe cometh speedily.

15 And the seventh messenger sounded; and there came to be loud voices in heaven, saying—The kingdom of the world hath become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign unto the ages of ages.

16 And the twenty-four elders who before God do sit upon their thrones fell down upon their faces, and render their homage to God, saying—We give thanks unto thee, O Lord, God, the Almighty, Who art and Who was; because thou hast taken thy great power, and hast become king.

17 And the nations were angered; and thine anger came, and the fit time of the dead, to be vindicated, and to give their reward unto thy servants the prophets, and unto the saints, and unto them who receivest thy name—the small and the great, and to despoil them who were despoiling the earth.

18 And the sanctuary of God which is in heaven was opened, and the ark of his covenant in his sanctuary appeared, and there came to be lightnings, and voices, and thunders, and an earthquake, and great hail.

19 And a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman arrayed with the sun, and the moon beneath her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars; and she was with child, and crieth out, being in pain and in anguish to bring forth.

20 And there appeared another sign in heaven; and lo! a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and upon his head seven diadems; and his tail draweth the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth.

21 And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bring forth, that as soon as she should bring forth he might devour her child.

22 And she brought forth a son, a manchild, who was about to shepherd all the nations with a sceptre of iron; and her child was caught away unto God and unto his throne. And the woman fled into the desert, where she hath a place prepared of God, that there they should nourish her a thousand two hundred, and sixty days.

23 And there came to be war in heaven: Michael and his messengers [going forth] to war with the dragon; and the dragon fought, and his messengers; and he prevailed not, neither was place found for them, any longer, in heaven.

24 And the great dragon was cast out,—the ancient serpent, who is called Devil and Satan, that deceiveth the whole habitable world,—he was cast to the earth, and his messengers [with him] were cast.

25 And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying—Now hath come the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ; Because the accuser of our brethren hath been cast out, who was accusing them before our God day and night, unto him.

26 And they overcame him by reason of the blood of the Lamb, and by reason of their witnessing word, and they loved not their life even unto death.

27 For this cause be joyful, O heavens, and ye who [therein] are tabernacled. Woe unto the earth, and the sea, because the Adversary hath come down unto you, having great wrath—knowing that but a little season he hath.

28 And when the dragon saw that he was cast to the earth, he pursued the woman who had brought forth the manchild. And there were given unto the woman the two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the desert, into her place,—where she is nourished, a season and seasons and half a season,² from the face of the serpent. And the serpent cast out of his mouth, after the woman, water as a river, that he might cause her to be carried away by the stream. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the river which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was angered against the woman, and went away to make war with the rest of her seed—with them who were keeping the commandments of God, and holding the witness of Jesus; and he stood upon the sand of the sea.

13 And I saw, out of the sea, a wild-beast coming up; having ten horns⁵ and seven heads,⁶ and upon his horns ten diadems, and upon his heads names of blasphemy. And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard;⁷ and his feet as of a bear,⁸ and his mouth as the mouth of a lion.⁹ And the dragon gave unto him his power, and his throne, and great authority. And I saw one of the heads, showing that it had been slain unto death, and the stroke of his death was healed. And the whole earth marvelled after the wild-beast,⁴ and did homage unto the dragon, because he gave his authority unto the wild-beast; and they did homage unto the wild-beast, saying—Who is like unto the wild-beast? And Who can make war with him?

And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things⁶⁰ and blasphemies; and it was given unto him to act forty and two months. And he opened his mouth for blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tent,—them that were in heaven, were tabernacled.⁷ And it was given unto him, to make war with the saints, and to overcome them; and there was given him authority against every tribe and people and tongue and nation. And all they who dwell upon the earth do homage unto him,—[every one] whose name is not written in the scroll of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. If anyone hath an ear, let him hear.⁸

If anyone [carrieth] into captivity [into captivity] he goeth away. If anyone [with a sword] doth slay he must [with a sword] be slain.⁸

Fear God and give him glory, because the hour of his judging is come; and do homage unto him that made heaven and earth and its fountains of waters.

And another, a second [messenger] followed, saying—

Fallen! fallen! is Babylon, the great, who of the wine of the wrath of her lewdness hath caused all the nations to drink.

And another, a third messenger followed them, saying with a loud voice—

If anyone doth homage unto the beast and his image, and receiveth a mark upon his forehead, or upon his hand, he shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is prepared, unmixed, in the cup of his anger; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone before holy messengers and before the Lamb.

And the smoke of their torment ascends up unto ages of ages.

And they have no rest day or night, who do homage unto the beast and his image, or if anyone receiveth the mark of his name.

Here is the endurance of the saints, who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus.

And I heard a voice out of heaven, saying—

Write! the dead who in the Lord do die from henceforth. Yes! (saith the Spirit) that they may rest from their toils, for their works do follow with them.

And I saw, and lo! a white cloud, and upon the cloud, one sitting like unto a son of man, having upon his head a crown of gold, and in his hand a sharp sickle.

And another messenger came forth out of the sanctuary, crying out with a loud voice, unto him that was sitting upon the cloud—Thrust in thy sickle, and reap; because the hour to reap is come, because the harvest of the earth is ripe.

And he that was sitting upon the cloud thrust in his sickle upon the earth; and the earth was reaped.

And another messenger came forth out of the sanctuary that is in heaven; he also having a sharp sickle.

And another messenger came forth out of the altar, who hath authority over the fire, and called out with a loud voice, unto him who had the sharp sickle, saying—Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; because the grapes thereof are fully ripe.

And the messenger thrust in his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast [it] into the great wine-press of the wrath of God. And the wine-press was trodden outside the city, and there came forth blood out of the wine-press, even unto the bits of the horses, at a distance of a thousand six hundred furlongs.

And I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven messengers having seven plagues [the last], because [in them] was ended the wrath of God.

And I saw as a glassy sea mingled with fire, and them who escape victorious from the beast, and from his image, and from the number of his name, standing upon the glassy sea, having harps of God; and they sing the song of Moses the servant of God and the song of the Lamb, saying—

Great and marvellous are thy works,
Lord, God, the Almighty!
Righteous and true are thy ways,
O King of the ages!
Who shall in anywise be put in fear, O Lord, and glorify thy name,
Because [alone] full of lovingkindness;
Because [all] the nations will have come, and will do homage before thee,
Because [thy righteous deeds] were made manifest.

And another sign I saw, and the sanctuary of The Tent of Witness in heaven was opened; and the seven messengers who had the seven plagues came forth out of the sanctuary clothed with a precious stone, pure, bright, and girt about the breasts with girdles of gold.

And one of the four living creatures gave unto the seven messengers, seven golden bowls, full of the wrath of God who liveth unto the ages of ages.

And the sanctuary was filled with smoke by reason of the glory of God, and by reason of his power; and no one was able to enter into the sanctuary, until the seven plagues of the seven messengers should be ended.

And I heard a loud voice, out of the sanctuary, saying unto the seven messengers—Go, and be pouring out the seven bowls of the wrath of God unto the earth.

And the first departed, and poured out his bowl unto the earth; and there came to be a baneful and painful ulcer, upon the men who had the mark of the beast, and them who were doing homage unto his image.
3 And [the second] poured out his bowl into the sea; and it became blood, as of a dead man, and [every living soul] died— as regardedth the things in the sea.

4 And [the third] poured out his bowl into the rivers, and the fountains of waters; and they became blood.

5 And I heard the messenger of the waters, saying—

||Righteous! art thou || Who art, and Who wast, || Who art full of lovingkindness,||—in that these things thou hast adjudged;

6 Because [blood of saints and prophets] poured they out, and [blood unto them] hast thou given to drink: || Worthy || they are!

7 And I heard the altar, saying—

Yea! Lord, God, the Almighty:b || True and righteous are thy judgments.a

8 And [the fourth] poured out his bowl upon the sun; and it was given unto it, to scorch mankind with fire; and mankind were scorched with a great scorching heat, and they blasphemed the name of God who had authority over these plagues, and repented not to give him glory.

9 And [the fifth] poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast; and his kingdom became darkened, and they began to gnaw their tongues by reason of the pain.— and they blasphemed the God of heaven, by reason of their pain, and by reason of their ulcers, and repented not of their works.

10 And [the sixth] poured out his bowl upon the great river [the] Euphrates: and the water thereof was dried up; that the way might be prepared, of the kings who were from the rising of the sun.

11 And I saw <out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false-prophet> three impure spirits, as frogs; for they are spirits of demons, doing signs, which are to go forth unto the kings of the whole habitable earth, to gather them together unto the battle of the great day of God the Almighty.——

12 Lo! I come as a thief! || Happy! he that is watching, and keeping his garments, lost || naked || he be walking, and they see his shame.—

13 And he gathered them together unto the place that is called [in Hebrew] || Har Megedon.||

14 And [the seventh] poured out his bowl upon the air. —And there came forth a loud voice out of the sanctuary. from the throne, saying—— Accomplished!

15 And there came to be lightnings, and voices, and thunders; and [a great earthquake] took place,—such as had never taken place since men came to be on the earth,—such a mighty’ earthquake, so great; and the great city became divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell; and ||Babylon the Great|| was brought into remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the wrath of his anger; and [every island] fled, and [mountains] were not found. And [great hail as talents] cometh down out of heaven upon mankind; and men blasphemed God, by reason of the plague of hail,—because the plague thereof was ||exceeding great||.

17 And one of the seven’ messengers who had the seven’ bowls’ came, and spake with me, saying——

Hither! I will point out to thee the judgment of the great harlot, who sitteth upon many waters, with whom the kings of the earth committed lewdness,—and they who were dwelling upon the earth were made drunk with the wine of her lewdness.

And he carried me away into a desert in spirit. And I saw a woman, sitting upon a scarlet wild-beast full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was arrayed with purple and scarlet, and decked with gold and precious stone and pearls,—having a cup of gold in her hand, full of abominations and the impurities of her lewdness; and upon her forehead a name written, a secret:

Babylon the great, the Mother of the Harlots and of the Abominations of the Earth.

And I saw the woman, drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus. And I was astonished, when I beheld her, with great astonishment. —And the messenger said unto me——

Wherefore wast thou astonished? || I will tell thee the secret of the woman, and of the wild-beast that carrieth her, which hath the seven’ heads and the ten’ horns.

III The wild-beast which thou sawest was, and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss, and into [destruction] goeth away.

And they who are dwelling upon the earth, whose name is not written upon the book of life from the foundation of the world, will be astonished, when they see the wild-beast, because it was, and is not, and shall be present.
THE REVELATION XVII. 9-18; XVIII. 1-16.

9 "Here is the mind that hath wisdom." The seven heads are seven mountains whereupon the woman sitteth; and they are seven kings: the five have fallen, the one is, the other hath not yet come; and <whosoever he shall come> a little while must he remain, and the wild-beast which was and is not. And he is an eighth, and is of the seven, and unto destruction goeth away.

12 And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, who, indeed, have not received sovereignty as yet; but authority, as kings, for one hour shall receive, with the wild-beast. These have one mind, and their power and authority give them. And these, with the Lamb, will make war; and the Lamb shall overcome them, because he is Lord of lords, and King of kings, and they who are with him are called and chosen and faithful.

13 And he saith unto me—The waters which thou sawest, where the harlot sitteth, are peoples and multitudes, and nations and tongues.

16 And the ten horns which thou sawest, and the wild-beast these shall hate the harlot, and desolate, shall make her, and naked, and her flesh shall they eat, and herself shall they burn up with fire.

17 For God hath put into their hearts, to do his mind, and to do one mind, and to give their sovereignty unto the wild-beast, until the words of God shall be completed.

18 And the woman whom thou sawest is the great city, which hath sovereignty over the kings of the earth.

18 After these things I saw another messenger coming down out of heaven, having great authority; and the earth was illuminated with his glory. And he cried out, with a mighty voice, saying—Fallen! fallen! is Babylon the Great, and hath become a habitation of demons, and a prison of every impure spirit, and a prison of every impure and hateful bird;

Because by reason of the wrath of her lewdness have all the nations fallen, and the kings of the earth, and the merchants of the earth, by reason of the power of her wantonness, waxed rich.

14 And I heard another voice out of heaven, saying—Come forth, my people, out of her,—that ye may have no fellowship with her sins, and of her plagues; that ye may not receive: because her sins were joined together as far as heaven, and God hath remembered her unrighteous deeds.

16 Render ye unto her, as she also rendered, And double [the] double,

According to her works,—b

In the cup wherein she mixed,

Mix unto her [double],—

As much as she glorified herself, and waxed wanton,

So much give unto her [torment and grief];—

Because [in] one heart she saith—

I sit a Queen,

And [widow] am I not,

And [grief] in no wise shall I see!:

Therefore shall have come her plagues,—death and grief and famine; and with fire shall she be burned up;—because mighty is the Lord God who hath judged her.

9 And they shall weep and wail over her—shall the kings of the earth who with her committed lewdness and waxed wanton,—as soon as they see the smoke of her burning,—afar off standing, because of their fear of her torment, saying—Aha! aha! the great city! Babylon, the mighty city!

That in one hour hath come thy judgment.

11 And the merchants of the earth weep and grieve over her, because [their] cargo [no one] buyeth any more:—cargo of gold, and silver, and precious stone, and pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all thine wood, and every article of ivory, and every article of wood most precious, and of copper, and of iron, and of marble, and cinnamon, and spice, and incense, and unguent, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and cattle, and sheep, and [cargo] of horses, and of chariots, and of bodies, and lives of men.

14 And [the fruit of the coveting of thy soul] Hath departed from thee,

And [all things rich and bright],

Have perished from thee;

And [no more, in any wise, for them] shall they seek.

15 The merchants of these things, who were enriched by her, afar off shall stand, because of their fear of her torment, weeping, and grieving, 16 as they say—

Alas! alas! the great city!
She that was arrayed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet,
And decked with gold, and precious stone, and pearl,—
That ||in one hour|| hath been laid waste ||such great wealth as this!||
And <every> pilot, and every passenger, and mariners, and as many as ||by the sea|| carry on traffic> afar off did stand, 18 and they cried out, seeing the smoke of her burning, a saying—

What city is like unto the great city? b
And they cast dust upon their heads, and cried out, weeping and grieving, saying—
Alas! alas! the great city!
Whereby were made rich all that had ships in the sea, by reason of her costliness,—
That ||in one hour|| she hath been laid waste! 19

Be glad over her, thou heaven! 4
And ye saints, and ye apostles, and ye prophets!
For that God hath exacted your vindication from her. 20

And one mighty messenger lifted a stone, as it were a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying—
Thus, with main force 21 shall be cast down,
Babylon the great city,—
And in no wise be found any more; 22
And sound of harp-singers, and musicians, and flute-players, and trumpeters,—
In no wise be heard in thee any more; 21
And any artisan 23 [of any art,]—
In no wise be found in thee any more;
And sound of millstone,—
In no wise be found in thee any more;
And light of lamp,—
In no wise shine in thee any more;
And voice of bridegroom and bride,—
In no wise be heard in thee any more;—
Because ||thy merchants|| were the great ones of the earth,
Because ||with thy sorcery|| were all the nations deceived; 24
And ||in her|| blood of prophets and saints was found,—
And of all who had been slain upon the earth. 25

19 ||After these things|| I heard as it were, a loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying—

Hallelujah! 26

The salvation and the glory and the power of our God!

Because ||true and righteous|| are his judgments; 27
Because he hath judged the great harlot, who, indeed, corrupted the earth with her lewdness,—
And hath avenged the blood of his servants ||at her hand||; 28
And ||in a second time|| have they said—
Hallelujah!
And ||her smoke|| ascended unto ages of ages; 29
And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures ||fell down||, and did homage unto God, who sitteth upon the throne, 30 saying—
Amen! Hallelujah!
And ||in a voice|| ||from the throne|| came forth, saying—
Be giving praise unto our God, all ye his servants, ye that reverence him, the small and the great; 31
And I heard as a voices of a great multitude, and as a voices of many waters, and as a voices of mighty thunders, saying—Hallelujah!
Because the Lord, ||our|| God, the Almighty ||hath become king||; 32
Let us rejoice and exult, and give glory unto him,
Because the marriage of the Lamb ||is come||, and ||his wife|| hath made herself ready; 33
And it hath been given unto her, that she should be arrayed in fine linen, bright, pure, for ||the fine linen|| is ||the righteous acts of the saints||.

And he saith unto me—
Write!

||Happy|| they who ||unto the marriage supper of the Lamb|| have been bidden:
And he saith unto me—

||These words|| are ||true words|| of God,
And I fell down at his feet, to do him homage; 36
And he saith unto me—
See! [thou do it] not! ||A fellow-servant|| am I, of thee and of thy brethren who have the witness of Jesus: ||unto God|| do homage!
For ||the witness of Jesus|| is the spirit of the prophecy.

And I saw heaven, set open, and lo! a white horse, and ||he that was sitting thereon|| [called] ||Faithful|| and True; 37 and ||in righteousness|| doth he judge 38 and make war; 39 and ||his eyes, are a flame of fire,|| and ||upon his head|| are many diadems, having ||a name|| written, which ||no one|| knoweth, but ||himself; 40 and arrayed with a mantle sprinkled with blood, 41 and his name hath been called—
The Word of God.
And the armies which were in heaven were following him, upon white horses, clothed with fine linen, white, pure; and [of his mouth] is going forth a sharp sword, that [therewith] he may smite the nations,—and [he] shall shepherd them with a sceptre of iron, and [he] treadeth the wine-press of the wrath of the anger of God the Almighty.

And he hath upon his mantle and upon his thigh |a name| written—King of kings, and Lord of lords.

And I saw one's messenger, standing in the sun, and he cried out with a loud voice, saying unto all the birds |that fly| in mid-heaven—Hither! be gathered together unto the great supper of God,—that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them who sit upon them, and the flesh of all, both free and bond, and small and great.

And I saw the wild-beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together—to make war with him who was sitting upon the horse, and with his army.

And the wild-beast was taken, and [with him] the false-prophet who wrought the signs before him, whereby he deceived them who received the mark of the wild-beast and them who were doing homage unto his image,—[alive] were they two cast into the lake of fire that burneth with brimstone.

And [the rest] were slain with the sword of him that was sitting upon the horse, which went forth out of his mouth, and [all the birds] were filled with their flesh.

And I saw a messenger, coming down out of heaven, having the key of the abyss, and a great chain upon his hand; and he laid hold of the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is Adversary and the Accuser, and bound him for a thousand years,—and cast him into the abyss, and fastened and sealed [it] over him,—that he might not deceive the nations any more, until the thousand years should be ended: [after these] must he be loosed for a short time.

And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and sentence of judgment was given unto them; and [I saw] the souls of them who had been beheaded because of the witness of Jesus and because of the word of God, and such as had not done homage unto the wild-beast or unto his image, nor had received the mark upon their forehead or upon their hand; and they lived and reigned with the Christ, for a thousand years.

The rest of the dead lived not, until the thousand years were ended.

8. |This| is the first resurrection. 9. |Happy and holy| is he that hath part in the first resurrection: [upon these] the second death hath no authority; but they shall be priests of God and of the Christ, and shall reign with him for the thousand years.

And <as soon as the thousand years shall be ended> the Accuser shall be loosed out of his prison, and will go forth to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth, the Goq and Magog, to gather them together unto the battle,—the number of whom is |as the sand of the sea. And they came up over the breadth of the land, and surrounded the camp of the saints, and the beloved city. And there came down fire out of heaven, and devoured them; and the Adversary that had been deceiving them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where were both the wild-beast and the false-prophet; and they shall be tormented, day and night, unto the ages of ages.

And I saw a great white throne, and him that was sitting thereon, from whose face the earth and heaven, and |place| was not found for them. 11. And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne; and |books| were opened, and |another| book was opened, which is [the book] of life; and the dead were judged out of the things written in the books |according to their works.| 12. And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and |death and hades| gave up the dead that were in them; and they were judged, each one, according to their works. 13. And |death and hades| were cast into the lake of fire. 14. And <if anyone was not found in the book of life| written> he was cast into the lake of fire.

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth have passed away, and |the sea| is no more. 15. And the holy city, new Jerusalem,| saw| I coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. 16. And I heard a loud voice out of the throne, saying—Lo! |the tent of God| is with men And he will tabernacle with them, and |they| shall be |his peoples. 17. And |he| shall be |God with them; 18. And he will wipe away every tear out of their eyes, 18.
And [death] shall be no more,
And grief and outcry and pain shall be no more:

[The first things] have passed away.
And he that was sitting upon the throne said—

Lo! I make all things new.
And he said unto me—

Amen! I come! Lo! I come speedily!

And [the measure] of a messenger.
And [the structure of the wall thereof was jasper, and the city] was pure gold, like unto pure glass.
[The foundations of the wall of the city] were with every precious stone were adorned: [the first foundation was] jasper, [the second] sapphire, [the third] chalcedony, [the fourth] emerald, [the fifth] sardonyx, [the sixth] sardius, [the seventh] chrysolite, [the eighth] beryl, [the ninth] topaz, [the tenth] chrysoprase, [the eleventh] beryl, [the twelfth] amethyst;
And [the twelve gates] were twelve pearls, [each one of the gates were] severally was of one pearl; and [the broad-way of the city] was pure gold, as transparent glass.
And [the sanctuary] saw I none therein; for [the Lord, God, the Almighty] is the sanctuary thereof, [and the Lamb].
And [the city, hath no need of the sun, nor of the moon, that they should shine therein; for the glory of God illumined it, and the lamp thereof was the Lamb.
And the nations shall walk through her light; and the kings of the earth do bring their glory into it, and [the gates thereof shall in nowise be shut by day, neither in night] in fact, shall not be [there]; and they shall bring the glory and the honour of the nations into it.
And in nowise shall there enter into it, anything common, or he that doeth abomination and falseness,

But < as for the timid, and unbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all the false> [their part] is in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.

And there came one of the seven messengers which had the seven bowls, that were full of the seven last plagues, and spake with me, saying—

Hither! I will point out to thee the bride, the bride of the Lamb.
And [and he came] me away, in spirit, unto a mountain great and high, and pointed out to me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God; [having the glory of God],[— her lustre] like unto a stone most precious, as a jasper stone, shining as crystal; [having] a wall great and high, and having twelve gates, and [at the gates] twelve messengers, and names inscribed, which are [the names] of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel,— [on the east] three gates, and [on the north] three gates, and [on the south] three gates, and [on the west] three gates; and [the wall of the city] having twelve foundations, and [upon them] twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

And [the that was talking with me] had, for a measure, a reed of gold, that he might measure the city, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof. And [the city] is four-square; its length, and its breadth thereof is as great as the breadth. And he measured the city with the reed,—twelve thousand furlongs: [the length, and the breadth, and the height thereof] are [equal]. And he measured the wall thereof,—a hundred and forty-four cubits: the measure of a man which

APPENDIX.

ABYSS.
It is easy to say that this word, according to its derivation, signifies "bottomless"; and that it is sometimes employed, more generally, to denote "unfathomable, boundless, enormous"; but its chief interest, as a N. T. word, lies in the question how far it is synonymous with "hades." Suffice it here to connect it with that larger subject, and to observe that in the Christian Writings it occurs only in the following places: Lu. viii. 31; Ro. x. 7; Rev. ix. 1, 2; xi. 17; xvii. 8; xx. 1, 3.

AGE.
To trace the Biblical development of the Age is to gain a point from which many far-reaching observations may be made. The first thing to note is, that the idea of an "age" is one of comparatively slow growth. The Biblical parent of the Greek age is the Hebrew odem, and the root conception of odem is concealed duration. Concealed duration is naturally unknown and unbounded; and it would be carefully remembered that it is from the Saxon origin of the nouns odmen and ages that the force of the qualifying terms oldmen and ancient springs. (See below on Age-abiding.) The second thing to observe is, that duration does not fall into "ages" until it acquires character, and there is a transition of the times from one character into another. Only by degrees can a period round itself off into a "golden age," and then, by some observable transition, the time become so changed as to assert, as only a "golden age," in comparison; or an age of barbarism undergo such an amelioration as to become gradually merged into "an age of civilization." Accordingly, there is in the D. T. that we read with odmen in the plural. The third thing to notice is, that "age" may be so modified by local conditions as to vary with country and sphere; so that the ages in different lands may be far from simultaneous. While one country is advancing in civilization or religion, another may be receding. A golden age may not be world-wide; a barbaric period may not afflict all lands at once; and an age of activity in one direction may be an age of stagnation or retrogression in another. In fine, ages may overlap and interlace and interchange; and the result may be one of the utmost complexity, calling for the most thoughtful and guarded use of the term. By the age of the patriarchal age (compare the Hebrews, then for the Hebrews, be changed into "the Mosaic," and yet for other nations remain patriarchal still. The Mosaic age, the only age that any one comes under Moses. It is folly for Gentiles to speak as if they had once been under Moses if they never were. The fourth point of importance is, that only as a change of age is supernaturally superinduced can we assume to characterise a given age as a divine dispensation. It cannot be affirmed that God has placed under Moses nations whom at the same time he is suffering to walk after their own ways (Ac. xiv. 16). The idea of a dispensation that arrives, that larger ages may include smaller ones. The larger age of Moses may embrace the smaller ages of the Judges, of the Kings, of the Dispensations. The final Christian age may receive itself into the age of the Church, to be followed by the age of the Kingdom. Nay, we may go further and affirm, that all ages, up to a given point, may be predominantly evil, and then, from that point onward, be wholly or prevalently good. When the foregoing factors of thought have been patiently digested, the student to whom the subject is new may find it comparatively easy to accommodate his mind to the crowning discrimination which can be traced in Christian Scripture, and in tracing which the eye will rest on the following landmarks. "This age" and "the coming" are terms which describe a distinction which runs through the New Testament. Mt. xii. 32; Eph. i. 21; (i.). "This Age" is characterised as one of anxieties (Mt. iv. 19); of a cominging of good seed and bad in the field sown by the Son of Man (Mt. xii. 34-35); of persecutions. Mt. x. 30; of a need for non-conformity (Ro. xii. 2; Tt. ii. 12); of the crucifying of the Lord (by a ruined) (1 Co. i. 8); of the dedication of Satan (2 Co. iv. 4); of the prevalence of evil (Gal. i. 4; epiph. ii. 2; 2 Tim. iv. 10). (ii.). "The coming age" will signalise by the forthcoming of the glory of the Lord (Mt. xxi. 11; 1 Co. xvi. 22); the resurrection from among the dead (Lu. xx. 35); the bestowment of age-abiding life (Mt. x. 30; Lu. xviii. 30); and the fortunableness of the rich and the kingdom (Mt. xii. 31). The conclusion of the age is spoken of in Mt. xii. 34, 40, 49; xxv. 8; xxvii. 30; "the conjunction of the ages," Heb. i. 20; and "the end of the ages," 1 Co. xi. 11. (Cop. note on "Age-abiding" below.)

AGE-ABIDING.
Age-abiding: that is, lasting for an indefinite or perpetual age; or abiding from age to age. The reason for adopting this rendering of the Greek adjective aionios is (i.) to keep up a connection with the phrase "age" as the translation, in this New Testament, of the cognate noun aion; and (ii.) to avoid, as too restricted, the confinement of the idea to any particular, limited age. It is true that aion does not of itself mean absolute eternity, otherwise it would not submit to be multiplied by itself, as in the familiar phrase "aions of aions," which would then be equivalent to "eternities of eternities"; and it is further true that, in the history of divine revelation, aion sometimes puts a dispensational limit upon itself, so far as that the dawn of a new aion or "age" serves to close and exclude an old aion or "age," the end of which was aforetime concealed in the mists of an undefined futurity (ep. note on "Age," above). But, with all this, it is most important to remember that "age" is not the primary meaning of aion, rather "in aion," co-extensively extended. Moreover, it seems to be as clothed with this more primitive significance, that the qualifying word aionios comes into use. The notion of the correspondence to this fundamental notion in the well known idiomatic phrase eis ton aion (lit. "into it") or "unto the age," in the interpretation of which, if the force of the expression be ignored, and each word be pressed on its individual merits, the reader will be continually tempted with the feeling that he is being referred to some particular and pre-eminent age, which ought to be well-known, while all the time it is unknown. He may say: "Until the age, unto what age!" and there will be nothing in context or circumstance to tell him, whereas, once assumed the existence of an aion, and then all perplexity is, as it were, "in the." aionios, and eis ton aion becomes very nearly equivalent expressions, the essence of which is "indefinitely continuous." The Hebrew servant's bondage was not indefinitely prolonged: it is to be for life—the end of which cannot be seen (Exo. xx. 6). So also the Hebrew priesthood was appointed for a time indefinite, continuous, when as yet it could not be foreseen that a change in the priestly would necessitate a change in the law (Exo. xlv. 15; He. vii. 12). The surrender of Samuel, by his mother, to the priestly service is to be taken as equally undefined (1 S. i. 12). To the barrenness of the fig-tree no limit can be assigned (Mt. xxv. 19). The son does not cease to be welcome in his father's house, save by externally induced bounds (Jn. viii. 30). Upon the "aionion correction" (Mt. xxv. 46) no arbitrary limit can be laid, unless indeed the essential nature of "correction" implies—abundantly of itself utterly refuses to settle the dread question. If the equally "aionion life is to be bestowed that is best made out from the mighty negatives of Scripture ("immortal," "incorruptible," "unfading"; 1 Co. xv. 51-54; 1 P. i. 14; and from the correlative ground that Because I live ye also shall live) (Jn. xiv. 19; He. vii. 16).

ASSEMBLY.
It is well-known that the Greek word for "Church" is ekklesia; and that ekklesia strictly and fully means "called-out-assembly;" but inasmuch as a phrase only awkwardly represents a single word, and by frequent repetition may become misleadingly "uniform" in meaning, it is well-nigh unavoidable (by forcing one element of the phrase to the foreground) to mislead. (For this version to let the reader understand that the original ekklesia, and to leave the reader to invest the word with that accession of ideas which the known facts gather about it. The "call" of the glad-message can be read by everyone who cares to inform himself; the separateness of the standing and life to which the summons is addressed needs to be noted. So also the lofty ideal set before the assembly of the Son of God may soon dislose itself to the humble and ardent inquirer. It must be also read to judge disenchantedly of the actualities. The actualistic organisations help or hinder the attainment of that ideal. Only let no one presume to dim the divinely given image.

BAPTISM. See Immersion.

BEELZEBUL (BEELZEBOUL).

This and not "Beelzebub" is the form ordinarily found in Greek New Testament; but Westcott and Hort print the name as "Beelzeboul," after the Sinen and Tainat MSS., and think there is "no sufficient reason for regarding this form of an obscure name, unknown except from the N. T. They go on to say that "In the K. T. the name has no Greek authority. (Appendix to Introduction, p. 159.) "Beelzebub," we may observe, however, is found in 2 K. i. 2, 3, 6, and signifies "Lord of flies." Beelzeboul, according to Fuerst, means "Lord of the heavenly dwelling." Cp. 2 Co. iv. 4; Eph. ii. 2 Dr. Davies, however, in his Heb. Lex. gives a different account of the word Beelzeboul. He says: "The proper name beelzeboul, beelzeboul, Mt. x. 25, prob. means lord of dung, abeezelboul being here akin to Chal. abezel, dung; the alteration from serving periphrasis for the Philistine god, and perhaps alluding to the connection between flies and dung or putrid things." Heb. Lex. p. 170.

CHRIST.

Or, Anointed—"a term to be understood by the types and prophecies of the old dispensation." Acts xvii. 22-23; 1 Th. xii. 11 xvi. 13; Ps. cxvi. 10; Ps. xl. 13; Ps. viii. 24 xvi. 7; Is. xi. 2-5; Is. x. 1-3; Dan. ix. 25. 26; and by the great fact stated in Mt. iii. 16; Acts xii. 27 30. Sometimes the word is used as a simple appellative, or descriptive epithet, in which case the meaning comes to the front, and the word should be translated accordingly. More commonly, however, the word is an official title approaching a proper name: hence, in the majority of its occurrences, it is here merely transferred. It is related to "Anointed," and should be so translated. We and H say: "We doubt whether the appellative force, with its various associations and implications, is ever entirely lost in the New Testament, and are conscious that the number of passages is small in which Messiahship, of course in the enlarged apostolic sense, is not the principal intention of the word." (Intro. p. 317.) When we reflect that proper names themselves are now and again used as epithets of evident religious meaning, and that to insist on always translating proper names would work such havoc in literature as to make intelligible history impossible, we find that even a translator even if he should occasionally err in dealing with significant titles, sometimes (it may be thought) more consciously, is better left his own master, and other times transferring where he should rather translate. Something, moreover, may be left to the expositor, who will do well to remind his mind, whether of the meaning of the titles and even proper names whenever he feels that so to do will add to the luminosity and force of the text before him. For the intimate relation, between the anointing of the Head and that of the Body, see Ps. lxxxiii. 2; 2 Co. i. 21, and 1 Jn. ii. 20. 27.

COVENANT.

The N. T. word diatikē signifies "covenant," because it is the 3p. rendering of the Heb. bērēkh which occurs everywhere in the O. T. means covenant and covenant only. This argument from Septuagint usage is immensely strengthened by observing that what a highway Divine dealing the word diatikē passes into the N. T. Let us look at these two points in succession. That "covenant" is the meaning of bērēkh is sufficiently attested by the fact that the Oxord "Geneenius" assigns it to no other. If, however, we pass from lexical authority to actual the most abundant and varied evidence that "covenant" is indeed the one meaning of bērēkh. It is a word in common use to denote all sorts of covenants. E. g.: between Abraham and Amore (Gen. xv. 10), Jacob and Laban (xxxii. 44), Joshua and the Amalekites (Jos. x. 16-18). Solomon and Hiram are also cited (1 K. v. 1) as making a treaty. That is, however, only a few examples out of many. In some cases, moreover, there is such a passing from the human to the divine, or from the divine to the human, that a strict division of the two is by the unaided force of the lower reference: "I will never break my covenant (bērēkh, diatikē) with you; and ye shall make no covenant (bērēkh, diatikē) with the inhabitants of this land." (Jdg. ii. 1, 3). And it should be observed that never once, as between man and man, does bērēkh mean a "testament" or "will," to come into force when the testator dies. This is my blood of the covenant (see Jdg. xi. 29; Mk. xiv. 24); The words "blood of the diatikē" are from Ex. xxx. 9; from which passage we learn that there was a diatikē entered into at Sinai of "testament" or a "covenant." According to Lu. xxii. 20 and 1 Co. xi. 25, the word "new" was prefixed to diatikē and this at once sends us to the covenant of Moses, old and new are brought into contrast (cp. He. viii. 13). This then is the highway by which the word diatikē comes into our Christian Scriptures—into the covenant of Jeremiah into the upper room at Jerusalem. Under these circumstances it is confidently submitted that the same meaning must hold good throughout: if it was a "testament" at the Last Supper, then it must have been a "testament" in Jeremiah, and a "testament" in Exodus—where the A. V. does not assert, or even working in the opposite direction, if it was a "covenant" in Exodus and a "covenant" in Jeremiah, as even the A. V. has it, then the word must be translated not "testament" but "covenant" on the lips of our Lord and in the letter of his Apostle. It is granted that diatikē in the classics sometimes means "will," and that the expressions can be of no avail to darken the line of light which shines through our sacred classics. The only legitimate doubt is whether the writer to the Hebrews does or does not for just a moment (chap. ix. 16, 17) step aside from the sacred usage to the profane. Even if he does, it is only for a moment; it is being clear, free, that the word "covenant" certainly ought to stand in verses 15 and 20. In this N. T. the one word has been carried through the whole passage, reminding us of the verses 16 and 17; since it was felt, that it may have been assumed by the sacred writer that no covenant between man and man was at any time regarded and binding until in some way a solemnizing death had been interposed; not the actual death, of course, of the covenanting parties, but a representative death, proclaimed once for all that each party was as good as dead to any further change in the case whether or not it involves the penalty of death on the violator of the compact. There was this further apprehension also: that even as between God and man, it may have been a part of the Divine condescension to freely accept the suggestion that the earthly Living One could as soon die as break his word. This is ground upon which the reverent man may stand with the utmost caution; but when once the horror of a great darkness has come upon us for our sins, the stricken soul may be glad to see the hand of wrath and torch of fire which by the patriarch Abraham was conducted into covenant relationship with God an impressive symbol of the Mystery of the Cross as the Divine Christ reconciling the world unto himself (Co. v. 19), so surely does God himself lead the way into an abiding covenant of life and peace. With the writer ably and together declining this suggestion, very carefully consider the following three passages: namely Gen. xiv. 7-21; Jer. xxxii. 18, 19; and 2 Co. ii. 17. In the foregoing considerations have influenced the present translator in declining to think it likely that the eloquent writer to the Hebrews would suddenly start from the sacred associations of the ancient Divine Covenants to strengthen his argument by an altogether unlooked-for and rather inconsequent allusion to very strange and strange dispositions. So much towards the current of the correct rendering. Once that is settled, there remains scope for the exercise of sweet reasonableness. Since, even among men, contracts are entered into with varying degrees of freedom. There may be, and often is, more authority to impose terms on the one side than that of liberty on the other to decline them; and yet the advantages of a truly covenanting transaction may by no means be lost.

DEMON.

Without entering upon the much-debated question as to who or what the demons of the N. T. were, the following points, if carefully observed, may prepare the reader for fuller investigation. The word "demoni", even in Homer, is often used as a synonym for Satan as their ruler (Mt. xii. 24-28); second that they, or some of them, were "impures" (Mt. iii. 30; v. 8); Lu. iv. 33; third that they had only a few early examples of the sort. Fourth that Jesus was the Son of God than had the men around him (Mk. i. 24; Lu. viii. 29); fourth that they had a dread of torment and exorcised by the signment thereto (Mt. viii. 29); fifth that they shrank from the "abysm" (Lu. xi. 31; see above, "Abyss"); sixth that demon worship is noticed as a fact in the Holy
APPENDIX.

Scriptures (1 Co. x. 20; Rev. ix. 20); seventh that their knowledge of God causes them to "shudder" (Jas. ii. 19); and eighth that the Apostle Paul (in 1 Tim. iv. 1-5), makes a remarkable allusion to this state in his teaching, in which passage it is clear from the Greek that they are the demons who speak falsely, are censured in his own conscience, as if he did not wish to have anything to do with them, as he might wish to; but, diminishing this phase of the question, it should be observed in the following: O.T. passages the word "demon" should be understood to mean a devil (Jer. xxxii. 17; 2 Ch. xii. 15; Ps. cxli. 37). At the same time it is right to remember the latitude with which the word was employed among the Hebrews, among whom "demon" was sometimes regarded as deities not necessarily evil; else we may fail to see that the Apostle Paul was far from needlessly offensive toward the Athenians, whose concept of gods, of course, he wished to conciliate (Ac. xvii. 29).—In this version demons are never termed "devils."

EVIL ONE.

The Greek ponyous may be either masculine or neuter; and therefore mean either "evil one" or "evil." But, says French (Parables, p. 680); "the analogy of Mat. xiii. 19, 39; Ep. vi. 16; 2 Thess. iii. 3 would lead us to translate in the Lord's prayer ponyous as a masculine. It was always so interpreted in the Greek Church."

GEHENNA.

This word occurs only in the following places in the New Testament: Mt. v. 22, 25, 30; x. 28; xviii. 9; xxiii. 16, 33; Mk. ix. 33, 40, 41; Lu. xii. 5; Ja. iii. 6. The word itself seems to be derived from abbreviation of a Hebrew phrase for "the valley of the son or sons of Hinnom" gyben(yr)hinnom; then "valley of Hinnom," gyhinnom; and so, at length, simply, gehennon, Jer. xxvi. 32; 2 K. xxiii. 10; Ja. xv. 8. Hinnom, says Dr. Davies (Heb. Lex.), is "probably the proper name masculine of the man to whom the valley on the south side of Jerusalem, once belonged, where children were sacrificed to Moloch." Whether the N. T. use of the word does not point to somber conception of life and death, the future life to be left to the solemn consideration of the student. It would seem evident, in the N. T. at least, that a marked distinction exists between Gehenna and Gehenna; but whether the O. T. notion of "the lowest hades" did or did not approximate to the N. T. conception of gehenna, perhaps might be worthy of consideration.

GLAD-MESSAGE.

Or "good news," "joyful-tidings"; but no English word, single or compound, seems equal to the beautiful Greek word euangelion. "Glad-message" suits well the apostle's way of Jon. xii. 18; Ro. x. 16; 1 Th. iii. 11; 2 Th. ii. 13; and it is a notion of a trust (Gal. ii. 7; 1 Tim. i. 11); it is the purpose of a witness (Mt. xxiv. 14); and the claim for submission (Ro. iv. 17). But in teaching and preaching, synonymous may be effectually interchanged. Evangelion in the N. T. deals with: [1] the kingdom (Mt. iv. 23; x. 14; Ac. xvi. 14; Mk. i. 14; 1 Pet. i. 21).—(2) the grace of God (Ac. viii. 24, cp. xx. 25); —[2] "Jesus Christ" (Mk. i. 1; Lk. i. 10; Ac. vi. 37; xii. 38; xli. 20; Ro. i. 9; 1 Co. ii. 2).—(3) the power of God (1 Th. iii. 16; Eph. iii. 8; Ph. iv. 13; 1 Th. iii. 2; 2 Th. i. 8).—(4) "God" (Ro. i. 16; xv. 16; 2 Co. xi. 7);—(5) the "glory of God" (Ac. xx. 24);—(6) "peace" (Ac. xvi. 36; Eph. vii. 16; vi. 15);—(7) "salvation" (Eph. i. 19);—(8) the "word" (Ac. viii. 3);—(9) "the gospel" (Gal. i. 23). It is described as a "good joy" (Lk. xii. 10); and—either the general message, or a special one for a crisis—as "age-abiding" (Rev. xiv. 6). We also read of the word Ac. xv. 7, the "hope" (Col. i. 23), the "truth" (Gal. ii. 14), the "redemption" (Eph. xvi. 15), and the "secret" (Eph. vi. 19) of the glad-message; and the Apostle Paul speaks of his glad-message (Ro. ii. 16; xvi. 25; 2 Tim. ii. 8), and of our glad-message (1 Th. i. 5; 2 Th. ii. 14). The word in the titles to the four evangelical narratives is understood to be traditional; the most ancient copies have simply "According to Matthew," etc.; at the same time there is mention in the ostension of Westcott and Hort; who head each narrative in the manner just described—KATA MATTHAIION, etc.,—but place the one word EUANGELIION by itself: that "In preaching the name EUANGELION in the singular to the quaternary of the "gospels," we have wished to supply the antecedent which legitimate sense to the proposition KATA ["according to"] in the several titles." Intro. p. 231.

HADES.

This word occurs ten times in the N. T.; viz., Mt. xi. 22; xvi. 18; Lu. x. 15; xvi. 23; Ac. ii. 37, 31; Rev. i. 18; vi. 8; xx. 13, 14. It is the uniform Septuagint rendering of the Hebrew sheol, which is found sixty-five times in the O. T. In order to form proper Biblical ideas of Hades it is plainly important that all the Scriptures on the subject should be considered as having a dual nature, that it is needed that the O.T. expressions of this word be understood as sufficiently naturalised in the English language for this purpose. Whether the O. T. conception of sheol is the same as the N. T. conception of hades, the reader can judge for himself; whether even the O. T. characterisation of hades or sheol is uniformly consistent with itself,—of this also the student can form his own opinion. Let him only trace the word "hades" throughout, from Genesis to Revelation, and the whole matter will be before him; and because he may use other words such as "soul," "death," "grave," etc., which will have something to say on the subject, yet these other words will be sure to come well in view in connection with the one word "hades."
APPENDIX.

was never written down; and (2) that a scribe or editor, unwilling to change the words of the text before him or to add words of his own, was willing to furnish the Gospel with a worthy conclusion by incorporating with it an unchanged narrative of Christ's appearances after the Resurrection which he found in some secondary record. This principle applies to a preceding generation. If these suppositions are made, the whole tenor of the evidence becomes clear and harmonious. Every other view is, we believe, untenable.

MESSENGER.

This is confessedly the meaning of the Greek word angelos, as it is also of the corresponding Hebrew term mal'ak. When it was that either word was applied to a heavenly messenger, and when to an earthly, had always to be learned from context and circumstance, never from the mere word; although, perhaps, here and there, a slight presumption may be inferred in favour of a heavenly errand-bearer. How slight that presumption may be, is a glance at the use of the words. Angelos in the N. T. is applied indifferently to John the Immune (Mt. xi. 10; Mk. i. 2; Lu. vii. 27), to John's disciples (Lu. vii. 24), to Jesus' disciples (Lu. ix. 53), to the thorn in the flesh of the Apostle (2 Co. xi. 7), and to the Apostle (lu. xii. 25). In all these examples the original word is angelos. The like use of the Hebrew word mal'ak may be illustrated by the same context. From Gen. i. 3, we learn that at about the same time that God sent "messengers" to meet Jacob, Jacob sent "messengers" to meet Esau; the simplest explanation of the grand old historian's entire lack of device of an apocryphal creed to God's messengers and a common one to Jacob's; it termed both alike malkin (as the scribes generally after it), even those holy men's business it is to "stand and wait," as Ps. ciii. 21 naturally suggests. There are, indeed, still other lessons which the mischievous insinuation of the word "messenger" fitted to impart; such as that the "world, as now constituted, includes both men and God" (1 Co. iv. 9), and that the coming habitable world will not be, as the earth now is, subject unto messengers, but unto man (He. ii. 5, 6 f), as though man's minority, during which he is subject to beings of a foreign race, were to be superseded by his majority, which is to be spent here, in this home, divinely given to him as his inheritance.

MYSTERY. See SACRED SECRET.

PRESENCE.

In this edition the word parousia is uniformly rendered "presence," as a representative of this word, being, (1) the original. The occurrence and times in the N. T., viz: Mt. xxiv. 3, 23, 37, 39; 1 Co. xv. 23; xvi. 17; 2 Co. vii. 6, 7; x. 10; Phl. i. 20; xii. 1; Th. ii. 19; iii. 18; iv. 18; v. 23; 2 Th. ii. 1, 8, 9; Js. v. 7, 8; 2 P. i. 16; iii. 4, 12 and 1 Jn. ii. 38. The sense of "presence" is so plainly shown by the contrast with the absence (implied in 2 Th. x. 10, and expressed in Ph. ii. 12) that the question naturally arises,—Why not always so render it? The more so, inasmuch as there is in 2 P. i. 16 also, a peculiar fitness in our English word "presence." This passage, it will be remembered, relates to our Lord's transformation upon the Mount. The wonderful manifestation there made was displayed and sampled of "presence," rather than of "coming." The Lord was already there; and, being there, he was transformed (cp. Mt. xvii. 2, n.) and the majesty of his glorified person was then disclosed. His bodily "presence" was one which implied and exerted "power," so that "power and presence go excellently together," the one "filling" the other (Eph. iii. 8-9) and the three favoured disciples were at one and the same moment witnesses of both. The difficulty experienced in the notes to this edition of the N. T., in the way of so yielding to this weight of evidence as to render parousia always by "presence," lay in the seeming inconsistency of presence residing as an event which would happen at a particular time and which would fall into rank as one of a series of events, as 1 Co. xv. 23, especially appeared, and still feels the force of this objection, but is withdrawn from taking his stand upon it any longer by the reflection that, after all, the difficulty is imaginary. The parousia, in any case, is still in the future, and may therefore be enshrined in a measure of obscurity which only fulfilment can clear away; it may, in fine, be both a period,—more or less extended, during which certain things shall happen,—and an event, coming on and passing away as one of a series of divine interpositions. Christ is raised as one event; he returns and vouchsafes his "presence," during which he raises his own—that is another event; however large and prolonged, and finally another cluster of events constituting the "end." Hence, after all, "presence" may be the most widely and permanently satisfying translation of the looked-for parousia of the Son of Man. REST. See SABBATH.

SABBATH.

Not to enter upon the larger questions which concern the Sabbath or the Lord's Day, a few critical remarks on the word sabbath as it appears in the N. T. may be useful. First, this word seems to be sometimes an appellative and sometimes a proper name ("day of rest, Sabbath"). Second, the term sabbath is, in several texts, used in the plural in the Greek, where nevertheless it is evident that only one particular day is intended. Under this head, the following texts are noteworthy of note: Mt. xii. 11; Mk. i. 21; ii. 23; iii. 2; Lu. iv. 16; xiii. 10; Ac. xiii. 14; xvi. 13. In all these passages the word in the original is in the plural, and yet it is plain that a particular, individual day is intended. Nor is there anything surprising in this; for it is a common form in the plural, which is to be repudiated or abused. Hence the current opinion is probably correct that finds in Lu. xvii. 12, the meaning "I fast twice in the week," not withholding that the word for "fasting" is general in the singular; since it would appear a very paltry boast to say, "I fast twice on the sabbath" when anyone (with more plausibility than phraseology) may fast more than once. To this example of sabbathos in the singular, used in the sense of "week," may now be added 1 Co. xvi. 2, where not only the Old Testament but the New Testament of Revisers find the word in the singular number; and it would seem enough simply to ask the question, Is it credible that the Apostle Paul meant to enjoin on the assemblies of Galatia and on that of Corinth by lay on by the first [hour of] sabbath without so much as specifying that it was the first hour of the sabbath? If not, and if first day of the week is impossible, what is left but to assume that he meant "first (day) of the week"? "Week" also appears itself in Mt. xxi. 21; Mk. xvi. 2; Lu. xxiv. 1; Jn. xx. 19; Ac. x. 7, 11. Does the word in the plural, as it undoubtedly is here, mean "week" or does it allude to one of the seven sabbath days on which Jesus rose? There is nothing unnatural in supposing the meaning to be "week"; for, as we have seen: (a) the word in the plural form may convey a singular idea; (b) the word in the singular is twice used in the sense of week. Now let us test the two words, "sabbaths" and "week." "Late in the sabbaths, as it was on the point of dawning into the first of the sabbaths." Will that stand? Now try "week." "Late in the week, as it was on the point of dawning into the first of the week." Here every thing is harmonious. When the Hebrews the sabbath closed the week. Late on the sabbath would be late in the "week," and the transition is natural from the end of one week to the beginning of the next. Hence the correct rendering here is "week." SACRED SECRET.

We have no secrets to hide from the uninitiated. The sacred secret of this book, however, (Eph. iii. 8-9) and should be blurred abroad (Ro. xvi. 25, 26; Eph. vi. 19); but yet is of a nature unlikely to interest any one who are careless of the dispensational ways; and of this the Greek mystesian aptly reminds us (cp. "Age" above, and 2 Th. ii. 7, n.)

SHEPHERD.

The analogy is obvious between tending a flock and ruling a kingdom; but note, the protecting a flock often calls for force against assailants (cp. 2 S. v. 2; 1 Ch. xi. 2; Ps. xxxii. 11; 1x. 11; Exo. xxxix. xxvi. 24; Mt. ii. 6; Rev. ii. 7; v. 17).

SHRINE. See TEMPLE.
SOUL.

One cannot but regret the impossibility of making our English word "soul" express just as much as is conveyed by the Greek word οὐσία and the Hebrew word נפש. The translator may confess that, after a determined endeavour to render the latter term uniformly "soul" throughout the O. T., he was reluctantly constrained to give up the attempt. When, in the book of Esther, it came in at the climax that the Jews were permitted "to stand for their soul" (nephes - Est. viii. 21), this example proved to be the turning of the scale, and "life" was promptly substituted. It certainly may be worth enquiry, how it comes about that the sacred originals so freely use a concrete word where we sorely feel our need of employing an abstract term "life"; and that this is so, notwithstanding the existence of chayyā in the Hebrew and ψυχή in the Greek, more exactly answering (as it might have seemed) to the English word "life." But the fact of stubborn diversity of usage above indicated remains, and it appears necessary to allow "life" to stand in a respectable minority of instances for nephes and ψυχή.

In this edition, therefore, "life" has been admitted into a certain class of passages, of which Mt. xvi. 29, 30 may be named as an example.

SOUL MAN OF; BODY OF THE.

Notwithstanding what has been said above, "soul" of course remains our leading representative of ψυχή; and we greatly need an adjective which holds the same relation to "soul" as "spiritual" holds to "spirit." "Natural" is evidently not the exact word. We might of course say "psychical man" and "psychical body," in 1 Co. ii. 14, and xiv. 44, 46, if we were in the habit of using "psychic" everywhere instead of "soul." As that is not the case, and as "soulful" has no recognised place in the English language, it seems to the translator, after much thought upon the subject, that the simple circumlocutions placed at the head of this note may prove a not unhappy solution of the difficulty. The Greek adjective πνευματικός, here discussed, occurs, in the N. T., only in 1 Co. ii. 14; xiv. 44, 46; Ja. iii. 18 and Jude 19.

SPIRIT. PERSONALITY OF THE HOLY.

The reader is requested to observe that the very literal rendering, "Holy Spirit" (with no "the" prefixed - rather frequent in the "Acts") is in no sense due to any doubt of "the personality of the Holy Spirit." The translator simply declines to admit that the idea of personality is so dominating and exhaustive as to require, by a species of English forcing, to be kept ever to the front. Over and above those precious conceptions which by consent are couched under the word "person," there are others (nearly as important), of pervasive influence, of secret, subtle, interpenetrating and embracing energy, which by us in our weakness are sometimes more easily caught when the notion of personality is, for the time, in abeyance. Moreover, as the authors of The Living Unitarians well say (p. 173, third edition): "It ought to be remembered that here the word person does not mean the same thing as it does when applied to ourselves, but only denotes some distinction that may be regarded as best expressed by this word. Our idea of person or individual is derived solely from our experience of that position which we occupy in the universe."

SPIRIT versus "GHOST."

It is satisfactory to find The Revised English Bible (Eye & Spottiswoode) substituting the word "Spirit" for the venerable but objectionable word "Ghost." Objectionable, certainly, the latter is; notwithstanding that, in many minds, it is clustered about with sacred associations, and is by some strangely regarded as a very bulwark of orthodoxy. The primary objection to it ranges high above any question of taste; and is derived from the circumstance that it makes, in English, an artificial, unfounded distinction, which separates passages which ought to be closely linked together by uniformity of rendering. For example, we have, in the public Versions of 2 Co. xiii. 14 "the communion of the Holy Ghost," but, in Phil. ii. 1, the "fellowship of the Spirit." A double break, it will be observed, jerking the reader from "communion" to "fellowship," and from "ghost" to "Spirit," although in the Greek the one passage is the very echo of the other. And this brings us to a subordinate, though very weighty, objection to "Ghost," namely, the essential incongruity of the word at this time of day. For, mark: should anyone think to restore the broken link by a reverse movement, that is to say, by extending "Ghost" to both passages ("If there be, therefore, any fellowship of the Ghost", would he not be instantly beaten back by a general cry of dismay? It remains to add this only: Given, devout persons who for years have intelligently preferred and used "Spirit," and in them a strong revulsion of feeling unite with a clear decision of judgment to decline, as bordering on profundity, any voluntary application of the term "Ghost" to the mighty and gracious Spirit of the Living God.

TEMPLE.

The attempt has here been made to distinguish between hēron (temple, inclusive of courts, precincts) and ναός, the inner building, marking the latter by a capital initial (Mt. xxviii. 16-21, 36) or rendering it "shrine" (Jn. ii. 19; 1 Co. iii. 16; vi. 19) and "sanctuary" (Rev. iii. 12; xi. 1, 4; xiv.-xvi.; xxi. 22).

TENT.

There is a simple beauty in the word "tent" which "tabernacle," notwithstanding its loftier sound, does not possess; and if the Heb. לְעֹלָה is rendered "habitation," there is neither need nor ground for further distinction.

TORCH.

"The true Hindu way of lighting up is by torches held by men, who feed the flame from a sort of bottle constructed for the purpose."—Eliphas Lévy, quoted by Trench. (Cp. Jdg. vii. 16, 20; xv. 4, 5; Job xli. 19.)

VIRGINITY.

The example of the translator of an excellent version published by Morrish (understood to have been the late J. N. Darby) has emboldened the present translator to adopt "virginity" in 1 Co. vii. 28-36. The immense relief from difficulty thus obtained, and the fact that the word παρθένον is "sometimes masculine, an unmarried youth" (Liddell and Scott), have been accepted as a justification of this rendering.
